Elizabeth Gilmore Holt has performed a tremendous service with this anthology of mid-19th century critical writing. Her introductions to each section of The Art of All Nations—organized by city and exhibition—are model news bulletins, highly detailed yet never boring summaries of information. She deftly sets the stage for—contextualizes—the critics.

The day-to-day conditions for critics then and now were often amazingly the same. Etienne Delécluze, the dean of Paris art critics, remarks on the 'feverish "encyclopedic atmosphere" in which we all live. Nationalism, as Camillo Boito, an architect and architectural critic, noted, was an important issue, despite the fact that "the art of the different nations is becoming more and more assimilated." The conflict between cosmopolitanism and regionalism was very much alive, epitomized in the differences between the Paris painters and Courbet. With his "cult of ugliness," as his realism was called, he also epitomized—Delécluze said he wanted "to transform himself . . . into a daguerreotype"—the battle over photography. As Philippe Burty noted, "despite protests, [it] was relegated to a place among the purely industrial products" at the Exposition Universelle of 1855.

There were perhaps more "outcasts," "pariahs" then than now—reading Philip G. Hamerton defending "the rejected pictures" of Whistler and Manet reminds us of who they were—but there was the same sense of values in seemingly perpetual flux, in "reformation." There were the same complaints about the enormous amount of forgettable art and the audience's lack of seriousness, despite "unquenchable curiosity"; Théophile Gautier writing about the "appearance" of the Salon of 1861 is brilliant on both. There were also the same know-it-all literati dabblers in art criticism, like Charles Dickens with his harsh put-down of the Pre-Raphaelites.

As to the general tone, there was a similar mix of nastiness and frenzy, whimsy and intellect, dryness and energy. Reading these earlier critics, one has a sense of déjà-vu; one is at the same time encouraged, for they saw the issues clearly, both in their topicality and long-term implications. There may have been no consensus among them about the artists—Courbet was a particularly difficult stumbling block—but there was about the issues. Also, the subtlety of their on-the-spot analysis is admirable, and stands up well with time.

The book has an excellent index and 52 black-and-white plates which, while of a quality similar to the University Prints, suggest what the critics had to deal with. For students, the book is available in paperback (Doubleday Anchor Books).

One weeps for the New York Times' art critics when one reads Werner Spies's magnificent reviews, written for the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, one of the world's great newspapers. (There is also one review written for the Stuttgarter Zeitung.) They are a subtle mix of topical reporting and in-depth analysis, making use of a wide variety of conceptual means, from the art historical to the sociological, from the generally cultural to the specifically psychological. Theoretical acuity is not sacrificed by Spies's enviable ease of movement between his ideas, or by his shifts in level of discourse. This kind of criticism is made possible only by the European tradition of the feuilleton, a hybrid of the journalistic article and the academic essay. Indeed, these are essays in the full sense associated with Montaigne, experimental demonstrations of fundamentals that disclose the writer as much as the subject matter.

Suavely mixing the general and the particular, without softening the thrust of either, a balanced yet passionate presentation of an artist or an issue is made. There is no condescension to the audience, no lowering of sights to meet the eyes—which supposedly know not what they see—or some hypothetical general reader, no withholding of intellect or its replacement by witty phrase-making. There is no forced sensationalism—as if that would automatically make the art part of the record—such as pervades the writing of some of the more populist, pseudo-bohemian newspapers, and no anti-intellectualism, as is often implicit in the writing of "straight" reporters. The relevance of the art is demonstrated through a historically informed, perceptually acute, theoretically ingenious empiricism. This is not an exhibitionistic criticism to match an exhibited art, although Spies is not without cunning and charm, even as he dissects charisma.

All the pieces are specific to an occasion—an exhibition, a visit to an artist. What are in effect interviews are presented as dialogues rather than as rigid alternations between meekly questioning critic and lordly, opinionated artist. Spies holds his own; there is no flattery, even when he visits official greats, such as Picasso. A casual skepticism keeps his investigations animated and open. He sees art and artists critically, i.e., in an unstable condition, caught up in a searching process. Unless the challenge of uncertainty is there, he is not interested. He captures the problematic of an artistic situation, which permits him to write "beautiful" criticism, to utilize Baudelaire's sense of beauty as the moment of collision between the eternal and the transitory. He seeks out that moment as the preferable one in art; it determines quality.

There are pieces here on Picasso, on art associated with Ossian,

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Kenneth Noland. Via Lime, 1968-69. Acrylic on canvas, 6' x 20' (230 x 609 cm.)

Photograph: Steven Sloman

Important Works by Contemporary Masters

André Emmerich Gallery · 41 East 57th Street · New York, NY 10022 · Tel (212) 752-0124

on Courbet, late Cézanne, Braque, Léger, Delaunay, Matisse, Chagall, Malevich, Mondrian, Max Ernst, Hans Bellmer, Duchamp, Man Ray, Henry Moore, Josef Albers, Vasarely, Agam, Hélion, Bacon, Lindner, Kienholz, Botero, Hockney, Yves Klein, kitsch, artists' books, Warhol, Photo-Realism, Beuys, and Earth Art, among other subjects. Spies's range is enormous, his knowledge never shallow. There are many brilliant insights, as in his characterization of Picabia's "aesthetic cynicism" and of Johns as "the new Winckelmann." Among the many deft, almost definitive analyses: his sense of the "growing contraction" of Pop Art as a concept and of the way Max Ernst's collages carry out André Breton's program for assassinating language, or of the way politics and art interact, as in his account of a visit to Louis Aragon. With a seeming minimum of means, with all his scholarship disguised, he can offer an understanding which seems final—which seems to preclude further "takes" on the art without thereby shutting it down, dooming it to hollow completeness. That is the heroic element in Spies.

His is a model of what a certain kind of criticism, which caters neither to populist nor academic expectations, can be, without losing either the everyday or the scholarly audience. He has accomplished the most that a critic can: to sensitize an audience to an art until the ideas with which he deals with it seem indispensable, the horizon the art itself seems to point toward.

The book badly needs an index, to make it of real use. The few photographs—among them a Gustave Doré illustration, Cézanne's Pyramid of Skulls, Picasso in 1970, Dali, Yves Klein, Vasarely—have little rhyme or reason, although most of them are of artists. They hardly spice up the appearance of the book, and they make it seem far more casual reading than it is. Yes, one can benefit from and enjoy an essay now and then, but Spies is powerful in cumulative forms. His analytic momentum acquires an almost Mephistophelean insistence in its promise of what art can deliver. Through his critical intelligence, he turns art into a greater temptation, a more seductive propositioning of us, than it would normally be.

The problem of the textbook—especially one for raw beginners, and one that claims to offer universal history—is that it must be both informative and entertaining, categorizing yet leading to an open relationship to its subject, authoritative yet not condescending to its audience. It must serve as the alluring introduction to an initially forbidding, unavoidably mysterious subject matter, and cannot intimidate if it truly wants to educate, and lead to a profounder relationship with the subject matter than a text book itself can offer. It must use the knowledge it offers to point to this relationship, at the same time making it clear that knowledge is an end in itself. It must give the reader a sense of the vastness of the subject matter, but not thereby make him or her feel diminished; it must also create intimacy with the subject matter, binding the reader to it to expand his or her sense of self.

Art history is a difficult subject to do this with, for it is easy for the beginning reader to project his or her emotions upon the strange objects being encountered for the first time—to establish an easy relationship with a complex reality. And a universal art history can be an occasion for an enormous misuse of history, in which monument is piled upon monument to crush the novice into a submissive objectivity, into a minimally functional literacy which carries with it the promise of easy understanding. Extreme and equally naive subjectivity and objectivity are the Scylla and Charybdis between which a universal art history textbook must sail.

This introductory textbook, The Visual Arts: A History, by Hugh Honour and John Fleming, is less seductive in tone than those of Janson and Gardner, and more peremptory in its objectivity. But this, I think, is part of its effort to be more modern—and it excels in its treatment of modern art, making Janson and Gardner look summary. This is a major area of "reality testing" for a universal art history, for modern art is the art of its immediate audience, an art to which it can be expected to respond "naturally," to take to, after some initial resistance and incomprehension. It is the living art of recent experience, surviving in personal memory, not simply in the collective unconscious. It is an art not yet clichéd into formula, or inaccessible in a dead life-world. Janson and Gardner deaden modern art into formula, make it part of the ritual continuity of art history, more completely than Honour/Fleming.

This I think can be shown most directly by comparing the treatment of Joseph Beuys in Honour/Fleming and Gardner. (Janson doesn't even mention him.) Their book, after referring to his "semi-mythical biography" and his preoccupation with "problems of thought and communication, . . . ritual, magic and myth," ends with a quotation from him. As a teacher, he starts from "the idea that art and experience gained from art can form an element that flows back into life." Honour/Fleming in general forcefully articulate the connection between art and life without losing any sense of the uniqueness of the autonomous art object. In contrast, Gardner, with its perfunctory linkage of Beuys to process art and the socialism of many contemporary artists, hardly begins to point to the depth of his art. However much one is forced to stay on the surface of art in a textbook, Honour/Fleming always signal its depth of implication. They repeatedly suggest an interacting continuum of art and social-historical processes. They utilize the beginning student's apparent interest in finding an empathetic connection between life and art to create an understanding of the subtlety of that connection.

Comparing the Janson text to the Honour/Fleming one is like comparing the King James version of the Bible with the new revised edition. A single instance of language suffices to show the breezy, up-to-date style of Honour/Fleming. Describing Bonaventura Berlinghieri's St. Francis, they remark that it is "not a portrait so much as a kind of identikit assemblage of remembered characteristics," which they then list. I love "identikit assemblage"; it knocks the stuffiness out of our awe at the image, and puts us in relaxed relation to it. But it also conveys an attitude, almost of irreverence, alien to the one that the image meant to inspire. By putting us in modern relationship to the image, access is gained but atmosphere lost. The adequate approach must no doubt offer both, but the modern approach at least does not put one off. In general, Janson's language is eloquent, Gardner's is temperate, and Honour/Fleming's brisk.

The day-to-day conditions for critics now and then were often amazingly the same. There were the same complaints about forgettable art, the same know-it-all literati dabblers in art criticism.

If I had to make a choice, I would probably use Honour/Fleming, because of the superiority of its treatment of the modern period. The book, however, has some technical problems. The black-and-white illustrations are less sharply focused than those in Janson and Gardner, and the bibliography loses something in ready usefulness by its running together of titles. The color plates, however, are the equal of those in Janson and Gardner. I wish their glossaries were integrated. In general, Honour/Fleming is a worthy competitor to Janson and Gardner.

The 49 articles published in honor of the late H.W. Janson in this 814 page book (including a Janson bibliography) relentlessly march through art history, beginning with an article on gigantism and kitsch in the art associated with Alexander the Great and ending with an article on the Dinner Party of Judy Chicago, who seems to regard herself as Alexandra the Great, and whose art can be associated with gigantism and kitsch. There are two main kinds of articles: a type that may be called informational asides—archival pieces adding to the warehouse of knowledge; and interpretative pieces, working with empirical evidence to come to a new insight into the style or meaning, and often their interrelation, in an art. Among the latter, there are some brilliant, eloquent pieces, using erudition as a springboard to profound understanding. These include Lucy Freeman Sandler's treatment of the hybrid creatures in the margins of English Gothic manuscripts; Marilyn Aronberg Lavin's treatment of the "angelic" smile on the face of certain "children" in pictures by Fra Filippo Lippi, Raphael and Leonardo; Kathleen Weil-Garris's "psychobiography" of Bandinelli, a marvelous examination of the effect on an artist of his competition with another (Michelangelo); Moshe Barasch's vigorous examination of the meanings and functions of the mask in European art, disclosing its two-sidedness; Linda Nochlin's socio-historical study of Renouard's imagery of workers; and Gert Schiff's piece on "Ensor the Exorcist."

There are other fine articles which sensitively and comprehensively disclose the origin of a work of art, such as Wanda Corn's exploration of Grant Wood's American Gothic. And there are some interesting risk-taking articles, such as Anne Coffin Hanson's ingenious piece playfully suggesting that Analytic Cubist pictures im-

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries

Paul Signac (1863-1935), Le Port de St. Tropez, c. 1901. Oil on canvas, 51½ x 63½ in. (131 x 161.5 cm.).

Bacon Beckmann Braque Caillebotte Calder Cézanne Chagall Courbet Dubuffet Feininger Gabo Giacometti Hepworth Kirchner Klee Kline Kokoschka Leger Lipchitz Magritte Matisse Mondrian Moore Nicholson Nolde Pechstein Picasso Reinhardt Rothko Rouault Schwitters Signac Smith Still Sutherland Tobey Utrillo Vuillard

Fully illustrated catalogue available with over 50 color reproductions. $28 U.S. and Canada, postage included.

May 7 to June 11

Marlborough

40 West 57 New York 10019 Tel 541-4900

plicitly exploit the discrepancies between the retinal images of our two eyes, generating "the experience of four dimensions" (as each eye separately shifts its perspective on the same object). What makes these articles memorable is that they skillfully combine information and ideas, perception and conception, to achieve a rich total effect which becomes a kind of expressive correspondence to the art dealt with. They become almost poetic in their intelligibility, achieving a critical relationship to the art that reveals its own criticality—"translating" it, in Baudelaire's sense of the term, until its transformative power is self-evident. These articles thus become epiphanies of the art, rather than descriptive renderings or analytic dismemberings of it.

If I have any quibble with the articles in general, it is the way they seem to preclude evaluation of the art they deal with, particularly in the case of recent art. Not that historical knowledge is unessential to evaluation—quite the contrary—but that it sometimes seems to raise the art beyond all criticism, if not quite canonizing it. Sometimes the enthusiasm of the historian seems to put a positive value on the art, but often this enthusiasm is so general that it becomes suspect, or simply discountable as a mannerism, an emotional habit to get one into the work at hand.

Josephine Withers's treatment of Judy Chicago's Dinner Party is a good example of how art history can sidestep dealing with a living work in a critical spirit by converting it into a pompous antique, as if that gave it significance. Chicago's work, which is in part about cunnilingus, raises important issues about the political use and erotic character of art which Withers hardly touches, and can't really explore because of her concentration on the iconography and craft of Chicago's work. Here art-historical business-as-usual methods preclude a more critical investigation of the work. In any case, Withers's uncritical use of true-and-tried art-historical methods should make artists working today happy. They can rest assured that whatever the quality and significance of their work sooner or later some scholar will come along to "venerate" it, which may not help its contemporary—or even future—value, but will assure it of immortality, however hollow. Art history will finally give every artist recognition, perhaps the wrong kind. To know that one's corpse will rest forever cooled in a morgue until it can be dissected will not necessarily vitalize the living artist, or help him produce living art.

Author: Donald Kuspit received the College Art Association's 1982 award for art criticism.

Photos, Texts and Photo-texts

Examining the multiple ways in which the visual and the verbal may play and interplay, the author discusses three recent books that juxtapose photographs with words.

BY CALVIN BEDIENT

The Artists of My Life, by Brassai, trans. by Richard Miller, New York, The Viking Press, 1982; 224 pp., $45.

Photographs and Words, by Wright Morris, edited and with an introduction by James Alinder, The Friends of Photography, 1982; 120 pp., $32.50.

Picture America, by Jim Alinder and Wright Morris, with an introduction by Ansel Adams, Boston, Little, Brown and Co., 1982; 111 pp., $29.95.

Merely as outriders on the fame of Bonnard and Braque, Dali and Giacometti, Laurens and Lipchitz, Picasso and Rouault, among others, Brassai's photographs of artists and their studios—taken on assignment from the art review Le Minotaure in the '30s and Harper's Bazaar in the '40s—would buzz with interest; but they form, at the same time, an art alien and antiphonal to the freed, expressive images on the canvases and the free-standing, if frozen, sculptures. They lack "self," they're all eyes; they're equitable, classic, and serene, and just for this reason they show up something compensatory and impatiently expressive in the works they report. Where the latter cry "form," the photographs display an unobtrusive feeling for design. With Brassai, as John Szarkowski said, ". . .one is not aware of the act of photographing; it is rather as though the subject . . . reproduced itself." The unquerulous temperament of the artist and the easy, ever-varied balance and array of black, white, and gray tones are almost enough to obscure the inevitable, mysterious gap at the core of every photograph, the absence of inner life, the cold clarity, the fixed frame.

If these photographs were not bound to the illustrious, what would they say? Perhaps that the making of art—the stooping handwork, the brief walks to get away from it, the incommunicative population of statues in a studio, the paintings stacked like wintered lawnchairs, the light falling indifferently on masterpieces—seems the coldest of idylls. The sculptures and canvases, the artists concentrated into immobility, have such a dissociated stillness that the camera can't violate them; its soft bullets bounce off or sink in and disappear. Any joy the artists take in their work is invisibly deep, largely deferred, cast back like the shadows in the studios: the work, not joy, is the thing.

Brassai's great photographs of nocturnal Paris in the '30s were gaslight-lurid with erotic, somnambulistic fascination. By contrast, the motives here are collegiality, appreciation, photograph-making—and an assignment. Almost every image is modestly (as against meretriciously) beautiful; informative; interesting; but none smokes like dry ice with an importance the camera can see but not articulate.

Of course some of the images are more striking than others: Gala Dali, artificially ensconced in various competing textiles, a burst of sunrays failing to warm her eyes; Alberto Giacometti's own living bust beside four crane-necked busts of his brother Diego, the sculptor's sad eyes and time-pummelled flesh set off by the bald eyes and chisel-pummelled sculptures; Maillol looking down from his grey eminence with eyes that seem to have become small and tired as they've receded into the Olympian; and several photographs of his works, one of L'ile de France looking apprehensive (with her black eyes and arched torso) as Maillol, his back to the camera, puts a scraping knife to her white stone ribs (a photograph of exceptionally lovely, firm design). But in none do I find—what Brassai reports others have found—"something X-ray-like" about his photographs. The equable man, who judges (as Whitman said) "not as the judge judges but as the sun falling around a helpless thing," doesn't seek to X-ray, but to yield up things intact; he licenses them to be.

Of the author of the reminiscences accompanying the photographs one can say (as Brassai himself says of Oskar Kokoschka) that he has "a very appealing personality. . .always ready to love and admire." Brisk, flexible, and sympathetic, a few degrees warmer than the dispassionate photographs, the prose, with its precise recall (champagne light, but not self-consciously toasting), makes of each artist a living personality, a focus of vital esthetic and personal interest. It can be gracefully incisive:

> A sunlight painter, Villon is among the contemporary artists who knew best how to make the light sing and vibrate. Gradually his palette had broadened to include rare and unexpected colors—lemon yellows, pinks, light blues, blacks, intense oranges—all of which surprise and enchant the viewer like the sight of a rare bird or some exotic flower. And how subtly he managed to wed the abstract and the figurative! In his work, the purpose of geometry is to crystallize life.

Brassai is unflaggingly genial without getting flushed. He never raises his fingers in devil's horns behind his subjects' backs. Nor does he itch for pathos or tragedy. He revisits the artists (many of whom were or became his friends) much as he visited them originally, in a spirit all cordial interest, but unbound, about to be lightly and cleanly gone.

What does he really think, one may wonder, of this man, that work? Has he not eaten of the apple? Is there no littleness in him, no carping impulse, no last analysis? One looks back at the photographs but again finds no telltale slant. In both the images and the words, empathy subdues analysis. One recalls Henry Miller's words: "Brassai has that rare gift which so many artists despise—normal vision. He has no need to distort or . . . preach. He would not alter the living arrangement of the world by one iota. . . ."

Once, however, Brassai does venture what for him is a strong opinion. He is discussing Maillol with Matisse. "He was faithful to the Greek ideal," Matisse says, "while my notions were freer; I was interested in the arabesque." Brassai responds: "In my opinion, Maillol respected the female body too much to deform it. He turned his back on adventure. And that was a pity, for although he was a

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

JUAN CARDENAS
One-man Exhibition of Paintings and Drawings at the Chicago Art Fair May 19 to 24, Booth I-238

Portrait in Front of the Mirror, 1982. Oil on canvas, $24^{13}/_{16}$ x $20^{5}/_{16}$ in. (63 x 51.5 cm.)

GALERIE CLAUDE BERNARD
5-7-9 rue des Beaux-Arts Paris 75006
For information call (212) 988-2050

great sculptor, his work is still only on the fringes of modern art." But Brassai's The Artists of My Life thus stands rebuked by its own mouth: it, too, is classic—patient, satisfied, and secure in temper. Is that a pity? The normal is after all not an ignoble basis for an esthetic, and temperament, not fashion or the "inner history" of a medium, must be every artist's stubborn guide.

The unjustly neglected photographs of the novelist Wright Morris, which date from an earlier period—mostly the '40's—advertise "the act of photographing" as little as Brassai's do. His instruction to the camera is: ". . . take me out of my self, into the selves of other things." Raised as he was in the least avant-garde of landscapes, the American plain (chiefly Nebraska), he has a "love for the facts."

So at first it is odd to find him quoting the fact-doubting, self-reflexive Samuel Beckett as epigraph to his third photo-text, God's Country and My People (1968): "From things about to disappear I turn away in time. To watch them out of sight, no, I can't do it." But, like Beckett, Morris is all but fatally attracted (in him it seems a plains inheritance) to the worn, the empty, and the abandoned: "There's little to see, but things leave an impression. . .they wear out. It can't be helped." Only he adds that they also "wear in," achieving an identity; and he reveres identity, the compromise between existence and time, the pathos of what becomes itself only when it begins to depart from itself. It's this veneration that spares him Beckett's inspired disappointment, his modernist impulse to turn tables, have at it.

Except in certain of his phototexts, Morris's fiction is as straightforward, as transparent, as his camera work—is as sharply focused on the particular. But the photographs fare the better by this. Take Morris's minor masterpiece The Works of Love (1952), a muted, implacable, generous novel about his lost-in-muteness, ineptly loving father: though it becomes incandescent at a few points, it remains finitely bound to a region, a period, a single man. By contrast, Morris's photograph of forks and knives arrayed on a page of Carper's Weekly (April 29, 1939) in a kitchen drawer—the newer utensils shiny, the others grimy with use—proves a "found" concrete universal. Nothing is missing, not even the farmy context, which seems to have been invisibly sucked into the vortex of the image. The prongs of one fork connect with the partial headline ". . .America Save these Children?" and two knife-tips round as a farmer's bitten fingernails cover all but the forehead of "Hitler's army chief." The utensils lead the eye to still other suggestive headlines ("Woman's World," "Mother Nature is Systematic"). But these enhancing, accidental details are slow to be noted and remain peripheral. The image includes them, as it were, unawares. No stalking "point of view" need account for them; they're there because they were there. The universality of the photograph lies less in them than in the commonplaceness of drawers containing eating utensils, in their humble but perennial part in the human story, and in the pathos of the tarnished. Besides, as an "emanation" (in Roland Barthes's term) that has survived an actual moment (and probably the actual objects), the photograph is poignant in a way that words, however evocative, could never be.

As a photographer Morris is remarkably consistent at finding and making concrete universals. He homes to "icons" of "the worn and abandoned," also to things "stubbornly and irrationally optimistic"—both plains tropisms. His distinction as a photographer is to see everything ruthlessly reduced to what it was "meant to be" (though it was "meant to be. . .something to love"). Hence the strong, clear designs of his photographs, in which drab things, many standing up to the light in a plains-hungry way, are directly fronted, as if to affirm that they are worthy to be met, made a surprising most of, paid tribute. In a secularization of Gothic dynamics, the verticals speak of stolid human pride, the horizontals of the irremediable. (There are few softening, mediating diagonals). Structure becomes charged with the continual warfare of life, with its "skirmish won," its "battle lost." The immense plain, where "the tall corn flowers and burns," proves, after all, a "metaphysical landscape," "a fiction inhabited by people with a love for the facts."

Morris's peaceful dissociation from Walker Evans and the critical school of Depression photography is explained by the fact that his camera-eye prizes deprivation. In his photo-text The Inhabitants (1946), he ridicules "gold-plated Freedom from Want," and in the essay "Photography in My Life" (the "words" of Photographs and Words) finds "hard times, if not destructively brutal or prolonged to the point of negation, . . .necessary to a density and richness of emotion that seem noticeably absent in happier situations." At any rate, the camera itself is anything but "progressive," stilling everything, as it does, to the inertia of a pose. A Dorothea Lange may try to get around this by making victims seem about to reach out and pluck at your sleeves or heartstrings, but you may feel set up. For Morris, nothing is to be rescued, except by the camera itself.

Though almost all 61 photographs in Photographs and Words have been published before—in The Inhabitants, The Home Place, or God's Country and My People, some in all three—the books didn't sell, and it makes sense to bring them out now, when good photography claims more prestige. Besides, the images have at last been printed with the care they deserve. Not only does the brown-toned paper suggestively age them; their lusters are ravishing, the darks extra rich, the light seeming still alien from its descent over the limitless plains but warming up, inquisitive. Then, too, many details have been more exquisitely burned in. And here and there the frame has been shifted slightly, to marked advantage.

No word as to why these photographs were chosen over others (there were 200 in the 1975 retrospective at the University of Nebraska). I could have done without the two dull adobe shots and the obvious, ineloquent juxtaposition in Power House and Palm Tree, and I miss many of Morris's other images: for instance, the luminous chicken egg resting on random grains beside a battered metal feed bin; the thick shaving mug white as a salt lick companioned by a bullhorn-shaped brush on a tattered towel; the landscape pitching up to a far, dark-helmeted haystack; the two shoes faithfully waiting beneath an empty, done-in bed; the light dappled clouds sailing wildly over some rickety outbuildings precariously moored in grasslands; Uncle Harry inside in his rocking chair seen from outside through an open door at night; the close-up of the weathered wooden swing-seat. But a feast is a feast. And let's hope for further encores.

Brassai is unflaggingly genial without getting flushed. He never raises his fingers in devil's horns behind his subjects' backs. Nor does he itch for pathos or tragedy.

In Picture America (the title sprightly punning), the words are again by Wright Morris but the photographs by Jim Alinder (with Ansel Adams supplying an incisive introduction). The book is patterned after Morris's once-unique Inhabitants, with here a small town of words huddled on a snowy white page and, opposite, a full-blown black-and-white photograph, by comparison an ontological boast. No method could be better calculated to bring out the complementarity of the verbal and visual modes. Words are not really good with external structures and surfaces; they're just pointers, or greased tongs. Conversely, a photo, with its flat surface and nailing frame, contradicts narrative flow, physical and emotional exigency. Each keeps you off, but off opposite things.

Here is Morris on that typical American sight, a backboard on a garage-front:

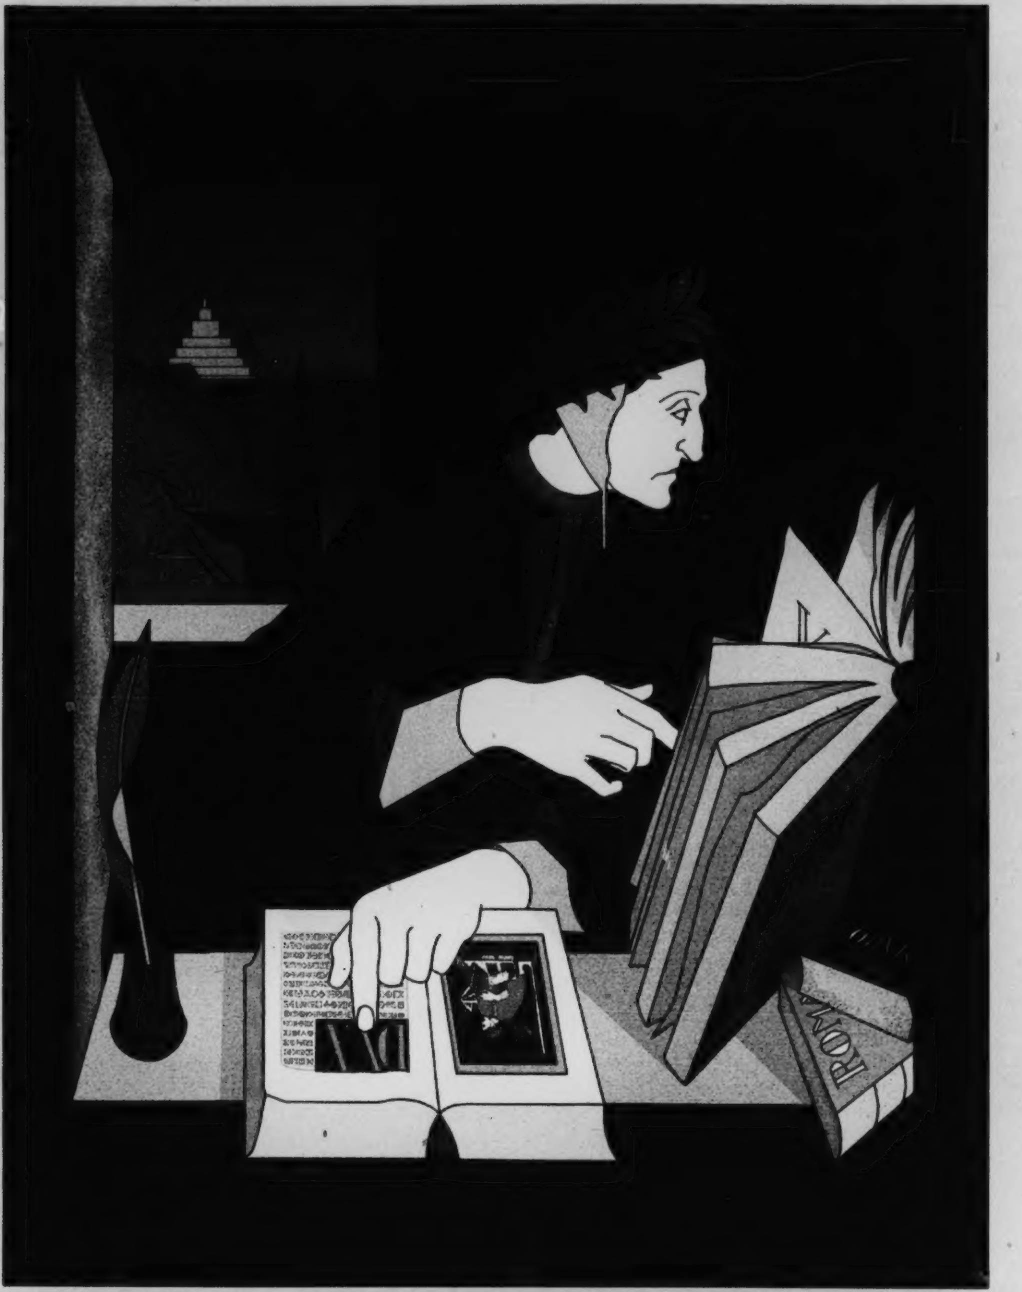
> The bounce of balls on the backboard. The dribble on the concrete. The hooting and yelling. The swish of the net and the long-awaited silence.
>
> In the silence we note how little time it takes small boys to grow up big.

This is first atomistic narrative, then a deepening reflection: an epiphany of deprivation, a farewell to the sweaty, happy moment—to narrative. Nothing visual is sought out, or missed. By contrast and definition, Alinder's collateral photograph of a garage-front in Pebble Beach, California (where the photographer now lives) is utterly and solely visual. Here diagonal laths cross to form diamond patterns on the wide door. Above, a backboard with stringy debris dangling from the hoop. To the right, bolted directly to the wall, a less raggedly netted hoop at "small boy" level. Morris has led us to the story that lies in the different levels of these two hoops, the destroyed-by-hard-use upper net, the absence of boys, and not least the elegiac shadows falling in a large broken pattern on the door and backboard. Yet the photograph itself can no more tell this story (which exists only as a construction put upon it) than prose can feed back to us the world of physical appearances. Opposites, they can meet only by bleeding into one another.

If I had to come up with a formula for Morris, perhaps it would be compression plus compassion. These prose fragments are pricking slivers. As in The Inhabitants and God's Country and My People, Morris's fiction, by

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

DANTE'S INFERNO



TRANSLATION AND ILLUSTRATIONS BY TOM PHILLIPS

A 'Livre d'Artiste' containing one hundred and thirty-nine original screenprints, lithographs and etchings, with contemporary text set in blank verse, 1976-83. An Edition of 185

WADDINGTON GRAPHICS

The Chicago Art Fair Stand No 1-220. New publications and works from stock by:
Avery, Braque, Buckley, Caulfield, Dine, Flanagan, Hamilton, Hockney, Hoyland, Jones, Martin, Matisse, Miro, Nicholson, Phillips, Picasso, Stella, and Tilson

WADDINGTON GRAPHICS 31 CORK STREET LONDON W1X 1HB TELEPHONE 01-434 3612 TELEX 266772 proving elliptical, proves modernist, the prose counterpart of the daring Imagism of Pound and others. In a novel, the following piece of mimicry would slip along in the general movement:

> The kids love it, I think Estelle loves it—the kids aren't underfoot all winter—but anyone who has to work inside, like I do, sitting in a room with the blinds drawn, you begin to lose track of time passing. Now some people like that. Other people get the feeling life is passing them by.

But printed as complete in itself, it gains daring. All its grains become magnified. You're put on to the trick of it, you know it as "art." Then, too, that it's all but superposed on a neighboring photograph only deepens its resemblance to Imagism, in which a summoned image is overlaid on a given object. Each text virtually trails off in an ellipsis that is followed by a colon.

These mini-texts shade down from the representatively human to the "American," this last sometimes in too trivial a form ("When you two great minds are ready we'll eat—Arthur, you hear me?"). Certain of the photographs, too, often the adjoining ones, short out the at any rate limited potential interest of their subjects (as indicated by the titles Pioneer Blvd., Tract homes, Jaws in drydock, Summer conversation, Christmas tree and gifts, and Parking lot). But for the most part Alinder operates as successfully as his writer does—as flexibly and tellingly in as wide an esthetic range.

In organization, a few of the photographs are nearly as "classic" as Alinder finds Morris's to be. The balance, the beauty, are satisfying, whether it's a framed picture of Jesus Christ bordered by flowers in a store window that also contains, in the foreground, a pair of sunglasses, or an almost talking community of men's hats in an elegant Nieman-Marcus display, or an antique show car draped in a crinkled, transparent plastic cloth on a sunlit field. At the other extreme is a blurred photograph of the Nebraska Pork Queen perched on the backseat of a convertible and waving. In fact most of the photographs approach, while hanging discreetly back from, what Janet Malcolm describes as the modernist photographic esthetic, a disingenuous mimicry of amateur snapshooting. Alinder even used a Kodak Instamatic. Yet the large prints are precise and clear. What makes many suggest snapshots is that his discount-drugstore camera seems ready to poke its nosey eye in just anywhere, and not miss beauty.

Typical, perhaps, is House and car, Lincoln, Nebraska, in which the upper, rounded, coldly machined part of a VW "Bug" spans the foreground while, partially obliterated, a Victorian clapboard house rises incongruously and unforgivingly behind it. The car seems in the way—which is evidently the idea, one not lost on Morris, whose answering text concludes, "He said he felt more at home behind the wheel of a car then he did in the house." The picture, then, is deliberately infelicitous—crammed, incoherent. It aims, not to enchant the eye, but to flick at the mind. As if the eye did not so much feel as think or laugh (not ill-humoredly: Adams even finds these photographs "loving"). The images seem to invite the complement and completion of an inference. Hence the perfect propriety of the obliquely interpretative texts. (By contrast, in photo-texts the photographs seem to exist more to themselves, indifferent to anything that might be said about or around them.)

One may balk when Adams says, "Jim Alinder's discerning eye and Wright Morris's prophetic poetry grasp moments of beauty and surprise in even the simplest passages of American life." "Prophetic" is overcharged, "beauty" better suits Adams himself, and the formidable team of Alinder and Morris makes one question whether anything's simple in American life. But clearly—as Adams says—two superior creative people have here joined their efforts to produce a remarkable and rewarding book. A number of the specific pairings-up are first rate. In one of my immediate favorites, the photograph shows eight young girls and a boy disporting themselves in a steamy hot tub after a birthday party in Pebble Beach. The mood of the children seems as bright as the bubbles scattered like minute stars on the water or the wet gleams where the light smacks an arm, a thigh, or golden hair. As often, Morris's angle is oblique and piercing:

> If I could come again it would be as a fish. The kids would love it! Why do you suppose they feel so good in water? It's more supportive. Air is too thin. If there's water up to your chin, and it's warm, you really feel safe and protected, back where you came from.

Hard to top. Yet the picture has not been put down, but met and graced. In turn, the words gain an associated wealth of steam, splash, physical vigor and joy.

So, then, four esthetic entities: the photograph, the photograph-as-affected-by-the-text, the text, the text-as-affected-by-the-photograph. Four for two: riches and a bargain.

Author: Calvin Bedient is a literary critic who teaches at UCLA.

MONOGRAPHS

For the Birds: John Cage, in conversation with Daniel Charles, Boston and London, Marion Boyars, 1981; 239 pp., $20.

The Paintings of Henry Miller: Paint as you like and die happy, San Francisco, Chronicle Books, 1982; 144 pp., $16.95.

There are different ways of looking at power, and one of them, presumably, is the capacity to realize intentions. In this regard, the composer John Cage, who celebrated his 70th birthday last year, is one of the more paradoxical figures in the modernist drama: he has consistently chosen to limit himself rigorously to a single intention—that of avoiding intentions. One is better able, he feels, to attend that way to everything; besides, things interpenetrate more richly when the artist himself refrains from interfering. Personal likes and dislikes, as far as Cage is concerned, are of no more consequence than ordering chicken: they have no real part to play in art. When it is a matter of composing music, sounds are freer to go their own way if the composer imposes nothing, and does not bend them to suit his own will. Nor is there even any need to give preference to sounds over silence: silence and noise, rather than harmony and counterpoint, have been the radical elements of Cage's music. The sounds, however, must be left as they are, not as we would like them to be. Allowing everything to go its own way causes preconceived ideas of order to disappear. As Lao-tzu put it, "The Tao principle is what happens of itself."

This book—a collection of taped conversations begun in 1968 with the editor of La Revue d'esthétique, Daniel Charles, and first published in France by Editions Belfond in 1976—is certain to become one of the classic documents of the modern era. Cage and his interviewer wrestle with a bewitching range of subjects—none of them unfamiliar to followers of Cage's long career—from electronic-acoustical music, indeterminacy, Conceptual art, Wittgenstein and Thoreau, Satie and Merce Cunningham, to individualism and mycology. Reliably, when in the presence of Cage, we are offered tripwire perceptions of a mind always on the move, in combination with a rigor and dedication that must continue to command our admiration.

If writing and philosophizing have always been, for Cage, auxiliary pursuits to music, painting watercolors was the animated pastime of the author Henry Miller. A self-declared dabbler, Miller could often be found painting, in the hours before dinner, hunched on a tall stool over his pingpong table. The results have been assembled for the first time in one place by his publisher, Noel Young, who acquired transparencies from a list of patrons and collectors that Miller provided. Arranged chronologically by decades, from the 1930s to the '60s, the color reproductions are linked to four essays by Miller on the art of watercolor.

The pictures are flamboyant and childlike, transfused with a sort of dimestore brightness. Miller painted them for pleasure, as a restorative from the grind of writing. If he happened to put his brush into red paint, he began painting with red; if blue, then blue. The thrill, of course, was "to see what happens." When he was hard up at one point in Big Sur, Miller bartered his watercolors for food and clothing. In an amusing foreword, Lawrence Durrell recounts how both he and Miller amused themselves painting in Paris during the 1930s. Since neither of them knew how to draw, they depended on faith and hope, closing their eyes and willing an image to form itself under their brushes. Sometimes they had recourse to more Dadaesque procedures: holding their watercolors under a running tap—searching for chance effects—or taking a bath with them. Once they even laid them down in the street so taxis could print tire marks over them. Miller's own essays are laced with nostalgia, and magazinish sentimentality about art. In contrast to Cage, he comes off as something of a windbag, slack-thinking and mushy. Miller's faith in the virtue of letting things happen is in curious contrast to Cage's. Rather than producing art which imitates nature in her manner of operation, Miller ends up with human figures that sprout two heads, seven toes, or three breasts. All of which suggests that chance must be very protean, with many different feathers to its cap.

Author: Suzi Gablik is a critic and artist.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
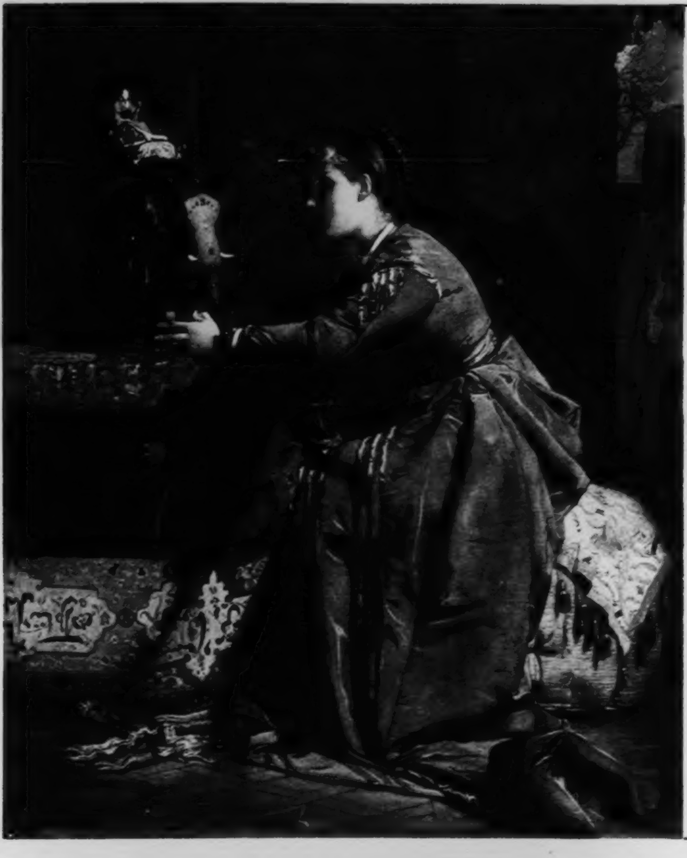
UMI

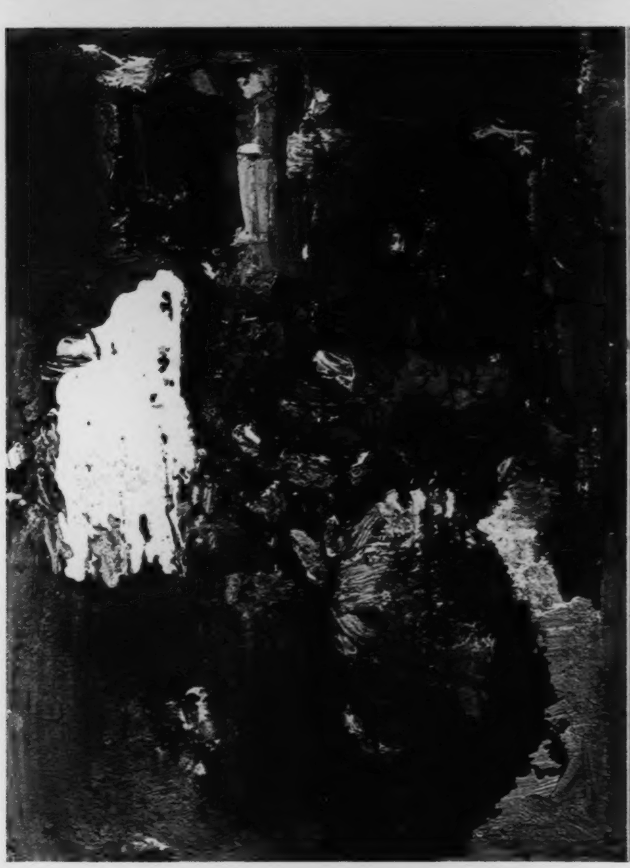


ALFRED STEVENS
1818 – 1906

India in Paris, ca. 1867
oil on canvas
29¼ x 24" (73 x 60 cm.)

ROBERTO WHITE & ASSOCIATES
225 CENTRAL PARK WEST
NEW YORK 10024
212/580-2416

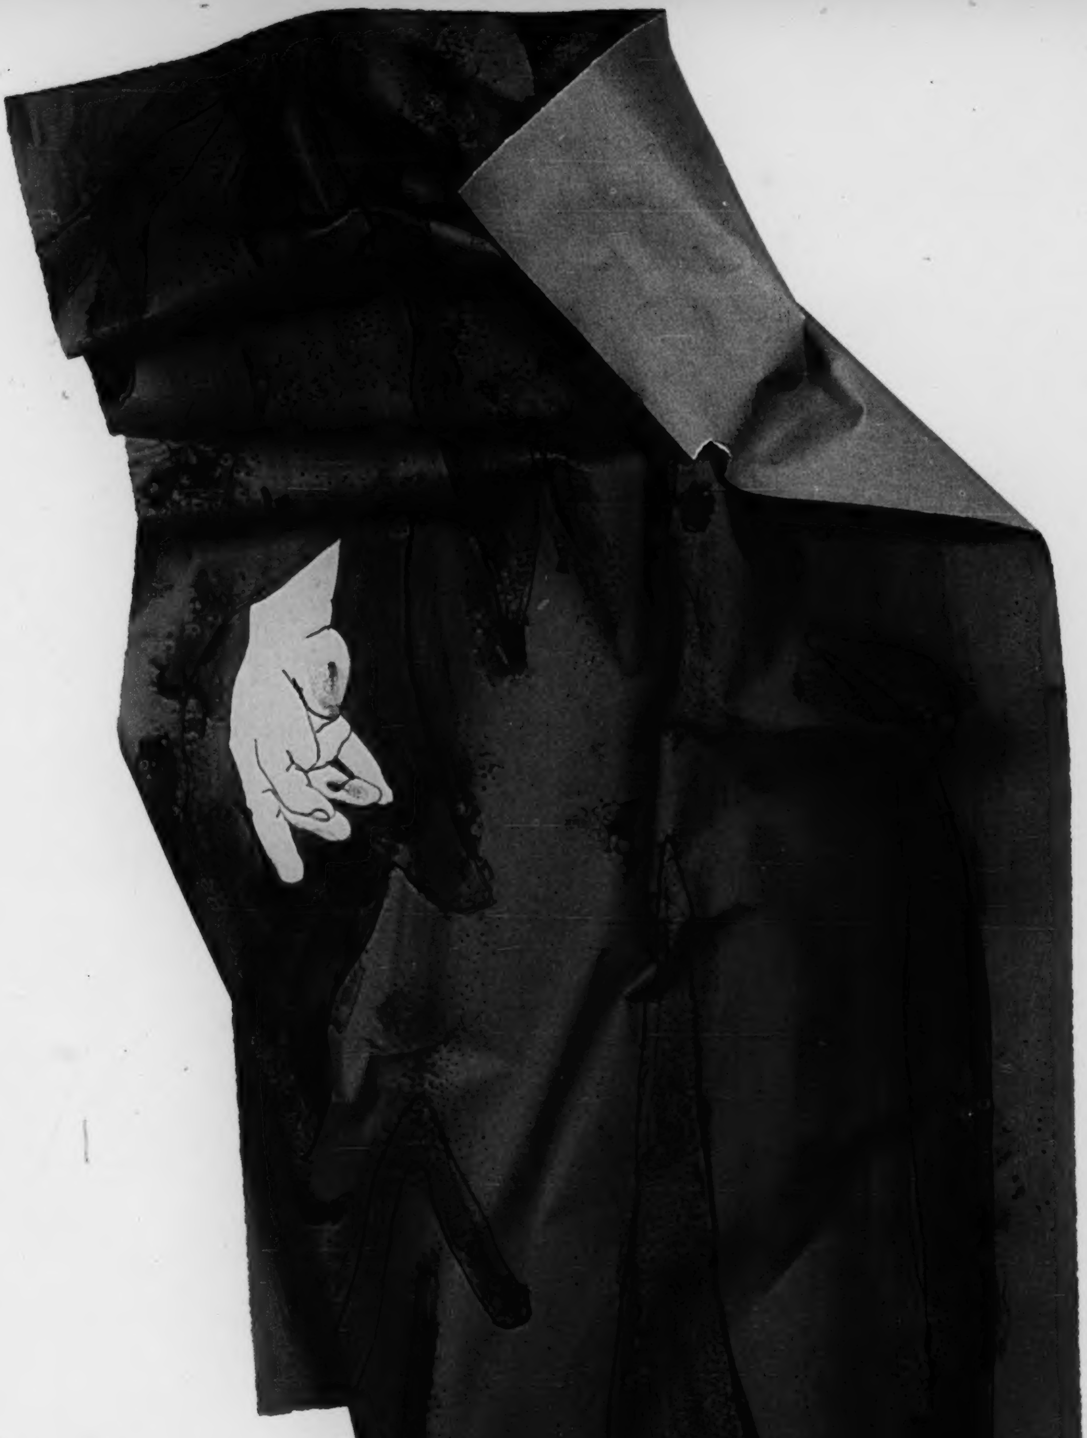
by appointment only



Selections May 7 to 28
BUSH CARLES
CORNELL DAVIS
DEMUTH EAKINS
GRAHAM HOFMANN
MAUER LACHAISE
POLLOCK MATISSE
TORRES and others

Salander-O'Reilly Galleries, Inc.
22 East 80 Street New York, NY 10021
Telephone: (212) 879-6606
Gallery hours: Tuesday-Saturday, 10 to 5:30

Hans Hofmann, "Black Goddess" (1960). Oil on masonite, 49¾ x 37¾



Untitled, 1983. Lithograph/Silkscreen, 54″ × 34″. Edition: 14.

UNIQUE EDITIONS BY SUSAN WEIL
APRIL 30 TO MAY 28

Styria Studio inc.
Publishers of Fine Art
426 BROOME STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10013 • (212) 226-1373

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

MASTER DRAWINGS AND WATERCOLORS

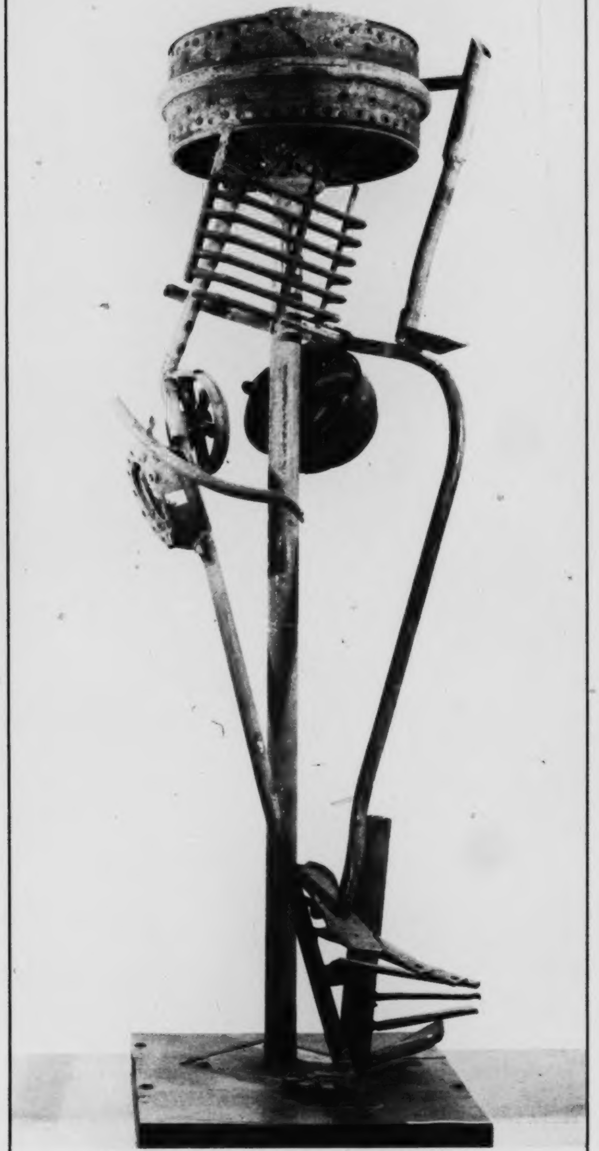
EGON SCHIELE
Seated Nude with Green Stockings, 1918.
Tempera, watercolor and black chalk on paper, 18½ x 11¾ in.

ODYSSIA GALLERY
730 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10019
Telephone (212) 541-7520

RICHARD
STANKIEWICZ
(1922-1983)



Kabuki Dancer, 1956. Cast iron and steel, 84 inches high.
Collection of the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York.

ZABRISKIE
724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Sotheby's announces an Important Auction of Impressionist Paintings and Drawings from the Estate of Doris D. Havemeyer

In the late nineteenth century, the prominent industrialist H.O. Havemeyer and his wife, Louisine, began to form one of the world's great art collections. In 1929, following the death of Louisine Havemeyer, a large bequest went to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where it remains a major part of the museum's collection. The present selection was left to their only son Horace and his wife, Doris D. Havemeyer.

Sotheby's is pleased to offer this selection from the Havemeyer Collection.

The auction will take place on Wednesday, May 18 at 7 pm at Sotheby's New York Galleries. Admission is by ticket only. The exhibition will open on Friday, May 13.

A special, illustrated hardbound catalogue is available for $20 at our galleries, or $25 by mail. To order a catalogue, please request sale number 5045 and send your check to Sotheby's Subscriptions, Dept. A045ME, P.O. Box 4020, Woburn, MA 01801.

For further information, please contact John Tancock at (212) 472-3547. For tickets, please call (212) 472-3400. Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc., 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021

Edouard Manet, Roses dans un vase de Verre, 1883, oil on canvas, signed, 22 x 13¾ inches.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
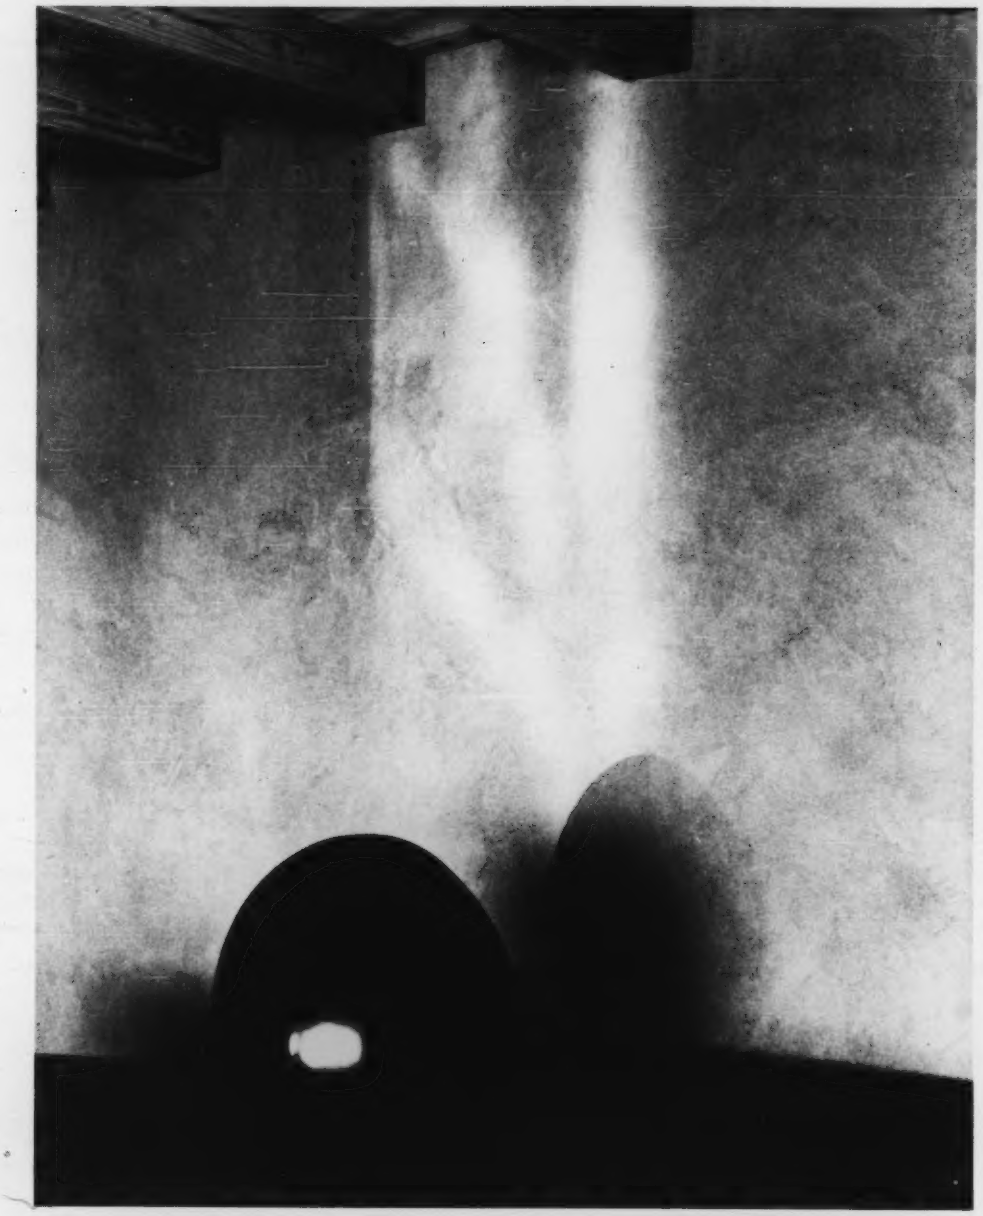
UMI



JUAN HAMILTON

CLAY & BRONZE SCULPTURE

Janus Gallery · 8000 Melrose · Los Angeles · May 20 - June 25, 1983

Museum of New Mexico · Museum of Fine Arts · Santa Fe · July 8 - October 2, 1983

Important Auctions of Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture

May 18, 19 and 20, 1983

Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture including property from the Estate of Helene S. Thompson and other owners.
Auction: Wednesday, May 18 immediately following the auction of the Havemeyer Collection (admission by ticket only).
Exhibition opens Friday, May 13.
Illustrated catalogue $14, $16 by mail.
Sale no. 5044.
Inquiries: John Tancock, (212) 472-3547.

Modern Paintings and Sculpture
Auction: Thursday, May 19 at 2 pm.
Exhibition opens Friday, May 13.
Illustrated catalogue $12, $16 by mail.
Sale no. 5046.
Inquiries: Shary Grossman, (212) 472-3545.

Impressionist and Modern Drawings and Watercolors
Auction: Thursday, May 19 at 10:15 am.
Exhibition opens Friday, May 13.
Illustrated catalogue $10, $12 by mail.
Sale no. 5047.
Inquiries: Hermine Chivian-Cobb, (212) 472-4764.

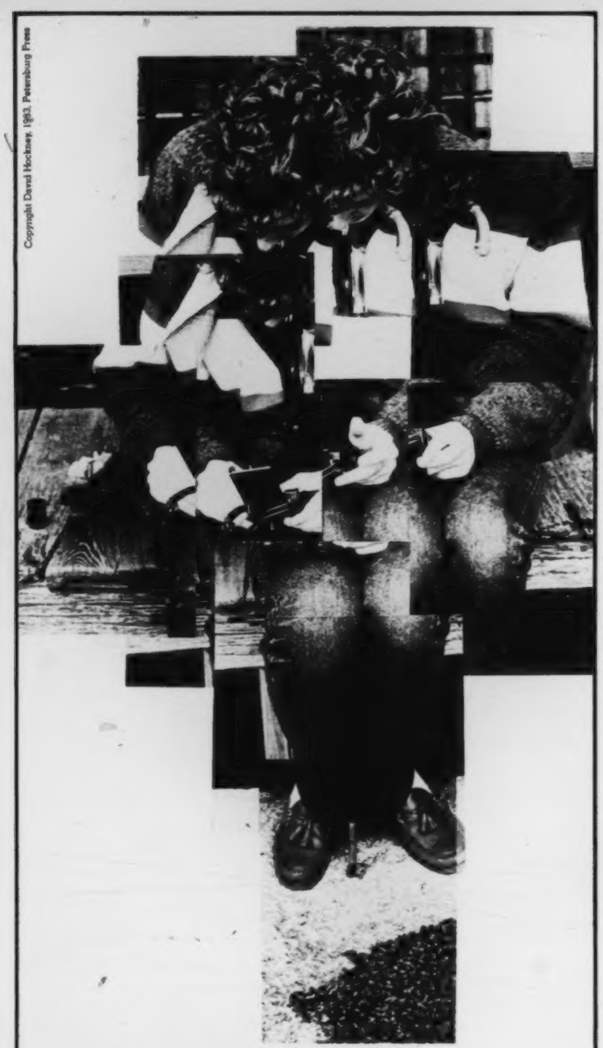
Contemporary Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture
Auction: Friday, May 20 at 7 pm (admission by ticket only) and Saturday, May 21 at 10:15 am.
Exhibition opens Friday, May 13.
Illustrated catalogue $12, $16 by mail.
Sale no. 5041.
Inquiries: Lucy Havelock-Allan, (212) 472-3543.

To order catalogues, please request by sale number and send your check to Sotheby's Subscriptions, Dept. A044ME, P.O. Box 4020, Woburn, MA 01801. For tickets, please call (212) 472-3400. Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc., 1334 York Avenue at 72nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021

Pablo Picasso, Still Life with Guitar, 1942, signed, oil on canvas, 39½ x 31⅞ inches.

SOTHEBY'S
Founded 1744

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI



Copyright David Hockney, 1983. Petersburg Press

DAVID HOCKNEY

New Work With A Camera

May 14-June 25, 1983

L. A. LOUVER Galleries
55 North Venice Boulevard and 77 Market Street
Venice, California 90291
(213) 392-8695

Tuesday through Saturday 11-5pm

Gregory Loading His Camera, Tokyo, February, 1983, photographic collage, 21 x 14"

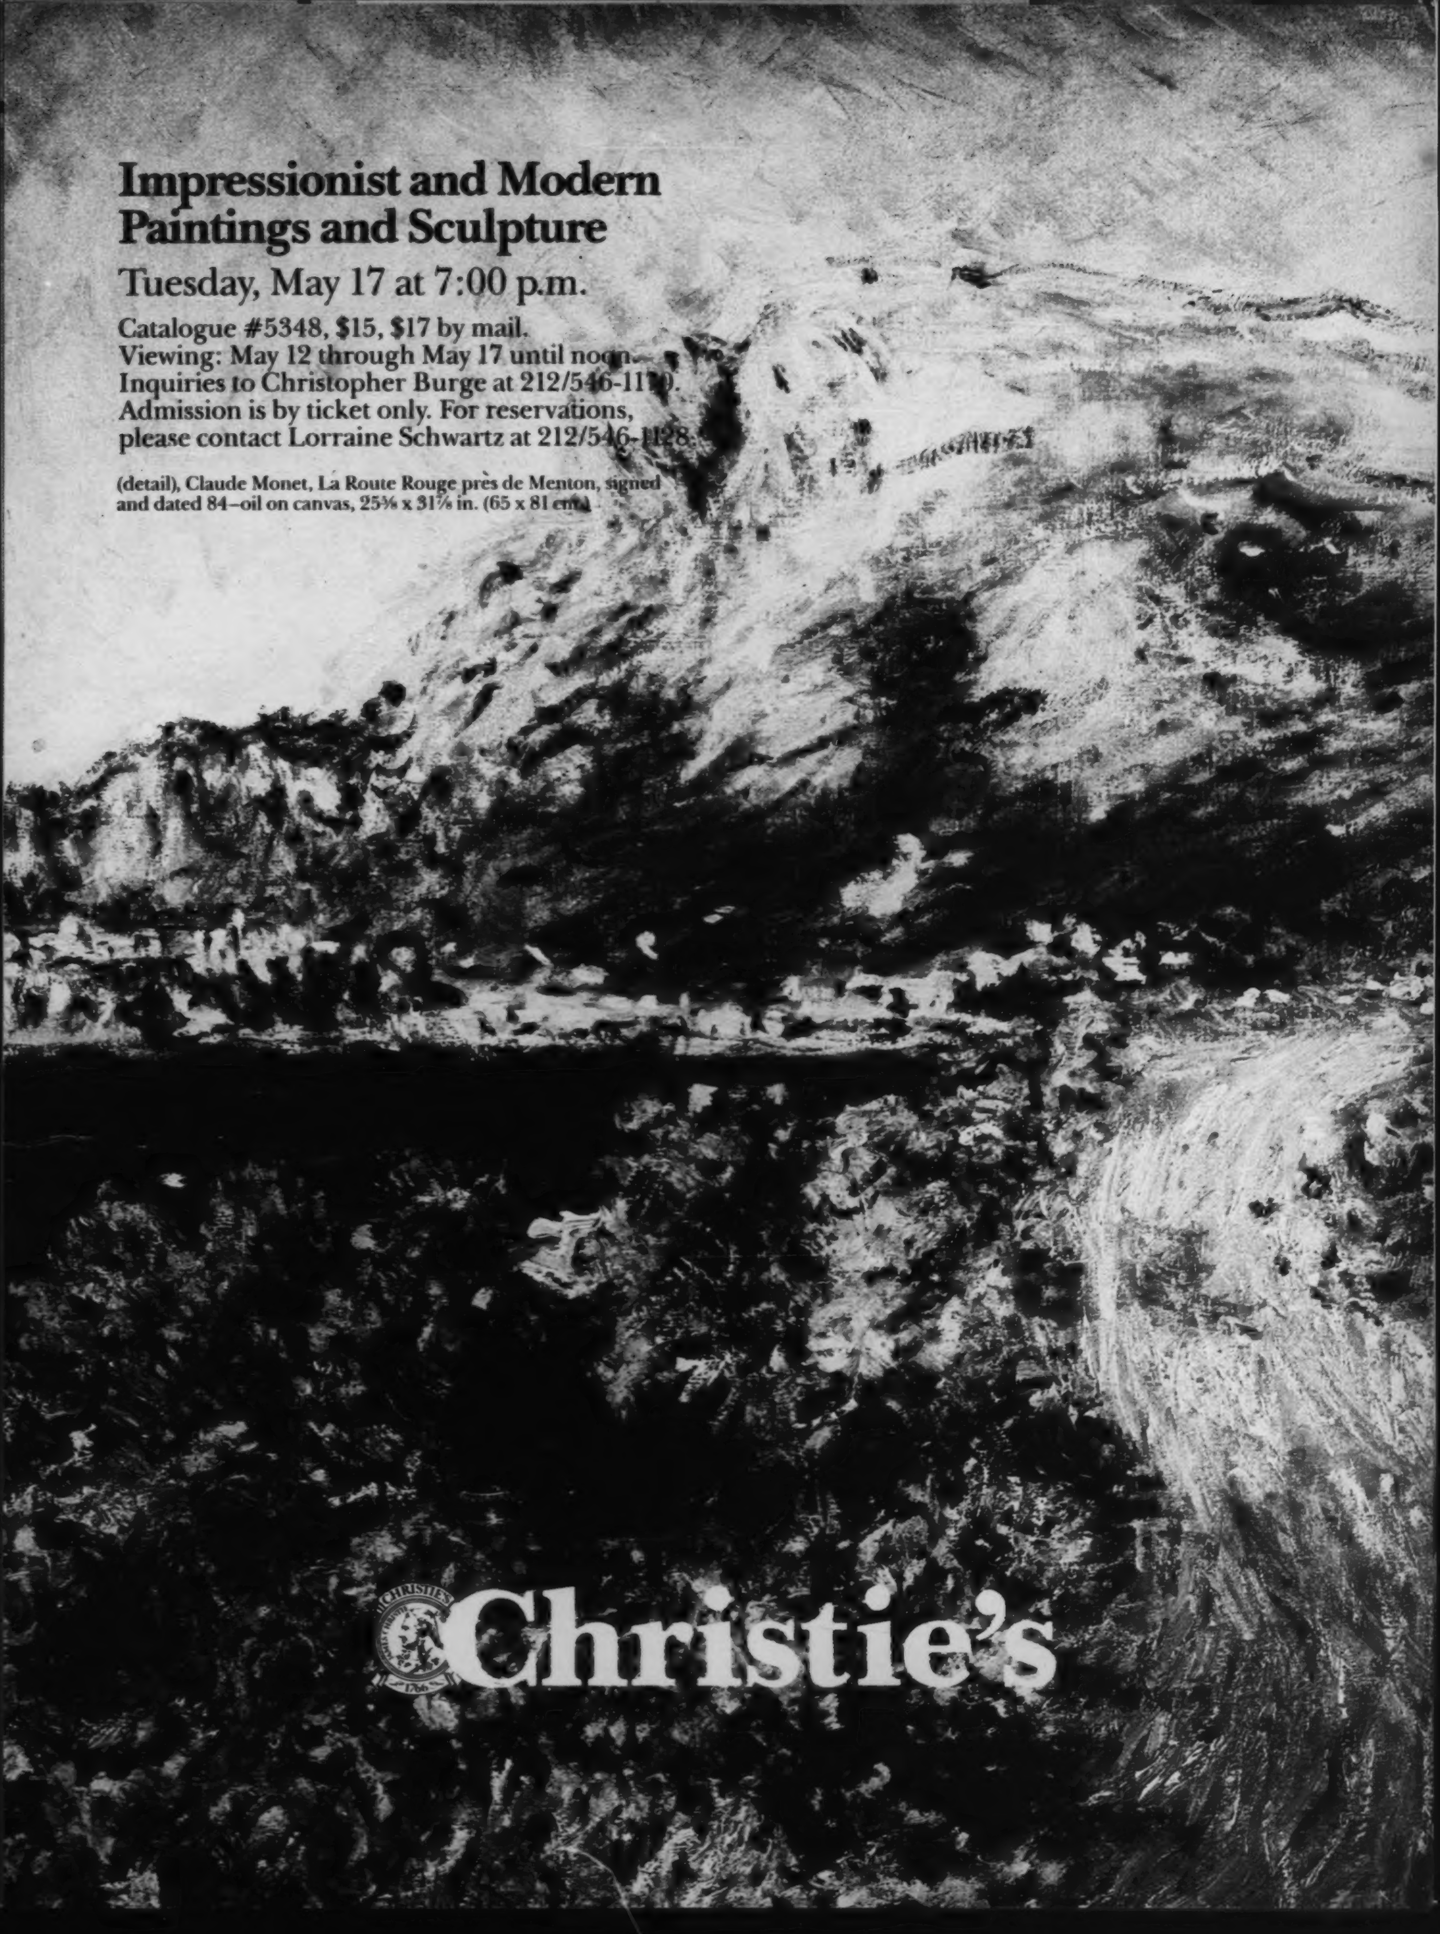
The Alpha Gallery

James Aponovich
Riley Brewster
Bernard Chaet
Ralph Coburn
Aaron Fink
Dan Gustin
Dimitri Hadzi
Nancy Hagin
Susan Heideman
James Hennessey
Lester Johnson
Reed Kay
Gyorgy Kepes
Peter Milton
Peter Plamondon
Katherine Porter
Scott Prior
Annelies Pruisken
Langdon Quin
Barney Rubenstein
Richard Sheehan
Barbara Swan
Harold Tovish
Elbert Weinberg
Richard Ziemann

Estate of Milton Avery

The Alpha Gallery

121 Newbury Street
Boston, Massachusetts
02116



Impressionist and Modern Paintings and Sculpture

Tuesday, May 17 at 7:00 p.m.

Catalogue #5348, $15, $17 by mail.
Viewing: May 12 through May 17 until noon.
Inquiries to Christopher Burge at 212/546-11[illegible]0.
Admission is by ticket only. For reservations, please contact Lorraine Schwartz at 212/546-1128.

(detail), Claude Monet, La Route Rouge près de Menton, signed and dated 84–oil on canvas, 25⅝ x 31⅞ in. (65 x 81 cm.)

Christie's

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Richard De Vore Exhibit A Chicago May 1983

SURREAL

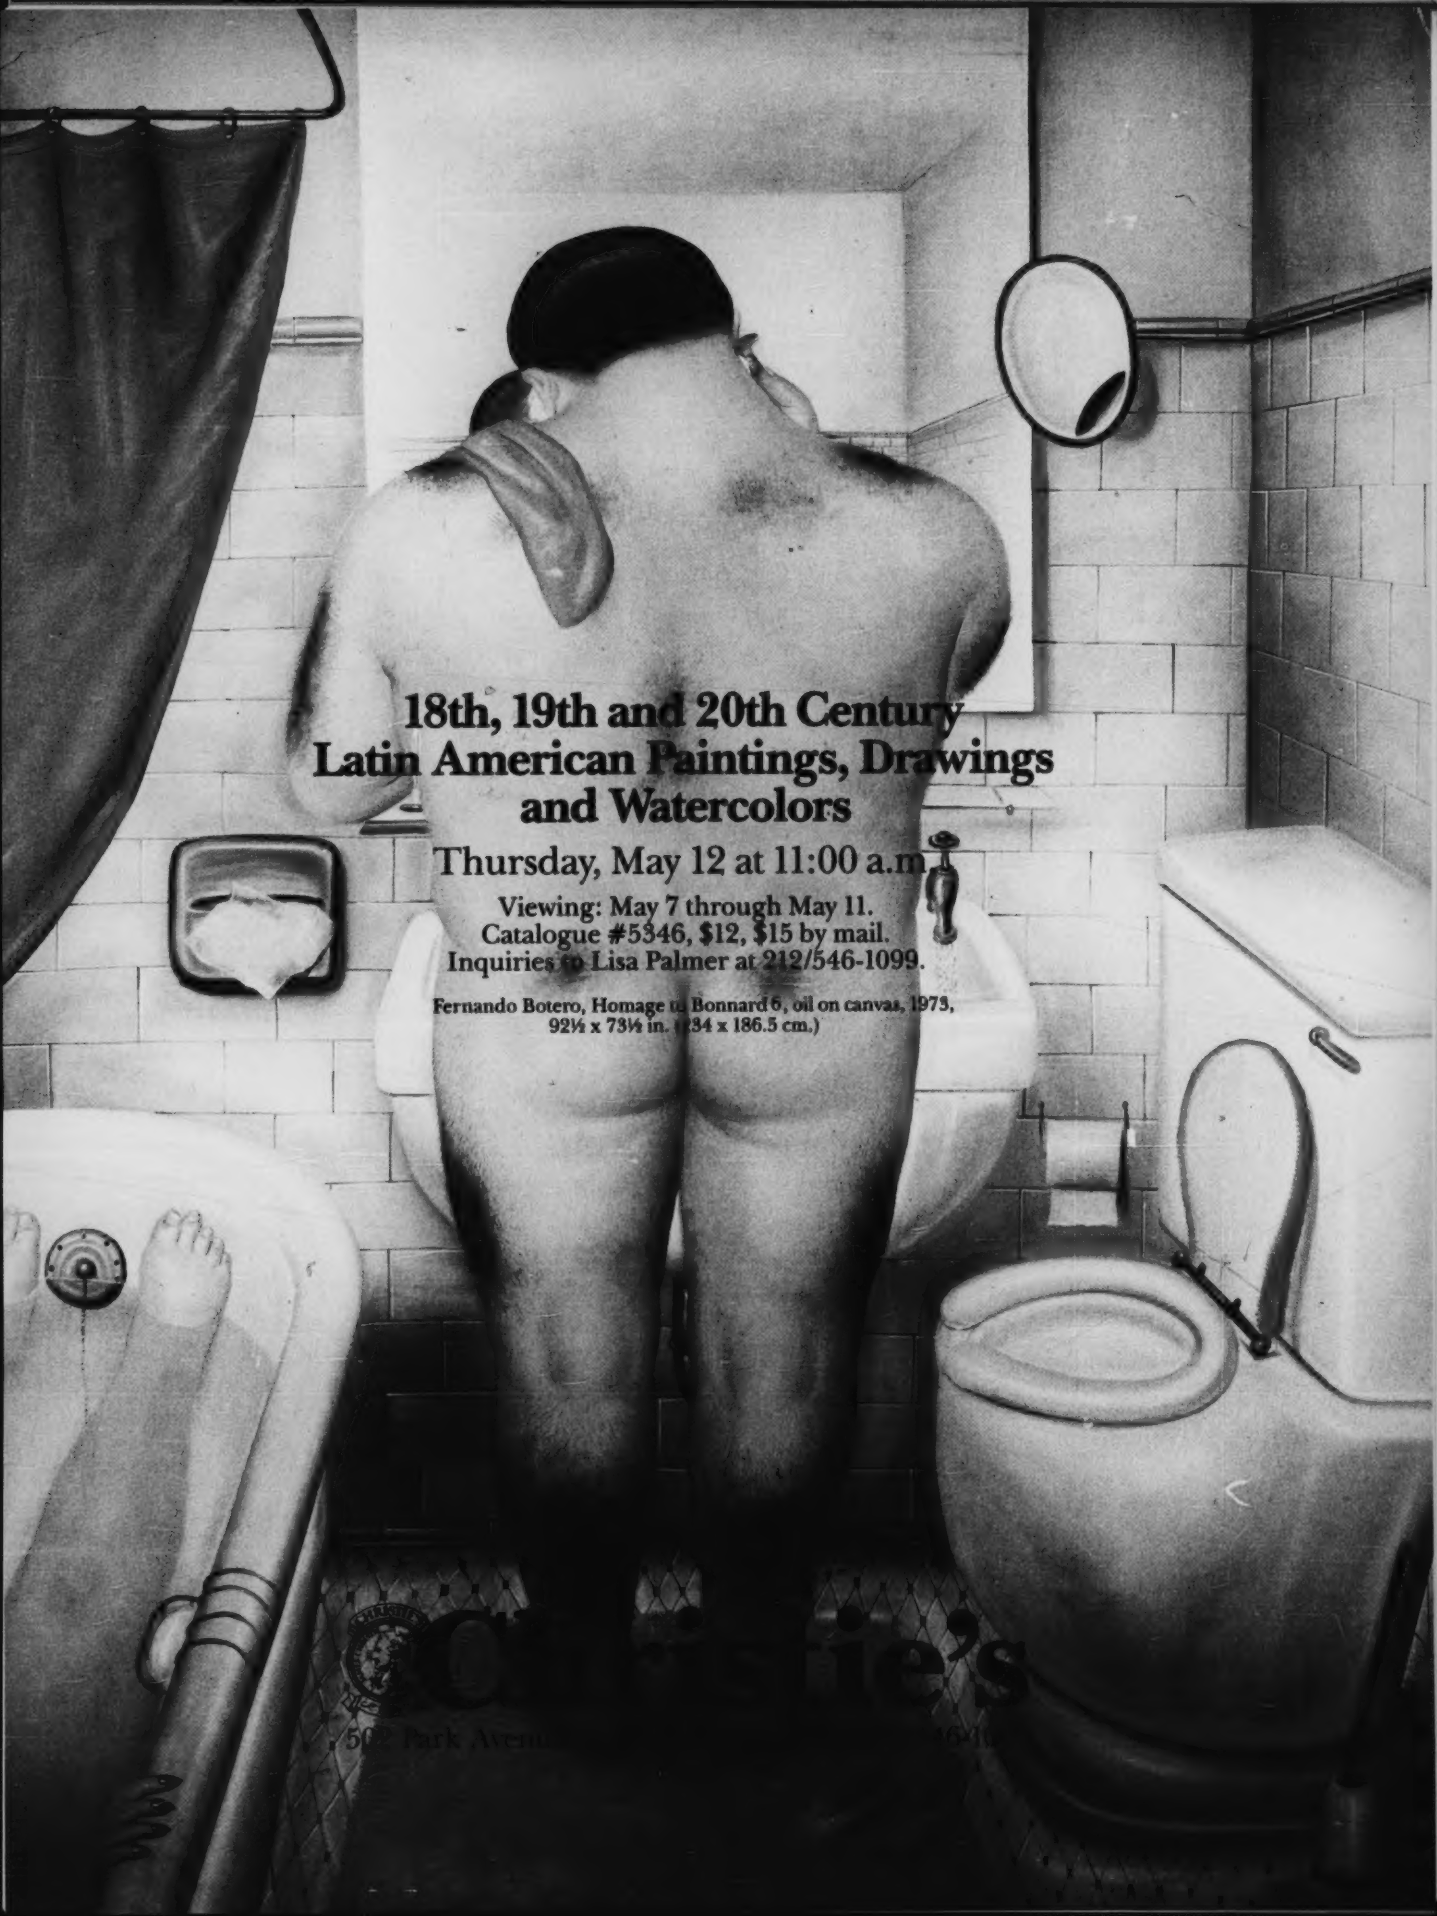
GREGORY AMENOFF • LYNDA BENGLIS • JONATHAN BOROFSKY
LOUISE BOURGEOIS • WILLIAM BRICE • LOUISA CHASE
FRANCESCO CLEMENTE • GIORGIO DE CHIRICO • JEDD GARET
PHILIP GUSTON • MICHAEL HURSON • LUCAS SAMARAS
KENNY SCHARF

MAN RAY

MATHEMATICAL OBJECTS STILL LIFE PHOTOGRAPHS FROM 1936

ROBERT MILLER

APRIL 27 THROUGH JUNE 1983, 724 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK
212 • 246 • 1625



18th, 19th and 20th Century Latin American Paintings, Drawings and Watercolors

Thursday, May 12 at 11:00 a.m.

Viewing: May 7 through May 11.
Catalogue #5346, $12, $15 by mail.
Inquiries to Lisa Palmer at 212/546-1099.

Fernando Botero, Homage to Bonnard 6, oil on canvas, 1973, 92½ x 73½ in. (234 x 186.5 cm.)

Christie's

502 Park Aven[illegible] [illegible]46-10[illegible]

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

RALPH HUMPHREY
RECENT PAINTINGS
11 MAY-11 JUNE

DANIEL WEINBERG
619 NORTH ALMONT DR.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069

Report from Boston

BY SARAH MCFADDEN

Recently awakened to 20th-century culture, Boston is beginning—slowly but surely—to embrace contemporary art for the first time since Impressionism.

> . . . I go . . . for the man who inherits family traditions and the cumulative humanities of at least four or five generations. . . . I go for the man with the gallery of family portraits against the one with the twenty-five-cent daguerreotype.
>
> —Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes[1]

> . . . the taste of the [Boston] owner is immaterial for, generally speaking, everything is either an heirloom or a wedding present.
>
> —Cleveland Amory[2]

More than most cities, Boston harbors a paradoxical mix of antediluvian tradition and high level sophistication. For centuries dominated by an exclusive clique of conservative "first families," the Hub (of the solar system, as Boston was once considered by its leading citizens) managed more or less to ignore the 1913 Armory show when it came to town, and to remain impervious to all developments in art that occurred between Impressionism and '40s Expressionism. Since World War Two, it has evolved into a major scientific and technological research center. Digital, Honeywell, Raytheon, Polaroid, Itek, Wang, GTE all have headquarters in the vicinity, and have attracted a new class of professionals. According to local reports, their impact on the city's culture and economy has finally made itself felt over the past five to ten years. The renaissance, as it is sometimes termed, that has resulted is of course due to more than just the influx of savvy out-of-towners. The 20th century was bound to force its way into this bastion of inherited values sooner or later. But the newcomers have certainly cleared its path. Meanwhile, Boston's clubby old world with its genteel charms endures. Its authority has eroded, but its principles and conventions remain intact. What this adds up to is a cultural expansion: Boston continues to sustain its revered symphony while nurturing a thriving rock club scene; it supports not only the Vose Galleries, purveyors since 1850 of French Barbizon School paintings, but also galleries handling blue-chip moderns and a new crop of dealers beginning to specialize Louis Risoli:* Alive and Knowing, *1983, oil on canvas, 66 by 136 inches. Stux Gallery.

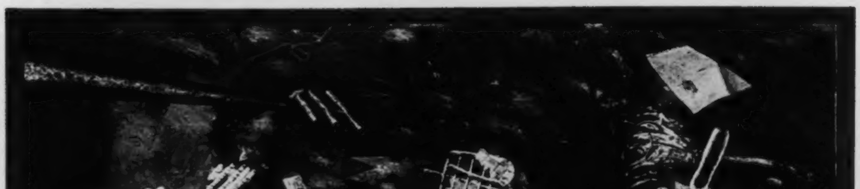
Friedl Dzubas:* Argonaut, *1982, acrylic on canvas, 116 by 289 inches. Knoedler Gallery.



Gerry Bergstein:* Effort at Speech, *1982, oil on canvas, 60 by 96 inches. Photo Willa Heider.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
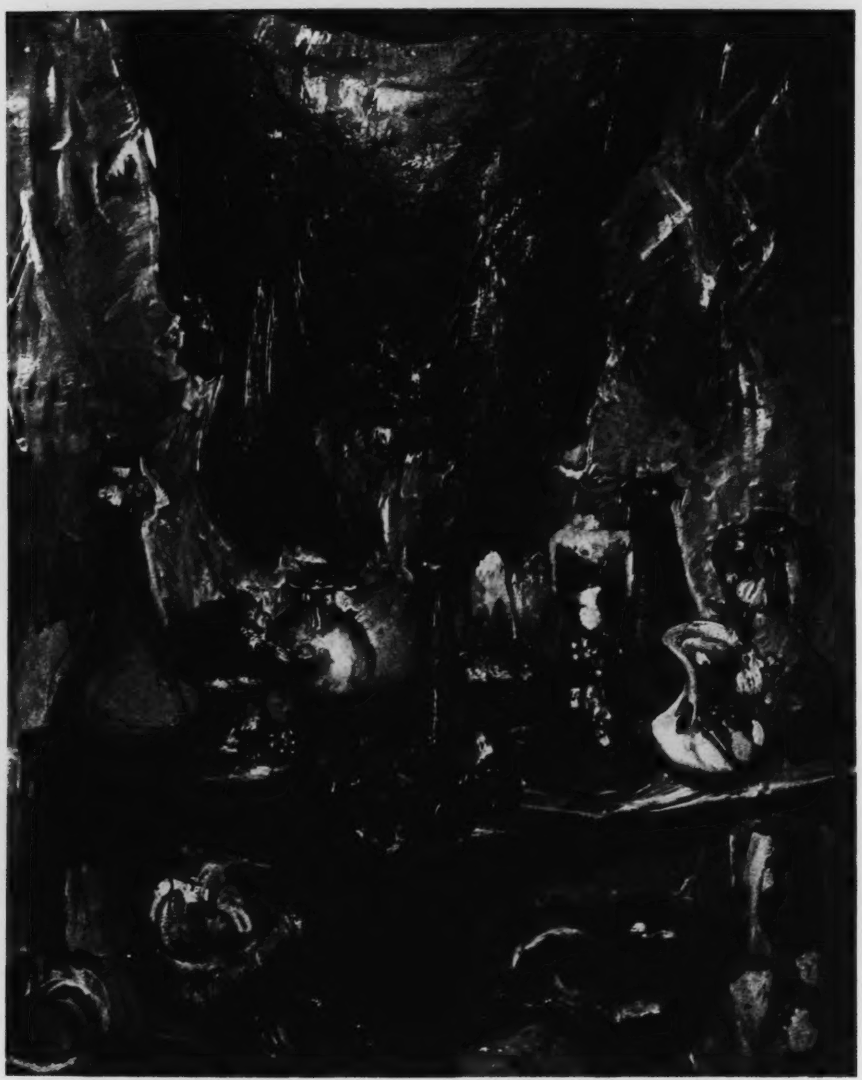
UMI



Hyman Bloom:* Still Life #1, *1980, oil on canvas, 62 by 50 inches. Terry Dintenfass Gallery.

in work by young Boston artists.

Another factor contributing to Boston's emergence into the present is its education industry, for which it has been celebrated since long before the advent of microchip technology. (Once known as the Athens of America, the greater Boston area has some 65 institutions of higher learning, one of the highest concentrations in the U.S.). Burgeoning art schools and art departments now support throngs of artist teachers who perform miserable-to-commendable jobs of ministering to the needs of information-hungry students. (This year, Harvard's survey course in 20th-century abstraction, which has a maximum enrollment of 400, was oversubscribed by nearly half.) Beyond the classroom, however, and despite the fact that this is a consummately verbal city, there is little professional-level discourse on art. With few exceptions, Boston's art world looks to New York for such stimulation. For this reason, and due to the fact that modesty and frugality still rank among Boston's prevailing virtues, the considerable amount of art activity that takes place here does not coalesce into a graspable scene, but is dispersed among a wide variety of institutions and a large number of artists scattered throughout Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, South Boston and the outlying communities of Waltham, Lincoln, Framingham and Brockton.

The "Official" Scene

Boston's contemporary art institutions have two principal aims: to show work by local artists, and to provide a window on current national and international developments. The latter function is best fulfilled by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Hayden Gallery, a modest exhibition space administered by the Institute's Committee on the Visual Arts, whose director (since '78), Kathy Halbreich, schedules shows that regularly nudge the local art world out of its parochial slumber. According to Halbreich, the Hayden seeks to be "as present-tense as possible" and has an educational mandate to make contemporary art intelligible. All exhibitions are organized either in-house or by guest curators, who are sometimes artists; Roberta Smith, Michael Mazur and Jackie Winsor are among the outside curators the Hayden has engaged. Boston's first significant shows of recent figuration and of the European "transavant-garde" (a print show) were held at the Hayden in '81 and '82, respectively. The gallery has also ventured into the gap between art and useful objects in shows of clothing and architect-designed furniture. This past winter, a superb temporary installation by perceptual artist Jim Turrell (a rare solo show) was commissioned.

MIT's Hayden Gallery organizes exhibitions that regularly nudge the local art world out of its parochial slumber.

Although the Hayden Gallery is perhaps Boston's premier showcase for advanced art, it is regarded as something of an anachronism by some of its MIT constituency, who feel that painting and sculpture were years ago made obsolete by technology's "available hardware." In the face of such criticism, the gallery has held fast to a view of art as coexistent with but not dependent upon the latest technological developments. It will have to cleave even more tenaciously to this position when it moves in summer '84 from its present quarters in one of MIT's main academic buildings, where it appears as a conspicuous curiosity in the anonymous labyrinth of corridors, to a new I. M. Pei-designed facility for arts and media technology. There, it will be surrounded, but hopefully not eclipsed, by divisions of research in computer communications and other scientific/futuristic ventures. To compete for attention, the gallery may be pressed to demonstrate that art is as inventive as science. The new building, at any rate, should present a case for art on an equal footing with architecture. Three artists are currently collaborating with Pei on aspects of the building's design: Kenneth Noland on the exterior skin, Scott Burton on interior furnishings, and Richard Fleischner on landscaping.

More easily identified with MIT is the art produced at the Institute's Center for Advanced Visual Studies, an interdisciplinary research center for collaborations between artists, scientists and technologists. The current roster of CAVS fellows includes visual artists, musicians, poets, dancers, filmmakers, computer scientists, mathematicians, structural theorists and architects—all invited to the Center to "push their mediums." The diversity and exploratory nature of projects currently underway are best conveyed through specific examples: Paul Earls, originally a composer of electronic music (and affiliated with CAVS for the past 12 years), is refining techniques for projecting video imagery with laser beams; artist-neurophysiologist Todd Siler is mapping correspondences between the processes of human intuition and nuclear fission; Joel Davis has contracted with NASA to send the first artist's payload—bottled gas—into outer space. Discharged from the space shuttle (scheduled for launching this September) at an altitude of ca. 200 kilometers and shot through with an electron beam, the gas should be visible as a multi-colored aurora over thousands of miles of the earth. Another of Davis's plans is to build the first sculptural monument on Mars, using a mechanical arm to erect a mound of stones.

There are also two deep-sea artists at CAVS (Jurgen Claus and Brian Rogers), along with others working with steam, solar energy, holography, kinetic neon, and, of course, film and video. Otto Piene, director of the center since '74, is best known for orchestrating large-scale public art events (operas, conferences) that often feature his own immense helium-inflated sculptures. He is the prime-mover of annual, international "sky art conferences" whose exhibits range in technological complexity from aerial cello solos by Charlotte Moorman, borne aloft by the power of helium, to satellite performance pieces involving networks of distant participants. Periodically, Piene retreats to his studio in Düsseldorf, where he paints earthbound works on canvas.

Roger Kizik's studio. Left Phyllis, 1982, 10 by 21 feet; center Endowment, 1982, 10 by 15 feet; right Salty Goose, 1981, 10 by 23 feet.

John McNamara: The Conspiracy, 1982, oil on canvas, 9 by 17 feet.

Across the river, Boston's Institute of Contemporary Art seems on the brink of a new era after years of financial instability and ambiguous orientation. Its new director, David Ross, instituted this country's first museum video department at the Everson Museum in Syracuse, and was subsequently curator at Berkeley's University Art Museum. In just one year, Ross has done much to revitalize the ICA. Observing that Boston is predominantly a "painting town," he has transformed the Institute's little-used theater into a video theater, which serves also as a stage for weekly art performances. Besides the artist-run Boston Film/Video Foundation, the ICA is the only place in town offering video and performance art on a regular basis.

Beginning this fall, it will program one film per week in one of Boston's commercial cinemas. It will also inaugurate a new exhibition format—an 18-month long, continuously changing international group show of works from the last two years, representing a cross-section of current trends. Up to five works each by as many as five artists will be on view at any one time, including special commissions. The rationale for this open-ended approach is to allow for maximum curatorial flexibility and spontaneity, and to minimize curatorial heavy-handedness. Nonetheless, the ICA's education department is gearing up to assist the public in making sense of what it sees: narrative wall labels and separate brochures on each artist will be available; guards will be trained to discuss the works on view; cooperative programs with local art schools and departments, not heretofore a major ICA constituency, will be established.

The ICA will continue to organize and receive more conventional theme shows, but these will be mounted in alternative spaces (still to be found) around town. The future of its locally celebrated Boston annual is uncertain: there is a possibility that it will be discontinued and absorbed into the main show.

The new setup should render an invaluable service to Bostonians eager for ongoing exposure to a wide range of recent art. There is no other Boston institution which attempts this: not the Hayden Gallery, with its space limitations and stricter didactic charge, nor the commercial galleries, which are too few to collectively accomplish the task and remain solvent. In the words of one dealer, "Boston is still a landscape and Color-Field city."

One of the country's best defended strongholds of Color-Field painting and Greenbergian doctrine is the Boston Museum of Fine Arts's department of 20th-century art. Established in 1971 and placed under the charge of its present curator Kenworth Moffett, the department, which encompasses European art since 1900 and American art since 1945, had the formidable task of starting quite literally from scratch. A bit of history is in order: until relatively recently, the BMFA had little truck with any art that post-dated and departed stylistically from Impressionism. (The museum's 41 Monets comprise the largest group outside of France.) This policy

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Richard Sheehan: Victory Road in Snow, 1983, oil on canvas, 46 by 56 inches. Alpha Gallery.

Cliffton Peacock: Ascent, 1982, oil on canvas, 94 by 71 inches. Segal Gallery.

Doug Anderson: There is No Cure Find a Cause for It, 1982, oil on canvas, 84 by 72 inches.

Marc Mannheimer: Are the Masses Powerless?, 1983, acrylic and rhoplex on canvas, 60 inches high. Stux.

reflected not only the taste of the town, but also of highly respected members of the museum's staff. Ananda Coomaraswamy, Keeper of Indian art, wrote the following admonishment in 1941: "It is unnecessary for museums to exhibit the work of living artists, which are not in imminent danger of destruction, or at least, if such works are exhibited, it should be clearly understood that the museum is really advertising the artist and acting on behalf of the art dealer or middleman whose business it is to find a market for the artist."[3] What Coomaraswamy deemed museum-worthy were "ancient or unique works of art which are no longer in their original place or no longer used as was originally intended, and are therefore in danger of destruction by neglect or otherwise."[4]

The one mode which might arguably qualify as a trend among young Bostonians is a brand of large-scale figuration that would look at home in any "hot" N.Y. gallery.

Aaron Fink: Hat (For C.S.), 1982, oil on canvas, 76 by 100 inches.

Dana Chandler: The Ghetto, 1983, acrylic on masonite, 4 by 8 feet.

Notwithstanding such fixed opposition, a provisional acquisitions gallery opened that same year to facilitate "experimental acquisition of modern work, especially of young and comparatively unknown painters, in the hope that the museum might present a cross-section of contemporary activity, while guarding against the danger of being saddled with acquisitions whose interest is only temporary."[5] Whatever happened to that commendable effort remains a mystery. It was not until 1956, under Perry Rathbone's directorship, that the MFA became seriously involved with the art of this century. That year, it opened a permanent 20th-century gallery, and in '57 organized its first modern art exhibition ever: "European Masters of Our Time." The museum acquired its first Picasso in '58, its second in '64. Both were purchases, for, as Rathbone explained, "we cannot anticipate the bequest of major works of Picasso from Boston collectors."[6] However sparingly, Rathbone continued to buy 20th-century works, predominantly of European origin, until he was forced to resign (for other reasons) in '72, leaving modernism more absent than accounted for.

And so the situation remains today. Moffett's predisposition toward abstraction that perpetuates the stylistic breakthroughs made by Helen Frankenthaler, Morris Louis and David Smith has resulted in a contemporary collection so lopsided that it looks like the consequence of either hubris or tunnel vision. Louis, Poons, Noland, Olitski, Dzubas, Sandi Slone, Anthony Caro, Willard Boepple and their followers are made to represent the sum total of "high quality" and "good taste" in the art of the past 30 years. Moffett does have a limited admiration for certain figurative painters—Fairfield Porter, Horacio Torres, and Bostonian Barney Rubenstein are among the few—and to his credit has engaged outside curators to organize shows of work that lies outside his singular field of interest. Photo Realism, Conceptual art and Post-Minimal sculpture have thus made fleeting appearances at the MFA.

The museum's contemporary art plight was exacerbated by a 50-percent cut in exhibition space when the 20th-century gallery moved to the new west wing in 1981. To add insult to injury, two of the new gallery's main walls are interrupted by tall, deeply embrasured windows which admit floods of sunlight and close-up views of the not notably tranquil outside surroundings. The architect (I. M. Pei) would seem to have been inspired by Gertrude Stein's oft-quoted remark, "When I am at a picture gallery my one idea is to look out a window."[7]

Within a few years, when renovations in the old building are completed, space will be allotted there for 20th-century art; the new gallery will be used to show only the most recent works in the collection. But if the scope of contemporary acquisitions remains as narrow as it is at present, this gallery will likely function as a rather exclusive forum for successive generations of Color-Field abstractionists, and Coomaraswamy's injunction may prove not so reactionary after all.

More catholic views on contemporary art do exist within the MFA. John Walsh, Jr., curator of paintings until he leaves in June to direct California's Getty Museum, is well known to Boston artists as both a collector

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Catherine Bertulli: The Green Piano, 1982, watercolor and craypas. 36 by 47 inches.

Chris Enos: Roses, 1980 Polaroid photograph, 80 by 40 inches. Thomas Segal Gallery.

and friend. Ted Stebbins, hired by Walsh as the MFA's curator of American paintings, focuses his professional interest in current art on the ICA, where he heads the exhibitions committee and is vice president of the board of trustees. Clifford Ackley, associate curator of prints, drawings and photographs, who has been with the MFA since 1966, is widely credited for giving contemporary art a prominent place on his department's agenda (as well as with bringing photography within its purview). To find a work by Rauschenberg or Johns, or examples of Pop art, neo-expressionism or new figuration of any stripe, one goes to the museum's prints and drawings collection.

This situation may change: a few Bostonians—some of them museum trustees (Graham Gund is the most obvious example)—are assembling first-rate contemporary collections which may end up at the MFA. However, such bright prospects should not distract the museum from taking prompt initiative to rectify the over-specialization of its 20th-century department which, I am told, is becoming a hot issue.

The Outlying Museums

Several small, outlying museums run far more eventful contemporary programs than the MFA's and attract a good deal of attention despite their distance from the center of town. They include Brandeis University's Rose Art Museum (in Waltham), the Danforth Museum (Framingham), the Brockton Museum and, at least until recently, the DeCordova Museum (Lincoln). The eclectic proclivities of Carl Belz, director of the Rose Museum since '74, make that institution a worthy foil to the MFA. A former classmate of Frank Stella at Princeton, specialist in Man Ray and the Dadaists, and author in the '60s of a book on rock music, Belz (who was preceded at the Rose by Sam Hunter and William Seitz) has guided the museum from fiscal disaster to relative prosperity, directed its acquisitions toward the formation of a broad-based contemporary teaching collection, and instituted a modest exhibition program that is intelligently responsive to a motley constituency. Belz has funds to organize one major show per year; most have been monographic and of national interest: Frankenthaler from the '50s, Alex Katz, Mel Ramos, Stella's metal reliefs, early Matta, Charles Garabedian. In the other slots are work by Brandeis faculty, selections from the permanent collection, small groups of Boston-area artists, invitational theme shows. The probing treatment given the two latter categories often distinguishes them from similar undertakings by neighboring institutions.

Betsy Connors: Nuclear Vacationland, 1982, Polaroid photograph, 24 by 20 inches. Segal Gallery.

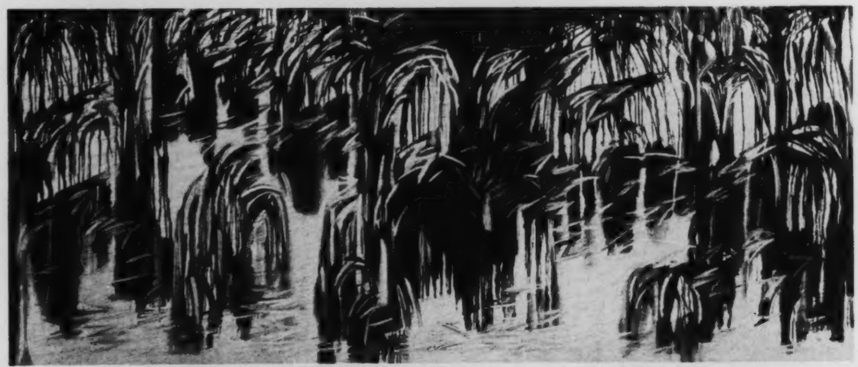
The Danforth Museum's current (through July 3) series of five temporary installations by Boston-area artists has placed that museum squarely on the local map, at least for now. Beyond rare occasions at the Hayden Gallery, the ICA and one or two commercial galleries, there is scant opportunity for local artists to show this kind of work.

Under David Katzive's direction (1981–83), the DeCordova Museum began to fill that gap. Using Artpark as a model, and with funding from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, Katzive initiated a program for commissioning permanent outdoor projects on the museum's 35 wooded acres. By the time Katzive resigned under pressure this past January, four works (two by Boston artists) had been completed, and two more were under contract. The contracts will be honored, but no additional works commissioned while the museum's goals are reexamined and a new director (the third since '79) found.

Katzive's "irreconcilable differences" with the board of trustees stemmed at least partly from his success at the very thing he felt he was hired to accomplish: transforming the DeCordova into a museum of national standing. Established 30 years ago as one of the region's few museums committed to contemporary art, the DeCordova was kept on a balanced diet of historical, regional and contemporary shows by Fred Walkey, its director until 1979. Eventually seeking to liven things up, the trustees hired David Katzive to replace him.

Katzive's curatorial flair was more than they had bargained for, and his penchant for administration something less. The museum's exhibitions made headlines as its financial crisis worsened. The unsettling (to the trustees) celebrity of its contemporary exhibitions culminated in this past winter's concurrent shows of computer drawings by Harold Cohen and video-game imagery as related to contemporary painting. Attendance at the DeCordova was never higher; the show was even blamed for a rash of truancy in the local schools.

With Katzive out and his ambitious exhibition program slated for retrenchment, the trustees are attempting to adjust museum policy to reflect the taste of its local suburban constituency—perceived, once again, as regional, historical . . . and contemporary. If all goes well, a new director will be named this summer. A new position—that of senior curator—will be filled in the fall.



Natalie Alper:* Bright Passage, *1982, acrylic and pencil on canvas, 54 by 128 inches.

Alex Grey:* Human Race, *1982 performance at the Overland Theatre, Boston.

The Galleries

Although a substantial number of cooperative galleries exist, Boston has virturally no alternative spaces. The seeds of one were sown this past winter, however, by Tufts graduate student Jerry Beck. Beck rented a dilapidated cellar in the South End's run-down commercial district, installed his show and opened it to the public. The art—assemblages of urban detritus and animal remains gathered from a vacant, waterside lot in South Boston—was distinctly out of synch with the normal fare of Boston's commercial galleries. "From a Desert in Boston," as the show was called, most closely approximated a one-man version of New York's ABC No Rio. Beck invited video- and filmmakers to screen their works in the "gallery." The place was packed. Encouraged by Beck's example, a group of artists is attempting to secure the space (now known as The Basement) as a non-profit gallery. As of the end of last month, they had managed to keep up with the rent and hold a two-person show.

Aside from the Federal Reserve Bank, where prepackaged group shows of Boston art are sometimes held, the nearest thing to an alternative institution is the gallery run by Northeastern University's African American Master Artists-in-Residency Program (AAMARP). Headed by Dana Chandler, AAMARP is particularly sympathetic to work by minority artists, and mounts exhibitions ranging from solo shows of nationally known figures (Benny Andrews, for example) to large, juried exhibitions (Boston-area women artists). AAMARP is receptive (and therefore unique among Boston establishments) to art with overtly political subject matter. Not that much of it is produced in Boston, even among ethnic minorities, but, according to Chandler, what little there is has so far been ignored by galleries and museums. In Chandler's view, there are fewer than a handful of political artists in town ("they can make statements, but not a living"), notably himself and Arnold Trachtman. Chandler's most potent subjects are taken from local incidents of racial violence and discrimination, which he treats with an almost caricatural verve and in lurid colors reminiscent of Red Grooms. Trachtman is a contemporary history painter whose indictments of individuals and of society bring to mind the work of Diego Rivera (and were shown by AAMARP in '81).

The Boston Visual Artists Union's political activities, which focus on artists' rights and interests, tend to be educational, social and persuasional rather than visual. (BVAU does organize exhibitions such as one last year aimed at convincing a local agency to increase the proportion of its public-art to its landscape commissions.) Group shows selected from the BVAU membership (which numbers between 800 and 1,000) and held in various places throughout the city (AAMARP, the Federal Reserve Bank, BVAU's own gallery) are not on a par with the organization's lobbying efforts.

The ratio of artists to commercial galleries is daunting enough to drive any career-minded artist out of Boston—and indeed, many of them leave. Among those recently settled in New York are Christopher Sproat, Bobby G., Gregory Amenoff, Joel Janowitz, Todd McKie, to name a few of the more familiar. Still, since the early '50s, when only two contemporary galleries of any consequence existed—Boris Mirski and Margaret Brown—the gallery scene has expanded appreciably, although by no means commensurately with the artist population. Newbury Street, Boston's Madison Avenue, has always been the center of the city's art trade. It is now lined with some 10 contemporary galleries worth mentioning (and visiting).

VOL 7 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

About five years ago, new territory was staked out for art in the warehouse district known as Fort Point Channel; there was talk of a second SoHo. Led by Helen Schlien, who pioneered the presentation of large-scale works, installation pieces and performances, a cluster of new galleries specializing in work by emerging Northeast artists set up shop there in lofts far roomier and more affordable than anything on Newbury Street. Unfortunately, Boston was not ready to support two art districts. Between openings, traffic—and sales—slowed to a trickle.

Having waited patiently for the area to catch on, Helen Schlien and Pat Stavaridis move their galleries to Newbury Street this month. (Stavaridis's former partner, Bess Cutler, is now dealing privately in New York.) Another dealer, Andre Lopoukhine, plans to relocate there in the fall. The exodus strips Fort Point Channel of major galleries and bodes ill for the few that remain, with the possible exception of Alchemie, a new, non-profit space directed by Ted Landsmark, a lawyer and photographer with sophisticated marketing ideas.

Undeterred by the turn of events at Fort Point Channel, the Thomas Segal Gallery recently opened an annex in Jamaica Plain, about three miles from its home base on Newbury Street. Located on the top floor of a former brewery, Big in Boston (as the new space is called) is the only commercial facility in town that can accommodate large-scale works. Sculpture will be installed on the lower rooftops and in the courtyard of the sprawling, fortress-like building. Just as Big in Boston is likely to reflect its parent gallery's penchant for big names (the inaugural show featured works by Frankenthaler, Noland, Kelly, Rickey, Calder, Voulkos, etc.), it will also probably reflect its nascent involvement with local artists (the gallery now represents about a dozen Bostonians).

Other galleries that keep one eye on New York and the other on Boston are Nina Nielsen; Portia Harcus; Barbara Krakow, whose 18-year partnership with Portia Harcus recently ended—last month, Krakow opened her own gallery across the street; and, to a lesser degree, Magnuson Lee, primarily a print dealer. In an ironic inversion of Coomaraswamy's pronouncement against museums acting as commercial galleries, several dealers in town see themselves as helping to perform a job proper to museums: that of exposing and educating the public to a broad range of contemporary art. Of course, galleries everywhere can and do contribute to public knowledge, but given the museum situation in Boston, this is not just a redundant claim.

Mark Cooper: Derek, 1980, cement and acrylic, 8 feet high. Brockton Museum.

The ratio of artists to commercial galleries is daunting enough to drive any career-minded artist out of Boston—and indeed, many leave.

Besides Helen Schlien, the major dealers in current New England art are Alpha, Impressions and Stux. Although Alpha does a brisk backroom business in master prints, German Expressionism and the estate of Milton Avery, its most conspicuous activities center on emerging representational painters from the Northeast. Run by Alan Fink, a Boston dealer since 1951, the gallery also shows the work of Katherine Porter, now a nationally known abstractionist living in Maine, and Harold Tovish, father figure and mentor to generations of Boston artists.

More typical of Boston galleries that maintain a regional focus are Stux and Impressions, both of which show an enormous variety of work—much of it innovative or stylistically of the moment. Currently seen as the hottest gallery in town, Stux has probably won more artist admirers in its three-year existence than its longer established Newbury Street neighbors. This is partly because from the start, Northeast art has been Stux's mainstay. This is true of Helen Schlien and a few others as well, but so far they have met with less success. Stux's stable now contains about 50 artists.

The sole contemporary gallery in Cambridge is Van Buren/Brazelton/Cutting, which shows an eclectic group of predominantly young, local artists. Although it claims to have no shortage of visitors, there appear to be few buyers among them. Such is not the case with the Clark Gallery, which is located in a shopping mall in Lincoln. The gallery's benign monopoly over this affluent suburb, home to numerous collectors, has induced several Boston artists to show there.

Photography

Bostonians claim that their city is a "big photography town." One reason is the Polaroid Corporation's liberal sprinkling of its products over the region—it provides free film to selected photographers in exchange for examples of their work. These become part of the corporate collection, housed in its own Cambridge gallery. Polaroid also donates large-scale equipment: the Boston Museum School has been given one of Polaroid's 80-by-40-inch cameras, for example, which is said to cost $50,000—without its $100,000-flash accessory, which they have too.

Needless to say, plenty of Boston photographers take Polaroid pictures. Two working in large format who exploit the medium's most salient characteristics—color and narrow depth of field—are Chris Enos and Betsy Connors. Connors, who also works in video and is a fellow at MIT's Center for Advanced Visual Studies, photographs miniature sets she constructs from toy figurines and assorted everyday objects. Disjunctions of scale and narrative lend humor or horror to ostensibly banal subjects. Titles often supply necessary clues to meaning. A palmy poolside scene, for example, is called El Salvador. Enos is best known for her close-up details of dying plants and flowers. Magnification of the inexorable forces of decay renders these images at once monstrous and, in their abstract perfection, seductive.

Regional practitioners of manipulated photography abound, championed by Davis Pratt, associate curator of photographs at Harvard's Fogg Museum. Exhibitions at Harvard's Carpenter Center are organized by Barbara Norfleet, photography curator in the department of visual and environmental studies, whose efforts have done much to revive and advance interest in studio and documentary photography, respectively. Today, one of the area's most accomplished documentary photographers is Roswell Angier, whose strongest work to date exposes the harrowing cultural disintegration of the Navajo Indians.

Minor White, who in 1965 established MIT's Creative Photography Laboratory and remained at its head until '74, was an important influence on Boston photographers throughout his tenure. Since his departure and death in '76, the Lab has been directed by Starr Ockenga. One of Boston's few graduate photography programs, and notable at MIT for its art (as opposed to research) orientation, it is being closed permanently in June.

A younger national figure, Nicholas Nixon, has hardly any local presence at all. Although he has lived and taught in the area for the past nine years, Nixon remains so aloof that many Bostonians familiar with his work are unaware that he is in their midst.

Mags Harries: Asaroton (detail), 1976, bronze castings in cement pathway 56 feet long. Boston Haymarket.

Jerry Beck: From a Desert in Boston (detail), 1983, first installation at The Basement, one of Boston's only artist-run alternative spaces.

For a city of its size, Boston is fairly well stocked with photography showcases. The MFA holds frequent exhibitions directed by acting photography curator Clifford Ackley; MIT has (had) its Creative Photography Gallery; both the ICA and the Hayden Gallery include photography on their agendas; and the Harcus, Stux and Segal galleries do as well. The doyen of Boston's commercial photography galleries, Carl Siembab, has been in business for 27 years. More recent arrivals are Vision, Klein and Brent Sikkema. Boston's Photographic Resource Center, founded in 1976 by Chris Enos, is an information clearinghouse that ties this loosely knit scene together. It also sponsors lectures, exhibitions and administers grants.

Schools and Influences

It is rare to find a Boston artist without some past or present link to either the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, the Massachusetts College of Art, or Boston University's art school. Although each institution has its supporters and detractors (B.U. is said to train artists to draw the figure so well that they can never do anything else), the MFA School is the least rigid and probably the best loved. This is true despite the fact that some staunch Greenberg adherents teach there: Friedl Dzubas (who donates his time and is one of the school's most sought-after instructors), Sandi Slone, Willard Boepple, Jim Wolfe. Yet the program advocates no single style or ideology and is agreeably unstructured.

Philip Guston taught at B.U. from the early '70s until his death and, in the Boston Globe art critic Robert Taylor's words, "put students back on the track of being artists, not careerists." He had an enormous following, and his influence lives on in the work of many young artists, notably that of Jonathan Imber, whose penetrating, larger-than-life portraits include several of Guston himself.

Senior figures widely respected for their art, ideas and general examples include Maud Morgan, Hyman Bloom, Harold Tovish and Michael Mazur, whose senior status is conferred by reputation, not age. (All four happen to have New York galleries.) Morgan, who studied with Hans Hofmann, taught Frank Stella and Carl Andre at Andover, showed with Julian Levy in New York in 1938 and, since 1948, has been with the Betty Parsons gallery, is described as "an inspiration." At 79 she is an inveterate traveler, political activist, portrait painter and abstract collagist.

Like Morgan, Tovish, widely known for his series of bronze self-portraits emerging from abstract matrices, is admired for his political commitments and his interest in and encouragement of young artists. Mazur, whose best representational paintings have an eschatalogical edge, is esteemed for the same reasons and, because he is considerably younger, as a model of a Boston artist who has made it nationally.

Bloom, a Bostonian since 1920, is the most venerated and elusive of the group. His reputation is based on his art and on his single-mindedness in pursuing it. Bloom spurns the expressionist label often attached to his work, calling that "emotional and undisciplined approach," which he says interested him for two years only, "for the birds." (According to painter and former Bostonian Bernard Chaet, Pollock and de Kooning considered Bloom the first Abstract Expressionist.) He is interested primarily in a quality of spiritual resonance, like that found in Rembrandt, Blake, Turner and Indian painting. Bloom's latest works, shown last month at Terry Dintenfass in New York, are large-scale still lifes (the artist views them as abstractions) of ornate amphoras. These garish, exquisitely crafted vases seem the perfect vessels for Bloom's blend of fantasy and close observation, scintillating color and sure, free brushwork.

The Painters

On the first day of my reconnaissance mission, I was told that the Boston style is epitomized by the work of 38-year-old Roger Kizik. Soon afterwards, I discovered that there is no single dominating trend, and even if a case could be made for a single exemplary artist, it would certainly not be Kizik. Nonetheless, the remark was revealing of how far and in how many directions Boston art has diverged from the meticulously crafted realist oil paintings I was expecting.

After Hyman Bloom, Kizik seems to be Boston's best known, least seen artist. His mammoth paintings (10 by 20 feet is the norm) assembled from fake fur, feathers, plastic garlands, mylar strips, sequins, lingerie and much else, testify to Kizik's assertion that "anything will roll," when it comes to materials. Inspired by dreams, desires and personal experiences, these gigantic works are intensely private, cathartic statements scaled up to public dimensions. Their physicality and bravado—not to say vulgarity—have elicited comparisons to early Schnabel. But Kizik is less pedantic than Schnabel, less literary, more humorous. Formally, he seems more indebted to Pollock than to any of his peers. Despite affiliations with the Schlien and Stux galleries, Kizik has managed to sell a total of only three of his large works, an indication that they are still too big—in many respects—for Boston.

Another young artist coming to terms with autobiographical subject matter is Gerry Bergstein; his paintings are cocktails of illusionism, abstraction, Surrealism, late

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

Guston, written words and phrases. They are crammed with small floating everyday images: TVs, refrigerators, food, art, houses, airplanes, and beds juxtaposed in antic, disturbing ways. Transubstantiations are commonplace: a submarine sandwich becomes an airplane and is also an animal biting into a human being. Layered meaning is literalized by surface complexity—passages of paint applied in actual and illusionistic relief. Trompe-l'oeil frames serve as formal containers and mock-narrative devices. The attempt to control chaos is shown to be joyous, perilous absurdity.

Traditional realism has by no means faded from view in Boston. Like the so-called Brahmins, it has simply lost its monopoly. George Nick, Paul Georges (who commutes to Brandeis from New York), Barney Rubenstein and, at intervals, Michael Mazur are some of the leading practitioners. The torchbearer among younger artists is Richard Sheehan, who was lionized in the local press last winter for adhering to his plein-air painting schedule regardless of the weather. Sheehan portrays unassuming portions of the built landscape—highway exits and embankments, bridge underpasses, industrial flatlands—that are anonymous to the point of being emblematic. Sheehan's sensitive rendering accords them a bleak beauty.

Watercolor is another healthy local tradition. Until leaving for New York, Todd McKie was among Boston's foremost younger painters in the medium. There is more than a hint of Chicago funk in McKie's work—and in that of other Boston watercolorists, too. In this regard, Catherine Bertulli, who also makes beguilingly flimsy foam-core constructions, stands out as something of a maverick. Her saturated colors and densely packed forms conjure up Matisse and Nolde. Like her work in other mediums, the watercolors are witty, yet come straight from the heart.

The one stylistic mode which might arguably qualify as a trend among young Boston painters is a brand of large-scale figuration that would look perfectly at home in any "hot" New York gallery (except Metro Pictures—Bostonians are not—yet—lifting imagery directly from the media). Generally speaking, figures of herculean dimension are set within an abstract framework. For Louis Risoli, this compositional strategy is ideally suited to his subjects—body builders. Painted in lavish relief, the figures, cropped at the neck, dominate their flat, patterned grounds as body builders do a stage.

By contrast, Cliffton Peacock's abstracted, heroic nudes appear dwarfed by the implications of vast space and monumental architecture that surround them. Aaron Fink paints frontal, iconic images in series. His metaphorical motifs—isolated smoking men, cigars, clouds, breaking waves, chairs, cherries, cups and saucers—recall Guston. Their monumental proportions and weight project a looming mysterious force. The forms are simplified, the brushwork and coloration scumbled and sensuous.

In some ways, Doug Anderson is Boston's answer to David Salle. For both artists, the logic to the accrual and relationship of images is unspecified. The implied narrative—often sexual—is tenuous. Anderson's imagery, harsh palette and highly reflective surfaces are inspired by porno magazines; his violent, oblique themes, by rock music and the horrors of a post-industrial, nuclear age.

Marc Mannheimer's brightly painted shaped canvases allude to man's bestial nature. Animals shown in human situations and interacting with humans as if members of the same species produce a grotesque effect. For Mannheimer, man is also the "other."

By barely perceptible steps, John McNamara, one of Boston's best-known abstract painters, is moving toward representation. Figurative elements are stealing into his covert landscapes. (Like Kizik's work, they tend to be outsize.) The brooding atmosphere of these paintings now has a referent, although their paint handling (McNamara uses a palette knife) remains essentially abstract. Occasional shrill tonal contrasts are the only incidents that interrupt—somewhat gratuitously—the paintings' otherwise contemplative expanses.

Natalie Alper's abstract paintings are both dynamic and lyrical. Evolved from a tight rhythmic calligraphy which recalls that of Hanne Darboven, Alper's diagonal strokes are now long and loose, and their accumulation over the white paper or canvas surface conveys the impression of plant forms on water. The paintings read as extended metaphors for gardens, growth and change, invoking the spirit of Monet.

Some 30 abstract painters and sculptors have banded together (with the help of Ken Moffett) to share Greenbergian ideas about art. They meet periodically for professional critiques and hold sessions at which they spend a lot of time counseling each other where most effectively to crop their works. Among the painters, Frank Campion is the most accomplished and individual. As for the sculptors, many are barely out of the MFA School, where they appear to have concentrated hard on Gonzalez, Smith and Caro (which is precisely why they were invited to join the group.)

Sculpture, Installations, Public Art, etc.

Unless I missed something (easily a possibility), Boston-area sculptors doing work of consequence can be counted on the fingers of one hand. A disproportionate number are involved in producing forms with overtones of archeology. Brenda Star models wax reliefs in the shape of Greek urns. Actually profile images, her objects are richly associative yet stubbornly confound all the historical interpretations they suggest. Mark Cooper is the only sculptor I encountered working fairly consistently Michael Timpson: Just Knock Three Times and Whisper Low, 1982, exterior, 40 by 40 by 25 feet. DeCordova Museum.

Michael Timpson: Just Knock Three Times and Whisper Low, 1982, interior installation. DeCordova Museum.

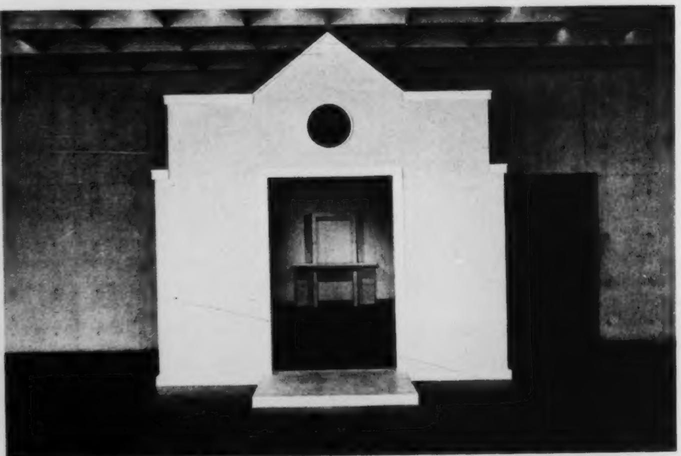
Ed Rothfarb:* Istra, *1982, painted wood, 16 by 23 by 32 feet. Rose Art Museum.



Jeffrey Schiff:* Chapel/Exit, *1983, installation at Brown University, plaster, 13 by 13 by 33 feet.

on a large scale. His cast-cement pieces resemble excavated architectural fragments encrusted with bronze and ceramic shards. The rough surfaces bear contemporary hieroglyphs modeled in relief.

Discouraged by the narrow exposure she felt she was receiving, Mags Harries withdrew from the Boston gallery scene several years ago to devote her time to making public pieces. By focusing on vestiges of human presence, her work calls attention to its absence and to the passage of time. Her commemorative objects include such things as the remains of a meal, the impression of a hand, lost articles of clothing and, in her best known work (for Boston's Haymarket), refuse from a public marketplace. To fabricate the works, Harries simply casts found objects in plaster, which is then translated into bronze. Her latest commission, called The Glove Cycle (an homage to Max Klinger), consists of hundreds of single bronze gloves, in all shapes and sizes and configurations. They will be installed in a Cambridge subway station, on railings and the escalator median. A large heap of them will occupy an eerie corner.

The Glove Cycle is one of many works commissioned by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority in conjunction with the construction or refurbishing of 15 public transit stations in Boston and Cambridge. Other artists participating in the project are Siah Armajani, Scott Burton, Sam Gilliam, Joyce Kozloff, Todd McKie, Ann Norton (whose piece was designed before she died last year), Christopher Sproat and Bostonians Carlos Dorian, Dmitri Hadzi, Gyorgy Kepes, Paul Matisse, Will Ryman, Jeffrey Schiff and James Tyler. About $1.5 million is allocated for the art.

Installation art (seen from time to time at Helen Schlien and Stux galleries) has few practitioners in Boston. Two of its three main exemplars, Jeffrey Schiff and Ed Rothfarb, have architectural backgrounds. In a series of recent pieces, Schiff has introduced scaled-down, plaster-block versions of columns, portals and other features of classical Roman and church architecture into modern (gallery) interiors—to simulate the historical compression the Romans achieved when they built on Etruscan sites. Rothfarb, more interested in architecture's narrative potential, has been making sculptures that relate closely to Alice Aycock's constructions from a few years back. A stronger theatricality has entered his new works, which resemble Constructivist stage sets that may, in the future, be embellished with figurative elements.

Michael Timpson's homages to laborers are laid out in grid formation, echoing the repetitive and accumulative nature of the tasks that workers perform. Miners, hospital, construction, and factory workers are the absent subjects of his rooms filled with orderly rows of pails and flashlights, beds, wheelbarrows and lunch tables. The wheelbarrow installation, a permanent outdoor commission for the DeCordova Museum, was also a kind of performance process piece. It took Timpson nearly a year to singlehandedly build the woodframe chapel-like structure that houses it.

The work of a number of Boston artists bespeaks a common concern for maintaining the integrity of life in a world that seems bent on its fragmentation or destruction. Alex Grey's painting series, The Sacred Mirror, in progress since 1979, is composed of life-size, minutely detailed diagrams of human physical, psychic and spiritual energy systems elaborated in Western science, Judaism, Buddhism, Hinduism and Sanskrit. (Grey is also a powerful performer; life, death and nuclear holocaust are the frequent focus of his performance pieces.) Allyson Grey (Alex's wife and performance collaborator) paints large abstract watercolors (the biggest so far is 24 feet long) composed of units containing 100 differently colored squares, each square representing a different color. Within each work, the scale and disposition of units and their component color squares vary widely, producing a look of random disorder. Yet anyone with patience will discover the works to be harmonic wholes.

Ralph Helmick's figurative sculptures are constructed from countless of sections of cut wood strips stacked up and laminated. The horizontal striations evidence the way in which the sculpture is built up, each constituting a piece of information essential to the whole. That Helmick's works look like the results of repeatable mechanical operations is no accident.

Karen Moss intrudes images of electronic circuitry, robots and other signs of technological prowess into her large watercolors of natural, often aquatic, environments. The messages behind such pointed juxtapositions of wildlife and artificial intelligence can hardly be mistaken.

In a city whose streets were laid out by cows, things change slowly, and people either learn to be patient or move on. The frenzy of New York is missing here, as are the external pressures to make art. As a result, the work seems in general more reflective, less urgent and finally, perhaps, less compelling. Boston doesn't offer New York's thrilling highs and abysmal lows—for one thing, the market won't support them. But no one expects—or particularly wants—Boston to beNew York. Not yet. ☐

1. Cleveland Amory, The Proper Bostonians, New York, E.P. Dutton, 1947, p. 18.
2. Ibid., p. 249.
3. Walter Muir Whitehill, Museum of Fine Arts Boston: A Centennial History, Cambridge, Mass., The Belknap Press of Harvard Univ. Press, 1970, Vol. II, p. 507.
4. Ibid., p. 508.
5. Ibid., p. 507.
6. Ibid., p. 754.
7. Marjorie Phillips, Duncan Phillips and His Collection, New York, W.W. Norton & Co., revised edition 1982, p. 187.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
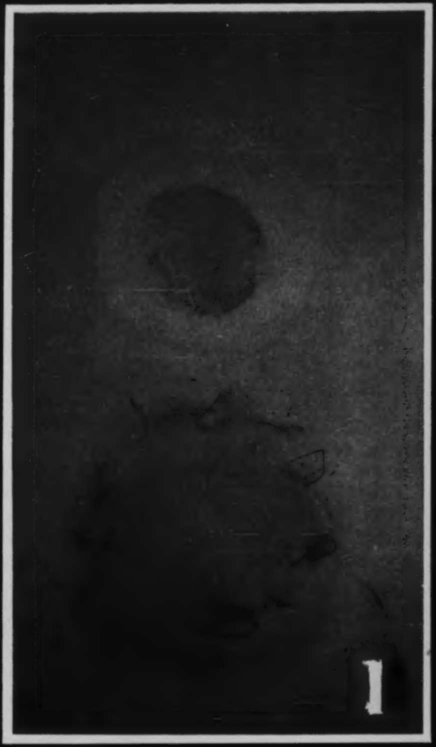
UMI



ADOLPH GOTTLIEB
"Smolder," 1964
Oil on Canvas
73 x 42 inches

IRVING GALLERIES
332 Worth Ave., Palm Beach, Florida 33480
Telephone (305) 659-6221

Georg Baselitz
Paintings
March 31 - May 7

Willem de Kooning
The Complete Sculpture
May 14 - June 25

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75 Street New York, NY 10021 212 535-3980

OLGA DE AMARAL

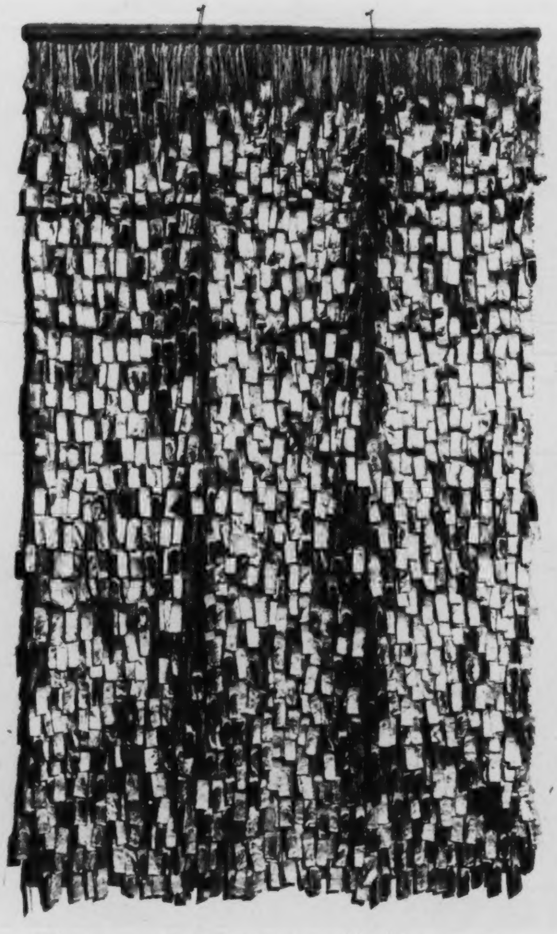
"Woven Matter"



Alquimia, 1982. Linen, gesso, gold leaf, 60 x 36 in.

April 28–May 24, 1983

MODERN MASTER
TAPESTRIES INC.

11 East 57th St., New York 10022
Telephone (212) 838-0412

Boston

Doug Anderson
Gerry Bergstein
Pelle Cass
Alex Grey
Allyson Grey
Ralph Helmick
Roger Kizik
Jod Lourie
Marc Mannheimer
Mark Milloff
Susan Morrison
Louis Risoli
Ed Rothfarb
Jo Sandman
Jeffry Schiff
Norman Toynton
George Wardlaw

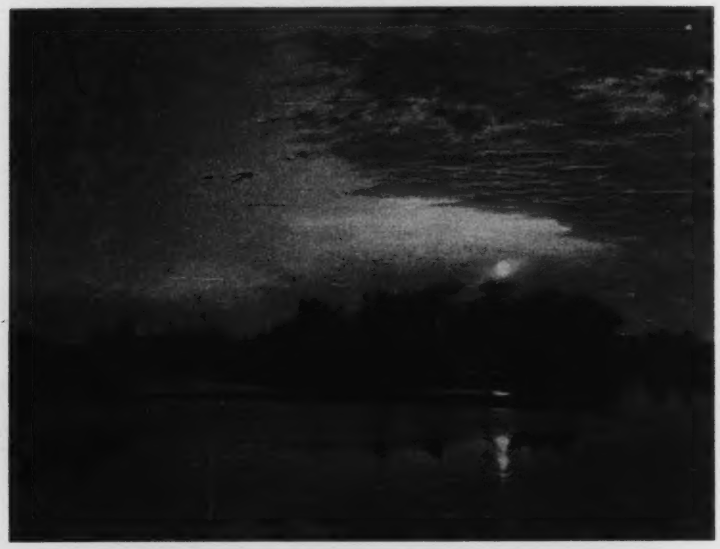
Stux
Gallery

36 Newbury St. Boston 02116 617/267.7300

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

RICHARD SCHLOSS

PAINTINGS



"Santa Barbara Bird Refuge in Blue and Orange" oil on canvas 36" x 50" 1983

May 24 - June 17, 1983

William
Sawyer
Gallery 3045 Clay Street ● San Francisco, CA 94115 ● (415) 921-1600 ● Tues-Sat 11-6

DAVID SMITH

Sculpture, Painting, Drawing / April 23 - May 12

ALEXANDER CALDER

Stabiles / May 14 - June 2

M. Knoedler & Co.

19 East 70 Street. New York 10021. Telephone (212) 794-0550

KUBACH-WILMSEN

BOOKS OF STONE • MAY 10 TO JUNE 4, 1983

Black Book, 1982, Belgian Marble, 16½x13x12 in.

STAEMPFLI

47 EAST 77 STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021 • Tel. 212/535-1919

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

BEN BENN

1884 – 1983

"the OCTOGENARIAN decade"

1967

MAY
JUNE
JULY Saturdays.
9 • 16 • 23 • 30 or by appointment

BRANCHVILLE SOHO GALLERY
Ridgefield, CT 06829
R.R. Station, Routes 7 & 102
203 • 544 • 8636 Tues. – Sat. 1 – 4 p.m.

Representing the ARTIST'S OWN COLLECTION

1970

WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART at Philip Morris MAY 18 through June 22, the Forum exhibition of 1916, BENN'S first major group show

Report from Paris
Hobson's Choice

BY YVE-ALAIN BOIS

On the cover of Jeanne Laurent's Arts et pouvoirs (Art and Power)—an extraordinary book, published last summer, that traces the vicissitudes of French cultural politics since the Revolution—there is a reproduction of Georges Braque's 1914 Man with a Guitar, one of two and only two "classic" Cubist Braques bought by the Musée National d'Art Moderne in Paris. The selection of this illustration—the only one in the entire book—was ironic, as the caption on the inside front cover indicates: "Painting sold for 2,400 francs in 1921 by the State, which bought it back for 9 million in 1981."[1] This is, in fact, only one of 124 Braque canvases (not to mention almost all of his collages) that were dumped on the market, along with over 1,500 other Cubist and Fauve works, in the infamous Kahnweiler sales that the French government organized in the early '20s. Laurent reveals that these auctions of German property sequestered—that is, confiscated—during World War I were not, as is commonly supposed, an error due to ignorance; they were, rather, part of a deliberate plot, under direct pressure from the Académie des Beaux-Arts, to discredit modern art—on the one hand, by oversaturating the market with it; on the other, by demonstrating that this was the kind of art that had appealed to the "enemy."

The government took its own good time in repairing the damage, if last summer's exhibition at the Pompidou Center in Paris of every Braque work in French public collections is any indication. The Musée National d'Art Moderne waited until 1965 to purchase a Braque from the heroic Cubist years (the 1913–14 collage Violin and Pipe). Were it not for numerous gifts from private collectors (and the two exceptional works mentioned above), visitors to the museum would see only Braque's late (i.e., postwar) Cubist works, his interiors and still lifes dating from 1937 through '50, and a truly hideous piece of jewelry executed after one of his drawings—not much to boast about.

Laurent reveals the founding of the Musée National d'Art Moderne to have been an epic task and salutes the pioneering efforts of Jean Cassou, its first curator, and Georges Salles, then director of the French Musées Nationaux. It is thanks to these two that the museum has a number of works by Matisse, Bonnard, Picasso, Gris, Miró and, yes, even Braque. But Cassou and Salles were simply making up for lost time, buying works from various periods by the established masters of modern art, so that the museum would not be a laughingstock in the eyes of the rest of the world.

> An exhibition of contemporary work purchased by the Musée National d'Art Moderne was one result of the museum's new freedom to determine its own acquisitions policy.

Unfortunately, Laurent does not say very much about the de Gaulle government's distressing policy on the purchase of contemporary art works (that is, works produced during its tenure). After Salles's death, the Museum's lack of independence in matters of acquisition had dire consequences. As the museum's current director, Dominique Bozo, writes, "As soon as the museum expressed interest in young artists whose reputations were not established, there would be a veto. And then word would come down that we were henceforth to devote ourselves entirely to 'dead artists.' With one supplementary contradiction: works by living artists would be accepted as gifts!"[2] Hence, the extreme unevenness of the museum's collections, the numerous gaps that today it is trying to fill.

Things changed in 1976, when the museum was granted autonomy in acquisition matters. The effects of this fundamental change were the subject of a recent exhibition at the Centre Georges Pompidou, "Choix pour aujourd'hui" (Selections for Today), a sampling of contemporary works acquired in the last four years. (Historical works, whether purchases or gifts, by Matisse, Dubuffet, Léger and others, have already been integrated into the museum's permanent collection.) Now free to determine its own acquisitions policy, the museum must improve its collections on three "fronts" at once, Bozo explains in the catalogue preface: it must augment its patrimony of historical works, skim the cream of current French production, and open itself at long last to contemporary production in other countries (which for years has received only token representation in the collection). Of these three projects, the exhibition set out to demonstrate that the last has been the most successful. Of the 41 exhibited works, only 15 are by French artists—a fact which opponents of the decision to allow the museum to determine its own acquisitions policy (who are quite numerous in France) have been quick to criticize. Should we not, rather, congratulate ourselves that our infamous and very real French chauvinism has finally been overcome?

"Choix pour aujourd'hui" was thus a showcase for recent acquisitions of contemporary art, and it seemed that this particular selection of work presented a faithful picture of the overall enrichment of the contemporary collection over the last four years. (But why four years, when the museum's purchasing freedom has been in effect for six?) Here is what the exhibition's curator, Bernard Blistène (of the Beaubourg curatorial staff) had to say in the catalogue: "Building a collection requires more than a partial commitment: confronted with the complexity of contemporary artistic production, its changes of heart (rêpentirs), the Musée National d'Art Moderne has tried to commit itself to the danger of making a choice rather than the insolence of recuperation."[3] What Blistène means by "partial commitment" is unclear (unless he means "partial" in the sense of taking sides, exclusivity, etc.). "Changes of heart" is even more vague, as is "insolence of recuperation." (Rêcuperation comes from the revolutionary vocabulary of May '68, but it also describes the activity of rag-pickers, secondhand dealers and other garbage collectors.) In any case, Blistène's alembicated statement seems to suggest that genuine esthetic criteria presided over the selection of these additions to the collection, and this, I think, is a serious distortion of the truth.

What exactly was in the exhibition? A little bit of everything—as in practically every public collection of contemporary art in both Europe and the United States. A substantial percentage of the museum's acquisitions are by internationally recognized "blue chip" artists—veterans of Pop, Minimal, Process and Earth Art, and Arte Povera (Oldenburg, LeWitt, Andre, Ryman, Long, Merz, Fulton, Flanagan, Kounellis). The abstract school of Paris—whose reputation the museum has set out to rehabilitate, judging by its recent retrospectives of Viallat, Pagès, Buraglio and Gauthier—was well represented, with works by Simon Hantaï, Tony Grand, François Rouan, Martin Barré, Bernard Pagès and Claude Viallat. The "academics" were here, too (with Valerio Adami, Pierre Klossowski and Gérard Titus-Carmel, whose works have found favor in Parisian literary circles), as were neo-dadaists of the '60s (Ben Vautier, Jean-Pierre Raynaud) and kineticists (Takis, François

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY 1983

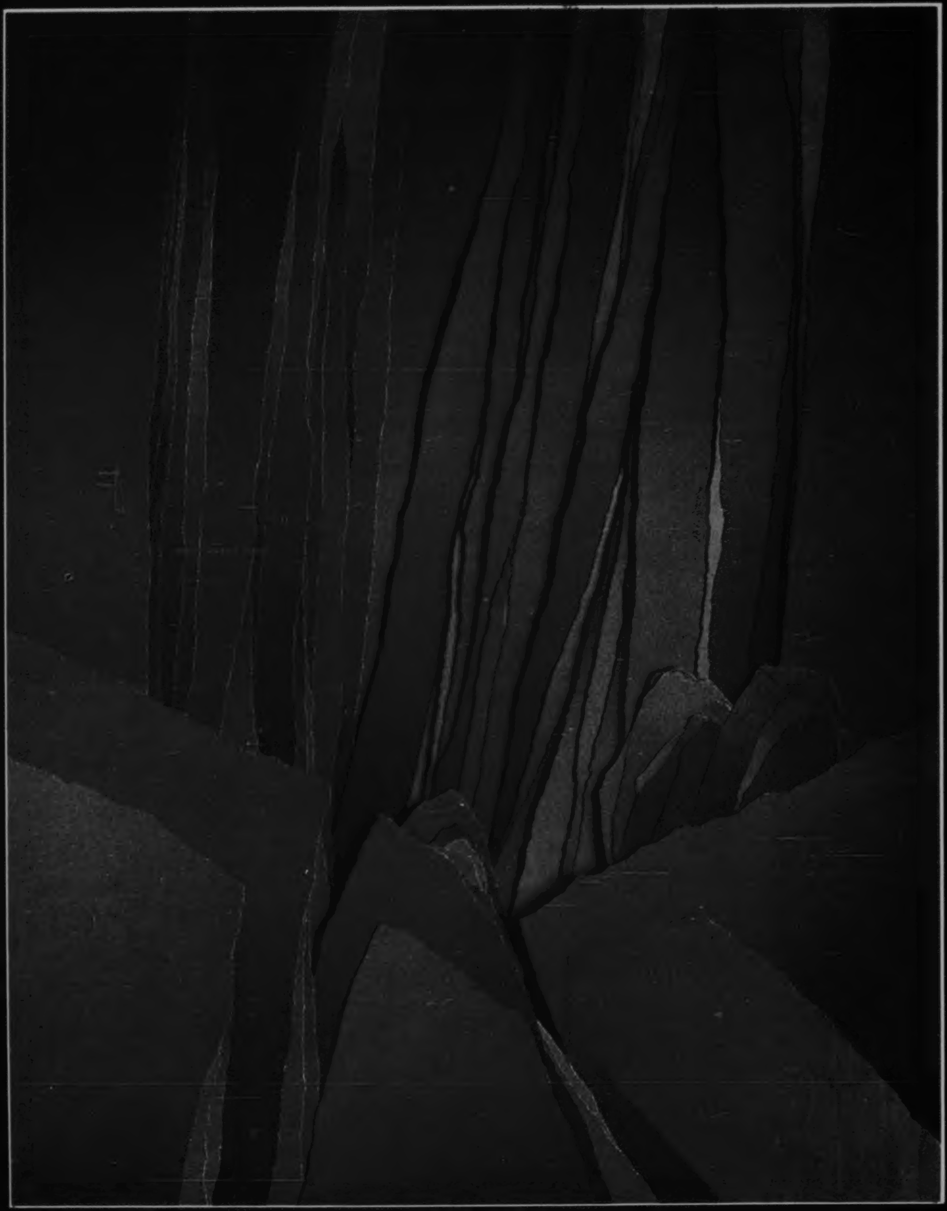
UMI

BRIAN BLOUNT



"Ghost Creek" pastel/paper 38" x 29½"

Santa Fe Exhibition:
June 17-30, 1983

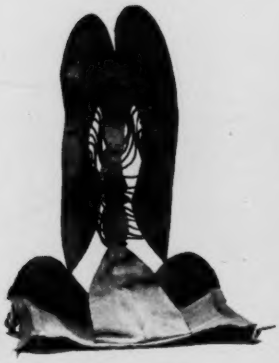
ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

129 W. Palace Ave.
Santa Fe, New Mexico
87501
(505) 988-8997

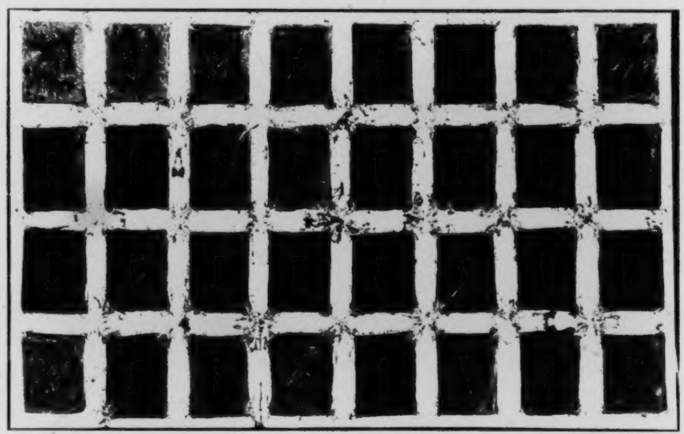
4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona
85251
(602) 945-0791

4222 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona
85251
(602) 941-5290

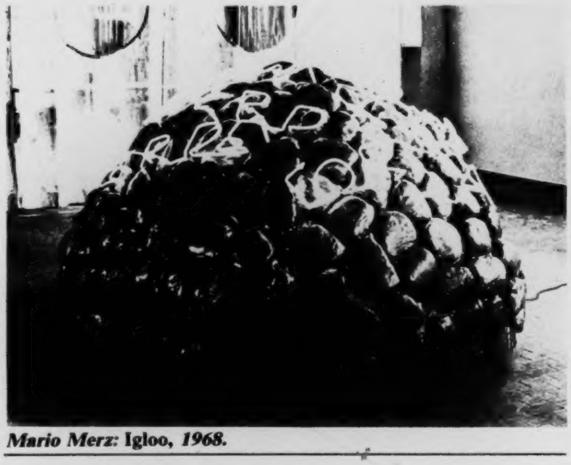
Forest Road & Hwy. 89A
Sedona, Arizona
86336
(602) 282-6290



Oldenburg:* Soft Version of Picasso, *1968.



Simon Hantaï:* Tabule, *1980.



Mario Merz:* Igloo, *1968.

Georg Baselitz: The Girls from Olmo, 1981.

Morellet).

From this list of names, you might get the impression that the museum has resolutely turned its back on the gigantic marketing operation that surrounds "Neo-Expressionism," the "trans-avant-garde" or "bad painting." Not in the least: although we were mercifully spared Schnabel, Immendorff and Chia, "Choix pur aujourd'hui" did include works by Sigmar Polke, Michael Buthe, A.R. Penck and Georg Baselitz, not to mention the current French incarnation of this international phenomenon, Gérard Garouste. The inclusion of young sculptors like Tony Cragg, Jean-Luc Vilmouth, Peter Briggs and James Biederman displays a degree of originality (here they were seen in conjunction with more established artists like Ulrich Ruckreim, Giuseppe Penone and Giulio Paolini). There were also a number of "outsiders"—some young, some not so young—like Alan Charlton, Joel Fischer, Christian Boltanski, Barbara and Michael Leisgen, Markus Raetz, Gerhard Richter and Yves Reynier.

The question is not whether this selection is good or bad, but whether or not it was inevitable. I think it was. Today, market pressure is such that every museum of contemporary art in the Western world has the same collection, allowing for certain regional variations. Visit the museums in Germany, where there are so many (because the German cultural budget, unlike the French, is completely decentralized), and what do you find? In each and every one of them, the same Andre "rug," the same Penck graffiti, the same Long stone circle, the same Merz igloo. The pressure affects artists as well: if a museum of contemporary art somewhere in the world doesn't have its Andre rug or its Merz igloo, then the artist will have to produce one. (I suppose that Merz's current imitations of prehistorical paintings will have to wait until they are sufficiently "representative" of his production before they will find their way into museums in Grenoble or Leverkusen; in this regard, it is noteworthy that the Beaubourg didn't buy an Andre rug, but some logs.)

Curators everywhere appear to be intimidated by their museums' failures to buy crucial works of the earlier modern period, which condemn them today to spending fortunes to fill gaps in their collections. They play along, therefore, for who can afford to laugh at the market's unspoken motto, "Buy the van Goghs of tomorrow today"? I do not believe that this situation is going to change; nor do I blame any one person in particular. The collections of our contemporary art museums, in the era which marks the apogee of what Adorno called the culture industry, haven't the least chance of having a distinct character. I simply wish we would stop pretending that they could. ☐

---

1. Jeanne Laurent, Arts et pouvoirs, Université de Saint Etienne, collection "Travaux," 1982. The exact figure for the Braque was 2,820 francs. The Kahnweiler sales grossed only 909,000 francs—according to Laurent, less than the price the Louvre paid for a single Delacroix in 1921.
2. Preface to the exhibition catalogue Choix pour aujourd'hui, p. 4. Bozo reminds us that the Fonds National d'Art Contemporain, a longstanding government commission not affiliated in any way with the museum, does buy a large number of contemporary art works. Usually selected by a committee that seems totally out of touch with the art world, most of these works have never been exhibited publicly, although the museum can borrow those which stand out on its sea of mediocrity (a simple effect of the law of statistics).
3. Bernard Blistène, catalogue introduction, p. 6.

Author: Yve-Alain Bois will teach art history at Johns Hopkins in the fall.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
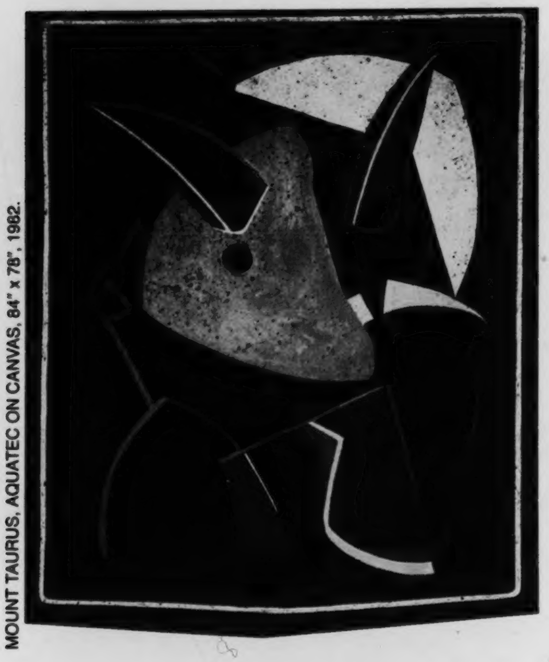
UMI



MOUNT TAURUS, AQUATEC ON CANVAS, 84" x 78", 1982.

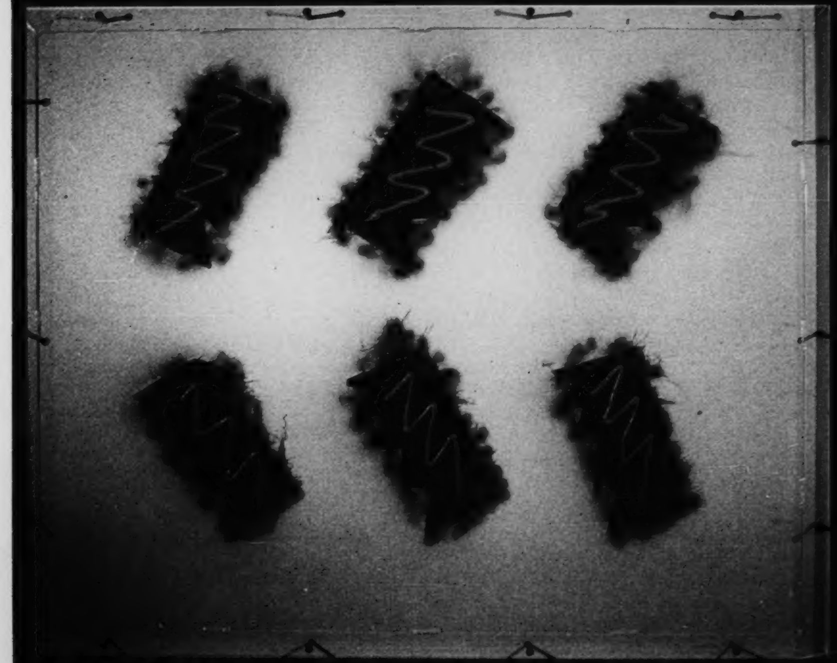
April 26–May 21

FRANÇOISE GILOT

Floating Pictures
Gouaches
Monotypes

Sutton
GALLERY • 29 WEST 57 STREET NYC 10019

·MARK GROTE·



SIZE 4' BY 5' .ALUMINUN, RUBBER, ENAMEL.

IMAGE SOUTH
GALLERY, LTD.
1931 PEACHTREE ROAD N.E.
ATLANTA, GA. 30309
(404) 351-3179

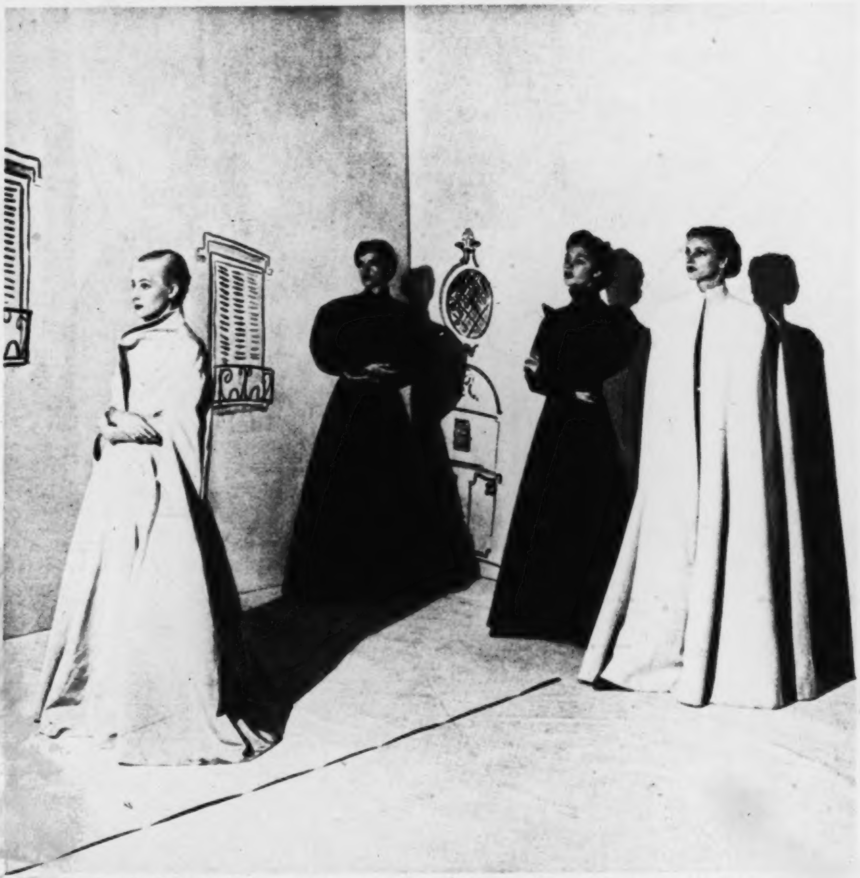
malton
gallery
(513)321-8614

Graphic Editions
FINE ART COLLECTION
[illegible] CHARTRES ST. NEW ORLEANS, LA [illegible]
[illegible]

Fashion Shapes by James

BY LAWRENCE CAMPBELL

Dressmaker to the famous and the wealthy, Charles James began designing sculpturelike clothes in the late '20s. A show of his expensive, extravagantly contoured gowns was recently mounted by the Brooklyn Museum.



Labeled "Poetic Mantles," these gowns were part of Charles James's first presentation to the trade in Paris, 1937. Backdrop by Christian Bérard; photo by Cecil Beaton for Vogue.

Although he did not work in clay, stone, wood, metal or with found objects, Charles James, the England-born enfant terrible of the international world of high fashion, was in a sense as much a sculptor as he was a couturier. The changes and adjustments he made to his garments, the exact measurements and mathematical calculations of his designs, were like those of a sculptor or even an engineer. And the famous women he dressed, usually the trendsetters of their time, viewed him with awe, admiration and affection—but sometimes also with fury, when he failed to meet a deadline, or indulged in one of his famous eccentricities.

James's prices were high, perhaps the highest in the business during the 1950s, yet he operated consistently at a loss. He really wasn't in the business for money. He reputedly spent three years and $20,000 just to perfect a straight sleeve. But the result was worth the time and money: the new sleeve, now one inch longer, permitted the wearer to move without dislocating the waistline, bunching the collar or splitting a gusset.

James thought that human figures were funny, and that there ought to be a thin wall of air between the body and the material of the garment: this was his key to endowing the wearer with a shape that was not her own. One of his early clients in England, Mary St. John Hutchinson, once said that James "was sometimes so entranced by the shape that when the dress arrived finished it was impossible to get into it. It existed on its own." In this way, the end product of a James design could be likened to a suit of armor in the Metropolitan Museum (which he often visited). And yet James insisted that in his designs "all seams have meaning—they emphasize something about the body."[1]

Elizabeth Ann Coleman, curator of costumes and textiles at the Brooklyn Museum, worked on "The Genius of Charles James" exhibition since James's death in 1978. She writes in the fascinating and informative catalogue published by the museum: "James worked like an engineer, planning and outlining in precise dimensions, often over wired, padded and structured forms he built himself, the shape his silhouette was to take, always relating the extremes of fantasy to functional design."

James worked with fabrics of all different colors and textures. These fabrics made asymmetrical and sometimes spiraling folds, falling into geometrical planes which caught the light and often had the stony, carved look of Gothic draperies. His sensitivity to and understanding of color was superior to most painters'. But most important of all was the overall contour of a James garment, which had to shift and yet retain its esthetic meaning as the figure turned. Each of his designs had a form or gestalt: James was fond of astonishing, ballooning shapes; he liked witty juxtapositions too, and used playful accessories—for example, a fan made out of feathers dyed an olive color and shaped like a bird in flight, designed originally for Mrs. Millicent Rogers in 1948.

But a dress, like most sculptures, determines its own space. When the wearer moves, this space moves along with it. Dresses are best understood sculpturally when the wearer is in motion. This was naturally not possible in an exhibition using static mannequins through which the viewer moved as in a dream.

James was entirely self-taught and had no art training at all. Planning a series of seminars called "The Calculus of Fashion," to be given at Cooper Union and at the

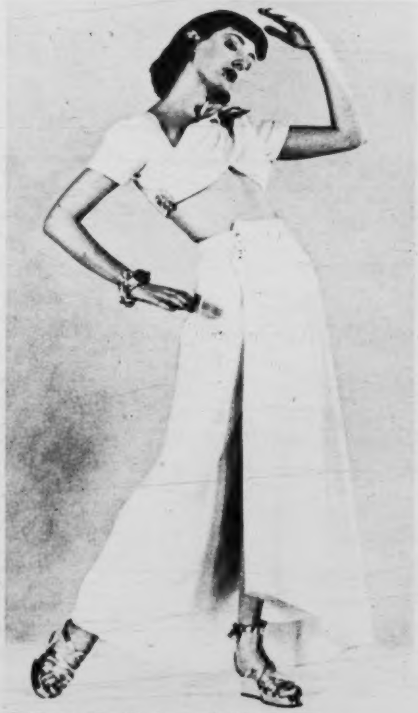
VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Charles James, photographed in 1929 by Cecil Beaton.

James's sketch for a quilted jacket; Dali referred to a 1937 version of the jacket as "the first soft sculpture."

Rhode Island School of Design (they never actually occurred), he said: "Original styling is the work of a few rare artists. Artists don't need schooling. They are the only ones who are hungry to know. But since most of what today is known as design is really adaptation, we are dealing mainly with artisans who make what another has originated. Without these artisans fashion couldn't operate as a mass production industry, and it is important to have thinking minds among them." Therefore, "The Calculus of Fashion" would not teach design, but only technique; it would, of course, also deal with the scientific aspects of design. The artisans would be trained to translate the ideas of artists—such as James—into mass-produced clothing.

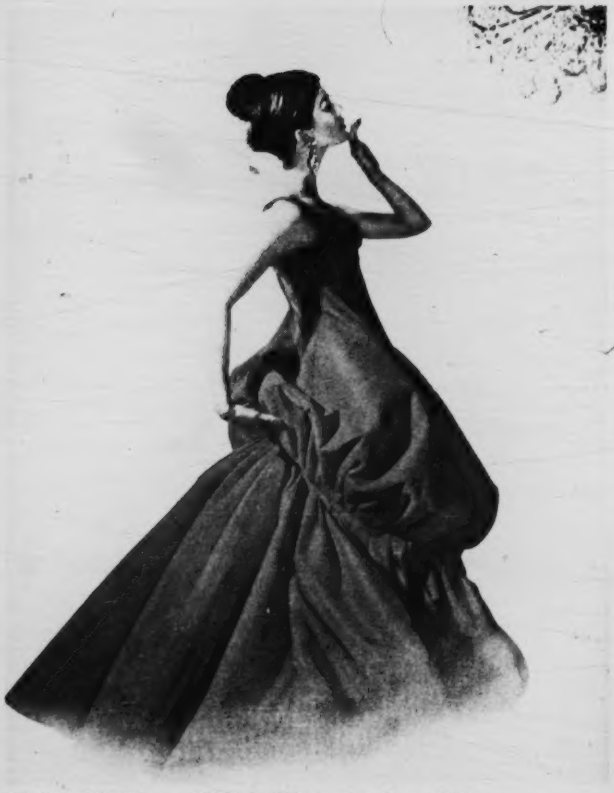
Among James's bêtes noires were the dress-design schools, which he accused of training their students only in the art of stealing the designs of others. He also thought that art training was irrelevant for most artists (although he admitted an affection for the Art Students League where students are in control of the pace and quality of their training). Only for non-artists, James thought, is art training of any real value, for it could provide "a solid basis for live minds to enter almost any field where quick calculations [rather] than commercial profits [are] concerned." To James, such training would especially benefit the men who controlled the garment business, for it would equip them to better appreciate artists like himself.



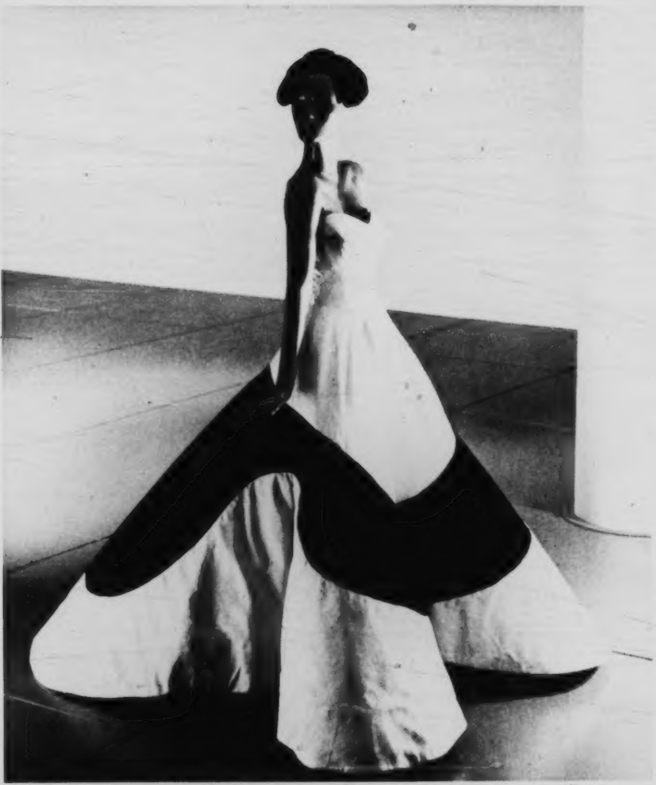
Dinner suit with figure-8 skirt, 1939, designed initially for Diana Vreeland and the fashion Group Show. Photo Munkacsi, Harper's Bazaar.

In the end, James's work existed largely outside fashion—except as fashion was generated by his own designs. The only designs that he seems to have lingered over, at least as far as one can tell from this exhibition, were those of rather remote periods—such as the Victorian and the late Edwardian (the latter of which he could remember from his childhood). This relative disregard for fashion might be explained in part by the fact that James approached design structurally. He believed that couture work could be achieved with a master pattern (which he compared to the chassis in the automobile industry) or a basic module from which many adaptations and variations could be derived. He explained—always the teacher—that "an endless diversity of designs is possible from the combination and permutation of its parts; design is built from listed parts that have been successful in other garments . . . . A knowledge of how to combine master patterns is essential in the translation of a sketch to a finished garment."

Charles James's output spanned more than half a century. He dressed such luminaries as Proust's Maria, Duchess of Gramont, and Diaghilev's prima ballerina Karsavina. He knew those magnificent ladies Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago and Mrs.

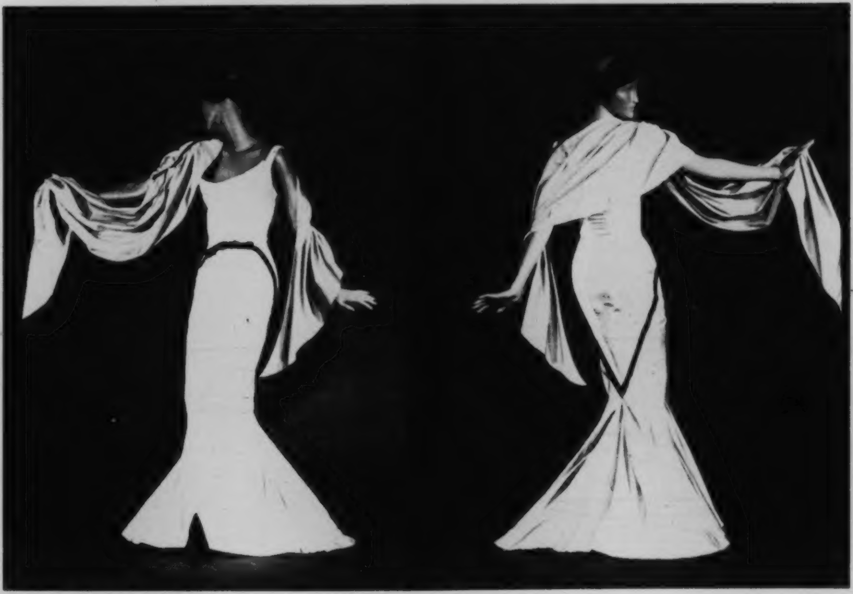


"Balloon" ball gown, 1955. A 1956 version in royal-blue silk velvet was made for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr.



Worn by Mrs. Hearst to the Eisenhower Inaugural Ball in 1953, this design was considered by James to be his best evening dress.

Jack Gardner of Boston. Indeed, he dressed many of the famous names of the America of his time. But the best of his client relationships was with Millicent Rogers, whose understanding of James as an artist culminated in 1949 in her large donation to the Brooklyn Museum of original James garments, copies, half-muslin models and paper patterns. Thus, at the age of 37 James could see his work—as art—where it properly belonged—in an art museum. As his great competitor Balenciaga said: "Charles James is not only the greatest American couturier, but the world's best and only dressmaker who has raised it from an applied art form to a pure art form." ☐



James's hourglass-shaped "Diamond" dress, 1955.

---

1. Quotations from Charles James come from a collection of newspaper clippings, correspondence and photographs now in the possession of the author.

"The Genius of Charles James" was seen at the Brooklyn Museum Oct. 16, 1982–Feb. 13, '83; it is now at the Chicago Art Institute until Sept. 18. A book of the same title, with essays by Elizabeth Ann Coleman and others, was issued in conjunction with the show (Holt, Rinehart and Winston/Brooklyn Museum, 1982; 172 pp.; $25/ $15.95).

Author: Lawrence Campbell is a writer, painter and professor of art at Brooklyn College. He worked with Charles James as a chronicler of a special design project in the '60s.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
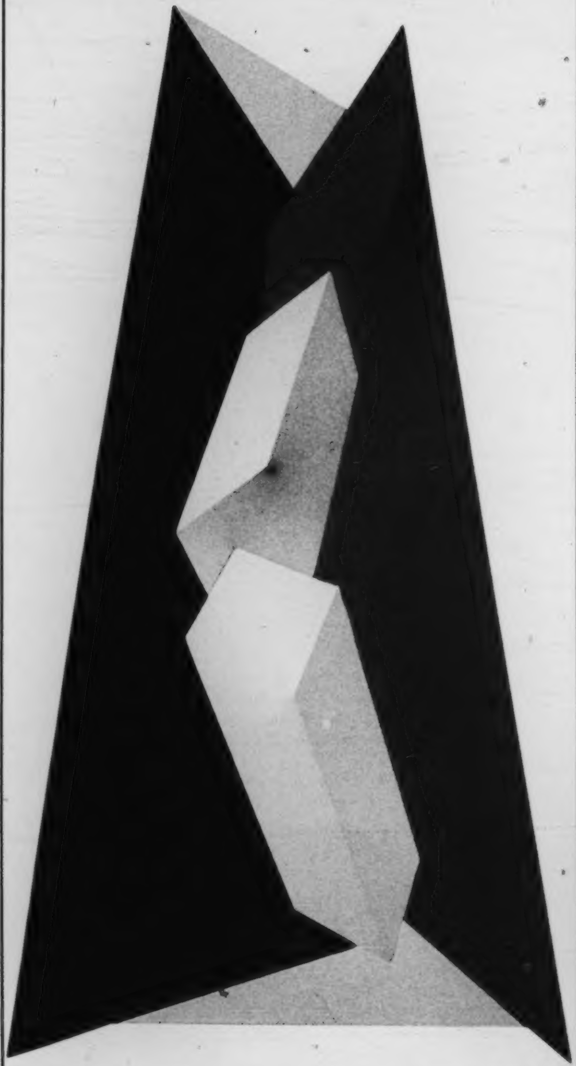
UMI



CHARLES HINMAN

ASCENDING, 1983 76" x 40" x 6"

EXHIBITION
May 5-28

Galleri Bellman

19th and 20th Century Paintings and Graphics
41 East 57th Street, fifth floor, New York, New York 10022
(212) 486-7944
Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

Monday, May 23, 1983 7:30 p.m.

19th and 20th Century Photographs

Irving Penn Harlequin Dress
Andre Kertesz Melancholic Tulip
Man Ray Portrait of Tristan Tzara

Including works by Adams, Atget, Avedon, Bernhard, Brassai, Bullock, Burns, Callahan, Caponigro, Cartier-Bresson, Evans, Frank, Kertesz, Kriz, Lerner, Man Ray, Penn, Siskind, Smith, Steichen, Sudek, Weegee, Weston, and many others.

Exhibition open May 14-23, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Catalogue: $5.00   Subscriptions: $25.00

225 West Ohio Street Chicago 60610
Telephone (312) 670-0010 or dial AUCTION

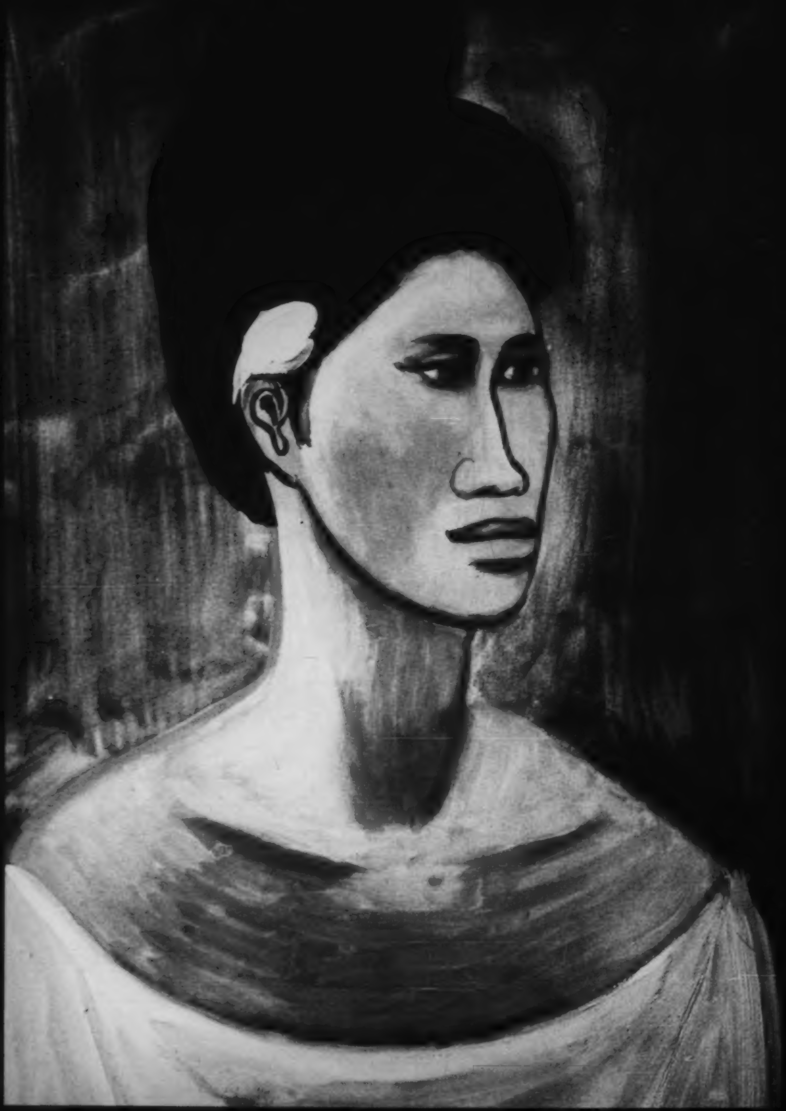
LESLIE HINDMAN AUCTIONEERS

THE NEW SCULPTURE

MAC ADAMS
JOHN AHEARN
LOREN CALAWAY
R.M. FISCHER
PETER GOURFAIN
BARRY LEDOUX
JOHN NEWMAN
TOM OTTERNESS
JUDITH SHEA
KATHLEEN THOMAS
JOHN TORREANO

HAMILTON
20 WEST 57TH ST. NY, NY 10019 (212) 765-5915

Pierre Heyman



TAHITIAN WOMAN
SERIGRAPH 30"x21"
EDITION 250

PUBLISHED BY THEODORE RAMSAY DESIGN

THEODORE RAMSAY DESIGN • ONE LINCOLN PLAZA NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK 10023 (212) 877-4413

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY

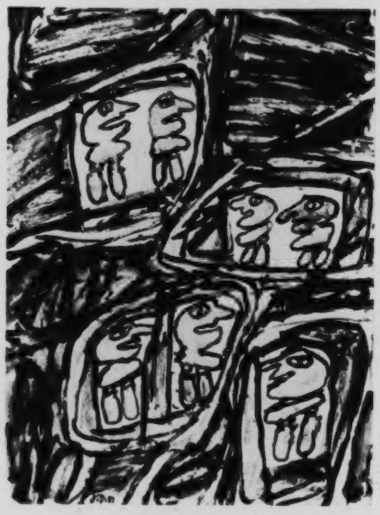
1983

UMI

Alan Wood is currently working on "Ranch"—a 320 acre three-dimensional painting set in the natural landscape of the Rocky Mountain Ranch near Calgary, Alberta.

Information: Sam Houston, 165 Water Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada V6B 1A7 Telephone: (604) 687-2629

Jean Dubuffet Paintings 7 May · 1 June



Site avec 7 personnages, 1981

BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY

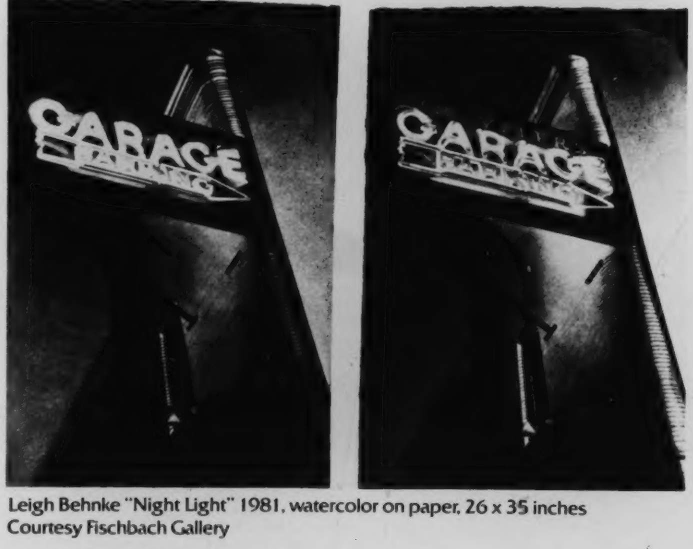
10 Newbury Street
5th Floor

Boston,
Massachusetts 02116

Telephone
617 262 4490

IN HONOR OF THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE

An Invitational Exhibition of New York City Landscapes
May 11 – June 3



Leigh Behnke "Night Light" 1981, watercolor on paper, 26 x 35 inches
Courtesy Fischbach Gallery

ADELE ALSOP
LEIGH BEHNKE
ROBERT BERLIND
ROBERT BIRMELIN
JOHN BUTTON
ARTHUR COHEN
CHRISTOPHER JONES
YVONNE JACQUETTE
DAVID KAPP
BASIL KING
DANIEL LANG
CHARLES MOSER
DARRAGH PARK
STEPHEN READ
BILL SULLIVAN

DAVID FINDLAY JR

CONTEMPORARY 41 East 57 Street New York 10022 212-486-7660

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

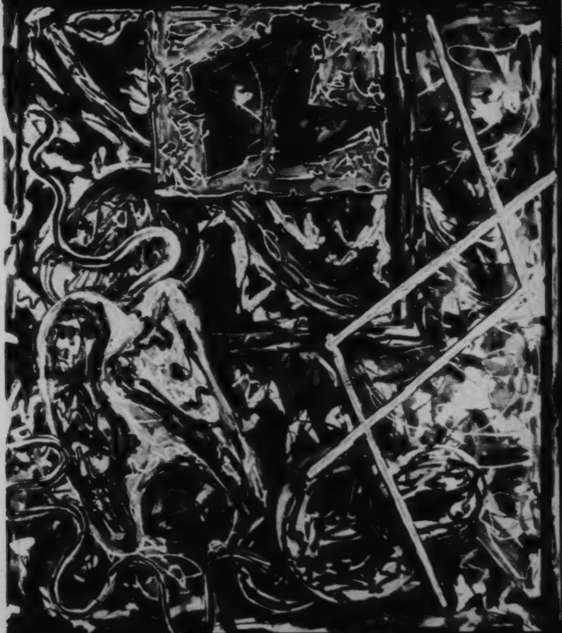
JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY

Elmer Bischoff
APRIL

Friedel Dzubas
MAY

228 Grant Avenue, San Francisco 94108 (415) 781-4629

FRANK STELLA



SHARDS I, 1982
mixed media aluminum 136½ X 118"

SHAINDY FENTON
PROUDLY ANNOUNCES HER PARTNERSHIP WITH IRENA HOCHMAN

CALDER
DINE
FRANKENTHALER
HOCKNEY
JOHNS
KELLY
LICHTENSTEIN
MOTHERWELL
NOGUCHI
OLDENBURG
RAUSCHENBERG
WARHOL

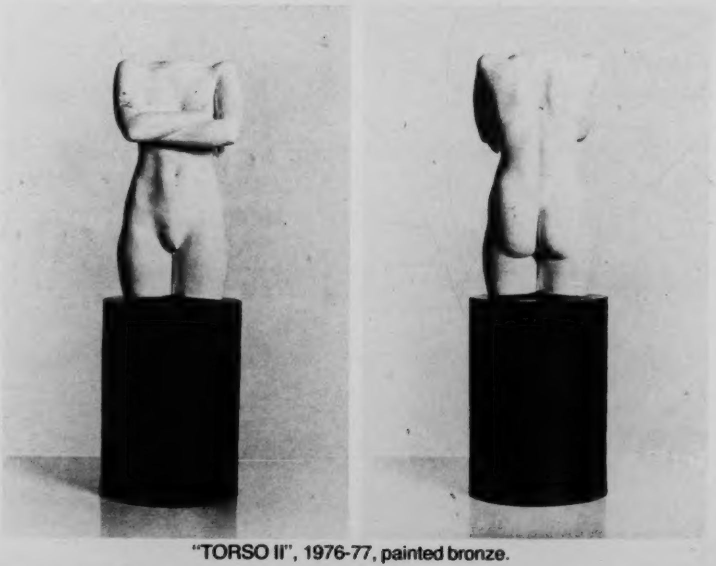
1420 SHADY OAKS LANE, FORT WORTH, TEXAS 76107
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY
(817) 429-0161

SANDRO CHIA

STEDELIJK MUSEUM, AMSTERDAM
8 April–29 May 1983

SPERONE WESTWATER
142 Greene Street New York 212/431.3685

ROBERT GRAHAM



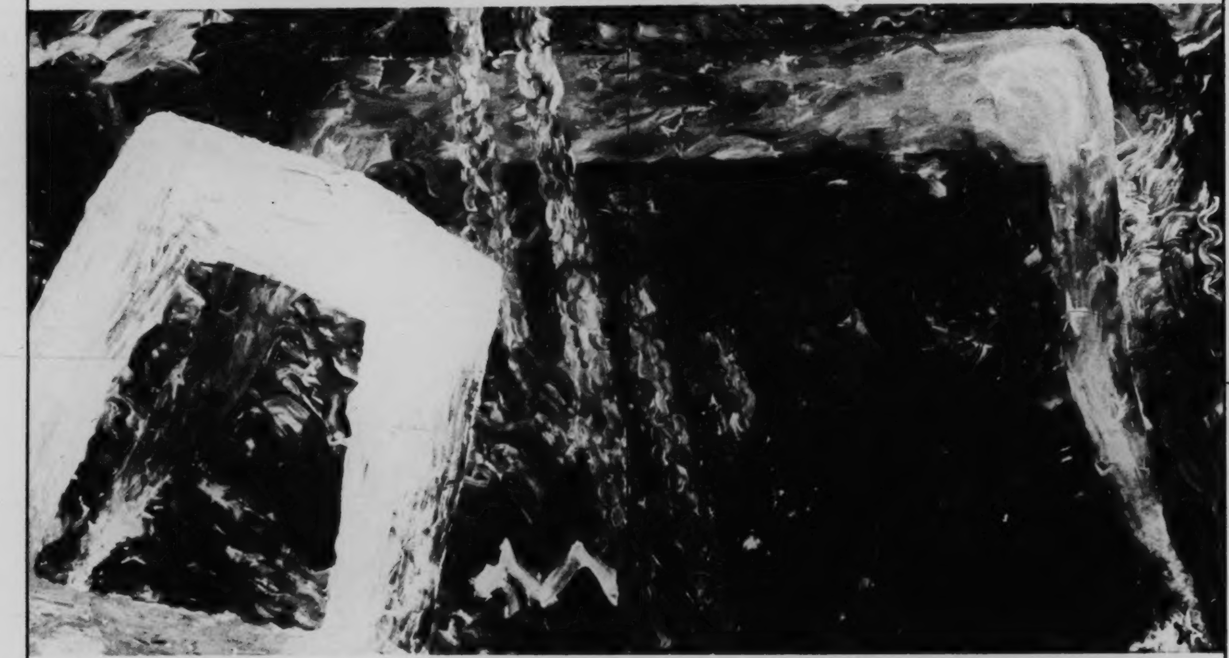
"TORSO II", 1976-77, painted bronze.

DOROTHY ROSENTHAL GALLERY

233 EAST ONTARIO STREET CHICAGO 60611

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

CAROL HAERER / RECENT PAINTINGS / MAY
"EGYPTIAN IMPRINTS"



OSCARSSON HOOD GALLERY 41 W 57, NYC 10019 (212) 750-8640

TULIP TIME

Curated by Janice C. Oresman

Mary Anderson Armstrong
Steven Barbash
Genevieve Baucheron
Nancy Becker
Jack Beal
Carolyn Brady
Warren Brandt
Susan Bush
Janet Fish
William Flynn
Mary Frank Sondra Freckelton
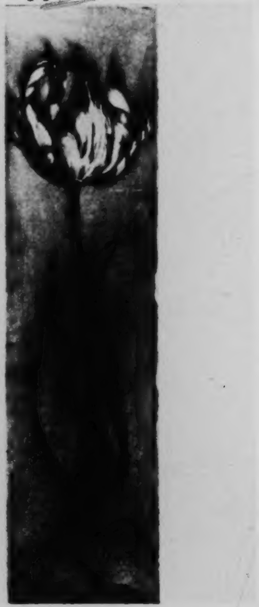
William Garbe
Joseph Goldyne
Dean Hartung
Walter Hatke
David Hockney
Roger Howrigan
John Stuart Ingle
David Kelley
Robert Kulicke
Ellen Lanyon
Tomar Levine



Joseph Goldyne. "Tulip," drypoint and monotype on Rives.

Turi MacCombie
Louisa Matthiasdottir
Michael Mazur
Antonia Munroe
Enid Munroe
Olivia Munroe
Anne Neely
Don Nice
Elizabeth Osborne
Miklos Pogany
Curtis Ripley
Ben Schonzeit
Harriet Shorr
Pat Steir
Robert Straight
Sally Mara Sturman
Billy Sullivan
Jim Sullivan
Jim Touchton
Helen Miranda Wilson
Paul Wonner
Kazuhide Yamazaki
Charles W. Yeiser

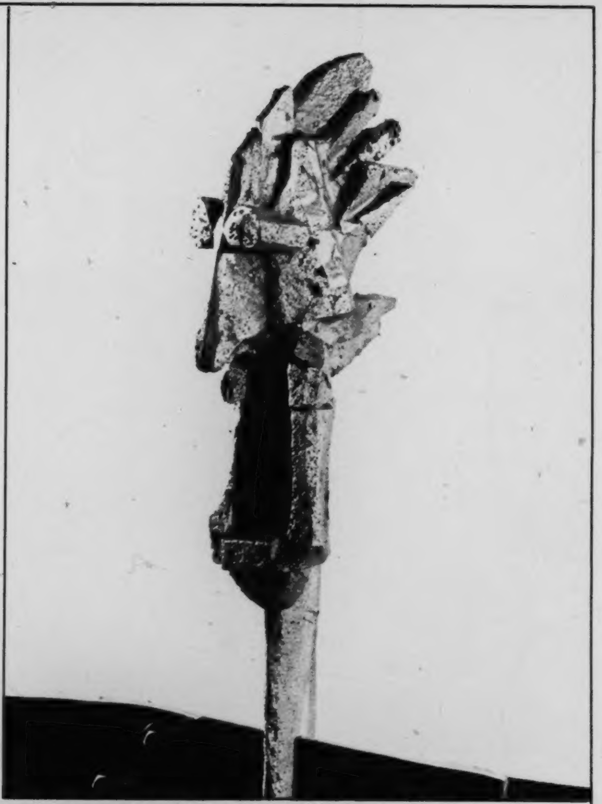
IMPRESSIONS GALLERY

275 Dartmouth, Boston MA 02116 (617) 262-0783
In New York, by appointment Victoria Munroe (212) 410 9179

WILLIAM KING

"ECSTASY"
RECENT SCULPTURE
APRIL 30–MAY 27, 1983

TERRY DINTENFASS 50 W 57 STREET
NEW YORK CITY 581-2268



Detail: SOLO 1983 CAST AND SHEET ALUMINUM 11' H

Photo: Bill Jacobson

Graham Nickson

RECENT PAINTINGS

23 April-18 May

HIRSCHL & ADLER Modern

851 Madison Avenue New York, New York 10021 212 744-6700

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

HAMAGUCHI
THE MASTER OF MEZZOTINT

"Five Cherries with Blue Bowl" mezzotint 1976 10 7/8" x 12 5/8"

Retrospective Exhibition
115 Works

New York City
April 14 - July 10

San Francisco
July 24 - Nov. 14

Vorpal
Gallery

Open Seven Days

465 West Broadway
New York
(212) 777-3939

393 Grove Street
San Francisco
(415) 397-9200

ALLAN RUBIN

MAY 3-31, 1983

SUELLEN HABER
GALLERY
133 GREENE STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10012
(212) 505-7800

68 x 68 LONG ISLAND CITY

Art in France

THE ARTISTS • VALERIO ADAMI • JEAN MICHEL ALBEROLA • ARP • KATE BLAKER CHRISTIAN BOLTANSKI • ROBERT COMBAS • PABLO GARGALLO • ALEXANDRE GHERBAN GILLES GHEZ • JEAN HELION • ALAIN JACQUET • ANDRE MASSON • JEAN-CLAUDE MEYNARD • JOAN MIRO EDVARD MUNCH • CHANA ORLOFF • BERNARD PAGES • PRESENCE PANCHOUNETTE • ANN & PATRICK POIRIER PATRICK RAYNAUD • KAREL ROSEL • GEORGES ROUSSE • ANTONIO SAURA • PATRICK SAYTOUR • BRUNO SCHMELZ PIERRE SOULAGES • DIDIER VERMEIREN • JEAN LUC VILMOUTH • BILL WOODROW

THE GALLERIES • GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL • GALERIE FARIDEH CADOT • CASTELLI GRAPHICS GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE • CHANTAL CROUSEL • GALERIE ERIC FABRE • MUSEE FABRE GALERIE KARL FLINKER • GALERIE DE FRANCE • GALERIE MARWAN HOSS • GALERIE LAHUMIERE • YVON LAMBERT GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES • BAUDOIN LEBON • GALERIA MAEGHT • GALERIE ADRIEN MAEGHT GALERIE MAEGHT, S. A. • MAEGHT EDITEUR • 1900-2000 • DENISE RENE • SONNABEND GALERIE STADLER • DANIEL TEMPLON • GALERIE VALLOIS

A Special Advertising Supplement Published In Conjunction With

Art in America

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
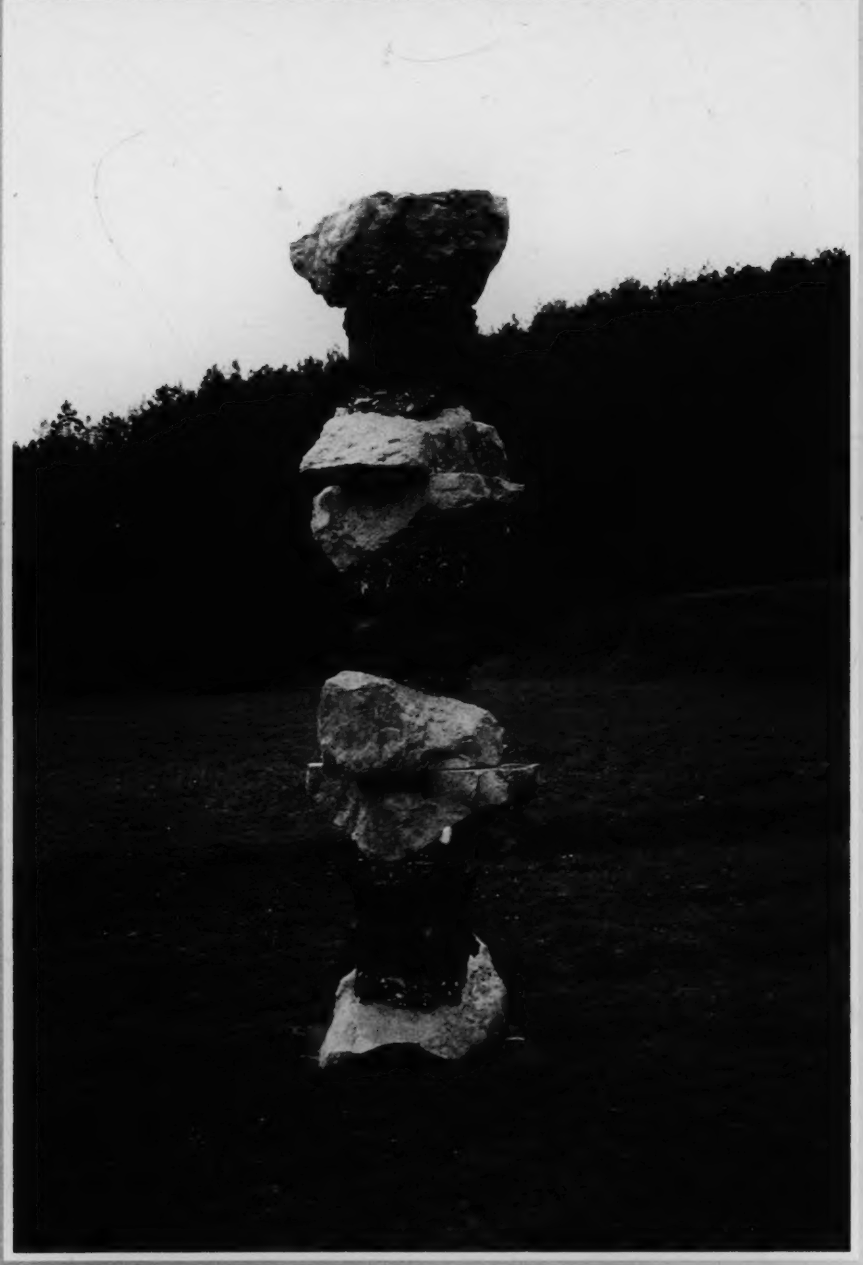
UMI



BERNARD PAGES

"Column." 1983. Mixed media: bricks, wood, cement, stone. Size: 9' x 3'3" x 3'
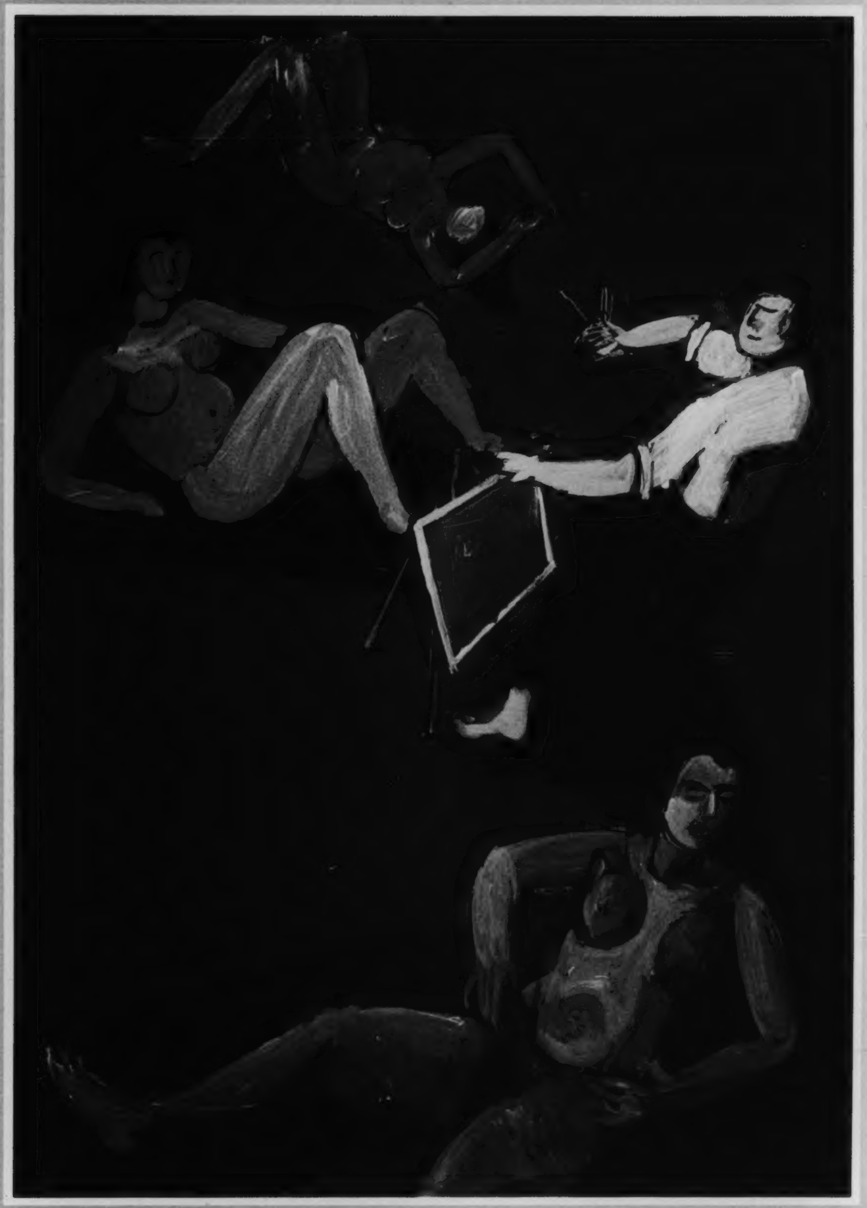
Exhibited at the Chicago Art Fair 1983

BAUDOIN LEBON
36, RUE DES ARCHIVES, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 272 09 10



JEAN HELION

"La Relève." 200 x 145 cm. Acrylic on canvas.

GALERIE KARL FLINKER

25, RUE DE TOURNON, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 325 18 73

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
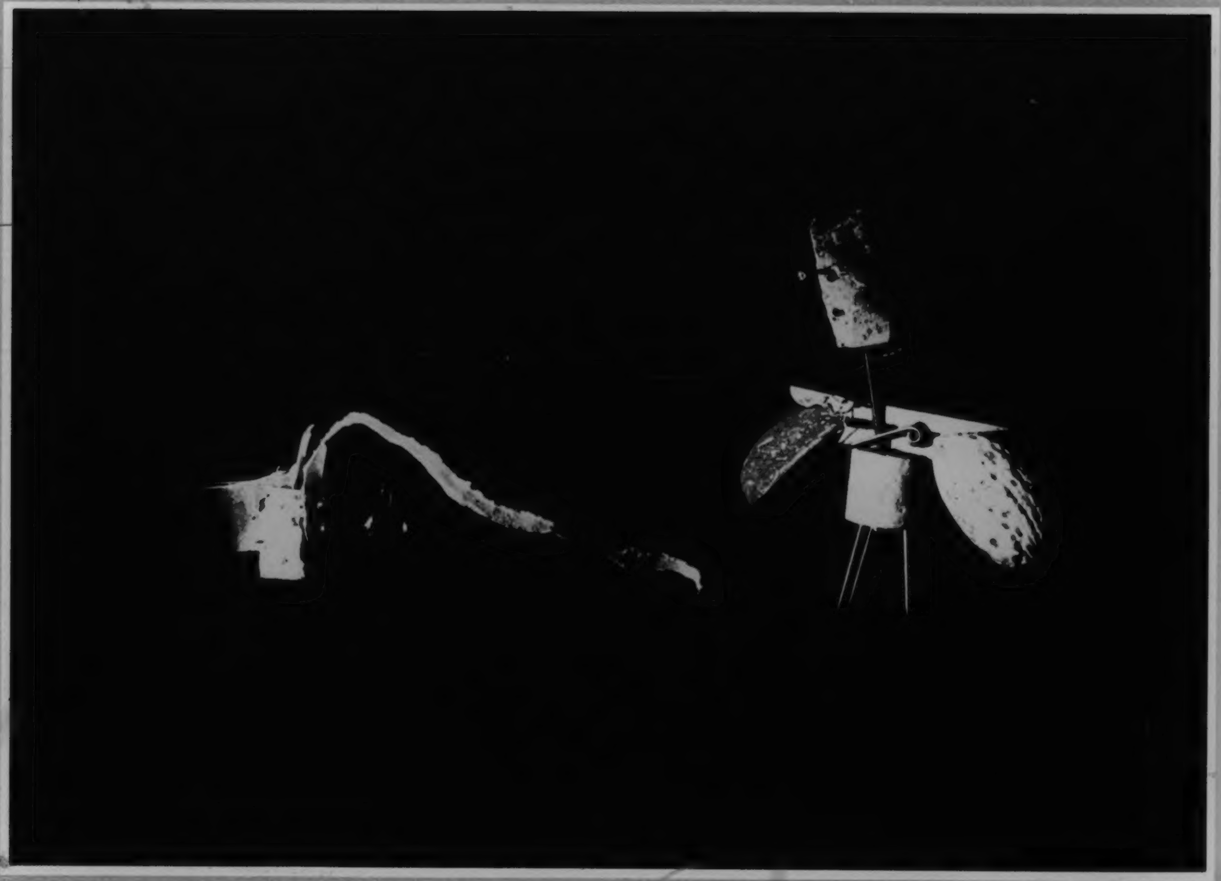
UMI



CHRISTIAN BOLTANSKI

"Composition Grotesque." 1981. Color photograph. 43¼" x 76".

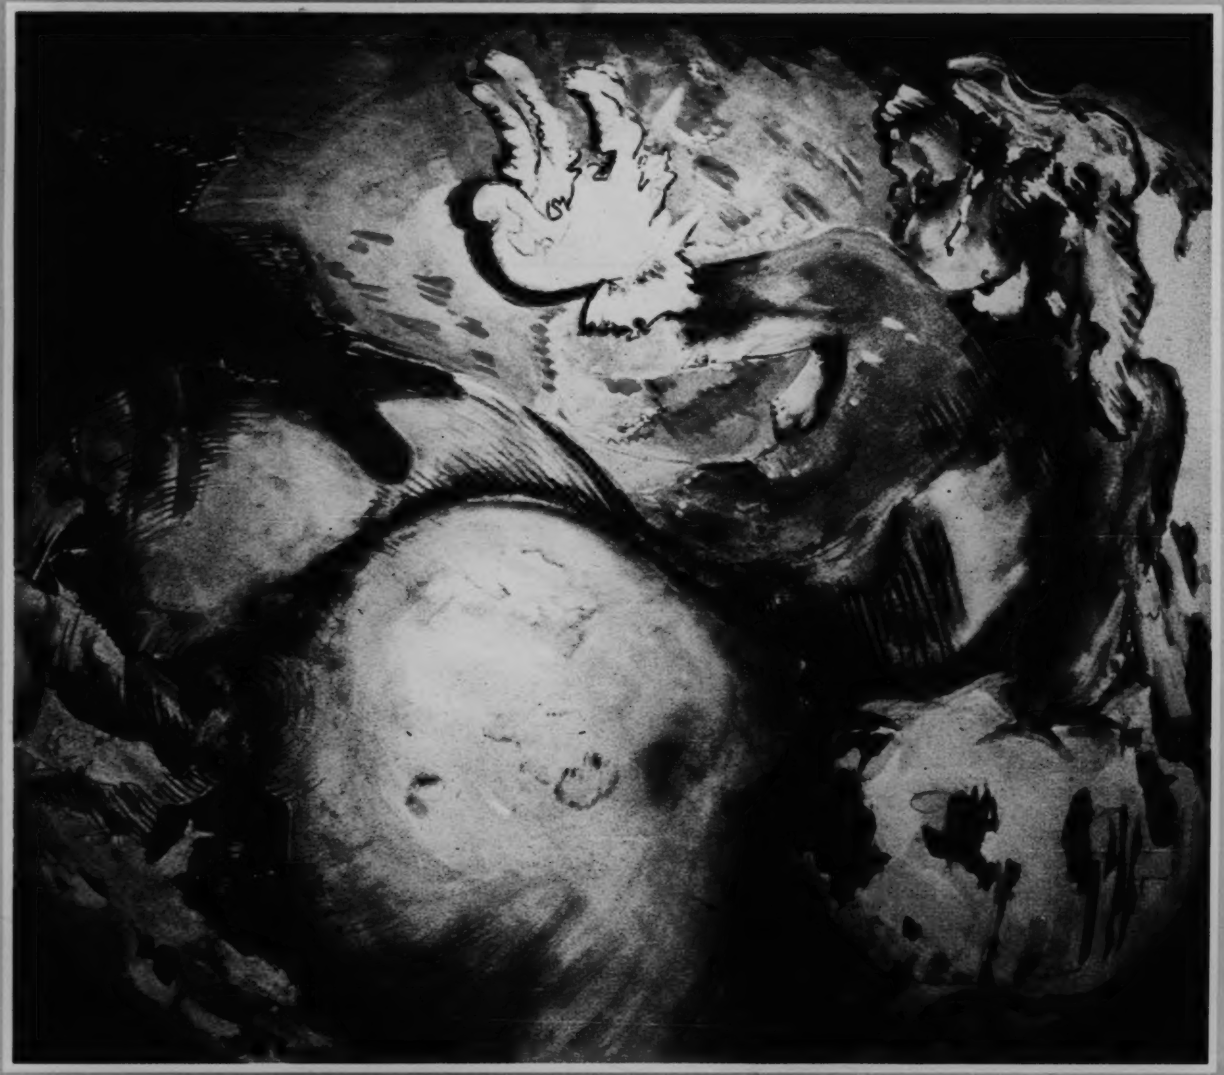
CHANTAL CROUSEL
80, RUE QUINCAMPOIX, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 887 60 81

SONNABEND
420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 10012. TEL: 966-6160



ALAIN JACQUET

"Truth coming out of the well." 1981. Study on paper. 42¼" x 49½".

GALERIE DE FRANCE

52, RUE DE LA VERRERIE, 75044 PARIS. TEL: 274 38 00

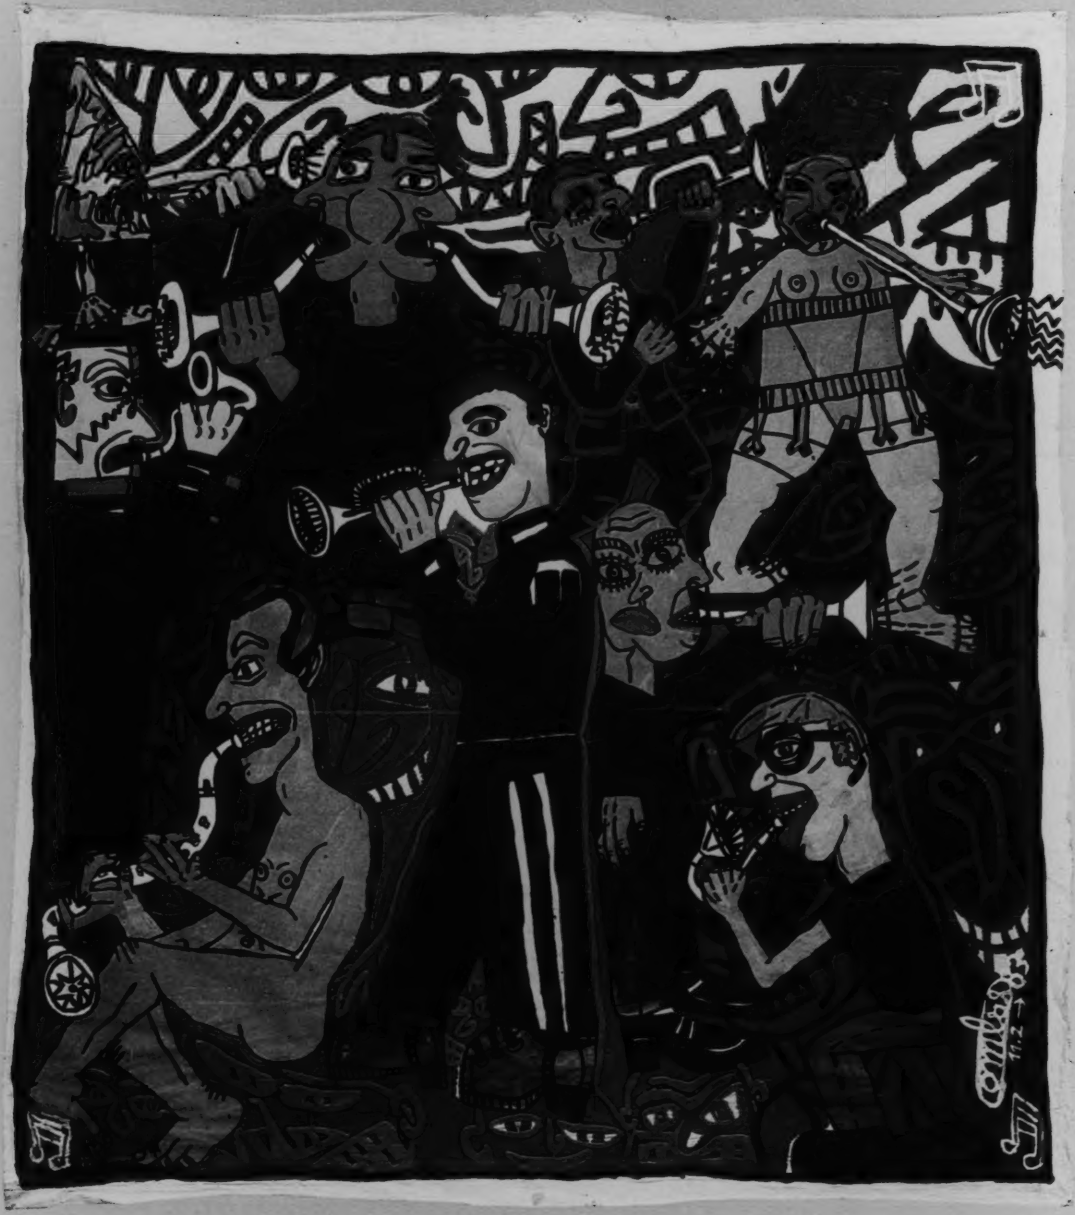
VOL
71

ISS
5

MY

1983

UMI



ROBERT COMBAS

"Les Trompettes," 1983. Acrylic on canvas, 92½" X 82½"

YVON LAMBERT

5, RUE DE GRENIER ST. LAZARE, 75003 PARIS. TEL: 271 09 33

CASTELLI GRAPHICS

4 EAST 77TH STREET, NEW YORK 10021. TEL: 288-3202

Photo: François Walch

PIERRE SOULAGES

"Peinture, 102 cm. × 130 cm. 17 Décembre 1981"

GALERIE DE FRANCE

52, RUE DE LA VERRERIE, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 274 38 00

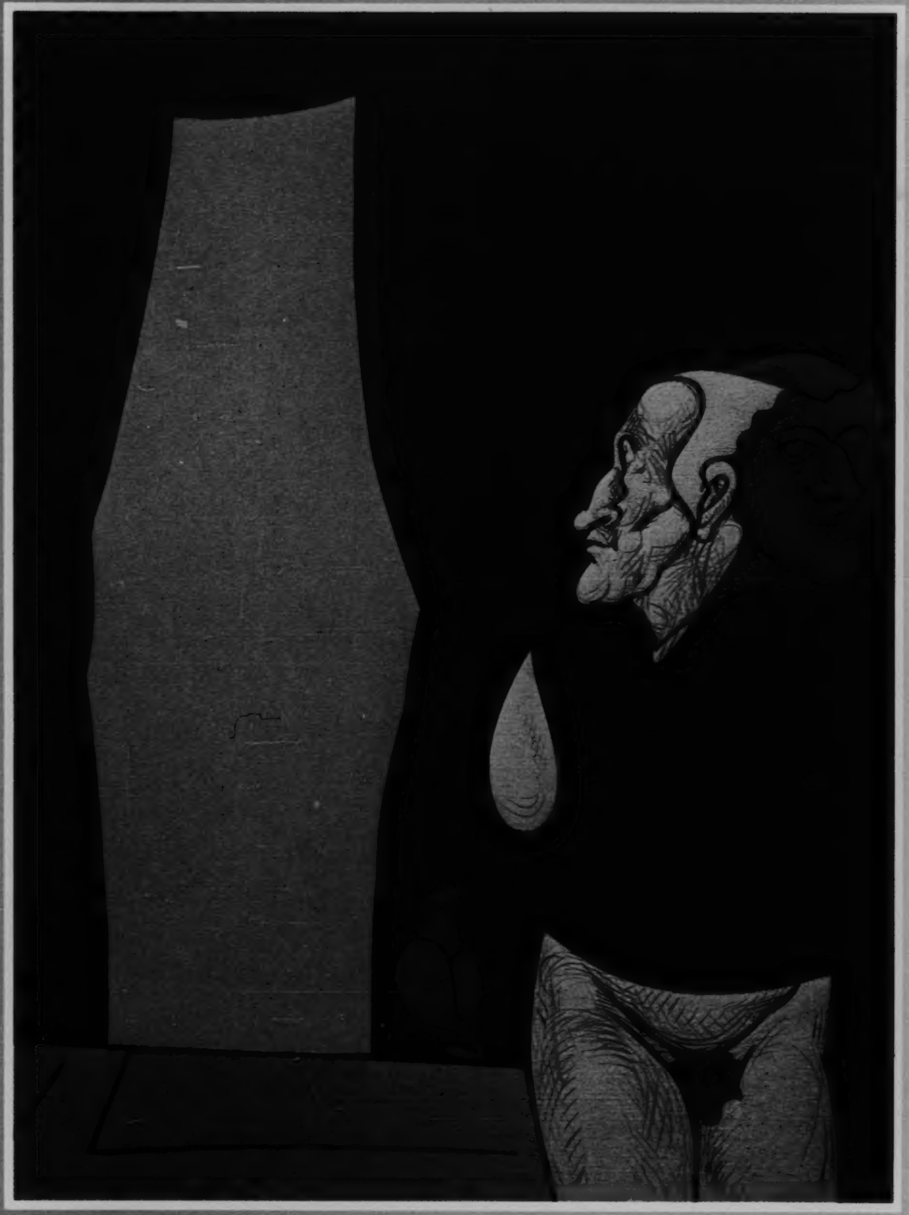
VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY

1983

UMI



VALERIO ADAMI

Recent Paintings May 26 through July 13
Illustrated: "Teatro/Uomo e Donna." 1982. Acrylic on canvas. 59½ x 44⅞ in. 151 x 114 cm.

GALERIE MAEGHT, S.A.
13, RUE DE TEHERAN, 75008 PARIS. TEL: 563 13 19

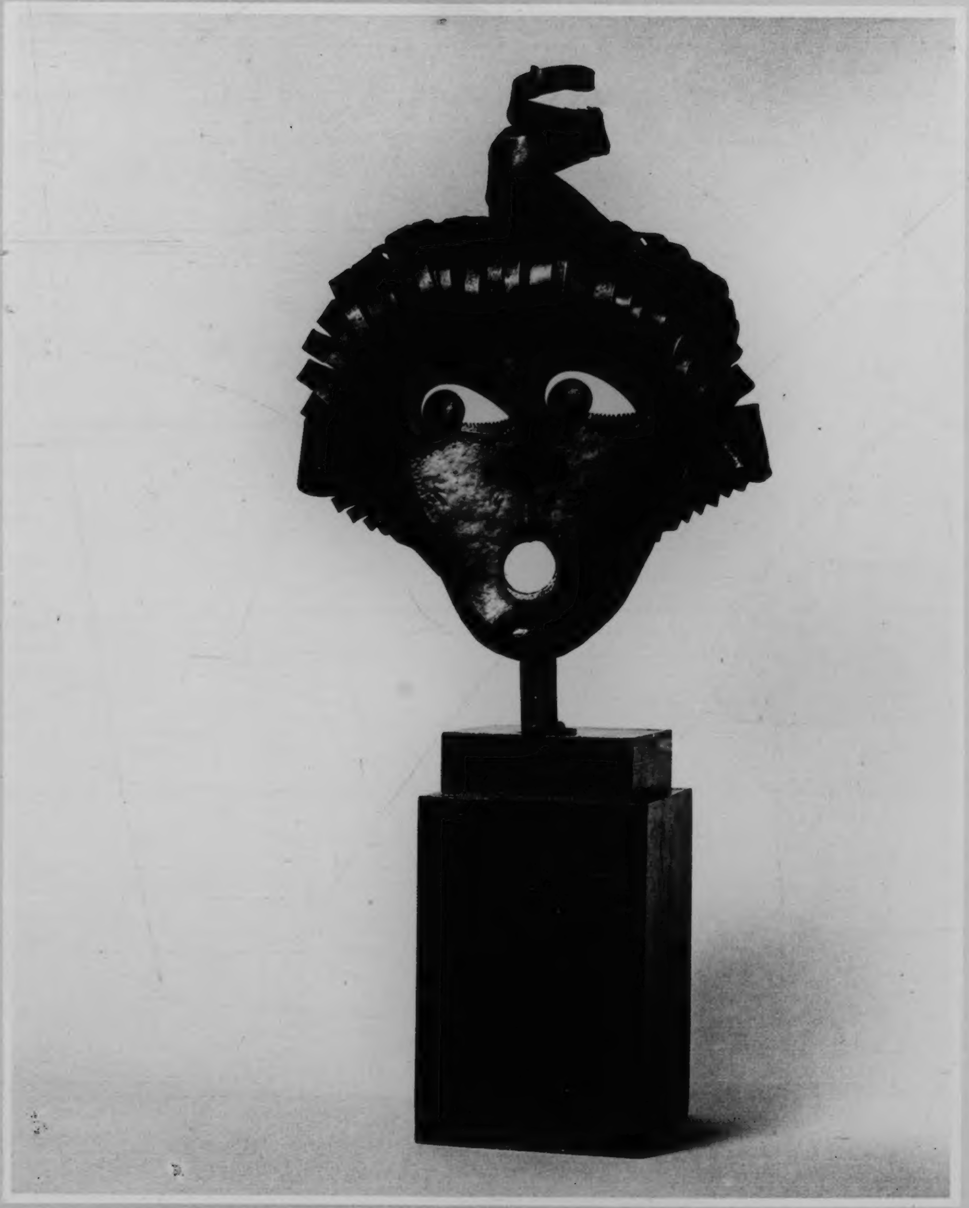


Photo: photo dumage

PABLO GARGALLO

One-Man Show May 17th through June 24th
Illustrated: "Chanteuse de cour." 1915. Copper. 38 x 24 x 10 cm.
For the catalogue raisonné, Pierrette Gargallo Anguerra, daughter of the artist, would welcome any information from collectors who own sculptures by her father.

GALERIE MARWAN HOSS

14, RUE D'ALGER, 75001 PARIS. TEL: 296 39 45

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
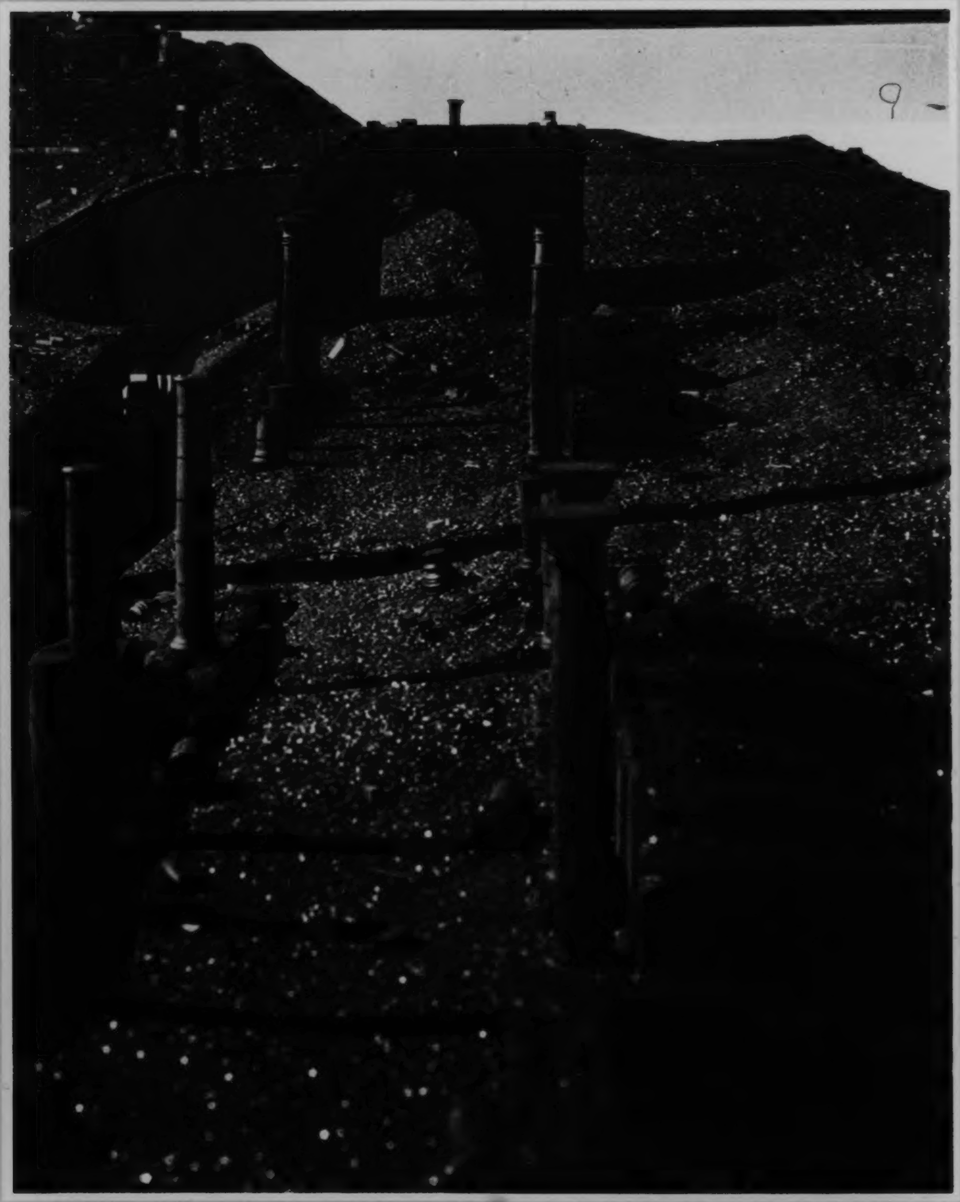
UMI

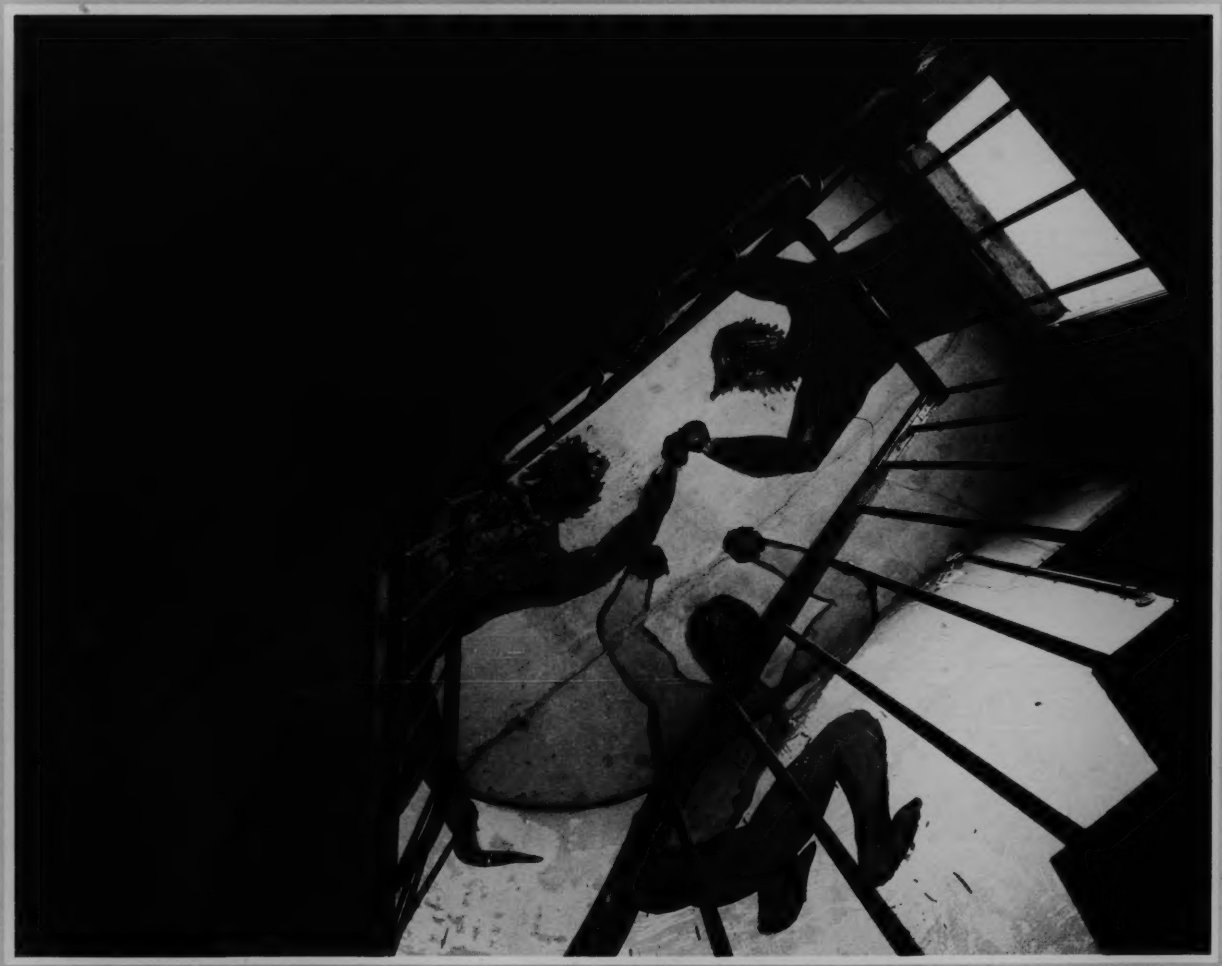


ANN & PATRICK POIRIER

Archeological Landscape (detail of work in progress). 1983. Construction coal and charcoal. 12 m. x 6 m.

DANIEL TEMPLON
30, RUE BEAUBOURG, 75003 PARIS. TEL 272 14 10

SONNABEND
420 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK 10012. TEL: 966-6160



GEORGES ROUSSE

''Sans titre.'' 1983. Photocouleur Kodakchrome. 127 x 156 cm.

GALERIE FARIDEH CADOT

77, RUE DES ARCHIVES, 75003 PARIS. TEL: 278 08 36

VOL 7 1
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

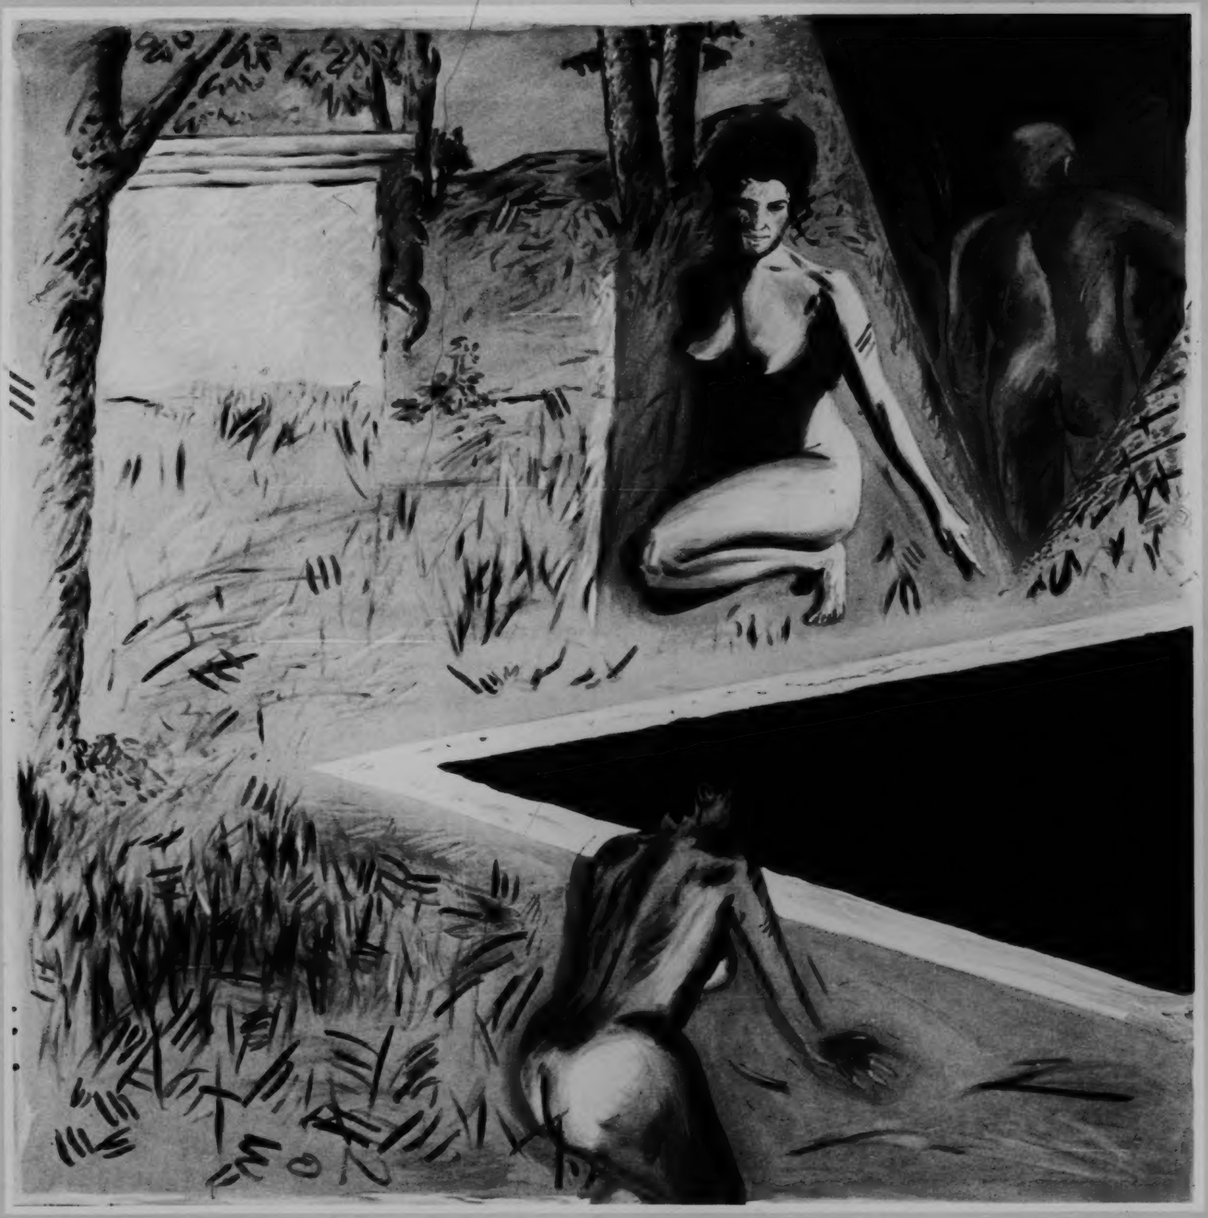

Photo: André Morain

JEAN MICHEL ALBEROLA

"L'Afrique de Suzanne," 1982. Oil on canvas. 200 x 200 cm.
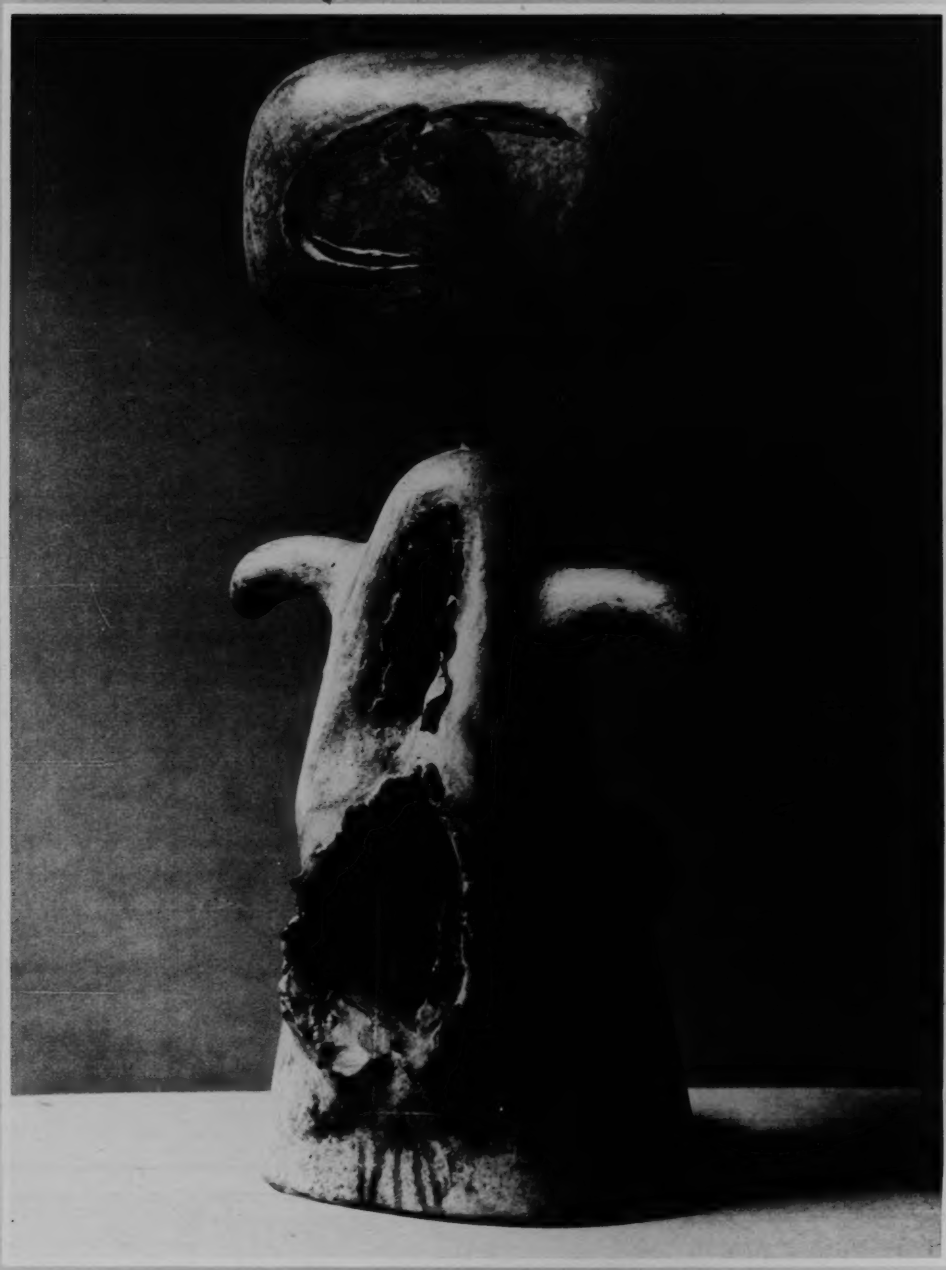
Private collection, Lugano

DANIEL TEMPLON

30, RUE BEAUBOURG, 75003 PARIS. TEL: 272 14 10



JOAN MIRO

"Femme." 1982. Bronze. 61 x 30 x 20 cm.
Recent works: Sculptures and Gouaches. 27 April through May.

GALERIE ADRIEN MAEGHT
46, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL: 222 12 59

MAEGHT EDITEUR
42, RUE DE BAC, 75007 PARIS. TEL: 548 45 15

GALERIA MAEGHT
CALLE MONTCADA 25, BARCELONA 3. TEL: 310 42 45

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
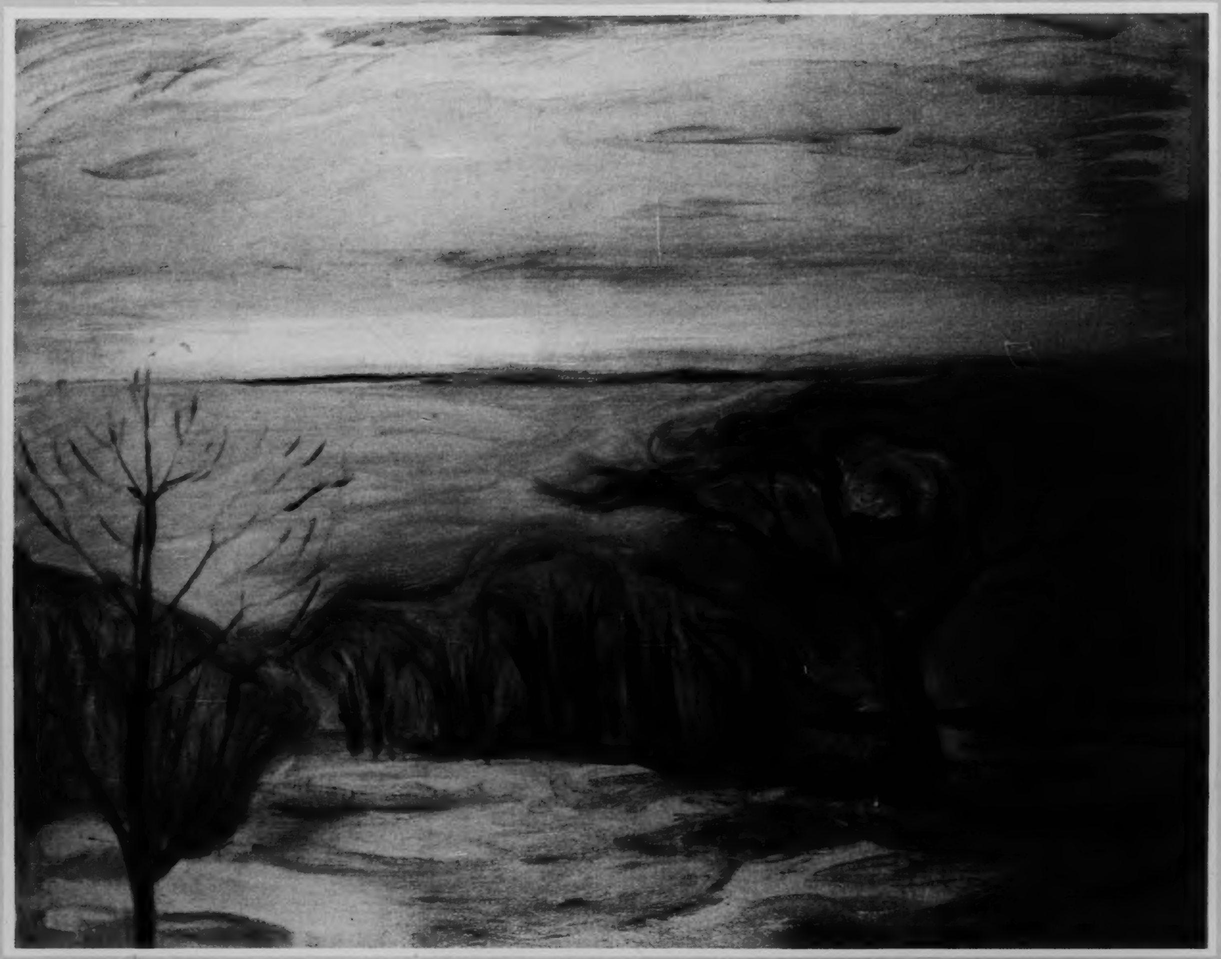
UMI



EDVARD MUNCH

Landscape, 1905, oil on canvas, 78.5 x 99.5 cm. 30⅞ x 39¼ in.
Provenance: Nielse Onstad, Oslo, private collection.
Exhibited: 1959, Vienna, Akademie der bildende Kunste Edvard Munch, no. 52

1900-2000

MARCEL FLEISS 8, RUE BONAPARTE, 75006 PARIS. TEL. 325 84 20

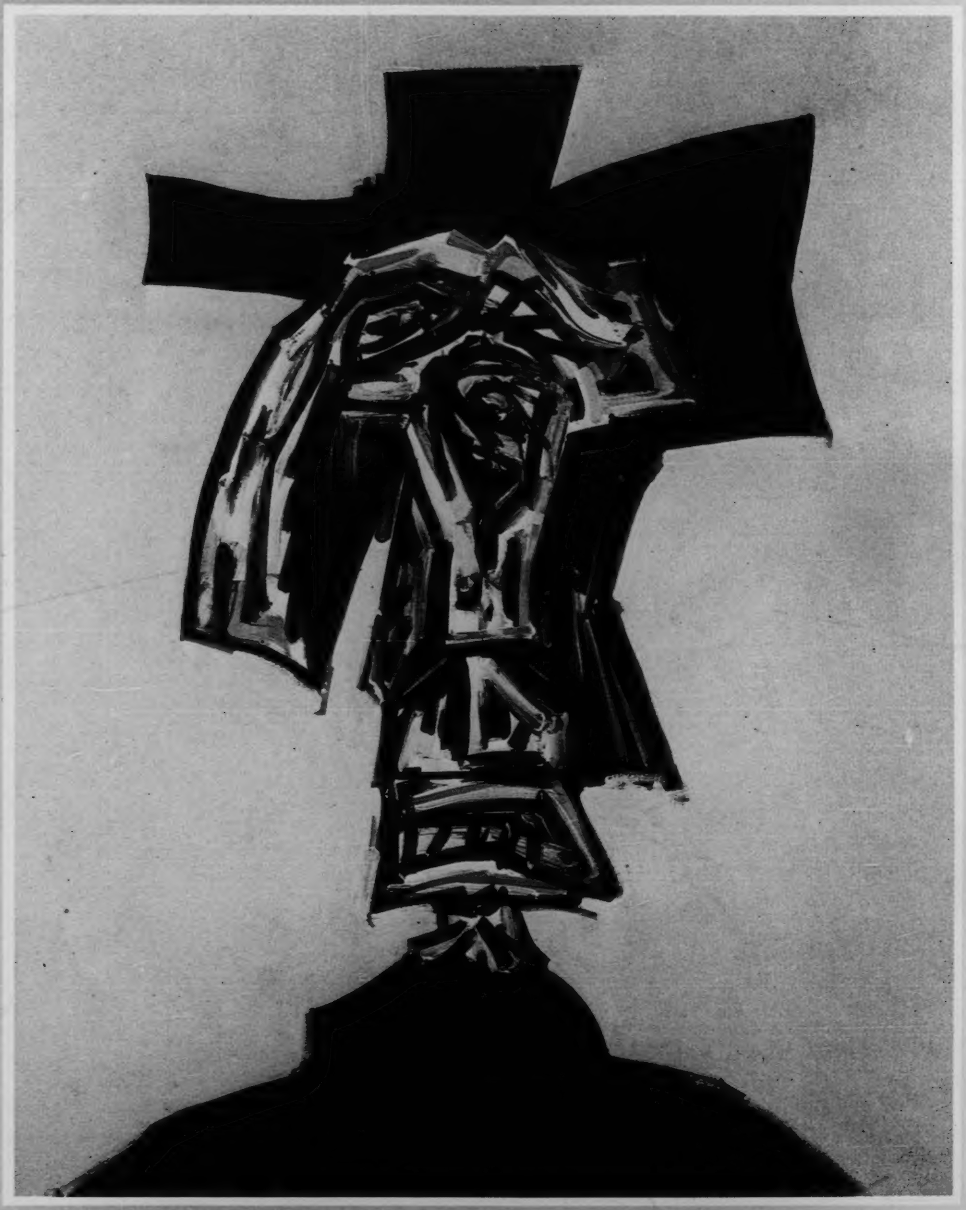

Photo: photo dumage

ANTONIO SAURA

June 2 though July 9
Illustrated: "DORA MAAR REVISADA." 1983. 162 x 130 cm. Oil on canvas.
Collection Museé Picasso, Antibes

GALERIE STADLER

51, RUE DE SEINE, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 326 91 10

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY

1983

UMI

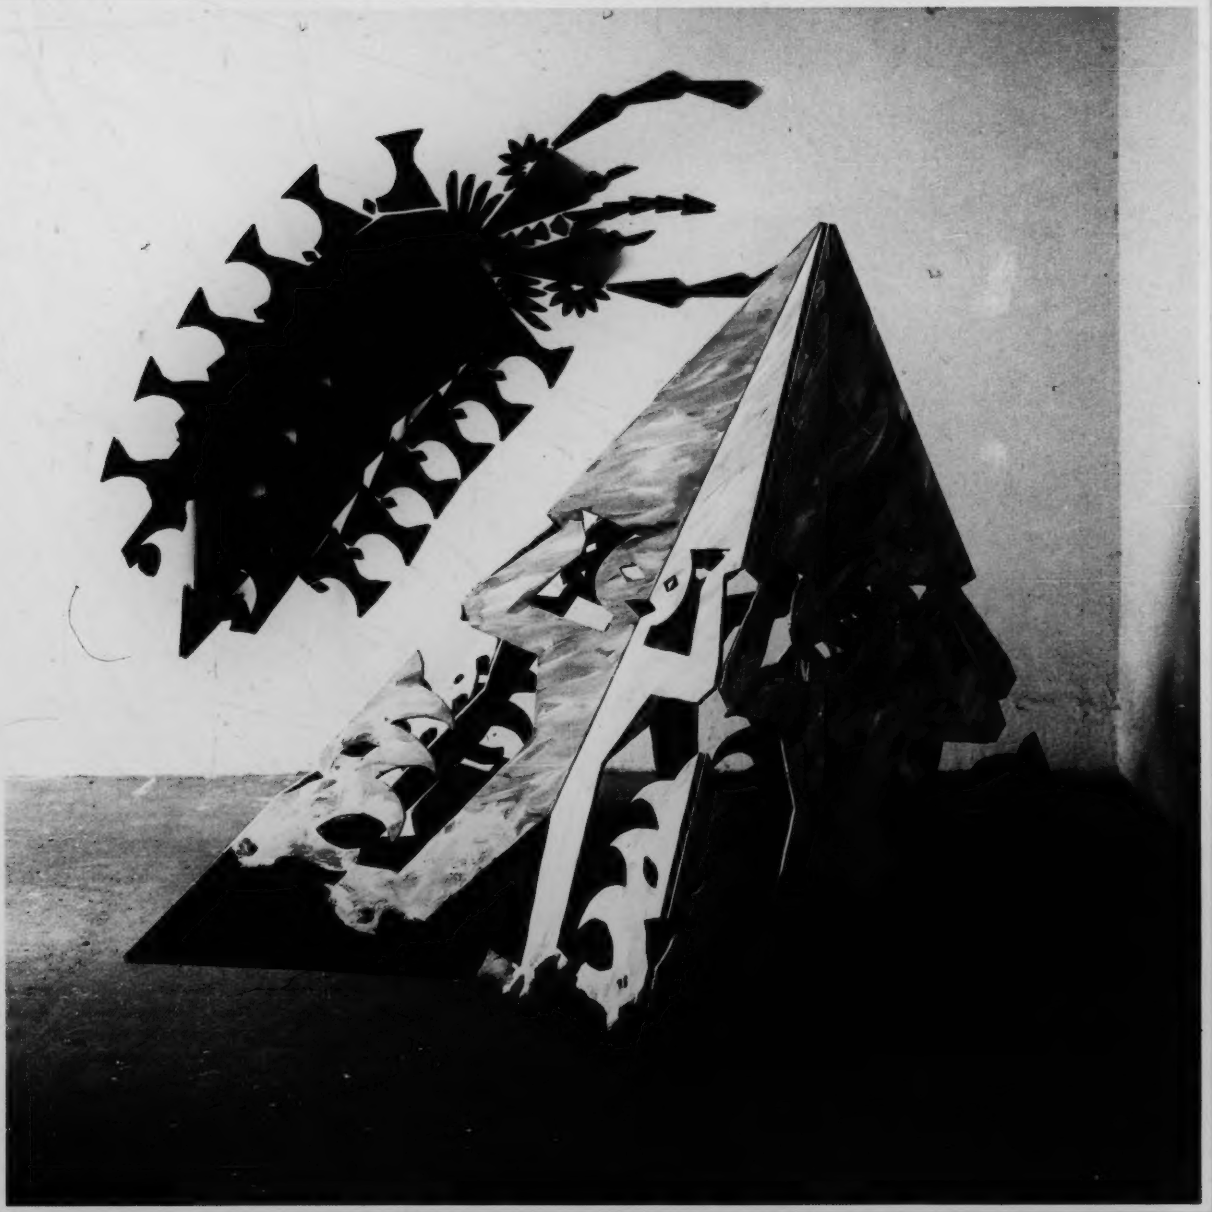

Photo: André Morain

PATRICK RAYNAUD

Sculpture, 1983, acrylic on wood, approx. 2 m.
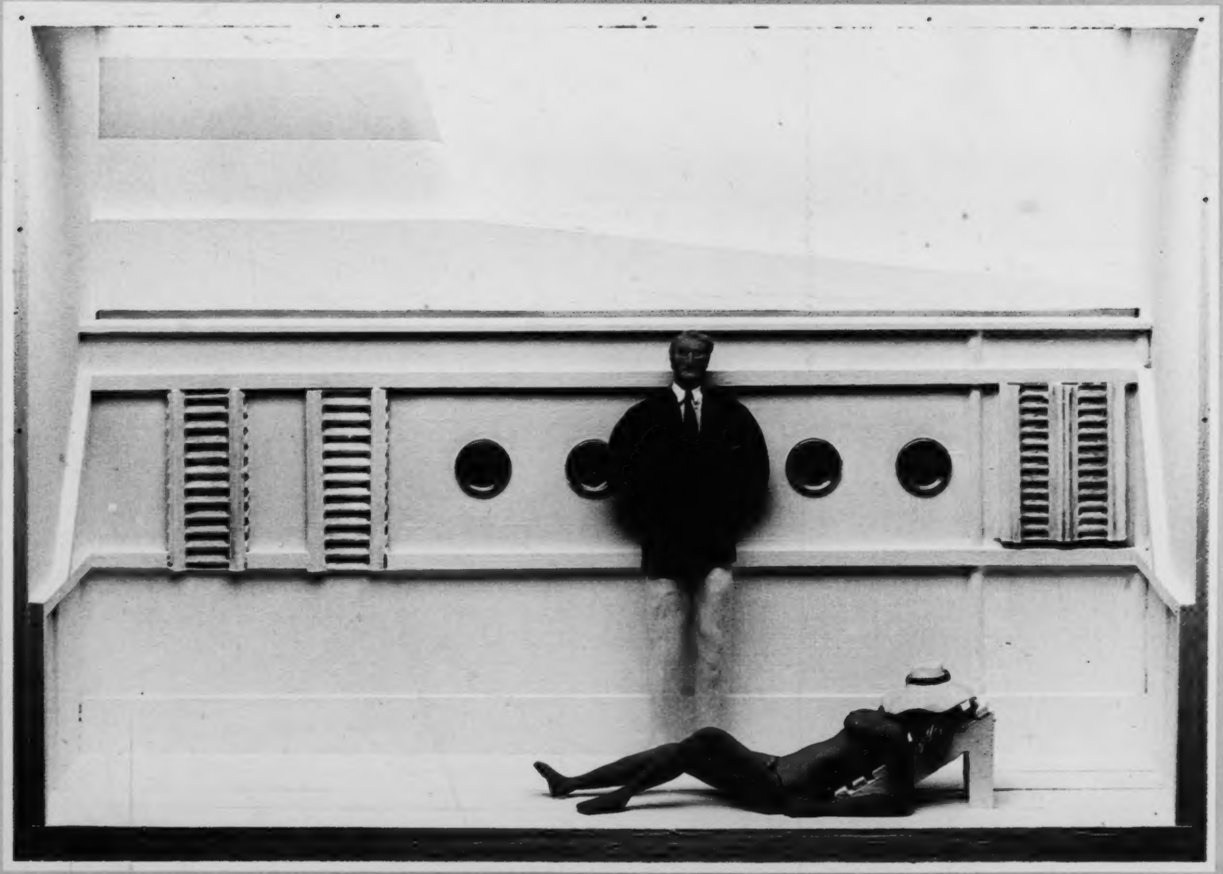
Exhibition June, July, August with detailed catalogue on Raynaud.
Published by Editions Jacques Damase.

MUSEE FABRE
MUSEE DES BEAUX ARTS, MONTPELLIER



GILLES GHEZ

"Royal Yacht." 1982. 70 x 50 x 26 cm.

GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE

14, RUE GUENEGAUD, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 354 57 67

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

1

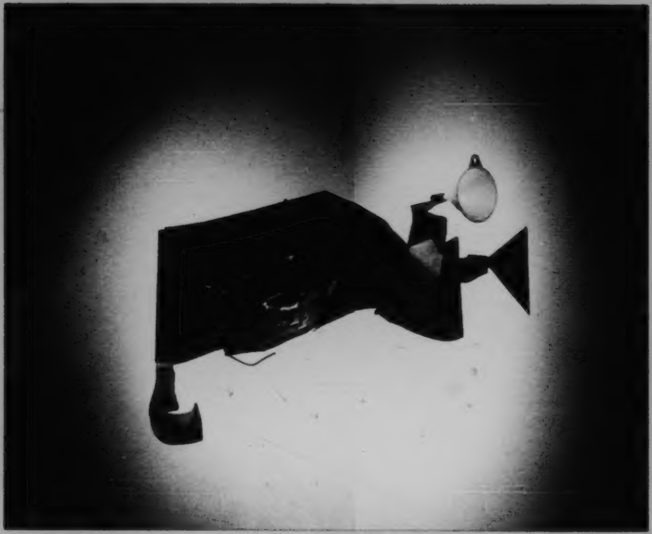
8

6

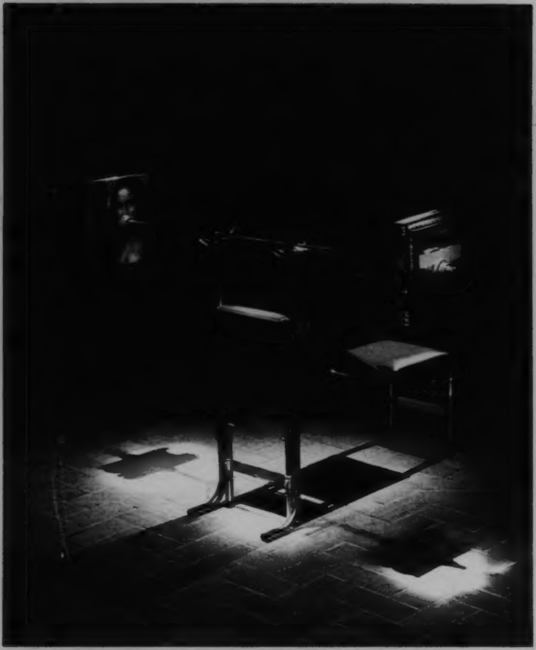
2

Vol de Nuit

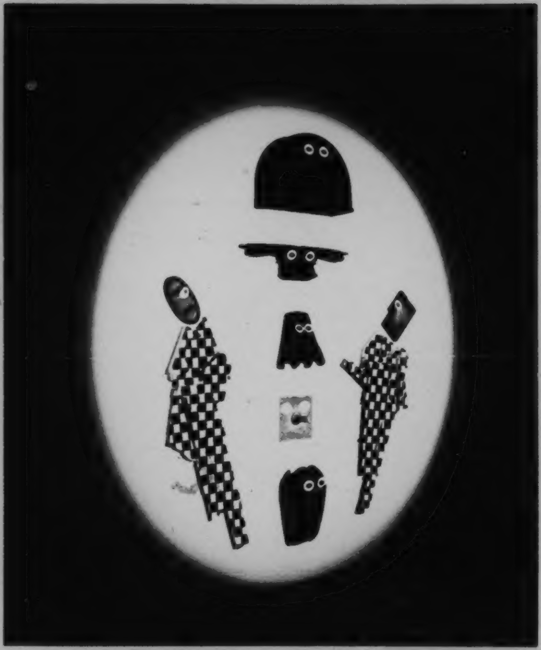
The catalogue is now available



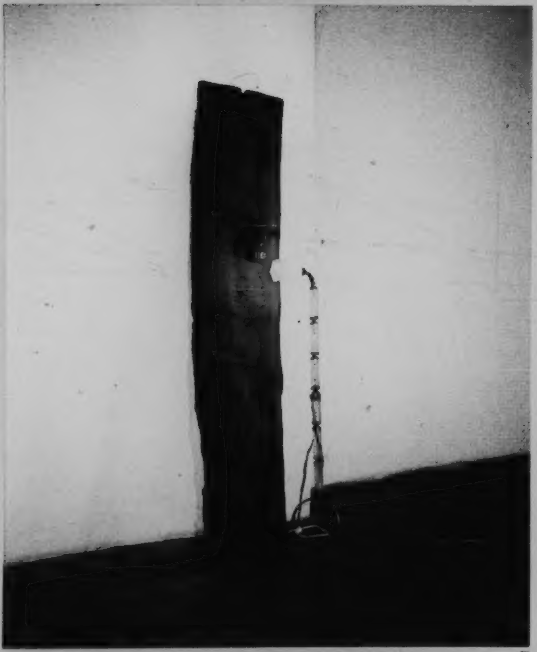
4



3



7



5

---

1) KATE BLAKER 2) ALEXANDRE CHERBAN 3) PRESENCE PANCHOUNETTE 4) KAREL RÖSEL
5) PATRICK SAYTOUR 6) DIDIER VERMEIREN 7) JEAN LUC VILMOUTH 8) BILL WOODROW

GALERIE ERIC FABRE

6, RUE DU PONT DE LODI, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 325 42 63

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

ANDRE MASSON

Color and Form of the America Period. Drawings, pastels, etchings. 1924-1975.
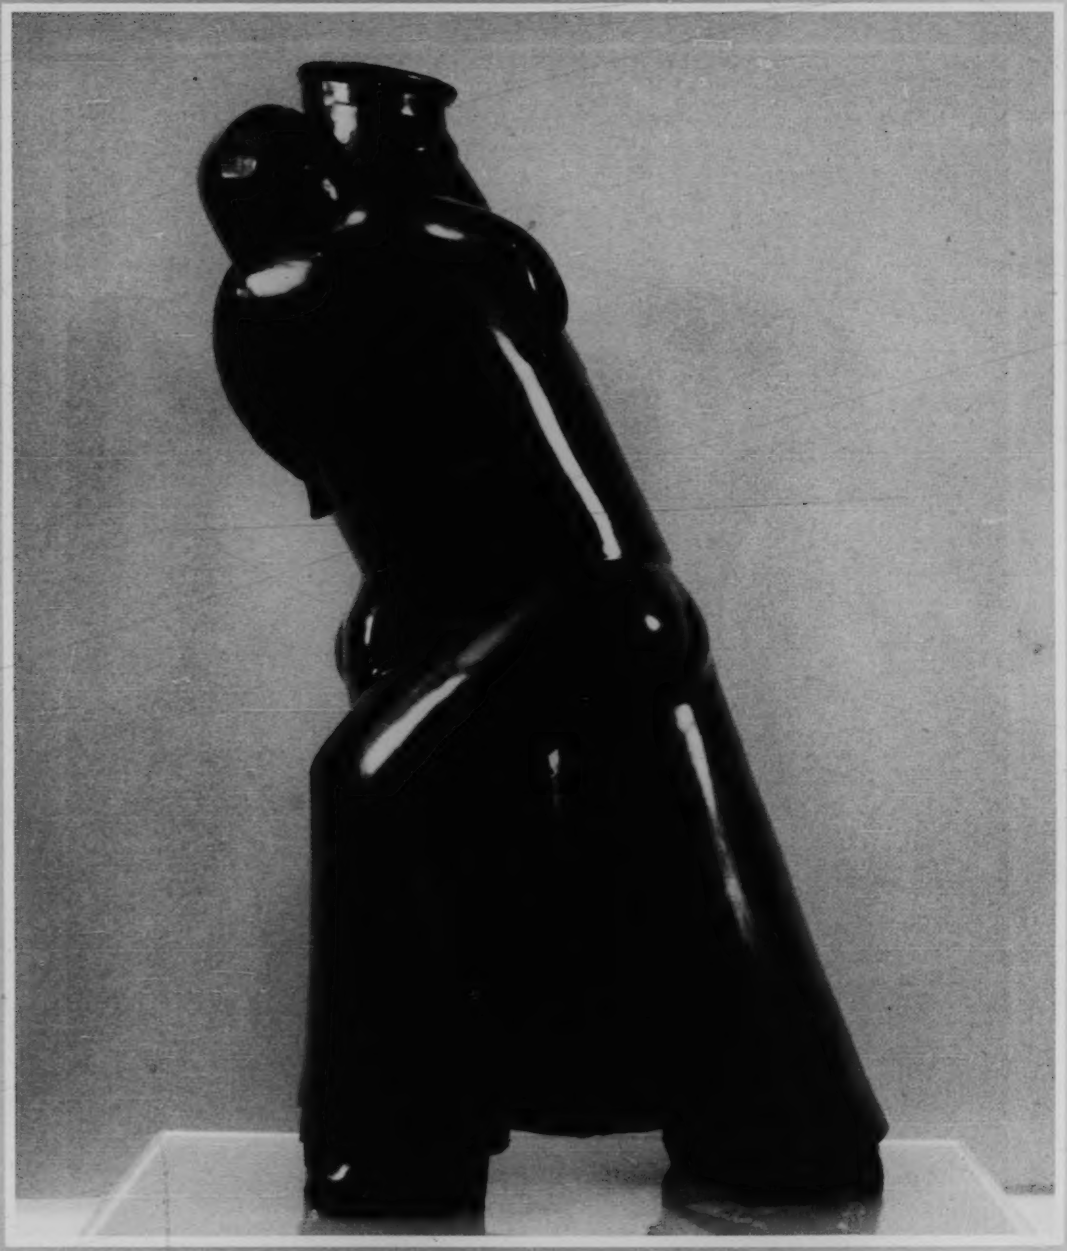
Exhibiting at the Chicago Art Fair. Booth 5-103

GALERIE LAHUMIERE
88, BD. DE COURCELLES, 75017 PARIS. TEL: 763 03 95



CHANA ORLOFF

"Les danseurs." 1923. H. 1 m by 0.65 m.

GALERIE VALLOIS

14, RUE DE SEINE, 75006 PARIS. TEL: 392 50 84 85

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY

1983

UMI

JEAN-CLAUDE MEYNARD

Hero-Dynamism "Odysee". 1981. Acrylic on canvas. 162 cm by 130 cm.
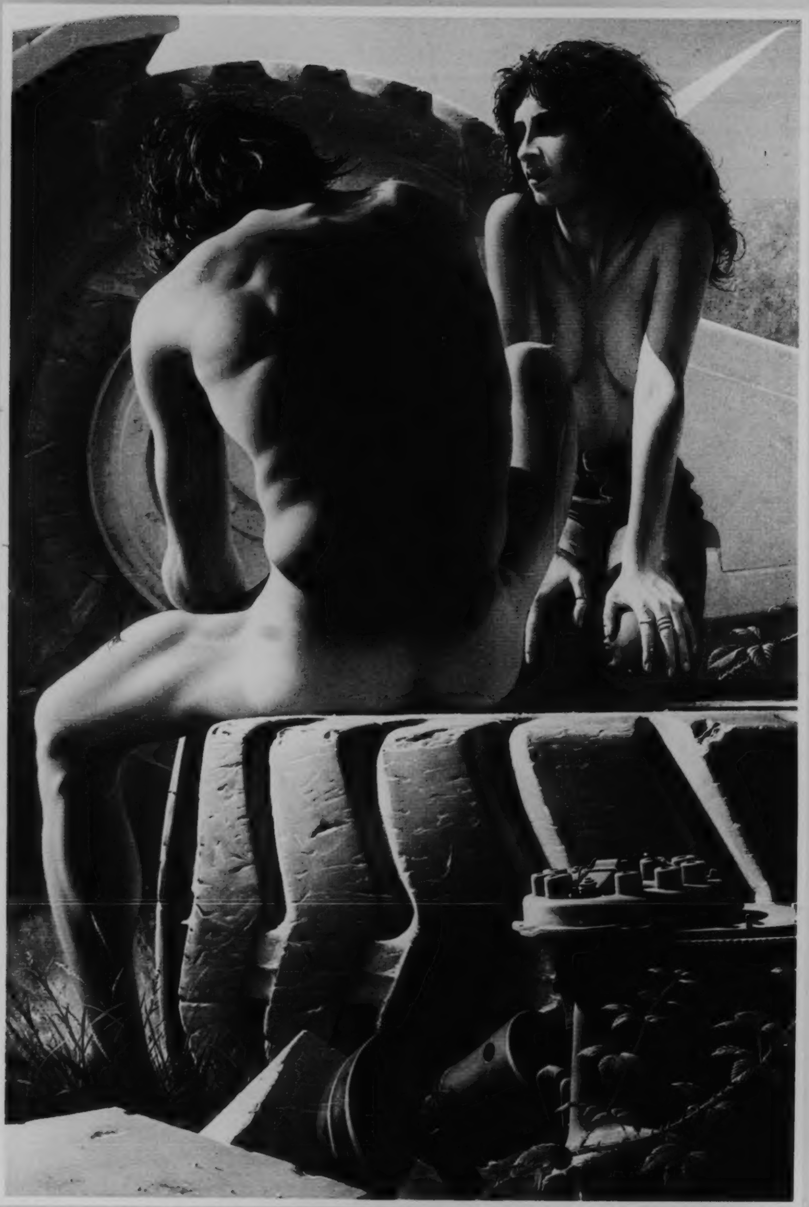
To be seen at Ingram International in Monaco.

GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES
15, RUE SAINT-LOUIS EN L'ISLE, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 633 56 02



BRUNO SCHMELZ

"L'Epine." 1982. Oil on canvas. 148 x 98 cm.

GALERIE ALAIN BLONDEL

4, RUE AUBRY LE BOUCHER, 75004 PARIS. TEL: 278 66 67

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
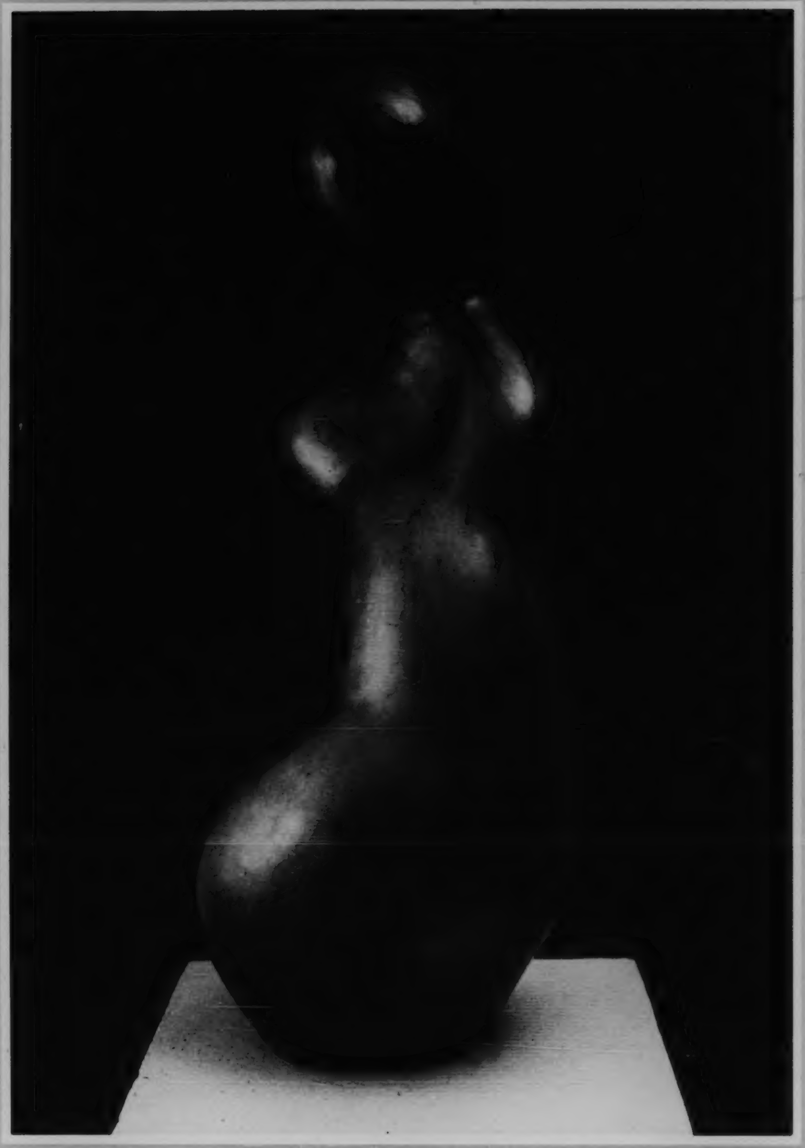
UMI



ARP

"Torse-fruit." 1960. Bronze. 75 x 29 x 30 cm.

DENISE RENE

196, BOULEVARD SAINT-GERMAIN, 75007 PARIS. TEL: 227 77 57

INTRODUCING a year-round resource for handmade paper art

GROUP EXHIBIT
May 9 - 14 Special slide presentation by Alexandra Soteriou
May 11 & 12 evening

Opposite
Czashka Ross

incorporated
gallery

SPRING
PORCELAIN SHOW
AND SPECIAL EXHIBIT IN HANDMADE PAPER

Opposite
Elaine F. Alt
Marek Cecula
Beth Changstrom
Lydia Yin
Mary Ann Lomonaco

1200 Madison Avenue
(87) NYC 10028
212 831-4466

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
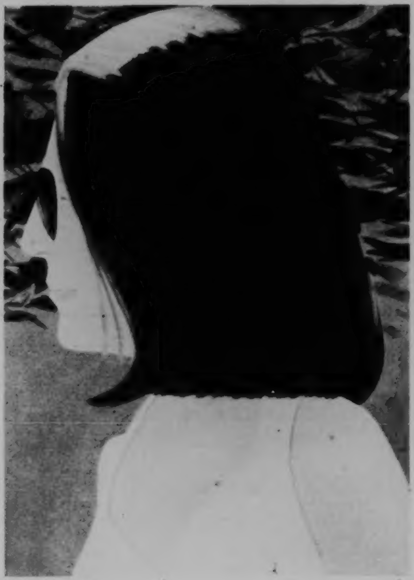
UMI



Alex Katz

The Harcus Gallery
7 Newbury Street, Boston, MA 02116
(617) 262-4445

PHOTO: ADA IN SPAIN, 1981 (34×48") OIL ON CANVAS

---

7 MAY TO 28 MAY

TROY
BRAUNTUCH

MARY BOONE
GALLERY, 420 WEST BROADWAY
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 966-2114

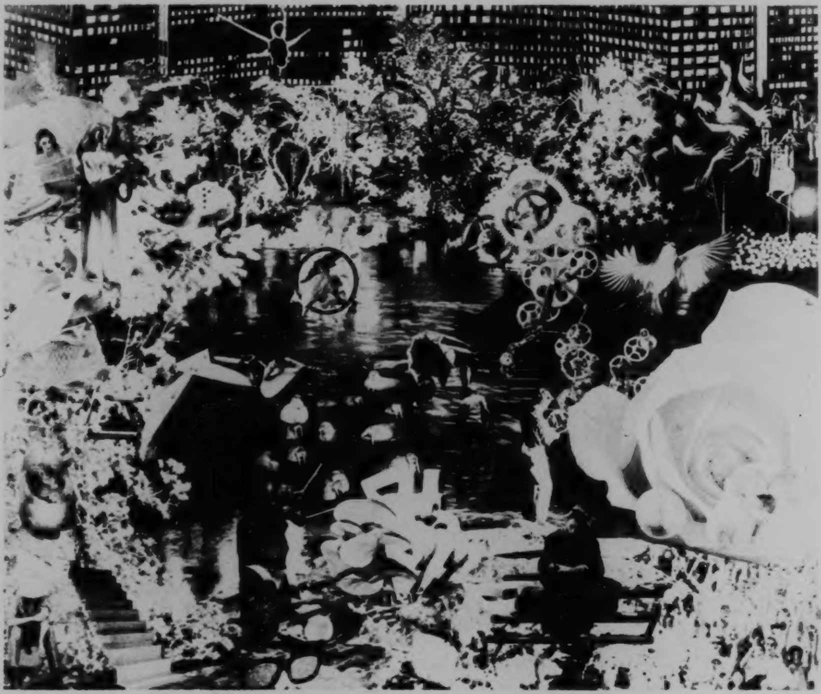
Sandro Chia
May 1983

Leo Castelli
142 Greene Street
New York

Vase, 1983 Stoneware 27" high

MARK PHARIS
May

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 East 57th Street New York 10022 212 752-7734



And A Turtle Up A Tree 1982, Collage, 22"x 26"

JESS
Paste-Ups 1954-1982
11 May - 11 June 1983

Gallery
Paule Anglim
14 Geary St. San Francisco
(415) 433-2710

Tom Wesselmann

Sculpture
April 23–June 1

Delahunty Dallas
2701 Canton Street, Dallas Texas 75226
214-744-1346

Danny
Williams

New Works
April 20–June 4

Delahunty NewYork
291 Church Street, NY 10013
212-226-2519

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
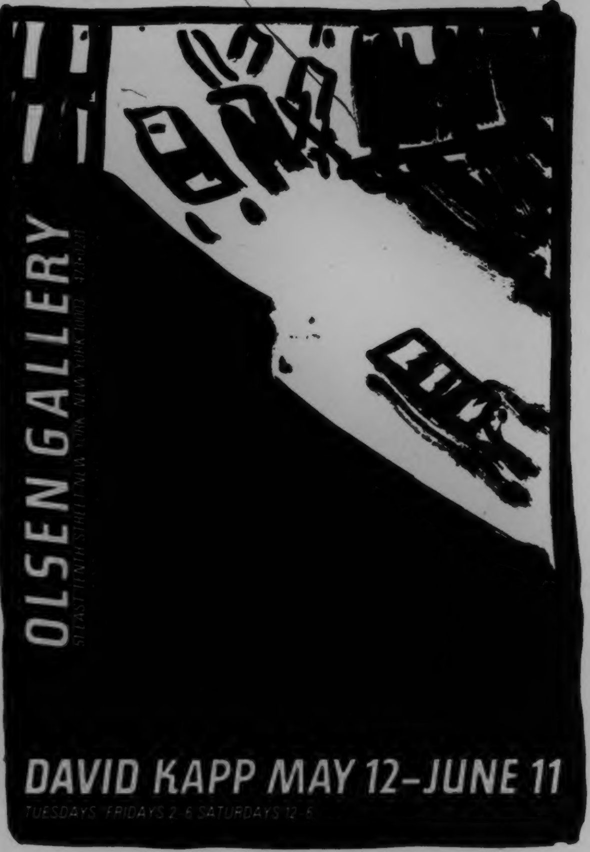
UMI

Sylvia Plimack Mangold

Paintings 1965-1983

May 26-June 25

Brooke Alexander, Inc.
20 West 57th Street
New York, New York 10019
Telephone 212/757-3721



OLSEN GALLERY
51 EAST TENTH STREET NEW YORK NEW YORK 10003 473-0238

DAVID KAPP MAY 12–JUNE 11
TUESDAYS FRIDAYS 2-6 SATURDAYS 12-6

VERNON FISHER
MAY 14 JUNE 8

BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
52 WOOSTER ST N Y N Y 10012 212-505-8690

Joyce Weinstein

Remembrance-of-European-autumnscape, 1982, oil on canvas. 50x50"

May

HABER THEODORE GALLERY
29 West 57th Street, New York 10019 (212) 752-3338

COMMENTARY 1982-83

CURATED BY CARMEN LAMANNA

JOHN BROWN MARC DE GUERRE RAE JOHNSON JOANNE TOD

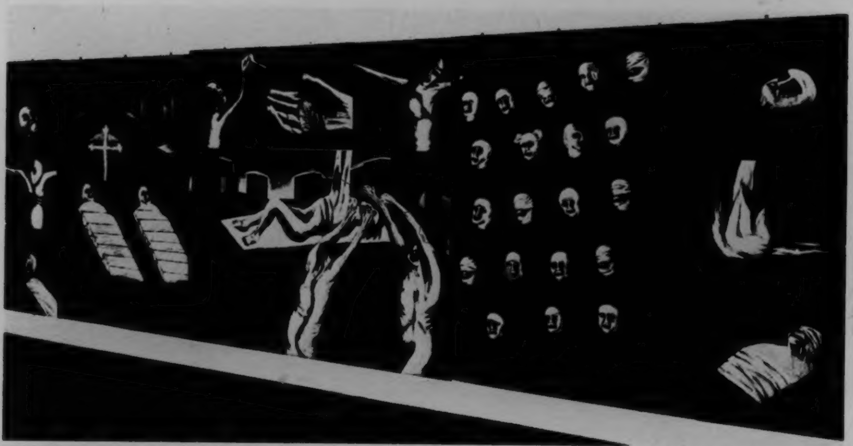


PHOTO COURTESY OF CARMEN LAMANNA GALLERY, TORONTO

MARC DE GUERRE: I SAW GOD WASH THE WORLD, 1982 (INSTALLATION VIEW). EGG AND OIL EMULSION ON PLYWOOD. 6 PANELS. 71½ x 215¾ INCHES OVERALL

APRIL 30-MAY 28

49TH PARALLEL

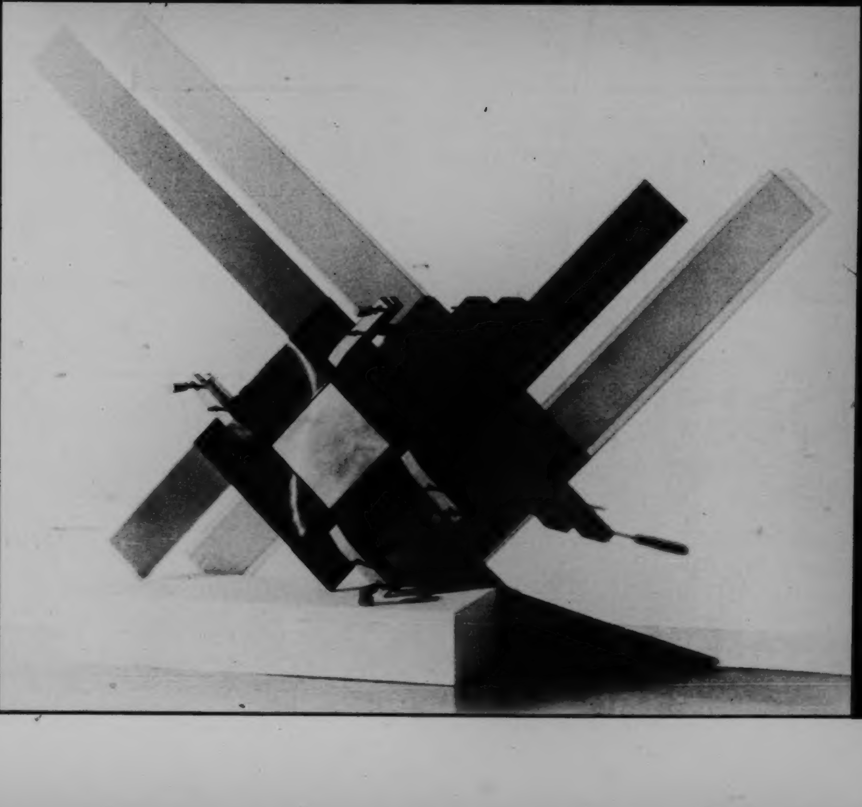
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART

49E PARALLÈLE

CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN

420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012 212 925-8349

GEORGE GEYER



■

MAY 4–
JUNE 4

■

KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12TH ST
SANTA MONICA, CA 90404
HOURS: TUES–SAT 11AM–5PM

■

DOUBLE DIAGONAL
GLASS, WOOD, STEEL/66" × 80" × [illegible]

213 450 1129

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

RICCO
JOHNSON
GALLERY

475 Broome Street
New York City
212 966-0541

Head of a Black Man
Anon., first half 20th c., Georgia, 14" high

GP

FIVE PAINTERS
MAY 17-JUNE 18

DIKE BLAIR

THOMAS NOZKOWSKI

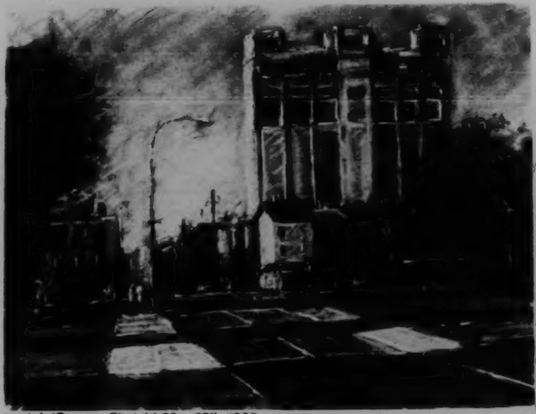
MARIANNE STIKAS

DAVID STOREY

JONATHAN WAITE

CURATED BY JEFFREY RIAN

GETLER/PALL
50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724



pastel, 'Granary Sketch' 22 x 29", 1983

Photo: Peter Lester

CHRIS NISSEN

RECENT WORK
APRIL 25 - MAY 19

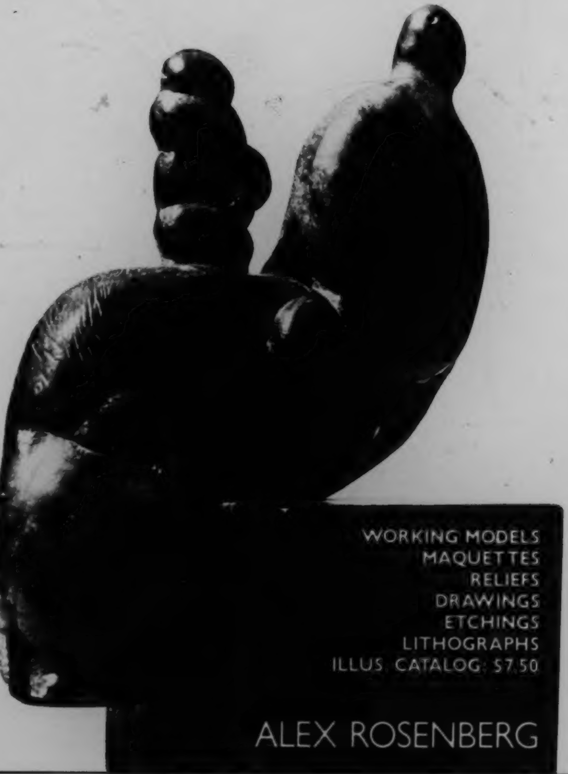
ML

Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

INAUGURAL SHOW
MAY 11—JUNE 4

Bill Barrette
Domenic Cretara
Monir Farmanfarmaian
Hermine Freed
Gilles Jean Giuntini
Suzanne Joelson
Bill Kane
Nickzad Nodjoumi
Peter Saari
Jack Scott
David Stoltz
Gary Willoughby
Hossein Zenderoudi

LEILA TAGHINIA MILANI, INC.
1080 Madison Ave. N.Y., N.Y. 10028 (212) 570 6173



ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY &
THE HENRY MOORE FOUNDATION PRESENT

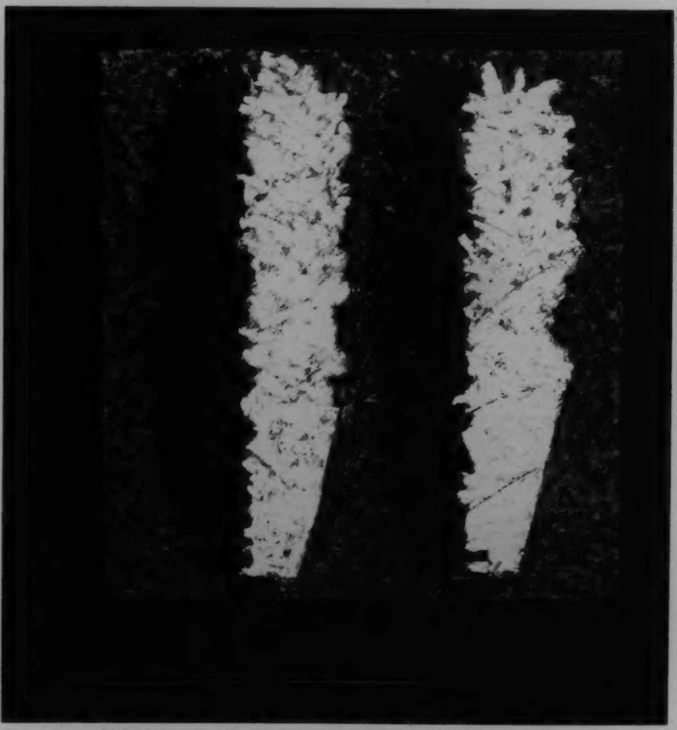
MOORE
THE NEW WORK

WORKING MODELS
MAQUETTES
RELIEFS
DRAWINGS
ETCHINGS
LITHOGRAPHS
ILLUS. CATALOG: $7.50

ALEX ROSENBERG

20W57 NYC APRIL 27–JUNE 4

REX LAU



Two Trees 1982 oil on Hydro-stone; 26 x 24 x 1⅜ inches

One-person exhibition
14 July–13 August

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue,
San Francisco 94108
(415) 781-4629

One-person exhibition
19 May–21 May

SIEGEL CONTEMPORARY ART
at Chicago International Art Exposition
Booth 5-116, Navy Pier

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY 1983

UMI

In preparation, a book reproducing in full color

RICHARD
DIEBENKORN
Works on Paper

We wish assistance in locating drawings and paintings on paper from 1968
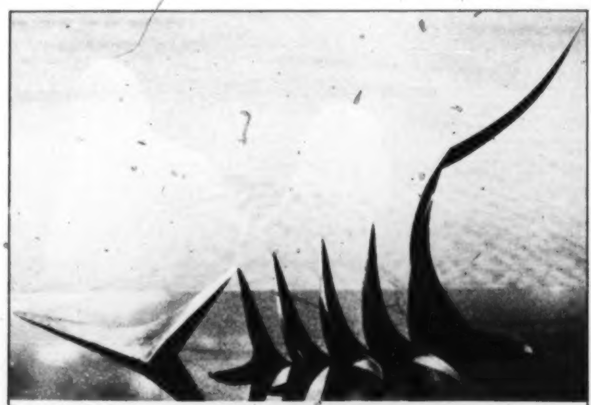
to the present.

Please contact
Richard Newlin

Houston Fine Art Press
■ 7330 Rampart St., No. 100, Houston, Texas 77081
713/981-1009



Aquila, 1981 Bronze 28' tall x 24' deep x 52' long

JOHN RAIMONDI
Bronze Sculpture
Drawings
May 6 - June 18, 1983

VM GALLERIES
VIRGINIA MILLER GALLERIES
FINE ART CONSULTANTS
ARTSPACE 169 MADEIRA
CORAL GABLES, FLORIDA 33134
305-444-4493

APRIL GORNIK

EDWARD THORP
GALLERY

419 WEST BROADWAY, NEW YORK, NY 10012
TELEPHONE 212/431-6880

Janus
Gallery

Kris Cox
Donald Davis
Jean Morgan George
John Hogan
Marianne Hornbuckle
David Jansheski
Sandra Kaplan
Grace Kraft
Jonathan Krout
Reg Loving
Marcy MacKinnon
Blue McRight
Deborah Milosevich
Jesus Bautista Moroles
Charles Pebworth
Howard Post
Dolona Roberts
Bird Robinson
Ken Saville
Raymond Tomasso
Pierre Tresfort
Pat Wolf

110 Galisteo
Santa Fe, NM 87501
(505) 983-1590

Jo Davidson

(1883-1952)

"AMERICAN SCULPTOR"

May 17-June 10

Carl Sandberg
bronze height—19"

Walt Whitman bronze, height—76"

Will Rogers
bronze height—28½"

Hammer Galleries

33 W. 57th St., New York 10019
(212) 644-4400

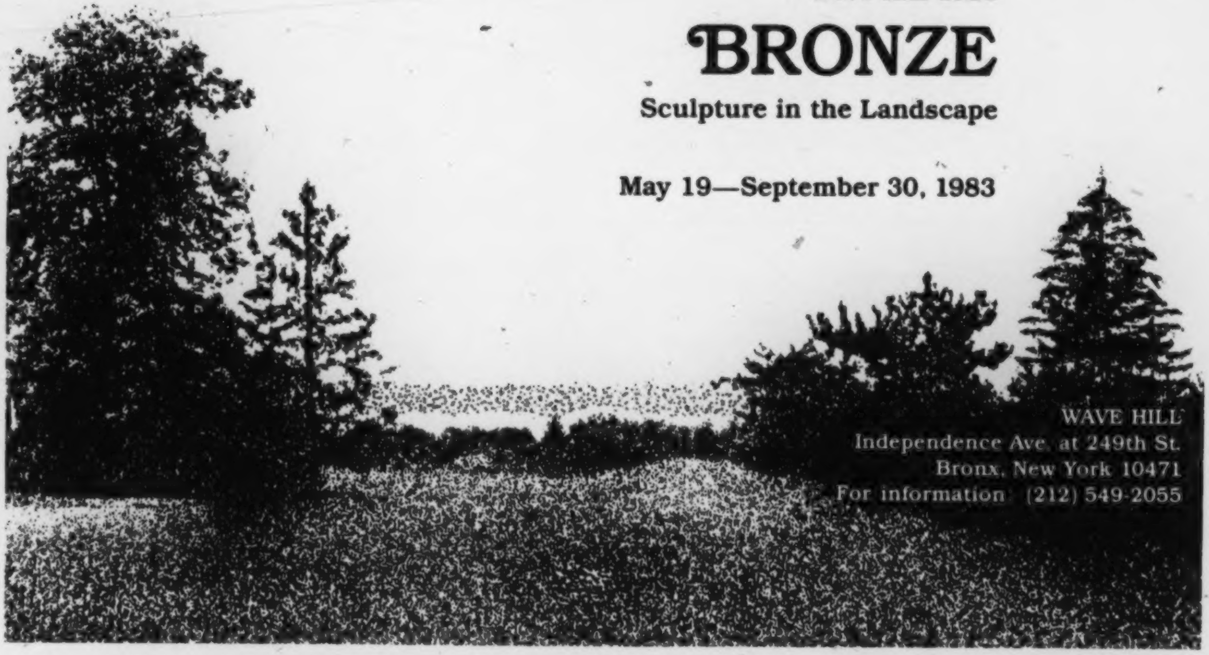
LOUISE BOURGEOIS JOHN DUFF BARRY FLANAGAN MARY FRANK BRYAN HUNT J. SEWARD JOHNSON, JR. MARISOL JUD NELSON LUCAS SAMARAS MARTIN SILVERMAN HERK VAN TONGEREN ISAAC WITKIN

Wave Hill 1983

BRONZE

Sculpture in the Landscape

May 19—September 30, 1983



WAVE HILL
Independence Ave. at 249th St.
Bronx, New York 10471
For information (212) 549-2055

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

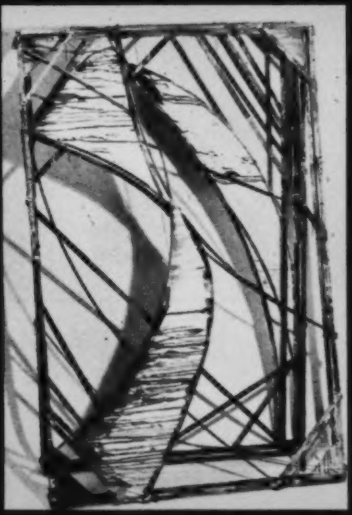
MY

1983

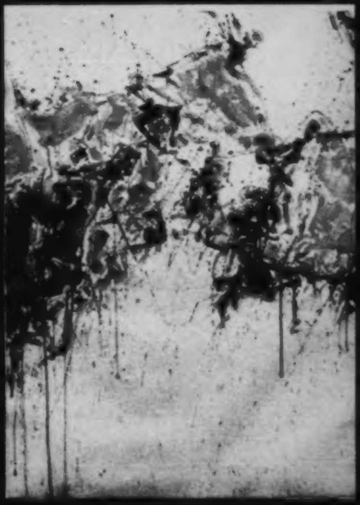
UMI

Our Art Does Not Meet the Standard of the 1983 Chicago Art Fair

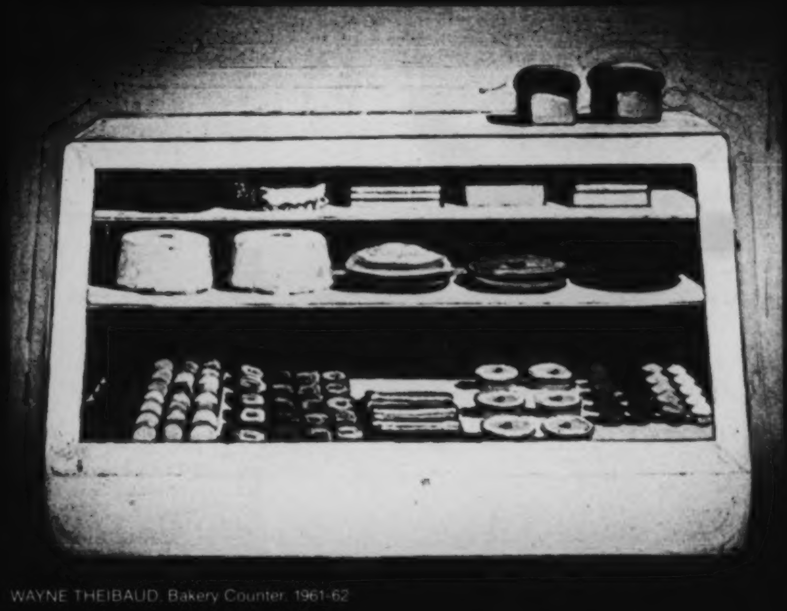
JOHN DeANDREA, Self Portrait With Sculpture, 1980



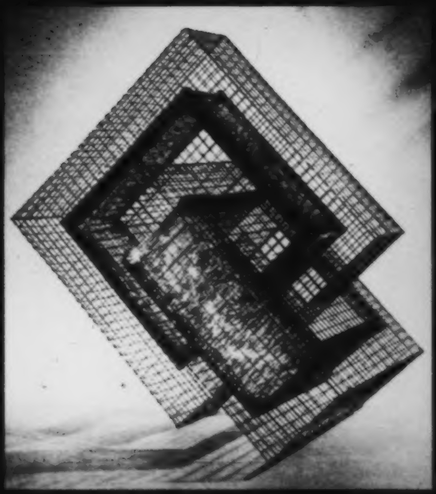
DAVID MAXIM, Blue Screen, 1982



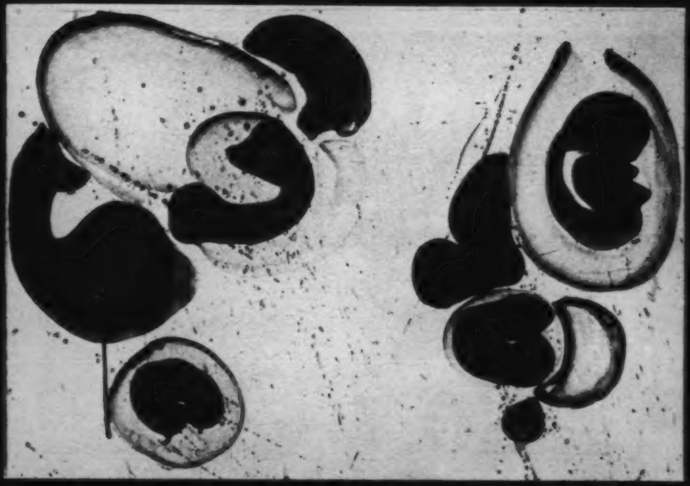
SAM FRANCIS, For Rick, 1957



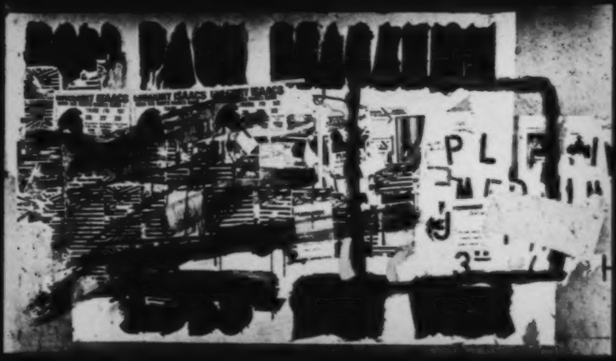
WAYNE THEIBAUD, Bakery Counter, 1961-62



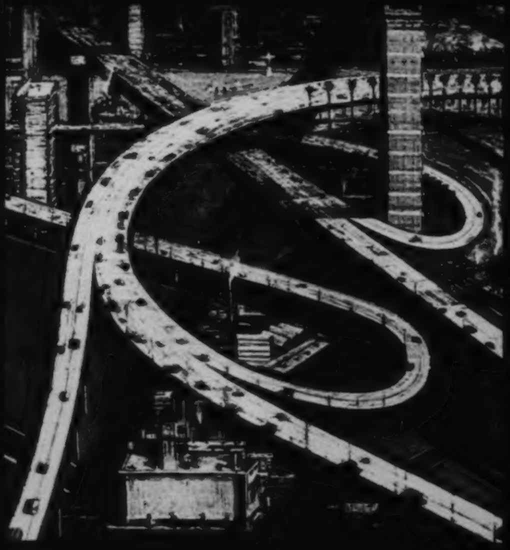
BENJAMIN KAISER, Interlocking Squares, 1982



SAM FRANCIS, Blue Ball, 1961

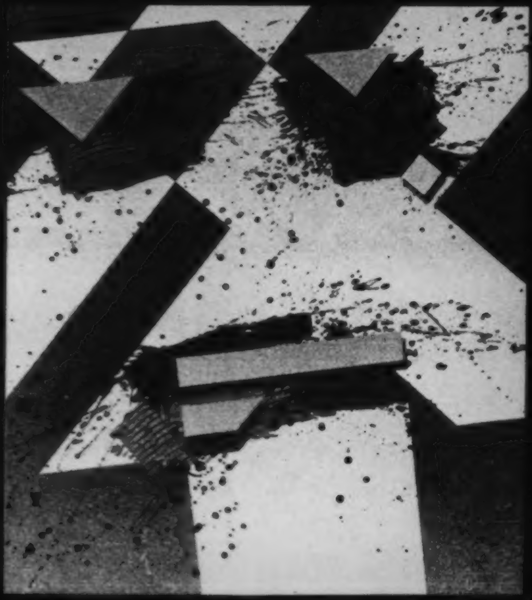


BILL KANE, Warp, 1983



WAYNE THEIBAUD, Interchange, 1979

ROBERT ARNESON, Portrait of George, 1981



JOE DOYLE, Across The Brazos, 1983

FOSTER
GOLDSTROM
FINE ARTS

SAN FRANCISCO • DALLAS/FALL 1983

Maybe Next Year...

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

ROBERT COMBAS

PAINTINGS/29 APRIL-21 MAY CASTELLI UPTOWN 4 EAST 77 STREET NEW YORK

"PHYLUM", ALUMINUM, 9'9" · 14'7" · 22'

ROSLYN
MAZZILLI

MAY/JUNE BROOK
415-254-1545 HOUSE

BOX 1177, ORINDA, CALIFORNIA 94563

NELL BLAINE

RECENT PAINTINGS THROUGH MAY 18

FISCHBACH GALLERY 29 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK

Important Paintings and Drawings by

Amat, Botero, Bravo, Castañeda, Cuevas, Gerzso,
Kahlo, Rivera, Siqueiros, Tamayo, Toledo

Mary-Anne Martin / Fine Art
213 East 49th Street New York, NY Tel: (212) 980-8104 by appointment

Appraisals, Consulting, Corporate and Auction Advisory Services

BRYAN HUNT

Recent Sculpture 23 April-28 May 1983

Portrait 1982-1983, Bronze. 56¾ x 21¼ x 11." CATALOGUE AVAILABLE

MARGO LEAVIN GALLERY 812 N. Robertson L.A. 213 273-0603

SMALL WORKS
MAY 1–21

DAVID MCKEE
41 EAST 57 STREET
NEW YORK, NY 10022
TEL 212/688-5951

ROBERT WILSON

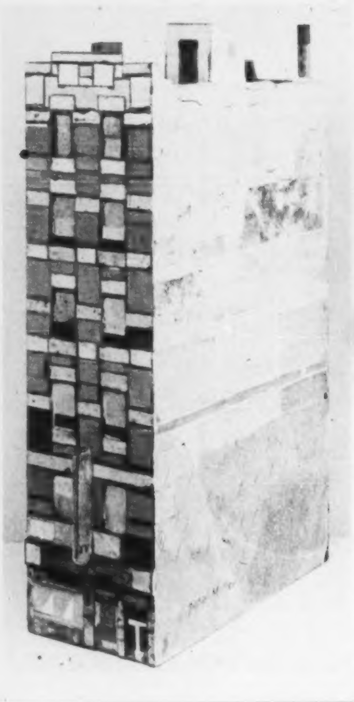
CIVIL WARS
3 MAY–11 JUNE 1983

CASTELLI FEIGEN CORCORAN
1020 MADISON AVENUE
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021
212/734.5505

GUSTAF MILLER
New Buildings



BUILDING #683, 1982.
Construction of wood,
acrylic and collage.
36 x 9½ x 19¼ inches.

Upstairs
Gallery:
Garner
Tullis
Handmade Paper
Paintings

Thomas
Segal
Gallery
73 Newbury St
Boston
(617) 266-3500
Tues-Sat 10-5:30 or by appt.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Donald Judd

30 April-21 May 1983 Leo Castelli 420 West Broadway

JOE ZUCKER MAY

FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843

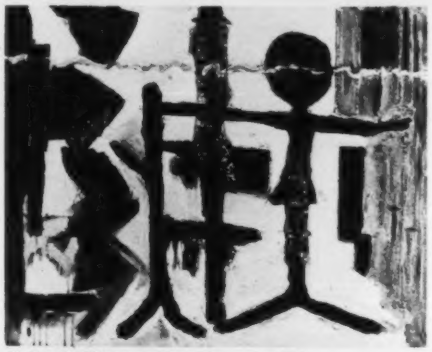
ROBERT JESSUP JUNE

Joan
Snyder



Untitled, Mixed media on canvas, 1983

Paintings/May nielsen

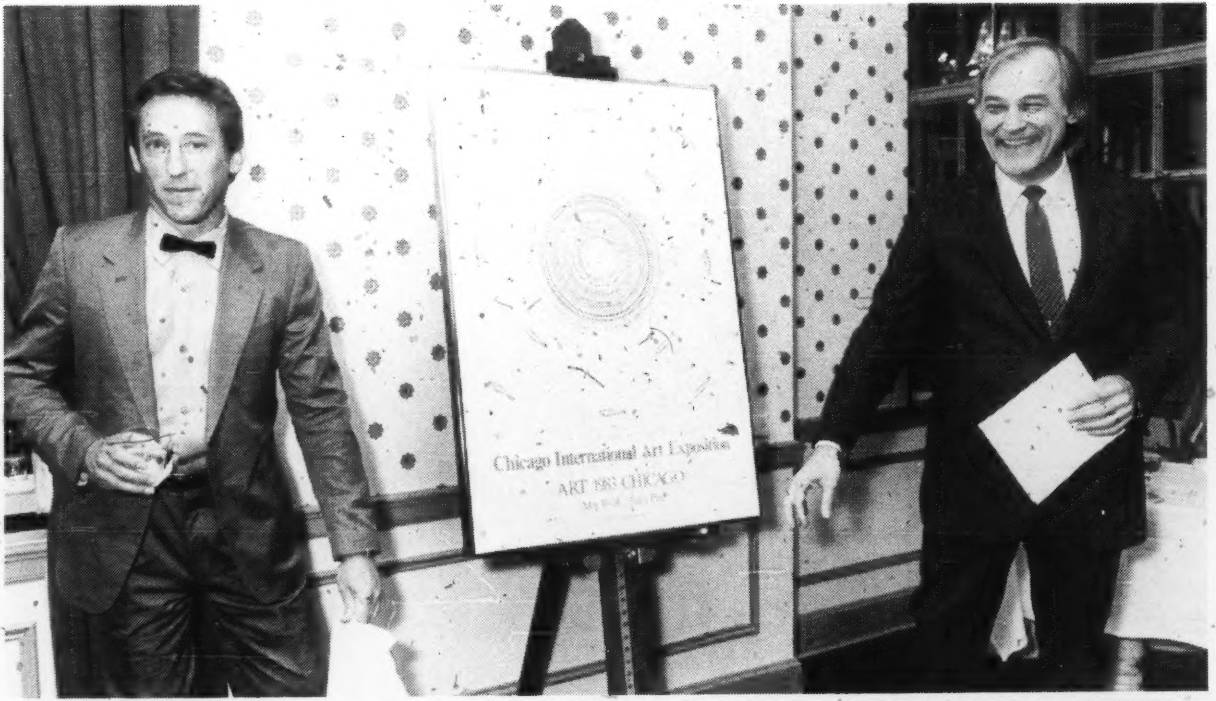
GALLERY
179 NEWBURY STREET
BOSTON, MA 02116
(617) 266-4835

Precisionist Painting 1950 - 1982 Works on Paper

EDMUND D. LEWANDOWSKI

April 30 - May 26, 1983

SID DEUTSCH GALLERY 20 WEST 57th STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 212-765-4722



John Wilson, President of the Chicago International Art Exposition and artist Edward Ruscha unveil the 1983 poster at the Richmont Hotel in Chicago.

Chicago International Art 1983 Exposition

May 19-24, 1983

Navy Pier, Chicago USA

Dates and Details

Thursday, May 19, 1983
5:30 to 10:30

Gala Opening Night Benefit for the Museum of Contemporary Art. Reservations required and can only be made by contacting the Museum of Contemporary Art, 237 E. Ontario St. Chicago, IL 60611 (312-280-2665)

Friday, May 20, 1983
12 noon to 8 pm
Saturday, May 21, 1983
12 noon to 8 pm
Sunday, May 22, 1983
12 noon to 8 pm
Monday, May 23, 1983
12 noon to 8 pm
Tuesday, May 24, 1983
12 noon to 6 pm

General Admission: $7.00

Students, Senior Citizens: $5.00 (ID may be required at box office)

Two Day Ticket: $10.00

Five Day Pass: $25.00 (includes indoor parking) May 20 through 24, 1983

Seminars

Art in America will sponsor the seminars during the weekend of May 20–22, 1983. Artists, art consultants, dealers, museum directors, collectors, print publishers and photographers will gather at Navy Pier to discuss current issues, followed by an open exchange with the audience. These seminars are included in the price of an admission ticket.

Friday, May 20, 1983
1:00 pm "After the Boom: The New Photography Market"
Anne Tucker/Moderator

Saturday, May 21, 1983
1:00 pm "New Expressionism"
Judith Goldman/Moderator

Saturday, May 21, 1983
4:00 pm "Art in the Age of Commodities"
Judith Goldman/Moderator

Sunday, May 22, 1983
1:00 pm "Collecting in Chicago"
Judith Goldman/Moderator

Chicago Sculpture Society
Public Art Symposium
Sunday, May 22, 1983
11:00 am "Collecting, Curating and Conserving Public Art"
Richard Hunt/Moderator

1983 Poster and Lithograph

The specially commissioned poster representing Chicago International Art Exposition, 1983 is by the noted American artist, Edward Ruscha. The multi-colored lithograph was designed exclusively for the Exposition in cooperation with Bernard Jacobson Ltd.

The five-color poster, a limited edition of 1,500, is printed on Arches Cover paper, is 27¾" × 39" with the Exposition title, and is signed in the plate by the artist. Price is $30.

The four color lithograph, without the Exposition title, is in a limited edition of 100, with 25 artist's proofs. It is printed on Arches 88 paper, signed and numbered by the artist, and is 28¼" × 33". Price is $750.

Chicago Sculpture International/ Mile 2

An exhibition of sculpture, curated by the Chicago Sculpture Society, covering a mile-long area of Navy Pier will be on exhibit concurrently with the Chicago International Art Exhibition.

Chicago
International Art
Exposition

For further information:
Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Maxwell Davidson Gallery

43 East 78 Street New York
212 734-6702

Booth 6-103

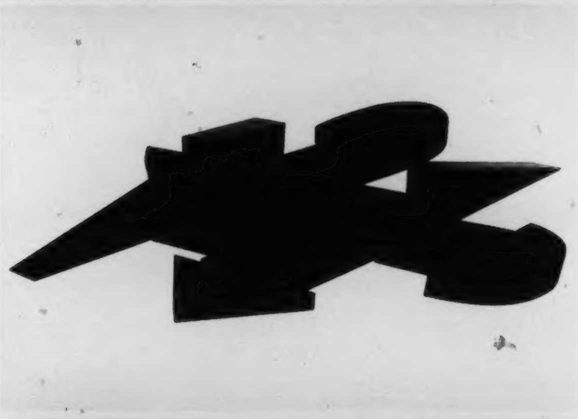
Representing:

- Carol Anthony
- Deborah Deichler
- Thomas George
- Gary Komarin
- Scott Prior
- Tony Scherman

With works by:

- Joseph Albers
- William Baziotes
- Sam Francis
- Roberto Matta
- George Rickey
- Bradley Walker Tomlin

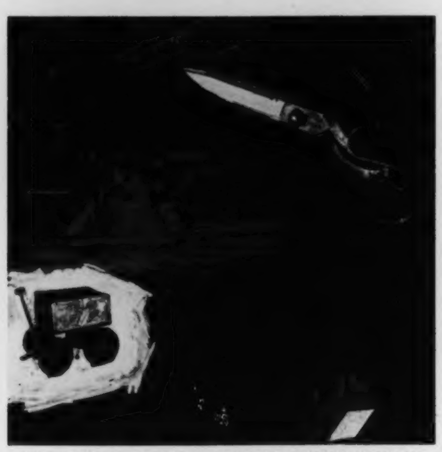
JOHN OKULICK



MIDNIGHT STATION, 1983. PAINTED WOOD: 29 X [illegible] IN

NANCY HOFFMAN
429 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK NY 10012

BEN SCHONZEIT

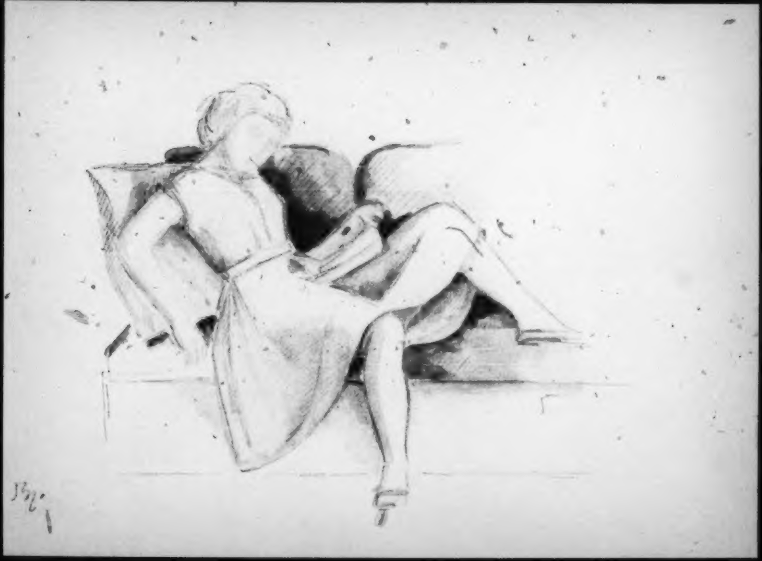


PAINTING THE TOWN GRAY, 1982. ACRYLIC ON PAPER: 48 X 48 IN.

NANCY HOFFMAN
429 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK NY 10012

VIVIAN HORAN

10 EAST 62ND STREET NEW YORK NEW YORK 10021 TELEPHONE 212-935-1682
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY



BALTHUS
STUDY FOR THE THREE SISTERS
C.1965
PENCIL AND WATERCOLOR
12 5/8 X 17 3/4 IN.

EXHIBITING AT CIAE — SECTION 6 BOOTH 121 — WITH ADDITIONAL WORKS BY BENTON / CHIA / DE KOONING / JENNEY / REINHARDT / F. STELLA / TWOMBLY

April 30-June 11

Dale Chihuly

Glass Baskets 1983 "Glass"

Sarah Schwartz

"Mulier-Deliberativus Fatum" 1983 Marble, garnets, bronze

Betsy Rosenfield Gallery, Inc.

212 West Superior, Chicago, Illinois 60610 Telephone 312.787.8020

Art 1983 Chicago Booth 3-137

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
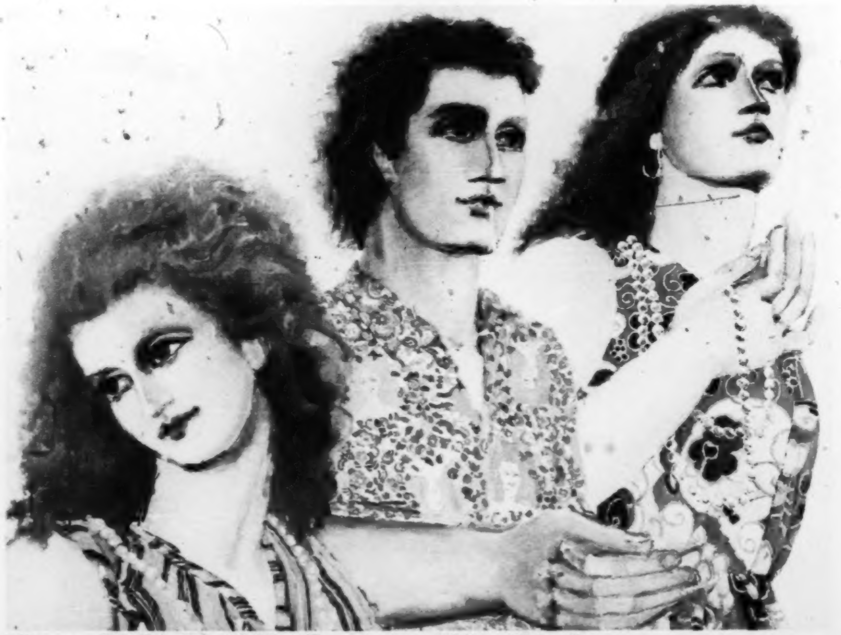
UMI

LESTER JOHNSON

Recent paintings

ART 1983
CHICAGO



"Group Walking", 1983, oil on canvas, 30 x 40 inches

Navy Pier
May 19 - 24
Booth #6-151

DONALD MORRIS
GALLERY

105 Townsend
Birmingham, MI. 48011
(313) 642-8812

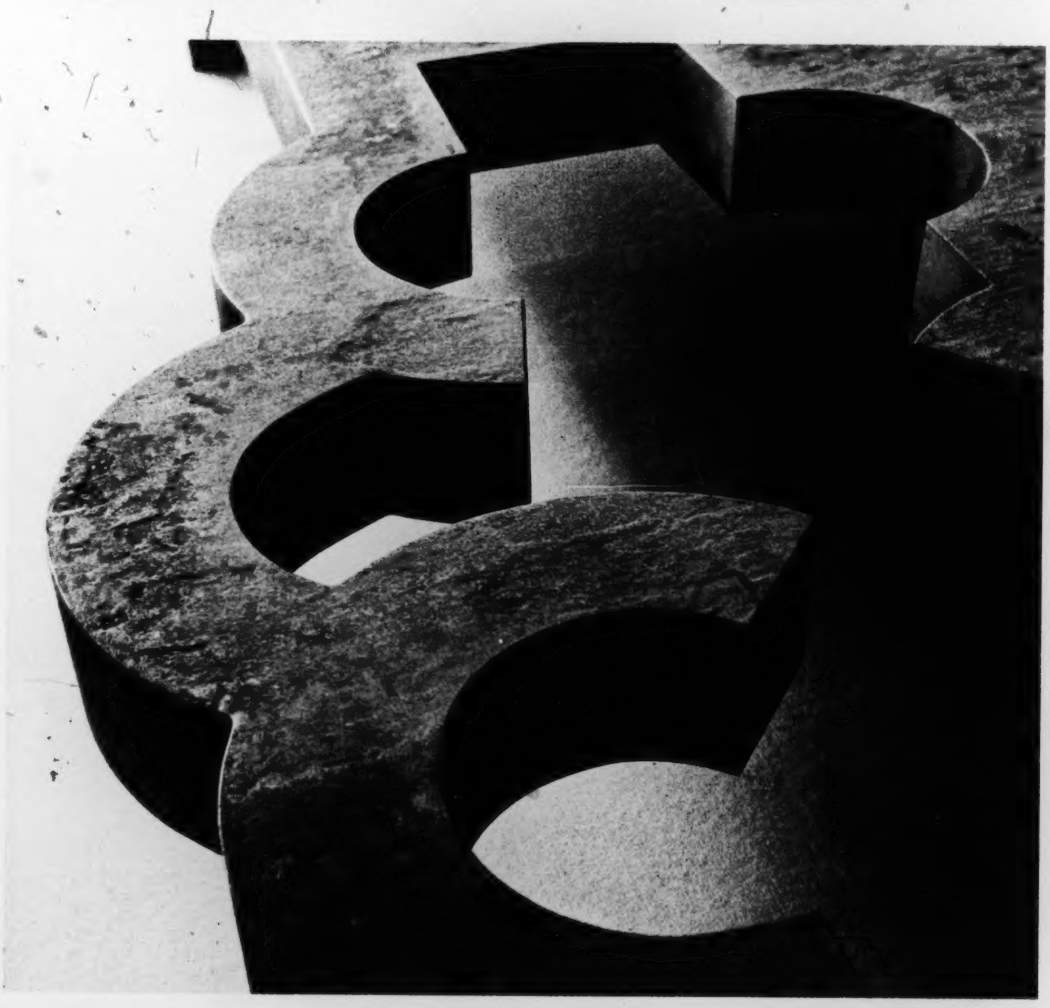
RICHARD GRAY GALLERY
NOW REPRESENTING
DAVID HOCKNEY

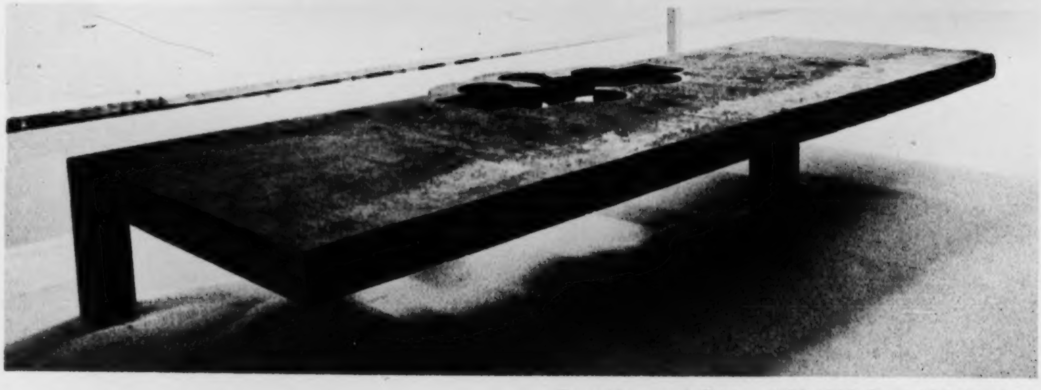
May 14 – June 30, 1983

Exhibiting Photographic Collages and Recent Drawings

RICHARD GRAY GALLERY · 620 North Michigan Avenue Chicago, Illinois 60611 Telephone 312/642-8877

EDUARDO CHILLIDA





Omar Khayyam's Table—1982-1983. Steel, 12 ft. 5 in. long.

Tasende Gallery 820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037 (619) 454-3691

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
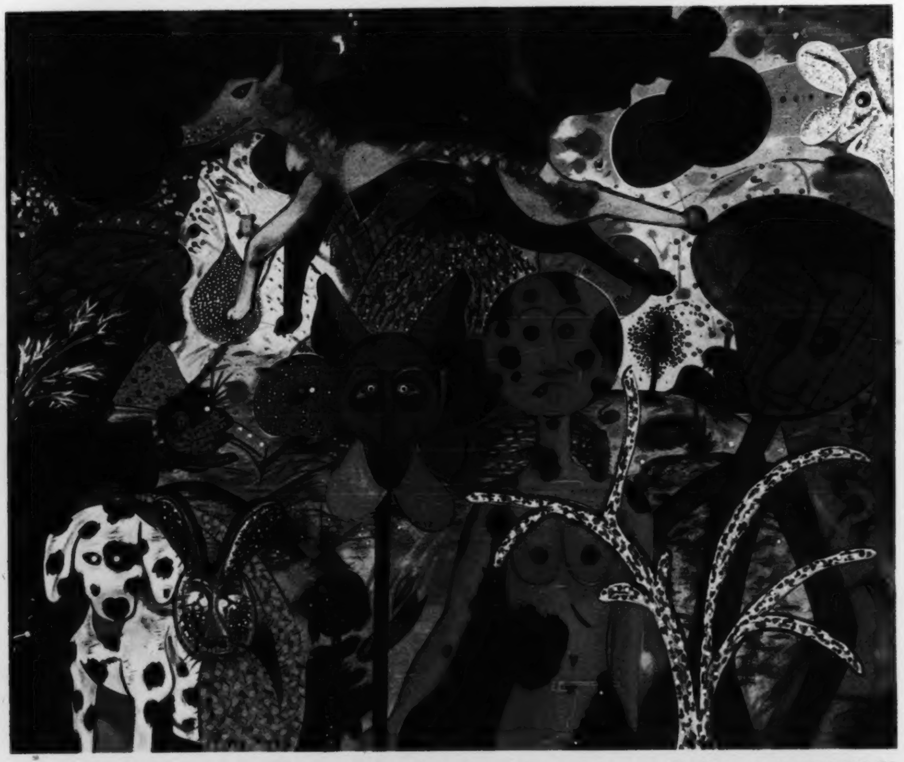
UMI

Roy DeForest

New Paintings and Drawings



"Triumph of the Roundheads," 1983. Acrylic on linen, 82" x 96"

Frumkin & Struve Gallery 309 West Superior, Chicago 60610 312.787.0563

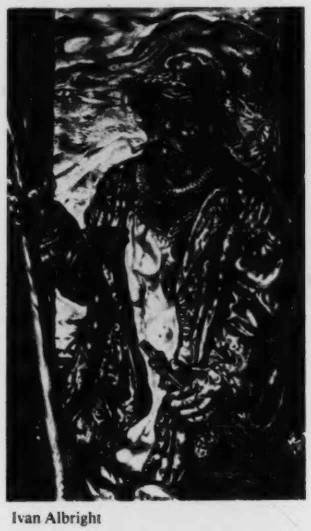
Cynthia Eardley

Sculpture / May 12-June 4

The Dancers, 1981. Bronze.

Monique Knowlton Gallery

New Address: 153 Mercer Street
New York, N.Y. 10012 · Telephone (212)431-8808



Ivan Albright

American Modern Masters

Albright Arms
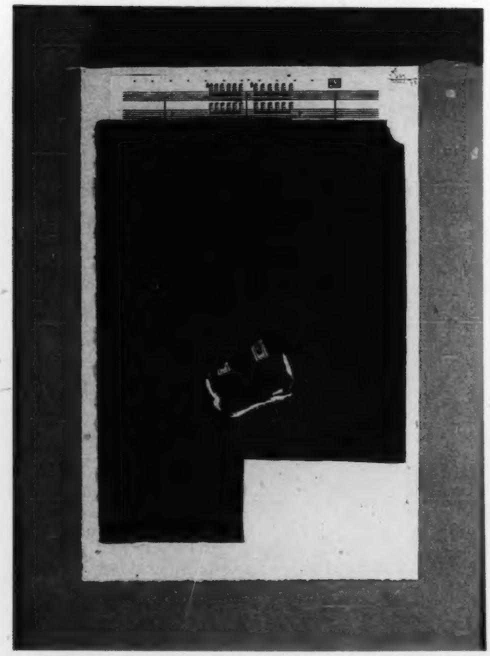
Bellows
Benton
Davies
Kent
Miller
Sloan
Weber
Whistler

Visit us at Chicago International Art Exposition 1983, May 19–24, Navy Pier, Booth #3-164 or at The Lakeside Studio and Hotel during the summer.

The Lakeside Studio
15263 S Lakeshore Rd Lakeside, Mi 49116, Tel. 616-469-1377



ROBERT MOTHERWELL

"Stravinsky (next to final state)"

1973
Acrylic and paper on board
48 x 36 inches

May Exhibition:
William Clutz, Paintings and Pastels

JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.

400 MARQUETTE AVE MINNEAPOLIS 55401 (612) 339-7060

Hokin/Kaufman Gallery

210 West Superior Street
Chicago, IL 60610
Telephone 312/266-1211

Hokin Gallery Inc.

245 Worth Avenue
Palm Beach, FL 33480
Telephone 305/655-5177

1086 Kane Concourse
Bay Harbor Islands, FL 33154
Telephone 305/861-5700

Visit us at our booth #1-135

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
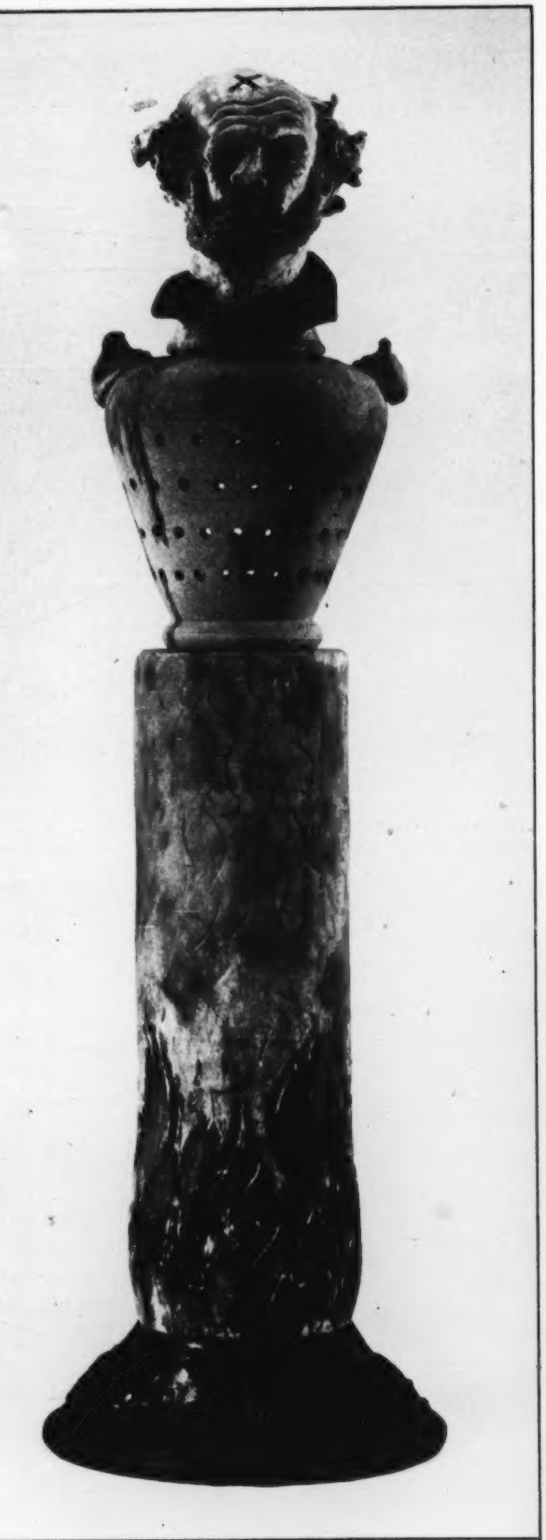
UMI

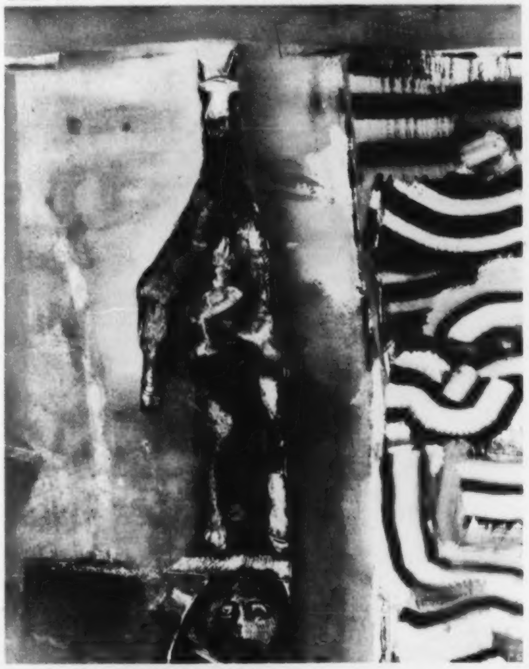


"ASS TO ASH", 1982-1983, CERAMIC, 84 INCHES HIGH

ROBERT ARNESON

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK

SEE US AT ART 1983 CHICAGO – BOOTH 1159



MARTIN FACEY MAY–JUNE

IVORY/KIMPTON GALLERY
55 GRANT · SAN FRANCISCO · 415-956-6661

DEBORAH BROWN
SYDNEY
DRUM
BILL
KOHN
FERN VALFER

FOUR PAINTERS may 13 – june 11

...also visit chicago art expo 1983 booth 4-111 navy pier may 19-24

JAN
CICERO
GALLERY
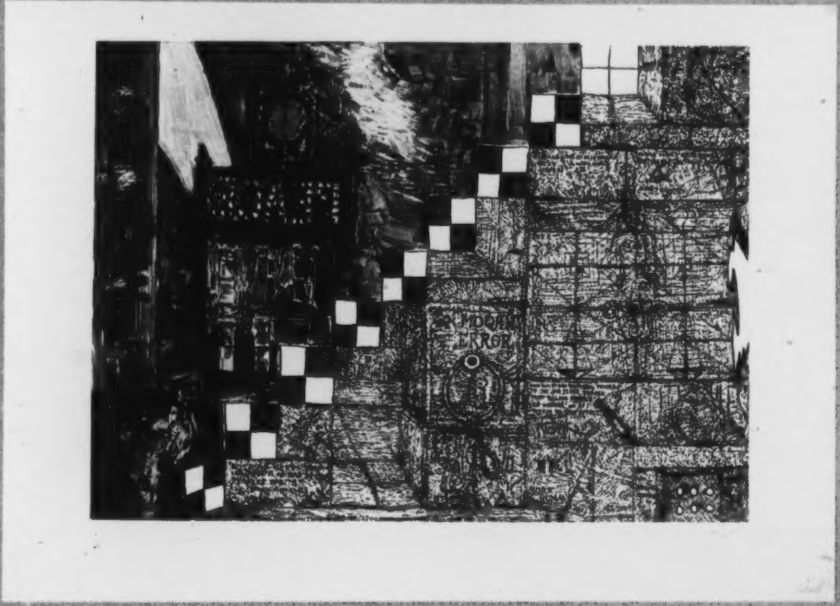
437 N CLARK CHICAGO, IL 60610 312 644 5374

William T. Wiley

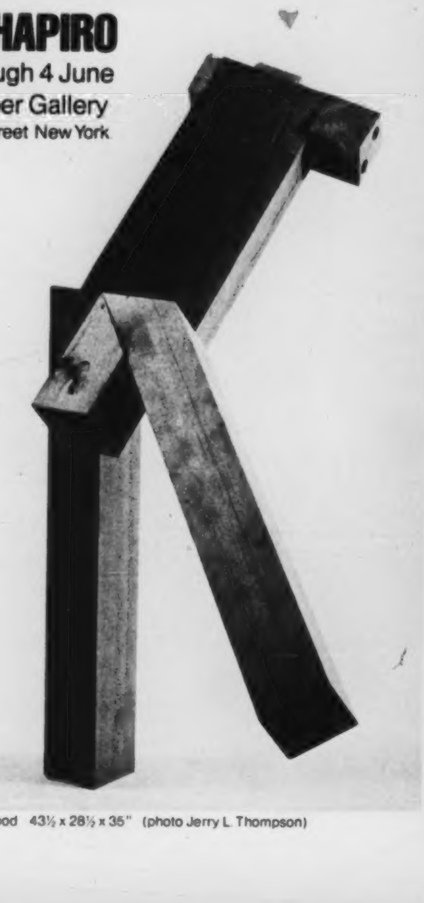
Monotypes
& Etchings

Crown Point Press
1555 San Pablo
Oakland CA 94612
(415) 835-5121
545 Broadway
New York NY 10012
(212) 226-5476



Rboom for Error #6
monotype
26⅛ x 37 inches

JOEL SHAPIRO
5 May through 4 June
Paula Cooper Gallery
155 Wooster Street New York



Untitled 1982 Wood 43½ x 28½ x 35" (photo Jerry L. Thompson)

Artschwager
Baselitz
Broodthaers
Clemente
Cragg
Disler van Elk
Flavin
Lewitt
Lüpertz
Oldenburg
Oppenheim
Penck
Pfaff
Tuttle

Booth #6-144

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
MULTIPLES INC
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK NY 10019 (212) 977 7160

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

SANTOMASO

MAY 3 TO MAY 28

GRACE BORGENICHT GALLERY · 724 FIFTH AVENUE · NEW YORK 10019 · 212/247-2111

Charles Cowles Gallery

Tom Holland

May 7-28

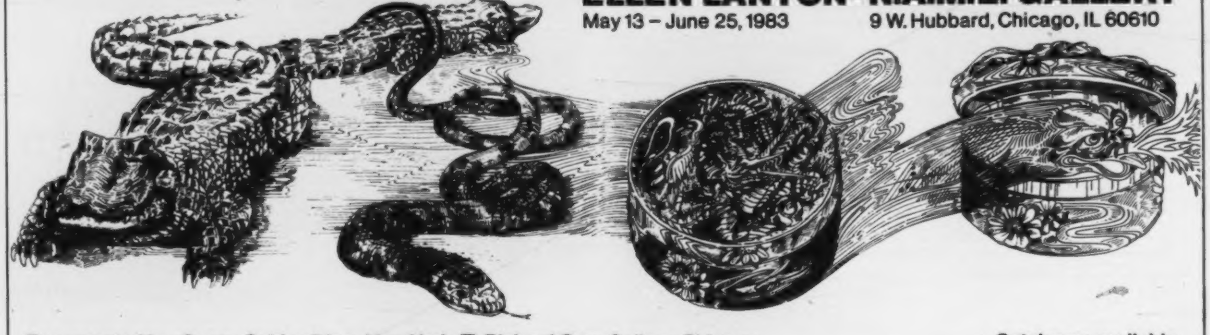
420 West Broadway New York 10012 (212) 925-3500

JOHN AHEARN
MIKE GLIER
JENNY HOLZER
TOM OTTERNESS

CHICAGO INTERNATIONAL ART EXPOSITION
BOOTH 1-144

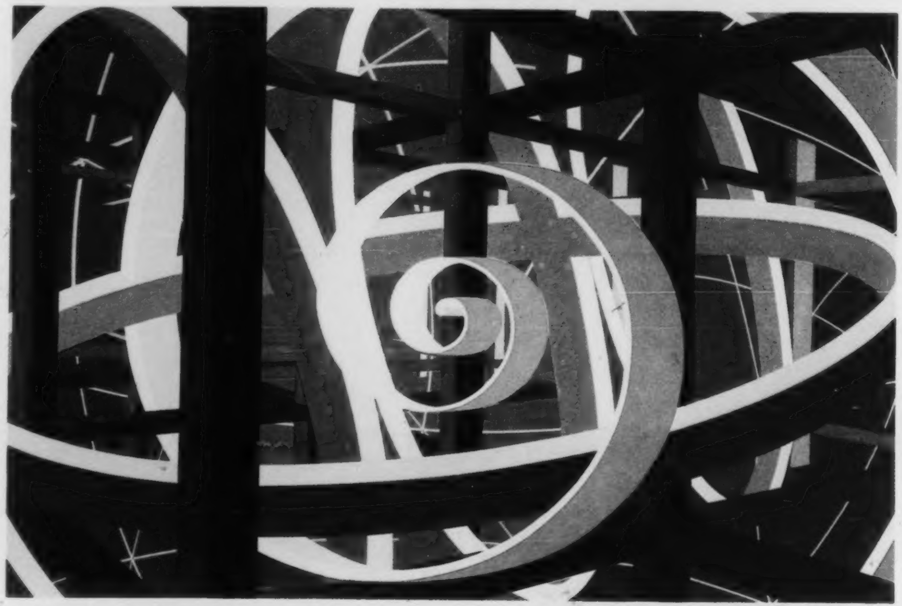
YOUNG HOFFMAN GALLERY
215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

ELLEN LANYON · N.A.M.E. GALLERY
May 13 – June 25, 1983
9 W. Hubbard, Chicago, IL 60610



Represented by: Susan Caldwell Inc., New York ■ Richard Gray Gallery, Chicago

Catalogue available



"Thalassa Circled III", 1983, oil on canvas, 6' x 9'

AL HELD

New Paintings

May 7 - June 4

Illustrated Catalogue
With Text Available
$6.00 Post Paid

DONALD MORRIS GALLERY

105 Townsend • Birmingham, MI. 48011 • (313) 642-8812

We have moved.

Phyllis Kind Gallery
139 Spring Street New York
226 East Ontario Chicago

136 Greene Street New York
(212) 925.1200

313 West Superior Chicago
(312) 642.6302

Life-size horses created on site in North Carolina of indigenous red mud and twigs.

DEBORAH BUTTERFIELD

May 7-June 14, 1983

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY

356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

VISIT US AT BOOTH 6-140

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

John Baldessari
Gerhard Richter
May 18 to June 23

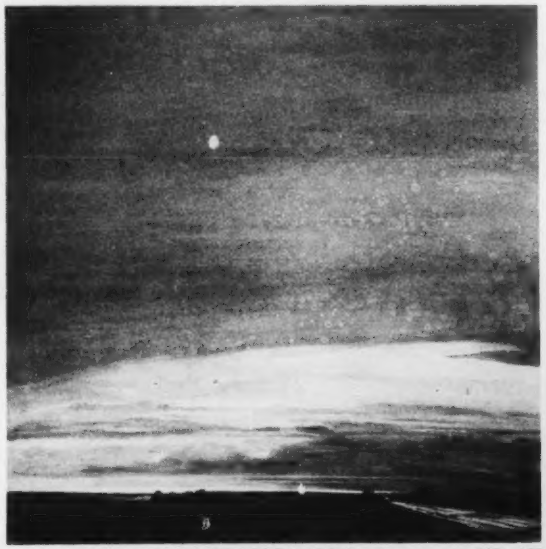
Chicago Art Expo
Booth 5-132 "Previews"
Ruscha, Hollis, Cass, McCabe...
Mile of Sculpture
Machin, Justis, Yarbrough, Kramer

marianne deson gallery
340 west huron chicago, illinois 60610
312 787 0005

FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY
At The Chicago International Art Exposition
May 19 - May 25, 1983, Booth #6 - 149

228 Grant Avenue
San Francisco, California 94108 (415) 982-6177

KEITH JACOBSHAGEN



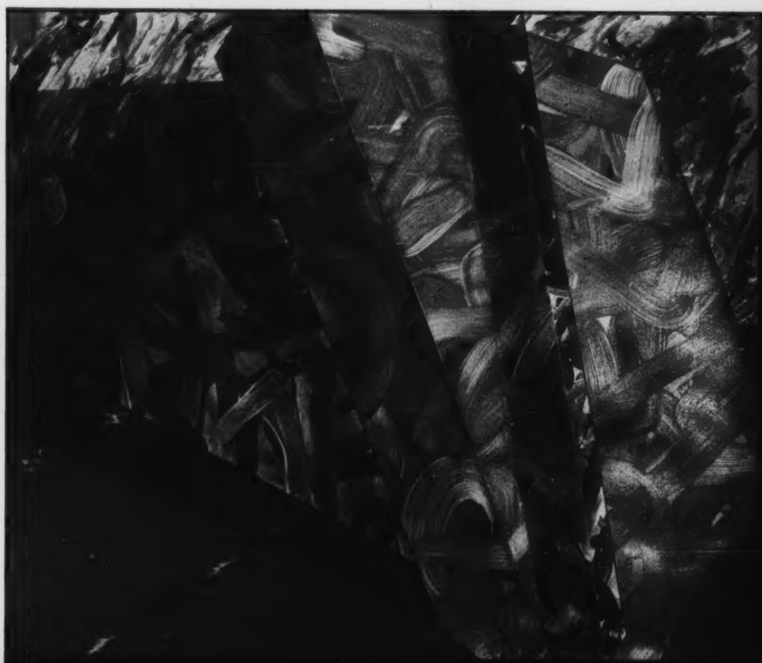
"WALTON, LATE SUMMER STORM 1983" oil on canvas 46" x 46"

DORRY GATES GALLERY
BOX 7264 KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI (816) 523-4403

We'll make you work hard so you'll have an easier time getting the job you want. For information about our programs in Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts and Photography, call (617) 262-2844.

THE ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON
700 Beacon St. Boston, MA 02215
We'll put your creativity to work.

GP
BROWN SHAPIRO
CARBONI SOLIEN
ROSE SORMAN
BOOTH #3-113
GETLER/PALL
50 WEST 57TH N.Y. 581-2724



GLENN JAMPOL

April 29- May 28, 1983

KLEIN GALLERY

356 WEST HURON

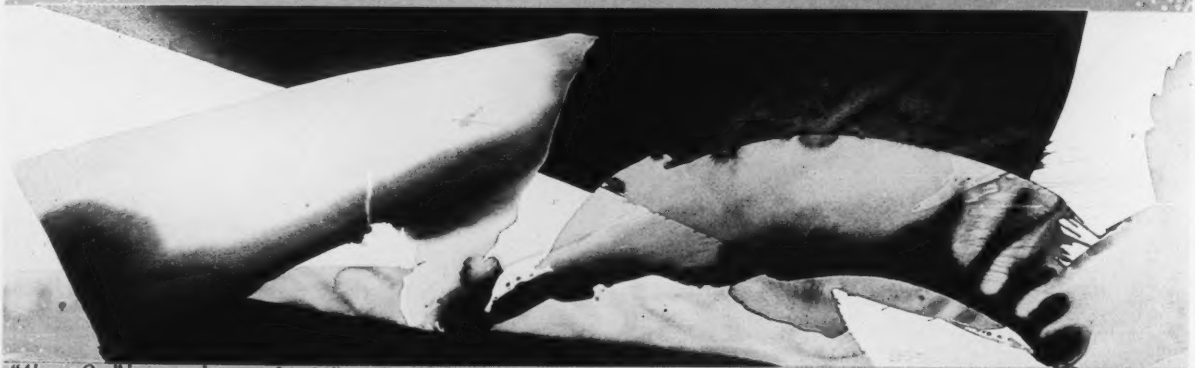
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610

312/787-0400

"WIRED FOR NIGHT" ■ 1983 ■ ACRYLIC ON PAPER ■ 38" x 45"

ART 1983 CHICAGO May 19-24

Peter Kitchell•May 7-June 11



"Almost Out," lacquered watercolor, 29" x 96" ©P. Kitchell

Judith Christian Gallery

110 Greene St., New York, 10012 • (212) 431-8601

Gallery Hours: Saturdays 11-6, or by appointment.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
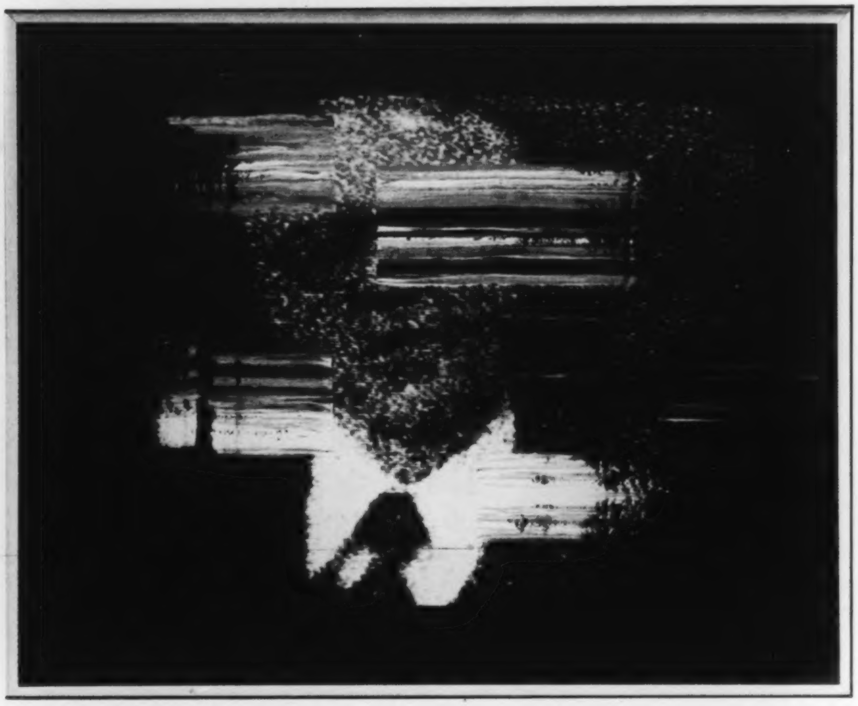
UMI



Painting and Television 1981 16" x 20"

Arthur Toegemann

RECENT WORK

Dattorro's Studio Gallery
5 Steeple Street
Providence, Rhode Island

May 8, 1983 – May 29, 1983

Gallery Hours:
Wed. thru Fri., 12 p.m. to 4 p.m.
Saturday 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.
Sunday 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.
Closed Holidays

401-785-9604
U.S.A.

Charles-Louis LA SALLE

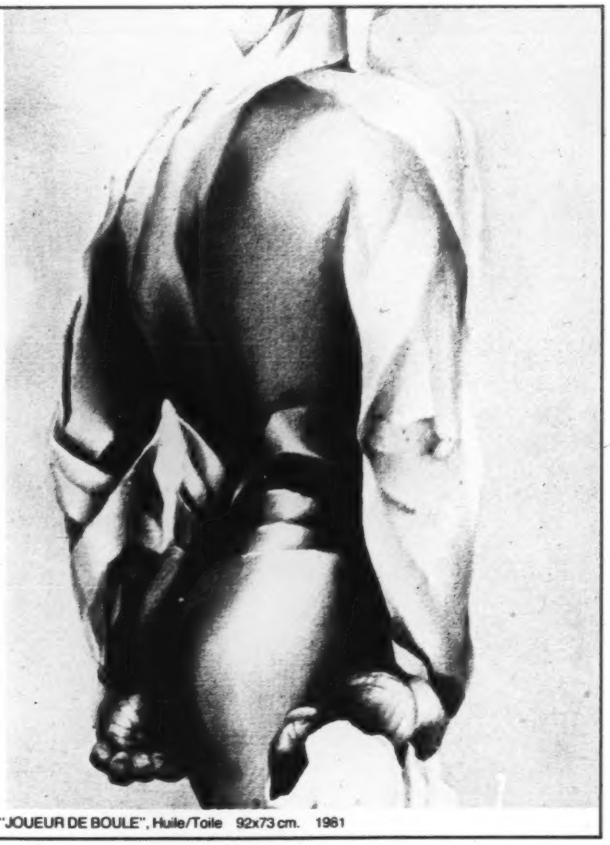
"EROS HEROS"

May 3 - May 29

Other works by

Diego Rivera
Rufino Tamayo
David Siqueiros
Dr. Atl
José Maria Velasco
Carlos Merida
Joan Miró
Salvador Dali
Claudio Bravo

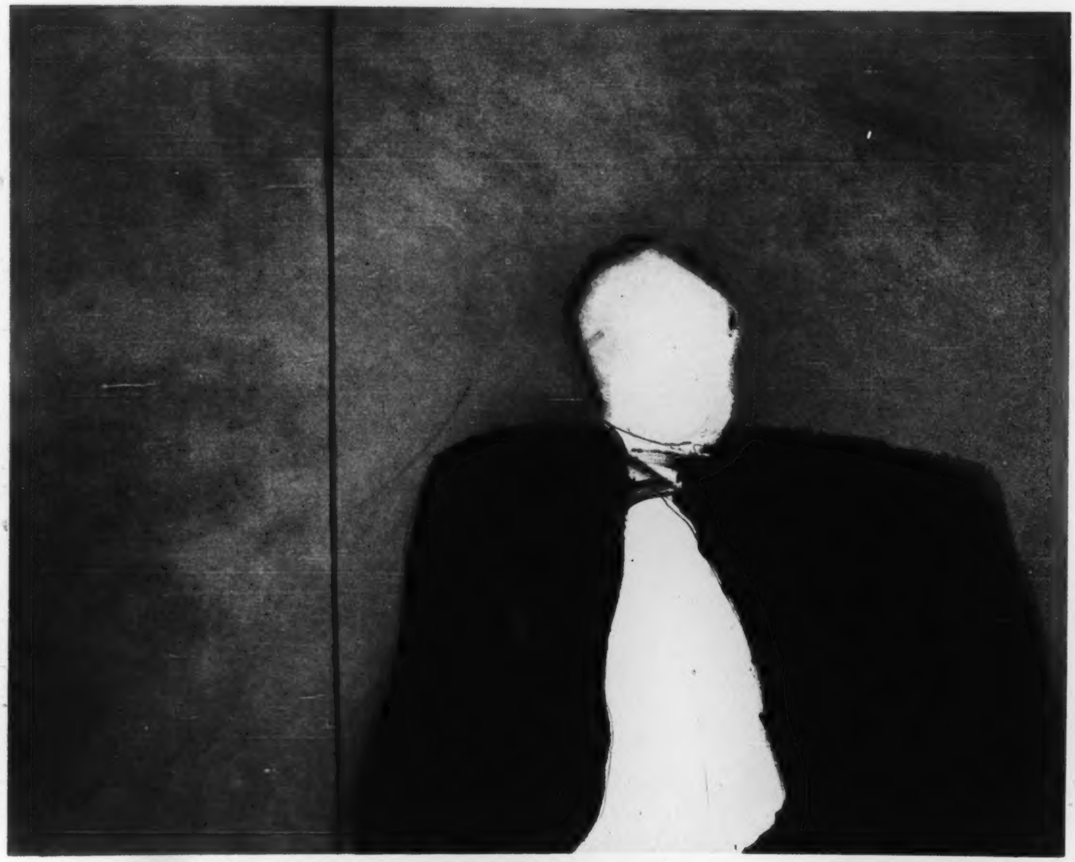
Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314



"JOUEUR DE BOULE", Huile/Toile 92x73 cm. 1981

franzheim

recent works



anchor man, 1981, 114 x 146 cm

6 may - 19 june in a new location

galeries d'art international

paris - chicago

720 s. dearborn st. chicago, illinois 60605
tel. (312) 427-1555

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Jean-Léon Gérôme: The Slave Market, early 1860s, oil on canvas, 33 3/16 by 24 13/16 inches. Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute.

Art in America

The Imaginary Orient

A recent exhibition and catalogue of 19th-century French Orientalist painting raised questions other than the usual art-historical ones—political questions concerning the links between realism and power, violence and the picturesque.

BY LINDA NOCHLIN

What is more European, after all, than to be corrupted by the Orient?
—Richard Howard

What is the rationale behind the recent spate of revisionist or expansionist exhibitions of 19th-century art—"The Age of Revolution," "The Second Empire," "The Realist Tradition," "Northern Light," "Women Artists," various shows of academic art, etc.? Is it simply to rediscover overlooked or forgotten works of art? Is it to re-evaluate the material, to create a new and less value-laden canon? These are the kinds of questions that were raised—more or less unintentionally, one suspects—by the recent exhibition and catalogue "Orientalism: The Near East in French Painting 1800–1880."[1]

Above all, the Orientalist exhibition makes us wonder whether there are other questions besides the "normal" art-historical ones that ought to be asked of this material. The organizer of the show, Donald Rosenthal, suggests that there are indeed important issues at stake here, but he deliberately stops short of confronting them. "The unifying characteristic of nineteenth-century Orientalism was its attempt at documentary realism," he declares in the introduction to the catalogue, and then goes on to maintain, quite correctly, that "the flowering of Orientalist painting . . . was closely associated with the apogee of European colonialist expansion in the nineteenth century." Yet, having referred to Edward Said's critical definition of Orientalism in Western literature "as a mode for defining the presumed cultural inferiority of the Islamic Orient . . . part of the vast control mechanism of colonialism, designed to justify and perpetuate European dominance," Rosenthal immediately rejects this analysis; in his own study, "French Orientalist painting will be discussed in terms of its aesthetic quality and historical interest, and no attempt will be made at a re-evaluation of its political uses."[2]

In other words, art-historical business as usual. Having raised the two crucial issues of political domination and ideology, Rosenthal drops them like hot potatoes. Yet surely most of the pictures in the exhibition—indeed the key notion of Orientalism itself—cannot be confronted without a critical analysis of the particular power structure in which these works came into being. For instance, the degree of realism (or lack of it) in individual Orientalist images can hardly be discussed without some attempt to clarify whose reality we are talking about.

What are we to make, for example, of Jean-Léon Gérôme's Snake Charmer, painted in the late 1860s, now in the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown, Mass.? Surely it may most profitably be considered as a visual document of 19th-century colonialist ideology, an iconic distillation of the Westerner's notion of the Oriental couched in the language of a would-be transparent naturalism. (No wonder Said used it as the dust-jacket for his critical study of the phenomenon of Orientalism!)[3] The title, however, doesn't really tell the complete story; the painting should really be called "The Snake Charmer and his Audience," for we are clearly meant to look at both performer and audience as parts of the same spectacle. We are not, as we so often are in Impressionist works of this period—works like Manet's or Degas's Café Concerts, for example, which are set in Paris—invited to identify with the audience. The watchers huddled against the ferociously detailed tiled wall in the background of Gérôme's painting are as resolutely alienated from us as is the act they watch with such childish, trancelike concentration. Our gaze is meant to include both the spectacle and its spectators as objects of picturesque delectation.

Clearly, these black and brown folk are mystified—but then again, so are we. Indeed, the defining mood of the painting is mystery, and it is created by a specific pictorial device. We are permitted only a beguiling rear view of the boy holding the snake. A full frontal view, which would reveal unambiguously both his sex and the fullness of his dangerous performance, is denied us. And the insistent, sexually charged mystery at the center of this painting signifies a more general one: the mystery of the East itself, a standard topos of Orientalist ideology.

Despite, or perhaps because of, the insistent richness of the visual diet Gérôme offers—the manifest attractions of the young protagonist's rosy buttocks and muscular thighs; the wrinkles of the venerable snake charmer to his right; the varied delights offered by the picturesque crowd and the alluring-

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Gérôme: The Snake Charmer, late 1860s, oil on canvas, 33 by 48 inches. Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, Williamstown, Mass.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

ly elaborate surfaces of the authentic Turkish tiles, carpet and basket which serve as decor—we are haunted by certain absences in the painting. These absences are so conspicuous that, once we become aware of them, they begin to function as presences, in fact, as signs of a certain kind of conceptual deprivation.

One absence is the absence of history. Time stands still in Gérôme's painting, as it does in all imagery qualified as "picturesque," including 19th-century representations of peasants in France itself. Gérôme suggests that this Oriental world is a world without change, a world of timeless, atemporal customs and rituals, untouched by the historical processes that were "afflicting" or "improving" but, at any rate, drastically altering Western societies at the time. Yet these were in fact years of violent and conspicuous change in the Near East as well, changes affected primarily by Western power—technological, military, economic, cultural—and specifically by the very French presence Gérôme so scrupulously avoids.

In the very time when and place where Gérôme's picture was painted, the late 1860s in Constantinople, the government of Napoleon III was taking an active interest (as were the governments of Russia, Austria and Great Britain) in the efforts of the Ottoman government to reform and modernize itself. "It was necessary to change Muslim habits, to destroy the age-old fanaticism which was an obstacle to the fusion of races and to create a modern secular state," declared French historian Edouard Driault in La Question d'Orient (1898). "It was necessary to transform . . . the education of both conquerors and subjects, and inculcate in both the unknown spirit of tolerance—a noble task, worthy of the great renown of France," he continued.

In 1863 the Ottoman Bank was founded, with the controlling interest in French hands. In 1867 the French government invited the Sultan to visit Paris and recommended to him a system of secular public education and the undertaking of great public works and communication systems. In 1868 under the joint direction of the Turkish Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the French Ambassador, the Lycée of Galata-Serai was opened, a great secondary school open to Ottoman subjects of every race and creed, where Europeans taught more than 600 boys the French language—"a symbol," Driault maintained, "of the action of France, exerting herself to instruct the peoples of the Orient in her own language the elements of Western civilization." In the same year, a company consisting mainly of French capitalists received a concession for railways to connect present-day Istanbul and Salonica with the existing railways on the Middle Danube.[4]

The absence of a sense of history, of temporal change, in Gérôme's painting is intimately related to another striking absence in the work: that of the telltale presence of Western man. There are never any Europeans in "picturesque" views of the Orient like these. Indeed, it might be said that one of the defining features of Orientalist painting is its dependence for its very existence on a presence that is always an absence: the Western colonial or touristic presence.

Orientalist painting depicts a world of timeless customs and rituals, untouched by the historical processes that were drastically altering Western society at the time.

The white man, the Westerner, is of course always implicitly present in Orientalist paintings like the Snake Charmer; his is necessarily the controlling gaze, the gaze which brings the Oriental world into being, the gaze for which it is ultimately intended. And this leads us to still another absence. Part of the strategy of an Orientalist painter like Gérôme is to make his viewers forget that there was any "bringing into being" at all, to convince them that works like these were simply "reflections," scientific in their exactitude, of a preexisting Oriental reality.

In his own time Gérôme was held to be dauntingly objective and scientific and was compared in this respect with Realist novelists. As an American critic declared in 1873:

> Gérôme has the reputation of being one of the most studious and conscientiously accurate painters of our time. In a certain sense he may even be called "learned." He believes as firmly as Charles Reade does in the obligation on the part of the artist to be true even in minute matters to the period and locality of a work pretending to historical character. Balzac is said to have made a journey of several hundreds of miles in order to verify certain apparently insignificant facts concerning a locality described in one of his novels. Of Gérôme, it is alleged that he never paints a picture without the most patient and exhaustive preliminary studies of every matter connected with his subject. In the accessories of costume, furniture, etc. it is invariably his aim to attain the utmost possible exactness. It is this trait in which some declare an excess, that has caused him to be spoken of as a "scientific picture maker."[5]

The strategies of the "realist" (or perhaps "pseudo-realist," "authenticist" or "naturalist" would be better terms) mystification go hand-in-hand with those of Orientalist mystification. Hence, another absence which constitutes a significant presence in the painting: the absence—that is to say, the apparent absence—of art. As Leo Bersani has pointed out in his article on realism and the fear of desire, "The 'seriousness' of realist art is based on the absence of any reminder of the fact that it is really a question of art."[6] No other artist has so inexorably eradicated all traces of the picture plane as Gérôme, denying us any clue to the art work as a literal flat surface.

If we compare a painting like Gérôme's Street in Algiers with its prototype, Delacroix's Street in Meknes, we immediately see that Gérôme, in the interest of "artlessness," of innocent, Orientalist transparency, goes much farther than Delacroix in supplying picturesque data to the Western observer, and in veiling the fact that the image consists of paint on canvas. A "naturalist" or "authenticist" artist like Gérôme tries to make us forget that his art is really art, both by concealing the evidence of his touch, and, at the same time, by insisting on a plethora of authenticating details, especially on what might be called unnecessary ones. These include not merely the "carefully executed Turkish tile patterns" that Richard Ettinghausen pointed out in a recent Gérôme catalogue; not merely the artist's renditions of Arabic inscriptions which, Ettinghausen maintains, "can be easily read";[7] but even the "later repair" on the tile-work, which, functioning at first sight rather like the barometer on the piano in Flaubert's description of Mme. Aubain's drawing room in "Un coeur simple," creates what Roland Barthes has called "the reality effect" [l'effet de rêel].[8]

Such details, supposedly there to denote the real directly, are actually there simply to signify its presence in the work as a whole. As Barthes points out, the major function of gratuitous, accurate details like these is to announce "we are the real." They are signifiers of the category of the real, there to give credibility to the "realness" of the work as a whole, to authenticate the total visual field as a simple, artless reflection—in this case, of a supposed Oriental reality.

Yet if we look again, we can see that the objectively described repairs in the tiles have still another function, a moralizing one which assumes meaning only within the apparently objectivized context of the scene as a whole. Neglected, ill-repaired architecture functions, in 19th-century Orientalist art, as a standard topos for commenting on the corruption of contemporary Islamic society. Kenneth Bendiner has collected striking examples of this device, in both the paintings and the writings of 19th-century artists. For instance, British painter David Roberts, documenting his Holy Land and Egypt and Nubia, wrote from Cairo in 1838 about "splendid cities, once teeming with a busy population and embellished with . . . edifices, the wonder of the world, now deserted and lonely, or reduced by mismanagement and the barbarism of the Moslem creed, to a state as savage as the wild animals by which they are surrounded." At another time, explaining the existence of certain ruins in its environs, he declared that Cairo "contains, I think, more idle people than any town its size in the world."[9]

The vice of idleness was frequently commented upon by Western travelers to Islamic countries in the 19th century, and in relation to it, we can observe still another striking absence in the annals of Orientalist art: the absence of scenes of work and industry, despite the fact that some Western observers commented on the Egyptian fellahin's long hours of back-breaking labor, and on the ceaseless work of Egyptian women engaged in the fields and in domestic labor.[10]

When Gérôme's painting is seen within this context of supposed Near Eastern idleness and neglect, what might at first appear to be objectively described architectural fact turns out to be architecture moralisée. The lesson is subtle, perhaps, but still eminently available, given a context of similar topoi: these people—lazy, slothful and childlike, if colorful—have let their own cultural treasures sink into decay. There is a clear allusion here, clothed in the language of objective reportage, not merely to the mystery of the East, but to the barbaric insouciance of Moslem peoples, who quite literally charm snakes while Constantinople falls into ruins.

What I am trying to get at, of course, is the obvious truth that in this painting Gérôme is not reflecting a readymade reality but, like all artists, is producing meanings. If I seem to dwell on the issue of authenticating details, it is because not only Gérôme's contemporaries, but some present-day revisionist revivers of Gérôme, and of Orientalist painting in general, insist so strongly on the objectivity and credibility of Gérôme's view of the Near East, using this sort of detail as evidence for their claims.

The fact that Gérôme and other Orientalist "realists" used photographic documentation is often brought in to support claims to the objectivity of the works in question. Indeed, Gérôme seems to have relied on photographs for some of his architectural detail, and critics in both his own time and in ours compare his work to photography. But of course, there is photography and photography. Photography itself is hardly immune to the blandishments of Orientalism, and even a presumably innocent or neutral view of architecture can be ideologized.

The absence of history in Orientalist painting is intimately related to another striking absence: that of the telltale presence of Western man.

A commercially produced tourist version of the Bab Mansour at Meknes "orientalizes" the subject, producing the image the tourist would like to remember—picturesque, relatively timeless, the gate itself photographed at a dramatic angle, reemphasized by dramatic contrasts of light and shadow, and further "picturesquified" by the floating cloud which silhouettes it to the left. Plastic variation, architectural values and colorful surface are all played up in the professional shot; at the same time, all evidence of contemporaneity and contradiction—that Meknes is a modern as well as a traditional city, filled with tourists and business-people from East and West; that cars and buses are used as well as donkeys and horses—is suppressed by the "official" photograph. A photo by an amateur, however, foregrounding cars and buses and the swell of empty macadam, subordinates the picturesque and renders the gate itself flat and incoherent. In this snapshot, Orientalism is reduced to the presence of a few weary crenellations to the right. But this image is simply the bad example in the "how - to - take - good - photographs - on - your - trip book" which teaches the novice how to approximate her experience to the official version of visual reality.

But of course, there is Orientalism and Orientalism. If for painters like Gérôme the Near East existed as an actual place to be mystified with effects of realness, for other artists it existed as a project of the imagination, a fantasy space or screen onto which strong desires—erotic, sadistic or both—could be projected with impunity. The Near-Eastern setting of Delacroix's Death of Sardanapalus (created, it is important to emphasize, before the artist's own trip to North Africa in 1832) does not function as a field of ethnographic exploration. It is, rather, a stage for the playing out, from a suitable distance, of forbidden passions—the artist's own fantasies (need it be said?) as well as those of the doomed Near-Eastern monarch.

Delacroix evidently did his Orientalist homework for the painting, probably reading descriptions in Herodotus and Diodorus Sicilis of ancient Oriental debauchery, and dipping into passages in Quintus Curtius on Babylonian orgies, examining an Etruscan fresco or two, perhaps even looking at some Indian miniatures.[11] But it is obvious that a thirst for accuracy was hardly a major impulse behind the creation of this work. Nor, in this version of Orientalism—Romantic, if you will, and created 40 years before Gérôme's—is it Western man's power over the Near East that is at issue, but rather, I believe, contemporary Frenchmen's power over women, a power controlled and mediated by the ideology of the erotic in Delacroix's time.

"In dreams begin responsibilities," a poet once said. Perhaps. Certainly, we are on surer footing asserting that in power begin dreams—dreams of still greater power (in this case, fantasies of men's limitless power to enjoy the bodies of women by destroying them). It would be absurd to reduce Delacroix's complex painting to a mere pictorial projection of the artist's sadistic fanta-

VOL 7 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Eugène Delacroix: Street in Meknes, 1832, oil on canvas, 33 by 25 ⅛ inches. Albright-Knox.

Gérôme: Street in Algiers, 37 by 28 inches.

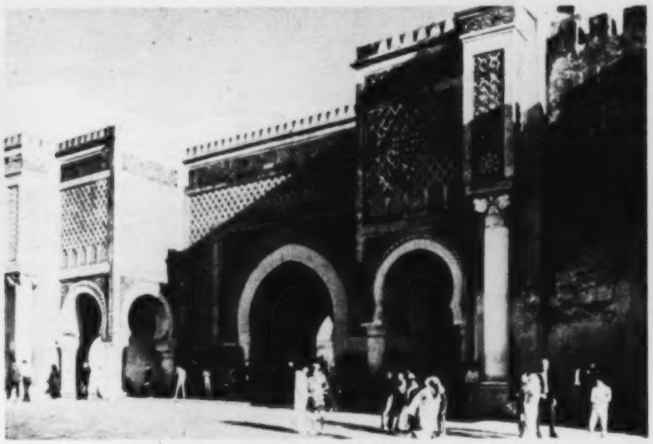
Contemporary amateur photograph of the Bab Mansour at Meknes.



"Official" tourist photograph of the Bab Mansour.

sies under the guise of Orientalism. Yet it is not totally irrelevant to keep in mind that the vivid turbulence of Delacroix's narrative—the story of the ancient Assyrian ruler Sardanapalus, who, upon hearing of his incipient defeat, had all his precious possessions, including his women, destroyed and then went up in flames with them—is subtended by the more mundane assumption, shared by men of Delacroix's class and time, that they were naturally "entitled" to the bodies of certain women. If the men were artists like Delacroix, it was assumed that they had more or less unlimited access to the bodies of the women who worked for them as models. In other words, Delacroix's private fantasy did not exist in a vacuum, but in a particular social context which granted permission for as well as established the boundaries of certain kinds of behavior.

Within this context, the Orientalizing setting of Delacroix's painting both signifies an extreme state of psychic intensity and formalizes that state through various conventions of representation. But it allows only so much and no more. It is difficult, for example, to imagine a Death of Cleopatra, with voluptuous nude male slaves being put to death by women servants, painted by a woman artist of this period.[12]

At the same time he emphasized the sexually provocative aspects of his theme, Delacroix attempted to defuse his overt pictorial expression of men's total domination of women in a variety of ways. He distanced his fears and desires by letting them explode in an Orientalized setting and by filtering them through a Byronic prototype. But at the same time, the motif of a group of naked, beautiful women put to the sword is not taken from ancient versions of the Sardanapalus story, although the lasciviousness of Oriental potentates was a staple of many such accounts.[13] Nor was it Byron's invention but, significantly, Delacroix's own.[14]

The artist participates in the carnage by placing at the blood-red heart of the picture a surrogate self—the recumbent Sardanapalus on his bed. But Sardanapalus holds himself aloof, in the pose of the philosopher, from the sensual tumult which surrounds him; he is an artist-destroyer who is ultimately to be consumed in the flames of his own creation-destruction. His dandyish coolness in the face of sensual provocation of the highest order—what might be called his "orientalized" remoteness and conventionalized pose—may indeed have helped Delacroix justify to himself his own erotic extremism, the fulfilment of sadistic impulse in the painting. It did not satisfy the contemporary public. Despite the brilliant feat of artistic semisublimation pulled off here, both public and critics were for the most part appalled by the work when it first appeared in the Salon of 1828.[15]

The aloofness of the hero of the piece, its Orientalizing strategies of distancing, its references to the outrê mores of long-dead Near-Eastern oligarchs fooled no one, really. Although criticism was generally directed more against the painting's supposed formal failings, it is obvious that by depicting this type of subject with such obvious sensual relish, such erotic panache and openness, Delacroix had come too close to an overt statement of the most explosive, hence the most carefully repressed, corollary of the ideology of male domination: the connection between sexual possession and murder as an assertion of absolute enjoyment.

The fantasy of absolute possession of women's naked bodies—a fantasy which for men of Delacroix's time was partly based on specific practice in the institution of prostitution or, more specifically, in the case of artists on the availability of studio models for sexual as well as professional services—also lies at the heart of such typical topoi of Orientalist imagery as Gérôme's various Slave Markets, like the examples in Williamstown and Cincinnati. These are ostensibly realistic representations of the authentic customs of picturesque Near Easterners. Indeed, Maxime Du Camp, a fellow-traveler in the picturesque byways of the Middle East, remarked of Gérôme's painting (or of one like it): "Gerome's Slave Market is a fact literally reproduced .... People go [to the slave market] to purchase a slave as they do here to the market ... to buy a turbot."[16]

Obviously, the motivations behind the creation of such Orientalist erotica, and the appetite for it, had little to do with pure ethnography. Artists like Gérôme could dish up the same theme—the display of naked, powerless women to clothed, powerful men—in a variety of guises, that of the Antique slave-market, for instance, or in the subject of Phryne before the Tribunal. What lies behind the production of such popular stimuli to simultaneous lip-licking and tongue-clicking is, of course, the satisfaction that the delicious humiliation of lovely slave girls gives to the moralistic voyeur. They are depicted as innocents, trapped against their will in some far-off place, their nakedness more to be pitied than censured; they also display an ingratiating tendency to cover their eyes rather than their seductive bodies.

Why was it that Gérôme's Orientalist assertions of masculine power over feminine nakedness were popular, and appeared frequently in the Salons of the mid-19th century, whereas earlier Delacroix's Sardanapalus had been greeted with outrage? Some of the answers have to do with the different historical contexts in which these works originated, but some have to do with the character of the paintings themselves. Gérôme's fantasia on the theme of sexual politics (the Clark collection Slave Market, for example) has been more successfully ideologized than Delacroix's, and this ideologizing is achieved precisely through the work's formal structure. Gérôme's version was more acceptable because he substituted a chilly and remote pseudo-scientific naturalism—small, self-effacing brush strokes; "rational" and convincing spatial effects; in other words, an apparently dispassionate empiricism—for Delacroix's tempestuous self-involvement, his impassioned brushwork, subjectively outpouring perspective, and inventive, sensually self-revelatory dancelike poses. Gérôme's style justified his subject—perhaps not to us, who are cannier readers—but certainly to most of the spectators of his time, by guaranteeing through sober "objectivity" the unassailable Otherness of the characters in his narrative. He is saying in effect: "Don't think that I or any other right-thinking Frenchman would ever be involved in this sort of thing. I am merely taking careful note of the fact that less enlightened races indulge in the trade in naked women—but isn't it arousing!"

The Orientalist artist tries to conceal his art, insisting on a plethora of details which authenticate the total visual field as a simple, artless reflection of a supposed Oriental reality.

Like many other artworks of his time, Gérôme's Orientalist painting managed to body forth two ideological assumptions about power: one about men's power over women; the other about white men's superiority to, hence justifiable control over, inferior, darker races, precisely those who indulge in this sort of regrettably lascivious commerce. Or we might say that something even more complex is involved in Gérôme's strategies vis-à-vis the homme moyen sensuel: the (male) viewer was invited sexually to identify with, yet morally to distance himself from, his oriental counterparts depicted within the objectively inviting yet racially distancing space of the painting.

Manet's Ball at the Opera of 1873 may, for the purposes of our analysis, be read as a combative response to and subversion of the ideological assumptions controlling Gérôme's Slave Market. Like Gérôme's painting, Manet's work (to borrow a phrase from the German critic Meier-Graefe, who greatly admired it) represents a Fleischbörse—a flesh-market. Unlike Gérôme, however, Manet represented the marketing of attractive women not in a suitably distanced Near-Eastern locale, but behind the galleries of the opera house on the rue Lepeletier. The buyers of female flesh are not Oriental louts but civilized and recognizable Parisians, debonair men about town, Manet's friends and, in some cases, fellow artists, whom he had asked to pose for him. And the flesh in question is not represented au naturel, but sauced up in the most charming and provocative fancy-dress costumes. Unlike Gérôme's painting, which had been accepted for the Salon of 1867, Manet's was rejected for that of 1874.

I should like to suggest, however, that the reason for Manet's rejection was not merely the daring close-to-homeness of his representation of the availability of feminine sexuality and male consumption of it. Nor was it merely, as his friend and defender at the time Stéphane Mallarmé suggested, its formal daring—its immediacy, its dash, its deliberate yet casual-looking cut-off view of the spectacle. It was rather the way these two kinds of subversive impulse are made to intersect. Manet's rejection of the myth of stylistic transparency in a painting depicting erotic commercial transactions is precisely what calls into question the underlying assumptions governing Gérôme's Orientalist version of the same theme.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

By interrupting the unimpeded flow of the story-line with the margins of his image, Manet frankly reveals the assumptions on which such narratives are premised. The cut-off legs and torso on the balcony are a witty, ironic reference to the actual motivations controlling such gatherings of upper-middle-class men and charming women of the theater: pleasure for the former; profit for the latter. The little legs and torso constitute a witty synecdoche, a substitution of part for whole, a trope par excellence of critical realism—a trope indicating the sexual availability of delectable female bodies for willing buyers. By means of a similar synecdoche—the half-Polichinelle to the left, cut off by the left-hand margin of the canvas—Manet suggests the presence of the artist-entrepreneur half-inside, half-outside the world of the painting; at the same time, he further asserts the status of the image as a work of art. By means of a brilliant, deconstructive-realist strategy, Manet has at once made us aware of the artifice of art, as opposed to Gérôme's solemn, pseudo-scientific denial of it with his illusionistic naturalism. At the same time, through the apparently accidentally amputated female legs and torso, Manet foregrounds the nature of the actual transaction taking place in the worldly scene he has chosen to represent.[17]

Despite his insistence on accuracy as the guarantee of veracity, Gérôme himself was not beyond the blandishments of the artful. In his bath scenes, the presence of a Cairene sunken fountain with two-color marble inlay in the foreground and a beautiful silver-inlaid brass basin with its Mamluk coat-of-arms held by a Sudanese servant girl (as well as the inevitable Turkish tiles) indicate a will to ethnographic exactitude. Still, Gérôme makes sure we see his nude subject as art as well as mere reportage. This he does by means of tactful reference to what might be called the "original oriental backview"—Ingres's Valpinçon Bather. The abstract linearism of Ingres is qualified and softened in Gérôme's painting, but is clearly meant to signify the presence of tradition: Gérôme has decked out the products of his flesh-market with the signs of the artistic. His later work often reveals a kind of anxiety or a division—what might be called the Kitsch dilemma—between efforts to maintain the fiction of pure transparency—a so-called photographic realism—and the need to prove that he is more than a mere transcriber, that his work is artistic.

This anxiety is heightened when the subject in question is a female nude—that is to say, when an object of desire is concerned. Gérôme's anxiety about proving his "artistic-ness" at the same time that he panders to the taste for naturalistic bodies and banal fantasy is revealed most obviously in his various paintings of artists and models, whether the artist in question is Pygmalion or simply Gérôme himself in his studio. In the latter case, he depicts himself surrounded by testimonials to his professional achievement and his responsiveness to the classical tradition. For Gérôme, the classical would seem to be a product that he confects matter-of-factly in his studio. The sign of the artistic—sometimes absorbed into, sometimes in obvious conflict with the fabric of the painting as a whole—is a hallmark of quality in the work of art, increasing its value as a product on the art-market.

The fantasy of men's absolute possession of women's naked bodies—based in part on the practice of prostitution—lies at the heart of such typical Orientalist topoi as Gerome's "Slave Markets."

Like the artistic back, the presence of the black servant in Gérôme's Orientalist bath scenes serves what might be called connotative as well as strictly ethnographic purposes. We are of course familiar with the notion that the black servant somehow enhances the pearly beauty of her white mistress—a strategy employed from the time of Ingres, in an Orientalist mood, to that of Manet's Olympia, in which the black figure of the maid seems to be an indicator of sexual naughtiness. But in the purest distillations of the Orientalist bath scene—like Gérôme's, or Debat-Ponsan's The Massage of 1883—the very passivity of the lovely white figure as opposed to the vigorous activity of the worn, unfeminine ugly black one, suggests that the passive nude beauty is explictly being prepared for service in the Sultan's bed. This sense of erotic availability is spiced with still more forbidden overtones, for the conjunction of black and white, or dark and light female bodies, whether naked or in the guise of mistress and maid-servant, has traditionally signified lesbianism.[18]

Like other artists of his time, Gérôme sought out instances of the picturesque in the religious practices of the natives of the Middle East. This sort of religious ethnographic imagery attempted to create a sleek, harmonious vision of the Islamic world as traditional, pious and unthreatening, in direct contradiction to the grim realities of history. On the one hand, the cultural and political violence visited on the Islamic peoples of France's own colony, Algeria, by laws like Senatus Consulte in the '60s had divided up the communally held lands of the native tribes. On the other hand, specific violence was visited against native religious practices by the French Society of Missionaries in Algeria, when, profiting from widespread famine at the end of 1867, they offered the unfortunate orphans who fell under their power food at the price of conversion. Finally, Algerian tribes reacted with religion-inspired violence to French oppression and colonization; in the Holy War of 1871, 100,000 tribesmen under Bachaga Mohammed Mokrani revolted under the banner of Islamic idealism.[19]

It is probably no coincidence that Gérôme avoided French North Africa as the setting for his mosque paintings, choosing Cairo instead for these religious tableaux vivants, in which the worshippers seem as rigid, as rooted in the intricate grounding of tradition and as immobilized as the scrupulously recorded architecture which surrounds them and echoes their forms. Indeed, taxidermy rather than ethnography seems to be the informing discipline here: these images have something of the sense of specimens stuffed and mounted within settings of irreproachable accuracy and displayed in airless cases. And like the exhibits displayed behind glass in the natural-history museum, these paintings include everything within their boundaries—everything, that is, except a sense of life, the vivifying breath of shared human experience.

What are the functions of the picturesque, of which this sort of religious ethnography is one manifestation? Obviously, in Orientalist imagery of subject peoples' religious practices one of its functions is to mask conflict with the appearance of tranquility. The picturesque is pursued throughout the 19th century like a form of peculiarly elusive wildlife, requiring increasingly skillful tracking as the delicate prey—an endangered species—disappears further and further into the hinterlands, in France as in the Near East. The same society that was engaged in wiping out local customs and traditional practices was also avid to preserve them in the form of records—verbal, in the way of travel accounts or archival materials; musical, in the recording of folk songs; linguistic, in the study of dialects or folk tales; or visual, as here.

Yet surely, the very notion of the picturesque in its 19th-century manifestations is premised on the fact of destruction. Only on the brink of destruction, in the course of incipient modification and cultural dilution, are customs, costumes and religious rituals of the dominated finally seen as picturesque. Reinterpreted as the precious remnants of disappearing ways of life, worth hunting down and preserving, they are finally transformed into subjects of esthetic delectation in an imagery in which exotic human beings are integrated within a presumably defining and overtly limiting decor. Another important function, then, of the picturesque—Orientalizing in this case—is to certify that the people encapsulated by it, defined by its presence, are irredeemably different from, more backward than and culturally inferior to those who construct and consume the picturesque product. They are irrevocably "Other."

Orientalism, then, can be viewed under the aegis of the more general category of the picturesque, a category that can encompass a wide variety of visual objects and ideological strategies, extending from regional genre painting down to the photographs of smiling or dancing natives in the National Geographic. It is no accident that Gérôme's North African Islamic procession and Jules Breton's or Dagnon-Bouveret's depictions of Breton Catholic ceremonies have a family resemblance. Both represent backward, oppressed peoples sticking to traditional practices. These works are united as well by shared stylistic strategies: the "reality effect" and the strict avoidance of any hint of conceptual identification or shared viewpoint with their subjects, which could, for example, have been suggested by alternative conventions of representation.

How does a work avoid the picturesque? There are, after all, alternatives. Neither Courbet's Burial at Ornans nor Gauguin's Day of the God fall within the category of the picturesque.

Edouard Manet: Ball at the Opera, 1873, oil on canvas, 23 ¾ by 29 inches. National Gallery.

Gérôme: The Slave Market, *early 1860s,
29 ½ by 23 ½ inches. Cincinnati Art Museum.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Delacroix: Death of Sardanapalus, 1827–28, oil on canvas, 13 by 16 ¼ feet. Musée du Louvre.

Courbet, for whom the "natives" included his own friends and family, borrowed some of the conventions of popular imagery—conventions signifying the artist's solidarity, indeed identity, with the country people represented. At the same time he enlarged the format and insisted upon the—decidedly nonpicturesque—insertion of contemporary costume. Gauguin, for his part, denied the picturesque by rejecting what he conceived of as the lies of illusionism and the ideology of progress—in resorting to flatness, decorative simplification and references to "primitive" art—that is to say, by rejecting the signifiers of Western rationalism, progress and objectivity in toto.

Delacroix's relation to the picturesque is central to an understanding of the nature and the limits of 19th-century Orientalism. He admired Morocco when he saw it on his trip accompanying the Comte de Mornay's diplomatic mission in 1832, comparing Moroccans to classical senators and feverishly recording every aspect of Moroccan life in his notebooks. Nevertheless, he knew where to draw the line between Them and Us. For him, Morocco was inevitably picturesque. He clearly distinguished between its visual beauty—including the dignified, unselfconscious deportment of the natives—which he treasured, and its moral quality, which he deplored. "This is a place," he wrote to his old friend Villot from Tangiers, "completely for painters. Economists and Saint-Simonians would have a lot to criticize here with respect to the rights of man before the law, but the beautiful abounds here."[20] And he distinguished with equal clarity between the picturesqueness of North African people and settings in general, and the weaknesses of the Orientals' own vision of themselves in their art. Speaking of some Persian portraits and drawings, he remarks in the pages of his Journal that the sight of them "made me repeat what Voltaire said somewhere—that there are vast countries where taste has never penetrated. . . . There are in these drawings neither perspective nor any feeling for what is truly painting . . . the figures are immobile, the poses stiff, etc."[21]

The violence visited upon North African people by the West was rarely depicted by Orientalist painting; it was, in fact, denied in the painting of religious ethnography. But the violence of Orientals to each other was a favored theme. Strange and exotic punishments, hi-

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
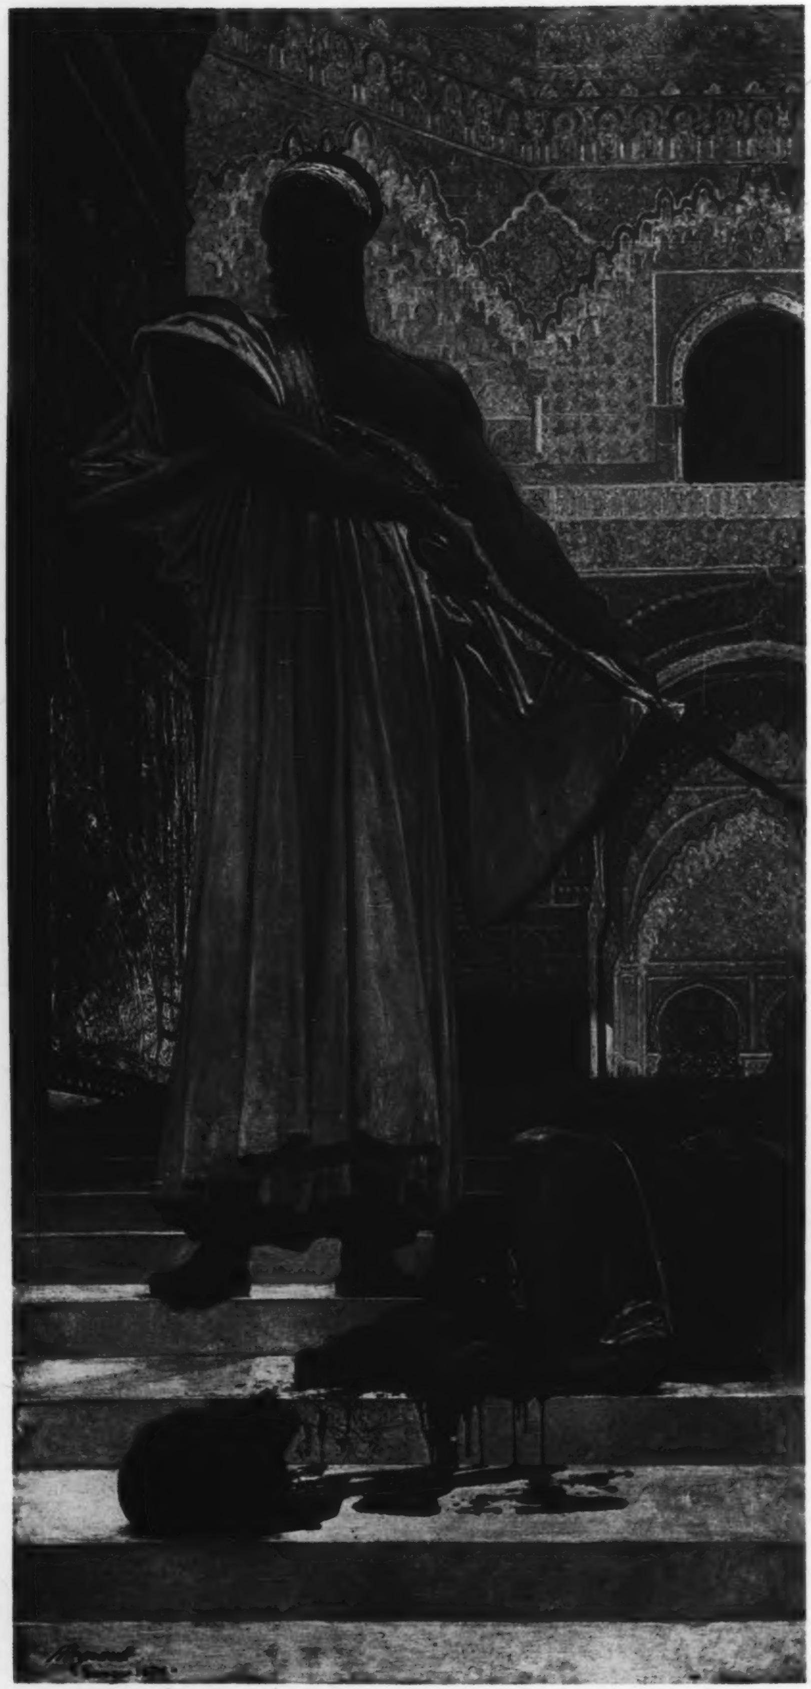
UMI



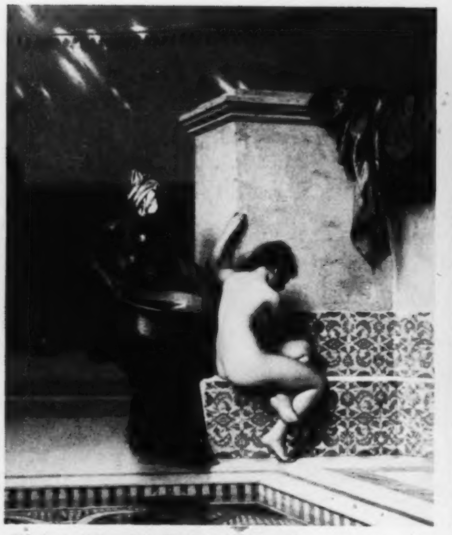
deous tortures, whether actual or potential, the marvelously scary aftermath of barbaric executions—these are a stock-in-trade of Orientalist art. Even a relatively benign subject like that represented in Léon Bonnat's Black Barber of Suez can suggest potential threat through the exaggerated contrast between muscularity and languor, the subtle overtones of Samson and Delilah.

In Henri Regnault's Execution without Judgment under the Caliphs of Granada of 1870, we are expected to experience a frisson by identifying with the victim, or rather, with his detached head, which (when the painting is correctly hung) comes right above the spectator's eye level. We are meant to look up at the gigantic, colorful and dispassionate executioner as—shudder!—the victim must have only moments ago. It is hard to imagine anyone painting an Execution by Guillotine under Napoleon III for the same Salon. Although guillotining was still a public spectacle under the Second Empire and through the beginning of the Third Republic, it would not have been considered an appropriate artistic subject. For guillotining was considered rational punishment, not irrational spectacle—part of the domain of law and reason of the progressive West.

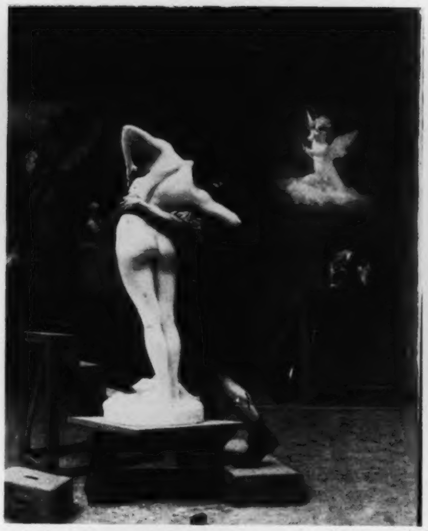
In Regnault's "Execution" we are meant to look up at the gigantic, colorful and dispassionate executioner as—shudder!—the victim must have only moments ago.

One function of Orientalist paintings like these is, of course, to suggest that their law is irrational violence; our violence, by contrast, is law. Yet it was precisely the imposition of "rational" Western law by Napoleon III's government on the customary practices of North Africa that tribesmen experienced most deeply as fatal violence. Nor was this violence unintended. The important laws pertaining to landed property in Algeria, imposed on the native population by the French from the 1850s through the mid-'70s—The Cantonment of 1856, the Senatus Con-

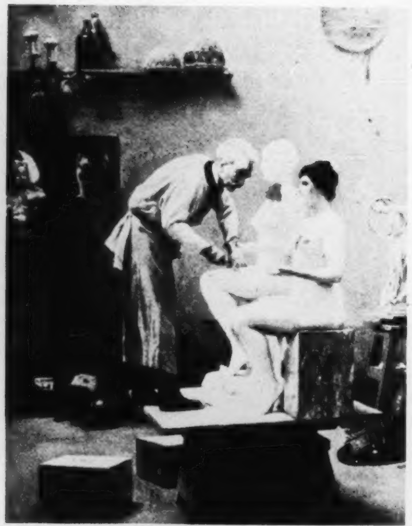
Henri Regnault:* Execution without Judgment under the Caliphs of Granada, *1870, oil on canvas, 10 by 4 ¾ feet. Musée du Louvre.



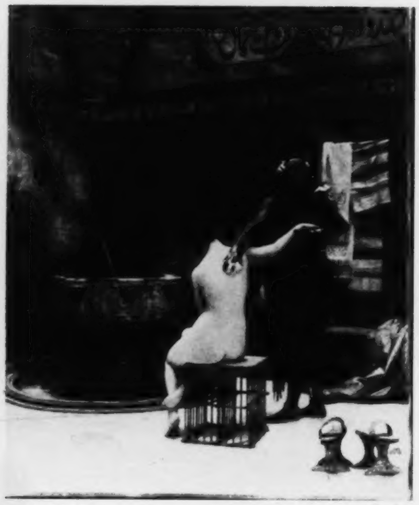
Gérôme:* Moorish Bath, *1880s, oil on canvas, 20 by 16 ¼ inches. Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.



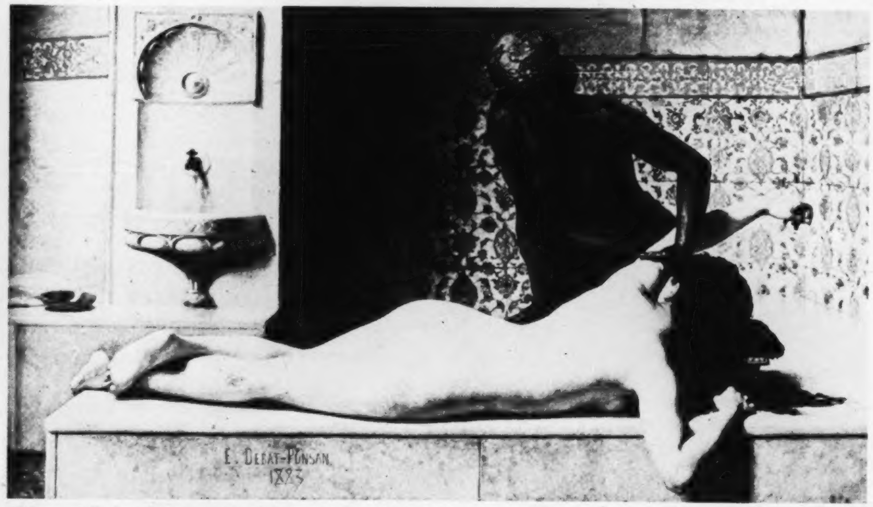
Gérôme:* Pygmalion and Galatea, *ca. 1890, oil on canvas, 35 by 27 inches. Metropolitan Museum.



Gérôme:* The Artist's Model, *1895, 19 ⅝ by 14 inches. Pioneer Museum and Haggin Galleries.



Gérôme:* The Bath, *ca. 1885, oil on canvas, 29 by 23 ½ inches. M.H. de Young Museum.



Edouard Debat-Ponsan:* The Massage: Turkish Bath Scene, *1883, oil on canvas, 50 by 82 ¾ inches. Musée des Augustins, Toulouse.

sulte of 1863 and the Warnier Law of ten years later—were conceived as measures which would lead to the destruction of the fundamental structures of the economy and of the traditional society—measures of legally approved violence, in other words. And they were experienced as such by Algerian natives, who felt their speedy, devastating effects as a savage lopping off of the head of traditional tribal existence, an execution without judgment.

A French army officer, Captain Vaissière, in his study of the Ouled Rechaïch, published in Algiers in 1863, relates that when this group found out that the law of the Senatus Consulte was going to be applied to their tribe, they were thrown into consternation, so clearly were they aware of the destructive power contained in this measure. "The French defeated us in the plain of Sbikha," declared one old man. "They killed our young men; they forced us to make a war contribution when they occupied our territories. All that was nothing; wounds eventually heal. But the setting up of private property and the authorization given each individual to sell his share of the land [which was what Senatus Consulte provided for], this means the death sentence for the tribe, and twenty years after these measures have been carried out, the Ouled Rechaïch will have ceased to exist."[22]

It is not completely accurate to state that the violence inflicted by the West—specifically, by the French in North Africa—was never depicted by the artists of the period—although, strictly speaking, such representations fall under the rubric of "battle painting" rather than Orientalist genre. "At the origin of the picturesque is war," declared Sartre at the beginning of his analysis of French colonial violence in Situations V in 1954. A painting like Horace Vernet's Capture of the Smala of Abd-el-Kader at Taguin, May 16, 1843, a vast panorama exhibited along with six pages of catalogue description in the Salon of 1845, seems a literal illustration of Sartre's contention.[23] This minutely detailed pictorial commemoration of the victory of the Duc d'Aumale's French troops over 30,000

Continued on page 186

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Ellen Lanyon: A Miniature Steamship, 1968, acrylic on canvas, 34 by 24 inches. Collection Marion Rosenbluth.

Tricolored Star, 1969, acrylic on canvas, 54 by 48 inches. Richard Gray Gallery, Chicago.

Cockatoo Clock, 1973, acrylic on canvas, 36 by 30 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bergman.

Quince, 1979, watercolor and pencil on paper, 32 by 24 inches. Collection Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett.

7

Ellen Lanyon's Natural Acts

A surreal naturalist who tempers her literal midwestern vision with Freudian undertones and sight gags, Ellen Lanyon uses wildlife imagery as well as kitsch to explore the optimistic subject of metamorphosis.

BY LUCY R. LIPPARD

Ellen Lanyon had been painting in Chicago for some 25 years when she went to the Florida Everglades on commission from the Department of the Interior in January 1975. That trip, and the time spent soon after on Ossabaw Island off Georgia, was a landmark for this surreal naturalist who has been called "the female Audubon." Although she had been painting animals, reptiles, birds and insects for years, she had never seen tropical plants and wildlife in their natural environments. She had concentrated instead on images of images—"wildlife" domesticated in natural history museums, zoos or books, or in her vast collection of picturesque objects. For years, Lanyon's cockatoos were stuffed, or porcelain; her exotic sites were on postcards, her butterflies in relief. Flora and fauna were imprisoned on the surfaces of boxes, fans, ornamental carvings or fabrics. Even then, these creatures looked so real that it was difficult to tell if you were seeing a painting of another reproduction, or a painting from life.

Lanyon traces her mature work back to the late '50s, when she began to use "memory as source," drawing on her own family and remembered midwestern spaces. She recalls meeting an analyst at a party who asked her, "Quick, what is the first thing you think of when I say 'Brain'?" She answered "A Room." "That's funny," he replied. "Most people visualize a filing cabinet." She saw the room as "a womb, a space to fill, to move about in, to redecorate, redesign, dominate. A container for myriad forms and occurrences . . . a place for human drama and exchange." She recalled the rooms of her Illinois childhood, rooms inhabited by elderly relatives—rooms "with the shades drawn against the heat of summer, cool and dusky, filled with polished wooden furniture."

The work that developed from these memories was "the beginning of a peeling away, layers of heritage, obligation, expectation, repression." First Lanyon painted people, then just the spaces—"not uninhabited but temporarily emptied out, allowing the inanimate forms to have a sense of place, not merely existing for human need or comfort." Then, beginning to reinhabit these spaces and unable to recall the features of her grandmother, she began in 1960 to work from photographs—her three aunts with their friends on vacation, "then the Aspinwalls, the Albertis and the Eisenmayers. It became an exorcism. . . . Motivation is a puddingstone." (A puddingstone is an agglomerate pebble found on the Northern shores of the Great Lakes, so-named by Anglo settlers because of its resemblance to equally conglomerate British desserts.)

From family photographs it was a small step to less personal sources, like newspaper and magazine reproductions—"an attempt to relate to peers and the world about me." It was 1962, and pop culture was in vogue. But impersonal figuration didn't suit Lanyon. Around 1966, the "sports, beach and circus people, odd personages in bizarre situations," gave way to a more compatible medium for distancing, related to the once-removed quality of photography but still mysterious in content: science, magic and natural history.

The deadpan diagrams and demonstration drawings adapted from popular books on "table magic" tricks and practical physics problems provided a deceptively straightforward means by which to present the most elusive subjects. (And with feminist hindsight, the choice of table magic, suggesting that miracles can be accomplished with lowly housewares, implied a potentially subversive power in the fusion of domestic and esthetic domains.) Lanyon realized "with enormous relief that now a psychic distance would be established. This avoided the triteness of illustrating thoughts and emotions in a direct way and made it possible to deal, via the metaphor," with human complexities. Eventually the demonstration device permitted her to dispense with the human figure altogether. What remained was the "indicating" hand of the genderless demonstrator, executing card tricks or after-dinner "illusions." (Lanyon's use of illusion and artifice could be the subject of a lengthy treatise on semiotics and feminism, sign and symbol, though so far it has escaped this fate.) The neutral hand plays the same part as the narrator's voice in theater or literature, and might also be seen as representing the reader, turning pages, revealing new events or scenes. Or it can represent the Artist as Magician—an objective dea ex machina rather than the autobiographical persona characteristic of Lanyon's earlier work.

It was also around 1970, Lanyon recalls, that "the animal world announced itself," offering the "substitution of creatures domestic and wild for the dramatization of the human condition." From her curio cabinets full of tiny boxes, tricks, toys, porcelain figurines and other kitsch and tchotchkes, she adopted a vocabulary of nature once removed. Lanyon thinks of all her works as dramas. She starts by choosing a "star" from her collection. She puts it center stage in a still life. A drama of recall and rebirth ensues. Each subject carries within it,

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Spoolbox Threadweb Production, 1971, acrylic on canvas, 48 by 60 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bergman.

Curio cabinet belonging to the artist.

Cobra, 1975, acrylic on canvas, 48 by 60 inches. Richard Gray Gallery.

Strange Games at the Lagoon (The West), 1981, acrylic on canvas, 34 by 44 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Marc Levenstein.

like a Chinese box, layer after layer of meaning, ranging from childhood memories to half-remembered stories, to myth, to history, to social situations, to the natural world set in the unnatural world we live in: "The drama of the micro-scape as it expands to constitute the macro-scape in a multitude of situations."

In the early '70s (not coincidentally around the beginning of the feminist art movement, in which Lanyon was a Chicago pioneer), the animal world took off on its own in her work, a subconscious phantom venturing out of its confines. In a key work called The Chinese Wonderbowl Production (1971), and in its book counterpart, a cinematic progression of four dolls' houses spews forth an amazing conglomeration of creatures, hands, dice, tambourine and, finally, a young woman dancer, who parts the walls and almost jumps into the viewer's space. In a similarly identifiable metaphor for women's liberation from domestic stagnation, butterflies flew off painted fans, frogs and rabbits leapt out of candy boxes and teacups, fish sprang from their ponds, snakes invaded the parlor. Birds and reptiles in particular burst from their ornamental depictions to hover in full flesh and feather over their modeled or carved incarnations—a triumph of the Pygmalion principle. Illusion, now taking on a broader sense than just "tricks," provided the vehicle for this process of conferring matter, scale, movement and freedom on inanimate images.

Similarly, in three paintings from the mid '70s, Lanyon combined house/container and self/animal in a way that confused the scale and textures of toy-like, frozen memories with the reality of still-present objects. The house image typified the bungalows she had lived in as a child and it was painted like a picture of a toy house rather than a picture of a real house. In one canvas, the house is invaded by a giant cobra, tail curled around the exterior and head emerging from the interior through a chimney, in an overtly sexual metaphor. In another canvas, a clumsy, multi-legged hermit crab staggers out the front door. In a third, a huge snail sits in the front yard, having exited carrying its own house/shell.

The Bewitched Teacup, 1970, acrylic on linen, 4 by 5 feet. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Irving Markin.

Escape, then, is an inescapable theme for the processes of growth and change that are Lanyon's real content. With her 1975 trip to the Everglades, Lanyon's profound involvement in transformation underwent another stage in its own metamorphosis, no longer a surrealizing juxtaposition of unlike realities, but a fusion of them—the ultimate "reconciliation." All of her work since the late '60s has been about metamorphosis. Lanyon has sometimes treated this subject literally in a totally naturalistic style, tracing the growth of a chrysalis to a moth, of a flower from bud through bloom. Usually, however, the stages are complicated by unexpected juxtapositions, labial peelings away of surfaces, sight gags and possibly Freudian currents.

In her unfolding image structures, Lanyon has found the precise physical means to express her hopeful sense of natural cycles and recycling.

Lanyon is an unashamedly "literary" artist, stressing this connection by making and illustrating books and stories, and also by her consistent use of the torn or turned "page within the page" as a trompe l'oeil illusion. Her art is narrative, not only in the sense that it says straightforwardly what it's saying, but in that it moves cinematically through time. Her transformative events often take place on a colored paper background which is less a painterly field than a page from among many more implied but absent pages. The vignette form, borrowed from book and manual, also allows Lanyon a certain flexibility, or fantasy space. At the same time, her vignettes remain stage settings. If Lanyon's animals have "escaped" from their inanimate, stylized embodiments and from the surfaces on

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Transformations II (Endangered), 1982–83, acrylic on canvas on cotton backing; 16 panels, each 72 by 50 inches. Susan Caldwell Gallery, New York.

which they are depicted, landscape itself has not. Despite their "realism," Lanyon's landscapes often strike a curiously unreal contextual note, rather than suggesting a full-blown environment. They are often relegated to the function of "scenery," isolated from the rest of the pictorial space, framed in heart, envelope or fan shapes like old greeting cards. Yet this choice also allows Lanyon to introduce another double edge of truth and cliché.

In an early Everglades painting, for instance, stork, alligator, raccoon and snake emerge from but hesitate to jump out of a heart-shaped box. They are in their native landscape, but for this moment—the moment of birth—they peer fearfully around still alien surroundings. The painting might be a metaphor for Lanyon's own history. Although she is not escaping any more, she is still discovering the new outside world. The breadth in her work is provided by lateral time and change rather than by deep landscape space.

Lanyon's vision began to unfold into three dimensions in the late '70s. Pictures of fans became actual screens and accordion books. The transformative flow of images was no longer constricted by the conventions of serial sequence. The screens physically entered the room rather than hung on the wall. Given free rein, the dramas speeded up. Images turned inside out, sideways, in unexpected directions—still magically, still before your very eyes. An early example of this unfolding process was Transformations I (1973–74)—an accordion-pleated, fold-out book published by Printed Matter in 1977. Its blank matte-pink cover is like flesh, hiding the mysteries of brain and soul and senses within, where a 23-page "film" of connected pen-and-ink drawings unrolls. A heart-shaped box and flower are invaded by a bird, embraced and enveloped by a snake to become a wickedly grinning set of dentures, then a sewing box, a doll's head, a glove, a fruit, a bowl, a nest, an egg, which gives birth to a frog and a flower which sits in the resurrected heart-shaped box of the first frame. (It does have to be seen to be believed.)

In 1981, Lanyon used this device again in the ecology issue of Heresies magazine, in a double spread illustrating Ynestra King's article on "Feminism and the Revolt of Nature." The article ended with a verse by Muriel Rukeyser that parallels some of Lanyon's intentions: "Never to despise in myself what I have been taught/to despise. Not to despise the other/Not to despise the it. To make this relation/with it; to know that I am it."

This transcendence of the "it" and identification with the natural as well as the artificial world is the base of Lanyon's politics. The Heresies drawings originated in Transformations II (Endangered)—another accordion book—and then for the 66-foot screen of the same title and imagery that was shown at the Susan Caldwell Gallery in New York this March. Here the vignettes of the earlier book become far more complex, merging into a mass of objects and creatures, an exuberant stream of becoming, as well as a comment on how humankind befouls its nest. Alligators and snakes "evolve" into a Chinese dragon breathing fire, a match trick, a man's cigar smoke, mangroves, manatees, a snail, a rolling, changing globe, birds and a frog; the sequence ends with an antique child's block from the sides of which peer faithful canines.

Like the puzzles she loves, Lanyon's visual puns reveal themselves slowly, even while certain aspects are obvious. The screens, the books, are chain reactions—in the case of Transformations II (Endangered), an eco-chain reaction. Lanyon describes the potential destruction of the Everglades:

> . . .imbalance to the saline waters disturbs the eccentric habits of the mangrove's procreation. Drying oolite rejects the apple snail which, in turn denies the kite its only source of food and so, the obsolescence is assured. Egret, Anhinga, Pelican and Crane are all at stake. Insistent blades of motor boats rip out the necessary feeding beds and scar the gentle manatee . . . . As we charge another missile, the caused disturbance returns the favor with unbalanced weather and violence from within the globe.

Transformation and metamorphosis are the most hopeful concepts we know. From the beginning of time they have been at the heart of human belief systems, of personal and political change. In her unfolding image structures, Lanyon has found the precise physical means to express her hopeful sense of cycles and recycling. Her vision is not one of abrupt change, or revolution, but of some "natural" chain of events. The four seasons offer an ideal vehicle for this idea. In her most recent version—four large colored drawings—plants and animals spend the year in alternately static and dynamic frames. Winter is silent and vertical, birds waiting in the snow. Spring is literally blown across the surface from a lion to a "lamb" (actually a pit bull terrier leaping into a patch of daffodils). The summer drawing is tranquil. You can almost hear the flies buzzing as a big fish leaps on a line held by a sculpted metal swimmer. Fall is the other fast time, whirled involuntarily past fat, colorful harvest paraphernalia into a bleak blankness out of which two geese escape—flying backwards in time towards southern summer.

In Lanyon's recent work there is a poignant combination of melancholy and contentment, which could reflect either her 56 years or our "interesting times." Many ecology enthusiasts seem to care more about the welfare of animals than that of human beings living in misery and oppression. Lanyon's humanism is represented by the image of a neutral hand—the hand of everyperson—that appears in so many of her works; this hand reaches out to unveil, to receive, to point out or, most significantly, to touch. Tactility is also predominant in Lanyon's recent quilt design, part of "The Artist and the Quilt" project. It depicts a clump of pink starwort flowers on a field labially peeled back in a V-shape to reveal another surface, across which unfinished quilting squares seem to blow. The familiar flower-painting image acquires new meaning in its new medium. A quilt is literally a layered object, traditionally covered with stylized flowers. In Lanyon's quilt there is an additonal pun on flower bed, earth cover, and husbandry. The silk and velvet fabrics endow the image with a material reality that enhances this experiment in bridging "high" art and women's traditional "low arts."

Allegory and magic have often been transformative models for the human condition. Coincidentally, many of Lanyon's favorite images—toad, snake, spider—are symbols of evil within Christian civilization, but were once positive symbols of transformation within the older matriarchal religions, where their negative characteristics were understood as natural contradictions within a harmonious if terrifying scheme. (With the patriarchal takeover, even the butterfly became "the witch's messenger.") However, Lanyon sees her images as sources rather than symbols, though she does not deny the multiple associations of her eggs, snakes, storks, frogs, butterflies, shells (all rebirth symbols), scissors and cards (fate), nor their emergence from what she calls "the eccentric ribbon of the unconscious."

Lanyon thinks of all her works as dramas. Each subject carries within it, like a Chinese box, layer after layer of meaning.

When she was working on the Transformations II book, one of Lanyon's assistants said, "I hope this has a happy ending." Nobody knows. The work is decidedly about survival. Its very exuberance conveys a perhaps unfounded optimism. Lanyon uses animals, insects, reptiles and plants allegorically, even totemically (as have so many before her, from primal societies to The Wind in the Willows or Walt Disney or Watership Down). Focusing on the creatures in her "cabinet of curiosities," her sympathies lie with the origins of her curios, which are her own—the ordinary middle class that originally owned what are now expensive "collectibles." This bric-a-brac she inherits from family and friends, finds in flea markets and garage sales. Out of fondness, not condescension, she collects objects like her grandfather's tobacco jar—a ceramic pot in the form of a leery, red-waistcoated toad—which appears in many of Lanyon's works. (The toad is another symbol of resurrection, while the frog, according to one dictionary of symbols, is "a heretic, worldly, snatching at life's fleeting pleasures.")

Like photographs, the objects Lanyon has used in her work so consistently—a cigarette/music box with a revolving door, an armadillo-shell basket, a wind-up toy with clacking teeth—are conduits both outward to the natural world and inward to the dreamworld. They are manipulable, safer than nature, humorous, endearing—but also scary. They might come to life; in Lanyon's paintings, they are brought to larger than life. And then what? A major point of tension in her work is that borderline between real and object; not that objects imitating real animals aren't real in their own right, so maybe what I'm talking about is Nature and Culture, what our culture makes of nature, and why, and what it means to us. Nature is always less threatening when pictured, objectified, reified. People who wouldn't be caught dead in the wilderness enjoy landscape paintings on their cozy living room walls. Snakes in ceramic are tolerable where live ones are not.

VOL 7 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Four Seasons: Autumn (study for one of four screens), 1982, colored pencil on paper, 19 ½ by 36 inches. Susan Caldwell Gallery.

The Russian Mountains, 1969, acrylic on canvas, 24 by 36 inches. Collection the artist.

In fact, Lanyon's choice of reptiles moved her work away from the decorative realm where even the most realistic flowers, birds and butterflies tend to be trapped in an association with prettiness, lack of seriousness—"femininity." At the same time, some of her most effective works combine the elegant artificiality of ornament with a plebeian reality. The determined unpretentiousness of the final products offers a curious contrast to the mysteries they portray. Lanyon can domesticate her wildlife as surely as it is domesticated when cast in china or it is anthropomorphized by red waistcoats like that of the tobacco-jar toad.

Unlike many modernist artists, who find it necessary to forget their roots in the great "classless" or "universal" tradition of art for art's sake, Lanyon maintains a firm sense of her own time and place. She has not broken with her midwesternness so much as she has expanded, even mythologized it. A Chicago critic was not handing out compliments when he called her "your basic Corn Belt Surrealist," but in fact the dry touch of regionalism is a unique and important part of Lanyon's art. She is a rare and peculiarly American breed—an honest, accessible, visionary artist, not unaware of, but resolutely independent of the imposed mainstreams of fashion. Naturalist and fantasist, Audubon and Pygmalion in female guise, Lanyon is motivated by "an intense need to lend an immortality to immediate places, familiar persons and collected memorabilia." She told Joanna Frueh that early in her career she felt impelled by something "from beyond, to carry on a tradition, immortalize her roots as well as to get the past out of her system." The history of Lanyon's work, then, is the history of the inanimate becoming animate, of distances acknowledged, photos refleshed, and escape accomplished.

An earlier version of this text was written as the preface to the catalogue of Lanyon's exhibition at the NAME Gallery in Chicago, May 1983.

Author: Lucy Lippard's latest book is Overlay: Contemporary Art and the Art of Prehistory (Pantheon).

Myths and Memories: Bob Thompson

Ranging from idyll to nightmare and mixing sensual fantasy with morbid fear, Bob Thompson's emblematic paintings drew on art history as well as personal trauma for their repertoire of idiosyncratic imagery.

BY JUDITH WILSON

. . . in a certain way, I am trying to show what's happening, what's going on . . . in my own private way . . . —Bob Thompson (1965)

Painter Emilio Cruz met Bob Thompson in 1958 in Provincetown, where they were introduced to one another by Gandy Brodie.[1] Twenty-one years old and still an art student at the University of Louisville, Thompson, according to Cruz, was painting in an Abstract-Expressionist mode at the time. But he quickly joined Cruz, Brodie and a number of other artists who were working on Cape Cod that summer in applying the New York School's lessons to figurative motifs.

On the West Coast, artists like Richard Diebenkorn, David Park and Elmer Bischoff had pursued similar goals since the early '50s. In the East, the great precursor was Milton Avery, who'd spent several decades honing his landscapes and interiors into concentrated vessels of affective color and feeling. Along with Avery and the California School, the German-born figurative expressionist Jan Müller was an inspiration to many of the young artists who gathered in Provincetown for the summer. In the four years between the emergence of his mature style and his death in January 1958, Müller had created haunting canvases in which the frequent appearance of masklike faces, the childlike rendering of his ghostly white figures and the emotional intensity of his choppy brushstrokes and jarring compositional rhythms showed a kinship with German Expressionism, while the freedom of execution, emphasis on surface design and the large scale of many of his paintings demonstrated the impact of recent American abstraction. Bob Thompson never met Müller, but the deceased artist's work—with its dual themes of human tragedy and nature as a healing force—appealed strongly to the younger man.

Born near Louisville, Kentucky, in 1937, Bob Thompson found his childhood and adolescent world circumscribed by the period's segregation laws and customs; within these boundaries, however, his early life appears to have been comfortable. His parents operated a country club in Elisabethtown, where he came in contact with black entertainers and demonstrated a youthful enthusiasm for their music. Summers spent on a farm produced in the boy a love of horses and an affinity for nature that would figure prominently in his paintings. As a teenager, Thompson's boisterous energy and tall, agile frame made him a local basketball star and probably gave the future artist an athlete's appreciation of fast-paced, improvised movement. Always an individualist, he rejected organized worship, yet his Baptist upbringing clung to him in the form of an intense, private spirituality and a lifelong fascination with religious beliefs and practices.

This otherwise sunny youth was clouded when the boy's father died in a car accident, leaving his 13-year-old permanently bereft. "He had a vision that was on death," says Emilio Cruz, one of several associates who recall hearing the artist say he expected to die young.

In paintings like Tree, from 1962, one sees the dark side of Thompson's vision. Made at a time when the artist was often busy appropriating old master imagery and bending received formats to his own purposes, it eschews wholesale borrowing. The carnal activities of the figures at lower left recall Bosch's Garden of Delights, while the scene of torture at lower right is reminiscent of some of the more unpleasant dental procedures found in Goya's Los Caprichos. Yet, essentially, this image of violence and depravity set in the shadows of an earthly paradise seems to spring from Thompson's own mind.

In Provincetown, he had been drawn to the flurry of activity emanating from the Sun Gallery. Known as "a haven for vital mavericks,"[2] it was a center for early happenings, environmental art work and other prophetic developments—as well as for painters like Red Grooms, Alex Katz, Lester Johnson and Robert Beauchamp, whose work countered the hegemony of Abstract Expressionism. Among these artists, as well as Jay Milder, Christopher Lane, Mimi Gross and Mark Frank, Thompson found supporters, comrades and friends. It was Milder who eventually convinced him to abandon his studies in Louisville two months before graduation and plunge into the New York art world instead.

Early in 1959, Thompson arrived in Manhattan and moved in with Milder. Soon afterwards, they shifted to a Horatio and Monroe Street loft which they shared with Grooms and Lane. Thompson joined the City Gallery, a short-lived venture launched by the other three, spent the summer with Grooms and Milder visiting the latter's Midwestern hometown and subsequently took part, along with Milder, in Grooms's December 1959 happening The Burning Building. It was a period of constant activity for the four painters, whose attitude toward their art was one of "total passion," Milder recalls.[3]

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
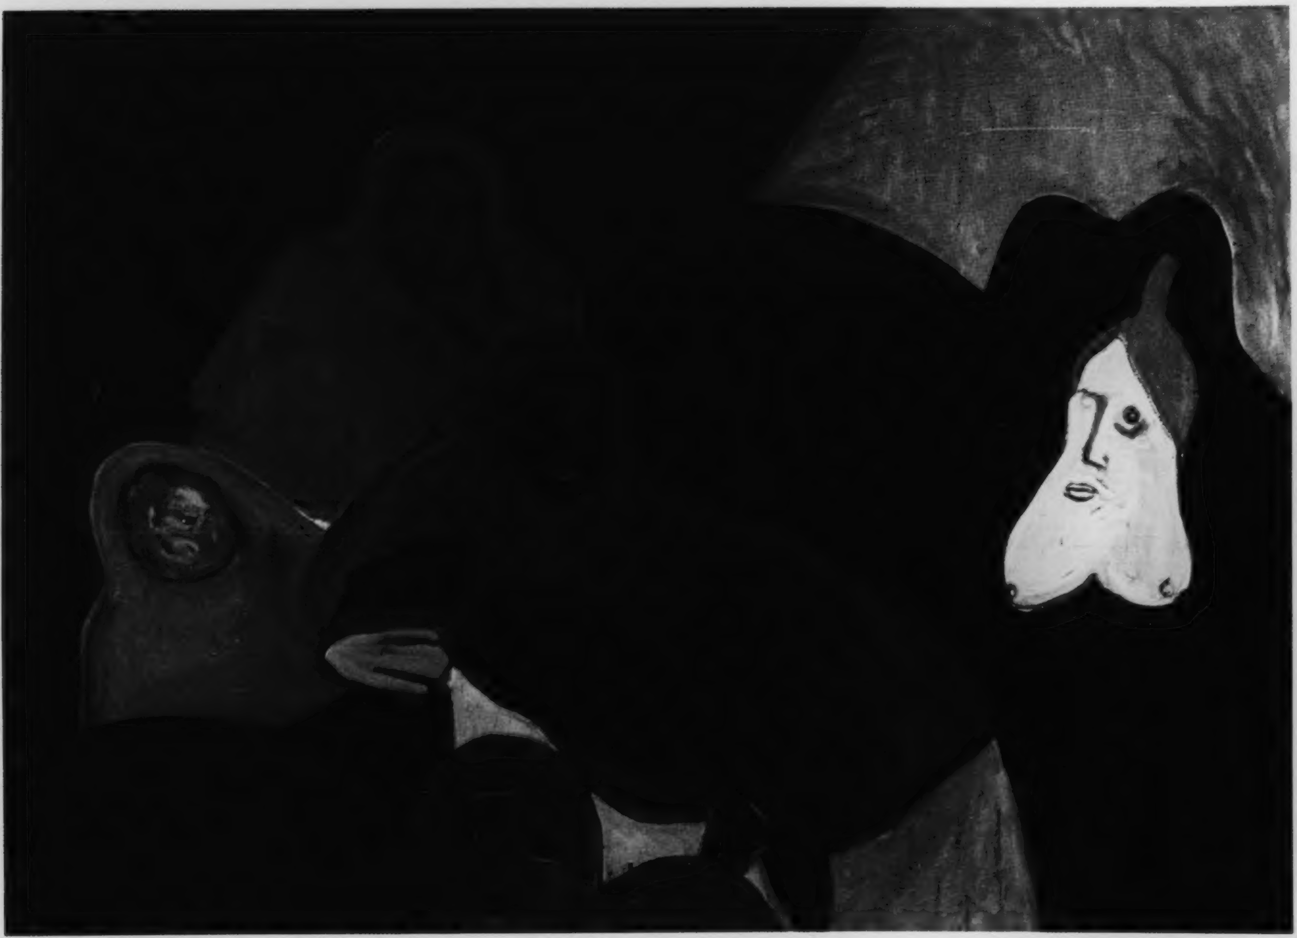
UMI



Bob Thompson:* The Family Portrait, *1963, oil on canvas, 62 by 87 inches.

Their conversations ranged from comments on Klee's Pedagogical Sketchbook to insights into modern science and non-Western religions. Milder also remembers treks to Harlem to hear James Brown at the Apollo or to New Jersey to visit Theolonius Monk with Thompson, as well as a night when their drinking inspired them to join Sonny Rollins on the stand at the Five Spot.

Although he made many sketches of musicians at work, they were seldom the focus of Thompson's paintings. A rare exception is his 1965 canvas, Homage to Nina Simone. His Garden of Music is said to portray alto saxophonist Ornette Coleman, trumpeter Don Cherry, bassist Charlie Hayden and possibly Archie Shepp on tenor sax, along with other acquaintances.[4] It is a particularly intriguing work because it comes from an early phase of Thompson's career, dating perhaps to his Louisville years.[5]

The painting shows his abiding interest in figurative groupings, outdoor settings, expressive color and autobiographical content. A rudimentary version of the artist's standard self-image—a figure in a broad-brimmed hat—appears at lower right. Several of the musicians are faceless, solid-colored forms, indicating that, if the 1957 date inscribed on the back of the canvas is correct, Thompson's use of silhouettes preceded his Provincetown contact with Lester Johnson. Garden of Music differs from his later work, however, in its failure to link figures and landscape in a fully dynamic exchange, as well as in its greater use of impasto and its retention of illusionary space. In future paintings, Thompson would relate his animate subjects and their inanimate settings by exploiting linear as well as chromatic rhythms and, while his paint-handling and approach to pictorial space occasionally shifted from one work to the next, he would generally apply less pigment and tend to flatten his designs.

By 1961, Thompson had become addicted to heroin. Drug use was open and widespread in the avant-garde musical and artistic circles he frequented. Perhaps it was his recent marriage to Carol Penda that spurred a subsequent attempt to break the habit. When he received a Walter Gutman Foundation grant, the couple sailed to Europe, where during the spring Thompson underwent treatment at a London drug clinic. In June, they moved to Paris and settled among the artists quartered in a warehouse district near Montparnasse. Always prolific, he continued turning out hundreds of drawings, pastels and small paintings on bits of wood that he frequently gave away. He also used the opportunity to study first-hand the European masterpieces that had always intrigued him, absorbing imagery and compositional strategies found in works by Poussin, Titian, Breughel and Cranach as quickly as he already had distilled sources ranging from traditional Tree, 1962, oil on canvas, 78¼ by 108 inches. All works Vanderwoude Tananbaum Gallery, New York.

African sculpture to Piero della Francesca and Gauguin.

In September 1962, he was awarded a John Hay Whitney fellowship, which enabled the couple to live in Spain for the next year. During this period, Thompson became familiar with Goya's etchings, stayed free of drugs and produced some of his most compelling canvases. Family Portrait (1963) demonstrates his newfound ability to reduce settings to the simplest dramatic frameworks and focus on his personally emblematic figures. An artist whom critics sometimes faulted for weak drawing and disjointed composition here describes his subjects with a relaxed assurance that allows line to shift freely from edge to outline to scumbled stroke, while he balances clustered, rounded forms with steep diagonals, a dark sweeping mass with the jarring, two-toned and oddly truncated female at right. In Tree, the painter's sudden leaps from dots and stripes of solid color to crude naturalistic modeling and streaky, variegated passages seem to match the irrational violence of the scene. The much more subdued, consistent and controlled brushwork of Family Portrait gives an almost elegiac quality to its unsettling imagery.

Friends say that his art is always confessional—exposing his deepest feelings about specific people, especially his wife and other intimate acquaintances. It seems likely that the three rebozoed women in Family Portrait represent his mother and two sisters, while the seminude figure might be an image of his wife, and the spectral creature in the foreground could be either the artist's vision of himself or his dead father. The dark, menacing silhouette that looms in the background seems linked to the large, winged creatures that appear in several other canvases. Thompson once stated that he viewed birds as symbols of freedom,[6] but they sometimes read as signs of the artist's preoccupation with the ultimate flight of death.

Upon his return to the U.S. in fall 1963, Thompson met with a degree of success that was unprecedented for a young black artist. Welcomed into the Martha Jackson stable, he was also given solo shows at Paula Cooper (then Johnson) Gallery and at major galleries in Chicago, Detroit and Provincetown during the next two years. Joseph Hirshhorn is said to have sought Thompson's work almost faster than he could paint it, and his fall 1965 show at Martha Jackson's broke the gallery's attendance records. Yet, renewed drug use was beginning to take its toll, and his wife states that he seemed anxious to leave New York.[7]

In November, the couple finally departed for Rome. There, Thompson visited Italian museums and monuments, but did little work of his own. In March, he was hospitalized for appendicitis and gall bladder surgery, but refused to heed doctor's warnings that he needed a long period of rest. On

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Portrait of Thelonius Monk, ca. 1963, ink on paper, 16½ by 14 inches.

Memorial Day 1966, he succumbed to acute pulmonary edema as a result of prolonged addiction. At age 28, he left behind an enormous volume of work—said to have numbered over a thousand pieces before a 1976 fire that spread to Carol Thompson's residence from a neighbor's apartment. This February's show at the Vanderwoude-Tananbaum Gallery, which now represents the artist's estate, demonstrated the remarkable synthesis of received imagery and personal vision he achieved in less than a half dozen years.

In the painted world of Bob Thompson, the question of freedom extends beyond racial boundaries (although there are subplots to his dramas, like the activities of the startled "darkie" figure in the lower left quadrant of Tree, that suggest the artist was not oblivious to such issues) to encompass basic tensions between human passion and human pretense. His art's apparent contradictions—its oscillation between pastoral idylls and tortured dreams, its venting of morbid fears in a language of joyous sensualism—are a vital part of its meaning.

Even when he seems not to rely on borrowed symbolism, as in Ascension to the Heavens, he habitually mythologized his subjects. But Thompson's familiar icons—bird, horse, winged phantom and man in a broad-brimmed hat—are linked to a drama that seems specific and mysterious at the same time. His big, arbitrary color shapes provide an equally elusive dreamscape in which planes continually trade depths with one another as the eye seeks a resting place.

As anthropologist Victor Turner has observed, the mythic arena offers "a limitless freedom" and provides a transcendent realm "where anything can happen, where immoderacy is normal . . . and the elements of culture and society are released from their customary configurations and recombined in bizarre and terrifying imagery."[8] By coding private messages in the public rhetoric of myth and art history, Bob Thompson tapped the subconscious mind of our culture. His genius was his ability to give us stunningly visual access to this released imagination. His tragedy was his compulsion to pursue these myths at the expense of his life.

1. Interview with Emilio Cruz, Feb. 12, 1983.
2. Dorothy Seckler, Provincetown Painters, Syracuse, Everson Museum of Art, 1977, p. 81.
3. Interview with Jay Milder, Feb. 11, 1983.
4. Rosalind R. Jeffries, Bob Thompson, Amherst, University Art Gallery, University of Massachusetts, Sept. 11–Oct. 4, 1974.
5. In viewing the canvas with Suzanne Vanderwoude and Dorothy Tananbaum last November, it was noted that the year 1957 was inscribed on the back. Previously, gallery records had dated the picture to 1960. Emilio Cruz recalls seeing it in a 1960 show at the Delancey Street Museum, but this does not preclude its having been completed several years earlier. It is also possible that Thompson repainted the work after 1957 without amending the date on the back.
6. Quoted in Jeanne Siegel, "Robert Thompson and the Old Masters," Harvard Art Review, Winter 1967, p. 14.
7. Interview with Carol Thompson, Nov. 24, 1982.
8. Victor Turner, "Myth and Symbol," International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences, New York, Macmillan and the Free Press, 1968, vol. 10, p. 577.

Author: Judith Wilson is a free-lance critic attending Yale Graduate School in art history.

Garden of Music, 1960, oil on canvas, 79½ by 143 inches.

Ascension to the Heavens, 1967, oil on canvas, 72 by 60 inches.

VOL 71 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Building, Statue, Cliff

Robert Moskowitz's recent paintings of towering, iconic forms betray both a deepening concern with physicality, and a quizzical vision which makes for a series of far-reaching perceptual reversals.

BY PRUDENCE CARLSON

In his paintings of the last five years, Robert Moskowitz has replaced an idiosyncratic vocabulary of private pictographs with powerful—even august—images of culturally familiar architectural or sculptural forms. His fusion, however, of abstraction and depiction—long the mainspring of his work—remains as deft, seamless and reverberant with far-reaching meaning as ever. Almost all of Moskowitz's paintings, new and old, present a spare compositional structure that counterpoises a monochromatic ground with simple, succinctly executed, isolate images. These images, in his paintings of the early to mid-'70s—e.g., two tiny silhouetted teapots linked by a slender funnel of light, or a pair of crossed chopsticks calmly riding below the streamlined and fatally assertive, black tailfin of a '50s Cadillac—described enigmatic and highly impacted "stories" of formal and metaphoric relationships. They became elements in a kind of visual koan entailing all manner of metaphysical as well as material paradoxes: they functioned as personal but completely contemporary anagogical keys that combined a vernacular imagery (one taken from popular culture) with the rarefied, self-reflexive language of post-war abstraction.

The quasi-narrative—say, even dialectical—character of much of Moskowitz's early '70s work has lately given way to a graver, more iconic type of representation. The "story" has been internalized. It is both summed up and subtly expanded within a solitary, looming figure—a windmill, an industrial smokestack, a phantom-like lighthouse, the long precipitous profile of a cliff, or a jagged schematization of Rodin's Thinker—a modern-day totem usually set in an evenly-worked and tenebrous ground. No longer half-cryptic signs or quirky, intimate metonyms for a person, a locale, a state of thought or being, Moskowitz's recent images are fully-fledged symbols. They allude, though always in a curiously innocent, almost subliminal way, to no less a range of "worlds" than art history, public culture, personal experience, visionary apprehension and the artist's own precarious and unpredictable activity.

Moskowitz's towering hieratic forms, in their big, vertically exaggerated formats, have an immediate, palpable presence. If these forms recall the transcendental drift of Mondrian's own early windmills and the compositional daring of Georgia O'Keeffe's New York City skyscrapers, they also borrow heavily from the inventions of Abstract Expressionist and Minimalist art. Moskowitz's paintings and, to a lesser degree, his new pastels are quickened by the artist's deepening engagement with the sheer physicality of his subjects and materials. This comes most ineluctably across in the paintings' luxuriant, laboriously built-up and then often pumiced-down surfaces: surfaces that can seem as dense and homogenous as a slab of slate, as ripplingly tactile as silk moiré, or as luminous and insubstantial as vapor. It is further evident in Moskowitz's deriving his images from emphatically three-dimensional, monolithic and perdurable forms (building, statue, cliff); in his care to lend these images literal gravity by anchoring them at the paintings' lower edges; in the commodious, magisterially elongated formats of his new works; and even in the "pipings" of metallic or red paint that frequently accent his paintings' margins and have been likened to Barnett Newman's "zip" (these last, which introduce a note of ritual ornamentation, also clearly point attention back to the "facts" of pigment and of process).

Enveloped in all this is a sensation that, while Moskowitz's absorption with some suprasensory, noumenal realm is as sharp and as urgent as ever, he is now also concerned with inventing points at which this realm intersects or impinges upon the material, the existential. His new works can be seen as poignantly exploring the ways in which an otherworldly order's imagined "laws" are troubled, complicated and controverted by "process," i.e. by life and—as is hypnotically implicit in the artist's memorial to his mother, Flatiron (For Lily)—by death. Moskowitz's earlier chariness of touch or "temporal" marking has now somewhat given way, although the ultra-smooth surfaces of his paintings cause any expressionistic passages to seem almost tropes, and half-illusionary. Similarly, his pristine, monochromatic grounds, first discovered in the artist's '60s "Corner" paintings and metaphorical of an unflawed, limitless space—the space posited by much recent reductivist art—have gradually been churned-up and violated, if never wholly abandoned. Moskowitz's Eddystone (lighthouse) may initially register as a crepuscular fairytale tower barely distinguishable from its midnight surroundings, and his Thinker as an incorporeal free-form djinn; but these images, too—despite their being flat, angular, contentually hollowed-out shapes—are imposing for their slow physical presence, their monumental stature and their air of permanence, even inexorability.

The "felt," as well as metaphorical, gravity or ponderousness of Moskowitz's work is, however, continually offset—lightened—by the simplicity and quintessential oddness of his images. With their faux-naive flatness and consequent frontality, their blank, pictorially-unarticulated interior areas, and their straight-edged outlines clean as an incision, Moskowitz's images tend to resemble hugely blown-up illustrations out of a child's dictionary. His Eddystone and Black Mill are like flashcard archetypes for all lighthouses, all windmills; his Thinker is like a colossal logo (for thought? for art? for the persona of the creator?), as well as an adroit exercise in the equivocation of positive/negative space and in volumetric illusion. Pared of topical details and reduced to elementary, planar shapes, Moskowitz's images assume the pure, unmediated and instantaneous quality of "mind's eye" or dream apparitions. They originate in a quizzical and peculiarly clear-eyed—an almost childlike—order of seeing that repeatedly undercuts commonplace assumptions about appearances, and that induces, within each of the artist's works, a series of sudden, but profound readjustments of perception.

These paintings and pastels thus betray a certain whimsical underbeat to Moskowitz's rapt and grandiloquent romanticizations of his material—a critical playfulness most obvious, perhaps, in the artist's panorama, titled Mittens, of two hand-shaped and strangely appealing desert buttes; in Eddystone, which initially appears as an inscrutable, gridded white rectangle floating high in a coal-black plane; and in Thinker, for which Rodin's famous sculpture has been collapsed to a pelt of blue-black pigment, bounded by a raggedy series of ruled lines. Lightly mocking—sometimes even frustrating—the viewer's penchant for quickly "reading" an image, Moskowitz, again and again, eccentrically zeroes-in on essential, abstract form. By alternately cancelling and reasserting an image's figurative identity, he sets up a sequence of perceptual switchbacks: usually, his images first "read" literally—as flat compositional elements; they then assume the shapes of familiar, namable things, only to lapse back, at last, into a secondary order of abstraction as the demarcators—the defining instruments—of a fathomless conceptual/symbolic space. These new paintings thus depend (as does nearly all Moskowitz's work dating back to his earliest "window-shade" collages and "Corner" paintings) upon a continual skewing of vision that converts the artist's ostensible subjects into startlingly strong and elegant formal devices, and into the transparent containers of a psychologically fraught, but always quietistic, metaphysical content.

Robert Moskowitz: Seventh Sister, 1981, oil on canvas, 108 by 39 inches.
All photos courtesy Blum Helman Gallery.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

In his latest works, Moskowitz's images remain curiously proximate, familiar, although they no longer depict prosaic or domestic things. They now embrace outsized and awesome cultural or urban artifacts, even geological formations—i.e., objects that have been made known to us less through "touch," or direct experience, than through "vision"—through countless reproductions, through photographs and art. The familiarity of these forms as images has, in part, enabled Moskowitz to translate them into the domains both of a very stripped-down abstraction and of an open-ended symbolism, without finally jeopardizing their recognizability—has, in fact, permitted him to compound, even to the point of irony and self-contradiction, his forms' resonance. Thus although, through his extreme economy of rendering, Moskowitz neutralizes his subjects, obscuring them and draining-off their original significance, he never totally wrests them out of a "real world" relation, even if that world is the already mediated and intrinsically factitious one of popular culture and art history.

In a sense faintly paraodic, as well as ruthful, concessions to the human desire for points of reference, these images invariably invoke a human presence—although never once in all Moskowitz's work has there appeared a full human figure. The human analogy is implicit in the new works' skinny, vertically stretched-out formats. It is also communicated by the anthropomorphic character of Moskowitz's forms: straight-spined smokestack, Thinker, Mittens—even Seventh Sister, which is not only a precipice depicted in a Clyfford-Still-like crag of pigment, but also the burly, cloaked shoulder of Rodin's Balzac. Above all, this human presence survives in the expressionistic traces of Moskowitz's own hands.

The dual nature of Moskowitz's paint surfaces—streaked, mottled, yet always vellum-smooth and luminous—further complicates the ways his works oscillate between the figurative (and apprehendable) and the abstract (and, finally, the partially occluded or occult). His habitually queered vision has found in these surfaces another object, another instrument for overturning both formalist and perceptual expectation. Now, not only Moskowitz's images, but also his very vocabulary of painting techniques, have been disconcertingly made to hover between the material and immaterial, between observable fact and illusion rife with metaphoric possibility. For instance, the patchy, seemingly corrugated "negative space" surrounding the Thinker's form may leap to the surface through its quasi-expressionistic handling, making of the image an immense concavity; but then it falls away as the image—bold, obdurate, opaque—swells out into a fantastic volume. In Seventh Sister, the central "zip" of gold paint simultaneously announces a decorative conclusion—one in real space—to the artist's activity, and describes a fissure in the cliff's form, letting on to an incalculably far and light-shot distance. Finally, in Moskowitz's vaguely apocalyptic triptych, Big Picture—perhaps the most mysterious of his new works—the painting's dense, becalmed, gilt- and purple-bordered right panel (a geometric interpretation of the Empire State Building) encourages a reading of the whole as formal, even sacred pattern; Big Picture's left panel, however, which suspends a white cruciform design on black—two searchlight beams raking a Los Angelean night-sky—persistently invokes an astronomically vast and empty space.

Flatiron (For Lily), 1979, oil on canvas, 108 by 52 inches.

Robert Moskowitz sums up and expands a "story" within a single, solitary figure—his Rodin's "Thinker" becomes a modern-day totem.

Thinker, 1982, oil on canvas, 108 by 63 inches.

This surreal, symbolic wide-openness—space of a magnitude beyond all imagining and yet, paradoxically, in these new works again and again made sensible—may be the destination of Moskowitz's painting. This space is no less than the sum of the movements undertaken to attain it. The passage there, effected by the artist's patient sidewindings between form and image, surface and depth, physicality and representation, near and far, has in essence involved a sensitizing of the viewer's perception through its constant bafflement. In these latest nocturnal paintings and pastels, we are awakened to a private shadow-realm of impossible contraries and to the existence of the "real," bodiless image tucked away within layers of received notions, both popular and esthetic, and within Moskowitz's own layers upon layers of darkness slowly laid bare. □

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Manifest Densities

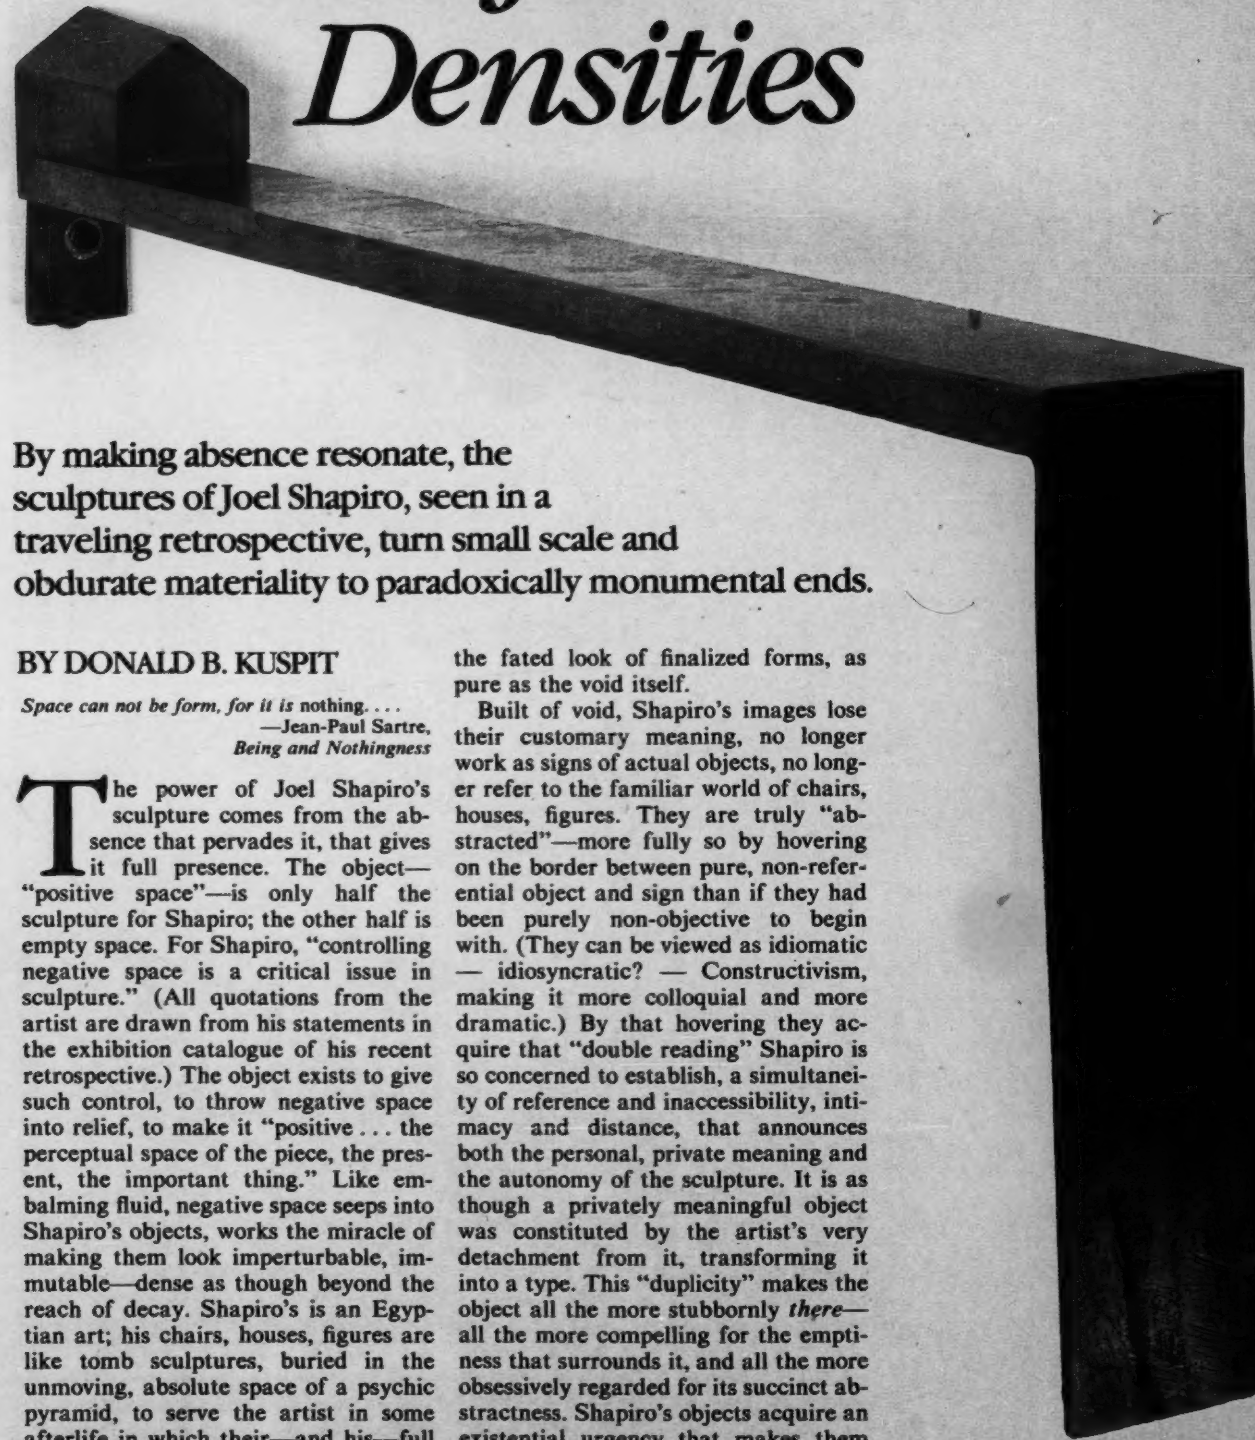
By making absence resonate, the sculptures of Joel Shapiro, seen in a traveling retrospective, turn small scale and obdurate materiality to paradoxically monumental ends.

BY DONALD B. KUSPIT

Space can not be form, for it is nothing. . . .
—Jean-Paul Sartre,
Being and Nothingness

The power of Joel Shapiro's sculpture comes from the absence that pervades it, that gives it full presence. The object—"positive space"—is only half the sculpture for Shapiro; the other half is empty space. For Shapiro, "controlling negative space is a critical issue in sculpture." (All quotations from the artist are drawn from his statements in the exhibition catalogue of his recent retrospective.) The object exists to give such control, to throw negative space into relief, to make it "positive . . . the perceptual space of the piece, the present, the important thing." Like embalming fluid, negative space seeps into Shapiro's objects, works the miracle of making them look imperturbable, immutable—dense as though beyond the reach of decay. Shapiro's is an Egyptian art; his chairs, houses, figures are like tomb sculptures, buried in the unmoving, absolute space of a psychic pyramid, to serve the artist in some afterlife in which their—and his—full meaning will unfold. Shapiro has made these objects to accompany him in the void; they summarize it, compact it, implode it—concentrate it until it seems fate incarnate. His objects have the fated look of finalized forms, as pure as the void itself.

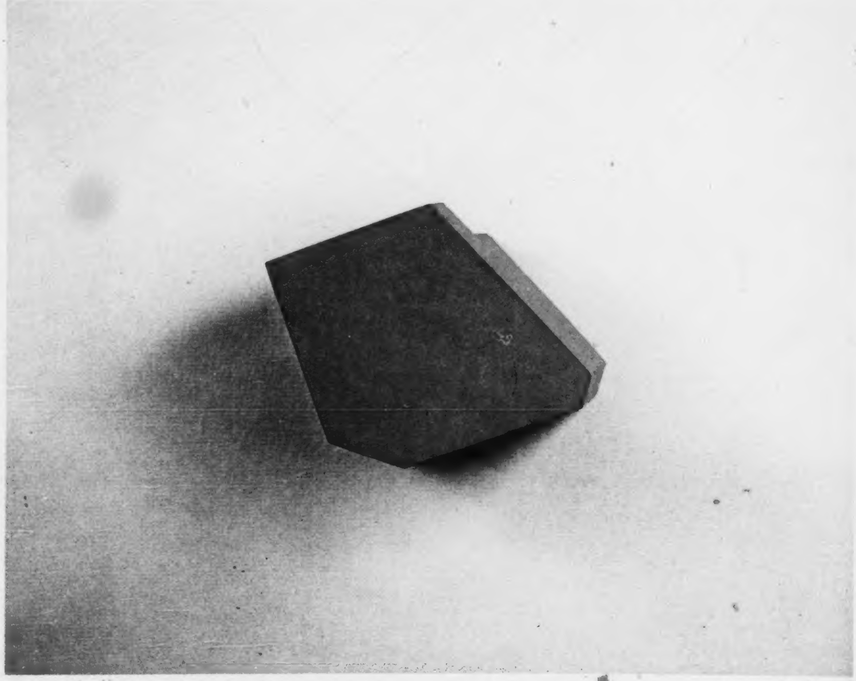
Built of void, Shapiro's images lose their customary meaning, no longer work as signs of actual objects, no longer refer to the familiar world of chairs, houses, figures. They are truly "abstracted"—more fully so by hovering on the border between pure, non-referential object and sign than if they had been purely non-objective to begin with. (They can be viewed as idiomatic — idiosyncratic? — Constructivism, making it more colloquial and more dramatic.) By that hovering they acquire that "double reading" Shapiro is so concerned to establish, a simultaneity of reference and inaccessibility, intimacy and distance, that announces both the personal, private meaning and the autonomy of the sculpture. It is as though a privately meaningful object was constituted by the artist's very detachment from it, transforming it into a type. This "duplicity" makes the object all the more stubbornly there—all the more compelling for the emptiness that surrounds it, and all the more obsessively regarded for its succinct abstractness. Shapiro's objects acquire an existential urgency that makes them seem absolutely intelligible, an "idea." (Shapiro remarks that he is interested in the idea of communication, not its instrument—the idea of the thing, not the thing itself.)



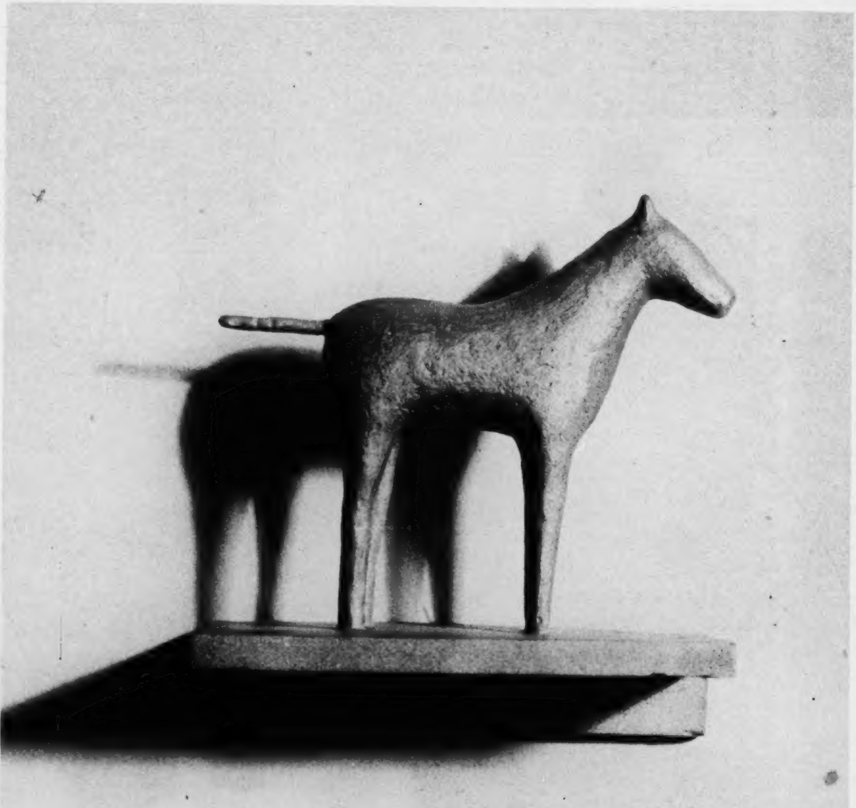
Joel Shapiro: Untitled, 1974, bronze (edition of three), 12 7/8 by 2 1/2 by 28 1/2 inches. Museum of Modern Art.

Sartre describes space as "the unique way in which beings can be revealed as having no relation." This has some bearing on Shapiro. The ambiguity of a Shapiro sculpture can be explained through the fact that the sculpture uses space to reveal its own lack of relation (and hence "abstractness"). But Shapiro also uses the object to symbolize the human desire for relation—a yearning which fills the space around his pieces, making that space concrete, a containment for the objects. Shapiro chooses the most prosaically and therefore unmistakably human objects, like a table and chair or house, and even when they seem pointedly stripped of all specifics, there is almost always some disguised "human point" to them. His objects have, then, a Symbolist as well as Constructivist component. The space that surrounds them makes them seem unconsciously charged—embodiments of an unconscious desire, at once symptomatic and repressive of it.

The object—chair, house, figure—displays that unconscious desire for relation, a secret erotic tendency, in our reading of it as the memorable sign of an actual experience. The more abstract the object is—the more it moves toward pure form—the more hungry for relation it seems, and the more we invest it with "meaning," i.e., establish our own meaningful relation to it, project our emotion onto it. We become caught up in a small but intense psychodrama, emotionally responsive as if to the toys from a doll's house. Shapiro's objects build up primitive emotion, through the nakedness of their display in space—through their peculiar "dislocation" in space, which comes from their non-relationality. They effect a powerful transference—reveal a powerful cathexis—like all good toys of thought. I take their childlikeness seriously; it is in the best modern tradition. Shapiro's synthesis of "children's art" and non-objectivity is a special triumph, and may indeed signal that non-objectivity is the ultimate childlikeness possible in art. Shapiro has understood the search for the fundamental and profound in both the child and the contemporary artist—for a subject matter that is so fundamental that it first seems remote from our own ordinary interests, but then reveals itself as something profoundly intimate. Shapiro plays with our sense of intimacy and distance, of relation and non-relation—the independence of things and our dependence on them—in a subtle spatial drama which is not without its tragic overtones.



Untitled, 1978, casein on wood, 4 1/4 by 6 by 3 1/4 inches. Whitney Museum.



Untitled, 1973–74, bronze, 4 3/4 by 5 5/16 by 3 1/4 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Richard Selle.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
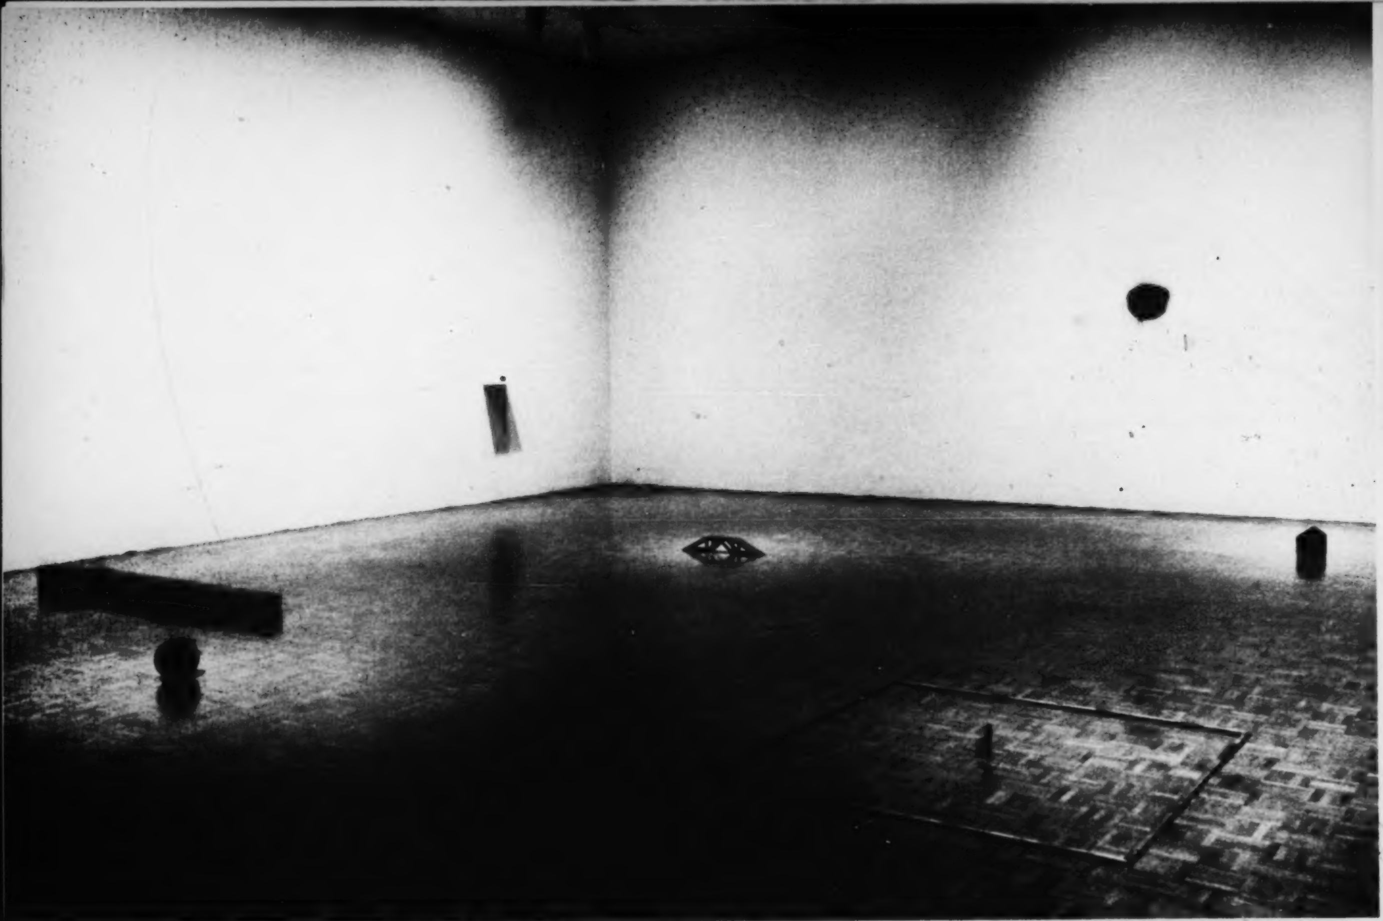
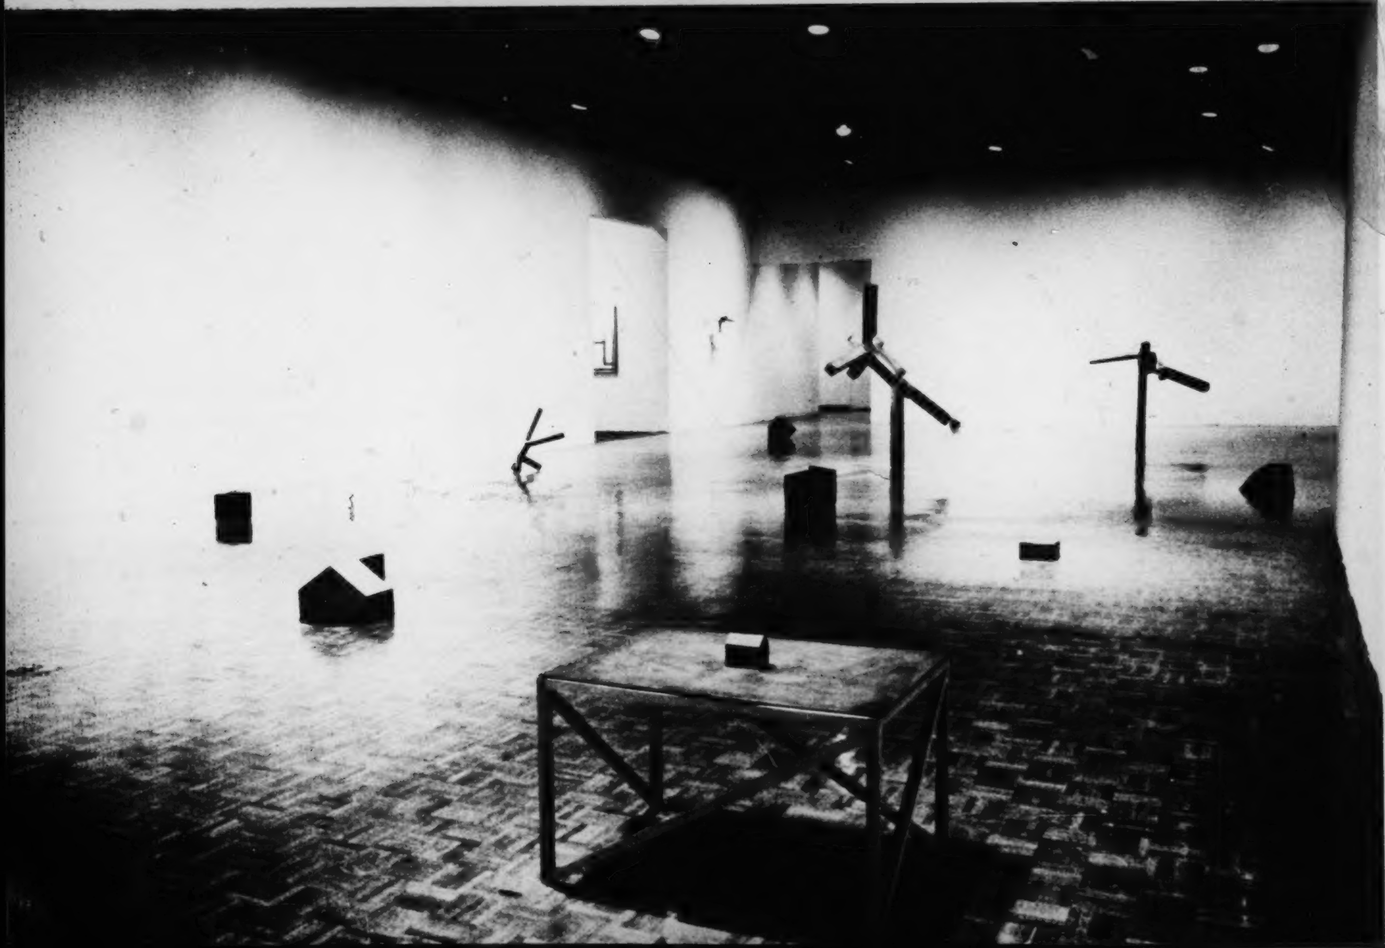
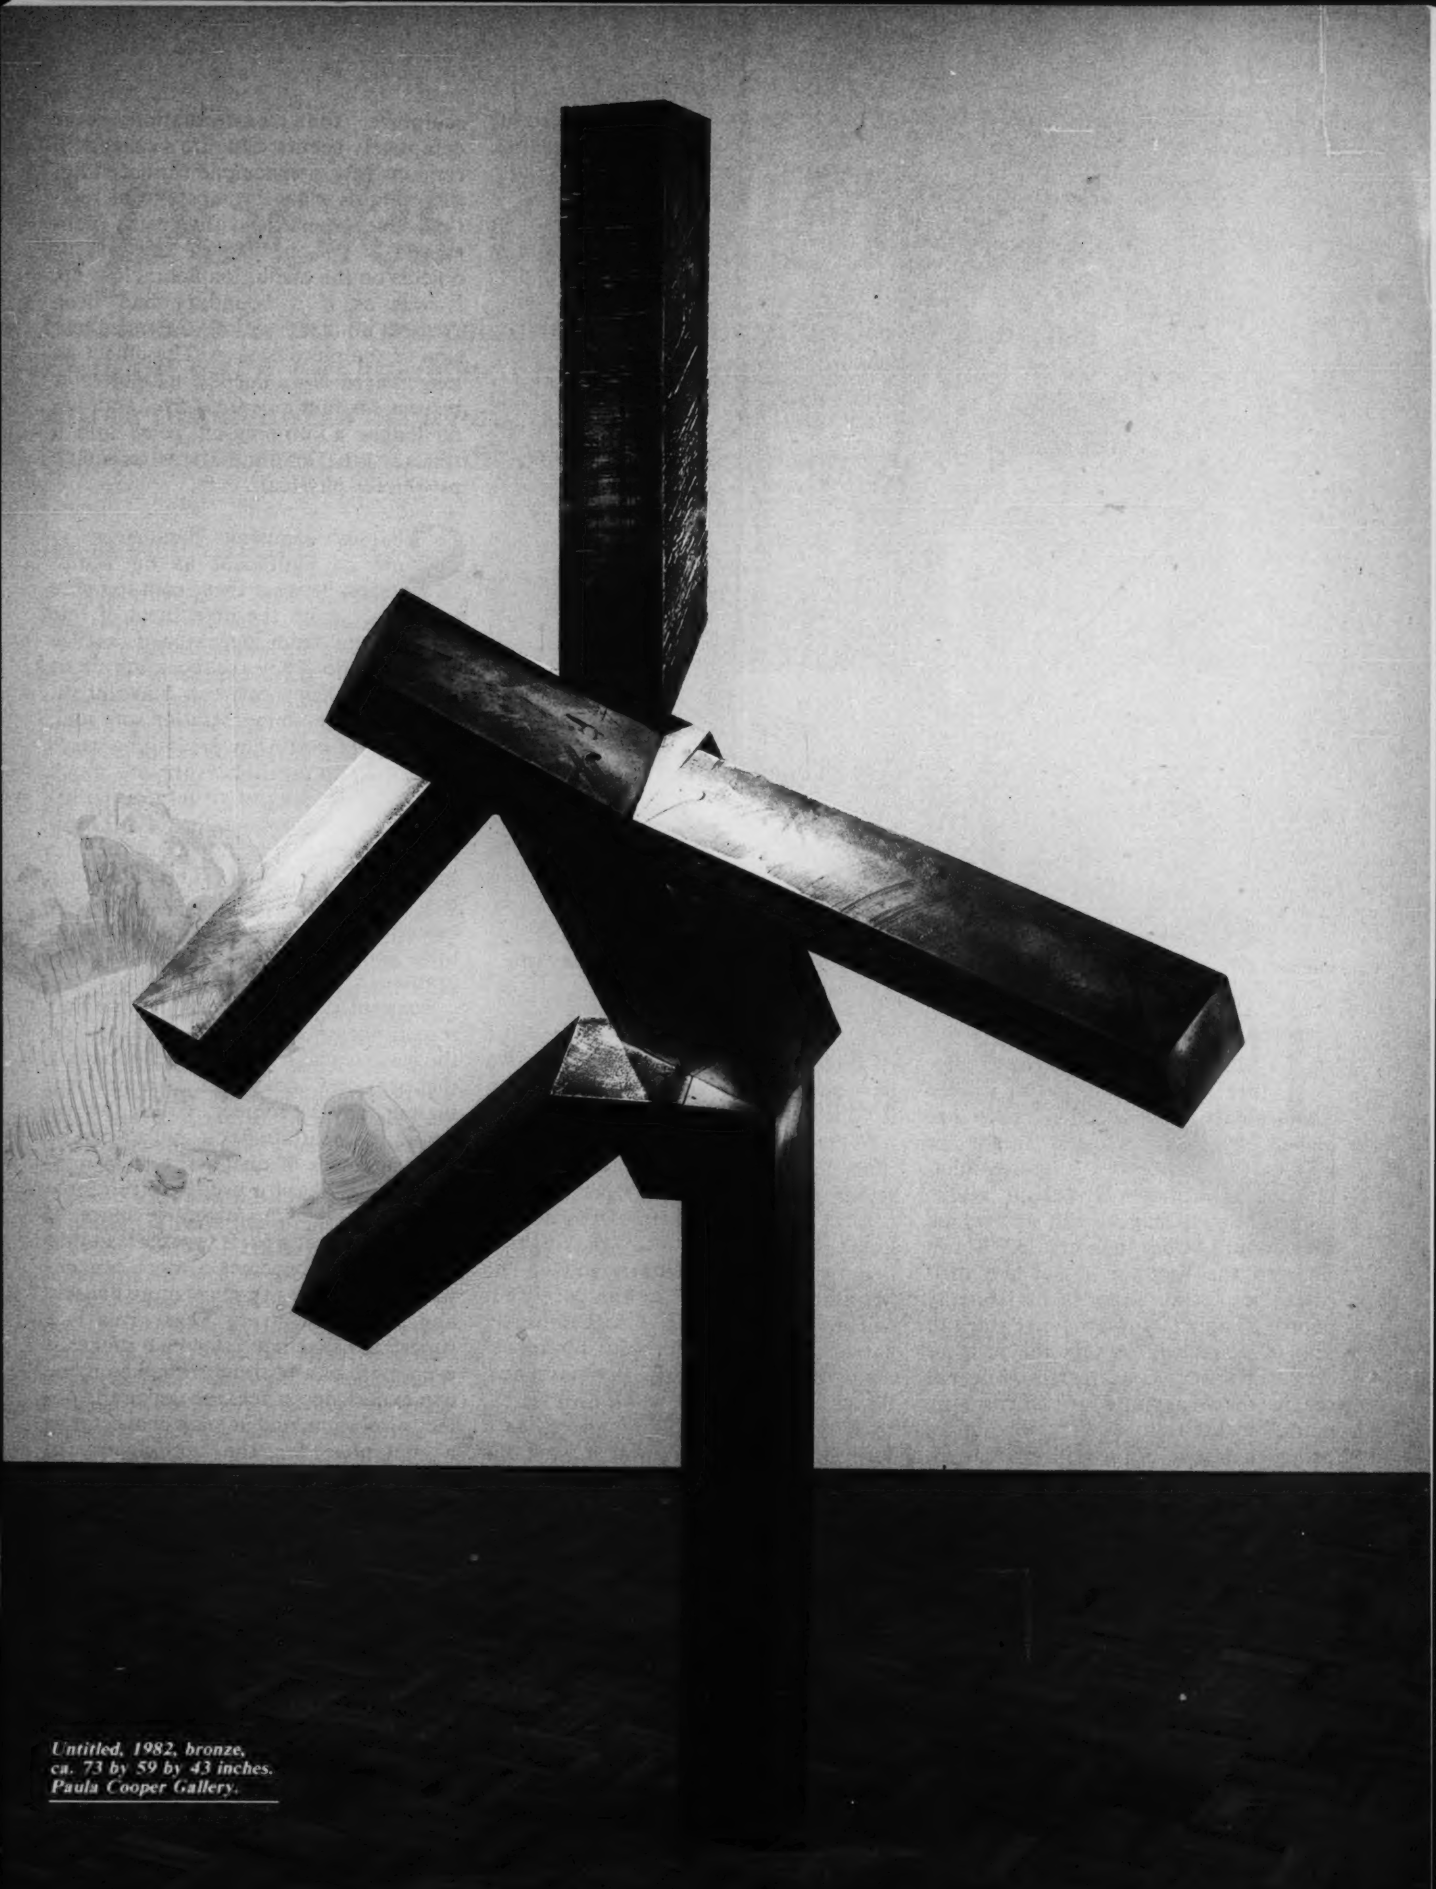
UMI



Installation shots of the current retrospective as installed at the Whitney Museum.





Untitled, 1982, bronze, ca. 73 by 59 by 43 inches. Paula Cooper Gallery.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
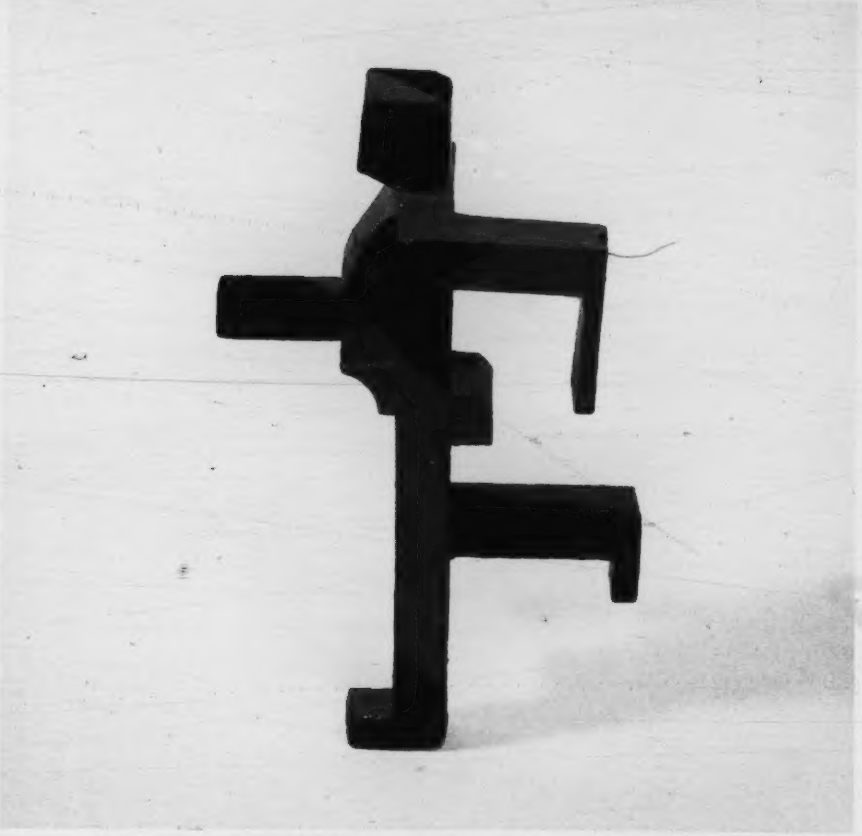
UMI



Untitled, 1976–77, oil on bronze, 9 ¾ by 2 ⅝ by 5 inches. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Donald Petrie.

There is thus a Giacometti dimension to Shapiro's sculpture. As in Giacometti, positive object and negative space are locked in a fatal embrace. Sartre has written that Giacometti's figures inhabit a "prefabricated vacuum which they cannot manage to fill and which they endure rather than create." But in Shapiro the vacuum is not prefabricated; its formlessness is his starting point. Shapiro is more fundamental than Giacometti; he sees the original chaos of space. Giacometti, while not seeing space as full "to the bursting point," sees it as "bound" by the human being that will bring relation into it. But for Shapiro there is no inherent human presence in space; space, for him, is no paradise from which things must be expelled, but an infernal emptiness which they can never enter. Shapiro's importance is that he makes clear this primordial beginning of sculpture in space rather than in object, in void rather than in plenitude. He never ventures far from the elementary void, articulating and re-articulating—vigorously underlining—it through his "minimal" objects. The "spatialization of space" this effects, to use Merleau-Ponty's language, does not destroy the original space of the void, which, as we have shown, invades the object, making it "unconscious."

When Shapiro's objects seem more than minimal—charged with unconscious intention—as is especially the case in his recent series of the human figure, he signals this by making the negative space particularly active. The human figure appeals to him because it comes with the negative space already active, through its capacity for movement, which implicitly signals space. Shapiro is concerned, in his own words, to articulate this "holding space" as a form of absence. Put another way, one can say that he lets the figure, more than any other object, draw its containment around itself, a containment whose indeterminacy—by reason of the figure's capacity for extensive, seemingly unlimited movement—brings out all the more clearly its character as primordial space, with its connotations of unconscious meaning. The point is that Shapiro uses the figure to decisively convert raw space into charged room, space that signals the impossibility of relation into space that signals the desire for it. But, in fact, in the figural sculpture, the transformation never completely occurs; Shapiro's space still remains raw, a space one cannot enter, inhospitably signaling absence of relation. One experienced that point spontaneously as one moved toward his objects on the exhibition floor; close up, it was as if a boundary had been crossed, an alarm set off, the inner tension of the piece broken. The object no longer fired one's deepest memories or respect for fundamental form, and was no longer a jumping-off point into a space whose emptiness was as much psychic as physical.

Shapiro's drawings don't seem to me as significant as his sculptures, because they seem to me to start from the objectness of line rather than from pure space, as the sculptures do. They are too much about the relationships between line-objects, too little the demonstration of void, absence. At best, they are calling cards for the sculpture. They are too much about the bonding of structure, too little about the impossibility of subsuming space. The drawings are ontic, the sculpture ontological. The sculpture has a metaphysical task, displays the essentials of sculpture; the drawings take containment too much for granted.

Some of the sculptures involve color, sometimes splashed on the piece and the wall to which it is attached, bonding the two, and sometimes as a uniform sealant on the object. Color, as we know, has spatial effect, and so can be an instrument of distancing or intimacy. I think Shapiro uses it to reinforce the aloneness of his object in space. It fuses the object's parts together, so that the sculpture becomes a more concentratedly positive presence, more densely and integrally given. That gives it a superficial succinctness which makes it even more of a position from which one can experience space, recognize the object's isolation, and as such character as a metaphor for the nothingness of space—its power to annihilate all our relationships. ☐

"Joel Shapiro" was organized by Richard Marshall, associate curator of the Whitney Museum, where it premiered Oct. 20-Jan. 2. Now at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts [Mar. 12-May 8], the show travels to the Art Gallery of Ontario [Aug. 13-Sept. 25] and the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art [Jan. 10-Mar. 3, 1984]. A catalogue with text by Roberta Smith is available (128 pp., $14).

Author: Donald B. Kuspit received the College Art Association's 1982 award for art criticism.

Spooks and Floats

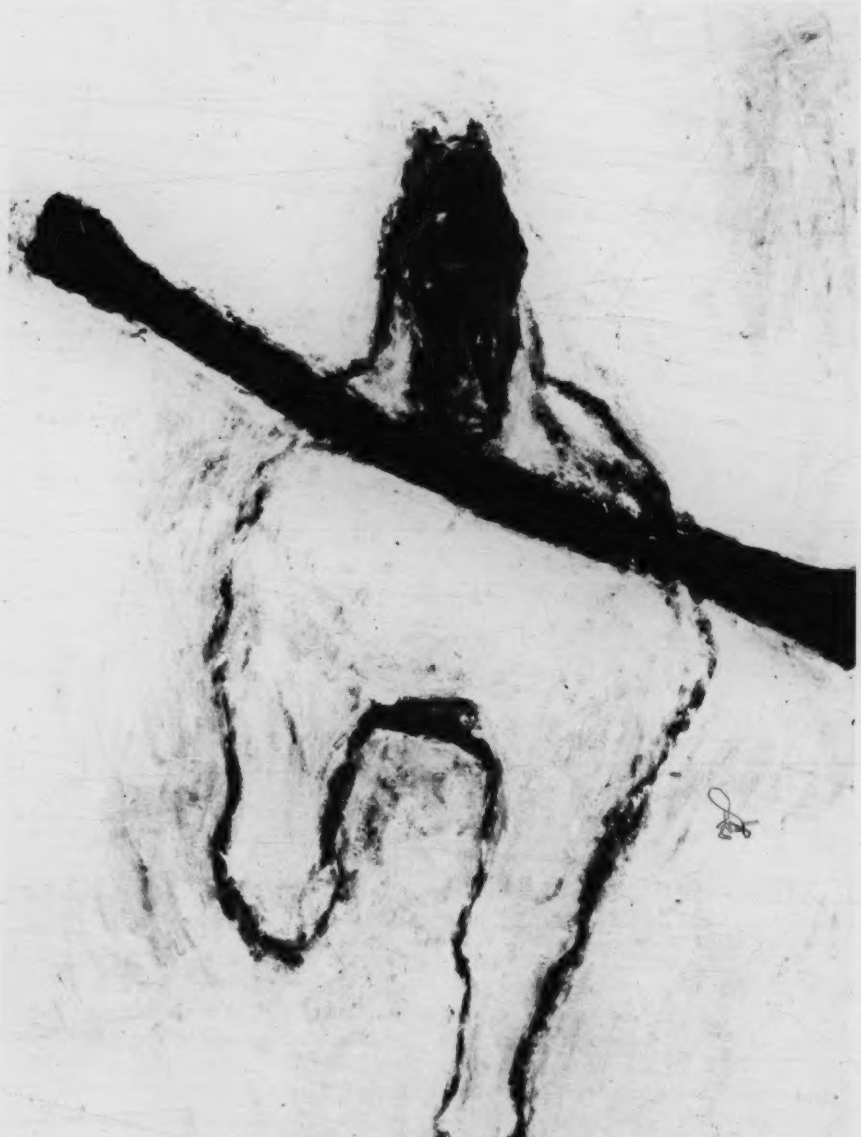
Best known for her horse paintings of the '70s, Susan Rothenberg has recently taken the attenuated human form as her subject. Below, the author distinguishes her figural tactics from, on the one hand, the angst of Giacometti and, on the other, from Neo-Expressionist melodrama.

BY ROBERT STORR

Since the mid-'70s, Susan Rothenberg's loosely diagrammatic images of horses have been one of the most reassuring signs that a return to a believable painterly painting was in progress, and though she has also played her part in the more general and sometimes reactionary revival of figurative art, Rothenberg's work has involved no significant debt to the past. In the last two or three years, however, the understated structural tensions of her equine pictures have given way to an overt symbolism characterized by floating, often gagging heads and solitary, contracted bodies, and if the new work has earned her a place with the dramatists of the "trans-avant-garde," it has also aroused wariness in some who see these images as uniformly bleak and stylized and all too suggestive of the angst-ridden emblems of the '40s and '50s.

Now, with a one-person show at the Willard Gallery and paintings in the Whitney Biennial, at the Stedelijk Museum and in various group exhibitions in recent months, it becomes possible to test these doubts against a direct experience of the work at issue, and the more one sees, the more the comparison between Rothenberg and her peers and supposed mentors seems restrictive—bound to dated and deterministic ideas about the content of gesture and the meaning of the eroded or fragmentary human form.

In obvious ways the scrubby black and gray drawing and heavy nocturnal ambience of some of Rothenberg's latest work recalls the blunt poetry of Guston and even the romanticism of Ryder, but the ghost which hovers nearest these paintings—a ghost which the artist herself has cautiously acknowledged—is that of Giacometti. It is precisely his ghost, and not his substance, which makes for problems.



Rothenberg:* Pontiac, *1979, acrylic and flashe on canvas, 88 by 61 inches. Private collection.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
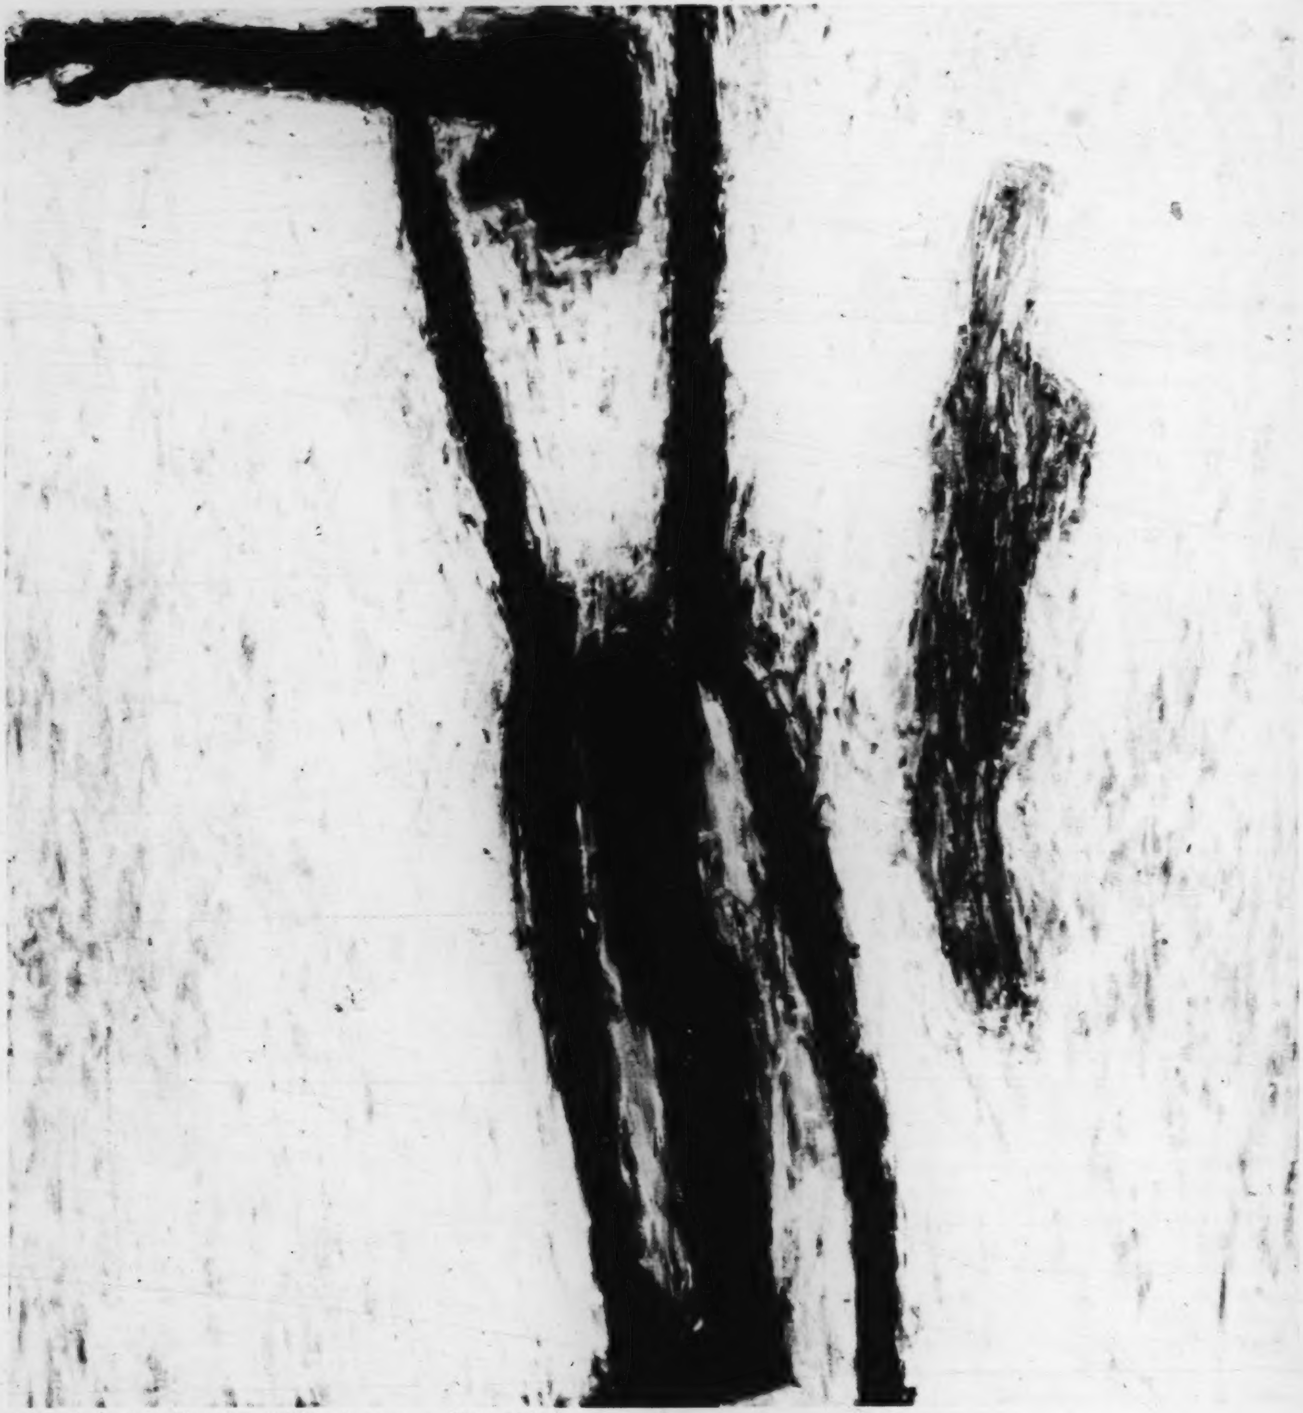
UMI



Susan Rothenberg:* Hourglass, *1982, oil on canvas, 88 by 80 inches.

Though in many respects perfectly matter of fact, Giacometti's spare depictions of the figure are widely understood to be icons of contemporary anxiety, and the sense of exhaustion and despair which they are thought to embody tends to attach itself to anything resembling them. Nevertheless, this standard interpretation is more the product of a historical moment than of an absolute truth. On the most literal level, it comes from reading the insistent isolation of his figures and their streaked and gouged surfaces as metaphors for the wounds, deprivations and emotional alienation of the war and its aftermath. Giacometti's links to literary Existentialist circles reinforces this association, and to the extent that it is valid it places the artist and his work in the context of a pessimistic humanism best represented in this country by Leon Golub and his blasted Titans.

But the pathos of Giacometti's art is less narrative or symbolic than formal, and is derived from his efforts to come to terms with a very old problem—the legitimacy and cost of violating the integrity of the figure in a search for its essence. Michelangelo's late overcarved or incomplete works are among the earliest and clearest manifestations of this conflict between the hope for a transcendent purity of form and the torment of destroying natural beauty. To be sure, Giacometti's version of this dilemma was secular, not religious as it was during the Renaissance. But structurally the dialectic was much the same—each attempt to give material substance to a fleeting perception was experienced as futile, and each step toward reducing a complex reality in nature to a definitive artifical form was felt as a loss. In the process, meanwhile, his pictures became emptier and his sculptures ever more vestigial. Giacometti's anguish over this was workmanlike and real. The present difficulty in interpreting his work arises from the ways in which his ideas and exploratory manner have been rendered academic, and used to commemorate a particular crisis in art history—perhaps the battle against systematic abstraction nobly and intelligently fought—and treat it as if it were eternal. As a consequence any use of the partial or approximative figure is first seen as a lament or a holding action, and the freedom of the artist to create new meaning is preempted by literary or ethical truisms.

Rothenberg's work challenges Expressionism by linking the heady intuitions of private symbolism to the discipline of radical abstraction.

Overcoat, 1982–83, oil on canvas, 44 by 39 ½ inches. Willard Gallery, New York.

Self-Portrait, 1982, oil on canvas, 15 ¼ by 21 inches. Collection the artist.

Maggie's Cartwheel, 1981–82, oil on canvas, 25 by 30 ½ inches. Private collection.

The starting point for artists such as Rothenberg, however, is not the decline of the Renaissance tradition and the malaise which that has engendered, but rather the sometimes eerie though not necessarily tragic prospect offered by a tabula rasa. Indeed for more than two decades, most philosophically ambitious art has been one of surfaces, and not one of spiritualized three-dimensional forms. Minimalism, the culmination of this evolution, provides both an opportunity—a void to be filled—and a measure of protection—a buffer between the new figurative art and the old. Of course no such protection is absolute, and many of the Neo-Expressionists have made themselves accountable to the past by stampeding deliriously and purposefully backwards toward the worst clichés of previous styles and ideologies.

But Rothenberg has not, and her new work is interesting not only for its poetry but for the ways in which it challenges Expressionism by linking the heady intuitions of private symbolism to the discipline of radical abstraction.

Indeed, the primary given of her work is the flatness and objectivity of the surface on which she makes her discoveries and not the subjectivity of the images themselves, and from the horse paintings to the present work each disruption of that surface has been matched by formal devices which reassert its coherence. In the beginning this was accomplished by Rothenberg's laying vertical and diagonal bars across

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Ten Men, 1982, oil on canvas, 60 by 198 inches. Carnegie Institute. Photo Stedelijk Museum.

Flanders, 1976, acrylic and tempera on canvas, 65 ¾ by 98 ¾ inches. Collection Jacques Kaplan.

Three Trees, 1983, oil on canvas, 86 ½ by 87 inches. Willard Gallery.

the figure. This was followed by her distributing and overlapping the dissected parts of her figures in ways which echo the arbitrariness of the bars, but which allowed the ground to open up without at the same time acquiring illusionistic depth. More recently she has used heavy contours, hollow shapes and eccentric silhouettes to force the images up to the picture plane, thus emphasizing their physical and therefore emotional intrusiveness. Even the partial volumes and atmospheric light of Overcoat and Two Rays are more a matter of liberties taken with a two-dimensional space than the projection and reduction of a three-dimensional reality.

Rothenberg's most consistent device for establishing the materiality of these paintings, however, is gesture. By contrast to the elegantly lacerating strokes of de Kooning, the delicate cancellations of Giacometti or the marbled abrasions of Golub, Rothenberg's markings are gritty and abrupt and to that degree superficially more urgent; but their main function outside of drawing seems to be not so much to stimulate feeling as to activate the canvas—especially where there are no figurative elements or tone or color changes. In that regard the juxtaposition in a recent group show of an all-white Ryman to one of Rothenberg's new and predominantly empty paintings was not so glib as it might at first have seemed—she is in a sense scribbling on Ryman's vacant ground, but she is also alert to the fact that in painterly terms that ground is already very much alive.

Gesture is a function of drawing as well—and Rothenberg's draftsmanship is both searching and affirmative, the tentative first approximations of a form followed by often emphatic reconstructions and reiterations. Certainly this compulsive elaboration of shapes has its emotional impetus, but it is a very different one from that read into Giacometti's work. Rothenberg's simplifications and corrections are, like Giacometti's, part of a search for the essential characteristics of form, but they represent a process of cautious addition to the realm of signs, rather than a reluctant subtraction from the world of appearances; thus her gesture is more a matter of anticipation and release than of desperation.

There is of course an undeniably haunting dimension to Rothenberg's imagination, manifested in the past by her huge knotted heads and hands and lately, in paintings such as Hourglass and Beggar, by spectral profiles sprouting grasping arms, but her range of subjects has widened and one cannot judge the overall meaning of the work simply by the most disconcerting images of its pervasive sense of mystery. Indeed, some of her most benign paintings are made of exactly the same gestures and devices as the more unsettling ones. The fragile shadow-in-motion of Maggie's Cartwheel is clearly a domestic anecdote, but it employs the same muddy, joined silhouettes as the uncomfortably inverted couple of Rest. One-Arm-Float seems a mirror of the forbidding Hourglass, but is in fact a beach scene where Rothenberg's heavy black line is permitted to describe such mundane detail as tank-suit straps (and why not?). Certainly the sooty Snowman is more slapstick than menacing, and even the dry, dark boat pictures are as "real" as they are strange—as evocative as they are expressionistic.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Red Swans, 1982, oil on canvas, 64 ½ by 88 inches. Private collection. Photo Stedelijk Museum.

> In Rothenberg's paintings, we are watching the emergence of a world, not its demoralizing retreat or its furious explosions and collapse.

As one would expect, Rothenberg's determination to use such limited means to so many purposes creates confusion in particular paintings at the same time that it enforces a formal rigor overall. Moreover, her quick graphic manner can and on occasion does become fluttery and unfocused. But if Three Trees with its unsure scale and vague combination of black cutout shapes and ill-defined figure demonstrates how Rothenberg's style can seduce her into leaving a painting before its inherent content is clear, the even more ghostly Speedboat works precisely because its pale emanations are in balance with its physical presence as a painting, and because both engage us without dictating our response.

In all, Rothenberg has escaped the art of good intentions and preordained meaning, and she has refused the temptation of theatricality, bad conscience and wholesale expropriation, and thus one must meet the poetry of her images halfway, and one must interpret it within the context she gives us. That context is becoming clearer and its specifics more various. We are watching the emergence of a world, not its demoralizing retreat or its furious explosion and collapse. As long as Rothenberg's intelligence and restraint continue to inform her work as much as the pleasures of the brush and the imagination do, she has no cause to worry and no need to look back. □

Author: Robert Storr is a painter and critic.

Boat-Man, 1981–82, oil on canvas, 58 by 42 inches.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
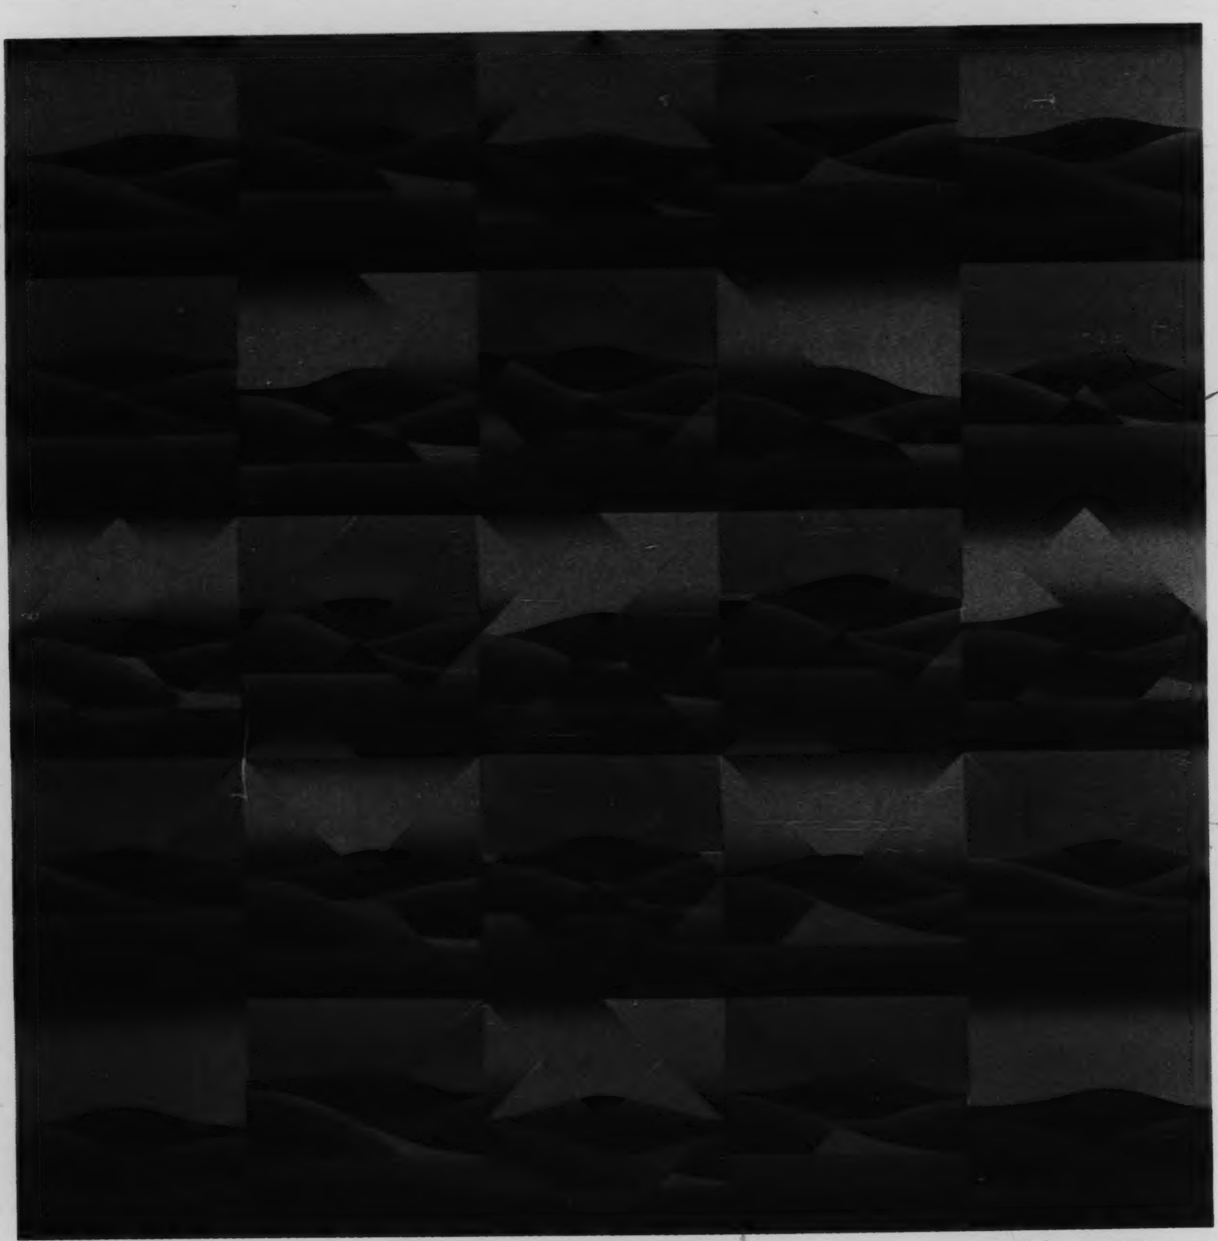
UMI



Cross Expressionism acrylic/canvas 60" square

George Snyder

Representation:

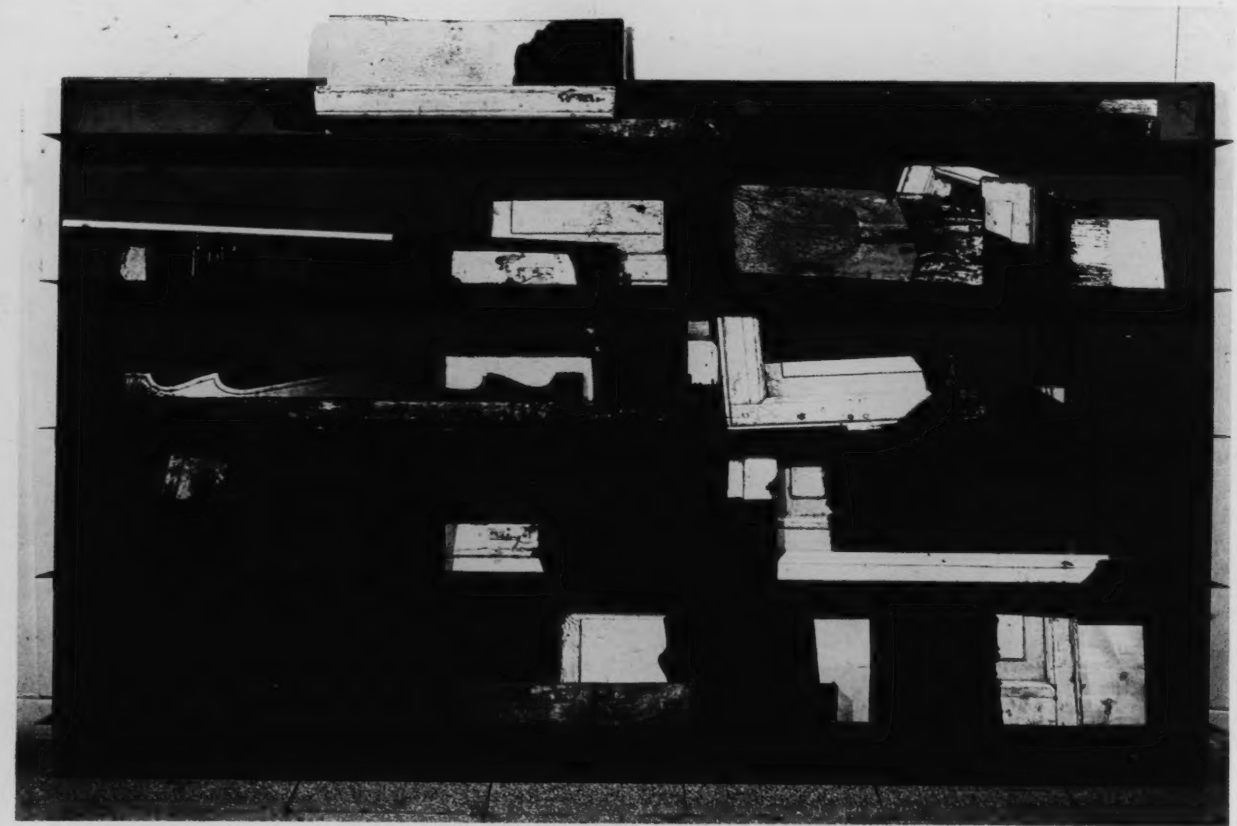
afi

Arts Focus, Inc.

401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301 (304)345-9059

San Francisco Bay Area 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549 (415)284-7703

Review of Exhibitions



Jannis Kounellis: Untitled, 1983, mixed mediums, 57 3/4 by 95 1/2 by 6 3/4 inches; at Sonnabend.

NEW YORK

Jannis Kounellis at Sonnabend

The work of Jannis Kounellis has almost always possessed a severe elegance. Despite deliberately rough edges and often unlikely or unwieldy mediums—which have included horses and parrots as well as ashes and gold—his work is an unsentimental education in the intersecting codes of culture, time and self.

In his recent exhibition, scraps of old wood were laid out along multiple horizontal steel shelves. The metal is not the brash, reflective material of high-tech fantasy, but the dull, practical stuff of industrial use. In contrast to its sleek, impenetrable surface, the pieces of wood seethe with signs of age. Termite-pocked and weathered, encrusted with layers of cracking, peeling varnish and paint, they are bits of compressed time, geological samples of a past that is coming apart at the seams. These pieces are primarily domestic fossils: remnants of furniture, window frames, doors, floors, etc. In one work, a fragment of a plaster-cast classical head represents another, even more distant cultural past.

Kounellis evokes the existence of a persona at a loss to understand the composition of history. The scraps have been carefully arranged as if someone were attempting to reestablish order, to elucidate connections that can no longer be perceived because the past's structure has been destroyed. Here and there are hints of decoration—a carved floral ornament, the graceful curves of what must have been a chair or table. But similar pieces are placed on different shelves, their relationship apparently undetected, the assonances of an old language lost in the inflexible context of the present. An entire cultural vocabulary has been irretrievably altered: these are parts of speech that have decayed into unreadable fragments. Their reconstruction is hindered not only by the irreparable damage of time, but by the strict horizontal grammar of the present (or perhaps, future) in the form of the metal shelves.

Everywhere in these works there are signs of impotence with regard to the past. In several of the panels, the wood has been partially covered with paint as if color had the power to equalize time. (Each panel has its own color: one is dominated by red, others by black, and in one there is a touch of grey blue.) But cans of paint lie abandoned on the shelves in defeat, the job left undone.

Only two pieces in the show depart from the horizontal format. One is an empty shelf intended to hold small oil-and-wick candles. (They were unavailable in New York and the supply ran out quickly.) In the other, a kind of altar (the only construction in the show), an empty drawer is attached to a "canvas" of steel. A broken table leg is wedged into it, and it is bisected by another wood scrap. Nestled in the corner is a shiny new kerosene lantern whose wick has never been used. The artist's name, KOUNELLIS, is stenciled army-style in black paint across the bottom of the drawer.

This altar constitutes a proprietary act aimed at countering the illegibility of the past—and hence of the self—implied by the other panels. The self has been reduced to an iconography of decay (the wood) and temporal intransigence (the metal shelves). In this situation it can only be reaffirmed through a narcissistic gesture of appropriation. However, this "appropriation" is free of the mystifying nostalgia that frequently accompanies such acts. It has the straightforward air of plain fact, the simple certainty of the child who sees him- or herself as the natural focus of objects and events.

The material elements of this work—steel shelves, plaster casts, fire (actual or implied), dripped paint, wood scraps—have long been part of Kounellis's personal language. Though they comprise a vocabulary of primal signs, their articulation is far from primitive. Kounellis engages the viewer in a sophisticated parsing motivated by ontological desire—the desire to locate and secure a place for

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

the self within the complex phenomenological syntax of an increasingly fragmented universe.
—Jamey Gambrell

Gérard Garouste at Castelli and Sperone Westwater

I am a perfect victim for Gérard Garouste's kind of art. I am an art historian, and Garouste's paintings are full of art-historical references. I love the theater, and they are theatrical. I am interested in the decorative arts, and so is he. He even paints with a Coromandel screen in his studio.

So I should have been impressed by this Parisian's first one-man show in New York. And so I was, until I realized that he might be pandering to exactly my type. Gradually I began to doubt my liking for his work. Eventually I couldn't trust my own reactions or the work itself. Slowly but surely I came to feel betrayed, cheated out of my big chance to write something positive about contemporary French painting. Now behold what Garouste has wrought: an embittered art historian eager for revenge.

I had made the crucial mistake of confusing Garouste with his sources, or worse, with my conception of his sources. Almost everyone knows that when Garouste titles a painting and a drawing Déjeuner sur l'Herbe, he is referring to Manet. Only professionals know or care that when Garouste uses Orion as a subject, he is consciously or unconsciously associating himself with Poussin's Blind Orion Searching for the Rising Sun in the Metropolitan. Ultimately Garouste cooks his own goose by bringing out the detective in me.

I went to the Met to look at the Poussin and read up on it, remembering that I had also seen it in Paris last year at the exhibition "France in the Golden Age." Returning to Garouste's Orions, I saw that they bore no resemblance to the Poussin. If anything, they were reactions against it. Poussin's Orion has sense of purpose. Garouste's is a layabout. Where Poussin's line is precise, Garouste's wavers. Sheaves of lines rehearse a contour until they get it right. Color is restricted to grisaille, ocher and the primaries so that Garouste won't have to deal with free choice. He tries in all sorts of ways to limit his possibilities for originality. Yet, almost against his will, he gets interested in the sheer physicality of painting, which frees him.

The most revealing work in this respect is a small canvas at Sperone Westwater called Orion Aveugle. In it, Garouste shows just the giant's head and focuses on his unseeing eyes, which are rendered with long, fat ocher strokes suggesting bushy eyebrows. Garouste here seems to equate paint with not seeing—with blindness, brutishness, and stupidity.

Gerard Garouste: Les Lutteurs, 1982, oil on canvas, 97 ½ by 115 inches, at Castelli and Sperone Westwater.

John Lees: Landscape, 1977-83, oil on canvas, 30 inches square; at Edward Thorp.

By now, I had begun to wonder how anyone could like Garouste. What had possessed Leo Castelli to give him a show? Once I realized that Garouste is not up to any comparisons with great French artists, I began to sniff around for minor figures I could slander him with. My thoughts turned to the Neo-Romantics of the 1920s and '30s, artist-decorators like Christian Bérard and Eugene Berman. Upon looking them up, I realized that even they were more serious than Garouste. Who was left? Leonor Fini. But she, too, seemed more committed to her kooky style of figuration and more technically adept than Garouste. So I gave up on that lead.

Then, by coincidence, a friend told me that in the late 1930s Castelli, working at the Galerie Drouin in Paris, gave Leonor Fini a show. It included not only her paintings but Victoriana, chandeliers and campy things like armoires sprouting swans. It occurred to me that this is exactly the kind of magical ambience Garouste evokes in his paintings. I thought of Columba in which the floral border of the rug mysteriously turns into a flock of birds.

"Where was the Galerie Drouin located?" I asked. "In the Place Vendôme, right between Schiaparelli and the Ritz," was the reply. So my associations of Garouste with Decorator-Surrealism had been right. This quintessential hub of French history, fashion and luxury, this real and imaginary place, was the artist's point of departure and arrival. Now I could guess that Leo's choice of Garouste was predicated upon nostalgia for pre-World War II Paris, when the city was still the center of the art world.

This still didn't account for Garouste's presence at Sperone Westwater, nor for the gallery's recently shortened name. Where was Fischer? Could his absence be blamed on Garouste? As I sat ruminating in front of the ugliest Garouste painting I could find, called Les Lutteurs, the plot became clear to me. Earlier, when I still liked Garouste, I had been willing to see this painting as a parody of Late Antique allegories which contrast dying paganism with early Christianity. The fighting gladiators could be Christians, while the man, woman and child around the arena could be pagans. But now, in my desire for blood, a second reading occurred to me. Might not this painting be an allegory of the contemporary art market with Italy and Germany slugging it out while America watches from the sidelines, and France lies already wounded in the dirt? If this is the case, then the distracted woman in blue could be any number of American lady art dealers. The figure on the ground could only be French art in general and Garouste in particular.

As I looked closer, I saw that the figure's head which I thought decapitated was, in fact, growing out of his arm. Then I noticed that his arm was flowing into the open contour of another wrestler's leg. So the Garouste disease was more infectious than I had guessed. And here I am spreading it by my prolonged attempt at serious discussion.

But is an artist bad because he fools an art historian into liking him? Is the artist to be blamed for painting figurative dreck when that's what the market primarily supports? Isn't Garouste's style just an inversion of socialist realism? What does his preeminence say about the current state of affairs in France? Has anything changed? The French have an expression for this: plus ca change. . . . —Brooks Adams

John Lees at Edward Thorp

Imitation may be inadvertent flattery or simple rip-off. But an intentional homage to one's mentors is an altogether different and more delicate matter. In the case of John Lees's new paintings, the resemblance of the work to that of his chosen masters is so close, it is as if he has assumed the role of performer, interpreting skeletal themes transcribed from Carrà, Morandi and Giacometti. "Performance" in this sense is not generally recognized as a standard by which to judge paintings. But if the lesser work in this show continues to make one uneasy about sidestepping the issue of "originality," the integrity of the best paintings more than justifies the obvious derivativeness of many of the images.

The paintings are for the most part quite small, and most are based on the same few elements: a tower; a blocky building with a pitched roof; a low wall; and a view of the sea. The color throughout is subdued (slate blues, leaden grays, chill greens and soft smudges of Venetian red and ocher) with a cumulative effect that is extraordinarily subtle and resonant. The composite image is that of the hushed and light-permeated world of post-Romantic Italian art—a blend of metaphysical dreamscape and the nostalgic realism of the '30s.

Isolated from its true Mediterranean context, and treated as a universal metaphor for contemplative reality and artistic sincerity, this secondhand vision has become a staple art-school cliché. Lees, however, is not just another true believer. He is first of all a painter, and a very good one indeed. The conviction of his work and the honesty of his homage is manifest in the sensitivity of touch and in the physical weight of these pictures. Ultimately, his poetics is compiled not so much of borrowed forms as of the material presence of the pitted and layered surfaces of his canvases. His originality is to be found in the way he has been able to make slow accretions of paint—a build up of pigment which in some cases has taken years—literally embody the timelessness and flickering permanence of remembered or imagined places.

Gary Stephan: The Unmastered Past, 1982, 96 by 72 inches; at Mary Boone.

If in the best of these paintings Lees fully discharges his debt, in the drawings there is cause for worry. Heavily dependent in this case not just on the structures provided by Morandi, Giacometti et al, but also on cross-hatchings, erasures and other such "patented" procedural markings, Lees has gone beyond interpretation of his models to an often cramped and precious impersonation of their mannerisms. At this point his affection for these artists exceeds his love for the process of drawing. This is especially problematic since what we value in their work is precisely their involvement with the activity of hand and eye uncompromised by notions of style.

It would be a shame if such thoroughly self-effacing appreciation of mastery were to infect the paintings. Thus as good as the new work can be, one hopes that it represents no more than a last visit with the elders, and that having now paid his respects to them, Lees will return to his own world. —Robert Storr

Gary Stephan at Mary Boone

Like a number of the artists who have risen on the tide of the new gestural painting, Gary Stephan seems caught between the desire to reinvent a confrontational Grand Manner art and the more parochial demands of maintaining a public presence while sorting through and appropriating the pictoral strategies of the last 15 years. In his most recent work the distance separating the larger ambition from an eclectic practice is more than ever apparent.

The shapes, syntax and rich hues of the new paintings at first seem an expression of broad and sure purpose on Stephan's part—the ingredients of an unlikely but persuasive painterly Constructivism. Warm grays and saturated blues and earth oranges, vertical articulations and dense, brushy drawing at times recall Newman, Marden and Manet, while low-relief geometric ambiguities remind one of bits of Puni, Lissitzky and Malevich isolated and enlarged.

The simplest statement of Stephan's basic formal module—the interplay of convex and concave surfaces—appears in two freestanding bronzes that look like elegantly fluted Art Deco machine parts. In the paintings this sculptural punning is carried out through the juxtaposition of massive bars and boldly described conic sections, presented in some cases like pieces of rough timber or curves of rusted boiler plate. All the various combinations of these shapes are executed in bravura style, with thick-edged patches of matte acrylic and great sweeps of creamy metallic pigment. But despite the confident "good looks" of the work, the spatial contradictions around which it is organized are only mildly perplexing as abstractions, and as images not terribly evocative.

Stephan seems to be aware of this, but rather than clarify or attack his focal elements he has chosen to tinker with their format. Panels are staggered; materials are contrasted in well-designed but hardly surprising ways (hard-gloss masonite sheets are opposed to brushy canvas panels and they in turn to nappy, stained linen); beveled strips are run along the outside margins of several paintings making a literal bridge to the wall. This gimmickry pays off once. In the best work in the show, stretchers are inserted as the dominant vertical in a row of panels and are met by a painted diagonal beam, creating a stark gibbetlike structure. But for the most part these secondary manipulations seem to be there to serve as an alibi for the easy rhetorical swish of the primary forms. At worst they can be seen as an invitation and pretext for academic discourse on surface/support and the dialectics of conception/perception. These terms often prove to be rooted more in verbal enigmas than in visual ones; to apply them at this point to Stephan's work would be mystification, not analysis. Based on the strength of his earlier work and setting aside his recent writings, one hopes that the theoretical ghost in these machines is not a sign that Stephan has succumbed to the temptation of being right about "art" while going through the motions of making it. —Robert Storr

Helen Mayer Harrison and Newton Harrison at Ronald Feldman

In the late '60s, Newton Harrison abandoned his art-for-art's-sake Minimalist sculpture and began to work with his wife, Helen Mayer Harrison, on real and theoretical ecological projects. Their recent show featured a 100-foot-long, hand-tinted photographic mural in 47 parts, called Thinking About the Mangrove and the Pine, and commissioned for a Florida landscape show by the Ringling Museum. Also included were a project detailing the birth and death of Barrier Islands, a sketch for the Seventh Lagoon, and environmen-

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

tal projects commissioned by various cities, including Baltimore.

The Harrisons call their works environmental narratives. Smaller photographs are arranged flanking larger photographs, rather in the manner of an early Renaissance altarpiece—the smaller images forming vertical predella-like panels that "tell the story" of the central icon or image. A sparse written commentary somewhat resembling song lyrics or litany accompanies the photographs.

The Harrisons' work is permeated by a moralistic, quasi-religious fervor, even as they accord ecological good and evil the same esthetic treatment: the splendid hand-tinted photographs make villain and hero visually indistinguishable. To the uninitiated, for instance, the mangrove and the pine are merely trees, but in Thinking About the Mangrove and the Pine the pine is presented as an immigrant gone beserk. The Godzilla-like advance of the pine is recorded photographically, from the species's first appearance in the background, through its conquest of the shore and displacement of the mangrove, to its own decimation as conveyed by the final image, in which a pine lies helplessly uprooted. What we see is simply a record of change. The ecological battle, with all its possible ramifications, is only made explicit by the caption: "The pine from Australia colonizes behind the mangrove/and gains the edge . . . /topples in the wind/ and loses ground thereby."

Man is also portrayed as an ecological threat. In one sequence, photographs of trees crowding the shoreline are juxtaposed with others showing the trees displaced by houses and other artifacts of man. Here, the Harrisons' point is that man is more of a threat to the mangrove than the pine because he interferes with the natural cycle of the shoreline's ecology; indeed, the visual evidence in this case makes the caption more lament than explanation: "People displace the mangrove and freeze the edge . . . reducing habitat thereby."

Helen and Newton Harrison: That Idiot Theseus Did in the Minotaur, 1982, photograph and painting on canvas; at Feldman.

In the least judgmental sequence, Barrier Islands, the Harrisons photographically record the waxing and waning of small islands off the coast. A large photograph of a tree, standing for the zenith of an island's growth, is surrounded by five smaller photographs on either side: the ones on the left depict the development of islands, those on the right reveal their gradual disappearance, until just the top branches of a single bare tree remains. The accompanying text reads, "Islands come and islands go/responding to the currents and the tides/increasing or decreasing habitat/protecting the mainland at the edge."

That Idiot Theseus Did in the Minotaur consists of two half-lunette photographs (placed facing each other across a corner) that depict yet another variation of the nature-versus-technology theme—this time played out in Sri Lanka. In this sketch for one part of The Seventh Lagoon (a ten year project involving the ecology of various lagoons), a water buffalo is shown wallowing in a wild, watery marsh in the left-hand panel. The buffalo is contrasted with a man clad in shirt and shorts and operating a mechanical tilling machine in a well groomed marsh on the right. The Harrisons want the viewer to draw the conclusion that we are needlessly squandering our natural resources through an over-reliance on technology.

Like all moralists, the Harrisons divide the world into black and white. Their artistic propaganda for a responsible approach to ecology is blurred and made ambiguous through their dependence on esthetic pleasure, which tends to sheer away their own rhetoric and concentrate attention on what we see. What we see is essentially a photographic approach to landscape that, for all its old-fashioned means (hand-tinting black and white photographs) stands solidly within the modern tradition of landscape photography.

—Ann-Sargent Wooster

Roger Cutforth: Three Horizons, Big Bend, Texas, 1979, color photographs, 73 by 78 inches; at Hal Bromm.

Roger Cutforth at Hal Bromm

Roger Cutforth selected spectacular vistas from the treacherous terrain of Big Bend National Park in south Texas for these landscape photographs. He also showed a few dreamy seascapes shot around Ballast Key, off Florida, and two still lifes of macabre souvenirs from Big Bend.

Cutforth gets away with using beautiful landscape photographs by presenting them in sets. If he displayed the two photographs that comprise Night from Chilicotl Spring singly, one might gaze at them briefly, admiring the rich color and high quality of the prints and move on. But instead, repeated images are mounted edge to edge in the same frame. Cutforth shoots and groups his pictures to show dramatic contrasts in the way a landscape is revealed at different times. Experiencing his works doesn't have much to do with looking at landscape in real time or, for that matter, with seeing conventional landscape photographs. It has more to do with looking at paintings.

Three Horizons was the largest piece in the recent show. The same panorama was shot at sunrise, midday and sunset, and the three views stacked one above the other to form a square more than six feet across. At sunrise the sun is behind the camera. Weeds in the foreground stand against the sky and the distant jagged ridge glows with direct sunlight. At midday the horizon dissolves in haze and the sunlight diffuses in a partial cover of cumulus, washing out the color. At sunset, the colors are once again saturated, the weeds stand out against the sky and the horizon is sharp in shadow with the sun dropped behind it. This piece doesn't invite gazing; the eye moves from one image to the next, searching out differences—the details and aspects revealed in one view and not another.

Night from Chilicotl Spring was the most romantic piece in the show. Its two photographs show a dramatic rock formation against the sky. In the photograph on the left, the rock is in shadow, umber against a naples yellow sky. In the photograph on the right, taken in full darkness with a long exposure, the stars appear as blue-white streaks against the black sky and the rock is revealed in tones of velvety violet. Unlike the work of Hamish Fulton or Richard Long, Cutforth's does not seem involved with the expedition as an occasion for picture making. The experience of his work is more distant from the experience of the landscape than theirs; the art work is more independent. Cutforth avoids interpretive photography; he does not try to make us believe that the camera "sees." For him it is, rather, a recording device—we see. Nevertheless, he respects the medium and uses it with skill and imagination. —Paul Stimson

Don Hazlitt: Crucified, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 68 by 124 inches; at Rosa Esman.

Don Hazlitt at Rosa Esman

A New York gallery owner said recently that there were two subjects on the minds of the younger artists she was seeing: nuclear holocaust and the Crucifixion. Keith Haring, of course, comes to mind on both; and there are sufficient crucifixes in today's art to have warranted Barbara Gladstone's organizing a recent show with the cross as its theme.

Apocalypse was dear to the hearts of the Abstract Expressionists, too, but in the work of young cross 'n' bomb artist Don Hazlitt, apocalypse comes out of the abstract closet and presents itself as nuclear war pure and simple. The apocalypse is still Expressionist, but it's no longer non-figurative: Multilaunch, a cartoon-land diptych, has red, yellow, purple and pink missiles all taking off at the same time, against suitably ominous black and gray grounds. Snow Front, with its glowing orange house, yellow and pink fir trees, and gray and white detonations, is apparently about what it would be like to go up (by bomb) on a dark, snowy night—nighmarishly lovely. A smaller oil-stick and enamel-on-paper drawing, Crater "H", shows missile on launch pad in the left foreground, childishly scrawled yellow-and-orange mountains in the background, and the middle of the drawing studded with Crater "H", with other craters scattered around. Even the pictures without holocaust material are fraught with "wars and rumors of wars": a diptych called Lakefront features a big black tanker next to, of all things, sailboats on the lake.

But we mustn't forget the cross. Why young American artists are reviving this Christian (and pre-Christian) symbol at this time is anybody's guess. In Hazlitt's work crosses abound, crude or in Daliesque 3-D, perhaps as motives for war (will Jerry Falwell finally be the one to push the button?), or perhaps as salvation from the outcome, the way a crucifix used to ward off vampires. Hazlitt, anyway, doesn't say. This is art, after all, not politics or religion, and he's celebrating the end—in Mardi Gras fashion—as well as decrying it. Crosses and bombs, it seems, are a combination as lethal—or as fabulous?—as Quaaludes and booze. The Abstract Expressionists were drunk on the end times; Hazlitt is toxic with them. It's a little scary, a little awful, a little magnificent, a little dumb, and makes for potent new images in a new/old American art. —Gerrit Henry Katherine Porter: I Am an American . . . Uneasy Dream, 1981, oil on canvas, 88 by 89 inches; at David McKee.

Katherine Porter at David McKee

Vortices, currents, tangential rays and spinning cogs of light and matter—these are the presiding forces in Katherine Porter's paintings of the past several years. Hers is a vocabulary of motion and power, at once personal and historically rooted. Kupka, the Delaunays and Kandinsky, among others, developed and used these terms to symbolize both physical and spiritual dynamism, each artist adding, as does Porter, a particular momentum and affect to each verb. More recently Porter has amended this basic repertory of signs to include another set of equally well-established images—boxy tenements or skyscrapers, ruined columns and barbed wire coils. This mix offers elements both of metaphorical dialectic and unresolved incongruity.

It is useful to take into consideration the original context and meanings of these separate symbolic systems. The first group of images derives from the exhilaration felt at the early part of the century when intellectual and scientific discoveries seemed to open up an infinite realm of resources and promise. The second set of emblems have most frequently been used to chronicle the disappointment that followed this explosive optimism, when the new world proved incapable of curing the ills of the old and in fact found itself threatened by the unfamiliar energies it had loosed. The first group addressed universal concerns, while the second was more political in focus, emphatically of the world.

VOL 7 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Philip Pavia: Bronze Head, 1982, bronze, 10 inches high; at Max Protetch.

The best paintings in this exhibition (and the best passages of the others) reflect the dark side of this equation—not, ironically, by relying on declarative images like the buildings or barbed wire, but by making full use of the densely nested wheels and radiating sheets of color which echo and then reverse the millennial pyrotechnics of the early modernists. The paint and the rigor of the shapes tell the tale. Whereas the cosmic forms are worked and reworked part against whole, the literal symbols, especially the wire, are simply left to float in or over the otherwise energized field of the picture. The threatening quality of the abstract elements eclipses even the scratched-in legend "El Salvador 1981" at the bottom of one painting—a curious circumstance, since such topical references generally have their strongest effect in their own day, losing their meaning bit by bit as time goes by.

One is left then with an ambivalent feeling about much of this work, an ambivalence not entirely the product of the contradictions it is intended to manifest. There is no reason to doubt the sincerity or the intensity of the political convictions behind these paintings, but one wonders why those convictions are presented in so incidental or tentative a way when compared to the vigorous treatment of the less explicit images in the work. Perhaps it is simply a question of time and the enormity of the issues raised here. Porter has frequently been compared to Guston, but the point of similarity is as much a matter of their commitment to a moral vision of art as it is one of painterly mannerism. It is important to remember in this regard, however, that Guston was not able to synthesize his poetic concerns with his political understanding until the last decade of his life. One should, therefore, value Katherine Porter's ambition—realized in such successful paintings as I am an American—Uneasy Dreams—while accepting the unresolved work as steps towards reconciling what will most likely be a longstanding duality.

—Robert Storr

Janet Fish at Robert Miller

In these recessive, inflated, postmodern, premillennium days, is it still possible to live the good life? Judging by her latest show, Janet Fish would seem to answer with an emphatic yea. Where once her subject was, pure and simple, light—its effects on colored glassware and fruits and flowers and reflections—new interests have now intruded into her painting: the little joys of everyday living—cerebral or sensual—and human beings.

In much of the work, the glassware and the fruit and the flowers are still there, but they no longer hold center stage. With A Bag of Pears comes extra enjoyment: the Sunday Times magazine open to the crossword puzzle in the upper left corner of the picture. Raspberries and Goldfish features just that compelling combination; Apple Blossoms and Cheerios has a bowl of the breakfast cereal in the foreground. Pansies and Tea shows yellow, red and mauve pansies in a vase, a bowl of strawberries behind them, a tea-bag cannister fallen to its side at the center, along with both a glass of iced tea (with lemon) and a cup of hot tea (in Depressionware pink). Here we are in a distincly contemporary earthly paradise, where all gustatory and mental needs are immediately and abundantly met, and depression—economic or psychic—is held at bay by sheer gratification.

But Fish pulls out all the stops on her heroic hedonist theme in a big canvas titled, simply and ironically, An Apple. True, there is an apple in the picture; but it is overridden by a bottle of club soda, little marshmallow chicks, an open bag of popcorn, green (for St. Patrick's Day) Hostess Sno-Balls, a bag of potato chips, a Hostess orange cupcake broken in half to reveal its gooey creme filling and, among the inedibles, a goldfish in a bowl, playing cards, a Kleenex box, a Belmont Stakes glass, a jigsaw puzzle of the names and logos of various candies and gums, a vase of lilies and butterfly curtains behind it all. Fish's "moveable feast" is utterly caloric and utterly gorgeous; and to any junk-food baby looking at it, the picture has the mesmeric pull of heroin to the addict.

Fish, who was born in 1938, is probably a little too old to have been a junk-food baby herself, but in her portraits of adolescent girls we have the chunky, milk-fed avatars of conspicuous consumption. Sasha with a Bowl of Candy shows a young lady, head down on hands, arms on table, with a small yellow pad and pencil next to a beckoning bowl of multicolored hard candies. Some of the portraits omit the comestibles and concentrate on adolescence: in Ruth and Sasha one girl puts on lipstick while she looks in a hand mirror; the other, full face, watches. The climactic painting in this series is Darlene Reading—stretched out on a blanket, perusing what seems to be a fashion magazine, looking out to the left of the viewer rather than reading. It's not hard to guess what accompanies her, even outdoors: Mallopuffs, Sunshine orange soda, Bachman's potato chips—and a mysterious dark green glass pitcher, looking like crystal amidst all the junk.

The mysterious pitcher adds a note of irony to the composition, a reminder of the still beauties of Fish's more classic work. Indeed, all of these new works could be taken as ironic—but only on the surface. In substance, and with painterly dazzle, she has hit on the manner in which contented Americans spend their off-hours: doing crossword puzzles, reading magazines, watching goldfish, applying lipstick and, best of all, gorging on "empty calories." While Audrey Flack brings a full-blown cynicism to her contemporary vanitas still lifes, Fish brings joy—in the very act of virtuoso painting—and a deep sort of regard. How Fish maintains this attitude in the face of what most other art-world sophisticates—first Pop, then Photo-Realist—have seen as decadence is anybody's guess. But her vapid enchantments are, for the space of these paintings, our esthetic certainties. At the millenium, happiness is just a green Hostess Sno-Ball away.

—Gerrit Henry

Benny Andrews at Glass Gallery and Sid Deutsch

Benny Andrews's drawings are peculiarly attractive. Their line, as we watch it over the 25-year stretch of this exhibition, becomes more and more detached from its theme—altogether cool, unrushed, seemingly unlabored. It is as though the more remote Andrews becomes from the black experience his work describes, the more he can become a virtuoso of the means he uses to describe it. Andrews's problem is to come to grips with this experience from a consciousness of art alien to it. The line becomes retentive but not possessive, meditative but not nostalgic. The space of the paper comes to count for more and more of the body of the illustration. The line is like a thin track we must follow through the space to come to the ghostly humanity recovered in it.

Janet Fish: Darlene Reading, 1982, oil on canvas, 46 by 80 inches; at Robert Miller.

Andrews's figures are like sedimentations of memory on a tabula rasa, which we expect to be a palimpsest, but on which nothing is erased—what one sees is all that remains, all that can ever be given to understanding. To redo it would be to lose it, just as to attempt to restore it, to "fill" it out, would be to miss its point. These works avoid sentimentality through their directness—evade emotivity through their cunning "minimalism."

There is another dimension to Andrews's work which is worth noting: its muted satiric undertow, which becomes most explicit in the images dealing with religion. This satiric muscle sometimes relaxes into spoofing, sometimes is flexed in near-bitter anger, as in Andrews's 1982 drawing of two Dutch art critics, figures showing the same eager predatoriness—like a vulture about to spring on a victim not yet dead—as some of Otto Dix's portraits of '20s personages. Often the line itself becomes satiric, if never vulgar, inventing its figure only to put it down. There is a tragicomic streak to Andrews's handling; it became explosive in his Bicentennial allegories, but here it is consoling.

The paintings and collages show a delicate decorative immediacy, which for me is backed-up by the sense of them as drawn. Here, unexpectedly—in view of the diversity of means—the cultural content seems more muted than in the drawings, where the form is stronger, the style purer. One is distracted by the beauty of it all, whereas in the drawings there is an incisiveness—a sense of determined appraisal—which precludes all obvious exhibitedness. —Donald B. Kuspit

Benny Andrews: Serenity, 1982, mixed mediums and collage, 19 3/4 by 12 7/8 inches; at Glass and Sid Deutsch.

Philip Pavia at Max Protetch

The late Thomas B. Hess said of Pavia's sculptures on the occasion of his first one-man show at the Kootz Gallery in 1961: "They are free images—like jinn freed from bottles, swirling around the room in clouds of smoke and promises—which the artist compresses into form, binds, constrains, ties up in concepts of volume." These lines could have been written with equal truth of Pavia's latest show consisting of 12 bronze heads—11 of them men and one woman—lined up on stands and chopped off short like the heads of the lunar inhabitants who, according to Baron Munchausen, were able to leave their bodies at home and to return at pleasure with accounts of what they had seen.

Pavia's imaginary portraits, free from any resemblance to individual people yet all very individual, are a salute to the Eighth Street Artists Club which flourished from 1948 through the 1950s. Philip Pavia was one of the founders of "The Club," an institution which was at the heart of art-world concerns of the 1950s; it was attended regularly by all kinds of people—not only by artists—who met each week to discuss, to argue, to think out loud, to insult, even on occasion to fight. Pavia did almost all the work—arranging the panel discussions and symposia, writing the letters, keeping track of the records.

No doubt most visitors to this recent exhibition able to recall the days of "The Club" felt qualified to read specific likenesses into some of the sculptures. I thought I could see some resemblance to James Brooks, Earl Kerkam, Frederick Kiesler, Landes Lewitin, Robert Motherwell, Harold Rosenberg and also to Pavia himself. But apart from their potential as likenesses, these heads were really more intriguing as sculptures. Pavia has reinvented the human cranium. Eyes in his heads are not for looking but for peering; mouths are not for speaking but for smoking or jibing; there are deep cuts and growths in inexplicable places; skins seem to stretch on top of underskins or else they seem to have been liquefied and smoothed on; noses are broken or forced back into the skull. In one deep crevice, a bright green is not a patina, but green paint.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Invented anatomy can be more vital than natural anatomy. A visitor to New York University's Hall of Fame, which looks over the Harlem River from the Bronx side, will be able to remember some of the names of the famous people on display there. It is doubtful if he can also recall the busts afterwards in any specific detail, except as a grey semicircle. Not so Pavia's imaginary portraits.

—Lawrence Campbell

Esteban Vicente at Gruenebaum

Esteban Vicente's Turgano, 1982, is a splendid abstract painting with a blue like a long day in July, and below it, an orange spreading out with gray forms upon it like votary objects. Under close inspection, Turgano reveals some tiny tears of paint which made me think of the waxen tears which stream down the faces of 18th-century Virgins in Spain. But there the tears are grotesque; here, they are simply part of the painting. Opposite this painting at the other end of the gallery was Divertimento, 1982, an almost all yellow work; contained within this realm of yellow was a yellower form like a nugget of gold. In close promixity to these magnificent paintings were others equally fine. The mood of this recent exhibition was of a religious experience. To my mind it was Vicente's strongest show to date. It marked his 80th birthday.

Vicente composes each painting with irregulary shaped color forms which he accents in different ways. Sometimes he allows adjacent colors to dissolve into each other; he is a master at laying one transparent veil over another where the colors meet. He does this with such discretion one is hardly aware of it. The effect is as subtle as the moisture of a breath on the surface of a looking glass. In other paintings he leaves behind faintly iridescent edges to his colors, and sometimes liquefied paint dissolves as though salt water were flowing through it. He enlivens his color fields with forays of the brush—perhaps a tiny drip or a skirmish of form, or a mysterious transition—as with the green area edged by a blue-purple in a crucible of orange and purple in Variation, 1982.

Cleve Gray: Zen Gardens #15, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 60 inches square; at Betty Parsons.

Esteban Vicente: Turgano, 1982, oil on canvas, 56 by 68 inches; at Gruenebaum.

The first time I saw a work by Esteban Vicente must have been in 1951, in a new talent show picked by Meyer Schapiro and Clement Greenberg for the Kootz Gallery. Vicente was probably one of the oldest painters in that group show: he already had a long career behind him, stretching back into his earlier years in France and Spain. However, Vicente's collages in the 1950s soon made him one of the leaders of the new school of painting and sculpture which was emerging then in New York. His collages were raw displays of Expressionist energy, with shards of tattered and torn papers shooting across surfaces and combining with paint and graphic scribblings. They were exciting works. He had a studio on East Tenth Street. This was then the hub of New York's avant garde. The hub disappeared, but Vicente is still on East Tenth Street—literally, and the fire is still in his paintings and collages of today, although the mood he creates with his colors is one of rest and unalloyed delight.

—Lawrence Campbell

Cleve Gray at Betty Parsons

Cleve Gray's most recent exhibition was a selection of 14 paintings from his series "Zen Gardens," inspired by a visit to the Kyoto rock gardens in Japan. By limiting himself to a recurrent motif—and one with definite references to real places—Gray forces himself to exert maximum inventiveness in finding the most interesting permutations consequently available to him. In his hands, this project becomes a way of continuing to reexamine the basics of abstraction—that is, the treatment of line, shape and color within the geometric boundaries of a painting's rectangle. In the "Zen Gardens" these components maintain their identity but also work, often in counterpoint, with one another.

Calligraphic gesture has been an integral part of Gray's vocabulary for some time, but in the present series he has used it with more assurance and vitality than previously. One senses the importance of his having seen the arts of Japan, including landscape and calligraphy, in the context in which they were created. Typically, the "Zen Gardens" work like this: a single color, which can be rich and vibrant or somber and thoughtful, is laid down to form the ground. A meandering path (usually off to one side) is left initially untouched. Different colored shapes are stacked together, placed alongside each other or made to overlap. Black calligraphic lines echo, contradict, reinforce or define the edges or the shapes. Finally, traces of a dry brush, dragged across the surface, are left in the otherwise empty meandering paths.

In lesser hands, this method might become repetitive, but in painting after painting Gray compels the viewer to see differences rather than similarities. Color is used to suggest a mood—whether excitement, as in the bright red of Zen Gardens #15, or contemplativeness, as in the lavender of Zen Gardens #34. The colors can be opaque or limpid, the shapes austere or awkward, the lines bold or fragile. Calligraphy is a matter of discipline so fully absorbed by the practitioner that it becomes second nature. In Gray's hands spontaneity and discipline are welded together to achieve fluency and flexibility.

Although clearly modernist in impulse, Gray's "Zen Gardens" can also be seen as paying homage to tradition in the form of the Oriental arts of landscape and calligraphy. At a time when many would have us believe that current art practice arises from a need to put "feeling" back into painting, Gray quietly tells us it has never left. —John Yau

Doug Ohlson at Susan Caldwell

This was Doug Ohlson's 14th one-man show in New York since 1964. In 1968 he won a Guggenheim Fellowship. His career as a painter has focused on color to the exclusion of nearly everything else—but it is an inexhaustible subject.

The principal paintings in this latest show are environmental in their side-to-side sweep. Their surfaces are subdivided into vertical compartments of color, some hard at the edges, some smoldering, some soft. Other works contain L-shaped elements, or "predellas" of color areas at foot and top which contrast with the colors of the principal rectangles. Ohlson uses all kinds of different colors, in all kinds of different combinations.

One work that appealed to me particularly is called Thought Pocket; here most of the color panels—black, blues, greens—are very close in value, so that there is a tremendous contrast between the dark panels, as a group, and a much lighter blue panel, edged—as startling as an unfamiliar taste—by a flicker of orange.

In Cadman's Blue, a densely red brown calls to a green across a gulf of black and blue, while there burns, elsewhere in the same work, a red as though set afire by a burning glass. These paintings have no image-ground relationships. They are either all-image or all-ground. The color-units seem analogous to verses of concrete poetry. If one were to write their names, the colors could be distinguished by variations in type size and style.

A German scientist, David Katz, wrote a book called The World of Color, published in English in 1935; it still contains ideas in advance of any other book I have read on color. Katz distinguishes among three modes of colors, which he calls surface, volume and film. Ohlson is a not a scientist, yet he seems to me to be taking an almost scientific interest in the possibilities of color, and making modal distinctions analogous to Katz's. His color is variously physical, spatial, transparent, etc.—qualities which he explores less by calculation than by intuition. There are intriguingly subtle variations in Ohlson's long paintings, which at first appear to be as blank as a file of soldiers on parade. As the eye passes along the ranks, there are signs of an unobtrusive clandestine activity, as though a whispered message was being transmitted from one end to the other. —Lawrence Campbell

Douglas Martin: Continental Drift, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 96 by 180 inches; at Edward Thorp.

Doug Ohlson: Cadman's Blue, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 7 by 14 feet 8 inches; at Susan Caldwell.

Douglas Martin at Edward Thorp

During the last few years a number of artists have returned to the formal concerns of postwar American art. Some, of course, can justly claim never to have deserted these concerns, while others are converts or beginners. All these artists share the premise that they are building on what was accomplished by earlier generations—by the "Golden Age," so to speak. These artists also assert that abstract painting is as American as apple pie.

Martin's earlier paintings were characterized by emblematic imagery; it was allusive without being referential, suggestive rather than descriptive, and dealt with issues of flatness and frontality. Now, in this recent show, Martin's paintings continue to be allusive while no longer addressing the givens of formalism the way they once did. Instead of insisting on flatness and frontality, Martin depicts space as well as models his shapes to some degree. This might seem like a step backward, but to my mind the change is significant. Martin, who is in his mid-30s, has clearly decided that something personal and suggestive can be accomplished in the abstract mode. Following through on his intuitive beginnings, he has become introspective and questioning, no longer content to produce formalistic variants on the recent past.

Of the four paintings in this show, the most successful is also the largest, an 8-by-15-foot diptych titled Continental Drift. Unlike his earlier emblematic abstractions, a work like this suggests an imaginary landscape. In it, the reds, oranges, blacks and grays can be read as a turbulent field of magma. Martin achieves an effect of deep space by starting his shapes at the edges of his paintings and then angling them toward the center to produce a generalized effect of perspective. In Continental Drift, the viewer stands as if on some precarious ledge, peering down into an abyss of colors and shapes.

It's too early to tell where Martin's departure will lead, but the new work raises issues that the

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Ann Mikolowski: Ron & Ken, 1982, oil on canvas, 3 by 4 inches; at Gotham Book Mart.

Steve Woodburn: Golquar, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 32 by 71 inches; at Alex Rosenberg.

Helen Miranda Wilson: Sleep, 1982, oil on masonite, 10 by 9 inches; at Knowlton.

artist will have to face. One is his choice of materials. Martin uses acrylic paint, which deprives him of oil techniques such as painting wet into wet. It seems that he might consider the advantages of oil, especially its ability to activate the surface. If not, he should at least consider whether he can further manipulate the possibilities inherent to acrylic. As Philip Guston (who in his own way was American as apple pie) once said, "Painting is about freedom."

—John Yau

Ann Mikolowski at the Gotham Book Mart

In the austere '80s, few painters have chosen to work on a diminutive scale; one of these in Ann Mikolowski. When Mikolowski flew from slumping Detroit to New York, she was able to pack the entire contents of her show of portraits into three cigar boxes. Though known in Detroit, this recent work comprised her first show in New York.

For the last couple of years, Mikolowski has been painting portraits of writers and artists, most of whom are her friends. Despite working from color snapshots, she has avoided the quality of detachment that we usually associate with Photo-Realism. Her paintings quietly assert what they are—oil on canvas, on homemade stretchers, framed with thin wood slats.

Reducing a painting's scale raises certain problems, but Mikolowski has dealt with them well, producing a wide range of portraits. Each work is pretty much the same size (from two to four inches), but each is distinctive.

The portrait of William Burroughs depicts his gaunt, aristocratic face against a white background. This ghostly ground provides an accurate emotional seismograph of the author of Naked Lunch and Nova Express. In Ron and Ken, Mikolowski depicts two poets standing on a street corner on Manhattan's the Lower East Side. The space is both deep and remarkably believable: one clearly sees a woman crossing the street, as well as cabs and cars in the background.

Mikolowski lives in Grindstone City, north of Detroit. A few times a year she and her poet-husband mail portfolios to subscribers and friends containing original art work as well as poetry broadsides, bookmarks and bumperstickers. Certainly, this operation is small, but like her portraits it is full of generosity and sympathy.

—John Yau

Stephen Woodburn at Alex Rosenberg

Stephen Woodburn's painting is possessed of some of the most outspoken American Romanticism since Thomas Cole. Like Cole, Woodburn is a landscape painter; unlike Cole, who mostly painted real places, Woodburn paints scenes that are completely imaginary. Where around the country would you find, after all, the perfect, sublime, fascinatingly lit views Woodburn has concocted?

Concocted is the right word too: using no preliminary sketches, no drawings, no photographs, Woodburn seems to dream his landscape right onto the canvas. Surely no natural site could yield up such beauties as Sailors Take Warning, which follows a usual format—boulders and rocks in the foreground, trees and greenery in the middle ground, clouds and sky with mountains in the background—but heightens it awesomely by coloring the sky and clouds and mountains a blood red ("Red in the Morning," etc.). Even when the format is adhered to more naturalistically, as in Coast, where the clouds enveloping the mountains and boulders and trees are more normally colored, there is the impression of having died and gone to landscape heaven. The same impression maintains in the snow-capped peaks and perfectly gray sky of Fluella, in the high-altitude Loch Segal, and in the neo-Pre-Raphaelite (in its golden colors, at any rate) Golquar, where densities of rocks, trees, greenery and mountains build up to a sky that is, yes, shades of brown and pink.

It takes guts to paint in this manner in the face of Photo Realism and even of Painterly Realism. Both of these last are distinctly modernist developments, taking off from formalist modern positions; Woodburn would seem to have more in common with Claude and the Dutch landscape painters and, in America, Cole and Bierstadt, and to have more in common with them in a very direct way. If the landscape no longer actually exists as it did in earlier centuries, Woodburn seems to be saying, why not summon it up whole from the brain, aglow with historical references?

It's a conceit that is at its best at its most outrageous. An example is Transplant, in which snow-covered boulders, fence poles, and ancient tree all receive sunlight from an inexplicable source outside the canvas—the mountains in the background are gray and the sky pitch-black. It's daytime at night, or nighttime during the day. "And the city has no need of the Mercedes Matter: Still Life, 1977, charcoal on canvas board, 24 by 30 inches; at Schlesinger-Boisante.

Serge Seckler: Untitled, 1983, industrial paint on Vinyl, 59 by 75 inches; at Gabrielle Bryers (review on p. 173).

sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it," as it says in John's Revelation; something, or someone, else is supplying the light. We know it's the artist, and through his hyperidealism know he knows it. Still, the painting is remarkably convincing, eerily real. It makes all the rest of the work more conceivable, more possible, identifying it all, perhaps, as Thomas Cole not dead, but gone to sleep. American Romanticism has found an authentic 20th-century visionary, one who gives us paradise regained—courtesy of nothing more or less than art. —Gerrit Henry

Helen Miranda Wilson at Monique Knowlton

Helen Miranda Wilson's small primitivistic paintings are about women in solitude—women as they behave when they are alone, or women who are alone even when accompanied. Wilson's women are not necessarily lonely. In fact, they relish privacy, not being watched, not having to walk or listen. Their simple gestures of work or play put them in a contemplative mood.

Several paintings show women handling various kinds of fabric—a length of silk, a sheet flung over an unmade bed, a dress held up against a naked body. Others depict solitary women in enormous spaces either in Manhattan, as in In the City, On the Roof, or at Cape Cod, as in Just Before Leaving. Engaged in moments of stillness, these women are intensely involved in their own immediate experience. Perhaps they are feeling the sun and air on their bare flesh, or they may be simply looking—at light on buildings or water, at a starling migration or at the changing colors of the Cape's scrubby hills in early fall. Three paintings capture the poignancy of the last moment in the country before returning home in autumn. The women try to hold this summer world in their regard.

Helen Wilson's autobiographical paintings are intimate without being confessional. Her narratives, in which the most frequent protagonist is the artist herself have the same muted intensity as her colors, and the delicate discretion of her forms. They are totally absorbing, not so much because of the figures' behavior, but because of perfectly rendered mood. The paintings take on more resonance when the figures are placed in settings full of furniture and objects that hint at character; the interior scenes have greater dramatic persuasiveness than those outdoors.

Wilson uses light to make space palpable. Light sets the atmosphere, but instead of jostling the world into motion, it locks in with structure in a way that sometimes recalls the light in Edward Hopper's paintings. Wilson's handling of light—whether bright sunlight or dim evening, reflected light or light diffused by curtains—is far more refined and sensuous than it was in her more stylized paintings of three or four years ago. Greater attention to the intricacies of light has led to a more complex and tactile treatment of modeling, color and surface as well. Ironically, as Wilson's style has become more miniaturistic, the paintings have grown in emotional amplitude. Indeed, one could say that Wilson has turned her back on Alex Katzian cool to seek out the fullness of Vuillard's domestic warmth.

Wilson's interiors hint appealingly at an unfolding story. The experience is a little like walking into a stranger's home, and in one swift glance inventing the inhabitants' lives on the basis of the objects that surround them and the postures they have taken. The tale behind Sleep is oblique. With a wonderfully tender, yet cool, Balthus-like palette, Wilson paints on an approximately ten-inch square masonite panel (her preferred material) the three walls of a room, in the center of which she has placed a bed with a sleeping woman. The small format, the intentionally naive style, even the subject recall the autobiographical paintings of Frida Kahlo, an artist whom Wilson has long admired. (Both painters chose primitivism as a means to distance passionately self-revealing content.)

In Wilson's Sleep, one of the sleeper's thin, vulnerable arms falls over her body; the other burrows beneath two plump pillows. It is morning. On the floor is clothing discarded the night before, a pen and a pile of books and papers in the midst of which is a pink flower. On a row of hooks above the sleeping woman hang clothes that appear to be those of a man. Where is he? What will she do when she wakes? Wilson's manner of eliciting such questions is insistently subdued. The instant is brought to a standstill. For Wilson is a classicist: she selects moments that suggest what has been and will be. Then she paints those moments with such exquisitely simple equipoise that she turns private events into emblems of something universal.

—Hayden Herrera

Mercedes Matter and Fritz Bultman at Schlesinger-Boisanté

Mercedes Matter draws from things she can see, and so does Fritz Bultman, although both are usually thought of as abstract artists—she, a founding member, in 1936, of the American Abstract Artists group; he, the well-known Abstract-Expressionist, sculptor and collagist. Both Matter and Bultman became students of Hans Hofmann soon after he settled in New York in the summer of 1933.

All but the earliest of Mercedes Matter's drawings in this show are studies of the same still-life arrangement, although each drawing is different. Working in charcoal and white chalk on a series of stretched-canvas panels, she places each panel on a separate easel arranged around a table bearing the still life. The drawings developed slowly, inch by inch, as she moved from one easel to another.

The results of this prolonged investigation remind me of a brilliant metaphor about painting, advanced by Winston Churchill: "We look at an object with an intent regard, then at the palette, and thirdly at the canvas. The canvas receives the message despatched usually a few seconds before from the natural object. But it has come through a post office en route. It has been transmitted in code, it has been turned from light into paint. It reaches the canvas a cryptogram. Not until it has been placed in its correct relation to everything else that is on the canvas, can it be deciphered, is its meaning apparent. . . ."

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Alan Tada: Wisteria, 1982, acrylic and colored inks on paper, 35 by 24 1/2 by 5 inches; at Vanderwoude Tananbaum.

Jim Jacobs: The Marble Canyon, lacquered screen, 75 by 120 inches; at Yves Arman.

Gary Lloyd: Roman Vanity, 1970, 31 inches high; at Santa Monica Art Gallery (review on p. 177).

Mercedes Matter's encoded message is difficult to decipher in terms of her original observations, although it is readily experienceable as an esthetic conundrum of chalk and charcoal in several layers of density, with the erasure adding a "color" element to the whole. Each drawing is filled with swirling and jagged movements, as though the objects on the table had been in motion, or as though she had been moving past them; thus each separate thing has lost its separate identity and become integrated into a total environment. In a way this is like Cubism, and there is indeed something definitely Cubo-Futurist about these involved and interesting works.

Fritz Bultman drags his pencil lines across the paper surfaces, following with his eye the forms of his female models. It is as though he were carving up each surface into spaces suggesting volumes. His lines run rhythmically and each looks inward on the form it defines; at the same time it looks outward into the spaces surrounding the form. His lines flow evenly and continously, except when they are interrupted, and then they direct the eye like the trajectory of a ball thrown from one field into another. To me the best of these drawings are those in which Bultman least elaborates on the facial features—especially the eyes—of the models. As a whole it was an elegant display.

—Lawrence Campbell

Jim Jacobs at Yves Arman

The most readily apparent quality of Jim Jacobs's two-dimensional wall paintings and three-dimensional, freestanding floor pieces is the extraordinarily rich gloss of their surfaces. It is achieved by the ancient technique of lacquer, a version of which Jacobs has been perfecting over the last several years.

In both his wall and floor pieces, Jacobs contrasts sharply delineated areas, which contain a multitude of artfully incised, nonrepresentational lines in a wide array of blended colors, with large monochromatic expanses. These expanses give the illusion of being backgrounds to the drawn areas, which have a topographical aspect to them, a feeling that is reinforced by the titles—Abilene, Modesta, Nankaweep, Marble Canyon. In fact, the artist thinks of these works more or less as landscapes, inspired as he is by the vast natural panoramas of the far west where he spends his summers.

Typical of the wall paintings is Modesta (37 by 49 inches), in which two squares filled with drawing/incisions and colored in reds with muted black appear against a very deep blue. Jacobs also gets his contrasts of shape and color to work in much smaller formats: Study for Upper Elves (8 by 10 inches) holds its own next to the larger works.

The floor pieces, called "screens," are six to seven feet high and three to six feet wide. They are constructed as if a two-dimensional work had been folded and set on the floor. This positioning gives them a sense of movement, as their sides lean out at what seem to be rather precarious angles. Although the screens are sculptural inasmuch as they are all-around pieces with no ideal viewing angle, they are not really sculptures in the traditional sense—Jacobs's sensibility is definitely that of a painter.

With these works, Jacobs alludes to the Oriental/Art Nouveau tradition of using decorated screens as functional room dividers, though it is hard to imagine his screens actually serving in this way. Nonetheless, one feels that they would be even more impressive and unusual in a domestic setting rather than in the impersonal space of a gallery.

The most prepossessing work in the show is the screen Marble Canyon (75 by 86 inches). A two-foot swath of abstract drawing, in purples and violets with some complementary green, sweeps over the folded surface in what would be a rainbow arc if the folds were straightened out. The rest of the screen is rich, soft, highly polished black—a lacquer to end all lacquers.

Lacquer is, of course, a painstaking and time-consuming process, one that is primarily associated with bygone craft. In these pieces, however, Jacobs gets it to work in the thoroughly esthetic and modern context of American abstract art.

—Tony Towle

Alvin Tada at Vanderwoude Tananbaum

The 94 pieces in Alvin Tada's exhibition are almost an advertisement for the protean nature of paper, transmuted in a variety of ways—laminated with paint, sand, glitter or threads, then rolled and processed until its identity is obscured. The earlier works are painted paper wall hangings somewhat resembling textiles of primitive cultures. The most recent works are freestanding pieces which show an almost fetishistic concern for detail. They are square or rectangular vessels on tall bases, and look like certain Oriental ceramics. These containers are filled with a variety of objects: small baskets, rolled papers resembling scrolls, folded papers resembling teabags, letters, objects which look like multiple-tailed cherry-bombs. Description by means of simile is unavoidable here, for the objects themselves are enigmatic both in significance and function.

The term "fetishistic" is appropriate, for many of the works have totemic or religious undertones. Tada sometimes acknowledges this connection in titles like Divination Set and Portable Altar, but more often the function of his art is obscure. The dominant motif linking all these pieces is the thing concealed and the love of the secret: what writings, if any, do the "letters" contain? What are the contents of the baskets? Tada sometimes hides marbles, as well, in large individual baskets; their presence is revealed only by the sound of rattling when the basket is moved. (One is reminded of Duchamp's With Hidden Noise.)

Tada's work often combines elements of his Japanese-American heritage with the concerns of contemporary Western art. Paper is, of course, an integral component of Japanese architecture, art and design; its material properties have assumed a newly important role for Western artists during the past decade as well. If Tada's "altarpieces" and baskets owe much of their form to Oriental prototypes, they are divorced from religious significance and function; in the end they must be regarded strictly as works of art.

There are a number of problems with an art like Tada's. For one thing, a sense of a larger, overall concept seldom exists; each work tends to disappear in a welter of detail. And paradoxically, the sheer masterliness of his craft also poses a threat. One tends to marvel over the baskets and other objects, wondering how their maker got the paper fibers to obey him. This distinction between art and craft, however, is itself a Western concern, and Tada's best works render such a distinction invalid. —Reagan Upshaw

Chris Dermit and Serge Seckler at Gabrielle Bryers III

If there is an international New Wave in today's art—and galleries and press assure us there is—then Chris Dermit and Serge Seckler are its Katzenjammer Kids. Both young painters are from Biot, near Antibes, and both were raised in the same Franco-American environment. At least, one assumes it was Franco-American; the paintings—industrial enamel on big sheets of vinyl—are full of images from the American media—cartoons, photographs, and the like—crossed with a French sense of the decorative.

But oh how that French sense of the decorative has changed, even from the days of the School of Paris. The point here is not harmony but visual cacophony. A typical Seckler, for instance, offers—amidst splashes and splatter of paint—an octopus on top of a woman, a grostesque subhuman creature standing by a crucifix, and three men in red investigating the scene, with Seckler's name spelled out in paint across the top and bottom of the vinyl. Another features variations on the words "son of a bitch." Often Seckler attempts to cue his viewers by scribbling "C'est pour rire" across the work, although most of it, if manic, is notably unfunny.

So similar in style and sensibility were the artists paired here that it was difficult to know where one's work left off and and the other's began. The signature "Chris Dermit," though, was a help. Along with Seckleresque drip painting, Dermit goes in for devils and skeletons, a nude woman, and a fat man in purple uniform and gas mask (to list the elements of one work). Dermit also, like so many of his New Wave peers, is, shall we say, sexually strung out, at least on canvas, to the point of the avid conjuring-up of an ugly androgyne with breasts and penis in one painting. This might go over in a work of substance—Alice Neel could pull it off—but here it's just ripoff Jung—dull and cheap. Indeed, that's pretty much the sum of Dermit's and Seckler's art—decoration on the cheap, Pop on the cheap, New Wave on the cheap. Or is that last redundant? Anyway, to paraphrase Billy Joel, "It's still Action Painting to me"—and not very good Action Painting, either. We just hope the Kids had a good time doing it.

—Gerrit Henry

Ursula von Rydingsvärd at Rosa Esman

Ursula von Rydingsvärd takes four-by-four-foot blocks of cedar and works them with chisel, circular saw and grinder (the "grinder as a paintbrush," says the artist) to achieve eloquent lengths and chunks of wood; these she then glues together to create boxy, multi-striated sculptures that twist and toss at rest, or small wooden "boulders" that are laid out on the floor in mysterious arrangements. In certain ways, this work harks back to the heyday of what Lucy Lippard, on the cover of her book Six Years, dubbed "minimal, anti-form, systems, earth, or process art." From Minimalism, von Rydingsvärd gets a certain elegance of form; from earth art, her use of natural wood placed on the gallery floor. The influence of process art is obvious in her working methods, and as for "anti-form," her pieces deny the eye the normal pleasures of wood sculpture—they are, as von Rydingsvärd says, "carved to look natural."

Yet in the end these works have a quality that is mostly foreign to Conceptual-type art: beauty. Von Rydingsvärd calls the six pieces in her show "Stations for Santa Clara"—not so much to give them a religious air as to suggest, in her words, "places where you can stop and dwell just for a while." (This sense of place was also evoked by the handsome white buttresses built out from the gallery wall for the occasion that separated one piece from another.) Add to this the fact that the exhibition was "dedicated to the freedom of the people of Poland," and one gets a picture of an artist involved not only in her work but in the world.

Alan Saret: installation view at the Albright-Knox, (foreground) Had Heaven, Phase III, 1982 and (back wall) Lead Cable Gold Crown, 1983 (review on p. 177).

Ursula von Rydingsvärd: Stations for Santa Clara (detail), 1982, cedar 6 by 12 by 5 ¼ feet; at Rosa Esman. Photo courtesy Bette Stoler Gallery.

Daniel Buren: installation view of Through the Reflecting Glass, 1983, plaster and paint; at John Weber (review on p. 174).

The most beautiful work in the show was a kind of stationary landslide of smoothly polished, grainy wooden "rocks" that ran from eye level down one whole gallery wall. Here von Rydingsvärd further defined her work as distinct from that of the Minimalists and Conceptualists of the '70s. The piece was expressive, to say the least, and the viewer was inclined to tap or hit or even climb it—to get further in touch with its massive, lovely nature. Earthworks again came to mind, but only to convince one that this piece had more in common with Harold Rosenberg's "anxious object" than with the mind-teasing schemes of a Smithson or a Heizer.

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

Still, von Rydingsvärd can't be said to be an Expressionist; her works are too helter-skelteredly monolithic for that. What we have here, finally, is an artist who is necessarily aware of the trends, but has her own piece to speak, and is not ashamed to borrow from expressionist sculpture, Minimalism and all of the above, to make her point. The result is pretty uniquely von Rydingsvärd's own: so many little neo-Stonehenges whose purposes are oblique but whose messages are deep and savory. They are ciphers, yes, but, contrary to most Conceptual art, packed with emotion. —Gerrit Henry

Daniel Buren at John Weber

Modern painting discovered its greatest radicality when it finally completed its break with representation to elaborate an entirely new space of pure exteriority. The dynamics of this new painting surface (early Johns and Stella) were no longer understood as internal, relational or even self-referential but were entirely reoriented toward an outside. And painting was no less painting for all this: its frame had merely become an interface which annexed the painting to other surfaces, forming connections or blockages as it intervened materially in the world. Painting in this sense had become an ever renewable event in which even the supposedly neutral spaces of modern gallery or museum architecture were forced to participate. It is this event that Michael Fried was resisting in 1967 when he denounced the new art for its presentation of objects "in a situation." And it is precisely in the terms of this new space of exteriority—this situation—that Daniel Buren's work is meant to function.

Buren's recent show is part of a continuing series of "Work in Situ" and is called "Through the reflecting glass." The show consists of 13 pieces, each piece containing 25 elements—glass or mirror squares, triangles (diagonally bisected squares) or irregular shards (squares broken in two to form random configurations), striated with Buren's usual 8.7 cm bands of color and arranged on the wall in the largest possible square multiple of the same 8.7 cm unit. The first set consists of eight such squares, each in a different color, ranging from Bocour Red to Permanent Green Light and ordered alphabetically according to the commercial name of each color. The second set has five elements, here with mirrors instead of transparent glass, which have been striped with white paint, broken and arranged in identical fashion.

Suellen Rocca: I Did It, I Didn't Do It, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 20 by 24 1/8 inches; at Phyllis Kind Chicago.

In this way the entire wall surface of the gallery is covered in what at first seems to be a gridlike overlay, but is in fact a far more complex rhythm within the walls' monotone surface. If this is work "in situ," the concept has never been so subtly problematized. For it is no longer possible to define precisely where the work is. Buren's stripes, painted on the far side of the glass, are apparent only through the glass and in collaboration with the wall which contributes its own white stripes alongside and behind it. Our attention is directed not only to the inside surface of the glass, to the wall surface behind and to the thin space which separates them and which "contains" the color stripe, but also to the outside surface of the glass (the one closest to us) which invariably reflects any object or person that happens to be nearby.

Several readings of Buren's exhibition are possible depending on the combination of elements brought into play. If one remains within the boundaries of a single glass element, the white wall/stripe is interpreted as a consecutively ordered figure without a ground. Thus is achieved a reading of the wall as an immanent figure within the work and no longer as its transcendent frame. This effect is repeated in several ways throughout each piece. For example, the center of each piece is marked by a tiny perfect square which is read either as an element in itself or as the first square in a system of squares with which it is concentric. The first reading situates the tiny square as a monadic element on the greater gallery wall and aligns it in the horizontal and regularly spaced series of other identical squares. The second reading places it as if it were a collage element in a square white field bounded by the outside edges of four other glass elements which are now read as inside edges. The small innermost square thus once again draws the wall's white surface from outside the work to its inside.

Just as this new work contains no reference points on which to base a reading of depth, there is no clear way of organizing its distribution on the surface. The work exists neither here nor there. What Buren has done—in this and other installations—is to redistribute the "work" in a space without any transcendental "situ." He eliminates the opposition of inside and outside by connecting them in a multivalent structure which allows one term perpetually to slip into the other so that object and site constantly elude and subvert one another. But the new work also effects a shifting of modes from that of intervention to that of composition, bringing Buren precariously close to the formal conventions of painting that he attempts to subvert. Yet the shift is executed with serious intentions and a good conscience—which is how the work is able to attain, for the time being, its unimpeachable elegance. —Sanford Kwinter

Jane Kaufman at Bernice Steinbaum

The mistress of baubles and beads is back with a sleek new collection of decorative screens and curtains that continue to challenge conventions of all kinds. Jane Kaufman began this particular line of development back in 1976, with slanting lines of beads sewn on fabric-covered boxes resembling stereo speakers grouped in sets on the wall. Those works were overtly linked to the feminist concern with women's traditional crafts, and their translation into a methodology for making art. Her use of repetitious patterns fell within the parameters of the Pattern and Decoration movement as well. By 1980, Kaufman's work had become larger, and planar. Her recent perforated "walls" have become increasingly independent of their textile origins; now, they function primarily as carriers of light. No longer sewn on opaque surfaces, the reflective beads act as free agents in creating their own constellations of light. Kaufman worked with Bob Herman, a lighting designer, to make these pieces function more fully as radiant fields.

Kaufman's new constructions range from a beaded black lace screen worthy of a bordello to suspended works strung on nearly invisible wires, which are more like vaporous gas than like walls. Two floor-to-ceiling reinforced crocheted pieces, one silver and the other gold, were exhibited facing each other. Silver Crochet somewhat resembles the type of elaborate lace curtain that commonly adorns French windows. But instead of blocking light, it acts as a light trap, capturing and spreading light to make it an almost physical phenomenon. The effect is enhanced by an almost invisible iridescent bead that dangles in the center of each open-work circle.

Gold Crochet, also constructed on parallel floor-to-ceiling wires, "gothicizes" the plane of a Bauhausian curtain wall. Gold filament is crocheted into four joined panels in a repeat pattern of lancets that evokes the fussy detail characteristic of Flamboyant Gothic stone tracery.

Pink Rhinestone Cluster is a tour de force—of sheer labor, among other things. Seven wire lines are suspended from the ceiling; from these, additional twisted wires, resembling the tendrils of a plant such as baby's breath, branch out and intertwine, forming a continuous airy, three-dimensional field. The bunchy plant-like forms are then encrusted, on their very tips, with hand-set brilliants. The effect of this ensemble transcends an enumeration of its parts; a dappled pattern of colored light and shadow is thrown onto the wall, like that produced by light passing through leaves in a wood. Staring into the vaporous, twinkling mist, I thought of Correggio's Jupiter and Io—and of the kind of aid to meditation that Leonardo found in stains and vapors.

In Kaufman's latest work, fussy victoriana gives way to increasingly streamlined, architectonic structure. The good-girl-vs.-bad-girl dichotomy between bourgeois gentility (lace curtains) and vampishness (flashing beads) noted by Carrie Rickey [see A.i.A., summer 1980], is still present, but more subdued. What is noteworthy about Kaufman's continuing engagement with unlikely art materials is her transformation of decorative glitter into transcendental form. —Ann-Sargent Wooster

Jane Kaufman: Pink Rhinestone Cluster, 1982, silver wire and rhinestones, 5 feet high and 8 inches deep; at Bernice Steinbaum.

NEW HAVEN

Robert Taplin at the Berkeley Center

Robert Taplin's sculptures take a variety of forms. Some of them are irregular steel boxes with tiny eyepieces: through them one examines scenes of people and places drawn or sculpted inside the closed box. Others are larger, semifigurative works in which the unusual box shapes are supported by curvilinear steel arms which can be moved: in these, the eyepieces tend to focus partially on the sculpture's actual surroundings, either indoors or outdoors.

Some of these latter sculptures offer a sequence of scenes; others are stereoscopes of a sort, with two simultaneous views. But there is a common thread in all: the sculptures themselves are made to act as lenses on the world. (Taplin in fact calls them "viewers.") In or through them, one sees juxtaposed the environment and the artist's drawn or sculpted version of it.

Horizontal Navigation, the central piece in Taplin's show, plays an ascetic drawing of a flat landscape off against the trees and houses in the immediate local scene. The "viewer" in this case is big (seven-and-a-half feet), and the suggestion is that of a "figure" which itself sees and thinks about the landscape juxtaposition.

In the Horizontal Navigation, two viewer-boxes that represent the figure's upheld "hands" contain stereoscopes and a set of mirrors and lenses. Peering through the tiny eyepieces, one sees two views—one for each eye—that in a traditional stereoscope would merge to make a single three-dimensional picture. In this case, however, Taplin offers the observer's left eye a black drawing on a red glass slide, and his right eye a clear view over his own left shoulder to the room behind him, the objects outside the windows, etc. The contrast is insistent and jarring.

The central conflict raised in this group of sculptures is one between an ideal view and the real world. The red slide in Horizontal Navigation depicts a tranquil, pastoral scene, perhaps an ideal of natural beauty. In contrast, the real view is full of individuation, confusion, happenstance, movement.

Taplin's resolution of this conflict lies in the sculpture's physical presence. Its steel parts clunk and bang when they are moved, yet their proportions are sometimes elegant. The sculpture stands on a ridiculously stable base, yet this very stockiness seems to lend it firmness and conviction. Finally, the sculpture's vaguely figurative form seduces us to compare it to ourselves.

Taplin's work suggests that "real" and "ideal" are simply coexisting perceptions of the same larger phenomenon. He has appropriately used an aggressively physical form to assert that our own physicality, like that of his sculptures, enables us to embody and embrace both realms.

—Ellen Priest

CHICAGO

Suellen Rocca at Phyllis Kind

Suellen Rocca, a prominent figure among Chicago's "Hairy Who" artists, moved to California 11 years ago and, effectively, disappeared. A year ago last September she resurfaced in the Chicago area with her two teenage children. During her absence, she taught art to children at schools in California and, for the most part, stopped making art herself. Since returning to the Midwest, however, she has been preparing for this show featuring 33 new works.

To some extent Rocca's recent work picks up where her earlier work left off—with silhouettes of cartoonlike figures, fingers pointing and pushing, multiple images piled onto the picture plane and other such impersonal and anonymous oddities. These old standbys are beginning to give way, however, to a more psychologically complex and personal iconography. Increasingly, she makes use of dreamlike images and written messages in an attempt to exorcise various free-floating anxieties. Her neo-naive style, augmented by such titles as She's Not Always Nice. I Did It. I Didn't Do It and Don't Tell Lies, conveys the language and sensibility of children.

The works (mostly drawings on paper, but also including several acrylic paintings on canvas) range from big, flat, loosely patterned images in vellum marker and colored pencil to small, intricate, three-dimensionally shaded pencil drawings. Neither polished nor crude, Rocca's approach is matter-of-fact and confident. Her compositions are sometimes exercises in controlled disorder and other times clearly symmetrical arrangements. Rocca's world is one where fairy tales have matured into full-grown nightmares, birds catch fire and ride upon knives or crescent moons, dogs leer with serrated teeth, clawlike hands dip into sacks and faces materialize out of patterned textures. The most frequent images are eyes. Eyes are everywhere.

In the art work of mental patients, the presence of so many eyes might signal feelings of paranoia, and such associations are obviously an intended element in Rocca's work. It appears very closely patterned after the Outsider and naive art she and other Chicago Imagists collected in their heyday. Yet Rocca has only recently milked such resources stylistically. Curtain folds doubling as coiled passageways in her series of "Face Pictures" vividly recall similar motifs in the art of Joseph Yoakum, Martin Ramirez and Adolf Wölfli. However contrived her use of such imagery may seem, it looks perfectly natural in the context of her own unpretentious expression.

Perhaps the major drawback to this current body of work is that much of it comes off looking unfinished, sketchy or just unresolved. But this partialness is also what makes it so intriguing. It manages to outmaneuver most viewers' expectations and offers, if not always pleasurable, at least honest surprises. While many of these works are diamonds in the rough, it is hard to tell if the promise of this show will be fulfilled. In some respects, it's the comeback show of the season; in other respects, Rocca is beginning all over again.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Introducing Sceptre.
The superior synthetic.
What's in it for you?
Sable.

Inside the cupro-nickel ferrule of every Sceptre brush is just the right touch of genuine sable hair, combined with selected synthetic fibers, to give you everything you ever wanted in an artist's brush; more spring, extra colour holding, superb points and durability. Perhaps best of all, each Sceptre brush is carefully crafted to exacting specifications by Winsor & Newton's own expert brushmakers. No wonder these brushes outperform all others in their moderate price range!

The Sceptre line encompasses a wide selection of sizes and shapes for every purpose. There's sure to be a Sceptre brush that suits your needs precisely.

See the complete Sceptre brush line now wherever Winsor & Newton artists' materials are sold. Once you get your hands on a Sceptre, there's a good chance you'll give the others the brush.

Winsor & Newton Inc., 555 Winsor Drive, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094.

Time and expense aren't our main concern. Quality is.

WINSOR & NEWTON
1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982

Despite these reservations, her work looks better than ever, even better than it did more than a decade ago. For any artist, returning prodigal or not, that's a welcome state of affairs.

—Michael Bonesteel

Merion Estes: Alchemy, 1982, acrylic and glass on canvas, 48 by 48 inches; at Karl Bornstein.

BUFFALO

Alan Saret at the Albright-Knox and Hallwalls

Alan Saret has always insisted he is not a minimal artist, nor even by choice a Post-Minimalist. That he has had to insist is not surprising, for two reasons. First, his teeming wire pieces, shaped by simple knots and twists, have an unmistakable formal affinity with some classics of late Minimal sculpture by the likes of Richard Serra and Robert Morris. The second reason is even more circumstantial: Minimalism has temporarily imbued certain materials, such as the elemental metals Saret favors, with a new signifying force. Regarded as sculpture, a heap of coiled lead on the floor now appears inherently to recommend a way of seeing that renounces metaphor for the hard facts of materiality. Saret understands this way of seeing—the Minimalist esthetic—as a disavowal of imagination, of the real energy of vision. When he places a heap of coiled lead on the floor (as in his 17-piece installation Had Heaven, Phase III at the Albright-Knox), he wants all the material's allusive and illusive qualities to come into play, so that we will see the bare metallic substance as only one facet of the object's character, not its essence.

Saret continues his effort to restore metaphor to sculpture without representation. His work tends to look strongest in essembles, such as the group of floor, wall and ceiling sculptures comprising Had Heaven, Phase III. (The title is a cryptic reference to Aleister Crowley which seems unnecessarily mystifying.) In these pieces, as in his earlier works, Saret has accumulated and worked his materials until they take on indeterminate qualities that are bait for the imagination. Those qualities typically cause the viewer to wonder what level of the works' details expresses the artist's conscious intentions. Surely he intends us to notice the likeness to an uprooted tree of the wall piece Lead Cable Gold Brown. (This reading is supported by the analogies of adjacent works with other natural forms such as boulders and brambles.)

But how are we to take the gold "crown" delicately knotted at the top of the braided lead cable, or the contrapposto bend in the braid's thick trunk? Could Saret possibly intend a reference to the Crucifixion, and thus to the Tree of Knowledge? Such ambiguities make Saret's work absorbing and problematic in ways that Minimal sculpture never is. The material purity of his objects is never an end in itself. Their material integrity serves as a check to our imaginative reading of these works: it is the literal ground upon which metaphor and a visionary reading of the sculpture depend.

The objects composing Had Heaven, Phase III suggest themselves as elements of a landscape, but one whose space is not the homogeneous dimension we associate with representation in art. The shaggy bundle of copper hanging from the ceiling floats cloudlike above an ovoid "boulder" traced in nickel wire, yet there is no affinity between the spatial relations of these two objects and their metaphorical readings. By using wire of different gauges, massed in varying quantities, Saret creates a sense of space in which measure fluctuates dramatically as we shift attention between one sculpture and another. As a result, the whole environment of Had Heaven, Phase III is charged with a kind of visionary ambiguity that keeps the viewer restlessly searching for the fixed and stable relations of scale and identity that the sculpture's materials seem to promise.

Something of the same indeterminancy colored Saret's small concurrent show of drawings at Hallwalls. At a glance, his abstract Gang Drawings (made with fistfuls of colored pencils) and his oddly figurative aerial landscape views in gouache seem very disparate. But their disparities, like those of the sculpture, are really the extremes between which Saret's sensibility shuttles. By joining these extremes in the ways he does, Saret means to evoke a vision of correspondences between the intimate and the immense in nature and the mind. His work in drawing and sculpture is all part of this grand ambition, and his project seems to be succeeding admirably. —Kenneth Baker

SAN FRANCISCO

Frank Lobdell at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art

The spiral is a persistent form in Frank Lobdell's recent paintings. It apparently stands for a meditative or mystical state of mind, perhaps close to the Zen "no mind." Other mystical forms which he often uses are lunar crescents and double circles. These round, moonlike shapes are sometimes almost painted out so that they appear to be ghosts of former forms like suns burning through the mist. Forms are often cut off by the edge of the canvas; the result suggests that the painting is an excerpt from a much larger reality. At times the suggestion is galactic. Lobdell's paintings are relatively large, seldom with either dimension under six feet, but whatever their size, the total image is simple and direct, projecting across even the largest museum chambers with full impact; there is very little in these works which is not evident from 50 feet away. They have a rough force which gives them their particular charismatic quality.

This was a retrospective of work dating back to 1954. Lobdell's earlier pieces have rudely drawn parts of the human body—particularly feet and legs but at times almost the whole torso—redesigned like Picasso's boneform pictures. The '60s paintings also include spirals and moons, though not as free, dominant forces as in his recent work, but incorporated into the bonelike elements, and overlapping. Whether early or late, there is never any particularity of space; a form may be in front of or behind another, but just where is not this artist's concern. Everything is limned in a vast painterly plasma.

Color has become a much more vivid factor in the newer paintings. The earliest ones suggest the presence of white lead, which possibly underlies even the darker forms; the palette in these works is heavy and dirty. Now the colors are much brighter and more vivid; even the blacks are stronger—no longer sooty and dull.

Lobdell was a student of Clyfford Still, and has usually been considered one of his most ardent disciples. The museum's permanent exhibition of Still's paintings was, in fact, visible in the very next room. Yet there seemed no apparent connection between the two artists. The Stills do seem mystical, too, but in a spooky, Gothic way; the Lobdells, by contrast, are extremely muscular and brash. Still is said to have taught his students that decoration was not "it," but he didn't take his own advice; the contrast between the two shows demonstrated this quite graphically. The Lobdells are actually *anti*decorative. The paint is laid on thickly, with little attention to niceties of detail or painterly nuance. Lobdell's brushmark looks like the original stroke, without refinement or correction—things may be painted out, but never straightened or prettified. There is a relentless, male directness to the method.

The show also contained a group of monoprints which are similar to the paintings. Despite the lack of scale, these smaller works project their image with a force equal to the power of his larger paintings. —Knute Stiles

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
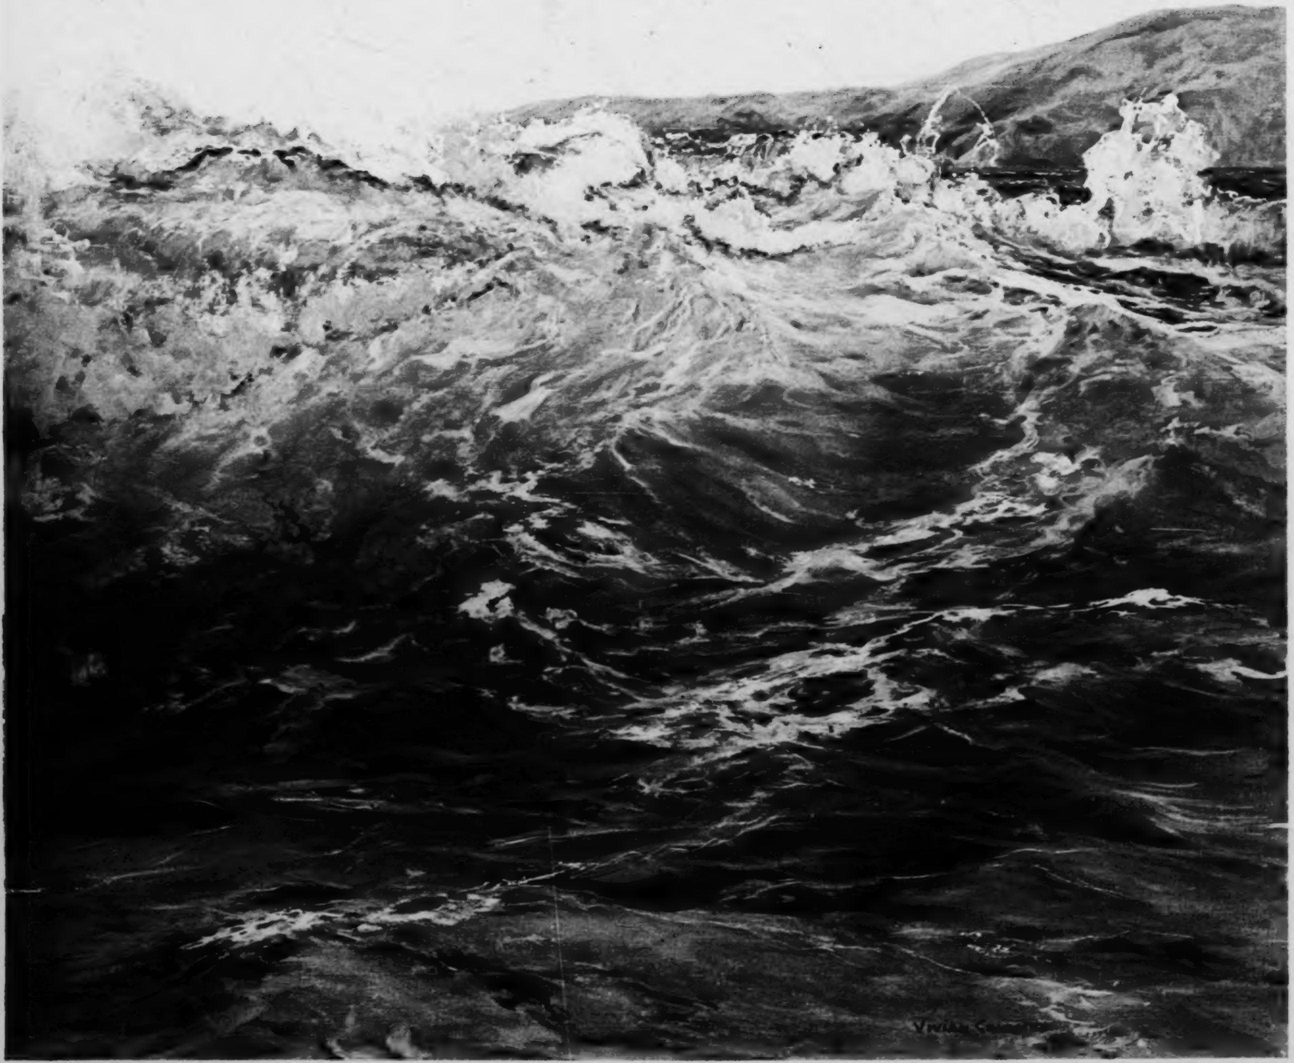
UMI



"CONCERTO" Shiva Permasol Transparent Oils on Canvas 36" X 36." by: Vivian Caldwell

SHIVA PERMASOL TRANSPARENT OIL COLORS. Taking your creativity to even greater depths.

WHY transparent oil paints? All oil paints can be made transparent by thinning with turpentine or gel, but as you know, when traditional oil paints are thinned the color intensity is diluted. Then why Permasol colors? Because, although being totally transparent, Permasol colors are extraordinarily brilliant–straight from the tube. There is no thinning necessary for a transparent look. No loss of color strength.

The vivid, transparent qualities of Permasol colors make them ideal for use in glazing techniques. You achieve greater depth and dimension. And any portion of your painting can be glazed and re-glazed many times creating a further translucent, fluid look.

Permasol glazes can be used on virtually any type of painting. For re-soluble, water base paints, the surface can be prepared with Shiva's Glazing Varnish. Then the Permasol colors are applied. The results are characterized by intense luminosity and glowing depth. Casein, gouache and egg tempera paintings are particularly suited to this technique.

Explore greater depths in your painting experience with Shiva Permasol transparent oil colors. You will wonder at the results you achieve.

shiva® 4320 West 190th St., Torrance, CA 90509
(213) 542-5583 (800) 421-1325

LOS ANGELES

Gary Lloyd at Santa Monica College Art Gallery

The work of Gary Lloyd, seen in this 13-year survey, is pervaded by the spirit of invention. In rejecting the consistency of a single medium, Lloyd has sacrificed that easy identifiability which contributes to the reputation of other artists, some of lesser vision. His work in environment and Conceptual art, video and performance, bookmaking, sculpture and painting has not lacked attention, but it has come from widely differing constituencies. In spite of its variousness, however, his art does have an underlying consistency, which was revealed in this show.

As an artist, Lloyd plays the role of inventor, reassembling the known into the new. A preliminary step in the process of invention is bricolage, or "tinkering," and some of Lloyd's early work, not included in this exhibition, had the appearance of bricolage by a deranged boy scientist—e.g., jars oozing ominous viscous liquids, apparatus of various sorts arranged on dangerously improvised shelves.

Lloyd's subsequent work reinforced his image as the unabashed experimenter, concerned as much with process as with outcome. A 1970 series of axes, the earliest works in the current exhibition, were tinkered together out of found natural objects and artifacts: Roman Vanity (1970) is constructed of palm fibers and a mirror fragment, bound together with rope in the manner of Roman fasces. A 1976 version, a key work in the development of Lloyd's esthetic, was fashioned out of raw prime rib and irradiated before storage in a laboratory at UCLA. A charged symbol of power and fragility, authority and rebellion, creativity and destructiveness, the axe has remained a central metaphor in Lloyd's work. It recurs frequently as he deals with his major preoccupation: the current historical moment, in which the human species must make an unprecedented choice between astounding possibilities for growth or willful self-destruction.

Allusions to history and prehistory abound in Lloyd's work, usually in close association with visions of the future. For example, a 1974 site-specific work at UC Irvine presented suggestions of an archeological excavation and direct references to Meso-American architecture along with a proposed environment for the future; the latter combined space-age materials with natural forms, and succeeded in creating a humanized, ritual space. In Still Yet Perfect Moon (1982), one of a series of recent watercolors, Lloyd creates a vision of space exploration, combining the colors and energy zap of video games with the image of the axe, which here functions as a primitive symbol of man's potential for destruction.

Lloyd's fascination with modes of communication—from books, letters and documents to video recording—reflects his belief that art itself must communicate. They: An Answer Driving the Problem, a 1978-79 installation documented in this exhibition, contrasted a solar-operated kinetic sculpture with the environment-polluting engine of a pickup truck; this work also incuded access to documentation, telephone communication, citizen's band radio and video, thus affording participants both information and the technological means for interaction.

The untidiness and clumsiness of Lloyd's work is part humorous, part serious. On the serious side, it reminds us of continuities between past and future, between the primitive and the technological. His work makes advanced technological systems seem user-friendly—even laughably fallible. In short, Lloyd's work humanizes and demythologizes technology through the ages, from axe to battleship, from drumbeat to satellite. Insisting on man's potential, Lloyd indicates that we can—and must—continually reinvent our future, combining technical and intellectual capacity with regard for the natural resources of the planet. His humor makes this message palatable; his own capacity for invention makes it constantly new. —Peter Clothier

Robert Taplin: Horizontal Navigation, 1982, steel, glass and wood, 7 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 6 1/2 feet; at the Berkeley Center (review on p. 175).

Frank Lobdell: Spring 1982, oil on canvas, 96 by 78 inches; at S.F Museum of Modern Art (review on p. 177).

Merion Estes at Karl Bornstein

In the summer of 1981, Merion Estes exhibited a series of remarkably adept and powerful pattern paintings, works that seemed unique in relation to others of the genre. Her paintings were particularly notable for their use of patterns, colors, and rhythms indigenous to Southern California. They appeared to resound with the salsa beat of Chicano festivals and to emit kaleidoscopic visual effects; they were even reminiscent of the movie theatrics of Busby Berkeley musicals. The series demonstrated that Estes had a firm grasp of modernist esthetics.

Estes's new work is more problematic. Perhaps in the interest of breaking out of a mold, she has engaged in a number of experiments in which she restructures her patterns. Allover decoration has for the most part given way to images such as arches and flames, lodged within decorative fields. Most of the new paintings are underworked; many even appear half-finished. Typical examples are Beacon (1982), in which a gothic arch composed of collaged plastic flowers frames a vacuous center, and Skyline (1982), in which a row of flowers, hovering above flames, crumbles weightlessly—its supporting fabric of brushwork too loosely knit to offer any visual reinforcement.

Estes does, however, match her earlier level in three works, which all seem to confirm the fact that success in her type of painting still hinges on formal strength and completeness. Two of these works are large diptychs, Yin-Yang (1981) and Swan Lake III (1983), and the third is a small painting entitled Alchemy (1982). In them, Estes exploits "push/pull" tension and is carefully attentive to detail. The diptychs benefit partly from the majesty of their scale, but they also profit from Estes's astute use of symmetry. Streams of carefully manipulated color and texture direct the eye to a juncture at the painting's center and then back out again in continuous rhythmic waves. Alchemy, the most unusual work in the exhibition, will probably be remembered as the most important of the group. Although its composition consists of a basically modernist balance of parts, this harmony is coupled with a distinctly post-modernist flavor—i.e., with the "bad taste" of the painting's brittle surface and its metallic copper color. This novel union provides a stunning visual electricity. Because Alchemy is firmly situated on the cusp between the beautiful and the ugly, it offers us a restless vision that, seems specifically connected to a 1980s state of affairs. —David S. Rubin

Review Contributors

Brooks Adams and Jamey Gambrell are free-lance critics living in New York . . . Kenneth Baker is a critic living in Providence, R.I . . . Michael Bonesteel is a Chicago free-lance writer . . . Peter Clothier is dean of the College of Fine and Communication Arts, Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles . . . Gerrit Henry, Tony Towle, Reagan Upshaw and John Yau are poets who also write on art . . . Hayden Herrera is author of Frida, A Biography of Frida Kahlo (Harper & Row) . . . Sanford Kwinter is a doctoral candidate at Columbia University . . . Ellen Priest is a painter and critic living in New Haven . . . David S. Rubin is director of the Santa Monica College Art Gallery . . . Knute Stiles writes on art from San Francisco . . . Paul Stimson and Ann-Sargent Wooster are New York artists and critics.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
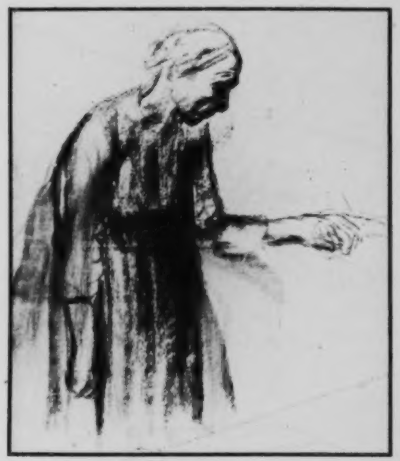
UMI



Käthe Kollwitz: Woman Entrusts Herself to Death. 1934.
Drawing. Nagel 256.

Galerie St. Etienne

Alfred Kubin
Visions from the Other Side.
Catalogue $8.50 (post. inc.)
THROUGH MAY 7

Early and Late
Drawings and paintings by Klimt, Kokoschka, Kollwitz,
Kubin, Schiele and others.
OPENING MAY 17

24 W. 57th St. NYC 10019 (212) 245-6734 Tues.-Sat. 11-5

KATE BERNSTEIN (1983)

FIGURE IN GLASS
APRIL 30 THROUGH MAY 28, 1983

KATE BERNSTEIN
RICK BERNSTEIN
WILLIAM BERNSTEIN
DAN DAILEY
FLORA MACE &
JOEY KIRKPATRICK
NARCISSUS QUAGLIATA
SUSAN SHAPIRO
SUSAN STINSMUEHLEN
JAN WILLIAMS

B. Z. WAGMAN
GALLERY

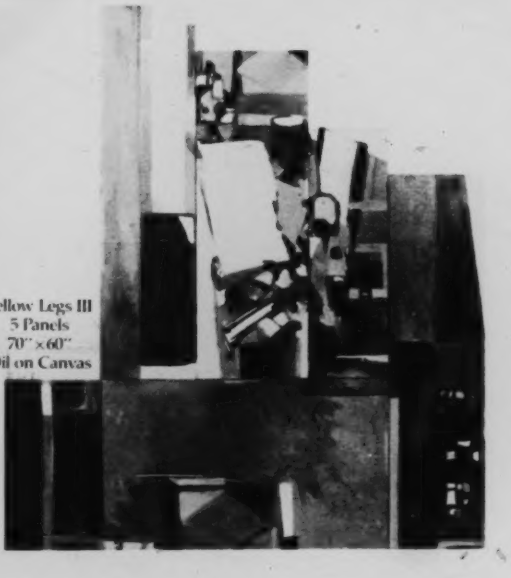
34 NORTH BRENTWOOD
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI 63105
314-721-0250

DONALD SULTAN

May 1983

AKIRA IKEDA GALLERY
8-18, KYOBASHI 2-CHOME, CHUO-KU, TOKYO

JOHN RANSOME PHILLIPS



Yellow Legs III
5 Panels
70" × 60"
Oil on Canvas

Clara F. Londoner Gallery
185 East 85th Street NYC 212 722-1747
Recent Works—May 11-31 Mon.-Sat. 1-6

WINSLOW

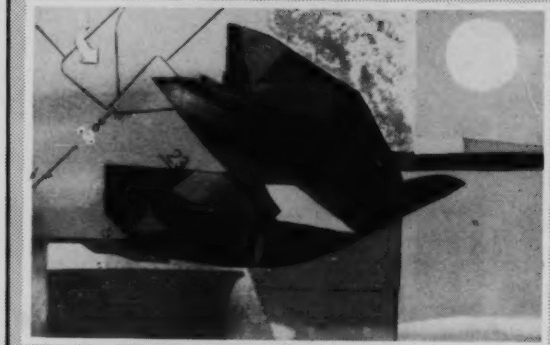
Two Figure Relation

Bronze

STUDIO 47
47 Indian Trail Barrington, Illinois 60010

Telephone 312 526-0019

MAX
PAPART

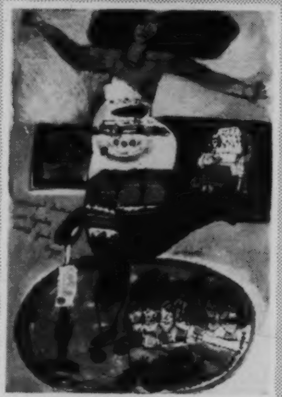


Etching w/ Aquatint "Royal Bird" 54½" x 38½"

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Max Papart - Inquire about Oils & Gouaches

THEO
TOBIASSE



Etching w/ Aquatint 37⅛" x 53¼"
"Femme Qui Danse ses Legendes dans la Fumae des Bouges"

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Theo Tobiasse - Inquire about Oils, Pastels & Gouaches

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

DAN CHRISTENSEN
SUSAN ROTH
Paintings
May 11-28

Martha White Gallery
330 W. Main St.
Louisville, KY 40202
(502)589-3347

The Art Students League of New York Founded 1875

215 West Fifty-Seventh Street, N.Y.C. 10019
(212) CIrcle 7-4510
R.A. Florio, Executive Director

Announcing a Summer School, June 6 - August 26. A.M. and P.M. classes, Monday through Friday. Students may register at any time — no entrance requirements. Tuition is paid on a monthly basis. Part-time and full-time registration. All students are instructed individually. Life models in most classes. Air-conditioned studios. Instructors of national reputation.

Instructors: Rudolf Baranik, Gregory d'Alessio, Roberto De Lamonica, Bruce Dorfman, Jack Faragasso, Thomas Fogarty, Marshall Glasier, Hughie Lee-Smith, David A. Leffel, Earl Mayan, Anthony Padovano, Anthony Palumbo, Michael Pellettieri, Gustav Rehberger, Joseph Stapleton.

Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Watercolor, Graphics, Portraiture, Fine Arts Illustration, etc. Catalogue available.

The League accepts students of any race, color or national, religious or ethnic origin.

"A stunning, exciting and original book"*

by "one of the best contemporary art historians." –New Yorker

Lucy R. Lippard explores the startling parallels between megaliths and artforms thousands of years ago and today's earthworks, rituals, and body art. 320 black-and-white photos, and 8 pages in color.

"A unique and illuminating framework for viewing recent art." –JUDY CHICAGO

$16.95, paper; $30, cloth; now at your bookstore
PANTHEON
Publishers Weekly*

OVERLAY
LUCY R. LIPPARD CONTEMPORARY ART AND THE ART OF PREHISTORY

KENNY SCHARF
MAY 14–JUNE 11
TONY SHAFRAZI GALLERY 163 MERCER STREET NEW YORK

Roy L. Lennberg

Mare and Colt by Roy Lennberg radiates the tenderness of maternal love.

This 6½" fine art casting is mounted on a walnut finished base.

Cast by the lost wax method, in the highest quality bronze, this limited edition is priced at $750.

For more information, contact our representative nearest to you: Georgean Sharp, Matthews Classic Bronze, 1315 West Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, PA 15226, (412) 344-4200, or Mel Schelbauer, Matthews Classic Bronze, 2230 North Chico Street, South El Monte, CA 91733, (213) 444-0468.

Gallery inquires welcomed.

Foundry Mark of Excellence

Matthews
CLASSIC BRONZE

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Photo by FAITH WEH

Passing Time Bronze

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

CURRENT EXHIBITIONS:

CITICORP CENTER
NEW YORK, NEW YORK

INN ON THE PARK
HOUSTON, TEXAS

YALE CAMPUS and
NEW HAVEN PARKLANDS
NEW HAVEN, CT

GEORGETOWN PARK
WASHINGTON, D.C.

BOCA RATON HOTEL and CLUB
BOCA RATON, FLORIDA

For brochure and information contact:
Sculpture Placement • Suite 304, Dept. 8 • 2828 Pennsylvania Ave., NW • Washington, D.C. 20007 202-362-9310

Explore the great wonders and masterpieces that man has created. Come along for...

Maupintour's

Antiquity, Art, Architecture

HIGH QUALITY escorted tours for the art, architecture and scenic wonder lovers. In-depth sightseeing, best hotels, most meals, entertainments, limited membership. Come join us! Year 'round.

FLEMISH ART TREASURES. Great works of art and architecture in Belgium and the Netherlands. 16 days.

EGYPT/NILE CRUISE. Journey into time for comprehensive coverage of the important places. 14 to 22 days.

INDIA/NEPAL/KASHMIR. A grand survey of the history, art, architecture and religion. 19 to 29 days.

ORIENT/PACIFIC. The traditions and highlights of Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong, Singapore, Manila, Taipei. 17 to 29 days.

AFRICA. In-depth sightseeing. Wildlife, native villages, scenic wonders, game reserves. 16 to 25 days.

SEND THIS COUPON for Maupintour's ☐ Africa ☐ Orient ☐ India ☐ Egypt ☐ Europe brochures or ask your Travel Agent soon.

Maupintour
quality escorted tours since 1951

P.O. Box 807, Lawrence, Ks. 66044
Telephone toll-free 800-255-4266.

name

address

city

state/zip

my travel agent aia-aaa-3

Fine Arts at Visual Arts this Summer

Painting in New York

A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY FOR INTENSIVE WORK AND CRITIQUE IN PRIVATE STUDIO SPACE.

FIRST SESSION: JUNE 6–JULY 1	SECOND SESSION: JULY 5–JULY 30
FACULTY	FACULTY
BRUCE BOICE	SUSAN HALL
LOUISA CHASE	LUCIO POZZI
JUDY PFAFF	MAY STEVENS
DAVID REED	LYNTON WELLS

Summer Sculpture Workshops

METAL SCULPTURE WORKSHOP
JOEL PERLMAN JUNE 6–JUNE 17

WOOD SCULPTURE WORKSHOP
ALICE ADAMS JUNE 20–JULY 1

CASTING WORKSHOP
ARTHUR SCHADE JULY 11–JULY 22

SCHOOL OF VISUAL ARTS
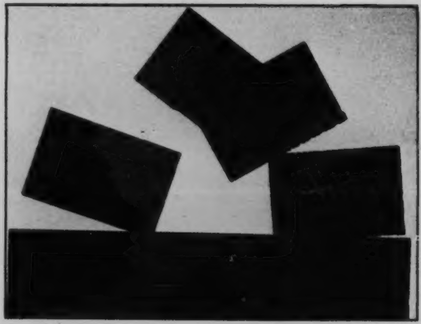
209 EAST 23RD STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10010, (212) 683-0600

Collector's Items. 11 Finds a Year.

Dig up an Etruscan vase. Authenticate a doubtful Turner. Scan the galleries for tomorrow's masters. Or dabble in new techniques reshaping the medium. You'll share these adventures and many others with Art in America . . . whose pages brim with discovery.

Searching and eclectic, Art in America is alone in how fully it satisfies your need to know and learn. About painting, sculpture, photography, prints and much more. About where to find them and more profoundly experience what you find. Eleven times a year.



And if you order now, you'll also receive as part of your subscription our upcoming 1983 annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists published in August—a $5.95 reference volume. Beyond that, you save a rewarding 15% (that's a $6.00 saving) off the newsstand price with your $34.95 subscription for one year.

Stay with us longer and do better yet. Two years for only $59.95 nets a full $21.95 savings off the cover price. Best of all, invest $79.95 for three fascinating years with Art in America and save an impressive $42.90 off the cover price.

Art in America is an addictive event . . . the most intriguing and compelling way to stay abreast. Return your order card today and join the collectors.

Art in America

Whitney Communication Corporation
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

Save up to 35% on Art in America

I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95—a $6.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95—a $21.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95—a $42.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ______ Exp. ______
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ______
Name ______
Address ______ Apt. No. ______
City ______ State ______ Zip ______

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 12/31/83.

EE34C

Save up to 35% on Art in America

I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95—a $6.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95—a $21.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95—a $42.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ______ Exp. ______
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ______
Name ______
Address ______ Apt. No. ______
City ______ State ______ Zip ______

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 12/31/83.

EE34C

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

EXPLORE. PROBE. MUSE. CONCLUDE.

Art in America
NOVEMBER 1982 $3.50
Cover: Van Doesburg's "Countercomposition in Primary Colors," 1923
Vigée Le Brun/Defining De Stijl/Barbara Kruger/Jenny Holzer
Interview with Jack Tworkov/Richard Neutra/Mariano Fortuny
Report from Mexico Books Review of Exhibitions

DISCOVER IT
FIRST AND BEST
IN ART IN AMERICA
WHILE SAVING
UP TO $42.90 BY SUBSCRIBING TODAY!

SAVE 35%

RUFINO TAMAYO

"Dos Personajes Atacados por Perros"

A mural in Mixografia on hand made paper.

The largest print ever made:
8′ by 5′
edition of 75

Available Exclusively at Mixografia* Gallery

8111 Melrose Ave.
Los Angeles, CA 90046
(213) 653-1168

Elena Cielak: Director

Galeria del Circulo (T.G.M.)

Hamburgo 112, Col. Juarez
06600 Mexico, D.F.
(95) 514-2203 - (95) 528-7633

Lea Remba: Director

* MIXOGRAFIA is a patented art printing process and registered trademark in Brazil, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Spain and U.S.A. Numbers 138310 — 443.756 — 4,166,092 — 234824 — 320487 — 235472 — 25.55627 — 235473 — 927957 — 1068108 — 1512676 — 231984 — 1048974 — 188580 — 1051098 — 320497.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

EXHIBITION-AUCTION OF CONTEMPORARY ART.

Organised by and for the benefit of the Village N°1 Queen Fabiola.

27 May-11 June 1983
Palais des Beaux-Arts
Brussels

Auction: 9 June at 8.30 pm.

With the participation of

VALERIO ADAMI.
HANS-PETER ADAMSKI.
YAAKOV AGAM.
PIERRE ALECHINSKY.
SIEGFRIED ANZINGER.
ARMAN.
EDUARDO ARROYO.
DONALD BAECHLER.
CESAR BAILLEUX.
ENRICO BAJ.
GEORG BASELITZ.
BERND & HILLA BECKER.
BILL BECKLEY.
LYNDA BENGLIS.
MIGUEL BERROCAL.
GASTON BERTRAND.
GEORGES BINDER.
REMY BLANCHARD.
RENATA BOERO.
BRAM BOGART.
FRANÇOIS BOISROND.
PETER BÖMMELS.
JONATHAN BOROFSKY.
MARCEL BROODTHAERS.
DANIEL BUREN.
POL BURY.
MICHAEL BUTHE.
ALIK CALVALIERE.
PIER PAOLO CALZOLARI.
LOUIS CANE.
CESAR.
JACQUES CHARLIER.
SANDRO CHIA.
CHRISTO.
FRANCESCO CLEMENTE.
ROBERT COMBAS.
PIERRE CORDIER.
ENZO CUCCHI.
RONNIE CUTRONE.
WALTER DAHN.
STEFAN DE JAEGER.
JO DELAHAUT.
LUCIO DEL PEZZO.
PAUL DELVAUX.
NIKI DE SAINT-PHALLE.
CAMILLE DE TAYE.
JAN DIBBETS.
HERVE DI-ROSA.
GEORG DOKOUPIL.
BENNY EFRAT.
LUCIANO FABRO.
JEAN-MICHEL FOLON.
ANDRE FRANÇOIS.
VIC GENTILS.
JEAN-PIERRE GHYSELS.
HANTAI.
KEITH HARING.
GENE HIGHSTEIN.
DAVID HOCKNEY.
BRYAN HUNT.
PETER HUTCHINSON.
ANSELM KIEFER.
RON KITAJ.
JIRI KOLAR.
JOSEPH KOSUTH.
JANNIS KOUNELLIS.
ROBERT KUSHNER.
OCTAVE LANDUYT.
PATRICK LANNEAU.
WALTER LEBLANC.
JEAN LE GAC.
MICHAEL & BARBARA LEISGEN.
ERIC LELOUP.
OLIVIER LELOUP.
LISMONDE.
BERND LOHAUS.
STEPHEN MAC KENNA.
MARCEL MAEYER.
POL MARA.
UMBERTO MARIANI.
GEORGES MATHIEU.
MARIO MERZ.
E.L.T. MESENS.
HELMUT MIDDENDORF.
JACQUES MONORY.
OWEN MORREL.
GERHARD NASCHBERGER.
LOWELL NESBITT.
ANSGAR NIERHOFF.
RICHARD NONAS.
LADISLAV NOVAK.
OSWALD OBERHUBER.
LUIGI ONTANI.
ROMAN OPALKA.
DENNIS OPPENHEIM.
MERET OPPENHEIM.
MIMMO PALADINO.
GIULIO PAOLINI.
MICHELANGELO PISTOLETTO.
PATRICK & ANNE POIRIER.
ARNALDO POMODORO.
GIO POMODORO.
RIK POOT.
ROBERT RAUSCHENBERG.
ROGER RAVEEL.
MAN RAY.
YVES RHAYE.
RODNEY RIPPS.
LARRY RIVERS.
FELIX ROULIN.
ETIENNE SANDORFI.
GIANCARLO SANGREGORIO.
HUBERT SCHMALIX.
JULIAN SCHNABEL.
HA SCHULT.
RICHARD SERRA.
ALAN SHIELDS.
ROGER SOMVILLE.
KEITH SONNIER.
ETTORE SPALLETTI.
TINO STEFANONI.
STEFAN SZCZESNY.
EMILIO TADINI.
ANTONI TAPIES.
TAPTA.
ERNESTO TATAFIORE.
JEAN TINGUELY.
GERARD TITUS-CARMEL.
NARCISSE TORDOIR.
JAN VANRIET.
DAN VAN SEVEREN.
PHILIPPE VAN SNICK.
BEN VAUTIER.
VLADIMIR VELICKOVIC.
BERNAR VENET.
CLAUDE VIALLAT.
MARIA-HELENA VIEIRA DA SILVA.
JEAN-LUC VILMOUTH.
TOM WESSELMANN.
ROGER WITTEVRONGEL.
ROBERT ZAKANITCH.
GILBERTO ZORIO.

Catalogue available on request:
Louise Descamps
Av. Franklin Roosevelt 89
1050 BRUSSELS - Tel. (02) 640.73.46

With the collaboration of:
Société Générale de Banque and Société Générale de Belgique

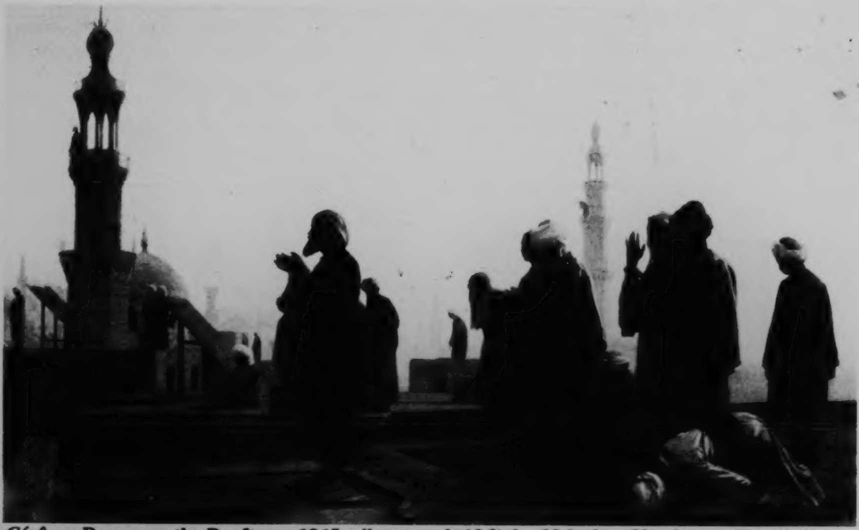
The Imaginary Orient

Continued on page 131

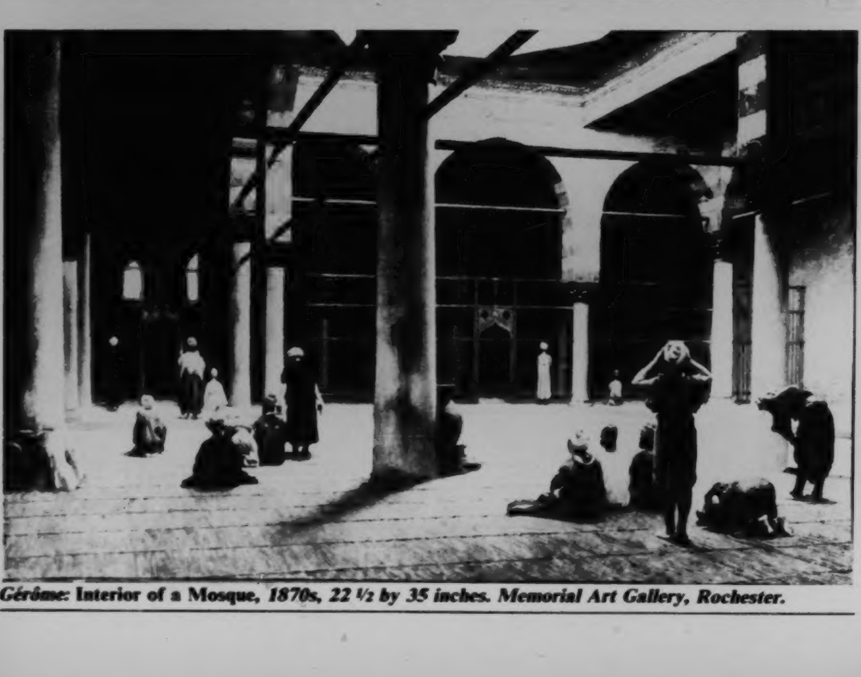
noncombatants—old men, women, children, as well as the treasure and flocks of the native chief, who was leading the rebellion against French military domination at the time—seems fairly clear in its political implications, its motivations fairly transparent.

What is less clear today is the relation of two other works, also in the Salon of 1845, to the politics of violence in North Africa at the time. The Salon of 1845 was the Salon immediately following the crucial Battle of Isly—the climax of French action against the Algerian rebel forces led by Abd-el-Kader and his ally, the Sultan Abd-el-Rahman of Morocco. After the destruction of his smala or encampment at Taguin—the very incident depicted by Horace Vernet—Abd-el-Kader was chased from his country and took refuge in Morocco. There he gained the support of the Sultan Abd-el-Rahman—the very sultan that Delacroix had sketched and whose reception he had so minutely described when he had visited Meknes with the Comte de Mornay on a friendly diplomatic mission more than ten years earlier.

Delacroix had originally planned to commemorate the principal event of Mornay's mission by including, in a prominent position, members of the French delegation at the Sultan's reception. Although it exists as a sketch, this version of the painting was never brought to completion, for the event it was supposed to commemorate—Mornay's carefully worked out treaty with the Sultan—failed to lead to the desired détente with Morocco. Delacroix's projected painting would no longer have been appropriate or politically tactful. When the defeated Abd-el-Kader sought refuge with the Sultan of Morocco after the defeat at Isly, Moroccan affairs abruptly took a turn for the worse. The French fleet with English, Spanish and American assistance bombarded Tangiers and Mogador, and Abd-el-Rahman was forced to eject the Algerian leader from his country. The defeated Sultan of Morocco was then forced to negotiate a new treaty that was far more advantageous to the French. Moroccan affairs having become current events, the journal L'Illustration asked Delacroix to contribute some North African drawings for its account of the new peace treaty and its background, and he complied.



Gérôme:* Prayer on the Rooftops, *1865, oil on panel, 19 ⅝ by 32 inches. Hamburger Kunsthalle.



Gérôme:* Interior of a Mosque, *1870s, 22 ½ by 35 inches. Memorial Art Gallery, Rochester.

It is clear, then, why Delacroix took up the subject again for his monumental painting in 1845, but in a new form with different implications, based on a new political reality. In the final version, now in the Museum of Toulouse, it is a vanquished opponent who is represented. He is dignified, surrounded by his entourage, but an entourage that includes the defeated leaders of the fight against the French and as such constitutes a reminder of French prowess. In Delacroix's Moulay-Abd-el-Rahman, Sultan of Morocco, leaving his palace at Meknes, surrounded by his guard and his principle Officers, as it was called in the Salon catalogue of 1845, there is no longer any question of mingling the French presence with the Moroccan one.[24]

> Scenes of the Near East often have a hidden moral: these people have let their treasures sink into decay.

In the same Salon appeared a painting which is always compared to Delacroix's Sultan of Morocco: Théodore Chassériau's equestrian Portrait of Kalif Ali-Ben Hamet (or Ahmed) followed by his Escort. Indeed, in the Rochester Orientalism catalogue, Chassériau's painting is described as "inevitably recalling Delacroix's portrait," although more "detailed and portrait-like."[25] But Chassériau's is actually a very different image serving a radically different purpose. It is actually a commissioned portrait of an Algerian chieftan friendly to the French, who, with his entourage, was being wined and dined by the French authorities in Paris at the time.[26]

Ali-Ben Ahmed, in short, unlike the uncooperative and defeated Abd-el-Rahman, was a leader who triumphed as a catspaw of the French. The relationship between the two works, then, is much more concrete than some vague bond created by their compositional similarity—they are actually quite different in their structure—or the obfuscating umbrella category of Orientalism. For it is a concrete relationship of opposition or antagonism, political and ideological,

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
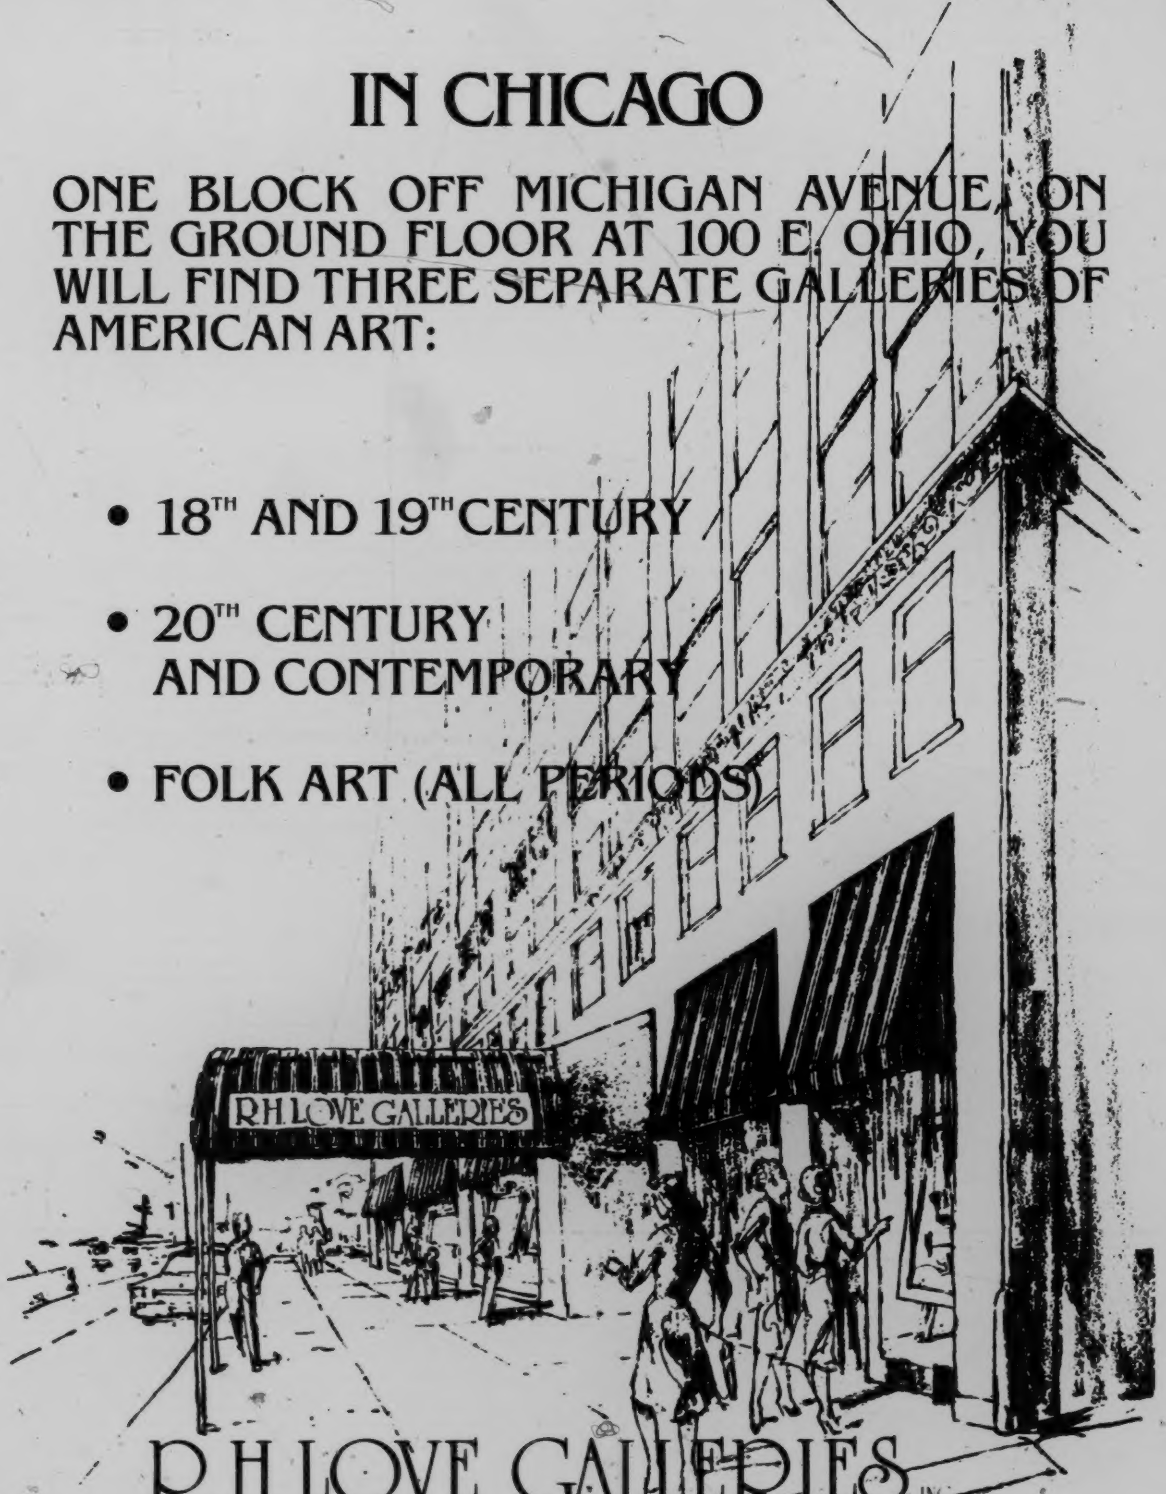
UMI

IN CHICAGO

ONE BLOCK OFF MICHIGAN AVENUE, ON THE GROUND FLOOR AT 100 E. OHIO, YOU WILL FIND THREE SEPARATE GALLERIES OF AMERICAN ART:

- 18TH AND 19TH CENTURY
- 20TH CENTURY AND CONTEMPORARY
- FOLK ART (ALL PERIODS)



R.H. LOVE GALLERIES INC

100 E. OHIO, CHICAGO, IL 60611 312/664-9620 HOURS: MON.-SAT. 9-5:30 that is at issue here. Indeed, if we consider all the other representations of North African subjects in the Salon of 1845—and there were quite a few—merely as examples of Orientalism, we inevitably miss their significance as political documents at a time of particularly active military intervention in North Africa. In other words, in the case of imagery directly related to political, diplomatic and military affairs in the inspirational territory of Orientalism, the very notion of "Orientalism" itself in the visual arts is simply a category of obfuscation, masking important distinctions under the rubric of the picturesque, supported by the illusion of the real.

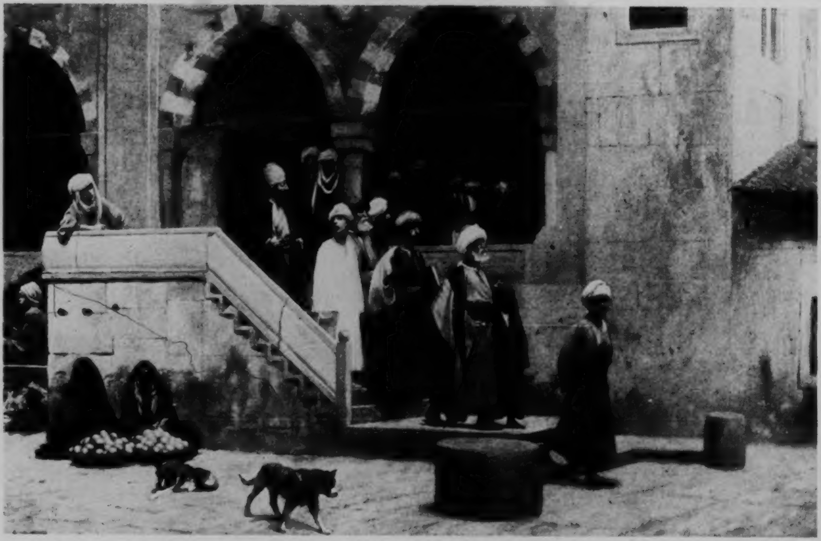
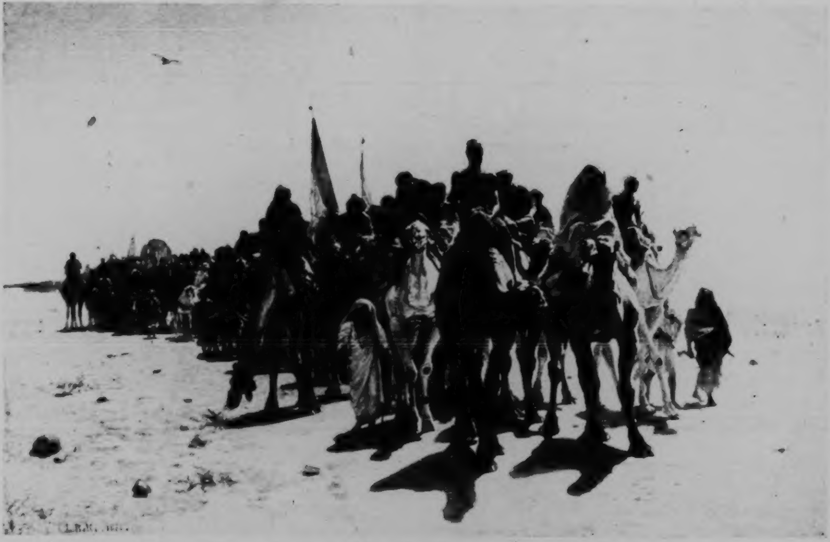
How then should we deal with this art? Art historians are, for the most part, reluctant to proceed in anything but the celebratory mode. If Gérôme ostensibly vulgarizes and "naturalizes" a motif by Delacroix, he must be justified in terms of his divergent stylistic motives, his greater sense of accuracy or his affinities with the "tonal control and sense of values of a Terborch or a Pieter de Hooch."[27] In other words, he must be assimilated to the canon. Art historians who, on the other hand, wish to maintain the canon as it is—that is, who assert that the discipline of art history should concern itself only with major masterpieces created by great artists—simply say that Orientalists like Gérôme—that is to say, the vast majority of those producing Orientalist work in the 19th century (or who even appeared in the Salons at all)—are simply not worth studying. In the view of such art historians, artists who cannot be included in the category of great art should be ignored as though they had never existed.

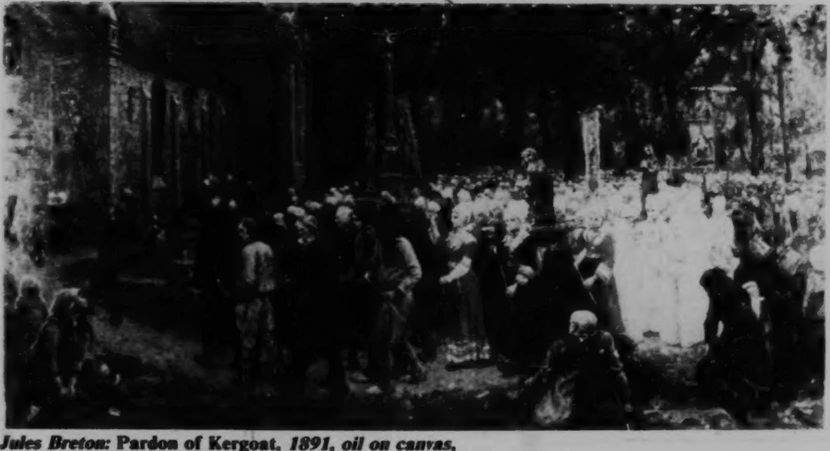
Yet it seems to me that both positions—on the one hand, that which sees the exclusion of 19th-century academic art from the sacred precincts as the result of some art dealers' machinations or an avant-garde cabal; and on the other, that which sees the wish to include them as a revisionist plot to weaken the quality of high art as a category—are wrong. Both are based on the notion of art history as a positive rather than a critical discipline. Works like Gérôme's, and that of other Orientalists of his ilk, are valuable and well worth investigating not because they share the esthetic values of great art on a slightly lower level, but because as visual imagery they anticipate and predict the qualities of incipient mass culture. As such, their strategies of concealment lend themselves admirably to the critical methodologies, the deconstructive techniques now employed by the best film historians, or by sociologists of advertising imagery or analysts of visual progaganda, rather than those of mainstream art history. As a fresh visual territory to be investigated by scholars armed with historical and political awareness and analytic sophistication, Orientalism—or rather its deconstruction—offers a challenge to art historians, as do many other similarly obfuscated areas of our discipline. ☐



Gérôme:* The Procession, *1880s, oil on canvas, 20 ¾ by 29 ¾ inches. The Fine Art Society Ltd., London.



Léon Belly:* Pilgrims going to Mecca, *1861, oil on canvas, 62 ¾ by 94 ⅜ inches. Musée Cantonal des Beaux-Arts, Lausanne.



Jules Breton:* Pardon of Kergoat, *1891, oil on canvas, 4 by 7 ½ feet. Gilmour Academy, Gates Mill, Ohio.

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
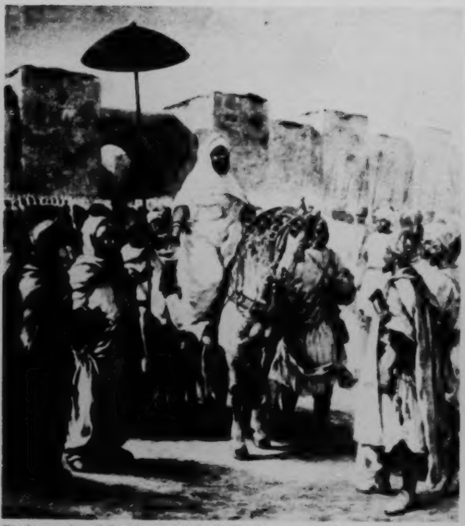
UMI

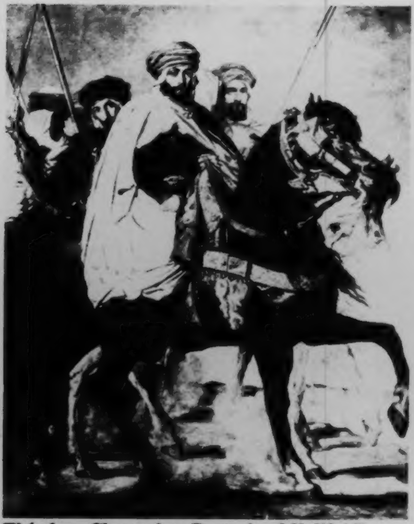
PAUL VON RINGELHEIM

Architectural Commissions

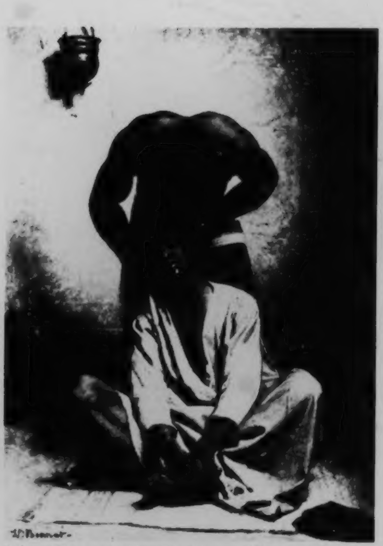
9 Great Jones Street, N.Y., N.Y. 10012/(212)777-8757



Delacroix:* Moulay-Abd-el-Rahman, Sultan of Morroco . . ., *1845, oil on canvas, 12 ¼ by 11 feet. Musée des Augustins, Toulouse.



Théodore Chasseriau:* Portrait of Kalif Ali-Ben Hamet . . ., *1845, oil on canvas, 10 ½ by 8 ½ feet. Musée du Chateau, Versailles.



Léon Bonnat:* The Barber of Suez, *1876, oil on canvas, 31 ½ by 23 inches. The Forbes Magazine Collection, New York.

1. Organized by Donald A. Rosenthal, the exhibition appeared at the Memorial Art Gallery, University of Rochester [Aug. 27-Oct. 17] and at the Neuberger Museum, S.U.N.Y., Purchase [Nov. 14-Dec. 23]. It was accompanied by a catalogue-book prepared by Rosenthal. This article is based on a lecture presented in Purchase when the show was on view there.

2. Donald A. Rosenthal, Orientalism: The Near East in French Painting 1800-1880, Rochester, 1982, pp. 8–9, italics added.

3. The insights offered by Said's Orientalism (New York, 1978) are central to the arguments developed in this study. However, Said's book does not deal with the visual arts at all.

4. Driault, pp. 187ff., cited in George E. Kirk, A Short History of the Middle East, New York, 1964, pp. 85–86.

5. J.F.B., "Gérôme, the Painter," The California Art Gallery, 1–4, '73, pp. 51–52. I am grateful to William Gerdts for bringing this material to my attention.

6. Leo Bersani, "Le réalisme et la peur du désir," Littérature et réalité, ed. G. Genette and T. Todorov, Paris, 1982, p. 59.

7. Richard Ettinghausen in Jean-Léon Gérôme (1824-1904), ex. cat., Dayton Art Institute, 1972, p. 18. Edward Said has pointed out to me in conversation that most of the so-called writing on the back wall of the Snake Charmer is in fact unreadable.

8. Roland Barthes, "L'effet de réel," Littérature et réalité, pp. 81–90.

9. Cited by Kenneth Bendiner, "The Portrayal of the Middle East in British Painting 1835–1860," Ph.D. Dissertation, Columbia, 1979, pp. 110–111. Bendiner cites many other instances and has assembled visual representations of the theme as well.

10. See, for example, Bayle St. John's Village Life in Egypt, originally published in 1852, reprinted 1973, vol. I, pp. 13, 36, and passim.

11. The best general discussion of Delacroix's Death of Sardanapalus is Jack Spector's Delacroix: The Death of Sardanapalus ("Art in Context" Series), New York, 1974. This study deals with the relationship of the work to Delacroix's psycho-sexuality as well as embedding the painting in the context of its literary and visual sources. The footnotes contain references to additional literature on the painting. For recent discoveries about Delacroix's use of Oriental sources, see D. Rosenthal, "A Mughal portrait copied by Delacroix," Burlington Magazine, CXIX, 1977, pp. 505–506 and Lee Johnson, "Towards Delacroix's Oriental Sources," Burlington Magazine, CXX, 1978, pp. 144–51.

12. Cabanel's Cleopatra Testing Poisons on her Servants (1887) has been suggested to me by several (male) art historians as coming close to fitting the bill. But of course, the scenario is entirely different in Cabanel's painting. First of all, the male victims are not the sex-objects in the painting; it is their female destroyer who is. And secondly, the painting is, like Delacroix's, by a man, not a woman: again, it is a product of male fantasy, and its sexual frisson depends on the male gaze directed upon a female object, just as it does in Delacroix's painting.

If we view representations of North African subjects merely as examples of Orientalism, we miss their significance as political documents.

13. For a rich and suggestive analysis of this myth in the 17th and 18th centuries, see Alain Grosrichard, Structure du Sérail: la fiction du despotisme asiatique dans l'occident classique, Paris, 1979.

14. This is pointed out by Spector throughout his study, but see especially p. 69.

15. For public reaction to the picture, see Spector, pp. 75–85.

16. Cited in Fanny F. Hering, Gérôme, His Life and Work, New York, 1892, p. 117.

17. These issues will be addressed in greater detail in my forthcoming study, "Manet's Ball at the Opera: Part and Whole in the Nineteenth Century."

18. For a discussion of lesbian imagery in Orientalist painting, see Rosenthal, Orientalism, p. 98.

19. Claude Martin, Histoire de l'Algérie française, 1830–1962, Paris, 1963, p. 201.

20. Letter of Feb. 29, 1932, Correspondance générale de Eugène Delacroix, A. Joubin, ed., Paris, 1936, I, pp. 316–317.

21. Entry of March 11, 1950, Journal de Eugène Delacroix, A. Joubin, ed., Paris, 1950, I, p. 348.

22. Cited in Pierre Bourdieu, The Algerians, tr. A.C.M. Ross, Boston, 1962, pp. 120–121.

23. For an illustration of this work, now in the Musée de Versailles, and an analysis of it from a different viewpoint, see Albert Boime, "New Light on Manet's Execution of Maximilian," Art Quarterly, XXXVI (Autumn, 1973), fig. 1 and p. 177 and note 9, p. 177.

24. For an extremely thorough account of the genesis of this painting, the various versions of the subject and the political circumstances in which it came into being, see Elie Lambert, Histoire d'un tableau: "L'Abd el Rahman, Sultan de Maroc" de Delacroix (Institut des Hautes Etudes Marocaines, no. 14), Paris, 1953, pp. 249–258. Lee Johnson, in a recent article, "Delacroix's Road to the Sultan of Morocco," Apollo, CXV (March, 1982), pp. 186–189, demonstrates convincingly that the gate from which the Sultan emerges in the 1845 painting is not, as is usually thought, the Bab Mansour, the principle gate to Meknes, but more likely is a free variation on the Bab Berdaine, which did not figure in the ceremonial occasion.

25. Rosenthal, Orientalism, pp. 57–58.

26. For information about Chassériau's portrait and its subject, see Léonce Bénédite, Théodore Chassériau, sa vie et son oeuvre, Paris, 1932, I, pp. 234ff. and Marc Sandoz, Théodore Chassériau, 1819–1856, Paris, 1974, p. 101.

27. Gerald Ackerman, cited in Rosenthal, Orientalism, p. 80. Ackerman's important study of Gérôme should be appearing shortly.

Author: Linda Nochlin is Distinguished Professor of Art History at the City University Graduate Center, New York.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

ELIZABETH
DE CUEVAS
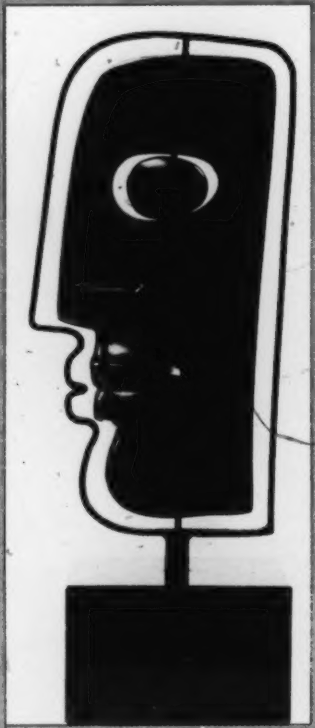
Sculpture

MAY 3–21, 1983

IOLAS-JACKSON
GALLERY
52 EAST 57TH STREET
NEW YORK CITY



TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 W. 57, NY 10019 (212) 421-3780

CHUCK
FORSMAN
RECENT PAINTINGS
THIRD FLOOR

DAN MARSHALL
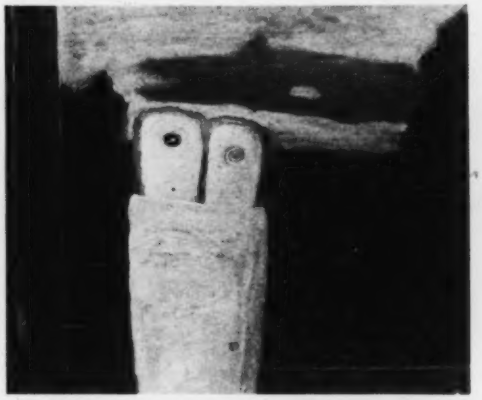
WORKS ON PAPER
FOURTH FLOOR

7 MAY–1 JUNE 1983

Ed Baynard
is represented by

Pam Adler Gallery
37 West 57th Street,
New York, N.Y. 10019
212/980.9696

may



Untitled, 1982, oil on paper, 26¼" x 30½"

BRENDA GOODMAN
paintings

the eason
gallery
338 east de vargas
santa fe, nm 87501
(505) 982-9573

TRANSPERSONAL IMAGES

EDGAR BUONAGURIO
PRAFULL DAVÉ
FRANK FAULKNER
HERB JACKSON
SETSUYA KOTANI
TERANCE LANOUE
SUSAN WILMARTH

An exhibition of twenty-eight paintings organized in conjunction with the VIII International Conference of the International Transpersonal Association, Davos, Switzerland.
August 27 — September 2, 1983.

A full-color catalogue and information regarding the Conference are available from the ITA, 3519 Front Street, San Diego, California 92103, USA Tel: 619-295-4778

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Original Works by

SALLY AMSTER
KAREN BARBOUR
SHEILA ELIAS
ROBIN ESCHNER CAMP
DANIEL GOLDSTEIN
DeWITT HARDY
PAT HARDY
NORMAN LUNDIN
FREDERICK LYNCH
ALAN MAGEE
NATASHA MAYERS
DONNA McGINNIS
JAMES WARREN PERRY
JACQUE ROCHESTER
ROBERT SETRAKIAN
MATT TASLEY
SUSAN VAN CAMPEN
ELIZABETH VOELKER
DON WILLIAMS
BARBARA WINKELSTEIN

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY
1000 MAGNOLIA AVENUE, LARKSPUR, CALIFORNIA 94939 415/461-2522

DOUG MACWITHEY

May 10 — June 4, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923

CALVIN ALBERT

Ingber Gallery May 3-21, 1983
460 West Broadway New York N.Y. 10012

KRAUSHAAR
GALLERIES
724 Fifth Avenue, New York
(Bet. 57th & 56th Sts. • Tel. 307-5730)
Tues. thru Sat., 9:30 to 5:30

JOHN HELIKER
Paintings and Drawings
thru May 14

KENNETH EVETT
Paintings and Drawings
May 18 thru June 11

PONOVA GALLERY

COLLECTION: OIL PAINTINGS BY

VAN GOGH
MONET DERAIN
VLAMINCK
TOULOUSE-LAUTREC
RENOIR
CHAGALL
BONNARD
PICASSO
SUTHERLAND
PASMORE
LEMBECK
WEDER
BRAUN OLD MASTERS:
TINTORETTO
EL GRECO
VAN DYCK

PONOVA ART GALLERY INC.
191 Gerrard Street East,
Toronto, Ontario, Canada M5A 2E5
Tel. (416) 968-2231/2232

RICHEBOURG/McCOY

Announces their new location at

19 East 71 Street
New York, New York 10021
Telephone: 212/570.2131

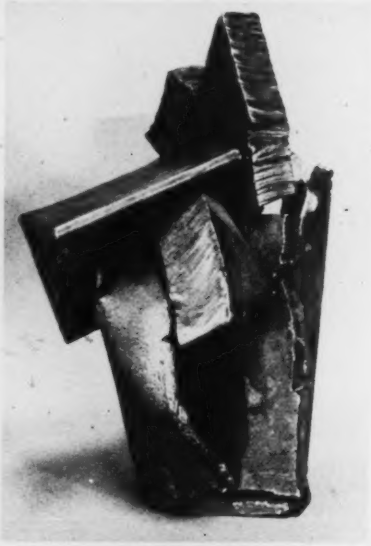
By appointment
Elizabeth Richebourg · Jason McCoy

RON LINDEN

NEW PAINTINGS

MAY 14 - JUNE 11

NEIL G. OVSEY
GALLERY
705 East Third Street, 3rd Floor
Los Angeles, California 90013
Telephone: (213) 617-1351



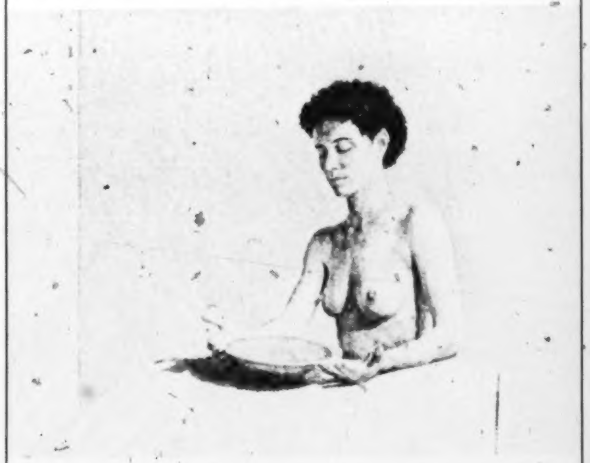
JOHN McCARTY

Sculpture
April 28 — May 29, 1983

C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 N. Charles St. Baltimore, MD 21201
Hours: TUES-SAT 10-5 (301) 539-1080

VOL 71 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

12 DUKE STREET GALLERY



WILLIAM WILKINS

Recent Paintings

Catalogue Available £3 inc pp

MAY 11 - 10 JUNE

12 DUKE ST ST JAMESS SW1

930 5247

PAINTING INTO SCULPTURE

21 MAY - 21 JUNE
1983

BONLOW GALLERY
JEANETTE BONNIER
150 GREENE STREET, NY, NY 10012
(212) 925-4482

SMALL FIGURES

May 14 - June 4, 1983

GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 Wilshire Blvd Los Angeles 90036
(213) 939 2189

Jonathan Poole-Richard Wills Gallery
London New York
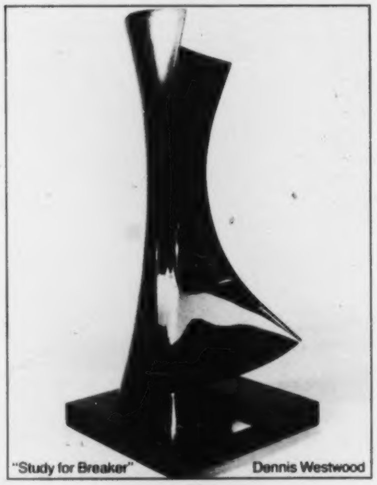
104 Franklin Street, New York, NY 10013
Tel: (212) 334 9220

The gallery specializes in European contemporary sculpture and paintings.



"Study for Breaker" Dennis Westwood

Contemporary Sculpture POOLE-WILLS PW FINE ART Exhibition Organizers

GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER

BASELITZ
BYARS
IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY
LÜPERTZ
A.R.PENCK

D — 5000 KÖLN — 1 —
GERTRUDENSTR. 24/28 T.210661

3 OF 5, Height

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

Richard Hamilton
RECENT WORK

Brooke Alexander. New York
Tel: 757.3721

Nishimura Gallery. Tokyo
Tel: 567: 3906

Schellmann & Klüser. Munich
Tel: 292.153

Thorden & Wetterling Gallery. Gothenberg
Tel: 203.016

Image & Process: An exhibition of studies, stage and final proofs from the graphic work of Richard Hamilton 1952-82. To open at the Tate Gallery, London, October 1983 and then to tour to museums world-wide. North American venues planned for 1985-6.

WADDINGTON GRAPHICS
31 Cork Street, London WI. Tel: 434.3612
Art 1983 Chicago, Stand no. 1-220

HARRY STERNBERG

"THEN AND NOW"
DRAWINGS AND PAINTINGS

JUNE 3-AUGUST 27, 1983

deicas art
1224 prospect street • la jolla, california 92037
(619) 456-1555 • 459-3651

VOL
7
1

ISS
5

MY 1983

UMI

Roy Boyd Los Angeles

Roy Dowell
Peter Levinson

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036

Roy Boyd Chicago

Gallery Artists:
Recent Work

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610

MICHAEL GRAVES

Current work 1983
May 14 - June 11

Max Protetch
37 West 57 Street New York

RUTH VOLLMER
Sculpture and Drawing
May 21—June 8, 1983

BETTY PARSONS GALLERY
24 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 212-247-7480

Carone Gallery
600 Southeast Second Court
Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33301
(305) 463-8833

HANS HINTERREITER

A Theory of Form and Color

Paintings 1932-1983

JOSEF STAUB

Stainless Steel Sculpture

April 5 - May 28

ERICSON GALLERY

23 E 74 ST NYC 10021 737-6155

HENRY MOORE

SCULPTURE, DRAWINGS AND PRINTS

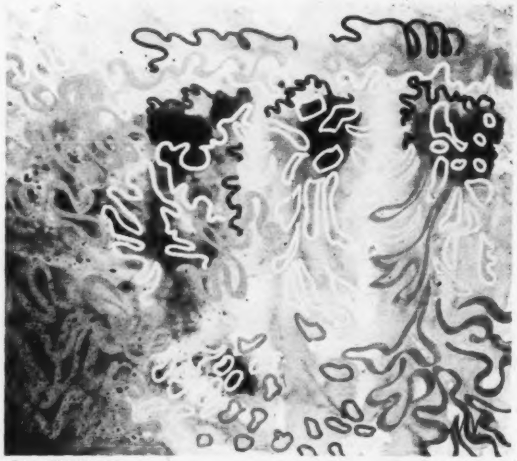
Mother with Twins 1982,
5½ inches high, Bronze, edition of nine

LILLIAN HEIDENBERG GALLERY

50 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK CITY 10019 (212)586-3808

MARY VIRGINIA BRANDON

EXHIBITION OF NEW WORKS



"Deep Springs" Acrylic on Canvas 42" x 48"

May 6-31

db

DONALD BATMAN GALLERY

825 WESTPORT ROAD KANSAS CITY MISSOURI 64111 (816) 531-2588

Brentwood Gallery

May: Peter Marcus x 3

June: Squeak Carnwath
Kurt Weiser

July: St. Louis Artists

Always: Superb ceramics and glass

1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808

VOL
71
1

ISS
5

MY 1983

UMI

AVERY, BOLOTOWSKY, BRACH, J. G. DAVIS, FRATT, GUSTON, JIMENEZ, McGARRELL, OLITSKI, OSSORIO, PEART, REED,
SABA, F. A. SMITH, UMEDA, VICENTE, WAID, WENGER.

YARES GALLERY

3625 BISHOP LANE SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA 85251 (602) 947-3251

SANDRA LEVESON-MEARES
"New Paintings From Australia"
May 7 • June 11, 1983

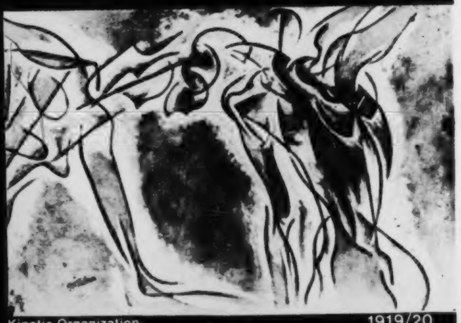
GALLERY ONE INC

4935 Byers Fort Worth, Texas 76107 (817) 737-9566

LORSER FEITELSON
Early Drawings / Late Paintings
May 3 – June 24

Tobey C. Moss

7321 Beverly Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90036
Telephone 213 933 5523



Kinetic Organization 1919/20

THE TWINING GALLERY INC
33 BLEECKER ST., NYC 10012 (212) 674-2070

ADOLF BENCA
"Self-portrait" 1983 charcoal on paper 12x8½"

Adolf Benca
Prints and Drawings
Through May

INSURANCE SPECIALISTS TO THE ART WORLD

GALLERIES · COLLECTORS · MUSEUMS · PUBLISHERS · AUCTION HOUSES ·

GREAT NORTHERN BROKERAGE CORP.

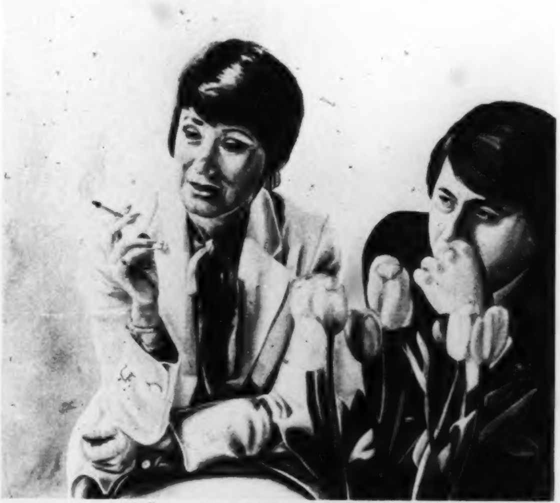
INQUIRIES INVITED

CONTACT: NORMAN NEWMAN OR LARRY MORREALE
950 THIRD AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022 (212)371-2800
TWX 710-581-2250 CABLE: GREATNORTH NEW YORK



"A Conversation" Watercolor and gouache 33" w × 30" h

JUDY PENZER
WEDDING SERIES
WATERCOLORS MAY 14 - JUNE 15

SOHO 20 469 BROOME STREET

ARMANDO AMAYA
Recent Sculpture

"Mujer Maya", 1982, 37", Original bronze sculpture.

April 29-May 27, 1983

PASQUALE IANNETTI
ART GALLERY, INC.
575 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94102 (415) 433-2771

B. LEWIN GALLERIES
ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR 25th ANNIVERSARY OF
MEXICAN MASTERS

SELECTED WORKS ON EXHIBITION BY

RUFINO TAMAYO
CARLOS MERIDA
RAFAEL CORONEL
JEAN CHARLOT
DIEGO RIVERA
FELIPE CASTANEDA
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA ETC

B. Lewin Galleries

266 North Beverly Drive 213-278-5769
Beverly Hills, California 90210 213-550-1825

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

RENAULT RECHERCHES ART ET INDUSTRIES
CENTRE INTERNATIONAL DE CREATION ARTISTIQUE

GEORGES NOËL

Painted Reliefs
May 7th - July 4th 1983
Opening on May 7th from 5:30 to 8 PM
ABBAYE DE SENANQUE - 84 GORDES

ALICE AYCOCK

"The Thousand and One Nights in the Mansion of Dreams"
Installation and Related Drawings May 7 - June 4

Protetch-McNeil
214 Lafayette New York

MICHAEL NUSHAWG

MAY

MIRIAM PERLMAN
Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Suite 5410 Chicago

PRINTWORLD

☐ 10,000 print listings
☐ 800 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 600 pages

1983-84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc.

THE COMPLETE INTERNATIONAL PRINT REFERENCE

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, collectors, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! Save!

1983 EDITION $49.95 Postage/Handling: $5. USA—$10. Outside USA
1982 EDITION $35.00
NAME ____________
ADDRESS ____________
VISA/MC # ____________ EXP ____________

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

ART SERVICES

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO/TAOS Circle No. 1
501 Ranchitos Road
Taos, NM 87571 (505) 758-3447
Graphic design to promote the arts: exhibition catalogues, brochures, advertisements, quality color postcards.

APPRAISERS

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 2
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European and American Fine Arts
For Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, and Estates.

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 3
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian,
Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 4
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations.
Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

L. McADOO PROFESSIONAL APPRAISERS 5
503 Canyon Road
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 984-0152
Fine Art and personal property appraisals.
Member of Int'l Society of Appraisers.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 6
721 Main St. Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
19th and Early 20th Century American Art.
By Appointment Only.

ART BOOKS

ART IN FORM Circle No. 7
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in contemp. publications; Books, Catalogs, Periodicals, Recordings. Mail order catalogs available.

ART CONSULTANTS

ANN H. BISSELL Circle No. 8
2844 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20007 (202) 363-2867
Art Installation, Lighting Design and Framing on a Consulting Basis.

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 9
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

CONTEMPORARY ART CONSULTANTS Circle No. 10
393 North Euclid Avenue
St. Louis, MO 63108 (314) 361-5110
Consultants to Corporations, Designers, Architects and Private Collectors.

FRANZ VILA Circle No. 11
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique for Corporations, Collectors, Research & Art Education.

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE Circle No. 12
7200 West Beverly Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 933-9284
Quality artist material; save 10% to 30% off manufacturer's list.

ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC Circle No. 13
2 West 46 Street
New York, NY 10036 (212) 575-5555
America's Largest Art Materials Distributor.
Home of the International Pen Shop.

EASTERN ARTISTS & DRAFTING MATERIALS 14
352 Park Avenue South
New York, NY 10010 (212) 725-5555
Everything for the Artist, Draftsman, Photo-Studio at 20% to 50% off list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 15
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905.
See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 16
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 17
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

RISING PAPER COMPANY Circle No. 18
Dennis M. O'Connor
Housatonic, MA 01236 (413) 274-3345
Manufacturers of Mirage, Dansk, Stonehenge, and more. Now in pads.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 19
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen watercolor papers.
22x30, 300 lbs., $7.50/sheet: samples.

SELWYN TEXTILE COMPANY INC. Circle No. 20
15 West 38th Street
New York, NY 10018 (212) 921-9355, (800) 223-3032
Direct source linen and cotton UNPRIMED ARTIST'S CANVAS. No minimum yardage requirements. Send for Free Samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 21
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, solid oil paint in stick form.
Call (800) 421-1325

UTRECHT Circle No. 22
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 23
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

Continued

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

ART SERVICES

ARTISTS WANTED

GALLERY II RSVP Circle No. 24

ARTISTS! Exhibition space in new high quality fine arts sales & exhibition gallery. All media accepted. Send slides and S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901. (804) 977-R.S.V.P.

AUCTION HOUSES

LESLIE HINDMAN AUCTIONEERS Circle No. 25

225 West Ohio Street
Chicago, Il 60610 (312) 670-0010

Auction house holding fine & decorative arts auctions monthly. Specialized sales as announced.

COMPETITIONS

GALLERY II R.S.V.P. Circle No. 26

"Regional Sensibilities-USA" ALL MEDIA, $10 entry fee, $5/slide, no limit. First jury by slide. Deadline May 31. 5 cash prizes, 1 purchase award. Send slide & S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901.

EXHIBITION CATALOGUES

WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 27

Brian Gold 37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100

The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition Catalogues since 1960.

FINE ART CASTING

AELCO FOUNDRIES, INC. Circle No. 28

1930 South 4th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53204 (414) 645-3771

Silicon bronze, ferrous & non-ferrous sand & investment castings - also production quantities - $75 minimum order.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHERS

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 29

1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044

Photography Services for the Fine Arts. Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

FINE ART PRINTERS

COLOR Q Circle No. 30
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS

2835 Springboro West Dayton OH 45439 (513) 294-0406

Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

CINDI ETTINGER Circle No. 31

142 Vine Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106 (215) 928-9897

Printing Services, Instruction and Plate Restoration. Will Collaborate with Artist.

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 32

211 Old Santa Fe Trail
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580

Original Graphics, Lithographs, Seriographs, etchings of contemp. Indian artists. Specializing in Kevin Red Star.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 33

P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677

1983: Africa-Aug./Sao Paulo Biennale-Oct./1984: New Guinea-Mar./Scandinavia-June/Venice Biennale-Sept./ 1985: China/Japan.

FOUNDRIES/FABRICATORS

JOHNSON ATELIER TECH. INSTITUTE Circle No. 34

Jim Barton, 743 Alexander Road
Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661

Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell, Rubber Molds. Bronze Repair & Repatina

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 35

Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363

Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

MATTHEWS CLASSIC BRONZE DIVISION 36

2230 North Chico Avenue
South El Monte, CA 91733 (213) 444-0468

Our lost wax casting capabilities assure the quality and fidelity of your art. Contact Mel Scheibauer.

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY
OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.

Founded 1805

For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

the summer museum school

Classes beginning
June 27

for more information,
please call or write:

Summer School Office
School of the Museum of Fine Arts
230 The Fenway
Boston, MA 02115
(617) 267-1219

ART SERVICES

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 37
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 38
800 Traction Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90013 (213) 680-4710
Wholesale Custom Framing Specializing in Archival Presentation for Artists, Galleries, Museums, Consultants.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 39
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale custom framing and supply. 80 metal, 200 wood styles, mat board, museum board. Fast professional service.

JACK BARNETT CUSTOM FRAMES Circle No. 40
144 North Second Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106 (215) 629-1766
Specializing in Molded Plexi Frames, U.F.3. Fully Rounded Leaf Frames, Complete Frame Restoration.

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 41
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom framing with conservation materials. Hardwoods or metal. Cutglass, mats, painting, stripings. Fast service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 42
5046 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90019 (213) 938-6795
Art Framing to Museum Standards. Plexiglass, Aluminum, Brass, Hardwood. Wholesale.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 43
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Serving Washington D.C. Metropolitan Area
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts.

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 44
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 45
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 46
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders) Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

FLATHER & HAYES COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 47
888 Seventeenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 466-8888
Fine arts insurance for collectors and dealers.

GREAT NORTHERN BROKERAGE CORP. 48
Norman Newman or Larry Morreale
950 Third Ave
New York, NY 10022 (212) 371-2800
Insurance Specialists to the Art World.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

L.A. PACKING AND CRATING Circle No. 49
5852 West Adams Blvd.
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 933-5602
Specialist in Packing, Crating, Installing, Warehousing, Shipping Fine Art and Antiques. Jim Isenson.

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 50
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 51
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper, Framing conservation. Appraisals.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

Art in America REPLY COUPON
Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

MAY 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
August 31, 1983

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) TELEPHONE
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Art Services & Schools ▽ Please send information circled.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30
31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60
61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90
91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100 101 102 103 104 105 106 107 108 109 110 111 112 113 114 115 116 117 118 119 120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL 71
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

JOHN PEARSON RECENT PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS
MAY 3 THROUGH JUNE 3, 1983

13225 SHAKER SQUARE CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062 DBRGALLERY

Howard Ben Tré
Frank Campion
May 3 - 28

Robert Kelly
Donald Shambroom
May 31 - June 25

clarkgallery
Lincoln Station, Lincoln, MA 01773 617-259-8303

James Faust
Paintings & Constructions

Exhibition Dates:
May 14 thru June 10, 1983
Reception: Saturday, May 14
6 to 9 p.m. Artist will be present.

Editions Limited Gallery
8702 Keystone Crossing (Fashion Mall)
Indianapolis, IN 46240

WELDING FOR ARTISTS WORKSHOP
July 5-22, 1983

To learn, improve or specialize in major welding techniques. To participate in fabrication of a welded sculpture. Lectures, Slides, Welding Library.

Artist in residence: Konstantin Milonadis, outstanding kinetic wire sculptor, Chicago, Illinois.

For further information, write to:
Welding for Artists, Hobart School of Welding Technology, Dept. AA, Troy, Ohio 45373, Attn: Aka Pereyma, Program Coordinator

Warrington
COLESCOTT

Recent Paintings and Prints April 29 – June 11, 1983

Perimeter Gallery
356 West Huron, Chicago, IL 60610
Telephone 312/266-9473

How much should you pay for Fine Art?

Order your copy now of the new 1983 edition of:
"International Auction Records" and see the latest auction prices for OIL PAINTINGS • WATERCOLORS
DRAWINGS • ENGRAVINGS • SCULPTURE

1,300 pages, thumb-indexed, richly illustrated.
17,000 prices on AMERICAN ARTISTS realized in all leading AMERICAN AUCTION HOUSES
44,000 international auction results comprising
12,000 international artists will make you an expert on current prices and help you avoid costly mistakes.

Pre-publication price until June 22, 1983 $148.00
thereafter: $158.00
Delivery: early August 1983

INTERNATIONAL DIRECTORY OF ARTS
16th EDITION
World-wide "yellow-pages" with special data and information on anyone and all categories in the fine arts. 2 Vols. $120.00

THE BENEZIT
Dictionary of Painters, Sculptors, and Graphic Artists. 300,000 entries of world-wide artists.
10 Vols., ills. French text $380.00

GORDON'S 1983 PRINT PRICE ANNUAL
More than 32,000 entries in alphabetical order and cross-indexed. Lists prices and all details on prints (sold or unsold) of 17 major auction houses in the world. $260.00

Send check with order to:
EDITIONS PUBLISOL
DEPT. AA5, P.O. BOX 339, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10028

"Steaks and chops are seared to juicy perfection."
Town & Country, September 1982

"One of the 100 best new restaurants in America."
Esquire, August 1981

"An elegant, high-quality steak house." Rated ★ ★ very good.
New York Times, October 1980

"Pure and simple native food, served as if it were haute cuisine." Rate 9½ of 10.
N.Y. Daily News, October 1980

Now Open For Lunch Saturday!

THE POST HOUSE
STEAK & CHOPS

28 East 63rd Street, between Park and Madison.
Open 7 days. Reservations: (212) 935-2888.

FREE
catalog with purchase of Sketch Book or Hand Soap.

Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.

- Unique 228p resource for artists
- Use for one-stop shopping
- Contains over 20,000 items

Just purchase
Artist's Sketch Book™
$6.00
Fine quality bond paper text. Hard cover.

OR

Just purchase
HAND SOAP™
$1.49
Completely safe
Fresh scented

Enclosed find check for items checked below:

Sketch Book ☐	Hand Soap ☐	Art Brown ☐
plus catalog	plus catalog	catalog only
$6.00	$1.49	$3.00

C683AA

Name ____________________
Address ____________________
City/State/Zip ____________________

America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

ATTENTION ARTISTS!
DOES THE NAME
RUBY BERGONSKI RING A BELL?
PROBABLY NOT BUT IF ANY OF THE FOLLOWING DO:

WINSOR & NEWTON, GRUMBACHER, LEFRANC, HOLBEIN, LIQUITEX, TALENS, PELIKAN, BLOCKX, BOCOUR, ROWNEY, PERMALBA, SHIVA, MARKAL, PERCY BAKER, ISABEY, ROBERT SIMMONS, KOH-I-NOOR, BIENFANG, KRYLON, BEROL, DERWENT, D'ARCHES, WHATMAN, FABRIANO, CARAN D'ACHE, STAYCORE, NEOLT, TESTRITE, LUXO, BADGER, PAASCHE, THAYER & CHANDLER, ALTOS, C&H, DEXTER, FREDRIX, AND MORE . . .

YOU CAN FIND THEM AND OTHERS IN OUR HUGE DISCOUNT ART MATERIAL CATALOG.
YOURS FOR ONLY $1.00. OH, IF RUBY BERGONSKI DOES RING A BELL, SEND $2.00 FOR SPECIAL RUSH SERVICE.

☐ YES SEND ME YOUR CURRENT CATALOG.
ENCLOSED IS $1.00 AND MY NAME AND ADDRESS

Name
Street Town
State Zip

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.
248-12 DEPT AIA UNION TURNPIKE BELLEROSE NY 11426 AIA1

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Art Books and Illustrated Books

Rare and scholarly books in all fields of the visual arts.

Important illustrated books from the fifteenth century to the present.

ars libri, ltd.
286 SUMMER STREET • BOSTON, MA 02210
(617) 357-5212
Mon.-Fri. 9 to 6 • Sat. 11 to 5

MARTHA ROSS EDELHEIT painted tableaux & maquettes

ROSALIND SCHNEIDER
yosemite loop extension, a film/sculpture installation

MAY 17 - JUNE 4 1983

A.I.R. GALLERY 63 Crosby Street
New York 212 966-0799

Galería San Jerónimo
Condado Holiday Inn 999 Ashford Ave. Condado, P.R. Tel. 722-1808 721-1000

FEATURING:
JAN D'ESOPO
JACUELYNN KRESMAN
LAJOS MARCOS
CHARLES PFAHL
TERESA SPINNER and YOUNG ARTISTS OF PUERTO RICO
"Nautico" 22" x 30" watercolor Jan D'Esopo

Galería San Juan
Blvd. del Valle 204-206 Old San Juan, P.R. Tel. 722-1808 725-3829

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

Artexpo TEXAS

Dallas Market Center
September 30–October 3, 1983

The 7th international forum for fine art dealers.

Space reservations accepted subject to qualification and availability.

For further information, contact
International Art Exposition
509 Madison Avenue, New York 10022
Telephone: (212) 935-7607

MARVIN KING ORIGINAL PERFORMANCES
OF NEW MUSIC, HARDWOOD CARVINGS AND VIDEO ILLUSTRATIONS ON VHS
30 min 8 tunes 107 pieces Signed Drawing and Cassette . . . $268.00
JANE-LEE VIDEO GALLERY P.O. BOX 50014 AUSTIN, TEXAS 78763 512-476-2799

STEVEN MOLASKY

BOXERS

Ziller and Associates
New York (212) 581-6470
Las Vegas (702) 734-0650

RETIREMENT SALE

Museum-Quality Matting & Framing, Unless Spec. PHOTOS $1.

NIERMAN, Leonardo: OIL, 1963, 16 x 24 image, "Deep", $1850.
PARTON, Ernest "Shining River" 36 x 48 Oil, 1922 Exh. $2900.
CHANDLER, J.F. Portrait pair, 30 x 25, c. 1840. Choice $5900.
CASE, Edmund E. 30 x 22 Superb Oil, "Woodland Brook" $1295.
NAGLER, Fred: Oil, 30 x 40 fine impress. "Berk. Landscape" $1200.
BASKIN, Leonard "DEAD MAN" 13" green-patina Bronze. '55 $1900.
BASKIN, L. "Sm. Dead Head w/o Ears" c. 1967, Ed. 3(?) $1650.
BASKIN, L. "Hanged Man/Haman/Death Angel/Strabismic Jew" wc's
MIRO, Joan "Terre de Grand Feu" 65/100, Litho 1960. $1850.
MIRO, J. "Danse Nuptiale" 1963 Litho, 2/90, 47 x 65 cm $1695.
MIRO, J. "L'Essayage" '70Lith 5/30 (rare), 56" tall/FR $2700.
CHAGALL, Marc "The Revolution" $18/150, Litho 1963. $2950.
CHAGALL, Marc "The Painter in Blue" 1967 Poster, Sgnd. $750.
FRIEDLANDER, J. "The Hours" 30½ x 22½ Aqua, #34/95, '77 $650.
PICASSO, "Potteries de Picasso" 1948 pencil-sgnd Poster $1150.
DALI, Salv: Various graphics '67 to '78; Also Calder, Wins. Homer

CORNELL GALLERIES (413) 732-5339, Anytime
270 Maple, Springfield, MA 01105 • VISA/MC

MORTON
RACHOFSKY SCULPTURE

3
Three Sisters
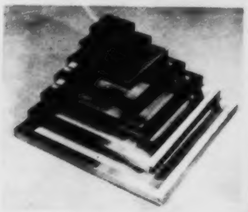
Gallery

2300 Mercantile Bank Bldg.
Dallas, Texas 75201
214/748-1248

Catalogue Available
$6.00



Untitled #178 Stainless Steel H: 10½"

WORKS AVAILABLE BY:

Avery
de Kooning
Dine
Jensen
Noguchi
Oldenburg
Oppenheim
Rauschenberg
Rivers
Stankiewicz
Stella
Warhol

TWENTIETH CENTURY AMERICAN ART
VANDERWOUDE
TANANBAUM
24 E 81 STREET/NEW YORK/212 879 8200

F. M. LUCET
and
GROUP SHOWING
May 15 - June 15

SL Art Gallery
2133 Cedar Springs
214/761-9912 • Dallas, Texas 75201

DAVID C.
BAKER
VITREOUS FLUX WATERCOLOR

MAY 12-JUNE 5

DEEP WINTER
9x12

Kathleen Warner Fine Art
901 MAIN AVE. • DURANGO CO 81301 • 303-259-5016

E.A.T. BIBLIOGRAPHY 1965-1980
by BILLY KLUVER

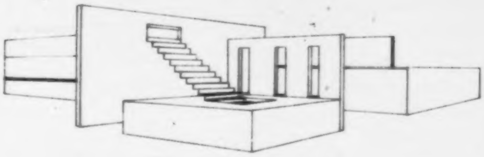
Lists 969 publications documenting the evolution of art and technology since 1965

$7.50 plus $1 postage and handling

EXPERIMENTS IN ART AND TECHNOLOGY
49 East 68th Street New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 285-1690

THE SOURCE
RC Gorman
AT
Now
& Then Gallery Ltd.
797 Merrick Ave. East Meadow, L.I., N.Y. 11554
(516) 481-1447 (212) 895-1145
LITHOS—CERAMICS—SCULPTURE—SILKSCREENS

WALTER WEISSMAN



April 26 to May 15, 1983

14 SCULPTORS GALLERY
164 Mercer Street, New York. (212) 966-5790

MIDTOWN
GALLERIES EST. 1932 11 East 57 St., N.Y. (212) 758-1900

GREGORIO
PRESTOPINO
RECENT PAINTINGS
Through May 21

"Afternoon Sun," oil, 54" x 50"

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
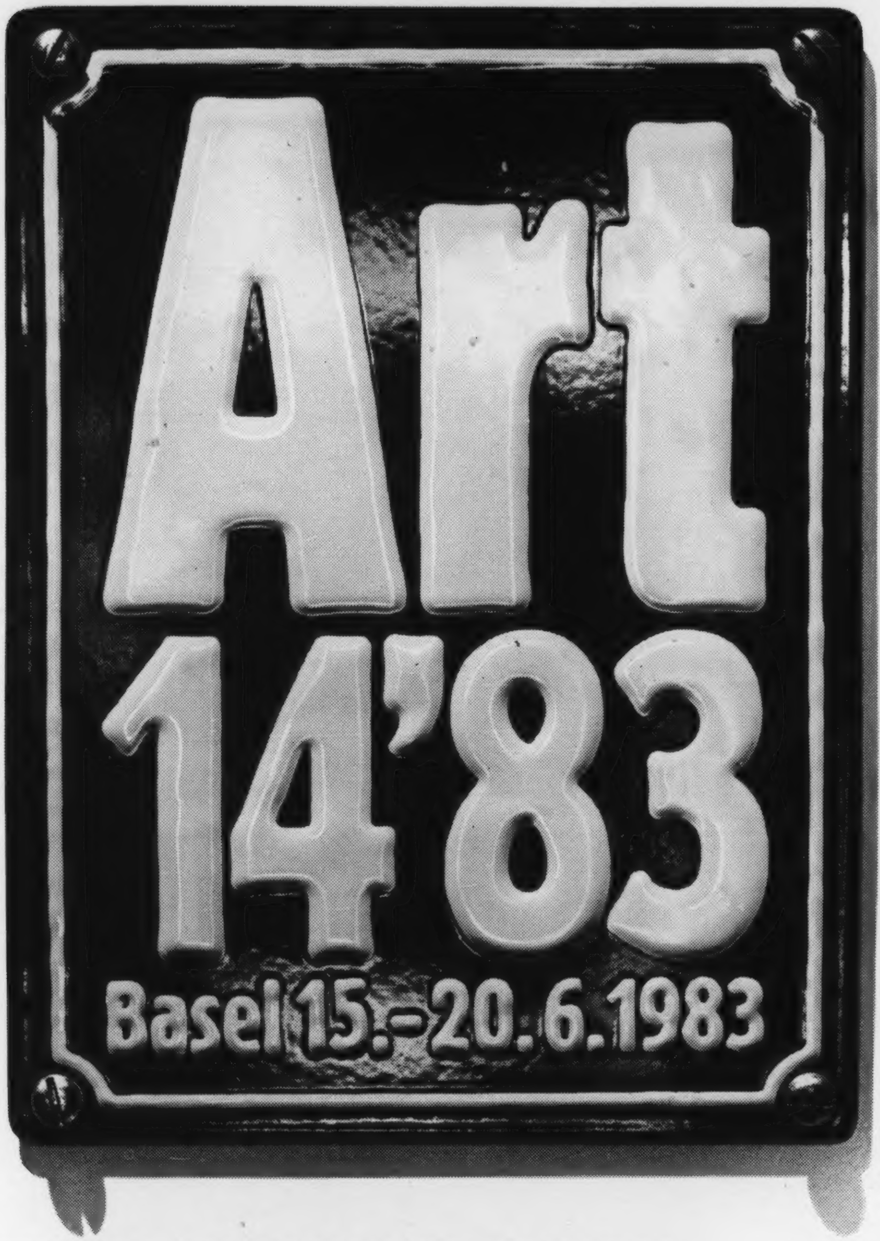
UMI



Grieder

THE INTERNATIONAL ART FAIR: THE GALLERY OF THE GALLERIES.

Art 14'83: The most important international Art Fair for 20th century art. Daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Information and catalogue: Secretariat Art 14'83,
P.O. Box, CH-4021 Basel/Switzerland,
Phone 061/26 20 20.

AN EVENT BY THE SWISS INDUSTRIES FAIR BASLE

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES ☎ 54 (1)

RUTH BENZACAR
Talcahuano 1216-1° • Tel. 41-6549, 42-5614/5566
Arnaiz, Aizenberg, Audivert, Benedit, Benguria, Cáceres, Castilla, De Monte, Esteves, Kleiman, Puente, Robirosa, Smoje, Torroja, Vegezzi.

DEL RETIRO
Florida 943 • Tel. 32.5850
Gallery artists: Pablo Bobbi, Marcello Bonevardi, Sergio Camporalle, Dalla Cujat, Les Lublin, Aldo Parella, Daniel Selaga.

AUSTRIA

INNSBRUCK ☎ 43 (522)

KRINZINGER
Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • Tel. 32.131
Heinz Cibulka, photography

KLAGENFURT

CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT
Volermarkter Rina 25 • Tel. 57.377
May 4-June 3, Konrad Koller

VIENNA ☎ 43 (222)

ARIADNE
Bäckerstrasse 6 • Tel. 52.94.79
Apr. 26-May 24, Bohatsch, recent work

GRITA INSAM
Köllnerhofg. 6 • Tel. 52.53.30
Through May, Peter Hujar, photos
Berty Skuber, recent work

NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN
Grunangergasse 1/11 II • Tel. 52.12.66
Until May 28, Thomas Stimm, "Arbeiten in Tohn"

ULYSSES
Opernring 21 • Tel. 57.12.26.
Through May, Aspects of Contemporary Austrian Art: paintings and sculpture

GALERIE HUBERT WINTER
Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • tel. 52.92.85
Markus Lüpertz, Über Orpheus—Gouaches
Illustrated catalogue available

BELGIUM

ANTWERP ☎ 32 (31)

AVANTGRADE
Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81
Panamarenko

MICHELE LACHOWSKY
27 Waalse Kaai • Tel. 237.23.93
Jan Vercruysse

LENS FINE ART
Mechelsesteenweg 146 • Tel. 237.68.57
Jan Van Riet

"121"
Mechelsesteenweg 121 • Tel. 218.68.73
Until May 14, "Graffiti," will be present at the Fun Gallery in New York City.

BRUSSELS ☎ 32 (2)

ALBERT BARONIAN
89, Avenue Emile de Beco • Tel. 647.3414
Georg Baselitz
Siegfried Anzinger

ISY BRACHOT
62a, Avenue Louise • Tel. 511.05.25
McKenna

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

BRUSSELS (CONT'D) ☎ 32 (2)

CAMOMILLE
30, Rue Vilain XIV • Tel. 649.23.68
François Merlin
Jean-Louis Vila

FABIEN DE CUGNAC
55, Rue de Livourne • Tel. 537.14.15

PALAIS DES BEAUX ARTS
10, Rue Royale • Tel. 512.04.03
Le dessin vénitien au XVIIIème Siècle; Tiepolo, Canaletto, Guardi, Piazetta, Longhi "Who's Afraid of American Pottery?" Marcel Mayer

POST-SCRIPTUM
37, Rue des Eperonniers • Tel. 511.96.43
Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records.

GHENT ☎ 32 (91)

BARONIAN/LAMBERT
Oudburg 22 • Tel. 254.057
Volker Tannert

RICHARD FONCKE
18 St. Janvest • Tel. 23.81.28
Dierk de Vos, paintings
Van Aderlecht, drawings

GEWAD
23 Gewad • Tel. 25.56.16
Stanley Brouwn

MUSEUM HEDENDAAGSE K'NST.
Citadelpark • Tel. 21.17.03
Events relating to the German week (Vostell, Knaack, concerts)

KNOKKE ☎ 32 (50)

ELISABETH FRANCK
124 Kustlaan • Tel. 606.881
Pat Andrea

GALLERY TRIADE
Res. St. James, Kustlann 130 • Tel. 610.067/601.925
Apr.-May, abstracts from the 50's: Alechinsky, Appel, Atlan, Bissidre, Estave, Fautrier, Herbin, Jorn, Soulages, Bram & Geer van Velde, Vieira da Silva

COLOMBIA

BARRANQUILLA

GALERIA QUINTERO
CRA 51 B N° 80-65 • Tel. 359.210

BOGOTA ☎ 57

GARCES Y VELASQUEZ
CRA N° 26-92 - AA 28936 • Tel. 284.5593
Ammeral, Amat, Barrera, Caballero, Cardenas, Castles, Gonzales, Hernandez, Seramillo, Negret, Porter, Ramirez, Rosas, Salcedo, Sanin

QUINTANA
Carrera 11 N° 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226
XIXth and XXth Century paintings: Botero, Degas, Gauguin, Hockney, Matisse, Moore, Picasso, Rodin, Vuillard

ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE ☎ 44 (223)

KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY
Northampton Street • Tel. 352.124
May 7-June 22, Ceramics and textiles selected by Henry Rothschild May 28-July 3, Joseph Beuys, graphics works

LONDON ☎ 44 (1)

ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY
1 Langley Court • Tel. 836.73.57
Until May 20, Vicken Parsons, paintings
As of May 25, Michael Upton

ART HOUSE
213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192
Representing contemporary British artists, including John Bellany. Also collection of Outsider Art—by appointment

IAN BIRKSTED
37 Great Russell Street • Tel. 637.2673
John Newling, recent sculpture

BLOND FINE ART
33 Sackville Street • Tel. 437.1230
Specialists in British Art 1910-1950

CHRISTIE'S PRINT COLL'CTION
8 Dover Street • Tel. 499.6701
Graphics by British and international artists. Hockney, Moore, Sutherland, Miró, Chagall, others. Catalog (quote AIAIED).

ANTHONY d'OFFAY
23 Dering Street • Tel. 499.4695
Until May 14, Wyndham Lewis (1882-1957), paintings and watercolors 1910-1920. As of May 17, Anselm Kiefer, paintings and watercolors

12 DUKE STREET GALLERY
Duke Street, St. James • Tel. 930.52.47
May 11-June 10, William Wilkins, recent paintings

FISCHER FINE ART
30 King Street, SW1 • Tel. 839.3942

GIMPEL FILS
30 Davies Street • Tel. 493.2488
April 19-May 14, Louis Le Brocquy, "Studies towards an image of Shakespeare"
Through May, "Ten Swiss Artists," from Gimpel, Zurich

NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC.
41 Sloane Gardens • Tel. 730.8824
Until May 13, Steven Cox "The Grand Tour"

I.C.A.
The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.3647
Until May 22, "Model Future," a view of contemporary British architecture/Until May 15, Jenny Holzer. Until June 12, Mary Miss, installation

LONDON (CONT'D)	☎ 44 (1)
NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street • Tel. 437.3868	Until May 21, Mali Morris, paintings May 25-June 18, Jeffe Lowe, sculpture/John McLean, paintings
BERNARD JACOBSON, LTD. 2A Cork Street • Tel. 439.8355	Through May, Michael Heindorff, "New Carborundum Etchings"
LEWIS JOHNSTONE GALLERY 7 Bolton Gardens (Old Brompton Rd.) • Tel. 373.1192	Until May 21, Paul Richards
ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews • Tel. 637.5517/8	May 19-May 24, Chicago International Art Exposition Booth 1-249 Until May 19, Noriyuki Haraguchi, sculpture and drawings/Malcolm Hughes,
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street • Tel. 439.1096	May 4-May 28, Frank Owen, paintings
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road • Tel. 229.99.85
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street • Tel. 262.1539	Until May 7, Bill Woodrow May 10-June 4, Jenny Holzer, new works and painting
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street • Tel. 734.3558	Through May, Jim Nutt
PETERSBURG PRESS 59A Portobello Road • Tel. 229.0105	Roy Lichtenstein, 7 woodcuts; Frank Stella, "Shards" Other works by Hockney, Hodgkin, Johns
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street • Tel. 499.4632	Until May 20, Mixed exhibition As of May 24, David Suff, "London Gardens"
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78	May 5-June 2, Adrian Heath, recent work 1982-1983
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • Tel. 379.6241	Until May 27, Anton Heyboer, etchings and works on paper
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St. • Tel. 439.1866	Until May 21, John Hoyland, new paintings
OXFORD	☎ 44 (865)
MUSEUM OF MODERN ART 30 Pembroke Street • Tel. 722.733	May 29-July 31, Bill Woodrow, sculpture/ Hans Arp, "Papier déchirés" / Graham Crowley
SOUTHAMPTON	☎ 44 (703)
JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University, Southampton • Tel. 559.122	"Portraits and Lives" May 6-13, David Ward, portraits/"Wellington and His Papers" Adrian Ford, "Portraits of Craftsmen"/May 20-June 11, Ward/Maggie Hambling

FRANCE

BORDEAUX	☎ 33 (56)
C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • Tel. 44.16.35	May 6-Aug 27, Sol LeWitt, wall paintings and sculpture May 6-Aug 27, Hamish Fulton, photos, François Boisrond, paintings
CANNES	☎ 33 (9)
GALERIE HERBAGE 17. Rue des Etats-Unis • Tel. 39.19.15	En permanence: Calder, Max Ernst, Matisse, Miró, Picasso, Chadwick, Hepworth, Moore, Nicholson, Sutherland
LYONS	☎ 33 (7)
E.L.A.C. Centre d'Echanges Lyon Perrache • Tel. 842.27.39	Mar. 30-May 29, 15 "Soyeux" from Lyons who have exhibited in New York at the "Parsons School," a silk exhibition
LE NOUVEAU MUSEE 11, r. Dr. Dolard-69100 Villeurbanne • Tel. 884.55.10	Patrick Reynaud
NICE	☎ 33 (93)
GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Atlan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato.
PARIS	☎ 33 (1)
BAMA 40, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.38.87	Apr 27-May 31, Michael Buthe, Erik Dietman, Sigmar Polke, drawings
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	Until May 18, American Artists books: Bacon, Broadus, Brody-Lederman, Gierebach, Greenbaum As of May 19, Christopher Cheung
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • Tel. 271.20.50	May-June, recent acquisitions and gallery artists: Arman, Ben, Bettencourt, Cesar, Degottex, Klossowski, Matta, Pignon
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 326.9707	Until mid-May, David Levine, watercolors As of May 18, Gerard Barthelemy, paintings, watercolors and drawings

VOL 7 1
ISS 5
MY 1983
UMI

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • Tel. 354.22.40	Until May 21, "Pari 83" (an exhibition of young painters) May 25-July 8, Sandorfi, paintings
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	Until June 6, Wilfrid Moser, paintings, "Retrospective 1950-1983"
FARIDEH CADOT 77, Rue des Archives • Tel. 278.0836	Günter Brus
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage
JEAN CHAUVELIN 147, Rue St. Martin • Tel. 887.77.76	Russian and European Constructivists, gallery artists.
CREATIS ESPACE ALTERNATIF 50, Rue du Temple • Tel. 887.28.56	Until May 28, David Buckland, photos Until May 28, Juan Carlos Aznar, paintings
CHANTAL CROUSEL 80, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 887.6081	Until May 19, recent works by Boltanski, Boué, Cucchi, Cragg, Disler, McLean; As of May 21, Sophie Calle, "Suite Vénitienne"
JACQUES DAMASE Galerie de Varenne, 61 Rue de Varenne, • Tel. 705.55.04	Sonia Delaunay, Man Ray and Patrick Reynaud
DURAND-DESSERT 3, Rue des Haudriettes • Tel. 277.6360	May 10-June 30, Gottfried Honegger
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • Tel. 633.04.66	Until May 30, Alan Odle, drawings "Gargantua" (Rabelais), "Contes drolatiques" (Balzac)
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • Tel. 325.42.63	Until May 14, Daniel Buren May 19-June 11, Alexandre Gherban, sculpture
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • Tel. 563.80.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • Tel. 325.18.73	Until May 14, Pierre Saxod, recent paintings As of May 18, Helion, recent work
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • Tel. 544.29.48	Accrochage of gallery artists As of May 31, Attardi, sculpture
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.3231	James Bishop, Pierre Buraglio, Sam Francis, Simon Hantaï, Shirley Jaffe, Joan Mitchell, Claude Viallat
GALERIE DE FRANCE 50-52, Rue de la Verrerie • Tel. 274.38.00	Through May, Jean-Pierre Bertrand, objects and works on paper
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.94.32	May 4-May 25, Amarente, sculpture May 26-June 30, De Biasi, paintings
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently.
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 34, Rue du Bac • Tel. 261.11.73	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olson, Pan, Pasotti, Toledo, others.
GILLESPIE/LAAGE/SALOMON 24, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 278.1171	As of May 10, Hamish Fulton, photographic work
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important works: Masters of the 19th and 20th centuries," drawings and sculpture Through May-June, Gargallo, one-man show
SAMY KINGE 54, Rue de Verneuil • Tel. 261.1907	Until May 14, Marina Karella, recent paintings and sculpture As of May 25, Victor Brauner, paintings and gouaches
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • Tel. 763.03.95	Exhibition at the Chicago Art Fair, Booth S-103 André Masson, The American period. Pastels, drawings.
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • Tel. 325.54.06	"Paper as a Material for Artists" and original graphics by: Alechinsky, Appel, Ernst, Folon, Kozo, Piza. Catalogue available.
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion.
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • Tel. 271.09.33	May 7-June 3, Daniel Dezeuze
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • Tel. 633.5602	Until May 14, Gérard Deuquet, "Paintings Bursting Out of Their Frames" May 17-June 4, Elba Soto, pastels

PARIS (CONT'D) ☎ 33 (1)

BAUDOIN LEBON 36, Rue des Archives • Tel. 272.09.10	Until May 28, Keiji Nematsu, environment
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • Tel. 222.12.59	Through May, Miró, recent sculpture and gouaches
GALERIE MAEGHT 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • Tel. 563.13.19	Until May 20, Jim Dine, monotypes and etchings/May 26-July 13, Valerio Adami, paintings. May 5-May 20, A tribute to Miró, paintings, sculpture and etchings
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • Tel. 222.77.57	Group Show: Agam, Albers, Arp, Baertling, Claisse, Cruz-Diez, Gerstner, Gorin, Herbin, Lohse, Luque, Vasarely
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • Tel. 354.78.41	Until June 11, Granet; sculpture
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.91.10	May 3-May 28, Damian, paintings from the 60's
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • Tel. 705.08.46	Until May 14, Gérard Koch, sculpture The gallery is open Tues-Fri. 3 p.m. to 8.30 p.m, Sat. 10-12 a.m. & 3-8.30 p.m.
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 272.14.10	May 5-June 2, Jennifer Bartlett, paintings
TEXBRAUN 12, Rue Mazarine • Tel. 633.47.84/633.14.57	A permanent collection of XIXth Century French photography
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • Tel. 550.40.32	Until May 14, "Eros et Peinture," Pietro Lista
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 634.15.01	Arman, César, Villeglé, Mimlague, Schloffer, Carrière, Masson, Picasso, Matisse, Brauner, Léger, Schneider, Mathieu, Germaine Richer, Kienholz, Wols
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Csaky, Bieges, Rodin, Dunand, Ruhlman, Franck, Cheret. Fine furniture of the Thirties.
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 272.35.47	Until Apr. 30, Paul Strand, Mexican photographs

LES SABLES D'OLONNE ☎ 33 (51)

MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • Tel. 32.01.16	Bernard Pagès, sculpture, recent work

ST. PAUL DE VENCE ☎ 33 (93)

FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.81.63	May 7-June 20, Louis Cane, paintings
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.96.92	Through May, Blais, Blanchard, Boisrond

TOULON ☎ 33 (94)

MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • Tel. 93.15.54	Until June 30, "Carte Blanche à Francois Bazzoli" Serge Malliet, Georges Ruquet, Arnaud Letour, Eric De Leusse, Judith Bartolani

TOULOUSE ☎ 33 (61)

AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • Tel. 25.37.17	Patrick Reynaud

GERMANY

BERLIN ☎ 49 (30)

GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • Tel. 883.53.12	Until May 10, Sylvia Lark and Emmi Whitehorse, mixed media As of May 13, Kevin Red Star, Crow Indian portraits
GALERIE LIETZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • Tel. 881.26.95	Until May 15, Hermann Schenkel, "Erotic Drawings" May 21-June 25, Robert Mapplethorpe, recent photos
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • Tel. 882.77.16	May 4-June 11, William Copley, "Post-Raphaelite Paintings (1966-1981)"/Catalogue $5, Poster $3
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • Tel. 261.70.91	Until May 21, Shang Hutter, sculpture May 28-June 19, G.L. Gabriel and Thomas Lange, paintings
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • Tel. 881.8280	Through May, Ella Bergmann-Michel, drawings 1917-1933

BONN ☎ 49 (228)

GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists. Russian Avant Garde. International classics. Osvaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

COLOGNE ☎ 49 (221)

ERVEN'S ART SERVICE Machaerstrasse 1 • Te.12.34.36	We hang the shows
GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Robert Delaunay
GALERIE KARSTEN GREVE Wallrafplatz 3 • Tel. 21.39.21	Through May, Fontana, plastics
GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • Tel. 21.51.50	Young French Artists: Boisrond, Blais, Blanchard, Combas, Di Rosa
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Lindenstrasse 20 • Tel. 24.67.59	The Gallery is closed during the month of May
RUDOLF KICKEN Albertusstrasse 47/49 • Tel. 21.02.34
KÖLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	Artothek Artists, John Cage
PAUL MAENZ Schaafenstrasse 25 • Tel. 21. 81.02	Until May 10, Walter Dahn, Jiri George Dokoupil As of May 12, Peter Bömmels
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenenstrasse 2 • Tel. 23.46.84	Eduard Bargheer
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 16 • Tel. 21.20.64	Alf Lechner
GALERIE ROLF RICKE Volksgartenstrasse 10 • Tel. 31.57.17	Until mid-May, Martin Disler As of mid-May, Group Show, Büttner, Kiecol, Münch, Oelen, Tannert, Thomas
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • Tel. 24.24.00	Until May 10, Jules Olitski, paintings and sculpture As of May 12, Milton Avery, paintings; Alexander Archipenko, Sculpture; Jules Olitski, sculpture
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse. 24/28 • Tel. 21.06.61	Höckelmann, sculpture
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • Tel. 23.58.37/8	Franz Hitzler, paintings and works on paper

DUSSELDORF ☎ 49 (211)

KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 685.908	Jannis Kounellis
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5. • Tel. 32.77.70
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • Tel. 36.59.72	Accrochage
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • Tel. 327.023	Helmut Middendorf, paintings

HAMBURG ☎ 49 (40)

ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Until May 14, Werner Büttner, new paintings (Catalogue available) May 19-June 18, Bernd Koberling, recent paintings
THOMAS LEVY GALERIE Tesdorpfstrasse 18 • Tel. 45.91.88.	Through May, Groll, paintings
GALERIE MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • Tel. 46.46.62.	May-mid-June, Helmut Middendorf, paintings, works on paper

MUNICH ☎ 49 (89)

GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.64.45	May-June, Anne Recker, paintings and drawings
GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	Until May 28, black and white drawings: Anzinger, Barfuss, Disler, Dokoupil, Wachweger May 26-June 25, Gerard Kever
TANIT Maximilianstr. 36 • Tel. 29.22.33	Through May, black and white in Italy: Castellani, Fontana, Manzoni, Paolini, Pistoletto, Vedova, Veronesi

NUREMBERG ☎ 49 (911)

GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde

	STUTTGART	☎ 49 (711)
	MAX-ULRICH HETZLER GmbH Schwabstrasse 2 • Tel. 62.15.38	Through May-June, Meusser, sculpture Through May-June, Donald Judd, objects and graphics
GREECE	ATHENS 30 (1)
	KAREN & JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • Tel. 723.5657
HOLLAND	AMSTERDAM	☎ 31 (20)
	GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	Appel, Brands, Constant, Corneille, Cottavoz, Henning-Pedersen, Lindstrom, Saura, Sonderlinque and others.
	STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • Tel. 73.21.66	Until May 30, Sandro Chia, paintings/Until June 20, Kurt Naef, Toys/Until June 20, Martin Disler, drawings
	EINDHOVEN	☎ 31 (40)
	STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 44.85.55	May 13-June 19, Sculpture Exhibition: Andre, Baselitz, Chamberlain, Fabro, Flanagan, Long, Lüpertz, Nauman, Penck and Rückriem
ITALY	BARI	☎ 39 (80)
	MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicoló dell' Arca 19 • Tel. 21.01.45	Enzo Esposito
	BOLOGNA	☎ 39 (51)
	DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • Tel. 27.52.26.	Through May, Giosetta Fioroni 1963-1983, paintings
	GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • Tel. 27.07.60	Through May, Philippe Garrel, paintings
	STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • Tel. 26.64.97.	May 15-June 15, Pinuccia Bernardo, paintings
	BRESCIA	☎ 39 (30)
	MASSIMO MININI Via Apollonio, 68 • Tel. 56.275	Through May, Giuseppe Salvatori, recent paintings
	FLORENCE	☎ 39 (55)
	GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • Tel. 28.40.90.	By appt American Contemporary Art, Acconci, Baldessari, Bochner, Burden, Fox Graham, Huebler, Kaprow, Kosuth, Levine, Oppenheim, Ripps, Rockburne
	MILAN	☎ 39 (2)
	SALVATORE ALA Via Mameli 3 • Tel. 716-500	Jannis Kounellis
	ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • Tel. 79.55.73	David Benati, Giuseppe Maraniello
	ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • Tel. 861.190	"Poetry of the Imagination through Action and Seduction: The Opportunity of an Encounter"
	STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria 10 • Tel. 837.6368	Sigmar Polke
	DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • Tel. 874.237	Enzo Preda "Three Arabian Rooms"
	DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384	Pierluigi Pizzi, costumes and theatrical sets
	STUDIO CARLO GROSSETTI Via dei Piatti 9 • Tel. 837.5594	"Mario Nigro" by Mario Nigro
	FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • Tel. 650.087	Robert Barry
	STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • Tel. 225.543	Sam Francis
	GALLERIA DEL MILIONE Via Bigli 21 • Tel. 780.879	Through May, The gallery is closed for renovation
	MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • Tel. 86.71.30	Bertrand Lavier, recent sculpture
	GALLERIA SENO Via Ciovasso 11 • Tel. 805.80.64

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

	MILAN (CONT'D)	☎ 39 (2)
	GALLERIA STENDHAL Via Santo Spirito 10 • Tel. 781.825	"Sculpture in the Urban Space": Consagra, Karavan, Legnaghi, Nivola and others
	FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • Tel. 805.0434	Bill Woodrow
	MODENA 39(59)
	GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.
	NAPLES	☎ 39 (81)
	LUCIO AMELIO Piazza dei Martiri 58. • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521
	ROME	☎ 39 (6)
	GALLERIA ANNA D'ASCANIO Via del Babuino, 29 • Tel. 678.5920	Balla, Broodthaers, Burri, Carrá, Cucchi, Guttuso, Manzu, Melotti, Turcato
	GIULIANA DE CRESCENZO Via del Paradiso 41 • Tel. 656.9846
	UGO FERRANTI Via di Tor Millina 26 • Tel. 654.2146	Until mid-May, Duane Michals As of May 18, Richard Tuttle
	L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	Until May 10, Burri, Fontana, Capogrossi, Colla
	GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • Tel. 679.6114	May 3-25, George Platt Lynes, photographs May 27-June 18, José d'Apice, works on paper
	PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • Tel. 460.309	Alberto Moretti
	SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	Futurism Dada Surrealism.
	TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • Tel. 679.34.88	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso, Schmettau, Vangi.
	TURIN	☎ 39 (11)
	GIORGIO PERSANO Via dei Mille 29 • Tel. 835.527	Renato Maestri, sculpture
	TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • Tel. 779.304	Richard Long
	CHRISTIAN STEIN Piazza San Carlo 206 • Tel. 535.574	Giuseppe Penone
	VERONA	☎ 39 (45)
	STUDIO LA CITTA Via Samaritana 10 • Tel. 25.728	Mario Schifano, recent paintings
JAPAN	TOKYO	☎ 170
	RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1383 Sunshine-City. Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	Contemporary Japanese and Chinese (Main land) original prints. Catalogue upon request. U.S. $10 sea mail postage included
SPAIN	BARCELONA	☎ 34 (3)
	GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • Tel. 215.63 65	Until May 14, Siegfried Anzinger and Hubert Schmalix As of May 18, Patricio Velez
	SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Alfaro, Arranz Bravo, Bartlozzi, Clavé, Fenosa, Gudiol, Ibarz, Llové, Miró, Picasso, Riera Rojas, Tharrats, Torralba, Vila-casas, Viladecans, Villella
	GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • Tel. 310.42.45	Miró, recent sculpture
	LA CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07	Amadeo Modigliani
	GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • Tel. 216.02.84	Joan Miró, 90th Birthday
	IBIZA BALEARES	☎ 34 (71)
	GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Segui, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush.

MADRID ☎ 34 (1)

OBRA CULTURAL "LA CAJA" (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • Tel. 419.0440	An Anthology by Aureliano de Beruete
GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until May 14, Fernando Saez, As of May 15, Agueda de la Pisa
EGAM Villanueva 29 • Tel. 435 3161	Guillermo Chamorro
GALERIA HEINRICH EHRHARDT Barquillo 44 • Tel. 419.52.86	Per Kirkeby
GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • Tel. 435.84.42	Until May 14, Paluzzi As of May 17, Zapata
GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • Tel. 410.26.51	Until May 15 Gustavo Torner As of May 16, "15th Birthday of the Gallery"
TORCULO GRAPHICS & BOOKS Claudio Coello 17 • Tel. 275 86 86	Until May 15, Salvador Victoria, "Superposiciones" As of May 16, Manuel Alcorlo, Etchings
GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • Tel. 435 8025	Ian Brackwell
GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • Tel. 231 54 10	Japanese Contemporary Painters

SEVILLE ☎ 34 (54)

GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Calle Canalejaz, 10 • Tel. 22.85.01	Diaz Padilla

SWEDEN

MALMO ☎ 46 (40)

GALERIE NORDENHAKE Ostra Ronneholmsvagen 5 • Tel. 23.15.33	As of May 6, Elan Uglow, paintings

STOCKHOLM ☎ 46 (8)

KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS Nybrogatan 69 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65	Lars Erik Falk, paintings and reliefs 1950-1956

SWITZERLAND

BASEL ☎ 41 (61)

KUNSTHALLE BASEL Steinenberg 7 • Tel. 23.48.33	Miriam Cahn "Das Klassische Lieben" Georges Platt Lynes, photographs (1907-1955)
GALERIE BEYELER Baumleingasse 9 • Tel. 23.54.12	May 8-June 19, Philip Guston/Balthasar Burhard, photographic work
FELIX HANDSCHIN GALERIE Petersgraben 18 • Tel. 25.59.85	Through Apr., Young German Artists

BERNE ☎ 41 (31)

MARBACH Wasserwerkgasse 37 • Tel. 22.42.05/22.38.25	Contemporary art. By appointment only.

GENEVA ☎ 41 (22)

GALERIE BONNIER 4, Rue Saint-Laurent • Tel. 35.87.35	Accrochage of contemporary artists: Arman, Fautrier, Pincemin, Tinguely
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • Tel. 26.88.03	Until May 30, Rebecca Horn, installations, films, video Former Palais des Expositions
GALERIE ERIC FRANCK 15 Route de Florissant • Tel. 47.08.09	May 1-June 15, Rebecca Horn, installations
CLAUDE GIVAUDAN 3, Rue du Soleil-Levant • Tel. 29.91.61.	XXth Century drawings and prints Paper Tablecloths, collected by Georges Hugnet
MARIE-LOUISE JEANNERET 59, Avenue de Champel • Tel. 46.34.57
DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15, Chemin de Sierne • 84.15.93	Impressionist and 20th Century masters. By appointment only
WEBER 13, Rue de Monthoux • Tel. 32.64.50	Peter Takal, drawings and watercolors

VOL 7 1 ISS 5 MY 1983 UMI

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART Restelbergstrasse 97 • Tel. 362.62.31	Impressionists & 20th Century Masters—by appointment only.
GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER Utoquai 29 • Tel. 910.43.62	Cucchi, Clemente, Chia, Schnabel, Salle, Basquiat, Salome, Warhol, Tinguely
KONRAD FISCHER Ackerstrasse 44 • Tel. 42.71.61
GIMPEL • HANOVER • EMMERICH Tödistrasse 40 • Tel. 202.03.00	May 7-June 4, David Hockney
M. KNOEDLER Kirchgasse 24 • Tel. 69 35 00	Until June 4, abstract painting
GALERIE MAEGHT Predigerplatz 10-12 • Tel. 251.11.20	Tapiès, Riopelle, paintings
MAURER Münstergasse 14-18 • Tel. 47.85.00	Stefan Wewerka, paintings and objects
PETER NOSER St. Jakobstrasse 11 • Tel. 242.55.16	Anna Maria Santolini Tomiyo Sasaki Arthur Woods
GALERIE SCHLEGL Minervastrasse 119 • Tel. 251.4963	American and French "Abstraction Geometric," Albers, Ad Reinhardt, Morellet, Herbin and others
ANNEMARIE VERNA Mühlegasse 27 • Tel. 252.27.70	Contemporary art. By appointment only
ANNEMARIE VERNA Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • Tel. 44.27.15	May-June Donald Judd, sculpture
JAMILEH WEBER Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89	Alex Sadkowsky
WORK GALLERY Frohalpstr. 65 • Tel. 482.39.58	International photography
RENÉE ZIEGLER Rämistrasse 34 • Tel. 251.23.22	Through Apr., Daniel Spoerri, new objects I + II May 19-24, the gallery will be at the Chicago Art Fair

VENEZUELA

CARACAS ☎ 58 (2)

GALERIA MINOTAURO
Calle Madrid-Entre Mucuchies y Monterrey • Tel. 92 27 40

ART IN AMERICA IS AVAILABLE IN EUROPE AT:

Amsterdam

Athenaeum Boekhandel, B.V.
Spui 14-16

Art Something Co.
Herengracht 259

Robert Premsela Boekhandel
van Baerlestrasse 78

Antwerp

Boekhandel Ban Den Bosch
St. Jacobsmarkt 1-B

Basel

Stampa
Saplenberg 2

Berlin

Galerie 2000
Knesebeckstrasse 56

Bern

Hans Huber
Länggasstrasse 76 und
Marktgasse 9

Brussels

Librairie Post Scriptum
Rue des Eperonniers, 37

Cologne

Walther Konig
Breite Str. 93

Eslangen

Buchhandling Redmann
Bohlemplatz 6/12

Florence

Centro Di
l/r Piazza de' Mozzi

Geneva

Ecart
16 rue d'Italie

Hamburg

Sautter & Lackmann
Klosterstern 8

London

Arts Bibliographic
37 Great Russell Street

Arts Council Shop
8 Long Acre
Covent Gardens, WC2E 9LG

Lyon

L'Ollave
58, rue Tramassac

Madrid

Torculo Graphics & Books
Claudio Coello 17

Milan

PAC - La Libreria
via Palestro 14

Idea Books Bookstore
Via Cappuccio, 21

Paris

Artcurial
9 Avenue Matignon

Flammarion 4
Librairie du Centre Georges Pompidou
Plateau Beaubourg

Galerie Jean Fournier
44 rue Quincampoix

Librairie La Hune
170, boulevard Saint-Germain

Librairie Musee d'Art Moderne
de la Ville de Paris
11, Avenue du President Wilson

Rome

Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna
Viale delle Belle Arti, 131

Strasbourg

Librairie Les Idees et Les Arts
Place Brant

The Hague

Artline
Toussaintkade 67-68

Toulouse

Ombres Blanches
Librairie/48
rue Gambetta

Turin

OOLP
Via Principe Amedeo

Vienna

Buchhandlung am Hafnersteig
Hafnersteig 10

Anne Harris

afi Representation:
Arts Focus, Inc.
401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301
(304) 345-9059

54" high

MARTIN
KRELOFF

Mothers

Barbara Gillman Gallery

270 N.E. 39th Street
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

3886 Biscayne Blvd.
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

theOctober
GALLERY

Specializing in Contemporary Works on Paper by
American, Canadian and European Artists

1226 Spring St., St. Helena, CA 94574 707 963-7501

Henry Doren

'Biach'
W Galleries

Cleveland Plaza suite 108
123 North Union Ave.
Cranford, New Jersey 07016
(201) 272-7070

JULIO SILVA

Zoological Indecisiveness

26 April-21 May

Barbara Walter Gallery, Inc.
1015 Madison Avenue, N.Y.C. 10021

DYANSEN 57

APRIL 11–MAY 1

11 E 57 ST
2ND FLOOR
NYC/212
489-7830

"MICHELLE"
SERIGRAPH EDITION OF 90
36 x 31½

PATRICK NAGEL

PAINTINGS ON CANVAS
GRAPHIC EDITIONS

MAX NEUHAUS

DRAWINGS MAY 11 TO 21

INSTALLATION AT THE
WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
1983 BIENNIAL EXHIBITION
MARCH 24 TO MAY 22

MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

HANS BURKHARDT

RECENT WORK

EXTENDED THROUGH MAY

COLOR CATALOGUE $15

JACK RUTBERG FINE ARTS, INC.
357 N. La Brea Avenue, Los Angeles, California 90036 (213) 938-5222

VOL
71
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Rosa Esman
Gallery
29 West 57
212
421 9490

Rachel Adler
Gallery
58 East 79
212
831 3824

РУССКАЯ РЕВОЛЮЦИЯ
В ИСКУССТВЕ 5
The Russian Revolution in Art 5

Opening on May 10
Photographs, books, drawings, posters and graphic design by Klutsis, Lissitsky, Malevich, Popova,
Rodchenko, etc.

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone 571-1312, 2471

100 page catalog upon request— $8.00

VICTOR WILLING
Paintings

HENRY MOORE
New Sculpture & Drawings

BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY
24 West 57 Street, New York, NY 10019. Tel 212 581-8346

new work

BASQUIAT FAHLSTROM
JAUDON
MANGOLD
MARISOL
RYMAN
SEGAL WESSELMANN

thru May Sidney Janis 110 W. 57 St.

TATISTCHEFF

JAMES CHILDS

FIRST EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS

MAY 3-31

TATISTCHEFF
38 EAST 57 • NEW YORK • 888-1599

NIGEL HALL
New Sculpture
26 April-1 June

Robert Elkon
1063 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10028
Tel: 212/535.3940

BIALA
New Paintings
Through May GRUENEBAUM GALLERY
38 E 57
New York, New York 10022
212-838-8245

CARROLL CLOAR
RECENT PAINTINGS
May 17-June 4

FORUM GALLERY
1018 Madison Avenue, New York 10021

Index of Advertisers

Adler Gallery, Pam ... 192
A.I.R. Gallery ... 208
Akira Ikeda Gallery ... 180
Alexander, Brooke ... 92
Allport Associates ... 194
Alpha Gallery ... 28
Ars Libri ... 208
Artexpo, Texas ... 208
Art Institute of Boston ... 114
Art Student League ... 182
Arts Focus ... 160

Basel Art Fair ... 210
Batman Gallery, Donald ... 199
Berggruen Gallery, John ... 60, 95
Biach Gallery ... 221
Blum/Helman ... Cov. IV
Bonlow Gallery ... 196
Boone Gallery, Mary ... 90
Borgenicht Gallery ... 112
Bornstein Gallery, Karl ... 93
Boston Museum School Program ... 204
Boyd Gallery, Roy ... 198
Branchville SoHo Gallery ... 48
Brentwood Gallery ... 199
Brook House ... 100
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur ... 207

Carone Gallery ... 198
Castelli-Feigen-Corcoran ... 101
Castelli Gallery ... 90, 102
Castelli Graphics ... 100
Chicago Int'l Art Exposition ... 103
Christian Gallery, Judith ... 115
Christie's ... 29, 31
Cicero, Jan ... 110
Clark Gallery ... 206
Clark Gallery, Garth ... 196
Cooper Gallery, Paula ... 111
Cornell Galleries ... 208
Cowles Gallery, Charles ... 112
Crown Point Press ... 111

Daltaro Studio ... 116
Davidson Gallery, Maxwell ... 104
DBR ... 206
Deicas Gallery ... 197
Delahunty Gallery ... 91
Del Re Gallery, Marisa ... 4
De Nagy, Tibor ... 192
Deson Gallery, Marianne ... 114
Deutsch Gallery, Sid ... 102
Dintenfass, Terry ... 63
Dominion Gallery ... 197
Dyansen Gallery ... 221

Eason Gallery ... 192
Editions Ltd. Gallery ... 206
Editions Publisol ... 207
Elkon Gallery, Robert ... 222
Emmerich Gallery, Andre ... 14
Ericson Gallery ... 199
Esman Gallery, Rosa ... 222
Exhibit A ... 30

Fenton Hochman ... 60
Findlay Jr., Inc., David ... 59
Fischbach Gallery ... 100
49th Parallel ... 93
Forum Gallery ... 222
Fourcade, Xavier ... 44
14 Sculptors ... 209
Frumkin Gallery, Allan ... 110
Frumkin-Struve Gallery ... 108
Fuller Goldeen ... 114

Galeria San Jeronimo ... 208
Galeria San Juan ... 208
Galerie Claude Bernard ... 18
Galerie Maeght ... 2
Galerie St. Etienne ... 180
Galerie Michael Werner ... 197
Galeries d'Art International ... 117
Galleri Bellman ... 56
Gallery Paule Anglim ... 91
Gallery One, Inc. ... 200
Gates Gallery, Dorry ... 114
G.E. Fine Arts ... 52
Getler/Pall ... 94, 114
Gillman Gallery, Barbara ... 221
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara ... 92
Gold Gallery, Fay ... 102
Goldstrom, Foster ... 98, 99
Gray Gallery, Richard ... 106
Great Northern Brokerage ... 201
Grimaldis Gallery, C. ... 195
Gruenebaum Gallery ... 222
Grumbacher, Inc. ... Cov. III
Haber, Suellen ... 64
Haber-Theodore ... 92
Hadler-Rodriguez ... 90
Hamilton Gallery ... 56
Hammer Gallery ... 97
Harcus Gallery ... 90
Harris, Anne ... 221
Heidenberg, Lillian ... 199
Hindman Auctioneers, Leslie ... 56
Hirschl & Adler Modern ... 63
Hobart School of Welding ... 206
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy ... 104
Hokin Gallery ... 109
Hokin/Kaufman Gallery ... 109
Horan Gallery, Vivian ... 105
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine ... 50
Houston Fine Art Press ... 96
Hutchinson Gallery, Max ... 221
Iannetti Gallery, Pasquale ... 201
Impressions Gallery ... 62
Incorporated Gallery ... 89
Ingber Gallery ... 194
International Art Exposition, Inc. ... 208
International Transpersonal Assoc. ... 193
Iolas Jackson ... 192
Irving Gallery ... 44
Ivory/Kimpton ... 110
Jacobson, Bernard ... 222
Janis Gallery, Sidney ... 222
Janus Gallery, CA ... 26
Janus Gallery, NM ... 96
Jerry's Artarama ... 207
Kind Gallery, Phyllis ... 113
Klein Gallery ... 115
Knoedler & Co., M. ... 46
Knowlton Gallery, Monique ... 108
Krakow Gallery, Barbara ... 59
Kraushaar Galleries ... 194
Lakeside Studios ... 108
L.A. Louver ... 28
L.A. Packing & Crating ... 208
Leavin Gallery, Margo ... 101
Lee Video Gallery, Jane ... 208
Le Village #1 Queen Fabiola ... 186
Lewin Galleries, B. ... 201
Locks Gallery, Marian ... 94
Londoner, Clara ... 180
Love Galleries, R.H. ... 188
Marlborough Gallery ... 16
Maroney & Co., James ... 12
Mary-Anne Martin Fine Art ... 100
Mathes Gallery, Barbara ... 5
Matisse Gallery, Pierre ... 6, 7
Matthews Classic Bronze ... 183
Maupintour ... 184
Midtown Galleries ... 209
Miller Gallery, Robert ... 30
Miller Gallery, Virginia ... 96
Milliken Inc., Alexander ... Cov. II
Mixographia Gallery ... 185
Modern Master Tapestries ... 45
Molasky, Steven ... 208
Morris Gallery, Donald ... 106, 113
Moss, Tobey C. ... 200
Multiples/Marian Goodman ... 111
McKee Gallery, David ... 101
Nahan Art Galleries ... 181
N.A.M.E. Gallery ... 112
Nielson Gallery ... 102
Now & Then ... 209
October Gallery ... 221
Odyssia Gallery ... 24
Olsen Gallery ... 92
Oscarsson-Hood ... 62
Ovsey Gallery, Neil C. ... 195
PA Academy of Fine Arts ... 204
Pace Editions ... 1
Pace Gallery ... 10
Pantheon Books ... 182
Parsons, Betty ... 198
Perimeter Gallery ... 206
Perlman, Miriam ... 202
Petersburg Press ... 9
Ponova Art Gallery ... 195
Poole, Jonathan/Richard Willis ... 196
Post House Steak & Chops ... 207
Printworld Directory ... 202
Protetch Gallery, Max ... 198, 202
Rachofsky, Morton ... 209
Ramsey, Theodore ... 57
Ranch ... 58
Renault Recherches ... 202
Ricco-Johnson ... 94
Richebourg/McCoy ... 195
Rosenberg Gallery, Alex ... 95
Rosenfield Gallery, Betsy ... 105
Rosenthal, Dorothy ... 61
Rutberg Gallery, Jack ... 221
Salander-O'Reilly Galleries ... 22
Sawyer Gallery, William ... 46
School of Visual Arts ... 184
Sculpture Placement ... 184
Segal Gallery, Thomas ... 101
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne ... 116
Shafrazi, Tony ... 182
Shiva, Inc. ... 178
Siegel Contemporary Art ... 95
SL Art Gallery ... 209
SoHo 20 ... 201
Sotheby Parke Bernet ... 25, 27
Sperone Westwater ... 61
Staempfli Gallery ... 47
Stoler Gallery, Bette ... 8
Stoller & Co., John ... 109
Studio 47 ... 181
Stux Gallery ... 45
Styria Studio ... 23
Sutton Gallery ... 52
Taghinia-Milani, Leila ... 94
Tasende Gallery ... 107
Tatistcheff & Co., Peter ... 222
Taylor Art, Carol ... 194
Thorp Gallery, Edward ... 96
Transworld Art ... 95
12 Duke Street ... 196
Twining Gallery ... 200
Vanderwoude Tananbaum ... 209
Von Ringelheim, Paul ... 190
Vorpal Gallery ... 64
Waddington Graphics ... 20, 197
Wagman Gallery, Barbara ... 180
Walter Gallery, Barbara ... 221
Warner Fine Arts, Kathleen ... 209
Wave Hill ... 97
Weinberg Gallery, Daniel ... 32
White & Assoc., Roberto ... 22
White Gallery, Martha ... 182
Winsor & Newton ... 176
Yares Gallery ... 200
Yoseido Gallery ... 222
Young/Hoffman ... 112
Zabriskie Gallery ... 24
Ziller & Assoc. ... 208
Zolla Lieberman ... 113
Zwirner & Sproveri ... 11

ART IN FRANCE
Galerie Alain Blondel ... 87
Galerie Farideh Cadot ... 75
Castelli Graphics ... 70
Galerie Caroline Corre ... 81
Chantal Crousel ... 68
Galerie Eric Fabre ... 82, 83
Musee Fabre ... 80
Galerie Karl Flinker ... 67
Galerie de France ... 69, 71
Galerie Marwan Hoss ... 73
Galerie Lahumiere ... 84
Yvon Lambert ... 70
Galerie Jean-Pierre Lavignes ... 86
Baudoin Lebon ... 66
Galeria Maeght ... 77
Galerie Adrien Maeght ... 77
Galerie Maeght, S.A. ... 72
Maeght Editeur ... 77
1900-2000 ... 78
Denise Rene ... 88
Sonnabend ... 74, 68
Galerie Stadler ... 79
Daniel Templon ... 74, 76
Galerie Vallois ... 85

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

Artworld

Rothko Foundation Gears Up

The Mark Rothko Foundation, established by the artist in 1969 and reconstituted in 1976 at the close of a prolonged legal battle between the artist's heirs and the executors of his estate, recently inaugurated a new public activities program with two small loan shows from its holdings of some 1,000 works by the late artist. A group of seven paintings from the '60s goes to the Walker Art Center for ca. two years and another group of nine, all from 1949, to the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art. Larger projects are planned for 1984–85. In conjunction with the American Federation of Arts, the foundation is mounting a show of 85 works on paper, to open at the National Gallery in spring '84 and travel to seven other U.S. museums. In '85, a Rothko retrospective based on foundation holdings, organized by London's Tate Gallery, will tour several European cities.

The foundation has also made a grant to New York's Artists Space to mount three solo shows for the '83–84 season of works by artists who have been pursuing innovative directions for 20 years or more, and who are not currently represented by a New York gallery. This award reflects Rothko's own concern, during his lifetime, for supporting mature artists. Artists will be selected by Artists Space director Linda Shearer and board members Donald Droll and Gary Burnley. If successful, this pilot series may be extended and broadened to include other institutions. The foundation board of directors is currently comprised of Donald Blinken (president), Dorothy C. Miller, Gifford Phillips, David Prager, Emily Pulitzer, Irving Sandler and William Scharf.

John Hay Whitney Bequest

The estate of John Hay Whitney recently announced gifts to three institutions with which the late collector, publisher and former U.S. ambassador was long associated. Eight works each go to the National Gallery, where Whitney was a trustee from 1961 to '79, and to the Museum of Modern Art, on whose board he served since the year after its founding in 1929; six were given to the Yale University Art Gallery (Whitney was a Yale graduate and trustee).

The Yale gift, currently on view in the university's gallery, consists of paintings by Degas, Gauguin, Pissarro, Picasso and Eakins valued by the estate at $5 million. The Museum of Modern Art, to which, during his lifetime, Whitney gave Matisse's celebrated Goldfish and Sculpture and Hopper's Night Windows, has inherited Neo-Impressionist works by Seurat and Theo Van Rysselbergh, a large, decorative Vuillard, two Picassos, an early Utrillo, a classic Balthus and a Rufino Tamayo. The National Gallery's bequest—two Fauve-period Derains, plus one painting each by Rousseau, Bellows, Eakins, Whistler, Hopper—is accompanied by a $2-million cash gift earmarked for new acquisitions.

The works from all three museums will be included in the National Gallery's forthcoming [May 29–Oct. 7] exhibition of 73 paintings from Whitney's private holdings. They have been selected by John Rewald, who was curator of the Whitney collection.

Paul Mellon Gifts

Paul Mellon has bestowed major gifts from his private collection upon the National Gallery, Yale University Art Gallery and the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Son of the founder of the National Gallery and currently the NGA's board chairman and principal benefactor, Mellon has presented that institution with 50 paintings, 24 sculptures and 19 prints and drawings, many of which have been on loan for some time.

Among works going to the National Gallery are Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings—six Monets, ten Boudins, two works each by Gauguin and Cassatt, plus single works by van Gogh, Renoir, Bazille, Vuillard and Seurat; the gift also includes ten 17th- and 18th-century English paintings, and a large group of 20th-century works by George Bellows, Klee, Miró, Jacques Villon, Maillol, Léger, Calder, Moore and others.

Mellon is a Yale graduate (1929) and supporter whose donation of thousands of art objects, books and generous funds provided the basis for the university's Center for British Art, which opened in '77. His recent gift to the Yale Art Gallery consists of 16 French paintings, most of which have been on loan to Yale since '79: three Boudins, three Monets, two Pissarros, two Vuillards, and works by Delacroix, Cézanne, Degas, Braque, Marquet and Bonnard.

The Virginia Museum, of which Mellon is a former trustee and remains a major financial supporter, has received 58 paintings, most of them 19th- and 20th-century French and on loan since '79. Among them are six Boudins, two works each by van Gogh, Renoir, Picasso, Braque and Degas, and single works by Géricault, Delacroix, Courbet, Cézanne, Monet, Gauguin, Derain and Matisse.

Guggenheims Announced

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has announced its 1983 fellowships to residents of the U.S. and Canada. A total of $5.54 million has been awarded in grants averaging just under $19,000. The following are recipients of fellowships in the visual arts and related fields:

Painting Lennart Anderson, Richard Haas, Marvin Harden, James Hayward, George Rodart, Sean Scully, Ted Stamm, Neil Welliver. Sculpture Stephen De Staebler, Mary Frank, Herbert George, Robert Grosvenor, Michael Heizer, Gillian Jagger, Judy Pfaff, John Roloff, Ursula von Rydingsvard, Christopher Wilmarth, Stephen Wood. Photography Kenneth Baird, Joe Deal, John Harding, Bruce Horowitz, Terry Husebye, Jeff McAdory, Cindy Sherman, Larry Sultan. Film Chris Beaver, Kenneth Burns, John Cohen, David Grubin, Judy Irving. Video Daniel Reeves, Tomiyo Sasaki. History of art/architecture/photography Norbert Baer, Charles Cohen, Draper Hill, Susan Huntington, Fred Licht, Rose-Carol Washton Long, James Lord, William Pressly, Angelica Rudenstine, Howard Saalman, Deirdre Boyle, Kennedy Fraser, Alan Trachtenberg, Anne Tucker.

Mitchell Prizes

The Mitchell Foundation has announced its annual art history awards for books in English. The $10,000 prize goes to Hugh Honour and John Fleming, co-authors of The Visual Arts: A History (Prentice Hall), a survey of world art from prehistory to the present. A $2,000 prize for "most promising first book," goes to Keith Christiansen, associate curator of European painting at the Metropolitan Museum, for Gentile da Fabriano (Cornell University Press).

Obituaries

Richard Stankiewicz, 60, whose welded constructions of found metal objects shocked viewers when they were first shown in New York in 1953. Stankiewicz assembled such cast-off oddments as rusting chains, gears, pipes, bed springs, drums and bolts into witty, anthropomorphic compositions. It took years for these works to find serious critical acceptance (a selection was included in the Museum of Modern Art's 1961 "Assemblage" show), by which time the artist had begun eliminating overt figurative references and adopting a more geometric, abstract vocabulary. At the end of the '60s, Stankiewicz abandoned scrap for manufactured "abstract" steel elements—I- and T-beams and rectangular plates. Stankiewicz was the subject of a traveling retrospective organized in 1979 by the University Art Gallery, SUNY, Albany. He was preparing a show of new work for Zabriskie Gallery in Paris just before he died.

Richard Stankiewicz, 1980.

Lisette Model, 76, Viennese-born photographer who emigrated to the U.S. in 1938, having already achieved a reputation in Europe for her scathing photos of tourists on the French Riviera. Here, she worked for the newspaper P.M. and for Harper's Bazaar, Look and U.S. Camera. Documentary essays were her specialty, marginal elements of society her preferred subjects. She taught at New York's New School from 1951 until '82. Among her students were Diane Arbus, Larry Fink and Eva Rubinstein.

Anthony Blunt, 75, one of England's leading art historians, whose reputation was severely damaged in 1979 by the disclosure of his role as an informer for the Soviet Union from the '30s through the '50s. A preeminent authority on Poussin, Blunt was the author of multiple-volume catalogues on that artist's drawings and paintings. Outstanding among his many other publications are Art and Architecture in France, 1500–1700, Baroque and Rococo Architecture in Naples and Borromini. Under Blunt's directorship (1947–74), London's Courtauld Institute of Art developed into one of the world's foremost centers for scholarship in art history. From 1945 to '78, Blunt was Surveyor of the Pictures of King George VI and, subsequently, of Queen Elizabeth II, and was general editor of the Royal Collection catalogue. He was knighted in '56 for his contributions to art history and served as Slade Professor of Fine Art at Oxford (1962–63) and at Cambridge (1965–66). After his dealings with the USSR were revealed, Blunt was stripped of his knighthood and forced to resign as a member of the British Academy.

Arthur Cady, 63, realist painter of light-drenched, unpeopled summer scenes. Cady's minutely detailed rural views are both virtuosic demonstrations of technique and evocative of small-town serenity. His last show, of large-scale acrylics on paper, was at New York's Fischbach Gallery in January (See A.i.A., Apr. '83).

"Umbria" for printmaking.
"Esportazione" for watercolor.
"Roma" for drawing, charcoal, pastels.
100% RAG.
100% HANDMADE.
100% FABRIANO.

You are looking at the world's finest art papers. Still made today exactly as they were for Michelangelo and Dürer. By hand, one sheet at a time.

These are the incomparable papers of Fabriano. A product of 700 years of pride, tradition, and craftsmanship.

Today, the Fabriano mill in Italy is the only major mill in the world still producing exquisite handmade papers. And Grumbacher is proud to offer these papers in North America.

Fabriano handmade papers are distinguished by four deckled edges, 100% rag content, exceptional strength, and a richly textured surface that enhances the artist's spontaneity. And their neutral pH assures they will stand the test of time without yellowing.

Grumbacher also offers Fabriano mould-made papers for watercolor, drawing, printmaking, and etching; now available at better artists' materials stores.

When you cannot compromise with quality...when you need papers that will show your work at its best now and for generations to come...insist on Fabriano from Grumbacher.

Fabriano...artistry in paper.

FABRIANO IMPORTED PAPERS FROM GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC. 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001. In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc. 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough Ontario M1X 1C4

VOL
7
1
ISS
5
MY 1983
UMI

JOHN DUFF
ROBERT MANGOLD
BRUCE NAUMAN

4 May-28 May 1983

BlumHelman
20 West 57 Street New York

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Art in America

SUMMER 1983/$4.00

Cover: Ellsworth Kelly's "Concorde Angle"
De Chirico's Late Work/Claude Lorrain/Brooklyn Bridge at 100
John Walker/George Segal Interview/Eva Hesse Diaries/Kelly Retrospective Art Publishing Update/Reports from France & Germany/Review of Exhibitions

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

RECENT ACQUISITIONS

Morris Graves, Bird, c. 1954. Sumi ink on paper, 18½ x 24½ inches.

JEAN MICHEL BASQUIAT
SANDRO CHIA
JANE DICKSON
MARTIN DISLER
DAVID LANDIS FICK
MORRIS GRAVES
KEITH HARING
JOHN WALKER
and others

June 4 to July 22, 1983

ALEXANDER F. MILLIKEN INC.
98 Prince Street, New York, New York 10012
212/966-7800

Memo from the publisher:

Art in America's 1983 ANNUAL GUIDE TO GALLERIES, MUSEUMS & ARTISTS will be off the press August 1st.

It will be even more comprehensive than the '82 Guide; therefore, more highly valued and heavily referenced by all your best clients — and prospective clients — across the country.

Final closing for advertising reservations AND material is June 30th. Meet this deadline, and you will gain a combination of advertising benefits unmatched by any other art market publication:

1) 12 continuous months of advertising exposure for ONE month of advertising cost. You pay the same for a year-long ad in the Guide as you'd pay for an advertisement in any monthly issue of Art in America.
2) Your premier artworld audience — 60,000 collectors, dealers, connoisseurs, curators, librarians, researchers, and all Art in America subscribers (96% regularly visit galleries, 24% travel to buy art).
3) Countless repeat impressions. Collectors refer to the Guide again and again to plan and coordinate art activities: visiting, traveling, buying, tracing the movement of specific art and artists.
4) An environment of authority and essentiality. The Guide is already recognized throughout the art world as the #1 reference to 2,500 galleries and museums; 15,000 artists; one-person exhibitions; and corresponding exhibition catalogs.

There's nothing else like it, either as a year-round directory or as a year-round advertising medium. To date, 200 advertisers have reserved space. You can do so too, by acting immediately.

Please contact Advertising Director Susan B. Anthony, Art in America, 850 Third Avenue, New York 10022; telephone (212) 715-2747. (In Europe, contact John H. Liesveld, Jr., Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris; telephone (1) 325 26 55.)

Paul Shanley

Paul Shanley
Publisher

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
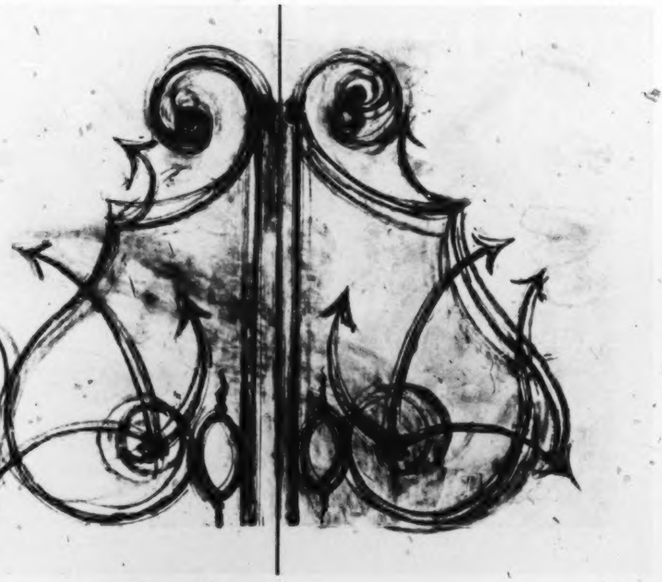
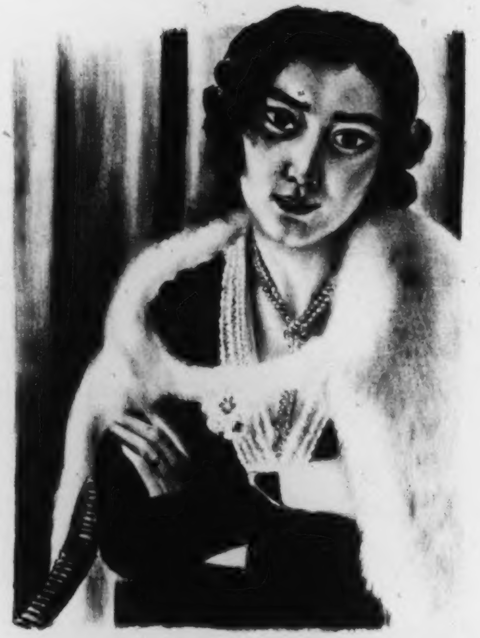
UMI



On exhibition Jim Dine, "Blue Detail From Crommelynck Gate", 1982, hand painted etching

PACE EDITIONS



On exhibition Henri Matisse, "Le Renard Blanc", 1929, Lithograph

PACE MASTERPRINTS

PACE PRIMITIVE

On Exhibition
Bakota Reliquary Figure, Gabon, West Africa

PACE 32 EAST 57 STREET NEW YORK NY 10022

VOL
7
1

ISS
6

SUM

1983

UMI

Galerie Maeght

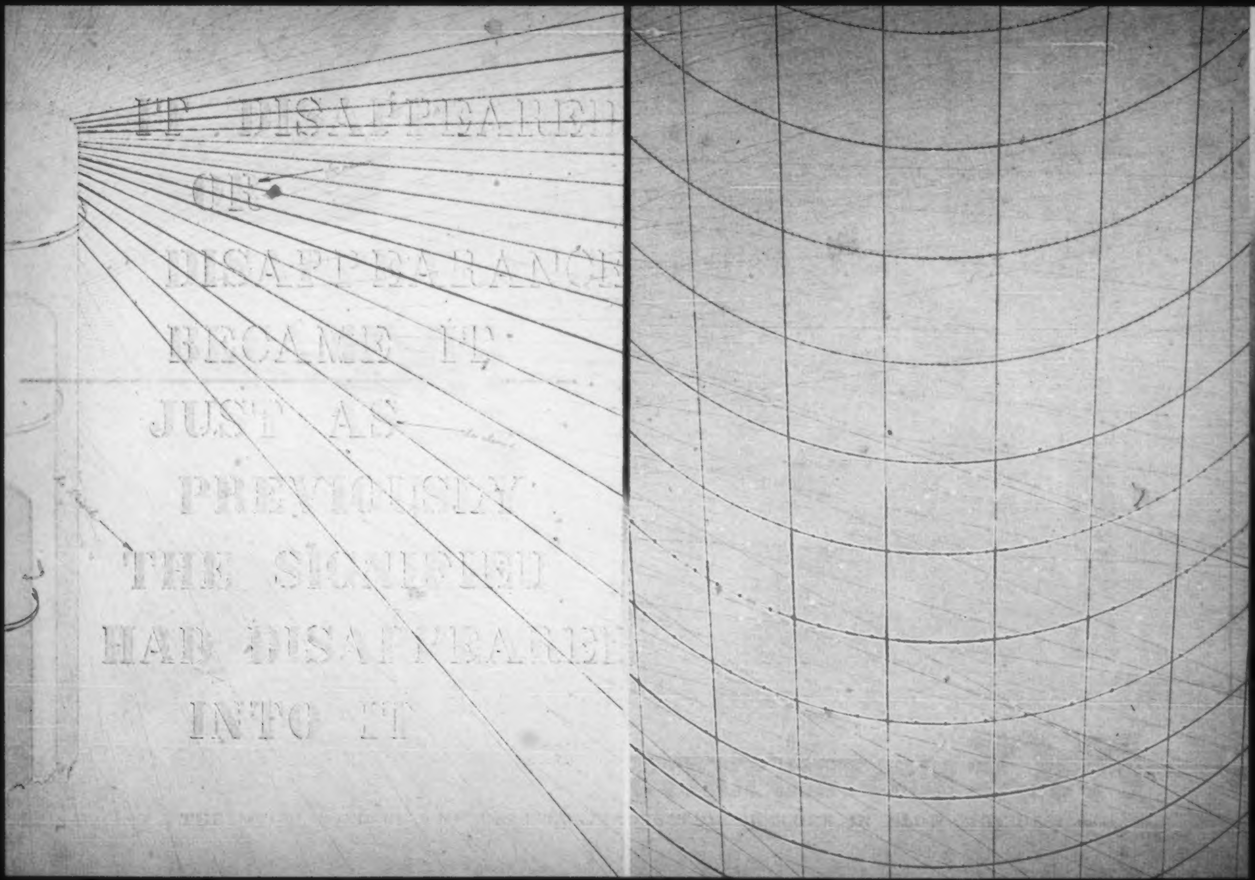
Arnold Herstand, President
U.S. Office, 9 West 57th Street
New York, New York 10019
Telephone 212 371 9077
Telex 428931
By Appointment Only

Galerie Maeght: Paris, Zurich

Arakawa

"It Disappeared or Disappearance Because It Just As Previously the Signified Had Disappeared Into It. The Modulating of the Unrecognizable Temperature in Slow Motion", 1974

Acrylic, encaustic and felt tip pen on canvas
76¾ x 110" (195 x 280 cm)



IT DISAPPEARED
OR DISAPPEARANCE BECAME IT
JUST AS PREVIOUSLY
THE SIGNIFIED HAD DISAPPEARED INTO IT

Art in America

SUMMER 1983

The Good, The Bad, The Ugly: Late de Chirico Claude Gintz 104
Marked by quotation and repetition, de Chirico's late works have more in common with his metaphysical masterpieces than is customarily believed.

Order and Chaos: From the Diaries of Eva Hesse Selected and introduced by Ellen H. Johnson 110
Excerpts from Hesse's notebooks chronicle her emergence as an artist.

Precise Implications Barbara Knowles Debs 119
The recent retrospective of Kelly's sculpture contained a group of the artist's latest pieces demonstrating a range of new concerns.

Past Perfect: Claude Lorrain Carter Ratcliff 126
Claude's arcadian vistas can be seen as models of Western painting's view of space.

Segal's Holocaust Memorial An interview with George Segal by Matthew Baigell 134
The sculptor discusses his recently completed piece commemorating the victims of the Nazi death camps.

John Walker's Multivalent Monolith Paul Brach 137
A recurrent image in Walker's work, his notched monolith is a composite, all-purpose symbol of "the painter's subject."

The Brooklyn Bridge at 100 Martin Filler 140
A reconsideration of the Brooklyn Bridge as architectural invention and civic symbol.

ISSUES & COMMENTARY

A Lass, a Laugh and a Lad
Jane Weinstock 7
Covering Mapplethorpe's "Lady"
Silvia Kolbowski 10
Art Across the Waters:
Power and Responsibility
Steven Henry Madoff 13

DEPARTMENTS

Review of Books:
The Art Book Industry,
Problems and Prospects
Joan Simon 19

Report from Paris:
Cobraphilia Lynne Cooke 29

Report from Germany:
Peter Ludwig: Appetite for Art
David Galloway 35
Report from Munich:
The New Neue Pinakothek
Franz Schulze 43
Report from Paris:
Musée d'Orsay, Art History vs. History
Interview with Madeleine Rebérioux by Eunice Lipton and Wanda Corn 47

REVIEW OF EXHIBITIONS

New York, Dallas 155
Artworld 192

Cover: Ellsworth Kelly's Concorde Angle, 1982, 1¼-inch weathering steel, 108 by 109 by 91¼ inches; Blum/Helman Gallery and Leo Castelli Gallery. See article on p. 119.

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Joan Simon / Executive Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Ted Mooney, Craig Owens / Associate Editors: Prudence Carlson, Hal Foster / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Directory Manager: Amy Slaton / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Bryan Robertson, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Suzi Gablik; Rome, Milton Gendel

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan B. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Susan McCall, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth Rothseid / Advertising Services: Susanne Vorster, Mary Baez / Production: Mary Jontry / Production Assistant: Sarah King / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara Gutman / Circulation Manager: Susan Blattman / Marketing Services Director: Karen Tubridy / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022, Tel. (212) 715-2600
Director for International Development: John H. Liesveld Jr., Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55.

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT John S. Prescott SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, FINANCE/ADMINISTRATION Gordon H. Duncan
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING William Hitzig VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING Dean Heine
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION James Kearney VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT Virginia Evans PROMOTION DIRECTOR James Anderson

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN Walter N. Thayer
PRESIDENT Charles H. G. Rees

Vol. 71, No. 6 (Summer) Art in America is published 11 times a year (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600. Cable address: AMARTMAG. A member of the Magazine Division of Whitney Communications Corporation. Contents copyright © 1983 by Art in America, Inc., and may not be reproduced in any manner or form without permission. ISSN: 0004-3214. The opinions expressed in "Issues and Commentary," apart from the editor's comments, are those of the writers themselves and not necessarily those of this magazine. Not responsible for unsolicited manuscripts or photographs. Art in America is indexed in the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Art Index. Back volumes of Art in America are available in microfiche from Bell & Howell, Att: Periodical Department, Old Mansfield Road, Wooster, Ohio 44691. Microfilm copies are available through Xerox University Microfilm, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. Articles appearing in this magazine are abstracted and indexed in Historical Abstracts and/or America: History and Life and RILA. Circulation is verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Controlled circulation postage paid at Concord, N.H. and New York, N.Y. BACK ISSUES AND COMPLETE VOLUMES: Lawrence McGilvery, P.O. Box 852, LaJolla, Calif., 92038. SUBSCRIPTIONS: U.S. 11 issues $34.95, 22 issues $59.95, 33 issues $79.95. Possessions & Canada add $8.00 per year. All others add $15.00 per year. Domestic single copy $3.50 prepaid. Outside North America $5.00. Single copy August/Annual $7.45 prepaid (includes $1.50 postage and handling). SUBSCRIPTION OFFICE: Art in America, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, Ohio 43302. Telephone (area code 614) 383-3141. FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS send old and new addresses and label from a recent issue. POSTMASTER Send Form No. 3579 to Art in America, 542 Pacific Avenue, Marion, Ohio 43302.

Member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

NOW REPRESENTING:

VALERIO ADAMI
ARMAN
JOSE LUIS CUEVAS
JEFFREY MARON
RICHARD POUSETTE-DART
GEORGE TOOKER

EXTENSIVE COLLECTIONS OF:

ANTONI TAPIES
ANDRE MASSON: THE AMERICAN YEARS, 1941–45
20TH CENTURY PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS AND SCULPTURE BY AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN MASTERS

SUMMER EXHIBITION FOUND OBJECTS
June 16–July 30

MARISA DEL RE GALLERY
41 East 57th Street, New York City 10022 (212) 688-1843

Galerie de France/Peintures
52 Rue de la Verrerie
75004 Paris
274.38.00

Velickovic. Juin-Juillet 1983

Galerie Le Dessin/Dessins
27 Rue Guenegaud
75006 Paris
633.04.66

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

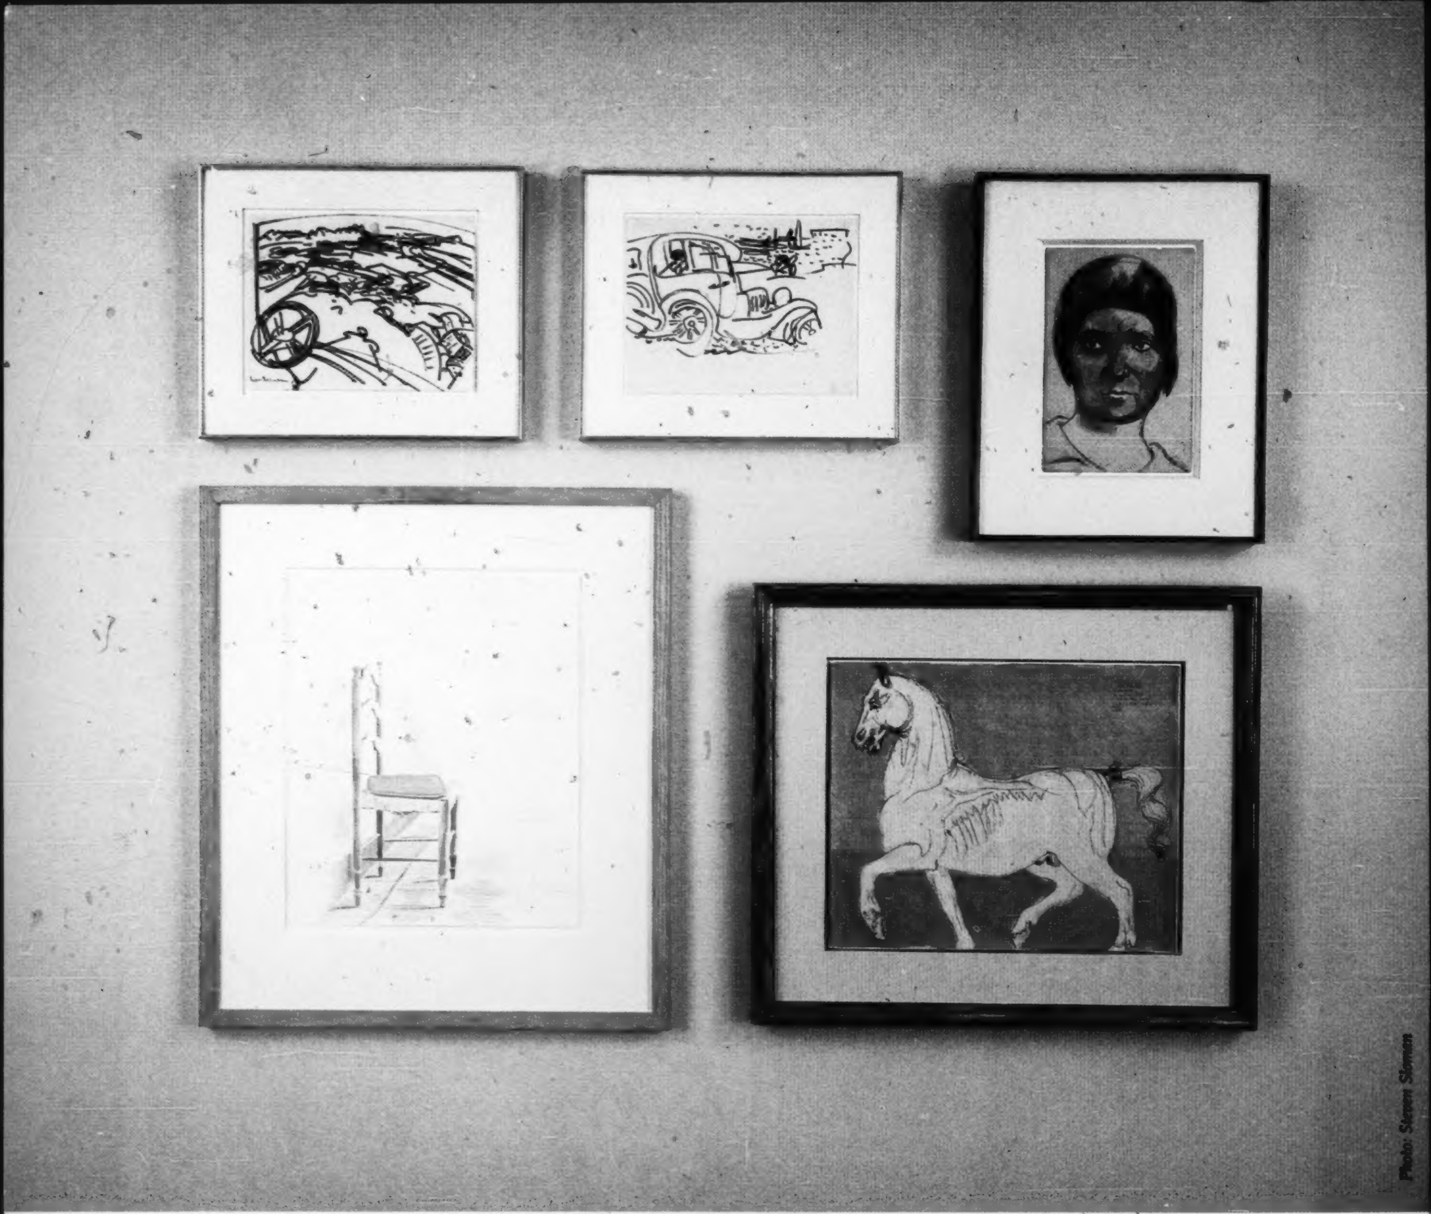

Photo: Steven Sloman

Hans Hofmann
1939, 8¼" x 10¾"

Hans Hofmann
1939, 8¼" x 10¾"

Julio Gonzales
1927, 10¾" x 7⅛"

David Hockney
1973, 17" x 14"

John Graham
1958, 13½" x 16½"

Works on Paper by Contemporary Masters

André Emmerich Gallery
41 East 57th Street · New York 10022 · Tel (212) 752-0124

Issues & Commentary

A Lass, A Laugh and a Lad

"The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter," a recent exhibition of work by five women and one man, addressed the "blind spot" of contemporary art criticism—the question of sexual difference.

BY JANE WEINSTOCK

"The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter" at Protetch McNeil, Jan.–Feb. '83. Left, Mary Kelly's Post-Partum Document; center, works by Barbara Kruger; right, Jenny Holzer's Truisms.

Mary Kelly: The Post-Partum Document (detail), 1973–79, mixed mediums, dimensions variable.

To smile or to cry? This has always been the question—for women, that is. Throughout history, language has been reserved for the gentlemen and laughter for the women who lacked gentility—the deranged. As for the others, the gentlemen's Others, they have been relegated to the range. But maybe things are changing.

For the exhibition "The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter" did find its way to a commercial gallery (Protetch-McNeil), and much of the work is decidedly unladylike. This is not to say it is masculine. Many women artists have, of course, mastered the System, but their mastery is without a difference—they're as good as the next man. Many of the objects here, however, are not Master-minded; they are ex-centric, if not mad.

But exteriority alone is an insufficient condition, for the "ex-" (out, out of, away from, opposing) executes women. They become an identity negatively defined; they are not male, not different, simply Other—X-ed out. As one who is not Other puts it:

> Everything is in place for the imperialism of men; an empty center where the Voice is heard (God's, the People's—the difference is not important, just the Capital letters) . . . , the feminine (women, children, foreigners, slaves) banished outside the confines of the corpus socians and attributed only those properties this corpus will have nothing to do with: savagery, sensitivity, matter and the kitchen, impulsion, hysteria, silence, maenadic dances, lying, diabolical beauty, ornamentation, lasciviousness, witchcraft and weakness.[1]

The danger of much feminist art, then, lies in its celebration of Otherness. The Goddess and the Body, both exalted by a number of feminist artists, have become victims of the capital letter. They remain the unchanging Truths extolled by the phallocrats.

Of the women in this show, only Nancy Spero runs the risk of Feminist Art. Handmade-paper scrolls of mythical women, first crawling and then racing to victory, project an Other-worldliness which reinscribes the traditional male/female opposition. (It is just this opposition which Hélène Cixous, whom Spero quotes in one of the works, is attempting to destroy.)[2] Jo-Anna Isaak, the curator of the show, describes Spero's work as a "celebration of difference," but for me Spero's utopian scrolls have more to do with a myth of Otherness.

The other women artists in "The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter" represent a different feminism. Ilona Granet, Jenny Holzer, Mary Kelly and Barbara Kruger all attempt to expose myths rather than create them. In her essay on the show, Isaak makes this point perfectly clear:

> The works do not postulate a new set of meanings or values, rather they function as visual or

VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

Nancy Spero:* The First Language (detail), 1981, 22 inches by 190 feet, painting, collage and printing on paper.

verbal puns, irruptions in the production of meaning. . . . The analysis of how meaning is produced and organized undermines the structures of domination.

An implicit corollary to this statement was to be found in the show itself. In providing the two most visible artists—Holzer and Kruger—with a different scene of exhibition, a specifically feminist one, Isaak promoted a rereading of their work. (Although Mary Kelly, an American living in London, has shown widely in Europe, this was her first U.S. exhibition.)

This article, then, will offer a different reading of Holzer and Kruger. I will not mention "appropriation," nor will I historicize the work in question. And while I am indebted to Roland Barthes, my argument will not take the form of a Barthesian analysis.[3] Rather, my reading will address the blind spot of the current critical discourse—the question of sexual difference. And laughter will not be a matter of indifference.

Jenny Holzer's Inflammatory Essays (originally small posters, then colored ones, then a book) are literally writings on the wall (actually, they are printings on brightly colored paper, which is on the wall). The 9 color-coded texts, 7 of which are repeated from 2 to 5 times, form a 25-unit grid—a perfect System. Everything is in order; nothing is missing. And there's even a perfect couple—the piece divides into two symmetrical triangles, each a mirror-image of the other.

But what about women? What is their place in this masculine dream of symmetry?[4] What happens if they resist the Oedipal triangle which cuts their throats? And what about laughter? What if Holzer is mocking the grids she so faithfilly reproduces? The configuration could also be read as a literalization of countless figures of speech: I'm a square; the only way to go is up; you only have to read the writing on the wall . . . .

> Instead of becoming silent Others, the women in this show take that which they historically know best—the everyday, the tangible—and use it to their own advantage.

By now you probably think that I am off the wall. Many other works contain squares, grids, triangles and diagonal ascensions, but they are straight. Holzer's texts are themselves crooked clichés and figures of speech, and their literal placement, their rhetoric of symmetry, may also be ironic, simply another Holzer text.

Of the other works by women, only Spero's mythical scrolls bear no trace of metaphor taken literally. Granet's Bums Bomb blasts white male power by blowing up (to size) four pillars of society—the landowner, a gas-masked industrialist, the publisher and the general. Literally sign-painter's signs, these stereotypes signal a semiotic system which signs away women.

Kruger's untitled superimposition—the words "Charisma is the Perfume of Your Gods" literally on top of a photograph of a U.S. coin—linguistically describes Kruger's work: she coins phrases. Similarly, her "I am your slice of life" sets a figure of speech on edge: what is imposed—an image of three razor blades, literally on edge—hacks away at what is already a hackneyed phrase.

And then there is the Post-Partum Document, Mary Kelly's 6-part, 135-piece documentation of the first 6 years of her son Kelly's life. It begins with Kelly's diapers, which are first a literalization of the ambiguous statement: these are Kelly's diapers. The diapers were originally worn by Kelly, that is, Kelly Barrie, but they are also Mary Kelly's in that she put them on the wall. And insofar as Mary Kelly's annals are intended as a parody of a conventional exhibition, the dirty nappies also refer to the shit she encounters on most gallery walls. Finally, the infamous excrement is a form of self-parody. One of the most obsessional works ever to grace a gallery wall, it seems to be saying that you have to be anal in order not to produce shit.

As you have probably guessed by now, I am making a case for literalisms which laugh at the conventional, which bust the guts of the status quo. Here, literal translations exceed literal-mindedness; they become a strategy, a linguistic device which breaks up a System of literal definitions. A fixed meaning, a content—woman (an adult female human being)—suddenly becomes excessive (the original meaning is lost in translation).

It is not incidental that none of the images I have discussed include women. As Isaak points out:

> Woman's body has been not just confiscated from her—it has been turned into the stranger on display. This masculine specularization of the Other is a necessary component in the libidinal economy of men as it has developed in our culture, which is distinct from the libidinal economy of women as it has been repressed in our culture.[5]

This brings me to the fact that there is also a man in the show—Mike Glier. The only artist to take the title literally, he has painted portraits of five laughing (or shouting) women on a background of military fabric. Perhaps he is implying that laughter is a form of warfare (or camouflage), but he is shooting from a masculine position. His women are objects, laughing Others, and as such, they cannot object.

This is not to say that images of women, or of laughing women, are out of the question. Other artists have placed women on the wall without miss-placing them. Silvia Kolbowski, for example, often uses photographs of women, but in conjunction with texts. In her corner piece "who's laughing now?" images of laughing women are contextualized by definitions, footnotes, clichés and their literal placement on the wall; they are women placed, in a corner, cornered as women. Similarly, in a recent work Sherrie Levine rephotographs fashion shots of women in order to show how women get their looks, how they are effectively framed.

With Glier, it is not a matter of bad intentions. His women's laughter is a content rather than a strategy; it is a positive image, but still a positing image, an objectification. It is true that Glier entered a mine field when he consented to be in the show, but he would have been in less of a fix had he continued to laugh at white male power. But then he would not have belonged in a show called "The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter."

Glier's laughing women demonstrate clearly the phallacy of the positive image. The fact that Glier is a man is not the point. For this subject-object problem is not a matter of literal positions—i.e., Glier is a man and the laughers are women—but of the spectator's voyeuristic one. It is not the sex of the artist but the sex of the look, which may itself be masculine. At the same time, looks aren't everything, and many women today have turned to language in an attempt to turn a simple opposition into a series of different positions:

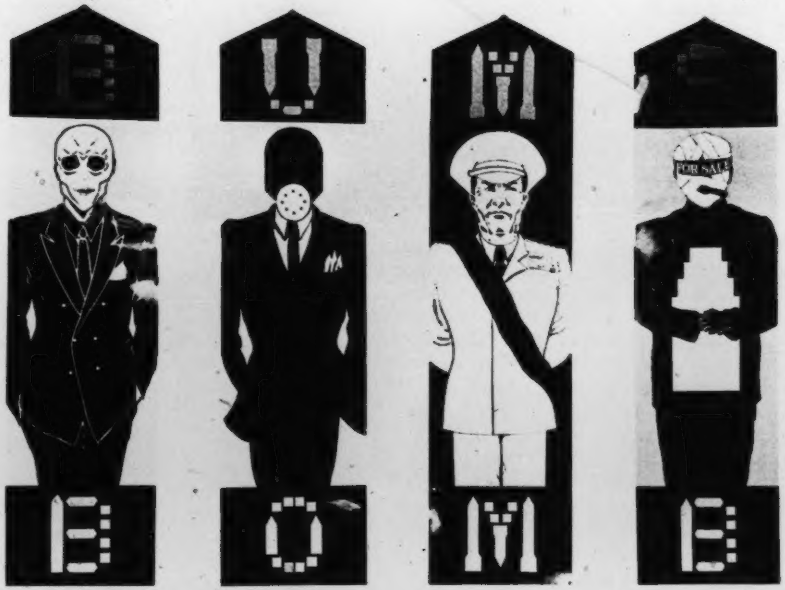
> I think that what's discovered in working through the Post-Partum Document is that there is no preexisting sexuality, no essential femininity; and that to look at the processes of their construction is also to see the possibility of deconstructing the dominant forms of representing difference and justifying subordination in our social order.[6]

The Post-Partum Document is a mother's case history—a case history of a mother by that same mother. Mary Kelly is both analyst and patient, and therefore both male and female, both "eye" and "I." And she is also laughing from afar. For when she tries to be both anal analyst and possessive mother, she often ends up with a parody of herself. Kelly takes Lacan's formulation of the (male) subject (S/s) and rewrites it:

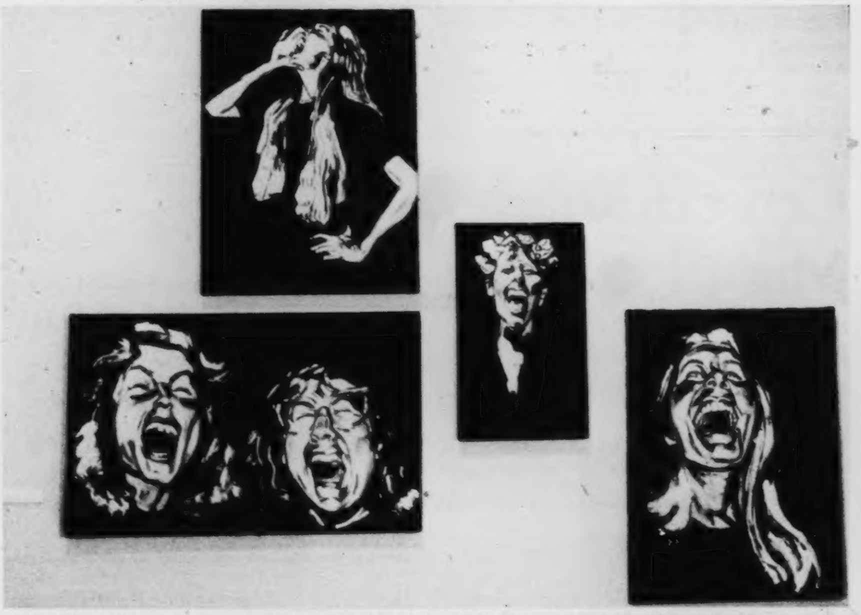
$$\frac{\text{WHAT HAVE I DONE WRONG?}}{\text{s}}$$

The point here is not the meaning of Lacan's formula, but the act of miss-translation. Kelly splits from the Lacanian subject—which is already split—by laughing at herself. This is not to say that she occupies every position, covers all the bases, but that she knows there is no basic self, no fixed identity. She, and we, are constructions in process.

Barbara Kruger also resists identity by posing language as a shifty entity. Kruger makes use of the linguistic shifter ("I," "you") because it has no fixed identity.[7] Like desire, "You" is intersubjective and therefore not subject to a permanent address.



Ilona Granet:* BUMS BOMB, *1982, baked enamel, aluminum with gold and silver leaf, 4 panels, 150 by 36 inches each.



Mike Glier: above left, Jenny, 54 by 40 inches; below left, Lisa and Ingrid, 40 by 64 inches; center, Jane, 40 by 24 inches, right, Julie, 54 by 40 inches. All works 1982, oil on fabric.

Holzer, too, uses "you," but her "You should travel light" and "You are a victim of the words you live by" (both from "Truisms") have the same generalized "you" in mind—"one," one "you," unity. It may be that Holzer is precisely concerned with how the "you" is unified, how power shifts the shifter; but what happens when the shiftee is a woman?[8]

Kruger's "you," on the other hand, implicates a second person in a linguistic intersubjection. Her shifters, like Kelly's "I/eyes," remind us that there is no such thing as an essential personality, that position in the world is an effect of language and therefore subject to change. More importantly, however, Kruger's "you's" differ from Holzer's in that they are not sexually indifferent. "Charisma is the Perfume of Your Gods" posits a "you" of a particular sex, class and color. Like Mike Glier's earlier work, this piece speaks to white male power, but punningly. "Your gods" are the Presidential figures stamped on the coin, and you are a white middle-to-upper-class male viewer. But if you are not "you" (i.e., you are female, working-class and/or black) you are "I," "your slice of life," Kruger. So "you" may coin the Capital, but at what price? Laughter?

Until now, I have been rather free with my use of the word "laugh." I have talked about "laughing at"—a figure of speech—and "laughter"—a bodily state—as if they were the same thing. Yet one is an ego ideal and the other an id entity.

How, then, do women "laugh at"? It cannot be insignificant that most of the women in the show literalize (male?) abstractions. Instead of becoming silent Others, they take that which they historically know best—the everyday, the tangible—and use it to their own advantage.[9] But they also take language itself. Could there be a better way to punish the pundits than with a pun?

Finally, what about laughter? It is, for the most part, missing from this show, but that is a function of the curator's definition.[10] My definition is simply a literal one. The female laugher laughs in the same way that the 19th-century hysteric symptomatized. Both convulse. The parallels to the hysteric are not just physical ones. Throughout history, both have occupied a disordering role; they have produced gales in the calm of the family, but they have not split its sides.[11]

As for laughter today, it is probably not so different. As a form of transgression, it has its place; it displaces. But ultimately, laughter alone will not make the difference:

If you always, and everywhere, burst into laughter, we will never be able to talk to each other. And we will still be d(raped) in their words. So let's take back a bit of our mouth to try to speak.[12]

---

[1] Jean-François Lyotard, "One of the Things at Stake in Women's Struggles," SubStance, 20 (1978), 11–12.

[2] See Hélène Cixous, "Sorties," in New French Feminisms, Marks and de Courtivron, eds., New York, Schocken, 1981, pp. 90–98.

[3] For a discussion of Kruger's work as appropriation, see Abigail Solomon-Godeau, "Playing in the Fields of the Image," Afterimage, 10, 1–2 (Summer 1982), 10–13. Although appropriation is the central concept of this article, the question of sexual difference is addressed. Benjamin Buchloh gives Kruger and Holzer's work a history in his "Allegorical Procedures: Appropriation and Montage in Contemporary art," Artforum, Sept. 1982, pp. 43–56. In this article, Kruger and Holzer are listed as late '70s "deconstructors," but Kruger then is dropped. Perhaps she cannot figure in Buchloh's history. Holzer, on the other hand, merits a subcategory. She is an "anarcho-situationiste," a peg in a System which forecloses sexual difference. For a Barthesian analysis of Kruger and Holzer, see Hal Foster, "Subversive Signs," A.i.A., Nov. '82, pp. 88–92.

[4] "If men and women, teachers and students, switched places, there would still be an economy of symmetry, in which the knowledge of the one, the theory of the one, was the gauge for measuring the worth of the other, still no dialogue between two different sexes, knowledges, only a homologue with one side lacking what the other has." Jane Gallop, Feminism and Psychoanalysis: The Daughter's Seduction, Ithaca, Cornell University Press, 1982, p. 64. This passage is indebted to Luce Irigaray.

[5] Jo-Anna Isaak, "Our Mother Tongue, The Post-Partum Document," Vanguard, April 1982, p. 16.

[6] "No Essential Femininity: A Conversation between Mary Kelly and Paul Smith," Parachute, 26 (Spring, 1982), 35.

[7] Foster, p. 90.

[8] A differentiated "you" does appear in the more recent "Inflammatory Essays."

[9] For a discussion of the literalism in general see Craig Owens, "Mark Tansey at Borgenicht," Art in America, February 1983, pp. 137–38.

[10] In the essay which accompanied the show, Isaak writes: "It is the potential of this jouissance, this play of signifiers themselves that the exhibition 'The Revolutionary Power of Women's Laughter' intends to explore. It is not then a study in the comic, nor of laughter as invective, but an investigation into the function of language and the discourse that attempts to account for it—the logic of those systems and relations that create an identity for a sentence, a sign, an individual."

[11] For a discussion of hysteria as resistance, see Gallop, pp. 132–50, and Jacqueline Rose, "Dora—fragment of an analysis," m/f, 2 (1978), pp. 5–21.

[12] Luce Irigaray, Ce Sexe qui n'en est pas un, Paris, Minuit, 1977, p. 207. Cited in Gallop, p.89.

Author: Jane Weinstock is a filmmaker and film critic. She coauthored the screenplay for Sigmund Freud's Dora.

Covering Mapplethorpe's "Lady"

Posing as images of a "revised femininity," Robert Mapplethorpe's photographs of Lisa Lyon work to conceal the fact of sexual difference.

BY SILVIA KOLBOWSKI

Robert Mapplethorpe's Lady, a book published by Viking Press and an exhibition in March at Castelli Greene Street, both begin with two presences: a double portrait/self-portrait of photographer and model. From this point on, the model (chosen in part for its presence, "an arresting personality")[1] will appear in every image—or almost (on page 86 the model is absent from the frame, displaced by a wall socket). The photographer will disappear behind the camera. Even at this early stage, these positions can be considered to be culturally (en)gendered: the object of the gaze, the framed—feminine; the subject of the gaze, the framer—masculine.

In Mapplethorpe's photographs of Lisa Lyon, First World Woman's Body Building Champion, these positions are conventionally occupied. Lyon appears in over a hundred generic poses—one woman representing all-women-to-all-men, a woman ("available," as Samuel Wagstaff tells us in his foreword to the book) for all seasons.[2] This "all-women," this abundance of presence, this plenitude of guises—what absence does it mask?

Once, Lyon appears in an almost classic cheesecake shot—body smooth, curved, coyly posed. In others, she is the nature goddess rising from the water or growing out of a jungle of leaves. But she also seems able to will her body to signify the masculine, to appear as a bodily eruption shot through with muscles. This metamorphosis (and it pretends to be one, given the progression of the layout) might be considered a liberal breakthrough; indeed, Wagstaff refers to Lyon's "revised femininity." The female body has been unshackled (except, perhaps, further down the wall/into the book, where it is liberally bound and gartered) from the "womanly stereotype" (Wagstaff); she transgresses sexual categories. In fact, this universal woman explicitly states her active role in the collaboration: she was on the "lookout for the right photographer to document" her body, her "raw material."[3] But perhaps her play-acting is also the playing out of an ideologically positioned desire—the desire to be, in as many (con)figurations as possible, the object of the male gaze. Take my picture, take me.[4]

But now, let's take the photographer; what about his position/inscription in this project? Ostensibly, he was just on the lookout for a well-rounded woman—"a face, a body, and an arresting personality"—for these, his first publicly exhibited photographs of the female body, his first female object. The particular figure Mapplethorpe chose more often than not masquerades as a man (the body) masquerading as a woman (the body with veils, garters, dress) masquerading as a man (this body as motorcycle tough, or man-suited). If we look beneath (or between) this layering of gender, however, we find revealed not, as might be supposed, the real woman, the "greater truth"[5] (for there essentially is no such thing), but the inscription of the photographer's stake in this representation—or, more significantly, the stake of the masculine gaze in general.

(Above and below) Photographs from* Lady, Lisa Lyon by Robert Mapplethorpe, *1980–82.

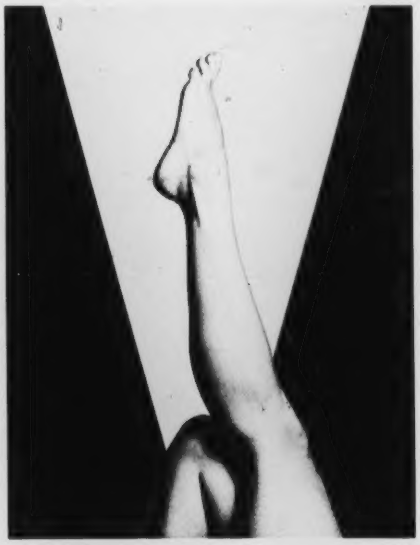
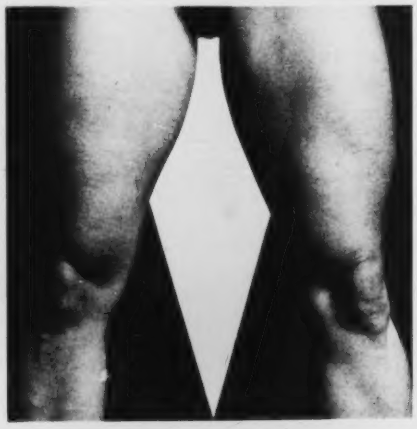
This stake is one driven into the heart of the mother matter, for is not the mother truly the first female object of desire? More specifically, what is at stake in these photographs is the recovery of the pre-Oedipal, "whole" mother, "apparently omnipotent and omniscient, until the discovery that she is not 'whole,' but a 'hole.' "[6] Thus, it is not only the photographer, the subject of the photographic gaze, who performs a disappearing act. What must also be hidden are female genitalia.

What appears to take place in Lady (a word which holds in itself the sense of a sexuality repressed) is the disavowal of the mother's supposed castration by grafting the signs of the male body onto that of the woman. The body's movement from relaxed to flexed and back, evident in the progression of the photographs, seems reassuring: seeing is not believing. Here you see a woman, a "normal" woman, titillatingly dressed, titillatingly undressed. Here you don't, in images in which the body reads as almost exclusively male. In an image of the hands gripping the handle of the universal gym, it is impossible to discern the difference (except for the giveaway engagement ring). In another photograph, a white triangle appears between Lyon's cropped legs in such a way that a graphic "phallus," larger than life, appears to hang from her crotch, the point of absence. As if this weren't clear enough, in the preceding photograph the phallic sign is inverted: Mapplethorpe frames Lyon's foot, the classic fetishistic substitute for the penis.

At times, absence itself—castration's metonym—is employed literally through a framing strategy: either Lyon's head is lopped off to present an almost totally male body, or her "femininity" is framed, displaced by an opaque veil covering her face, and her gaze. I could continue, listlike, to the point of listlessness. But lest I be misunderstood, I want to make one point utterly clear. This critique is not a call for more photographs of female genitalia on unmuscled bodies. Nor is it necessarily a call for a neat reversal of positions around the camera (as though this were possible). Rather, it is a textual pointing, with feminine finger, to a violence done not only to this woman, but to woman in general in the name of culture. Is it any wonder that, in the last two photographs, the uncocked Lyon points a cocked gun to her chest and then appears to go up in flames? ☐



Lyon may appear in an almost classic cheesecake shot, or as the nature goddess rising from the water. But she also seems able to will her body to signify the masculine.



---

1. Bruce Chatwin, "An Eye and Some Body," Lady, Lisa Lyon by Robert Mapplethorpe, New York, Viking Press, 1982, p. 11.

2. While Lyon purports to be all women to all men, she teases, becomes coy, places a limit by dedicating the book to one man—her husband—whose sign (the wedding ring) crops up in several photographs. Thus, she marks her sexual preference/position (not too male). This limit is fundamentally conservative in more than a literal sense, for it separates two equally conservative extremes: extreme availability through her poses, and the inscription of herself as "wife of."

3. This statement is not surprisingly spoken in Lyon's place by Bruce Chatwin in his introduction.

4. Interestingly, through an ambiguity of typeface, type placement, color and word choice, the authorship of this book is both hedged and asserted on its cover. Lyon's name is as large as the word "Lady," but in a different color and typeface. Mapplethorpe's name is much smaller and follows the same size word "by." Thus, one could read "Lady" as the title with "Lisa Lyon" as the subtitle of the book authored "by" Robert Mapplethorpe. Or one reads "Lady," and then "Lisa Lyon by Robert Mapplethorpe" (as on the spine). In this reading, Lyon is his creation; she is created by, possessed.

5. "This book does not simply document Lisa Lyon: it is a work of the imagination—the visual counterpart of a novel, which, like all good novels, mixes fact and fantasy to reveal a greater truth." Chatwin, p. 14.

6. Jane Gallop, Feminism and Psychoanalysis: The Daughter's Seduction, Ithaca, Cornell University Press, 1982, p. 22. I quote Gallop here out of the body of her text and step out of line to insert her into a different context. Her own internal quotations signal a critical position; the mother is understood as castrated only in a visual sexual economy that privileges the phallus: "The privilege of the phallus as presence," she writes, "the concomitant 'disappearance' of any female genitalia under the phallic order, is based on the privilege of sight over other senses. The penis according to Freud, is more visible than what the little girl has. From being more visible it becomes simply more, in other words, superior" (p. 27).

Author: Silvia Kolbowski is a New York artist.

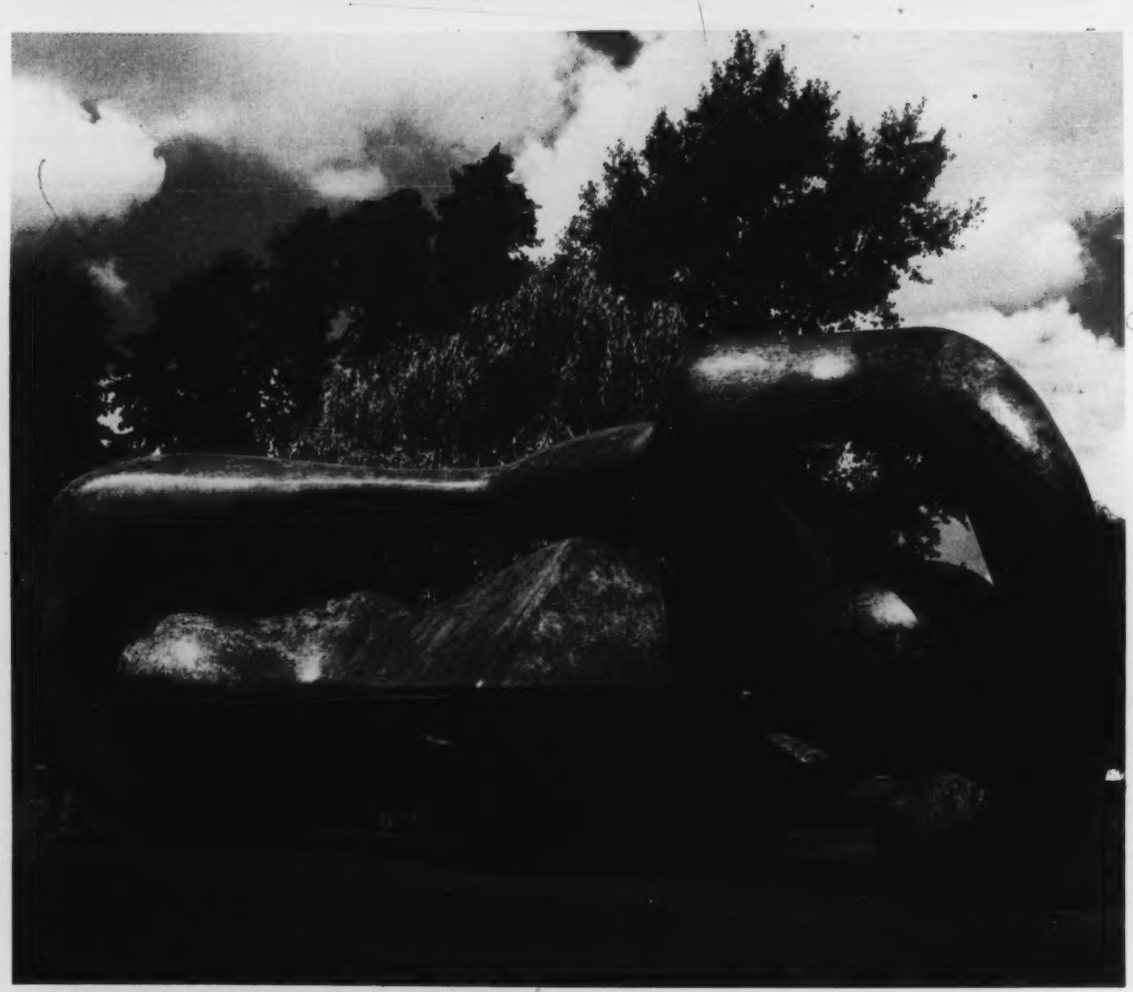
VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

MARLBOROUGH



Reclining Connected Forms, 1969, bronze, length 84 in / 213cm, edition of 9.

HENRY MOORE

85th Birthday Exhibition

Stone Carvings, Bronze Sculpture and Drawings

15 June - 13 August 1983

Marlborough Fine Art (London) Ltd.
6 Albemarle Street
London W1X 3HF
Telephone: 01-629 5161
Cables: Bondartos London
Telex: 266259

Fully illustrated catalogue available on request - £10
P. & P. Free U.K.
£2 Europe
$3.20 U.S.A.

Art Across the Waters: Power and Responsibility

A recent conference reappraised the whole machinery by which U.S. art is sent abroad for international festivals. Funding soon emerged as the key issue.

BY STEVEN HENRY MADOFF

In January, a conference addressing itself to the question, "U.S. Participation in International Biennials, Competitions & Festivals: Whose Responsibility Is It Anyway?" took place in Washington. Arts International, a Washington-based group that provides information to cultural organizations for purposes of worldwide touring and exchange, arranged the meeting, sponsored by SCM Corporation. (Arts International itself receives both federal and private funding.) The event coincided, purely by chance but not without symbolic overtones, with the memorial services held in New York for Nancy Hanks, who had served as chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts under Nixon, Ford and Carter. Hanks was an advisor to Arts International, and the conference opened, appropriately enough, with a few words spoken in tribute by the organization's president, Peter Solmssen. Present at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, where the conference took place, were many of the leading figures of the American art world. The cast—some 120 in all—included NEA head Frank Hodsoll; Juliet Antunes, who oversees the U.S. Information Agency's Arts America program, which sends our art abroad for official representation; the directors of several major museums and institutes; leading lights from the other disciplines; and various artists, writers, consultants and corporate givers.

The purpose of the conference was to examine the present mechanisms by which American art is selected for travel, how it is funded, and what its effect is once it reaches its host nations. The meeting was divided into two parts. In the morning, a general discussion was moderated by Thomas Messer, director of the Guggenheim Museum. In the afternoon, the disciplines—visual arts, dance, theater, music—met separately to discuss particular needs and recommendations. At a luncheon between the two sessions, the participants were addressed by Alistair Cooke, who spoke on the dangers of too much government involvement; "total government sponsorship" was the phrase he used to describe this imagined nemesis. But while propaganda was an issue at the meeting, the kind of totalitarianism hinted at in Cooke's phrase did not seem to stir general concern. In fact, with the minuscule budget of $2 million currently available to the Arts America program, it is unlikely that the art world will be smothered by government, especially with the concomitant pressures exerted by the current administration to reduce to the absolute minimum funding for the NEA itself. Meanwhile, New York's Governor Cuomo has proposed a $4.5-million reduction in the State Council on the Arts budget, down to $28 million; and the Mayor's Office in New York City has suggested a similar move, cutting his Department of Cultural Affairs funding to $42.8 million—a drop of $2.5 million. The Reagan philosophy of deregulation and marketplace autonomy is inevitably affecting the arts, and concern with diminishing government support was given frequent voice at the meeting.

Indeed, greater governmental involvement on all art fronts was called for almost universally. Besides insufficient public funding, conference members expressed concern about such problems as the lack of centralized information regarding international festivals and exhibitions, the general citizen's unfamiliarity with (and consequent disinterest in) the arts, the diminishment of private sector monies, the at times misguided efforts of overseas cultural attachés and the shared sense that the concept of the Venice Biennale is itself outmoded. Henry Hopkins, director of the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, quite baldly diagnosed the problem as "a lack of commitment on our [government's] part toward our own culture." Howard Klein, vice director for arts and humanities at the Rockefeller Foundation, further observed that we have no public policy on the arts in this country, no grass roots comprehension of the principles of art today and thus no real notion of the importance of culture.

Along with all of this criticism, however, there was some praise. In particular, the peer review system, by which art professionals evaluate their colleagues' artistic and curatorial abilities and proposals, was roundly applauded. Martin Friedman, director of the Walker Arts Center, said that the NEA panels used for peer review are "terrific as they are," and Solmssen commented in a phone interview later that the peer review system "has proven itself beyond a doubt over the long run of its performance."

Yet questions remained concerning the overall organization of the present system. Much elliptical criticism was made of the arrangement whereby the Arts America program exists as part of the U.S. Information Agency (as the International Communication Agency was renamed last August 24 by presidential order), since one of the USIA's key functions is to publicize State Department policy. The shows sent overseas by Arts America thus inevitably appear nationalistic (see my article "Sending U.S. Art Abroad: Federal Ways and Means," A.i.A., Sept. '82), and conference members felt uneasy about the influence of political interests. Roger Stone, who is on the board of Arts International, observed: "What I've been hearing today is the repeated suggestion that not only government support is sought, but really a new kind of government leadership—a higher profile than ever before. But I would hope a higher government profile would be organized so that the propaganda elements would be kept clearly separate from international cultural exchange."

In the privacy of the afternoon visual arts meeting, the role of the government was more closely scrutinized as the discussion began to focus on the kinds of art chosen to be sent abroad and, still more interestingly, to what purpose the biennials themselves are mounted. Thomas Messer argued that the Venice Biennale, though the most traditionally prestigious international exhibition, is operating on an outmoded premise. "The 19th-century assumption of a national art," he observed, "no longer pertains to the international influences which we now see daily in art as in life. The pavilions were built upon the old assumption, and they now seem more like real estate than anything else." Kassel's Documenta exhibition, Messer continued, seems more to the point—with its own political program, of course, but also with its thematic interminglings of styles and nations. Henry Hopkins then talked about the Philip Guston show that the ICA asked him to organize for the São Paulo Bienal ("Philip Guston—His Last Years" went to São Paulo in 1981). "It seemed a very appropriate thing," he said, "because Guston's career was on the rise and everything was going beautifully. But it simply wasn't what São Paulo wanted, and we should have known that."

Comment then turned to the idea of reviving the NEA's International Program, thus transferring responsibility for international exhibitions to this "more art-informed body," in Martin Friedman's phrase. But no one in government seemed particularly taken by the suggestion. Kathleen Bannon, who directs the NEA's International Office, said later that the NEA could increase its support of the Arts America program in advisory ways, but it certainly couldn't replace the global network of cultural posts that Arts

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

BASELITZ

Sculptures

capc

Musée d'Art Contemporain de Bordeaux
Entrepot Lainé, rue Ferrère
33000 Bordeaux
Tél. (56) 44 16 35

America may presently take advantage of. There is little likelihood, in any case, that Arts America, set up a mere five years ago, will be dismantled.

As evening approached, the disciplines regrouped to compare conclusions. Predictably, the matter of funding, which had been an underlying concern all day, came rapidly to the surface. The creation of an information clearinghouse, the locating and cataloguing of all the little groups that work on international projects, the improved education of cultural attachés and the widely expressed hope that shows might once again be specially created for overseas exhibitions rather than lifted from among the already extant domestic offerings—all seemed to turn on the recognition that more money is needed. More money for peer review panels to meet more often. More money for special-event curating. More money to coordinate government and private sector support. More money to promote international exchange. More money from government and more money from corporations. In reporting on the visual arts session to the regathered conference, Hopkins noted: “We have reached the age when sending monumentally scaled works of art is a dinosaurlike project. Instead we could be sending artists like Robert Rauschenberg and Robert Wilson to reside for a year at the same cost. The end result is that we still need to establish policy.”

Thomas Messer argued that the Venice Biennale, though traditionally regarded as the most prestigious of the international exhibitions, is operating on an outmoded premise.

Clearly, without a sound financial base, encompassing government and the private sector, no feasible system of artistic representation can be had. In a recent interview, Juliet Antunes, director of Arts America, told me that every effort was being made to maintain the present budget in spite of cuts proposed. There is little chance now of an increase. With these actualities in mind, new efforts must be made to locate sources of capital and make it advantageous to donors to contribute on a regular basis. Paul Elicker, president of SCM Corporation, suggested a tax credit for corporate givers, which would by definition allow a larger write-off than the present deduction for business expenses, and thus create greater incentive for donations from that quarter. In addition, perhaps a lobbying group is needed to complement present efforts of improving the private sector prospects of our international cultural programs.

Few things were resolved at the conference. But the delineation of problems and aspirations was clear. It was agreed that the participants should meet again in smaller groups and draw up pragmatic proposals from the ideas discussed. Spirits ran high at having gathered a group of people with the knowledge and experience to change the current situation; there was, from that point of view at least, cause for hopefulness. And yet it is difficult to feel sanguine about the issue of funding which lay at the heart of the conference. The prospect of more support from the private sector to buoy up shrinking governmental arts allocations has had a setback with the recent publicity regarding corporate belt-tightening. The cautionary news that such corporations as Exxon and Philip Morris are cutting back on cultural projects to make room for social service programs could have dark ramifications, as well, for international exchange. There is no question that more corporate as well as more government funding is needed. And whether it can now be had, or whether it will be increasingly difficult to come by in the months ahead, is a matter deserving of the closest possible attention. ☐

Author: Steven Henry Madoff, who was a participant in the conference that is the subject of this article, is working on a book about American painting and poetry in the 1950s and '60s.

Wayne Thiebaud

Crown Point Press
1555 San Pablo
Oakland CA 94612
(415) 835-5121
545 Broadway
New York NY 10012
(212) 226-5476

Dark Cake, 1983
Woodblock print
17½ x 19⅞"

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

HARRY CALLAHAN

Morocco, 1980. Laser-scanned dye-transfer photograph, 9⅝ x 14½ inches

RECENT COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY

Limited edition dye-transfer photographs of Morocco, Portugal, Ireland, Mexico

June 1–July 1, New York
May 21–July 2, Paris

Harry Callahan is represented by ZABRISKIE

724 Fifth Avenue, New York
37 rue Quincampoix, Paris

JULY 1983

Louisa Chase
Roberto Juarez
Robert S. Zakanitch

ROBERT MILLER
724 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
212 · 246 · 1625

Paintings from the Collection of Mr. and Mrs. Armand P. Bartos

Monday, June 27, 1983 at 6:30 p.m.

Viewing from June 21.
For further inquiries, please contact
John Lumley in London at (011) 441 839 9060 or Christopher Burge in New York at 212/546-1172.

Fernand Léger, Esquisse Pour La Ville, signed and dated '19—oil on canvas laid down on board, 31⅞ x 25⅝ in.

Christie's London

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
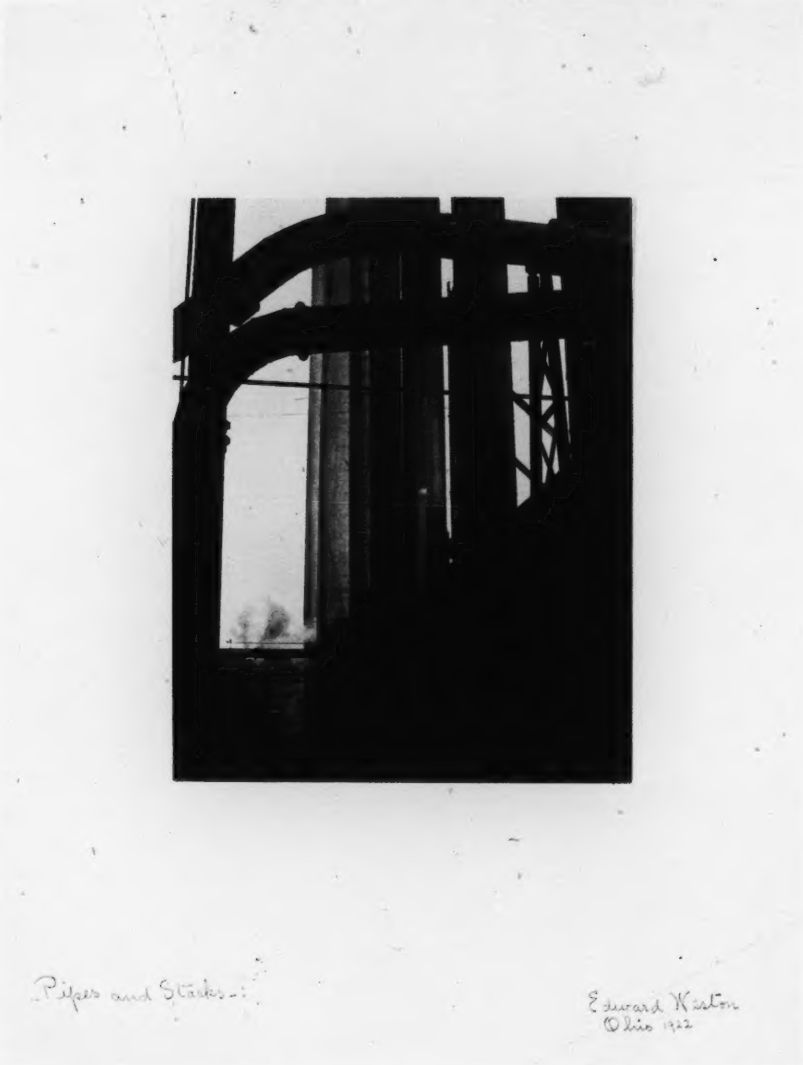
UMI



Edward Weston
Pipes and Stacks
Platinum print, 9¾ x 7½ inches
Signed Edward Weston titled Pipes & Stacks and dated Ohio 1922 on the mount; also inscribed on the reverse For Charlot with much appreciation in many ways; also signed and dated Edward Weston Mexico 1924 on the reverse of the mount

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 · (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Review of Books

The Art Book Industry Problems and Prospects

High production costs, unpredictable markets, and the changing relationships between trade publishers and museums are just the beginning . . .

BY JOAN SIMON

There is widespread concern that art book publishing has changed, and changed for the worse. Prices are higher than ever. The selection of titles published each year seems slimmer and also repetitive: studies of well-known masters are published over and over, while at the same time there is a progressively trendy mining of "new" fields that become quickly exhausted. In recent seasons photography nearly displaced monographs on individual painters and sculptors—only to be outpaced by architecture.

Whole areas of contemporary art, though, remain virtually unpublished, as if, for example, Minimalism and Conceptualism had never existed. And though inflation has touched almost every level of the art and book businesses, fees to writers of art books are as low as they have ever been.

The issues facing art book publishing mirror those of the bigger publishing industry of which it is a flashy but relatively small part, and those of the art-historical community and the contemporary art world as well. What is published, and more significantly what is not published, has extremely serious long-term implications. Leonard Shatzkin, author of In Cold Type, a recent book-length survey of the problems of the book trade, characterized the industry as entering a state of "profound crisis." It seems that art book publishing got there even sooner.

Since the art book's two most salient features are high production costs and relatively small audiences, it is understandable that in hard economic times art book publishers cut back or play it safe. Both consequences began to be apparent about 10 years ago. Feeling the first big downturn in consumer demand since the '60s, and facing internal corporate pressures to return higher profits in a shorter period ot time, many companies producing art books began to change their priorities. Lists were pared, staff was cut, and some companies folded—Praeger's art book division was one of the first casualties. In addition, art started to be edged off publishers' lists in favor of more commercially appealing subjects. At Abrams, a publisher that is almost a generic name for hefty monographs, the success of The Art of Walt Disney, a serious study of an important popular figure (which has sold 300,000 since it was published in 1973), spawned Gnomes (800,000 copies since 1977) and more Gnomes products and more Disney titles. Abrams recently released Walt Disney's Epcot, and will be publishing Walt Disney's Fantasia as well.

We're now feeling a second wave of retrenchment. As this article was being written, the news arrived that Viking is discontinuing its Studio Books division. One of the few companies that seemed to survive the pressures of a corporate merger (with Penguin), Viking too has found that an entire department devoted to illustrated books is not financially viable at this time, although it will continue to publish a limited number of art books that the company feels strongly about. (James Rosenquist by Judith Goldman is a forthcoming title.)

With the economy in generally poor shape, publishers have been feeling a slowdown in sales. Needless to say, there is resistance to books that must be priced at $50–$100 to offset production costs, and even to books in the $30–$40 range. I would like to suggest, however, that art book sales are down for another reason: publishers are not producing the kinds of art books that people who are seriously committed to and concerned about contemporary art want to read.

Editorial policies, at least as they apply to contemporary art, seem anchored in the '60s—and to the art that reached high prices or achieved media celebrity then. There are, of course, exceptions, just as there are complex reasons for the current state of affairs. But given the unprecedented growth of public attention to new art since the '60s, it seems necessary to question the exceedingly unadventurous programming by the major American art publishers.

Explored here are some of the changes that are taking place in the industry, and some of the reasons for those changes. My comments are based on a survey of publishers' lists and the books themselves, plus industry statistics, interviews with writers, artists, readers, editors and publishers, and a visit to the Frankfurt Book Fair last October. At Frankfurt I talked to many publishers who were making the international copublishing arrangements that determine the kinds of books we will see published in the near future. I asked publishers why they thought the business had changed, and what directions they thought or hoped it might be taking. I also tried to find out why the art of the past 20 years is so poorly covered in book form.

Art Books and Their Audience

The core audience for art books—defined here as illustrated books about the visual arts with serious, usually scholarly and/or critical texts—is essentially a specialized one; it has been assumed by many publishers for many years that this audience numbers at most 3,000. There is also, at times, a larger audience for art books, an audience that is eagerly sought for obvious financial reasons: the larger a book's print-run, the lower the unit cost per book, and the greater the chances the individual title will be profitable. The figure 10,000 is given repeatedly as the number of books needed to be printed to make an art book project financially feasible. Another "truism" of publishing is that the specialized, small audience and the larger general audience are almost entirely different; the goal, nonetheless, for many publishers is to find a title that will appeal to both.

And there have occasionally been such books: one notable example is Georgia O'Keeffe (Viking, 1976). No monograph had previously been published on this eminent American artist. Viking spared no cost in research or production (the artist wouldn't have agreed to the project otherwise). But, as Barbara Burn, until recently editorial director of Studio Books at Viking, remembers: "In addition to it being a good subject and a quality production, the book succeeded because it also captured the imagination of many people, whether they were interested in art, women or the Southwest. O'Keeffe turned 90 that year, PBS did a documentary on her. For all these reasons, the 25,000-copy cloth printing was sold out before publication." (Viking subsequently reprinted the luxury volume in a smaller format in both hardcover and paper. This edition continues to sell; and there are now over 200,000 copies in print.)

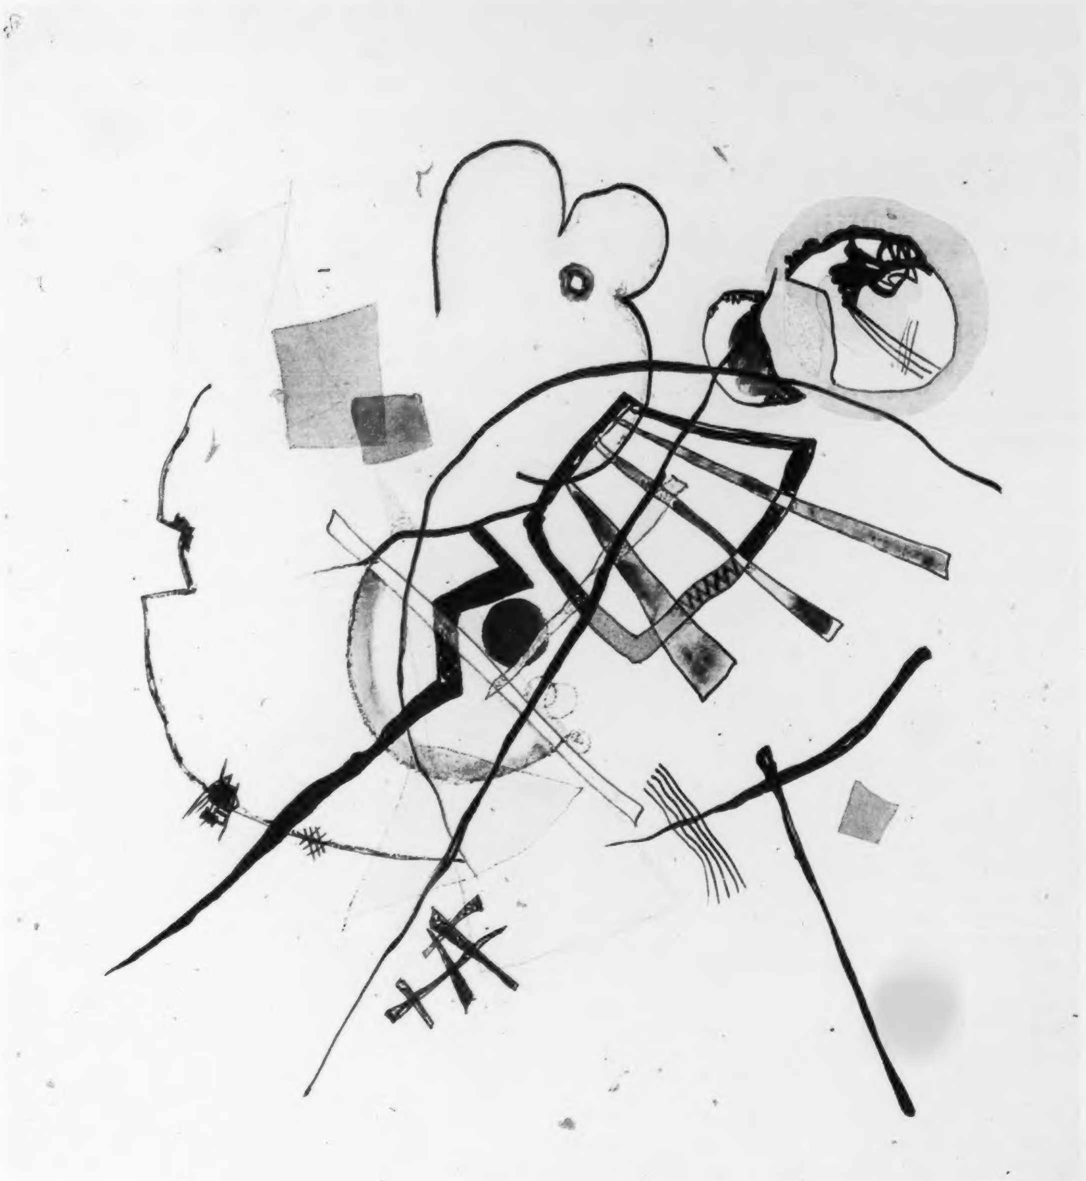
A more recent example, also from Viking, is Lady: Lisa Lyon by Robert Mapplethorpe [see p.7]. The book's 25,000-copy printing is aimed at the contemporary art world (Mapplethorpe recently had three simultaneous solo shows), at body builders, and not least at a general public of voyeurs-at-large.

What becomes apparent is that for an art book to be successful, it must strike the fancy of a number of rather small, sometimes overlapping audiences. And since very few projects are sure things, publishers have various methods to increase their print runs. One major strategy is co-publishing, which is done by trade publishers and book clubs, by museums and trade publishers, by trade and text-book publishers, and by trade publishers of different nationalities. The theory is that if all editions of the same book are printed at the same time, the costs will be lowered, while allowing each publisher to reach different and separate audiences. They have thus effectively split the market but in aggregate reach a larger one than any of them could have reached individually.

The Publishers

Art books are produced by specialized and general trade publishers, by museums, by university presses and by artists themselves. Most significant among the changes in art publishing is the dominant role museums have come to play in the entire art book publishing field. Museums have always sold their catalogues through their own bookshops or to their own members and others by direct mail. But

VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI



Kandinsky, "Locker," 1924, Aquarell, 37 x 24 cm

GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER
ALBERTUSSTRASSE 18
5 COLOGNE 1
49 (221) 23 58 37

GALLERIA PAOLO SPROVIERI
3, PIAZZA DEL POPOLO
ROME
39 (6) 361 09 75

ARP BALLA BRAUNER DUBUFFET ERNST FONTANA FAUTRIER YVES KLEIN
LEGER MAGRITTE PICABIA PICASSO SCHWITTERS STELLA TWOMBLY

many museums in recent times have vigorously entered the trade book arena, either by co-publishing with trade book publishers, or by selling their publications to book stores directly. The consequences are complex.

Since all art books finally reach the same mixed audience, it is not surprising that many trade book publishers view museum publications as a mixed blessing. Some art book publishers see museums, quite rightly, as having advantages in financing and selling their publications. At the same time the fortunes of the trade book publishers have been bolstered by income from co-publishing with museums, since trade publishers, for a relatively low investment, can add to their lists high-quality and prestigious books produced by these institutions.

A related advantage to the publishing field as a whole is the fact that museums generally set a comparatively high standard in writing and design. And museums also provide marketing advantages for all publishers: the museum bookstore has become an important outlet not only for museum catalogues but for all art books—a role that is especially significant since the increasingly large and powerful chain book stores have in recent seasons resisted ordering high-priced art books.

The Museum as Publisher

Financing is the obvious sore spot in trade publishers' laments. Museum publishing frequently benefits from exhibition grants to underwrite some of a publication's costs. And museums often receive their texts "free," if they are written by staff curators. An even more invisible advantage is the policy of some museums to provide free or discounted books as one of the privileges of membership. This practice allows an institution like the Museum of Modern Art, for example, to increase print-runs by 5,000 to 20,000 copies (depending on the book) beyond the quantities estimated for sales to the general public—an increase which results in considerable savings on the costs of producing each book.

In addition, a museum's status as a not-for-profit institution makes it eligible for favorable postal rates as well as for tax-deductible contributions from corporations and private patrons. Consequently museums' profit margins (and retail prices), if they choose, can be lower than that of trade publishers. A very basic difference between trade publishers and museums is that museums don't necessarily need to make a profit from books they publish to stay in business to accomplish their primary task.

One should note, however, that trade book publishers, too, at times, receive subsidies: from galleries that would like to see their artists "enshrined" in a book; from collectors who are asked to pay for color separations when works they own are to be reproduced; and from the artists themselves, who are sometimes required to provide drawings or prints for a special, limited-edition book to supplement a trade edition, or to produce special print editions (not necessarily related to the book at all) as part of the terms of a publishing deal.

Similar subsidies underly the production of certain museum catalogues as well. Yet trade book publishers are more often chastised for such practices than the museums. Museums are assumed to have the artist's rather than their own financial interests at heart, while publishers are blamed for their mercenary schemes, and are viewed as exploiting galleries, collectors, artists—that is, anyone who might subsequently benefit from an increase in an artist's prices. What should be stressed is that most art books must be subsidized somehow. Artists' reputations (as well as their sale prices) are, in the end, inevitably enhanced by either trade or museum publishing. (Vanity publishing in the art field is a somewhat different story but overlaps with all this; many art books would not otherwise be published if they weren't paid for in advance.)

The advantages that big museums have over big trade book publishers are considerable. The books themselves, though, follow a similar pattern in sales. Museum publications on contemporary artists, like those from the trade publishers, tend to have small printings, whereas books on modern "masters" have large ones. Among Beaubourg's catalogues last year, those on Robert Ryman and Ellsworth Kelly had small initial print runs, Jackson Pollock a large one. And while the Museum of Modern Art has published catalogues (membership sales not included here) of 2,000 to 5,000 (Sophie Tauber-Arp, Richard Neutra, Louise Bourgeois), and more typically those in the 7,500 to 10,000 range (De Chirico, for example), it has indeed had some bestsellers. In 1980, MOMA ordered a 300,000 copy initial print run for William Rubin's Picasso; foreign editions in Italian, Spanish, German, Swedish and Japanese amounted to another 30,000 copies. (MOMA's Family of Man, originally published in 1955, one of the museum's long-run bestsellers, is now going into its 29th printing, with over 3 million copies in print.)

But the Museum of Modern Art is exceptional for other reasons. Book publishing was taken seriously by the museum from its inception; its first title, Cézanne, Gauguin, Seurat, Van Gogh was published in 1929, accompanying the museum's first exhibition. MOMA is rare among museums (and trade publishers of monographs as well) in that the museum pays authors a royalty on books when it is felt that those books have potential trade interest—whether they are written by their own curators or by freelance writers. (More typically in the art field, the writer who contributes a short text to a big book receives a one time payment called a "flat fee.") MOMA is also unusual in that it has arranged for research funds and published books on subjects not tied to exhibitions. John Rewald's History of Impressionism and his Post-Impressionism were both produced under museum auspices this way.

Museums, indeed, are in an enviable position vis-à-vis the trade book publishers. They not only have a built-in specialized, often affluent audience, as well as the much broader general public right at their door, but their own bookshops give them other kinds of economic advantages. Trade book publishers must give bookshops (or middlemen, such as distributors or wholesalers) discounts that can amount to well over 50 percent of the retail price of a book. Admittedly, the publishing and retail divisions of museums function separately. Nevertheless, when half the price of a book ultimately stays "in house," these not-for-profit institutions, ironically, stand a better chance of making a profit than the trade book publishers do. Beaubourg, for example, sells 40 percent of the books it publishes at the museum. (Another 30 percent are sold through bookshops in France; 30 percent as exports.)

University Presses, Gallery Publications, Artists Books

University press books, gallery publications, and artists books also have different and in some ways less pressing requirements than those issued by the trade publishers.

University presses occupy a special position in the publishing spectrum; in recent years they've provided a range of scholarly as well as luxurious titles, and more experimental works as well. The Nova Scotia College of Art publishes a series that has much in common with artists' books though at present that particular press seems to be retreating from its vanguard approach. The University of California Press published Lawrence Wechsler's critical biography of Robert Irwin and has also republished and kept in print Alfred Frankenstein's 1969 ground-breaking study of trompe-l'oeil painting, After the Hunt. MIT, on the other hand, has been in the forefront of architectural publishing with its "Oppositions" series, and its five-volume Le Corbusier: Sketchbooks is one of the major accomplishments in art publishing in recent years. (The work was published with support from the Architectural History Foundation, and in collaboration with the Fondation Le Corbusier, Paris.)

Gallery publications are most closely tied to the art market; artists' books are the least commercial publications—conceptually and deliberately outside the established showing and selling circuits. Both types of publications have tangential yet growing importance to the book trade.

Galleries usually publish books on the artists they represent, when those artists' prices and reputations warrant the investment. Marlborough, Pace and Blum/Helman, for example, often commission texts by the same scholars and critics who write for the art press and for the trade book publishers, and they pay those writers at more favorable rates. Expensive to produce, these elegantly illustrated exhibition catalogues serve the dual function of publicity and scholarship . The selling of art, which these publications support, is a much more lucrative endeavor than the sale of books.

Artists' books are intentionally democratic. Anyone with access to a typewriter, Xerox machine or photo-offset service can produce them quickly and inexpensively. They are usually distributed through a few specialized outlets like Printed Matter in New York, and Ecart in Switzerland. Some artists' books are produced as livres de luxe and are sold through galleries. Quite recently, certain artists' books have begun to find their way onto the trade publishers lists as well.

Abrams launched its artists' book series with such veterans as Ruscha, LeWitt, Christo and Arakawa, and recently published Jennifer Bartlett's In the Garden, a drawing series of epic scope, as well as China Diary, a collaboration between David Hockney and poet Stephen Spender. Thames & Hudson also has a new artists' book series, starting with Humument: A Created Victorian Novel by Tom Phillips and Richard Hamilton's Collected Words.

The Museum of Modern Art,

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
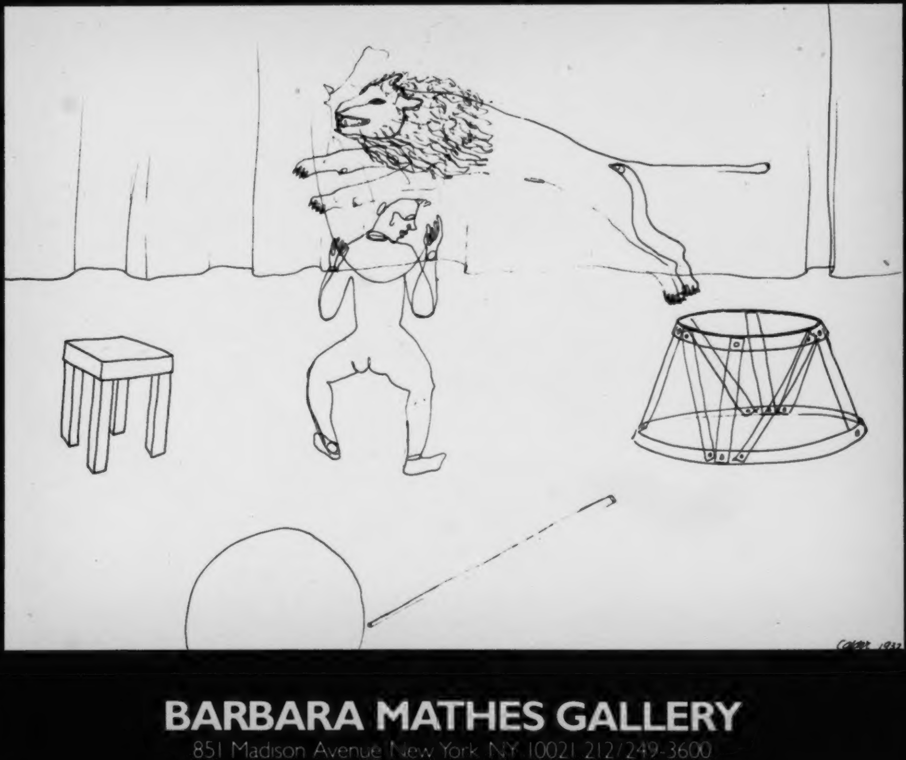
UMI

JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY
228 Grant Avenue San Francisco, California 94108 (415) 781-4629

RICHARD DIEBENKORN "Ocean Park #92" 1976 ROY LICHTENSTEIN "Sound of Music" 1964 FRANK STELLA "Thruxton" 1982



ALEXANDER CALDER
(1898-1976)
Through the Hoop
1932
Ink on paper
22¼ × 30½ inches
Signed and dated, lower right

Other works by BLUEMNER
BLUME
DEMUTH DOVE
HARTLEY
NADELMAN
O'KEEFFE
SCHAMBERG
SHEELER
TORR

BARBARA MATHES GALLERY
851 Madison Avenue New York NY 10021 212/249-3600

too, has just released the first four titles in its new artists' book series. There are two collaborations between painters and poets—Richard Bosman and Ted Greenwald; and Georg Baselitz with A.R. Penck (the latter a painter represented here by his poems). A boxed set of postcard size photos of sculptures by Bryan Hunt and Gary Stephan's little black book of diagrammatic notations on vellum completes this initial series.

It would be nice to think that artists' books have come into trade publishing mainly because the industry wishes to augment stylistically the monographic/biographical/critical studies they usually publish. Or that these publications reflect an acknowledgment that artists themselves have a right to speak for their own work. But in reality it seems to be a relatively simple way to get pretested "new product." Most of the artists initially chosen have had great success with their own self-published books.

Pairing an artist's book with a retrospective catalogue, though, indeed provides a particularly good overview of an artist's work. William Wegman's Man's Best Friend (Abrams) complements the Walker Art Center's catalogue to Wegman's '82 retrospective. And Ed Ruscha's Guacamole Airlines (also from Abrams), a book of the artists drawings, "introduced" by a Peter Schjeldahl poem, preceded the publication of Ruscha's 1982 exhibition catalogue, I DON'T WANT NO RETROSPECTIVE (Hudson Hills), which contains numerous essays embracing many points of view and fold-out color reproductions that give a sense of the sweep of some of Ruscha's long, horizontal works.

Frankfurt Book Fair

Trade book publishers convene each October in Frankfurt, Germany for a convention that is the world's most important meeting place for the sale and acquisition of book rights and translations. This year, there were more than 5,500 publishers from 86 countries (from Albania to Zimbabwe) exhibiting over 280,000 books of which 84,000 were new publications. With a special hall devoted to more than 400 art publishers and, in the International Hall, hundreds of other trade publishers, museums and art galleries, the fair is indeed overwhelming. Publishers schedule appointments with each other at half-hour intervals and move through these football-field size arenas at a clip that is rare in an industry which is as infamous for the years it can take between the commissioning of a manuscript and the final production of a bound book as for the customary leisurely lunch. At Frankfurt, lunch is a fast wurst and a beer on the fair grounds, an indication that the mood is all business.

Dominating the publishers' stands are lavishly produced picture books devoted to such subjects as travel, hobbies, decorating, nature, great cities or great museums—gift books that won't be dealt with here. (Nor will textbooks, except to note that Janson's History of Art, published by Abrams/Norton, now has over 2 million copies in print; Janson and Rosenblum's Nineteenth Century Sculpture is due from the same publishers this fall; and that American Women by Artists (by Charlotte S. Rubinstein, published by G.K. Hall) was recently released.

Picture books are assumed to have the widest general public; they also tend to have the fewest (or no) words to translate. Picture books on contemporary artists tend also to have a few-words-to-many pictures ratio. Such big monographs with many color reproductions in a standard series format were featured by Ediciones Poligrafa of Barcelona. While the results of most international publishing deals are made known privately among publishers, Ediciones Poligrafa, a Barcelona printer and pubilsher, kept a running tote board outside its booth. Down the side of the chart were 29 titles including Picasso, Miró, Dali and Ernst and such contemporaries as Henry Moore, George Segal and Fritz Scholder. Next to each entry, markers showed whether rights had been sold to the USSR, France, U.S., England, Germany, Italy, Japan, Spain, Sweden, Denmark, Portugal and Czechoslovakia. Honors (6 sales each) were shared by Picasso and Henry Moore. George Segal fared worst, with only one sale (U.S.) after his name.

Monographs on contemporary artists were few. Abbeville introduced a new "modern masters" series, described as "a starting point for anyone interested in contemporary art." According to publisher Bob Abrams, "these will be books on the major contemporary masters at prices accessible to artists, students and interested amateurs." The line-up thus far includes de Kooning, Roy Lichtenstein, George Segal and Andy Warhol, with Hans Hofmann, Francis Bacon and Joseph Beuys scheduled for next season. The books, as Abrams describes them, will have "academically acceptable texts, interviews with the artists, plus documentation of exhibitions—chronologies and bibliographies."

All of these artists have appeared in book form before, often repeatedly. Claes Oldenburg, originally slated to be published in the series, withdrew and made his reasons clear to the publisher. According to Coosje Van Brugge, art historian and critic as well as Oldenburg's collaborator on book projects (and, incidentally, his wife), in an interview with this writer, "we withdrew because it was too restricted a group of artists, and not a representative cross-section of American art. There seemed to be no point in once again publishing general studies of these artists, while there is a need for critical studies of their entire careers. More significantly, there are many important artists, like Donald Judd, Sol LeWitt, Richard Serra, to name just a few, who have not been published in book form but only in museum catalogues. To go to the same artists over and over assumes only that artists are interested in self-promotion. The publishers cannot conceive that artists are interested in other artists but themselves."

According to Bob Abrams, "People are always bitching that there are not enough contemporary books, but many of them that could be published are boring." He is the first to admit that he has no interest in Minimalism or Conceptualism but publishes, as good publishers do, the works that interest him most. Abrams also spoke of other kinds of problems, that, second only to economic difficulties, were of major concern to publishers at the fair. "There are very few good art writers. And we're not seeing very good proposals—they're not carefully presented or thought out. They just don't come to me. I'm always interested in an important subject from a good writer where there's also a market."

George Aldor, veteran art book publisher (now editorial consultant to Rizzoli and formerly president of Praeger) described the situation, thus, "The emphasis on co-publishing is part of the problem—aiming for artists who have international markets narrows the field. If there were less emphasis on co-publishing there might be more books of local interest. There is overpublishing of the same people—five or six books in a row on Lichtenstein, for example, is too much. Museums are killing art book publishing, and money is a problem all around."

There are, at present, many contemporary artists with international reputations—ironically, many of the very Minimalists and Conceptualists who are not being published. The slightly hidden criterion for qualifying for international co-publication is not only an international reputation, but a large and diverse international collecting market: buyers of original works of art as well as collectors of prints, multiples and posters. A monograph in the home might be said to give credibility (and implied value) to the print on the wall.

Aside from the dearth of contemporary monographs, there were indeed a number of surprises to be found, not only from some small, new publishers, but from some of the largest, most general trade houses: from Francesco Conz of Verona, Fluxus books and archive boxes; from Editions Marzona, Dusseldorf, a beautifully designed photography series, including books on Bauhaus photography and one on Muncasi. Arion Press of San Francisco, fine printers of limited editions, had advance proofs of Jim Dine's Apocalypse, published in an edition of 150 copies, and is planning to bring out John Ashbery's poem Self-Portrait in a Convex Mirror (first published in A.i.A., Jan. 1975, and subsequently the title poem to a collection which won for Ashbery the U.S.'s literary triple crown—Pulitzer Prize, National Book Award and National Book Critics Circle prize). The portfolio will be designed in a round format, with prints by Alex Katz, Jane Freilicher, Kitaj, Jim Dine and Larry Rivers, all stacked in a round box with a convex mirror embedded in the lid. In '83 Arion will also publish Dashiell Hammett's The Maltese Falcon, with vintage California photographs.

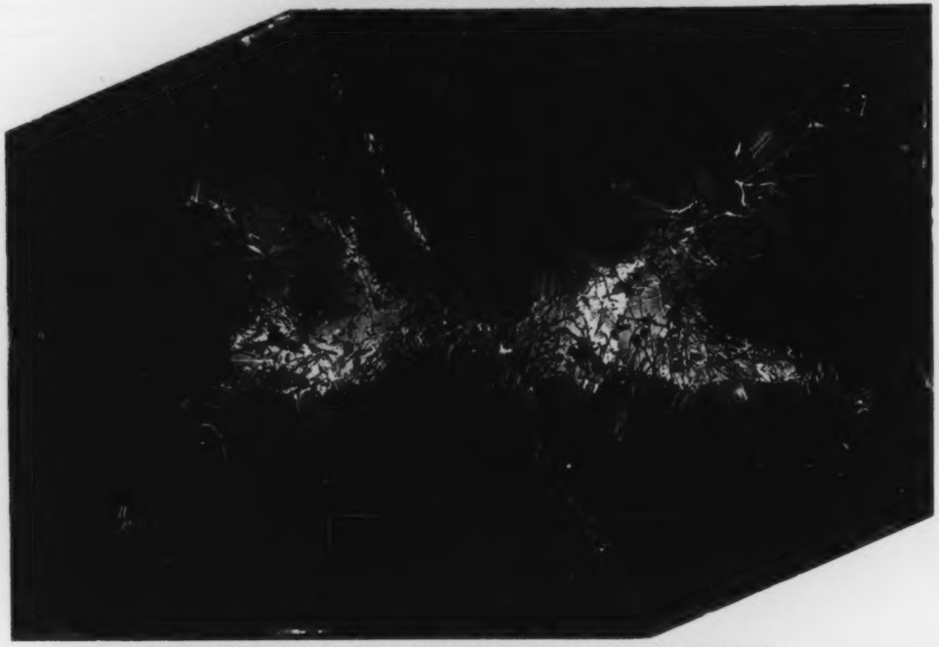
Philippe Sers is following up his book Man Ray with one of Berenice Abbott's photos, as well as with 1917-1942: Pioneers of Soviet Photography and a book on Corbusier's Paris projects. Readers and Writers Collaborative, of London, has reissued all of John Berger's books; Elephantin of Berlin showed its comprehensive photographic surveys of gypsies and its book on Schinkel's architecture, and is planning a historical and political survey of German art immediately before, during and after World War II. There was also a booth for Audio Arts, London producers of tapes by such artists as Laurie Anderson, Richard Hamilton and Dieter Rot, and one called "Feminist Issues in Contemporary Art," by Margaret Harrison in conversation with Lucy Lippard.

Art Catalogues, Los Angeles, exhibited a valuable international archive of gallery and museum publications and is a particularly good source for buying monographs on contemporary art, many more of which have been published by European museums than American. (The Gilbert &

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

ROSE LINDZON

MONTREAL
JUNE 1 - 25



TORONTO
OCT 1 - 15

THEO WADDINGTON GALLERIES

MONTREAL
1504 Sherbrooke Street West
Montreal, Quebec H3G 1L3
Tel. (514) 933-3653

TORONTO
33 Hazelton Avenue
Toronto, Ontario M5R 2E3
Tel. (416) 925-2461

NEW YORK
1044 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10021
Tel. (212) 861-0600

June

Sylvia Plimack Mangold

Paintings 1965-1982

July

John Ahearn

Sculpture Installation

August

Richard Bosman/Martha Diamond/Yvonne Jacquette
George Negroponte/Judy Rifka/Alan Turner/and others

Brooke Alexander, Inc.

20 West 57th Street New York City, New York 10019 Telephone 212/757-3721

George catalogue, from Eindhoven, with text by Carter Ratcliff, is a good example.)

One of the best monographs of '82, Lawrence Gowing's Lucien Freud, was published by Thames & Hudson, London. Exemplary in that it's a holdable, readable, beautiful book that elicits the personality and history of both writer (also a painter) and artist, it lyrically and visually documents Freud's entire career. When asked how it was possible for Thames & Hudson to successfully publish such a book at this time, as well as monographs on Rodin, Malevich, El Lissitzky and Rodchenko plus several artists' books and a variety of scholary, historical and critical books, Stanley Barron, editorial director, explained "we have been known for producing well-edited, carefully crafted books for more than 20 years," but more tellingly, that his goal was "to publish books written by important and entertaining people."

As to contemporary surveys, there were very few. Among the most current were Achille Bonito Oliva's Avanguardia Transavanguardia, published in '82 by Electa, and Overlay by Lucy Lippard (Pantheon). Of the very few publishers that can afford to do surveys, the most prominent is the Museum of Modern Art. Its Primitivism and Modern Art, edited by William Rubin and scheduled for publication in September '84, generated much interest. With 16 essays, roughly 500 black-and-white photos and 160 color plates planned, the project will be enormously expensive to translate and produce. The museum therefore selectively showed the proposal—but was not selling rights just yet—to both publicize the book and to see which other publishers might be willing to take part in a project of such scholarly and costly dimensions. MOMA is also planning a big, mostly picture, book, to accompany its "International Survey of Contemporary Painting and Sculpture," curated by Kynaston McShine and scheduled to open the museum's new facilities in spring '84.

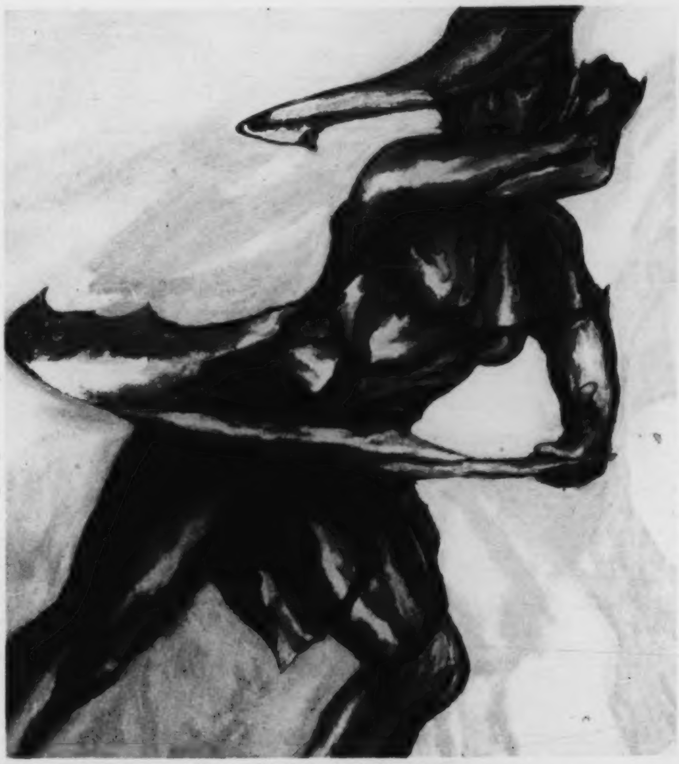
As to the direction art books might be taking, Tony Mathews, who began as a publisher of artists' books and is currently the head of Idea Books, Amsterdam, which issued Adolf Loos, one of the jewels of the season, had a lot to say. "The success of an art book depends on the vitality of the research, which publishers themselves must do before commissioning a writer." Mathews's lists have changed as his research interests have changed, and as the taste of the public has changed. "You can't dismiss what people want to know about or read about. The big art market peaked in the '60s. People are now looking back, and the publishers are searching for unexplored historical areas." His prognosis for the future: "Architecture is just about over; photography is still relatively unexplored." Then what? "Sociology, perhaps, or it could be, even, back to art."

The risks for art book publishers are high. The costs of producing and distributing illustrated books have increased dramatically while the audience and profit margins (despite high prices) remain low. It must be added that publishing is an extremely peculiar business—it is a very rare industry in which the product made can be returned to the producer from the retailer—within a prescribed period of time—for full credit.

With these and many more problems facing publishers, it is remarkable, as it has often been said, that any books get published at all. In addition to enormously high postal rates and IRS rulings that tend to discourage publishers from keeping their inventories, the very definition of art books has come under question. U.S. Customs recently held up Artpress's Berenice Abbott en route from its Japanese printer, claiming that the book didn't have enough words to qualify as a book, and that it really was a lithographic portfolio subject to import tariff as art work.

Nonetheless, despite the art-book publishers' very real problems, it is important to bear in mind that many of these problems have been caused by the publishers themselves. An apparent inability to distinguish between good and mediocre art writers seems endemic to commissioned series. And a lack of interest in new art and new writers is widely apparent as well. Just as art galleries are only as good as the artists they show, and publishers the writers they publish, so art book publishers must depend on both artists and writers if they are not to become moribund.

In addition, the traditional art book publishers' continuing commitment to a formulaic grand style of packaging now seems overblown, and unrelated to the needs of contemporary readers. Much as the American car industry had to face up to the fact that the public did not want the behemoths it was providing—a fantasy of their maker's estimations of consumer desires—and had to both scale down the size and increase the utility of their products only after sales went down, the problems we're seeing and the changes that are taking place in art book publishing, are a healthy and optimistic sign for readers, writers, artists, publishers—and most of all for books.



Unfurling Figure acrylic on canvas 40"x36" des Rioux © 1981

COLLECTOR'S CHOICE

SELECTIONS BY

ETHEL SCULL

ten artists from New York's alternative galleries

An AARG, Inc. production

June 9-28, 1983

with acrylic paintings by

DEENA DES RIOUX

PLEIADES GALLERY 164 Mercer Street, New York City 10012

VOL
7
1

ISS
6

SUM

1983

UMI

AVERY AT THE SEA

Milton Avery, Sails and beach umbrella, 1960, oil on canvas, 32 x 42 inches.

June 10-July 15

Firebird Gallery
in cooperation with Roberto White & Associates
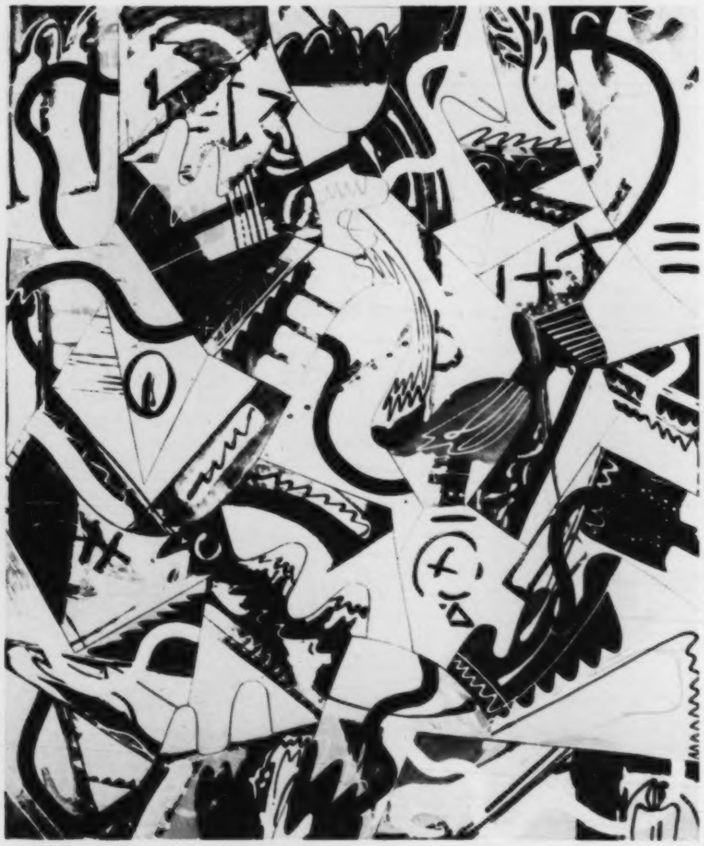
3844 S. Alameda
Lamar Park Center
Corpus Christi, Texas 78411
512 / 851 · 2841



Tomorrow Never Knows, 1982, Alkyd enamel on plywood, 58" x 48"

Scott Hadfield
Paintings

4-30 June,
1983

BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury Street Boston MA 02116 Telephone 617 262 4490

RUSSIAN AVANT-GARDE 1910-1930

[illegible] PAINTINGS, GOUACHES, WATERCOLORS, DRAWINGS AND PRINTS BY [illegible] GONCHAROVA, KLIUN, LISSITZKY, MALEVICH, PUNI, RODCHENKO

[illegible]

ALEXANDR BOGOMAZOV 1912-1928

FIRST ONE MAN SHOW IN THE WEST OF THE IMPORTANT RUSSIAN THEORETICIAN WHOSE CONCEPT OF "PURE PAINTING" WAS EXPOUNDED IN HIS TREATISE OF 1914 "PAINTING AND ITS ELEMENTS" IN WHICH HE IDENTIFIED THE BLACK SQUARE AS THE TOTALITY OF SIGNS IN ART ... AN ORIGINATOR OF ABSTRACT PAINTING WHOSE WORK PREDATES THE PUBLISHED OR EXHIBITED WORK OF KASIMIR MALEVICH.

MODERNISM

ART OF THE 20TH CENTURY

[illegible]

VOL
7 1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
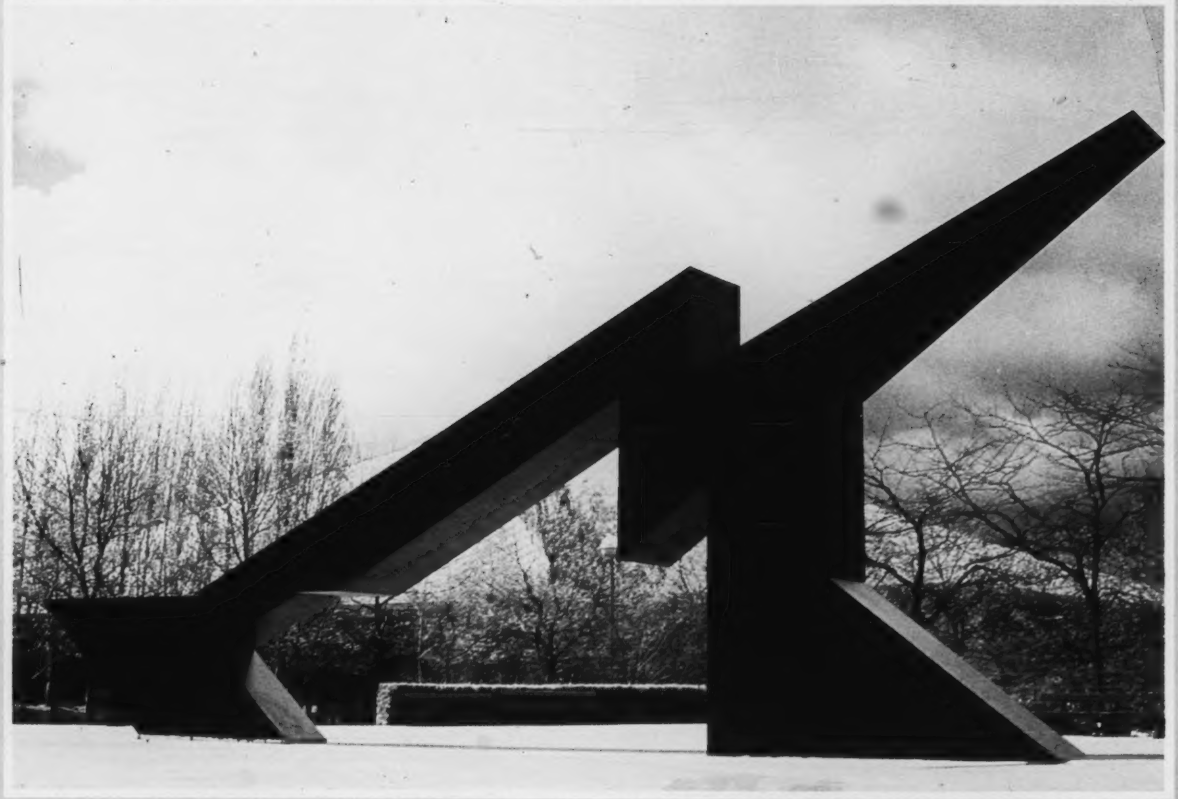
UMI



RONALD BLADEN
"Black Lightning," 1981
60 ft. long, 24 ft. high, 4-5 ft. wide. Installed at Seattle City Center, Seattle, Washington. Other Installations: Albany, New York; Baltimore, Maryland; Buffalo, New York, Des Moines, Iowa; Dusseldorf, Germany; Peoria, Illinois; Springfield, Ohio; West Palm Beach, Florida

INFORMATION
RONALD BLADEN 5 WEST 21ST STREET NEW YORK, NY 10010 (212) 929-4295

Report from Paris
Cobraphilia

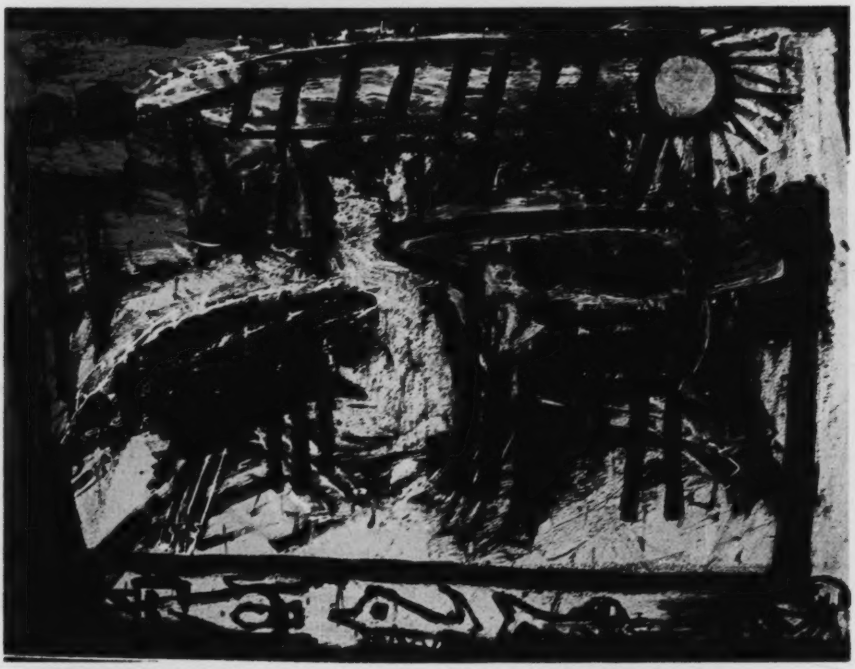
BY LYNNE COOKE

Recent art-world trends have prompted a renewed interest in the short-lived Cobra movement, the European counterpart to American Abstract Expressionism.

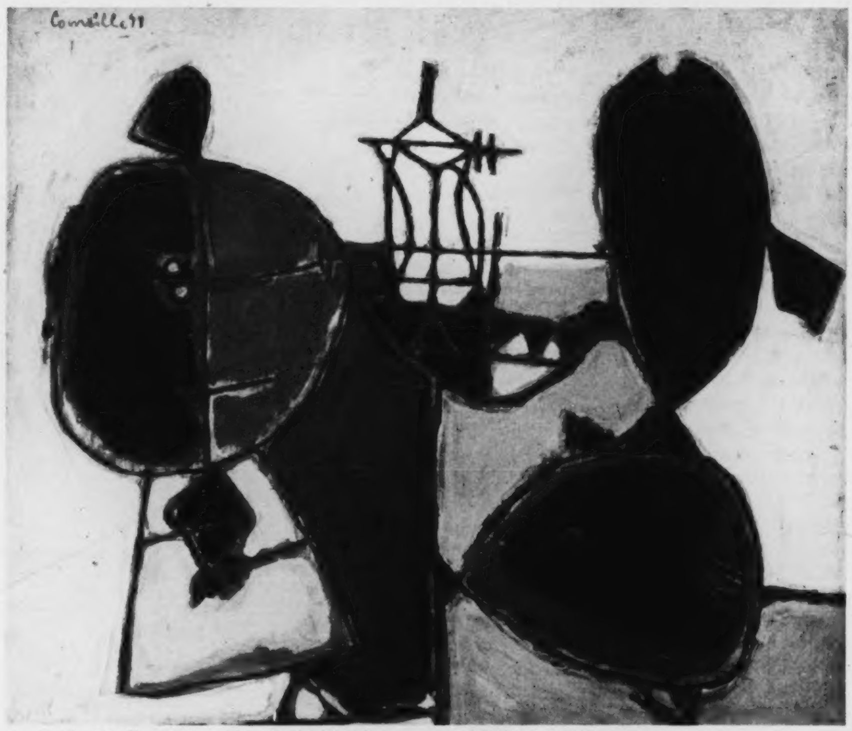
The Cobra movement was intensely active in various cities in Denmark, Holland and Belgium during its short life, from 1948 to 1951. Its name is an acronym drawn from the names of its three principal cities, Copenhagen, Brussels and Amsterdam. The group included artists from numerous countries (among others, Jorn, Pedersen and Jacobsen from Denmark; Atlan from France; Appel, Constant and Corneille from Holland; Alechinsky from Belgium; Gear and Gilbert from England; and Götz from Germany). Its members were energetic publicists for the cause, organizing their own group shows (in addition to exhibitions held by dealers) and publishing books, a magazine called COBRA and a broadsheet. Collective work, whether decorating the interiors of buildings, creating public murals or working on the peinture-écriture pieces in which a poet and painter collaborated, fostered international contacts. But over the past 30 years, Cobra has gradually almost disappeared from sight.

Several factors may have contributed to its virtual absence from most accounts of postwar art (with the exception of those written in Holland, Denmark and Belgium). It seems that the group's very insistence on subverting the artistic hegemony of Paris is, ironically, the main reason for the Cobra artists' absence from the majority of current surveys. In choosing chiefly to work and exhibit outside the French capital, and in pitting their art against School of Paris codes, the Cobra Group simply stepped outside Francophile accounts. That they figure so rarely in British and American texts may be because for the most part they do not fit easily into the prevailing modernist view of 20th-century art. Their eclipse may also have been speeded by the fact that with the exception of Jorn, Appel and Alechinsky, few of the Cobra artists went on, after 1951, to make work that surpassed their earlier efforts. Thus the group does not, in retrospect, appear to have been the training ground for future masters.

Recently, however, several large Euro-



Karel Appel:* Animals, *1948, oil on wood, 37 ¾ by 49 ½ inches. Collection the artist.



Corneille:* Mediterranean World, *1949, oil on canvas, 23 ⅝ by 27 ½ inches.

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
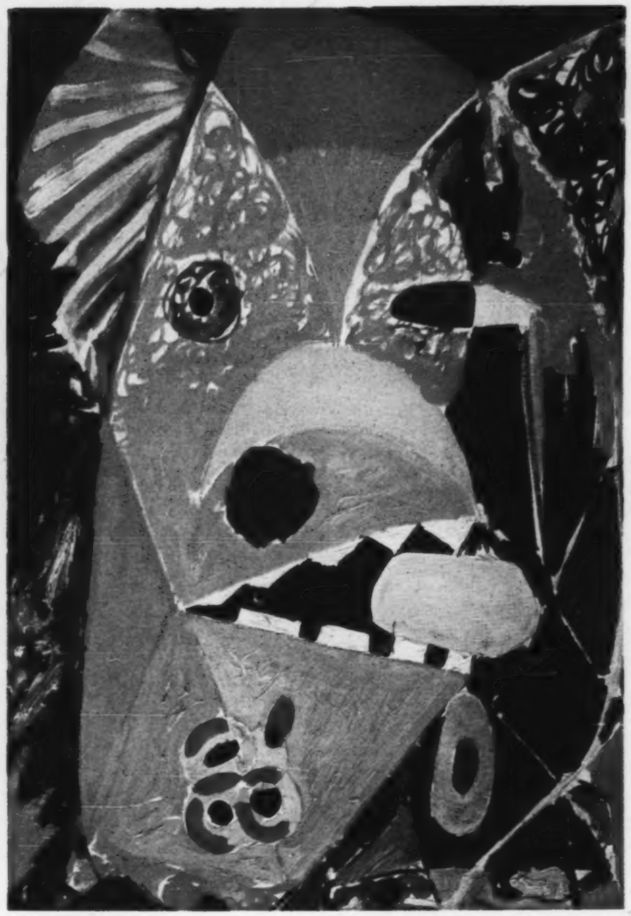
UMI

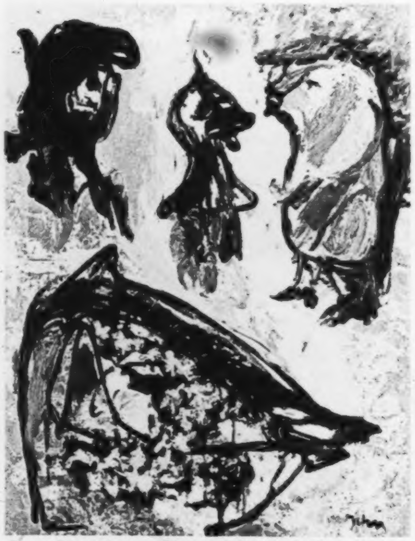
Asger Jorn: Untitled, 1947, oil on canvas 39 3/8 by 31 7/8 inches. Private collection, Paris.



Egill Jacobsen: Orange Object, 1946, oil on canvas, 51 by 35 1/4 inches. Statens Museum for Kunst, Copenhagen.

pean exhibitions have included works by Cobra artists: "Westkunst" (Cologne 1981), "Paris–Paris" (Paris 1981) and "Aftermath" (London 1982). And two major survey shows, accompanied by excellent catalogues, have been devoted exclusively to the group: the first at the Kunstgewerbe-Verein, Hamburg, in 1982 and the second, which will tour, currently at the Musée d'Art Moderne in Paris. The Paris show is particularly notable in several respects. The selections pay due tribute to the internationalism of the movement proper, as well as to an earlier Danish contingent—Pederson, Jacobsen, Bille and others—who, at the end of the '30s, provided the seedbed from which Cobra later flowered. And the accompanying catalogue, with its extensive and detailed chronology, is a valuable addition to the still scanty literature on the group.

Together with the Jorn retrospective (at the Guggenheim Museum in New York last fall, now at the Barbican Center, London), these exhibitions may herald a change in critical fortune for the group. Various trends in the art world account for this renewed interest, including a turning away from New York as the exclusive center for recent art activity, a wave of Neo-Expressionist and New Image painting, an across-the-board reassessment of the art of the '50s, and a gradual undermining of the narrowly orthodox modernist account of 20th-century art in general.



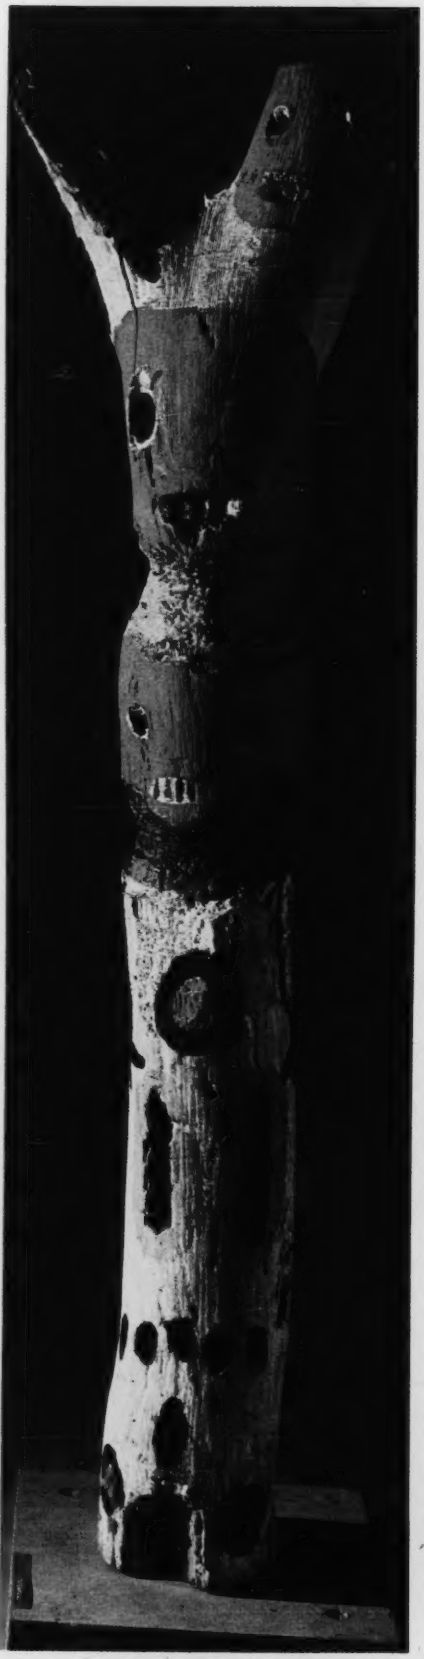
Jorn: Unwelcome Visit, 1956, 31 1/2 by 25 1/16 inches. Silkeborg Museum, Denmark.

Avoiding or subverting the "myth of Paris," as they deemed it, was one of the few tenets the Cobra group shared. With it came a commitment to experimentation, which, because loosely defined, encouraged the artists to go beyond the conventional boundaries of art practive and explore a wide stylistic range. At times their works touch variously on Surrealism, Art Brut and Tachisme. Antitheoretical, anti-intellectual and inclusive in their approach, the Cobra artists believed that the irrational and the sensory were the basis of experience and the instinctual the source of life. Like New York's Abstract Expressionists, who were their contemporaries, they were united more by what they opposed and rejected than by any real set of precepts. However, the parallels between the two groups go beyond the proscriptive nature of their respective bonds.

The rise of Abstract Expressionism during the '40s is generally attributed to a combination of circumstances thought to be unique to New York: extensive and easy access to 20th-century European art, in particular the School of Paris; a felicitous disregard for, or ignorance of, the theories underlying that art, and a consequent lack of inhibition about fusing styles that on the Continent would have been regarded as antithetical; the assiduousness with which the Museum of Modern Art covered both recent European trends and primitive art; and, finally, with the onset of World War II, the demise of Paris as the center of the art world. However, in Denmark the situation proves to have been curiously similar. Extensive shows of Cubist and Surrealist work helped familiarize Danes with those movements, and were in no small part responsible for the high regard with which the Danish Cobra members were to hold artists like Miró, Ernst, Arp, Tanguy, Klee and Kandinsky. Study trips and visits to Paris in the late '30s further stimulated the Danish artists' avant-garde enthusiasms. They experimented with automatism and chance—as means rather than ends, but with the result nonetheless that they took up a spontaneous, improvisatory manner of working. When war closed the frontiers, the artists drew on these accumulated resources and combined them with an interest in primitive art, along with their own prehistoric heritage and all kinds of folk and popular art. Myth then became an important source of subject matter.

Not surprisingly, the roots and goals shared by the Danes and the New York "mythmakers" produced works that had much in common. But the similarities were short-lived. While the Americans gradually moved toward abstraction, via a freer, less encumbered pictorial language—one that they felt promised the possibility of universal rather than historically circumscribed truths—the Europeans did not follow suit. Perhaps their allegiance to the domain of primitive-popular art was too fundamental: in learning from Klee, for example, they found his world of images as telling as his pictorial innovations. The potency of the referential image continued to take priority over process for these northern European artists, though there was a strong conviction that the matière, the paint itself, should be used to generate forms. A liberator of content, the paint acted as a sort of ectoplasm from which the images were spawned. This insistence on directness tended to result in images that were simply strewn across the surface plane. Pictorial niceties and belle peinture were rejected in favor of direct expression. Most of these artists built their forms with overlaid strokes so that the color, often vibrant and shrill, filled the areas between the tonal drawing. The brush marks vary little in scale and appearance; they are merely a serviceable tool.

In many respects these paintings verge on classic Expressionism, yet Cobra art was neither autobiographical nor confessional: archetypal statements with an accessible, universal content were the goal. If the early, biomorphic works of Rothko, Newman and Gottlieb, though perhaps not of Pollock, can at times seem attenuated, even coy, beside those of, say, Appel or Jorn, it may be owing in part to the importance accorded purely formal means by the Americans. In their famous letter to the New York Times of June 13, 1943, Rothko, Newman and Gottlieb, while affirming the need for an art in which subject matter was crucial, gave particular emphasis to the role of certain pictorial components in achieving this end. By comparison, the Cobra artists' statements lack any sustained consideration of the contribution formal elements might make toward realizing their ideas. The fact that their children and poet-friends occasionally participated in collaborative works with them attests to further differences between the Cobra artists and their American counterparts. Whereas the New Yorkers' ambitions remained firmly rooted in a fine art tradition, Jorn and others of the Cobra Group espoused the idea that art is not the province of genius, and that everyone has the capacity to create.



Appel:* Totem, *1948, painted wood, 33 by 9 by 5 1/8 inches. Collection the artist.

While the ambitions of the Abstract Expressionists were firmly rooted in a fine art tradition, Jorn and others of the Cobra Group believed that art is not the province of genius, and that everyone has the capacity to create.

Expressionist styles seem, by their very nature, short-lived. It is as if the intensity and immediacy of an unpremeditated and unrefined response cannot be sustained over a long period of time—except artificially. The Expressionist artist eventually faces a dilemma: on the one hand, there is the possibility of lapsing into rhetoric and self-parodying repetition; on the other, of being deflected into more conventional paths while searching out solider grounds for pictorial construction. The careers of Kokoschka, Kirchner, Soutine and Nolde epitomized this quandary. Of those Cobra artists who continued in their Expressionist vein after the demise of the group, Appel and Jorn took the former course. Only Alechinsky seems to have dealt successfully with the dilemma: he avoided bombastic or sterile repetition by concentrating as much on pictorial inventiveness as on varying the appearance of his imagery.

The Cobra Group forswore objective reference to the human figure. Instead, it created a panoply of animal hybrids or borrowed folkloric characters such as kings and masked figures. These subjects are familiar, if fantastic—not bizarre in a Surrealist sense. They take on their mythic aspects and totemic presence through emblematic, hieratic presentation. In evolving such a repertoire of images the Cobra painters were very much of their time. Deploring the impossibility of using the human figure

VOL
7
1

ISS
6

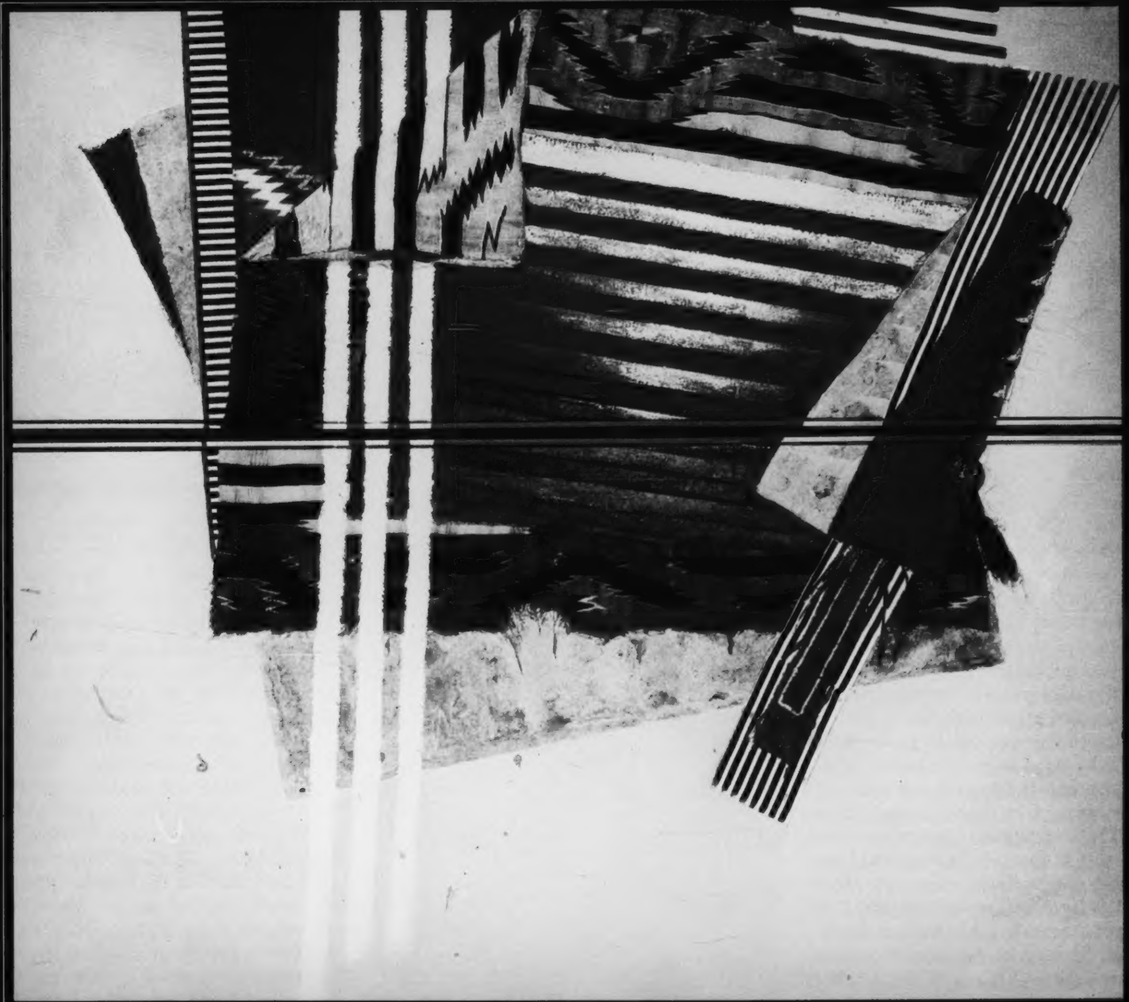
SUM

1983

UMI

Armond Lara

RECENT WORKS — "NOMAD SERIES"



"NOMAD #4 1882" by ARMOND LARA — 65" x 72¼" — DIPTYCH

SANTA FE • AUGUST 19th — AUGUST 29th
125 WEST SAN FRANCISCO/SANTA FE, N.M. 87501/505-982-9593

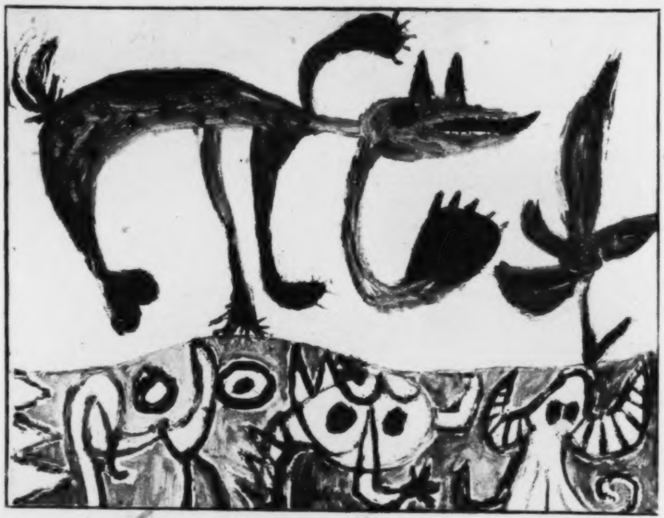
DALLAS • SEPTEMBER 10th — OCTOBER 15th
3000 MAPLE AVENUE/DALLAS, TEXAS 75201 / 214-742-3682

ADAMS·MIDDLETON GALLERY

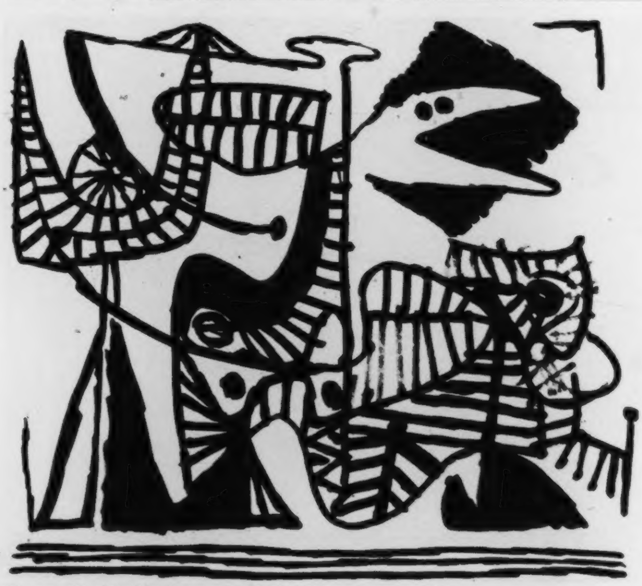
without mutilating it, Rothko and others moved into abstraction. In many European circles, by contrast, bestial hybrids did duty as metaphors for the missing human image. In the work of artists like César, Chadwick, Paolozzi, Richier, Lam and Matta these forms were imbued with a mood of anguish or horror that symbolized the despair of postwar "existential man."

Today, much of this work seems rhetorical or clichéd, a self-conscious cultivating of neuroses. But the Cobra artists, like Dubuffet, to whom they paid homage, by and large avoided these failings. In their works, few direct references to postwar angst may be detected; instead vivacity ranging from the mock-heroic to the lyrical informs their work. When demonic or horrific images do appear as external projections of inner fears, they seem to conjure up active confrontation rather than submission. For the Cobra artists, Gaston Bachelard, not Sartre, was the key influence. The preference for modest scale and the not infrequent use of fragile, ephemeral or thrown-together materials also contribute to the unpretentiousness of their works.

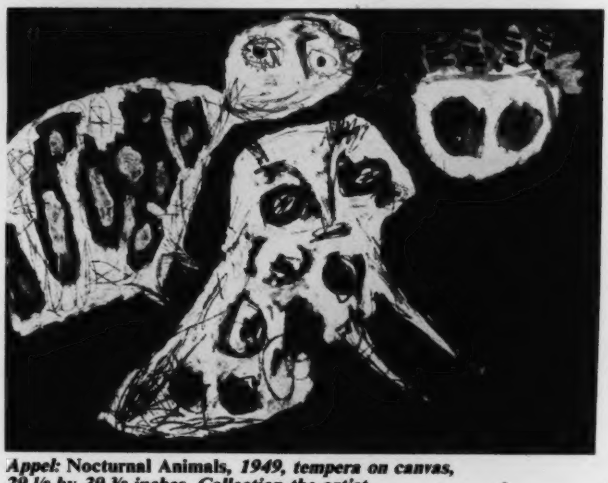
Differences in scale and handling of materials are not what most distinguish the Cobra painters from recent artists like Penck, Kiefer and Dokoupil, who also draw on atavistic images and/or mythic themes. In amassing a diverse and cumulative mythic imagery, the Cobra artists adopted a technique—current in the visual arts by the '30s at the latest—wherein mythic, popular and modern imagery were freely juxtaposed. This approach may in part have reflected contemporary anthropological theories, for by then the evolutionist view that regarded primitive man as inferior to his civilized counterpart had largely given way to alternative notions, ones that no longer defined the differences between the two in terms of inequalities, and indeed tended, as in the case of Malinowski, to emphasize the similarities. Today, anthropology has moved a great distance from comparative studies, and myth is routinely discussed in the far more abstract terms proposed by the structuralists and their successors. The degree to which such theoretical changes may affect the significance of introducing archaic imagery and mythic themes into contemporary art must at the moment remain a matter for speculation. But, to choose just one example, it seems possible that Penck's apparent failure to create an art more expressive and particular than it is arch and decorative is symptomatic of precisely this sort of theoretical shift towards the abstract. If so, the members of the Cobra Group may turn out to have been the last artists able to draw on the "primitive" tradition for vital stimulus rather than for, on the one hand, a nostalgic haven, or, on the other, intellectual sanctuary. ☐



Constant:* Fantastic Animals, *1947, oil on canvas, 13 by 17 11/16 inches.



Pierre Alechinsky:* Serpent, *1950, ink on paper, 16 1/8 by 16 15/16 inches. Collection the artist.



Appel:* Nocturnal Animals, *1949, tempera on canvas, 29 1/8 by 39 3/8 inches. Collection the artist.

Author: Lynne Cooke is a lecturer in art history at University College, London.

VOL 7 1
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

FRANCE: de l'Atlantique à la Méditerranée: ETE 1983

C.A.P.C.—MUSEE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN DE BORDEAUX — Juin-Juillet-Août
33000 Bordeaux

Sol LeWitt
Structures and wall drawings
Richard Long
"Postcards 1968-1982"
Exposition-dossier: Mondrian

Tél: (56) 44.16.35

REFECTOIRE DES JACOBINS and MUSEE DES AUGUSTINS — 10 Juin-14 Septembre
31000 Toulouse

"Empreinte—Geste—Surface/Empreinte—Trace—Volume
. . . Le Musée Décalé"

Tél: (61) 23.55.07

FONDATION DU CHATEAU DE JAU — 15 Juin-15 Septembre
66000 Perpignan

Robert Zakanitch

Tél: (68) 64.11.38

MUSEE FABRE — Juin-Juillet-Août
34000 Montpellier

Patrick Raynaud
Oeuvres Monumentales

Tél: (67) 66.06.34

ABBAYE DE SENANQUE—Centre International de Création Artistique — 9 Juillet-29 Août
84220 Gordes

Antoni Tàpies
Bois, vernis et toile

Tél: (90) 72.02.05

MUSEE CANTINI — 20 Juin-15 Septembre
13006 Marseilles

Alfred Hofkunst
"Homage à Marseilles"

Tél: (91) 54.77.75

MUSEE DE TOULON
83000 Toulon

Noëlle Tissier — Juin
"Carte blanche à Francois Bazzoli";
Louis Chacallis; Jean Lamouroux: — 16 Juillet-30 Septembre
"La peinture religieuse" collections dossier 3

Tél: (94) 93.15.54

FONDATION MAEGHT — 5 Juillet-5 Octobre
06570 St. Paul-de-Vence

Max Ernst
Retrospective: 120 dessins, peintures et sculptures

Tél: (93) 32.81.63

GALERIE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN DES MUSEES DE NICE
06300 Nice

Albert Chubac — Juin
Francesco Clemente — 8 Juillet-31 Août

Tél: (93) 62.37.11

Report from Germany
Peter Ludwig: Appetite for Art

BY DAVID GALLOWAY

Chocolate manufacturer, art historian and superstar collector, Ludwig recently extended the scope of his already multinational art activities and provoked a storm of controversy at home.

D. Shilinskij: Large Double Portrait (Irene and Peter Ludwig), *1981, tempera, 46½ inches square.

The modest office from which Peter Ludwig rules his pan-European chocolate empire offers few clues to the owner's consuming passion. An obligatory portrait of the company's founder, crudely executed by an itinerant painter, hangs over the president's desk. Along one wall awards are displayed in Woolworth-style frames, sheets of glass secured by metal clips, as though to suggest they not be taken too seriously. They might, in this cheerless context, be citations for the Chocolate Bunny of the Year, or for creative marketing of such Monheim Corporation best-sellers as "Noble Drops in Nuts," "Good Spirits in Nuts" and "The Armorial Class." They are, in fact, the tributes of four nations, conferring on 58-year-old Peter Ludwig honorary professorships, citizenships and doctorates, together with the French Legion of Honor, in recognition of his achievements (and benefactions) as an art collector.

"I always make the strictest separation between business and collecting," Ludwig asserts, as though to excuse the blandness of his surroundings. His disarming smile and sparkling blue eyes, which give him the look of an overgrown choirboy, lend such remarks an air of innocent candor. Yet one knows that his interest in East German painting was paralleled by licensing negotiations with the East German government for Van Houten instant chocolate.[1] And long-term loans from the Ludwig Collection invariably flow along established Monheim trade routes—to Poland, Switzerland, France and Austria. With equal innocence he maintains that he would never seek to interfere with the public presentation of his collections;[2] but he publicly fumed at the sloppy installation of paintings on loan to the Centre Pompidou.[3] His frequent supervisory visits to the large segment of his collection displayed at Cologne's Wallraf-Richartz Museum prompted senior curator Evelyn Weiss to remark, "I feel like your children's governess."[4]

The family-owned corporation which Ludwig administers comprises 24 domestic and 16 foreign subsidiaries; the Wall Street Journal reports the corporation's annual sales at $663 million. Given the scope of these corporate activities and the fact that his collections are housed in 19 museums, it is clear that the Chocolate Baron cannot arrive at a gallery, atelier or auction room as the simple private citizen he professes to be. Indeed, despite his repeated assertions that his acquisitions can have no possible effect on the international market, he complains that art dealers double their prices when they see him coming. Public collections in Germany, Switzerland and Austria now bear his name, but he insists with ever-increasing vigor that he is "merely a businessman with limited means who happens to buy art rather than throwing his money away in casinos."[5] Critics see him differently—as a man ruthlessly determined to build an art imperium whose structure closely resembles that of the ever-expanding Monheim Group.

In the last three years, since plans for a mammoth, publicly financed Ludwig Foundation were leaked to the press, opponents have become more strident. The museum elite has attacked him as power-hungry, and the political left sees him as a parody of capitalist excess. In the summer of 1981, artist Hans Haacke presented a series of seven diptychs at the Paul Maenz Gallery in Cologne, which were later exhibited at Documenta 7. Assemblages of photographs, texts, and chocolate bars, they included accusations that the Monheim Group systematically exploits foreign workers, most of them women, who are paid subsistence wages and compelled to live in a fenced compound where three or four occupants share a single cramped room. Haacke scrambled some of his facts, but the attack was symptomatic of Ludwig's waning public image.

Meanwhile, Prof. Dr. Dr. h.c. Peter Lud-

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
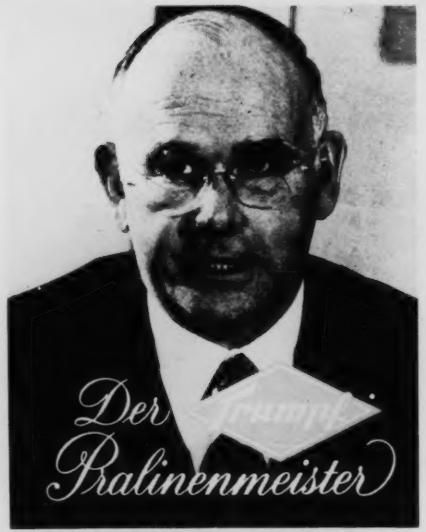
UMI

wig seemed to play directly into his opponents' hands with the triumphant announcement that he had completed negotiations for the purchase of a major collection of contemporary Soviet art. When the works went on view in Aachen and Cologne in the summer of 1982, most viewers endorsed the opinion expressed by John Kohan in Time magazine: "Many of the 100 paintings, 450 graphics and ten sculptures would have seemed dated at the 1913 New York Armory show." Furthermore, the presence of the Soviet works conveyed the misleading impression that the Kremlin had eased restraints on individual artistic expression; many observers thus saw the twin Russian exhibitions as a propaganda maneuver, partly financed (through the use of public exhibition spaces) by the German taxpayer.



Hans Haacke: catalogue cover for* Der Pralinenmeister, *1981, a work comprised of 14 panels; each panel, multicolor silkscreen with photographs and candy wrappers, 39½ by 27½ inches.

> Ludwig insists that he is "merely a businessman with limited means who happens to buy art rather than throwing his money away in casinos."

The superstar collector, who achieved instant fame in the 1960s through bold acquisitions of Pop art, seemed to have lost his magic touch. Furthermore, the Moscow mission strengthened arguments that Ludwig was no longer merely a frustrated professor or repressed museum director, but a would-be cultural ambassador with a dangerous taste for power politics. His frequent journeys to the Soviet Union extended over a three-year period, and each visit was a red-carpet, vodka-and-caviar affair. Ludwig relishes the formal ceremony, state banquets, the flowery toasts offered to visiting dignitaries by the Russian establishment. And, disarmingly, he is the first to admit that preference. "In New York," he complains, "I get tepid coffee out of a plastic cup."

For a man with a professed love of luxury, Peter Ludwig leads a singularly Spartan life. On a normal day he is in bed by 9, up by 5, and would rather spend his rare leisure time with a good book than with guests. He adores chocolates but is continually on a diet. One of his favorite avocations is delivering lectures on the collection housed at Cologne's Wallraf-Richartz Museum, yet he is so shy that he rarely visits artists' studios. The house which Ludwig and his wife, Irene, have occupied in an Aachen suburb for 25 years is the epitome of the stout bungalow for which every stout German burgher yearns. Cutouts by Horst Antes frolic across the garden, but the interior makes no nod to the avant-garde. The Ludwigs collect exclusively for museums, and their low-keyed domestic landscape reduces even the odd piece of medieval carving or 18th-century Meissen to the level of bric-a-brac. It is an atmosphere that exudes comfort, correctness, discipline and caution.

"It's no wonder that he feels so at home in Moscow," one long-term associate remarks. "He's as humorless as the Russians." But others treasure his dry, self-deprecating wit, the ingenuousness of his responses. The smallest gesture of affection can reduce him to boyish stutterings, and even light-hearted criticism can wound him painfully. A Frankfurt newspaper recently ran a brief, humorous article entitled "I Had a Dream," whose author imagined a vast new museum on the banks of the Rhine, suddenly emptied of its treasures because their fickle donor (clearly Peter Ludwig himself) wasn't pleased with the accommodations. Ludwig fired off a blustering two-page letter in response.

Evelyn Weiss, curator of the Ludwig Collection since it opened in Cologne in 1969, describes its donor as "a sphinx without riddles," but then admits that the recent Russian caper is beyond her comprehension. When the collector first announced his plans to visit the Soviet Union, museum personnel presumed his intention was to expand his collection of Russian modernists begun in the late 1970s with canvases by Rodchenko, Malevich, and Popova, or that he might make some effort to see the work of dissident artists. But Ludwig was beamingly content with the official program, wary of any contact with political outsiders, unwilling to visit the storerooms of the Tretyakov Gallery. Officially off-limits to foreigners, they are often made accessible to Western museum personnel. Most of the paintings by Kandinsky, Malevich and other black sheep stored there have never been exhibited. Despite the urging of his own curator, Ludwig firmly declined the "unnecessary risk," though both his corporate and cultural triumphs have shown a big-game hunter's relish for risk-taking.

It requires no elaborate psychogram to explain why a shy, politically conservative, childless businessman might begin to collect art. As one of Ludwig's arch rivals deprecatingly remarks, "Most of the great collectors were compensating for being great philistines." But the sheer scope of the Ludwig collections invalidates the usual compensatory theories; and we are dealing here not with a diamond-in-the-rough robber baron, but with a sophisticated, professionally trained art historian who also studied archeology, philosophy and law. Both Ludwig's family and that of his wife, Irene Monheim, had collected art, though never for museum consumption. "It was something we were exposed to from the cradle onwards," Ludwig recalls, and the pair first met while studying art history at the University of Mainz.

Peter Ludwig was 20 years old when he returned to Germany in 1945 after a brief period as prisioner-of-war in America. It was an unpromising time for the budding art historian, since most German museums were closed, but the old university town of Mainz was only a short journey from Wiesbaden, where the American Occupation Forces had established a fine-arts depot. Each weekend students made study trips to the depot, where Peter Ludwig noted for the first time how many works carried the names of private donors. When the famous Haubrich Collection was donated to Cologne's Wallraf-Richartz Museum in 1946, "I realized what a single individual could accomplish if he had sufficient perseverance and engagement." The Americans offered other examples. "Without private collectors, the Metropolitan would be just another provincial gallery. The Whitney, Guggenheim and Modern wouldn't exist at all. Most of the great museums of the world are the result of inspired individuals—capitalists who were clever enough to divert some of their earnings back into the system." The Russians did the same, he notes, observing that Moscow's Tretyakov Gallery still perpetuates the name of a private businessman.

In 1950 Peter Ludwig received a doctorate from the University of Mainz; his dissertation was, for the time, a pioneer work: "Picasso's Image of Man as an Expression of his Generation's Outlook on Life," with special attention to the links between the fine arts and literature. The following year, he married Irene Monheim and worked briefly in a Munich bank; the newlyweds then moved to Aachen, where the art historian joined his father-in-law's chocolate firm. The Ludwigs soon began to collect classical antiquities, medieval ivory, pre-Columbian sculpture, and almost immediately placed the objects in museums on long-term loan.

From the start, two criteria ruled their choices: individual works must be the best available on the market, and there must be sufficient quantity to represent an entire period or field. The publicity that greeted Peter Ludwig's unexpected plunge into contemporary art (this time without his wife's encouragement) obscured the definitive collections he and his wife had already formed of medieval sculpture and altarpieces, terra cottas from ancient Greece, Peruvian gold, textiles, illuminated manuscripts and ceramics. Seen as a single entity, the collection spans a full 3,000 years. Recently the Ludwigs presented the city of Aachen with an entire museum of tiles—the first of its kind in the world. (It should be stressed that in Germany the tax advantages of such donations are modest, applying chiefly to inheritance taxes for a surviving spouse.) Small wonder, then, that the industrialist modestly describes himself as the greatest collector of his age, or that journalists suggest Ludwig of Aachen to be a spiritual descendant of Ludwig of Bavaria.

The collector himself is reluctant to draw distinctions between old and new, classical and modern. "After all, when I wrote about Picasso, he was a contemporary and not an old master." He admits that the unmapped, often uncertain terrain of contemporary art has its own particular sense of adventure, but stresses that the deep pleasure he derived from discovering, say, Baselitz was essentially no different from that of acquiring a choice sixth-century urn. Nonetheless, Ludwig's larger-than-life international image can be traced directly to his first purchase of works by the American Pop artists in 1966. It was a movement that seemed tailor-made for the Wirtschaftswunder ("economic miracle") of postwar Germany, passionately dedicated to the catechisms of a consumer society. Not only Ludwig but Bernhard Sprengel (a rival chocolate manufacturer) and Karl Ströher (producer of Wella hair products) quickly assembled definitive Pop collections.

Within two years, Ludwig's acquisitions were so extensive that he could provide the Wallraf-Richartz Museum with 140 choice loans that totally changed the institution's sober public image. In 1968, when the offer was made, director Gert von der Osten was pondering the difficulty of persuading his acquisitions committee to approve the purchase of a single work of American Pop; he now had access to such instant classics as Oldenburg's Soft Washstand, Warhol's Marilyn Monroe Diptych, Rauschenberg's Black Market and Wall Street, Johns's Large White Numbers and Segal's Restaurant Window. German artist Wolf Vostell was commissioned to design a catalogue which itself became a collector's item, and in 1969 the name of Peter Ludwig catapulted for the first time from the financial to the cultural sections of national newspapers.

A man who freely confesses his own swollen vanity, Ludwig took fire from this lavish recognition, and was soon buying the new avant-garde by the truckload: Pop artists, then Photo Realists, Minimalists, Conceptualists, Pattern painting, the German Neo-Expressionists. He was accused of recklessly inflating the market, of substituting quantity for quality. The collector tartly responded that his objective was not to acquire "master works" but "to reflect the times we live in with all their highs and lows." Meanwhile, the stout, soft-spoken, gentlemanly industrialist had become a familiar personality on the New York gallery scene, where he even buys the work of contemporary Germans. He defends his neglect of the home market with the observation that New York maintains the highest standards, and there he can make the most definitive, efficient choices. It is not unusual for him to telephone a dealer and announce a visit for 8 A.M. the following morning, when he expects to see the best available work from a particular artist—properly framed, installed, lighted. His time is rigidly budgeted, and that fact, as well as shyness, keeps him off the loft circuit. This corporate, time-is-money approach is, as Evelyn Weiss notes, in stark contrast to that of the Italian collector Panza, who frequently commissions works that grow directly from an intellectual exchange with the artist. But, as she stresses, "few collectors are better informed" than Ludwig. Mrs. Ludwig not only keeps elaborate records on thousands of loans; she also assembles the articles and books her husband needs to consult while mapping new territories.

Andy Warhol:* Peter Ludwig,
1981, oil on canvas,
41⅓ inches square.
Photo Nils Friese.

> References to the pyramids and to the Medicis leave Ludwig unfazed. They fit his own belief that his work as a collector has made a fundamental contribution to the spiritual life of his times.

When the resources of the Wallraf-Richartz Museum could no longer keep pace with Ludwig's wholesale purchases, Aachen's Neue Galerie was created. From the beginning, it was conceived as a "mobile museum" that would continuously explore new trends and administer loans from the contemporary collection—not only to museums throughout Germany, but to the Centre Pompidou in Paris and the National Gallery in East Berlin. Local museum wags sometimes refer to the Neue Galerie as "the switching yards," "the stockyards"—even "the rubbish dump." It focuses on work produced since 1970, tends to exhibit the collector rather than a collection, and has given a powerful boost (too powerful, according to skeptics) to emerging trends. The so-called "Neuen Wilden," literally the new Fauves but actually the younger Neo-Expressionists, owe their group identity to a 1980 exhibition held at the Neue Galerie under the curatorship of Wolfgang Becker.

The sheer bulk of his collections has made the Monheim Medici dependent on a network of institutions to house, catalogue and display them. His interest is not in building museums, but in filling them, though he plainly relishes his own name over the entrance. Before long-term loans metamorphose into gifts, Peter Ludwig brings the full force of his corporate savvy to the proceedings. He has never played the beneficent uncle, giving for the joy of giving, but has always insisted on official recognition of his activities. Recently, the allure of honorary titles and degrees seems to have paled, and the superstar of European collectors has come to see himself as an ex officio minister of culture. But the former art historian still cherishes the honorary professorship awarded him by the University of Cologne in recognition of his numerous services to local museums and his pioneer work in bringing contemporary American art to Germany.

In celebration of his 50th birthday, the city of Cologne made Ludwig an honorary citizen in 1975, and the collector responded by signing over all works then on loan to the Wallraf-Richartz. The deed of gift stipulated that all the museum's 20th-century holdings, not just the Ludwig material, should be fused into a single institution officially designated as The Ludwig Museum, thus making it a kind of museum within a museum, and that a sumptuous new house be provided for both. The Ludwig Museum thus effectively cannibalized all previous purchases and donations of 20th-century art, including the celebrated Expressionist collection given by Wilhelm Haubrich in 1946—the very bequest which made Ludwig aware that art patronage could perpetuate a family name. In the new catalogue of The Ludwig Museum, the names of earlier donors are omitted "for space considerations"—as the catalogue introduction phrases it. Such an instance of "manifest destiny" leads Werner Schmalenbach, director of Düsseldorf's Nordrhein-Westfalen Museum, to fear that future patrons will be increasingly wary of making gifts: "Who

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
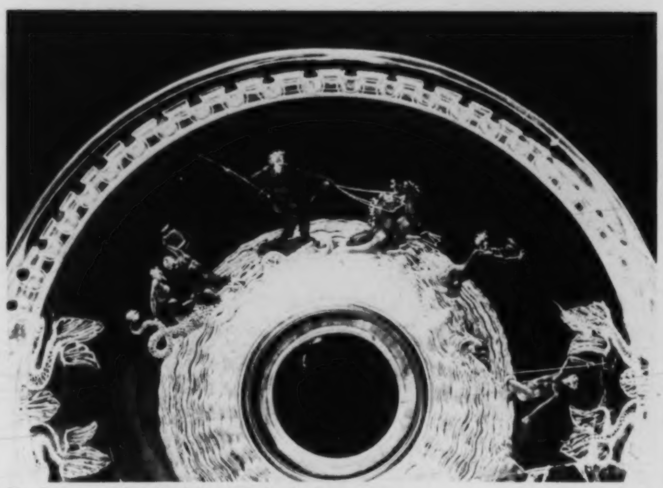
UMI

Figure of a saint, ca. 1320 (Rheinland). wood, 30 inches high. Suermondt-Ludwig Museum.



Rock-crystal bowl with mythological scenes, late 1500s (studio of the Saracchi brothers, Milan), 8⅓ inches in diameter. Schnütgen Museum, Cologne.

Ivory diptych, ca. 800 (Aachen), 11½ by 7⅘ inches. Schnütgen Museum.

wants to vanish into the Ludwig goulash?"

In the shadow of the Cologne cathedral, groundbreaking for the new Wallraf-Richartz Museum/Museum Ludwig began in 1980; estimated building costs quickly spiraled from $65 million to $100 million, while a recession economy eroded available cultural budgets. With seven major museums (from a total of 35 in the entire state of Nordrhein-Westfalen), Cologne already enjoys papal status, and museum directors in Düsseldorf, Essen, Duisburg, Bonn and Wuppertal feared that Ludwig's hefty demands would bleed their own budgets. But there was worse to come: in the summer of 1980, a Cologne newspaper leaked the news that for several months Prof. Dr. Dr. h.c. Peter Ludwig and his wife Irene had conducted confidential negotiations with the city of Cologne, the State of Nordrhein-Westfalen, and the Bonn government to create a mammoth Ludwig Foundation with headquarters in Cologne. In return for the Ludwigs' donation of an unspecified quantity of works not already earmarked as gifts to particular institutions, local, state and federal governments would provide a budget of more than $2 million annually to promote five principal objectives: 1. care and administration of the Ludwig collections; 2. expansion of those collections, together with the safekeeping of works of art that might otherwise be sold to foreign buyers; 3. the scholarly examination of the above collections; 4. the conception and development of special exhibitions; 5. the support of regional, supra-regional and international measures for the promotion of the fine arts and related disciplines.

Much of the furor that followed this premature announcement of the Ludwig Foundation must be seen in light of the federalist principles of the German constitution, specifically designed to prevent undue concentrations of power at the national level. Though the Bonn government gives subsidies to major events like Documenta, cultural policy-making is left to the individual states. The lack of a national supervisory agency creates numerous problems; there is, for example, no competent body to prevent "national treasures" from leaving the country, or to make the crucial acquisitions that exceed an individual museum's budget. A National Foundation for the Arts has been under discussion for 14 years; it was a cherished dream of Chancellor Willy Brandt, but even his political savvy could not circumvent jurists' contentions that such an institution is fundamentally unconstitutional. The Ludwig Foundation, with headquarters a few miles away from the nation's capital, would not only preempt the National Foundation but also the recurrent dream of a National Gallery in Bonn. Furthermore, budgets for museums in Nordrhein-Westfalen had already been halved, and the Ludwig proposal threatened to divert more funds from the diversified regional system that Germans see as a cornerstone of their young democracy.

The preliminary charter of the disputed foundation gave the collector and his wife, together with two representatives of their own choosing, one-fourth of the 16 seats on the board of directors; assured Ludwig himself the chairmanship; provided him with veto power over any decision relating to his own collections; and made the director of the Ludwig Museum directly and solely answerable to the foundation. That a collector of such eminence should wish to exercise control over his benefactions, that he should seek to build himself (at public expense) a vast "pyramid" on the Rhine, was never questioned. However, when he sought both to create and to annex for himself the ex officio position of Minister of Culture, museum personnel took to the barricades.

They were led by Werner Schmalenbach, director of the Nordrhein-Westfalen Museum of 20th-century art; his scholarly care, esthetic finesse and sheer persistence have developed the Düsseldorf collection into one of the finest, most definitive of its kind. With repeated stress on the necessary "polycentricity" of German cultural life, and one eye on his own prestigious new museum building, scheduled to open in 1986, Schmalenbach denounced the proposed foundation as another example of Ludwig's craving for recognition. Furthermore (and despite the fact that Ludwig has been a member of Schmalenbach's own three-man acquisitions committee for more than a decade), he raised serious doubts about the collector's methods. "I shoot with bullets," Schmalenbach stresses. "He shoots with buckshot, and of course he hits the target from time to time."

The German press relished this battle of the titans: The corpulent gourmand from Aachen against the spare, feisty gourmet from Düsseldorf. Few heard Ludwig's insistent reminders that the preliminary draft of a foundation charter which found its way into the press was intended merely as a starting point for negotiations; indeed, he quickly modified his own demands, withdrawing the request for veto power. And he was right to stress that regionalism can also be a mask for provincialism. Within a single year, both the Bielefeld Kunsthalle and the Düsseldorf Kunsthalle mounted modest but immensely popular Matisse exhibitions; both, being only modestly funded, suffered from anemia, and acutely needed the sort of transfusion that a national foundation might have made available.

Stung by the mounting criticism, Ludwig began to lose his customary moderation, obliquely threatening to withdraw from Cologne museums any works not already assigned as gifts. Clearly he had forgotten his own vow, solemnly delivered on the day the city of Cologne made him an honorary

Apocalypse Ludwig

Despite a recurrent note of apology and the vague promise of suitable "compensation," the industrialist's jovial élan was unmistakable. On March 10, 1983, Peter Ludwig called a press conference to announce "one of the greatest transactions that has ever occurred on the art market." For an estimated price of $40 to $60 million, his coveted collection of 144 illuminated manuscripts had been sold to the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, Calif. After years of solemnly intoning that he and his wife had never sought to earn money from the art they collected, Ludwig had reversed course with remarkable ease. In fact, he had sold some of the same manuscripts more than a decade ago, later bought them back and expanded his holdings, chiefly through the book dealer H.P. Kraus of New York. Unlike his other acquisitions, these were regularly housed not in a museum but in the vault of a Zurich bank—an indication, perhaps, that he thought of them in terms of capital investment.

Cologne's Schnütgen Museum plainly thought otherwise. Since 1977 two of its curators have been at work on a scholarly catalogue of the collection; completion of the four-volume work in 1984 should have been commemorated by a full-scale exhibition, which would then have traveled to New York, London and Brussels. Joachim Plotzek, one of the authors, reports that most of the work was done in Zurich and New York; only rarely were items made available for study in the museum. He and his colleague Anton von Euw will complete the project under sunny California skies, on salaries paid by the municipality of Cologne. (Ludwig has hinted that he might personally assume such expenses. Until recently, city fathers had every reason to expect that the manuscripts would be donated to the Schnütgen Museum, along with a dozen rare medieval works in gold, ivory and crystal. But the collector has lately complained of being "abused and insulted" by critics of the proposed Ludwig Foundation, which would have been jointly funded by city, state and federal governments. Instead of considering the value of what he had to offer, his prospective partners had merely haggled.

That charge was echoed by the Christian Democrats, fresh from victory at the national polls, who accused the ruling Social Democrats of Nordrhein-Westfalen of allowing the foundation to be smothered by local politics. In any case, the German people lost a major national treasure; ironically, one aim of the Ludwig Foundation had been to halt such exports. While legislation exists to hinder the sale of art judged to be "in the national interest," it is virtually unenforceable. And it is doubtful if Ludwig's manuscripts would have qualified for protection: few were of German origin; none had been regularly exhibited in Germany; and at the time of the sale, all were protected by the flag of Swiss neutrality. The specific loss to the Schnütgen Museum is immeasurable, and it came (according to Joachim Plotzek) as a total surprise, but museum personnel are understandably guarded in their reactions. The dozen works presently exhibited there on long-term loan from Peter Ludwig include a 9th-century ivory diptych from the court of Karl the Great which represents the first flowering of German art.

Harold M. Williams, president of the J. Paul Getty trust, is justifiably proud of his coup: with a single purchase he has bridged the gap between the museum's collections of classical sculpture and Renaissance painting. The new acquisitions include 20 separate books of the hours, a 12th-century Persian Bible, a 13th-century French bestiary, and a 15th-century "Roman de la Rose." One of the most coveted of the illuminated works is a Benedictine book of the Apocalypse, produced in England in 1250, which local journalists some years ago dubbed "Apocalypse Ludwig." Museum curators world-wide are more likely to think in terms of "The Getty Apocalypse," and to see the unfrozen Malibu millions as a threat to the international market. In an interview for the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung on Jan. 10, 1983, Harold Williams firmly stated that he had no intention of entering into reckless competition for new acquisitions or of disturbing the necessary balance of the market. Ludwig suggests he attempted to find a German institution to buy the collection; however no German museum could have met the terms of "one of the greatest transactions that has ever occurred on the art market."

With the proceeds of the sale, the collector intends to establish his cherished "Ludwig Foundation for Art and International Information, Inc.," with headquarters in Aachen. Getty millions will be invested in the Monheim Corporation, with the interest from shares providing a steady income for acquisitions, exhibitions and fellowships. As co-owner and chairman of the board of Monheim and presumed director of the Foundation, Peter Ludwig realizes another stage of his grandiose dream; and the injection of fresh capital for his chocolate factory, which has recently moved to imposing new quarters, is well-timed. "The public's appreciation of art is limited," he comments in a recent Spiegel Magazine report. "Its appreciation of money is limitless." —D.G.

citizen, that none of his collections housed there would ever be removed. But he went a step further, implying that there was interest elsewhere—perhaps abroad, though one express aim of his foundation was to prevent works of national significance from leaving the country.

If the museum world seemed firmly against him, politicians were almost unanimous in embracing the Ludwig proposals, which offered the chance to make a flamboyant commitment to the arts at bargain-basement prices. But the wheels of bureaucracy churned too slowly for Ludwig's taste, and last year he sent Chancellor Helmut Schmidt a formal withdrawal of his offer, though in interviews he repeatedly stressed his readiness to compromise. Meanwhile, he was discreetly negotiating the sale of a collection of illuminated manuscripts that the city of Cologne felt certain of acquiring from their open-handed patron, and which were being painstakingly catalogued at public expense. No European museum could compete with the bid from Malibu, however, and Ludwig triumphantly announced that his medieval masterworks had been acquired by the Getty Museum for undisclosed millions. [See box.] The proceeds, he declared, would make him a more interesting partner for negotiations with government agencies; but even without their aid, he could now launch his foundation for "international understanding" in the arts.

The Ludwigs had long since extended their activities to the international scene. Thier classical antiquities went to Basel as a gift in 1972. In 1977, an exhibition of works from the contemporary collection drew such crowds that the Austrian government negotiated long-term loans and renovated the sumptuous Liechtenstein Palace to house them [see A.i.A., Feb. '80]. Two years later, the Austrian Ludwig Foundation was formed—to supervise acquisitions and exhibitions for the entire nation, and to assure the expansion of a core collection of 140 works presented to the new contemporary museum. As director, the Austrians chose Dieter Ronte, former curator at the Wallraf-Richartz. When asked in a Spiegel magazine interview if he had influenced the choice, Ludwig coyly replied that the Minister of Culture had indeed sought his opinion. "'I know Mr. Ronte, I think he's a good man, but I beg you not to consider that a recommendation.'" To be sure, Ronte's qualifications were impeccable, but it is worth noting that in the Austrian Ludwig Foundation, Prof. Dr. Dr. h.c. Peter Ludwig and his wife Prof. Irene Ludwig (an honorary title from the University of Vienna) outvote the Minister of Culture two to one. "We have never experienced the slightest conflict of interests," Ludwig notes.

Other international negotiations were also rapidly coming to fruition. In recent years, there have been journeys to East Germany to provide Trinkfix (a chocolate beverage) for schoolchildren, to assemble a definitive collection of paintings from "the other Germany," to arrange a groundbreaking loan of avant-garde works to the National Gallery in East Berlin. (Critics quickly point out that the special gallery there housing Ludwig's loan of decadent capitalist art is almost always "temporarily closed to the public.")

With or without a foundation, Ludwig was determined to make his own contribution to cultural détente. About the same time, there were trips to Moscow and out-of-character visits to 400 studios there, by Ludwig's own count. Questioned about his possibly mixed motives, the collector de-

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

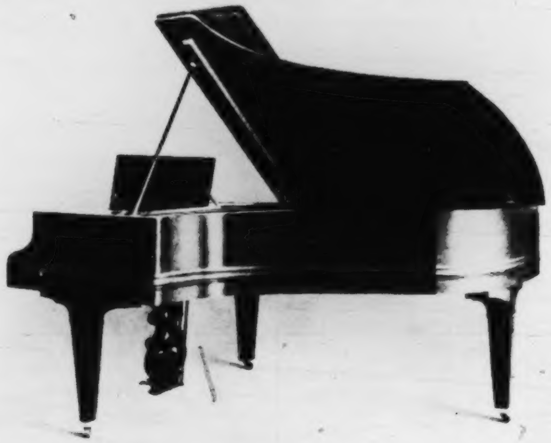
13
White Street
New York City 10013
212 599 5090

BETTE STOLER GALLERY

Six sculptors
May 20th to July 1st

John Duff
James Ford
Nancy Grossman
Christopher Sproat
Ursula von Rydingsvärd
Steve Wood

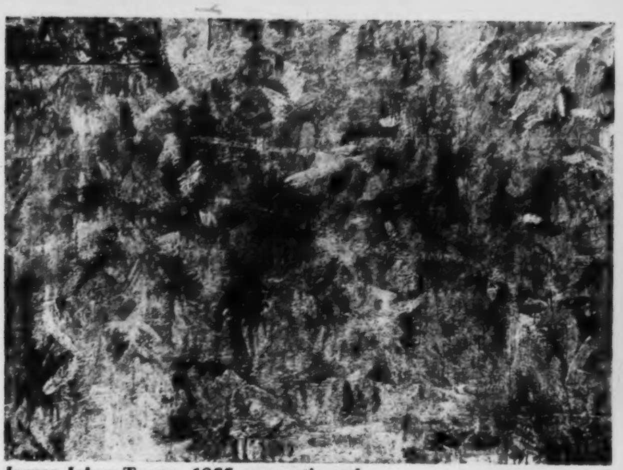
AKIRA ARITA



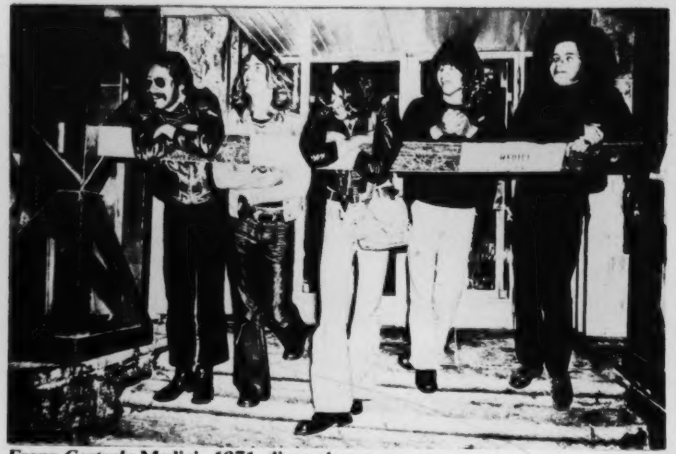
Piano, 1983, Drawing, 35x351/2" (detail)

NEW PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS • JUNE 7 TO JULY 8, 1983

STAEMPFLI 47 EAST 77 ST., NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021
Tel. 212/535-1919



Jasper Johns:* Tango, *1955, encaustic and collage on canvas, 43 by 55 inches. Ludwig Collection.



Franz Gertsch:* Medici, *1971, dispersion on canvas, 157½ by 236 inches. Museum of the Twentieth Century, Vienna.

clared, "I looked at a map and wondered how we could afford not to be interested in the art of 270 million people." Westerners are phenomenally shortsighted, he adds, in presuming that true art can only be produced in a free society. "Most of the great art of the past was created under repressive conditions—under the strict guidelines of the church, for example, or feudal lords. The making of art is a fundamental, primitive instinct, and no regime can halt it—Communist or otherwise. Even the Third Reich could not." But the Third Reich did, of course, destroy both art and artists; and there is, for all the collector's protests, a quality of emptiness in the blurred canvases hauled home from the Soviet Union. With few exceptions, they are as clumsy in technique, as provincial in their aping of modern "isms," as the works at any state-fair painting competition.

As unofficial cultural ambassador, Ludwig strains the credulity of even his most ardent followers. A private collector is, of course, fully entitled to errors in judgment, but as Werner Schmalenbach points out, "He has given up the rights of privacy. De facto, Peter Ludwig is now a public collector." As such, he is properly concerned with consolidating the work of the last three decades, and he proceeds with a mixture of naiveté and canniness that has become his personal trademark. "Collecting has to do with a lust for possessions, and on the scale that my wife and I pursue it, it also has something to do with vanity, with creating a monument for ourselves." Such candor can disarm the most wary opponent. References to the pyramids, to the Medicis, to Ludwig of Bavaria not only leave him unfazed, they fit cozily with his own preconceptions—with the passionate conviction that art is an existential necessity, and that his work as a collector has made a fundamental contribution to the spiritual life of his times. In a reminiscent mood, he recalls that while bombs fell on Berlin in 1945, the Philharmonic maintained its concert schedule. In the same year, with its cities in ruins and millions homeless, Germany at once began to rebuild theaters, opera houses and museums. "No one questioned the priorities," he insists. "Somehow, in moments of greatest deprivation, man realizes what the arts mean to his existence."

Peter Ludwig has declared that he would rather give up the last rites than a masterwork by Jasper Johns. And though he once proudly boasted[6] that he owns more works by Johns than the artist himself, they all hang in public collections. What does such a man mean, then, when he speaks of "the lust for possessions" which drives him? I recall a day when I arrived at the Ludwigs' Aachen villa for an interview; Jasper Johns's Tango (1955) also arrived that morning, and was temporarily installed on an easel in the winter-garden. Ludwig wished to have it there for a day before the painting moved on to its museum destination, and he invited me to sit before it with him. In the unbroken stillness of that hour, the collector did not simply pay homage; he also took possession in a way that made literal, physical ownership irrelevant.

That intensity of vision, however, can never be institutionalized, and this much, at least, Peter Ludwig must know: after all, he prides himself on having assembled a virtuoso collection of Pop art at a time when few museum directors would have deigned to consider such acquisitions at all, much less in such numbers. Had his own foundation existed in 1966, topheavy with political functionaries, it would probably have turned thumbs-down to such reckless use of public funds. And that probability, in turn, suggests that Ludwig the collector might well share his insights in such matters with Ludwig the statesman. Instead, he increasingly adopts the unbecoming role of martyred visionary, as in an interview published by Die Kunst in August, 1981: "My wife and I are attacked because we work amicably with many museums and because at home and abroad we freely offer our knowledge and experience. We are attacked because we tread unexplored territory and because we have dared to present new trends in the museums. We are attacked because it has been established that the movements we have supported have resulted in national and international breakthroughs. Petty spirits and literal-minded functionaries therefore feel themselves provoked. But for us the work alone matters, as the Arabs so graphically express with the saying: The coyotes howl on all sides, but the caravan moves on." ☐

1. This article is based on a series of conversations with Peter and Irene Ludwig that took place in 1977–78 in Aachen, West Germany, and in Teheran (in spring '78, while I was chief curator of the Teheran Museum of Contemporary Art, the Ludwig collection was on loan to the museum); and on extensive interviews with Peter Ludwig (Nov. 22, 1982), Evelyn Weiss (Feb. 8, 1983), Werner Schmalenbach (Feb. 12, 1983), and Joachim Plotzek (March 23, 1983).

For background information, I have consulted the special issue of the Swiss art magazine du (1/1979) devoted to the Ludwig collections; the various catalogues of those collections; Hans Haacke's Der Pralinenmeister ("The Master Candy Maker"), published by Art Metropole of Toronto (1982); and Dokumentation zur geplanten Stiftung Ludwig ("Documentation concerning the proposed Ludwig Foundation"), assembled by the Conference of International Exhibition Directors (Duisburg, 1982)—a collection of materials relating to the Ludwig Foundation, including the original charter, press releases from the Bonn, Cologne, and Düsseldorf governments, official memos, interviews, and leading newspaper articles. Other sources are identified in the text. All translations from the German are my own.

2. Nov. 22, 1982 interview with Ludwig.
3. Teheran conversations with Ludwig.
4. Interview with Evelyn Weiss.
5. Nov. 22, 1982 interview with Ludwig.
6. Conversation with Ludwig at the opening of the Jasper Johns exhibition, Kunsthalle, Cologne, 1978.

Author: David Galloway is a novelist, free-lance critic and holds the Chair of American Studies at Germany's Ruhr University

VOL 7 1
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

THE GREENBERG GALLERY
44 MARYLAND PLAZA ST. LOUIS, MO. 63108 (314) 361-7600

PAINTINGS AND SCULPTURE PRESENTLY AVAILABLE FROM THE GREENBERG GALLERY

Albers, Josef Wait, 1963
Oil on masonite
30 x 30 inches

Calder, Alexander
Untitled, 1970
painted sheet metal
16 x 24 feet

Cornell, Joseph
Sand Fountain Box, 1950's
Mixed media
32 x 20 x 10 cm.

de Kooning, Willem
Untitled, 1962
Oil on canvas
27 x 29 inches

Francis, Sam
Untitled, 1977
Acrylic on canvas
78 x 54 inches

Frankenthaler, Helen
March, 1963
Acrylic on canvas
89 x 47.5 inches

Gottlieb, Adolph
Double Echo, 1967
Oil, enamel on canvas
36 x 48 inches

Hartley, Marsden
Provincetown Abstraction, 1916
Oil on board
19 x 16 inches

Kline, Franz
Black Sienna, 1960
Oil on canvas
92 x 68 inches

Motherwell, Robert
Pale Wall,
Acrylic on canvas
72 x 60 inches

Stella, Frank
Damascus Gate Variation 1, 1969
Acrylic on canvas
8 x 32 feet

Warhol, Andy
Most Wanted Men no. 11, 1963
Silkscreen on canvas (two panels)
48 x 40 inches each

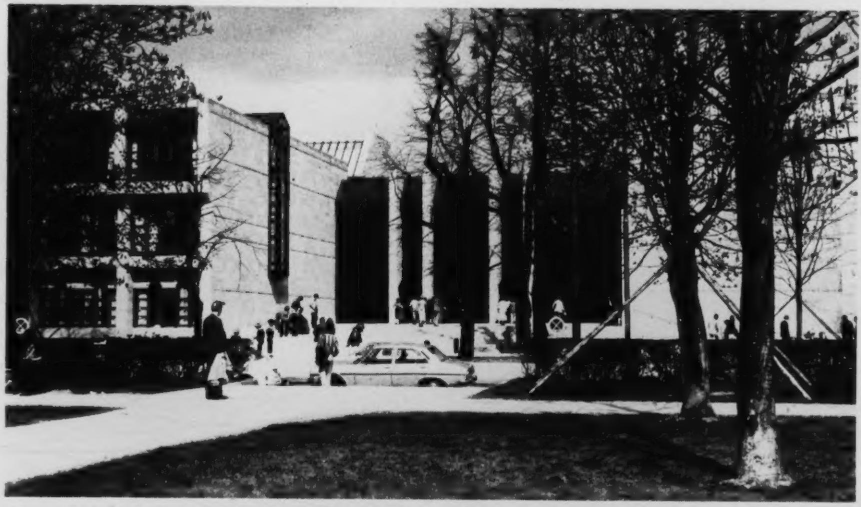
Please send me slides and prices of the works indicated

Name ____
Address ____
____

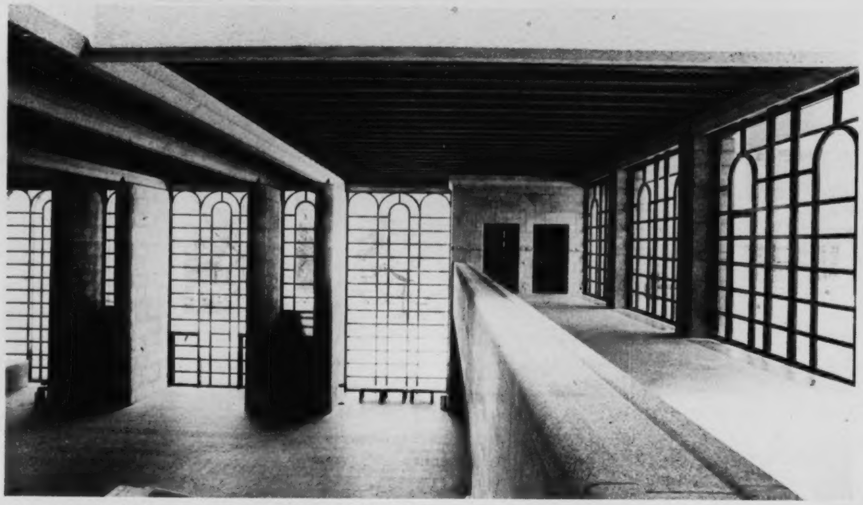
Report from Munich
The New Neue Pinakothek

BY FRANZ SCHULZE

Munich's Neue Pinakothek is not only a major new museum building; with many works in storage since World War II, it is virtually a new museum collection.



Alexander von Branca: Neue Pinakothek, Munich, 1976–81, main entrance.



Neue Pinakothek, view of the entrance hall.

The American art and architecture press has been curiously neglectful of one of Europe's most spectacular recent museum buildings, the Neue Pinakothek in Munich, which opened in 1981 to the vigorous, if sharply divided, response of its German audience. American inattention may be explained partly by the narrow range of the museum's collection, which is almost totally confined to European painting, much of that Bavarian; and partly by the fact that the design of the building (by Munich architect Alexander Freiherr von Branca) does not fall neatly into any of the current categories with which we are most familiar. It is not a product of orthodox modernism, and neither has it any of the mannerist caprice or fierce high gloss we normally, though somewhat uncertainly, associate with that vague catchall, postmodernism.

Nevertheless, the museum is an arresting, unmistakably contemporary piece of work which in the course of a year and a half has lost none of the force and energy it conveyed on the occasion of its unveiling; meanwhile the collection, notwithstanding its slender chronological slot, is extraordinary, not an iota less compelling than the structure that houses it. Between its art and its architecture, the Neue Pinakothek is one of the most remarkable and eminently visitable monuments in Europe.

The building is a pastiche, stylistically and technologically. The chief constructive material, concrete faced with sandstone, is employed with maximum emphasis on its load-bearing, mural character. Long expanses of wall are occasionally punctuated by powerful ramparts jutting out perpendicularly from them, a treatment that recalls medieval castles and fortified churches. The abstracted gutter spouts and vertical fenestration, frequently expressed in outcroppings, recall Gothic tradition as well, though the windows themselves are divided into round-arched compartments which, especially when they congeal in Palladian motifs, inject the medieval grammar with classical vocabulary. Here and there, from the uncorniced roof or along a smoothly elegant facade, an exterior staircase descends, whose timber-trussed roof adds a note of the vernacular. The overall massing is free and asymmetrical. The building rambles horizontally over a large lot, and around eight garden courts.

The interior is another study in pluralist expression, no less engaging than the exterior and just as unpredictable in its juxtapositions. The two-story foyer has the bluff but soaring quality of a baronial hall, yet it flows easily into a refectory—the most modernist passage in the building—whose glassy walls and shiny surfaces produce a riot of reflections.

The galleries follow, with a shift of emphasis to the classical. Thirty-five rooms organized chronologically from the late 18th to the early 20th centuries are designed with a perceptible bow to the Beaux-Arts and—now that we see it revived here—that splendidly effective type of space in which wide concave moldings connect neutrally painted (occasionally pastel) walls to skylights through which a filtered natural light pours: the most bracing and memorable visual sensation produced by the entire museum. Von Branca will have nothing to do with the tenebrous cabaret atmosphere punctured by spotlights that has polluted so many galleries in American museums during the past decade. The light in the Neue Pinakothek is glorious, and if the classicized decor of its rooms is reticent to the point of austerity, it only encourages the paintings to speak more sovereignly for themselves.

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

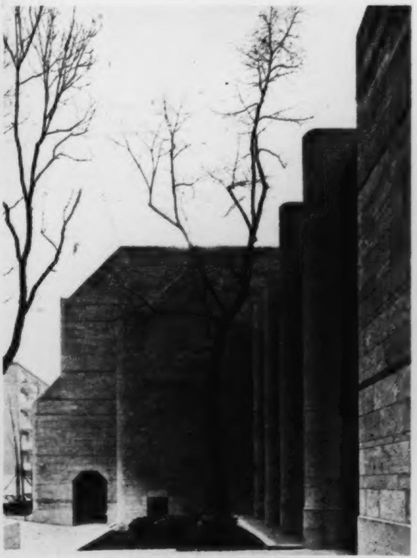
Moreover, the severity of the galleries is tempered by a series of adjacent and connecting spaces which return to the timbered roofs, limestone walls and muscular medieval mood of the exterior and the foyer. Von Branca's critics complained about his excessive mixture of styles and to some degree about the superdazzle of the whole place. This writer finds these very qualities admirable, preferring to call them inventive and generous. The building cost about $50 million, not an outrageous sum in the early 1980s for so large an undertaking—the biggest museum built in Germany since World War II. The original projected figure was much lower, of course, but the building was conceived as early as the middle 1960s, when a competition was staged which von Branca won.

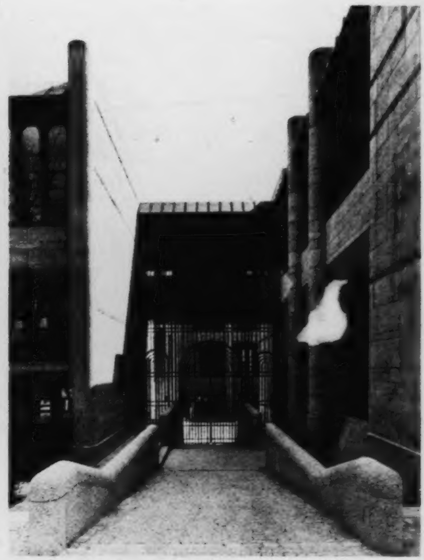
In other words, Munich had to wait a generation after the last war to hear specific plans, and about 40 years in all to see them realized, before one of its most distinguished cultural resources was restored to its former scale. The first Neue Pinakothek, which stood on the site of the new one until it was badly damaged in World War II and finally torn down in 1949, was a big, rectangular, Neoclassical box completed in 1853 after designs by August Voit, and decorated with a cycle of immense exterior frescoes by Wilhelm von Kaulbach. Conceived by King Ludwig I of Bavaria as the counterpart and immediate neighbor of the Alte Pinakothek, or old master gallery (finished by Leo von Klenze in 1836), the Neue was the first public museum in Europe expressly devoted to the art of contemporary times. While the collection today does not extend beyond the first decade of the 1900s, it was mixed together, following the war, with Munich's 20th-century collection in the Haus der Kunst on the city's Prinzregentenstrasse. There it remained until von Branca's building was completed.

More properly, a portion of it was mixed, and a small one at that. One of the most stunning aspects of the encounter with the new museum is the discovery of dozens, even hundreds, of paintings there—among the 550 on view—which have languished in storage since World War II. These do not represent the cream of the collection, long on display and featuring Manet's Breakfast in the Studio (1868), Daumier's The Drama (ca. 1860), Cézanne's Still Life (1885), Goya's portrait of Don José Queralto (1802), Schinkel's Cathedral over a City (ca. 1813) and Menzel's Living Room with the Artist's Sister (1847).

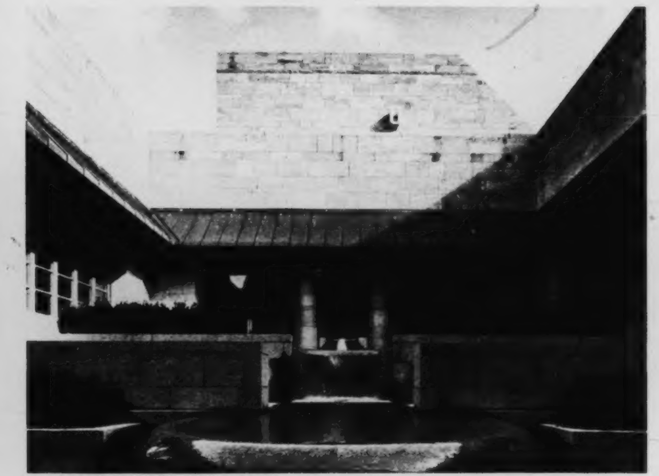
Ramped, stone-lined formal corridors surround two interior courtyards.



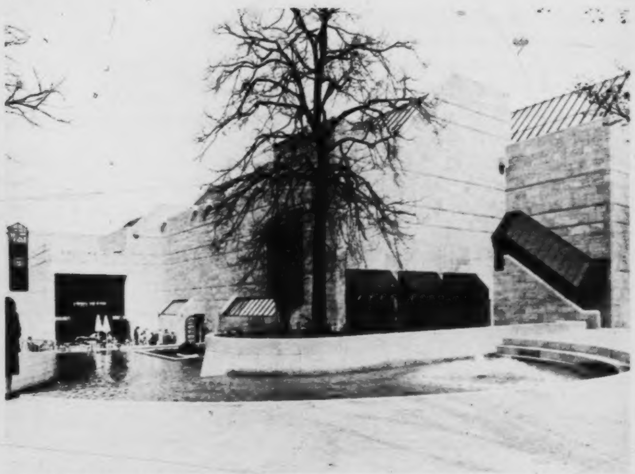
The exterior cladding of smooth sandstone slabs, divided by rough bands of granite.



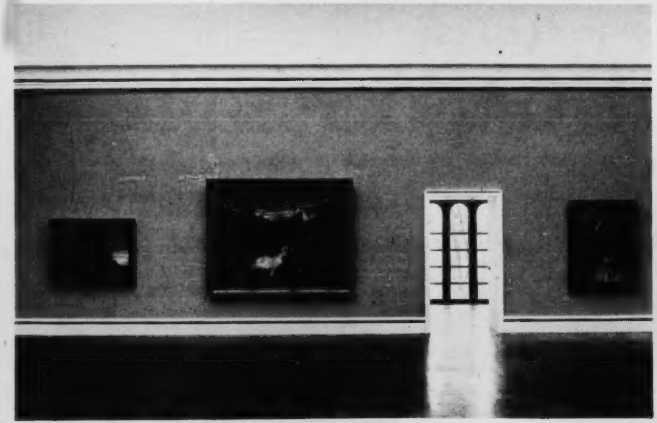
Gate to the Doener Institute, an art-historical research facility housed in the museum.



An interior garden courtyard in the Neue Pinakothek.

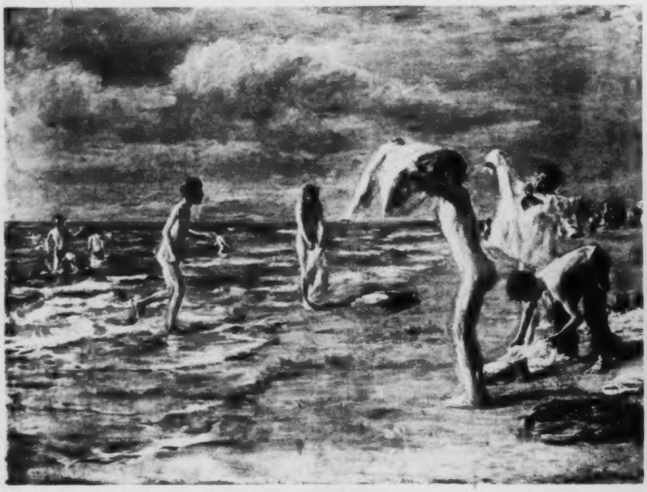


Southeast view of the galleries, showing outdoor restaurant and artificial pond.

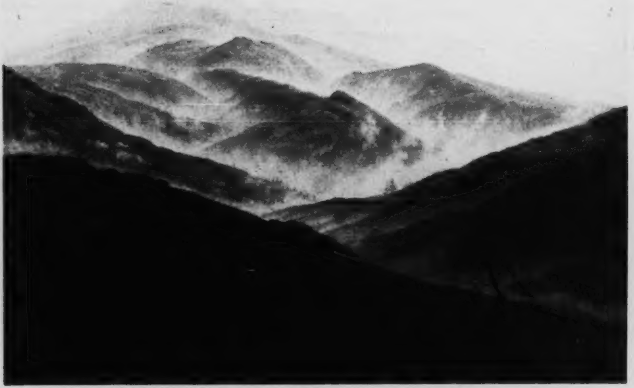


Neue Pinakothek, installation of the permanent collection: (from left to right) Johann Stäbli,* Storm, 1878; Arnold Böcklin, In the Play of the Waves, 1883; Anselm Feuerbach, Nanna, *1861.

(From left to right) Karl Theodor von Piloty,* The Astrologer Seni with the Body of Wallenstein, 1855; Horace Vernet, Princess Leonella zu Sayn-Wittgenstein-Sayn on Horseback, 1837; Von Piloty, Thuselda in the Triumphal Procession of Germanicus, *1868–73.



Max Liebermann,* Boys in the Sand, *1898, oil on canvas, 48 by 59 7/16 inches.



Caspar David Friedrich:* Mountain Landscape with Lifting Fog, *ca. 1820, oil on canvas, 21 5/8 by 27 11/16 inches.

Rather, they include the work of artists little known in the U.S. and in some cases even forgotten, or at least mislaid, in central Europe. Being able to display them anew just now, as late-20th-century tastes are forgiving many of the salonists and academicians condemned by early-20th-century tastes, turns out to be a stroke of luck for the Neue Pinakothek, not to mention the viewer. The latter may not want to rewrite history to make substantial room for the giant machines shown here by von Kaulbach (The Destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, an 1846 canvas roughly 18 by 22 feet) or Karl Theoder von Piloty (The Astrologer Seni with the Body of Wallenstein, 1855), but the ends and means of mid-century European visual rhetoric are wonderfully illuminated in them, along with the exceptional fluency of craft which even minor painters of the time standardly commanded.

The ends and means of mid-19th-century visual rhetoric are wonderfully illuminated in the Neue Pinakothek's collection.

Meanwhile, if von Kaulbach is elsewhere guilty of a bottomed-out sentimentality which today's most ardent ecumenicist would not abide, there are lots of artists around him who are capable of opening the narrowest of eyes: Gabriel Max was one of the earlier and more fetching precursors of Symbolist decadence, and Carl Carus a Romantic landscapist at times equal to the formidable Caspar David Friedrich, himself shown to excellent advantage here. Fritz von Uhde was a strikingly gifted Impressionist, Carl Spitzweg an anecdotalist of great charm, and the Austrian F.G. Waldmüller a persuasive celebrant of Biedermeier life.

Add to all these, artists and works of an uncommonly wide variety of geographic origin, manners, periods and levels of achievement: Constable and Gainsborough from England, Segantini from Italy, Khnopff and van Gogh from the Low Countries, even Thorvaldsen from Denmark (there is a small amount of sculpture among the 4,300 works in the entire collection) and William Merritt Chase from America (who studied for a time with von Piloty in Munich), plus the best of the French from David through Bonnard and a host of modest to surpassing Germans, Austrians and Swiss: Neoclassicists, Romantics, Realists, Impressionists, Symbolists, proto-Expressionists, on and, seemingly, ever on.

The Neue Pinakothek is not only a major new building added to Europe's body of museums; it is, in view of the liberation of so many of its key works so long in darkness, virtually a new museum collection. That kind of parlay is as rare as its contents are precious. ☐

Author: Franz Schulze teaches architectural history at Lake Forest College.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

IPOUSTÉGUY

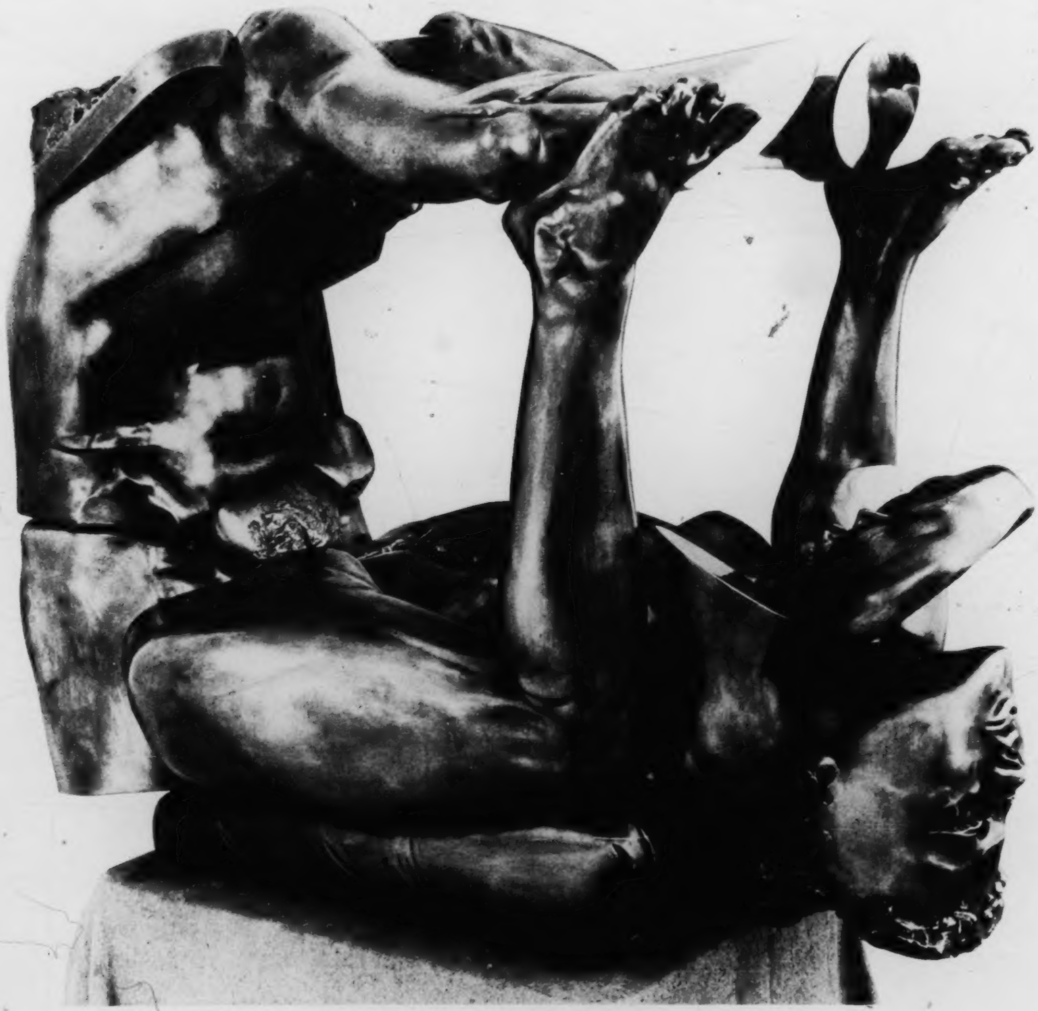

Photo: F. Despatin & C. Gobeli

The House, 1976. Bronze. 47¼ x 33½ x 43¼ inches (120 x 85 x 110 cm.)

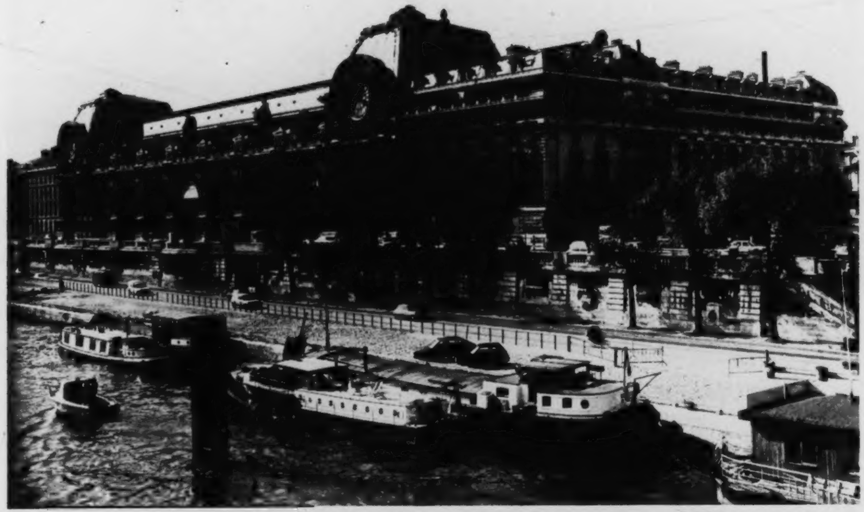
represented by

GALERIE CLAUDE BERNARD
5-7-9 rue des Beaux-Arts Paris 75006
Telephone: 326-97-07

Report from Paris
Musée d'Orsay: Art History vs. History

INTERVIEW WITH MADELEINE REBERIOUX BY EUNICE LIPTON AND WANDA CORN

A controversial appointee of the Mitterrand government, the new vice president of the Musée d'Orsay here discusses some of her unusual plans for France's future museum of 19th-century art.



Completed in 1900, Laloux's Gare d'Orsay will house France's new museum of 19th-century art.

In 1978 Giscard d'Estaing's government decided to turn the abandoned Gare d'Orsay into a museum of 19th-century art. To our eyes, the beautiful turn-of-the-century railway station, with its cavernous industrial interior, might seem an idiosyncratic addition to the impressive grandeur of the Louvre and even to the somewhat dilapidated dignity of the Jeu de Paume. But so must the Jeu de Paume itself and the Orangerie have seemed to 19th-century eyes; compared to the Louvre, their interiors were barnlike, inelegant and disappointingly prosaic. The decision to house 19th-century art in a former railway station may be seen, however, as having a certain appropriateness. After all, what symbolizes the emergence of modern life in the 19th century more vividly than the railroad? And placing art in a setting that evokes social facts may furthermore be seen as consistent both with the marked social awareness characteristic of France today and with the pronounced inclination in recent years towards treating 19th-century art history in its social context.

Located near the center of Paris on the left bank of the Seine, the Gare d'Orsay was built between 1898 and 1900 by Victor Laloux. It was meant to relieve traffic at the Gare d'Austerlitz, the station in southeastern Paris which served southwest France and Spain. In addition, a new station was needed to cater to the growing population of the western part of the city and to accommodate the enormous influx of tourists arriving for the Universal Exposition of 1900. In 1939 the station discontinued its services to greater France, running trains instead only to suburbs like Étampes and Versailles, which are now served by the R.E.R. (Regional Express Networks). After 1969, it was not used as a station at all.

From 1961 on many projects were set in motion for the enormous, vacant station, but it was only in 1973 that the idea to make it an extension of the Louvre was proposed, and it was not until 1978 that the project was officially launched. From its inception this new museum was envisioned as including photography, architecture and objets d'art as well as painting and sculpture. Its collections will come from the Jeu de Paume (which in the future will be used for temporary exhibitions), the Louvre and the Palais de Tokyo (which now includes work by Bonnard, Vuillard, many of the Neo-Impressionists, Carrière, Denis and others); there will also be occasional exchanges with provincial museums. In addition, the museum will include art from other European countries and from America. In fact, recent acquisitions that the Musée d'Orsay is particularly proud of include a Gustave Klimt, an Edward Burne-Jones, a George Frederick Watts and a Franz von Stuck.

The chief curator of the museum is Michel Laclotte, who oversees an impressive team of curators. The painting department consists of Françoise Cachin, Anne Distel, Geneviève Lacambre, Claire Freches, Sylvie Patin. For sculpture, the curators are Anne Pingeot and Antoinette Romain; for objets d'art, the department includes Marc Bascou and Philippe Néagu; and for architecture, the curators are Henri Loyrette and Caroline Mathieu.[1] All of these people were trained as art historians.

In its early stages, there was nothing strikingly unusual about the Musée d'Orsay. The Museum of Modern Art in New York, for example, has the same departmental divisions, and curators at major museums elsewhere have a similar education. What is unusual is what happened to the museum after François Mitterrand, the Socialist President, took office in May 1981. One of the Mitterrand government's early decisions was to name Madeleine Rebérioux as vice-president of the Musée d'Orsay. A well known historian of labor and socialism, Rebérioux is also one of the founding members of Vincennes, the controversial university created by the State in response to student demonstrations in Paris in 1968. Her appointment to a high-level position on the staff of the Musée d'Orsay was newsworthy since, quite atypically, a social historian was being added to an art museum's staff.[2]

Madeleine Rebérioux's academic specialty is modern social and cultural history, which she has taught at the Sorbonne and Vincennes. In addition, she conducts research seminars at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales and does research at the Center for the History of Labor Unions (Centre d'histoire du Syndicalisme). Among her publications are La Deuxième Internationale et l'Orient (Cujas, 1967), in collaboration with the late Georges Haupt, and La republique radicale 1898-1914 (Paris, 1975). Perhaps Rebérioux's major scholarly contribution

VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

has been on the life and work of Jean Jaurès, the prominent turn-of-the-century French Socialist.

The following is an interview that we conducted on July 17, 1982 at Mme. Rebérioux's home in La Varenne, a southeastern suburb of Paris. It has been translated from the French by Peter A.G. Mundell. —E.L. and W.C.

Q. Would you tell us about the origins of the Musée d'Orsay, its objects, its objectives and perhaps something about the people connected with it before you came?

A: Several years ago the French government had been wondering what it should do with the huge railway station. It was no longer being used, and the large mansion next to it had been abandoned some ten years earlier. There was quite a bit of indecision on the government's part as to the eventual fate of the buildings, and there was even a plan to demolish both and build a large modern hotel on the site. This, I think, was an outrageous idea. The spot is so lovely, in the center of Paris. Fortunately that project was abandoned, and in 1978, President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing had a clause inserted in the original ordinance which provided for the construction of a 19th-century museum within the station. I think he wanted to leave something which bore his name and would be different from the Beaubourg, which had been the brainchild of the previous president, Georges Pompidou. Thus, Giscard began the Musée d'Orsay, which was to concentrate on the 19th century.

In the 1978 text of the project the museum was thought of as a cultural museum. The emphasis was nevertheless placed on the visual arts, on painting and sculpture. The museum was supposed to give visitors the opportunity to see paintings, especially from the late 19th century, which could not be accommodated by the Louvre and its annexes. The Jeu de Paume, for example, cannot now contain all the Impressionist work that we have. In addition, the museum would provide many more opportunities to see academic art, which is now in storage. From the outset, the central goal of the museum project was to exhibit paintings which were not sufficiently seen. The museum was clearly oriented toward displaying the visual arts although it was stated quite early that it would also give space to architecture, literature, music, photography and cinema. That was the 1978 project.

Because of the emphasis placed on the visual arts, a team of curators was named, headed by the chief curator Michel Laclotte; he had been chief curator of painting at the Louvre.

Q: What were the changes in the Museum's staff after the political change in 1981?

A: When Socialists came to power in 1981, President François Mitterrand at first hesitated to support the Musée d'Orsay because of the cost involved and also because it was conceived of by his predecessor. He finally decided to proceed with the project and to retain the original staff. A new museum president was named, Jacques Rigaud, and since President Mitterrand also wanted someone to give the museum a more historical orientation than it originally had, I was named to the post of vice-president. The curator's team remained unchanged, so we still have Michel Laclotte as well as the administrative director Jean Jenger who has been here from the beginning and who plays a very important role in the running of the Museum.

Q: What's the difference between the functions of the president and the vice-president?

A: As president of a public institution, M. Rigaud oversees the general operation of the museum at all levels. He is in charge of the administrative staff and of making and maintaining the necessary contacts with architects, etc. As vice-president, I am naturally associated with all decisions and discussions, but my specific role is that of giving a historical orientation to the museum.

Q: What kinds of public would the museum like to attract?

A: It was agreed from the beginning that one of my tasks would be to enlarge the museum's potential public and in so doing, to create a new one. We know for a fact that working class people in France rarely visit museums, and polls have shown that even with Beaubourg's tremendous popular success, its audience includes but a tiny three percent of the working class. The public still comes from the ranks of intellectuals, white collar workers and young people, who are for the most part students.

My idea, which has been accepted, is to establish relations with organizations which will act as a link between the museum and the working public as well as with young people. I think that if such links were created prior to the opening of the museum, we might then be able to excite the public and, more importantly, enlarge it. With this in mind, I have been in contact with workers' committes in various firms. These committees have existed since the end of World War II in firms with 50 or more employees. Under recent laws they are being enlarged. They take care of whatever social and work problems may arise and also deal with employees' collective cultural activities. The committee members are usually named by trade unions, the most influential of which are the Confédération générale du travail (C.G.T.), the Confédération française democratique du travail (C.F.D.T.) and the Confédération force ouvrière. I already have quite good relations with the C.G.T. and the C.F.D.T. Last June, we organized a workday with the C.F.D.T.'s committee and for September 1982 we planned a working weekend with the C.G.T. The idea is not only for us to present the museum's project but also for the representatives to let us know what their interests, expectations and apprehensions are. Our work session with the C.F.D.T. went extremely well and they have decided to set up a permanent liaison committee with us.

We will also be contacting cultural organizations and centers. Whereas the Workers' Committees are independent bodies, the cultural organizations are affiliated with the Ministry of Culture and attempt to adhere to the Ministry's general cultural policies as well as to take an interest in regional events. I'll be in close touch with them next year and have already begun by contacting the local councils controlled by the Left. Next year I'll also be contacting those local councils which organize cultural events and which are controlled by the Right. One example is Boulogne, a culturally important town, with a large Renault factory and a mayor from the Gaullist opposition party, Rassemblement pour la République (R.P.r.). We'll also be contacting councils in the provinces and not just those in and around Paris. The C.F.D.T.'s committee had about 15 representatives from the provinces. The museum took care of their traveling and other expenses during the work session that was organized. The C.G.T. has informed us that for the September 1982 meeting they will have about 100 representatives from the provinces which augurs well for the future.[3]

Q: In what specific ways do you think the museum could improve its rapport with the working class?

A: A major problem is finding a way for workers to identify with the exhibited collections. In general, late 19th-century painting and sculpture does not form an integral part of their heritage as they see it now. For example, they do not see the relationship between these works and the working population of the 19th century. I also wanted to find out why the working class, the trade unionists and socialists in the 19th century held on to traditional esthetic forms of expression. The foremost challenge, then, is to stimulate workers' interest in exhibitions which attempt to portray a particular period through its esthetic productions and through the objects which characterize the artistic civilization of the time, even though they do not initially see a direct connection with themselves. This problem might be solved by installing objects in an exhibition in such a way that they would lead the worker to ask himself important questions about the relationship of art to society. This might set in motion an inquiry into the relationship between the artistic and social worlds of the 19th century as well as of today.

There is today in France a profound interest in local and regional affairs. Consequently, it's quite possible that in the future, temporary exhibitions will be done at d'Orsay in collaboration with museums or with Workers' Committees of large companies from the provinces. If such an association is well organized, it can stimulate workers' interest in this museum. We could also set up a documentation center at the museum and make it available to those who wish to learn something about the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Many other possibilities are also open. For example, we need to explore better ways of informing the public about each exhibition through wall labels, audio-visual methods and brochures. We could also set aside rooms in which people could discuss any matter of interest—that is, visits to the museum could be accompanied by discussions here at the end of a tour. Later, discussions could be continued within the framework of the Workers' Committees. This naturally means we must have someone who will coordinate such discussions. We must remember that the working community is quite diversified and that Workers' Committees are made up of unskilled workers, clerks, technicians, business men and highly skilled personnel, all of whom may have special interests in the period covered by the museum.

A view of the interior of the new Musée d'Orsay, now under construction in Paris.

There is a profound desire in French society today to identify with a period of history that is like our own; the second half of the 19th century is such a time. The extraordinary technological change which is taking place now all over the world is even more dramatic in France because technological progress was not previously as dynamic here as in the United States or in Germany. One finds that a similar, if less dramatic, technological change took place in the late 19th century. That change was profound enough to create deep cultural and social crises. If today's workers can perceive links between the problems of today's world and those of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, history will take on a lot more meaning for them. I think it will be easier to establish such links with the period covered by the museum—1840–1914—than with any other.

Q: Would you give us an example of the kind of exhibition you would like to do?

A: I saw a very interesting exhibition in Berlin last autumn [1981] on the history of Prussia. It essentially tried to present the elements which characterized the the evolution of Prussian society in the field of arts and in the domain of social and political change. This dual presentation gave one a truly comprehensive view of the past. This cannot be done at d'Orsay, however, because the museum has committed itself to depicting civilization primarily through its artistic productions.

Q: What are the differences between the Berlin exhibition and the "Paris-Berlin" or "Paris-Moscow" shows which were held at Beauborg in 1979 and 1980?

A: The Paris-Berlin and Paris-Moscow projects tried to show the interchanges in the realm of high art that occurred between two capital cities, and the emphases were placed on the differences and similarities of these civilizations. Political, economic and social elements were secondary concerns. In the Berlin exhibition, documentary photographs, novels and objects such as models of factories were presented on an equal level with works of art. That's a totally different conception.

Q: What kind of exhibition can the Museum do?

A: We can illustrate the important dialogue that took place between art and industry in the late 19th century. We can also show the great moments of this period in which cultural, social and economic questions were in violent confrontation. A good place to study that is in the five International Exhibitions held in Paris between 1855 and 1900. These exhibitions prompted the construction of monuments which are still standing today; they also prepared the way for the display of art objects and for the building of superb structures called the "Galeries des Machines" which were aimed at sensitizing the French to industrial development.

We can also present the important themes of the era by displaying collections of diverse, esthetically significant objects. We could have rooms depicting the mythic elements of the Republic—for example, statues, paintings, texts, insignia, emblems. We can display collections of works which are not, strictly speaking, of great esthetic quality but which are characteristic of mass culture in the late 19th century. Then there are posters which are in the streets and easily seen by everyone, unlike the paintings in a museum or a private home. The museum would explore the development of the cheap printing press which played an absolutely fundamental role of acculturation in the late 19th century—one played by television today. we might also try to present the cultural products of a specific avant-garde—Impressionist painting and Symbolist literature, for example—so as to demonstrate the exchange of ideas between different groups of painters and writers, an exchange which often took place through the institutions which supported these art forms. These institutions might have been the art dealers, who provided a great service to artists in the late 19th century, or editors and publishers, who contributed a lot to the progress of modern literature in the first 30 years of the 20th century.

Q: How do you feel about exhibiting the work of a single artist?

A: Well, that is the normal function of a museum. For example, some of the rooms devoted to the Impressionist school could each be reserved for a single painter, as is traditionally done. A lot of space will be made available for temporary exhibitions and these could also present the works of one artist. But the space might also be used to demonstrate the contacts between artists and such important social phenomena as, let's say, the machine, or electricity. My personal opinion is that it's all well and good to exhibit the work of one artist but it's equally important to show that the artists, no matter how talented, do not live in isolation. They live within a society, within a milieu, whether closed or open, and this affects

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
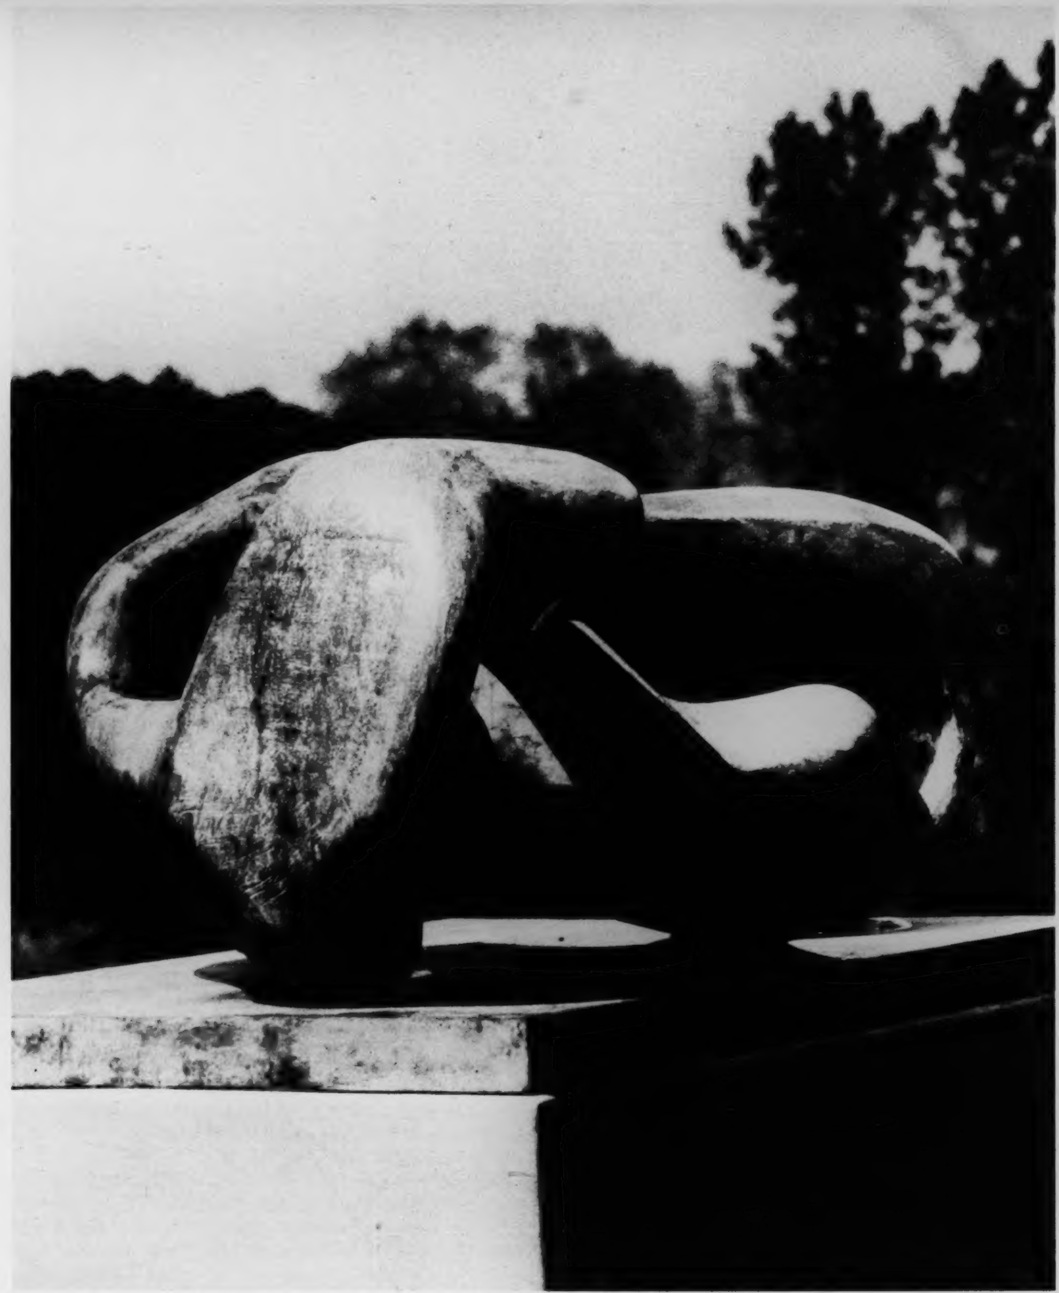
UMI



Reclining Connected Forms. 1969. bronze. 38 x 87 x 52″ Photograph by David Finn

Henry Moore

May 18-October 31, 1983

STORM KING
ART CENTER

Old Pleasant Hill Road
Mountainville, New York 10953
Telephone: (914) 534-3115
Open 2-5:30 p.m. except Tuesday

65 miles from New York City; 1½ hours by car.
Follow New York Thruway to Harriman (Exit 16), turn right to Route 32 North and follow signs for approximately 10 miles.

them and what they produce.

Q: A propos of this discussion, what would you say are the differences between historians and art historians?

A: I see art history as one aspect of history. Art historians nowadays seem to be attracted to history in general and in particular to the relation between art and society, a question which they have not posed with a great deal of force in the past. It is my opinion, also, that there is more than one way to look at art and its relationship to society. I think social issues as well as the history of high culture offer a good vantage point from which to look again at art and society, and the work now being carried out makes this more evident than it probably was 10 or 15 years ago.

Q: History museums in the United States are more likely to explore social history than art museums. Is there a big difference between art museums and history museums in France?

A: We don't have history museums in France—that is, in the sense in which one speaks of a total history. Even the Carnavalet Museum—as rich as it is with material related to the French Revolution—does not satisfy that definition. It does not really say what the Revolution was all about, so it is not truly a history museum. I think that a museum of the French Revolution should attempt to capture the variety of social and cultural forces of that period and the grandeur of that moment. What we do have in France are Eco-museums and museums of popular art and tradition dealing mainly with rural traditions. There are plans to create museums dealing with workers' history or the French Revolution, but there are no history museums now.

Q: Isn't there a plan to create a museum of science and technology?

A: Yes, the La Villette project—a huge scientific and technological center which is to be built on the site of the old slaughterhouses in La Villette, north of Paris. The center is one of many projects that have been proposed, but unfortunately it won't be a museum and certainly not a history museum. It will display modern technologies and their development, but there will hardly be any historical presentation of technology. Such a presentation can be found at the museum of the Conservatoire National des Arts et Métiers in Paris. It is not well known and probably needs some remodeling to become a great museum. But I think it is very important that the history of technology be linked with exhibitions of modern technology. Without such a link, visitors to La Villette will not know where the objects came from; they will be cut off from the past. That, I think, is one of the major problems of French society. People are in a historic vacuum and are searching for their past. They have no real confidence in the future, and even though this confidence seems somewhat renewed with the Left in power, people are still cut off from the past. Therefore, every effort in every field aimed at helping them find their roots is very important.

Q: Is there anything else you would like the American public to know about the Musee d'Orsay?

A: Yes. I look forward to a new kind of museum! □

---

1. We wish to thank Mme. Mathieu, her assistant Marie Laure Crosnier-Lecomte and Carol Ockman (who acted as intermediary) for their assistance in providing information for this introduction.

2. Also recently appointed as a consultant to the staff of the Musée d'Orsay is Chantal Martinet of the Museum of Popular Arts and Traditions. Martinet is a social historian with particular expertise in the history of the press.

3. The meeting in fact took place on Nov. 22, 1982 and, according to Mme. Rebérioux, proved to be extremely interesting.

Authors: Eunice Lipton is an art historian at the State University of New York, Binghamton; Wanda Corn is an art historian at Stanford University.

We are pleased to announce that HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY
and
HOLLY SOLOMON EDITIONS will be located in September
at
724 FIFTH AVENUE, FIFTH FLOOR
NEW YORK CITY, 10019 (212) 757-7777

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
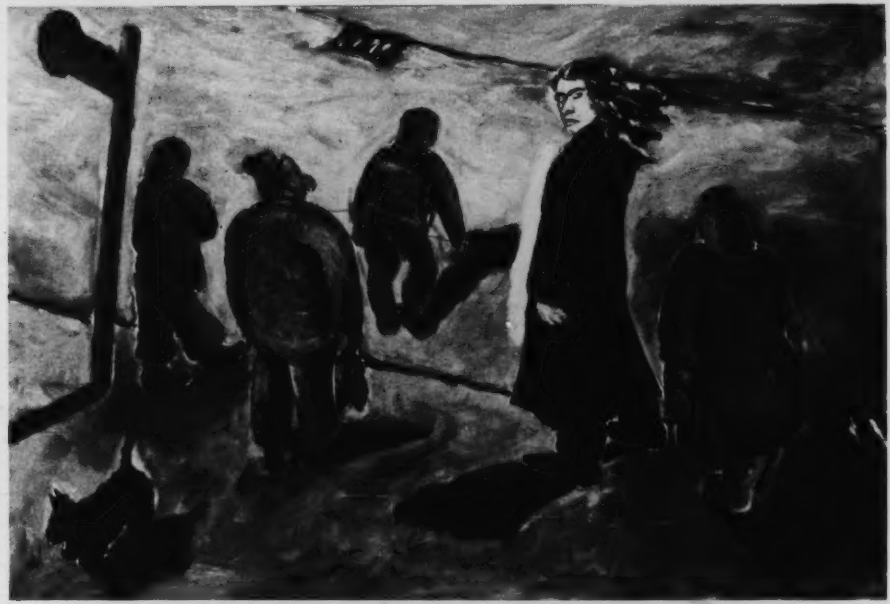
UMI



Die Frau, 1982
Oil on Canvas
75⅝ x 112⅝ in.

DIETER HACKER

Exclusively represented by

40 West 57 New York 10019 Marlborough Telephone: (212) 541-4900

Philip Pearlstein

SCHEDULE OF THE RETROSPECTIVE

Milwaukee Art Museum
Milwaukee, Wisconsin
April 15, 1983–June 19, 1983

The Brooklyn Museum
Brooklyn, New York
July 16, 1983–September 18, 1983

Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
December 15, 1983–February 26, 1984

The Toledo Museum of Art
Toledo, Ohio
March 18, 1984–April 29, 1984

Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
May 19, 1984–July 15, 1984

PHILIP PEARLSTEIN

Works on Paper July 1–August 17

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 West 57th Street, New York

DUANE HANSON
Secretary, 1972.
Lifesize.
Fiberglas, oil painted.

IMPORTANT AMERICAN PAINTING AND SCULPTURE

DeANDREA
ESTES
FRANCIS HANSON
NEVELSON
NOLAND THIEBAUD

FOSTER
GOLDSTROM
FINE ARTS

228 GRANT AVENUE
SIXTH FLOOR
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415 /788-5060

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Summer Group Show

NATALIE BIESER
CAROLYN BRADY
HOWARD BUCHWALD
DON EDDY
RAFAEL FERRER
JUAN GONZALEZ
TERENCE LA NOUE
BILL MARTIN
JOE NICASTRI
DON NICE
JOHN OKULICK
FRANK OWEN
DAVID PARRISH
PETER PLAGENS
JOSEPH RAFFAEL
BILL RICHARDS
PAUL SARKISIAN
BEN SCHONZEIT
ALAN SIEGEL
JIM SULLIVAN
JACK TWORKOV
PHILIP WOFFORD
FUMIO YOSHIMURA

Nancy Hoffman

429 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012

HENRY MOORE

SMALL SCULPTURE DRAWINGS/PRINTS

—— JUNE–JULY ——

Dolly Fiterman Gallery, Inc.
Suite 238 Plymouth Building
12 South 6th Street
Minneapolis, Minnesota 55402
(612) 370-8722

BARBARA ZUCKER

June 2 - July 1

Pam Adler Gallery
37 West 57 New York 10019 212/980.9696

LOREN CALAWAY
MICHAEL DAVID
DONA NELSON

JUNE 2–JULY 29

HAMILTON
20 WEST 57TH ST. NY, NY 10019 (212) 765-5915

HOLLY KING. MYSTERIUM TOWERS (1983). BLACK & WHITE PHOTOGRAPH, 40 x 46 CM.

NEW IMAGE
CONTEMPORARY QUEBEC
PHOTOGRAPHY

RAYMONDE APRIL LISE BÉGIN
SOREL COHEN ANGELA GRAUERHOLZ
HOLLY KING SERGE TOUSIGNANT

CURATED BY PETER KRAUSZ,
SAIDYE BRONFMAN CENTRE, MONTREAL

JUNE 4-JULY 30

49TH PARALLEL
CENTRE FOR CONTEMPORARY CANADIAN ART
49E PARALLÈLE
CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN CANADIEN
420 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012
212 925-8349

Willem de Kooning
The Complete Sculpture
Through June 30

Drawings
Baselitz · Berlant · Crozier · de Kooning · Giacometti
Gorky · Heizer · Henle · Klee · Le Corbusier · Mitchell
Morley · Murphy · Rockburne · Westermann
July 12-September 16

XAVIER FOURCADE INC.
36 East 75th Street New York, New York 10021 212 535-3980

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

WORKS BY BALTHUS CHIA KIEFER LEGER MOTHERWELL NOLAND PICASSO REINHARDT ROTHKO STEINBERG F. STELLA TWOMBLY

VIVIAN HORAN

10 EAST 62ND STREET NEW YORK NEW YORK 10021 TELEPHONE 212-935-1682
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

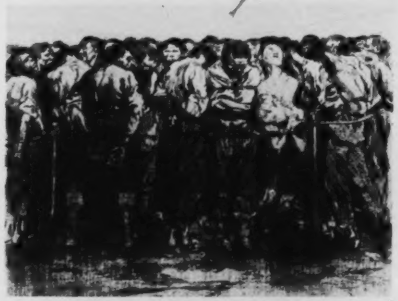
Beckmann

Heckel

Kollwitz

Pissarro

Signac



Kathe Kollwitz. Die Gefangenen,
Etching and soft ground, signed, 1908.

REPRESENTING

- Gregory Amenoff
- Jake Berthot
- Anne-Marie Cucchiara
- Porfirio DiDonna
- Elizabeth Dworkin
- Neill Fearnley
- Jon Imber
- Dexter Lazenby
- Lee Newton
- F. Ramos Prida
- Harvey Quaytman
- Paul Rotterdam
- Lee Sherry
- Joan Snyder
- Adja Yunkers

nielsen GALLERY
179 NEWBURY STREET
BOSTON, MA 02116
(617) 266-4835

PAINTINGS

Gregory Amenoff · Porfirio Di Donna
Peter Flaccus · George Peck

June 8-July 29, 1983

Monique Knowlton Gallery
153 Mercer Street, New York, New York 10012 · Telephone (212) 431-8808

JUNE 14-JULY 23 ■ 83

X ■ CHANGE

5 L.A. ARTISTS ⟷ 5 SEATTLE ARTISTS at LINDA FARRIS GALLERY at KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY

SEATTLE ■ LOS ANGELES

LINDA FARRIS GALLERY
322 SECOND AVE. SO.
SEATTLE, WA 98104
(206) 623 1110

KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12TH STREET
SANTA MONICA, CA 90404
(213) 450 1129

Through Sept. 2

Early and Late

Drawings, paintings and prints by Klimt, Kokoschka,
Kollwitz, Kubin and Schiele.
Checklist available on request.

Egon Schiele: Reclining Nude with Yellow Towel. 1917.

Galerie St. Etienne

24 W. 57th St. NYC 10019
(212) 245-6734 Tues.-Fri. 11-5

In preparation,
a book reproducing
in full color

RICHARD DIEBENKORN
Works on Paper

We wish assistance in locating drawings and paintings on paper from 1968
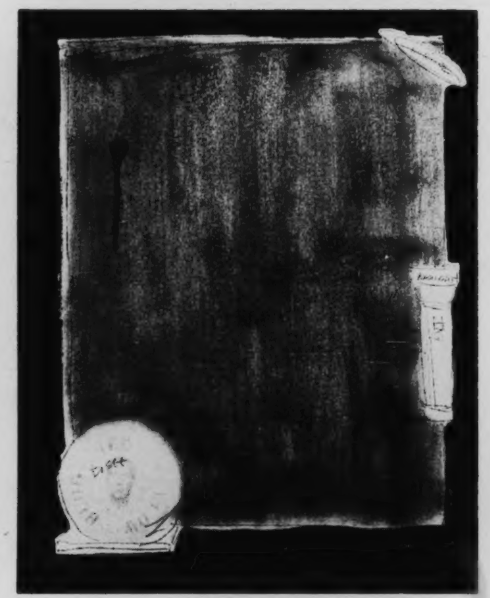
to the present.

Please contact
Richard Newlin

Houston Fine Art Press
■ 7330 Rampart St., No. 100, Houston, Texas 77081
713/981-1009

812 NORTH ROBERTSON
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069

MARGO
LEAVIN
GALLERY



JASPER JOHNS
"SOUVENIR I" 1969 GRAPHITE & INK ON PAPER
24-5/8 X 19-1/2 INCHES

DRAWINGS, PAINTINGS, SCULPTURE BY

ARAKAWA JENNIFER BARTLETT LYNDA BENGLIS JOHN DUFF JUD FINE DAN FLAVIN CHARLES GAINES JILL GIEGERICH BRYAN HUNT JASPER JOHNS DONALD JUDD ELLSWORTH KELLY ROY LICHTENSTEIN ANDREW LORD ROBERT MOSKOWITZ CLAES OLDENBURG JULIAN SCHNABEL RICHARD SERRA ALEXIS SMITH FRANK STELLA GARY STEPHAN TOM WESSELMANN

MARGO
LEAVIN
GALLERY

213/273 0603

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
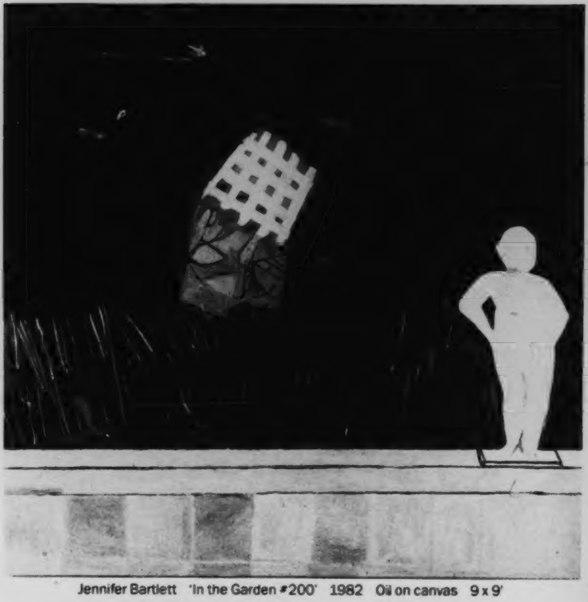
UMI

CHANGING GROUP EXHIBITION

JUNE THROUGH AUGUST 1983



Jennifer Bartlett 'In the Garden #200' 1982 Oil on canvas 9 x 9'

PAULA COOPER GALLERY

155 WOOSTER STREET NEW YORK

GROUP EXHIBIT

PATRICK BRENNAN
ROBERT COLESCOTT
PETER DEAN
JANE DICKSON
NANCY DWYER
DAN FREEMAN
SHALOM GOREWITZ
DUNCAN HANNAH
CARA PERLMAN
MICHAEL ROSS
MARK SCHWARTZ
GREGG SMITH
WALTER STEDING
TOM WARREN

JUNE 8 THROUGH SUMMER

SEMAPHORE GALLERY
462 WEST BROADWAY NEW YORK 10012 (212) 228 7990

---

4 JUNE TO 30 JUNE

WALTER
DAHN

GEORG DOKOUPIL

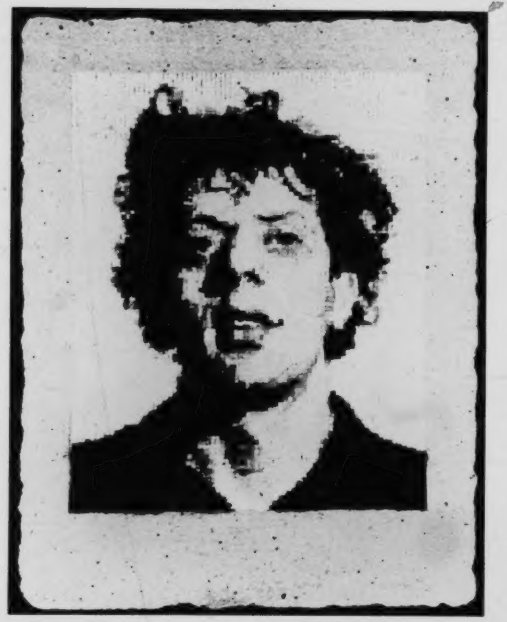
MARY BOONE
GALLERY, 420 WEST BROADWAY
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 966-2114

DRAWINGS

BASELITZ
KIEFER
LUPERTZ
PALERMO
PENCK
POLKE
RICHTER

31 MAY–24 JUNE

MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK 10019



CHUCK CLOSE

HAND MADE PAPER EDITIONS OPENS JUNE 7

Chuck Close, Phil I, 1982
Handmade paper measuring 69" x 53½"
Edition of 15

JOHN C. STOLLER & CO.
400 MARQUETTE AVE MINNEAPOLIS 55401 (612) 339-7060

Michael Prentice

Direct Stone Carvings

21 May – 15 June

HIRSCHL & ADLER Modern

851 Madison Avenue NY, NY 10021 212 744-6700

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

INVITATIONAL EXHIBITION

John Alexander
Rafael Ferrer
Mark Innerst
Kim Keever
Leonard Koscianski
Donald Lipski
Martin Puryear

June 1–30, 1983

GRACE BORGENICHT GALLERY
724 Fifth Ave, New York, 10019 212/247-2111

MAEGHT · ZÜRICH
Predigerplatz 10–12
8025 Zürich
Tel. 01 251 11 20

MARKUS LÜPERTZ
paintings

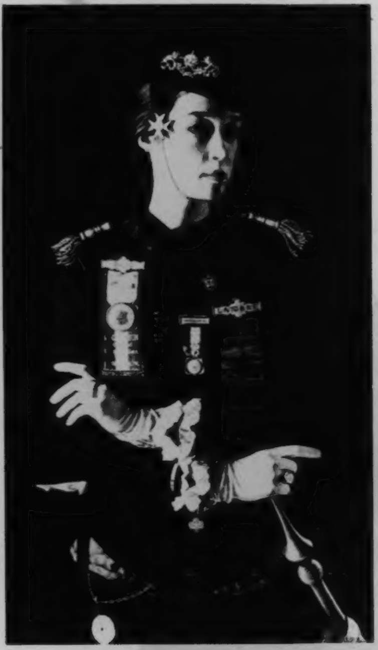
JUNE/JULY 1983

TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 W. 57, NY 10019 (212) 421-3780

FRANK BOWLING
RECENT PAINTINGS
THIRD FLOOR

MAURICE GOLUBOV
SKETCHBOOK EXCERPTS
FOURTH FLOOR

4 JUNE–29 JUNE 1983

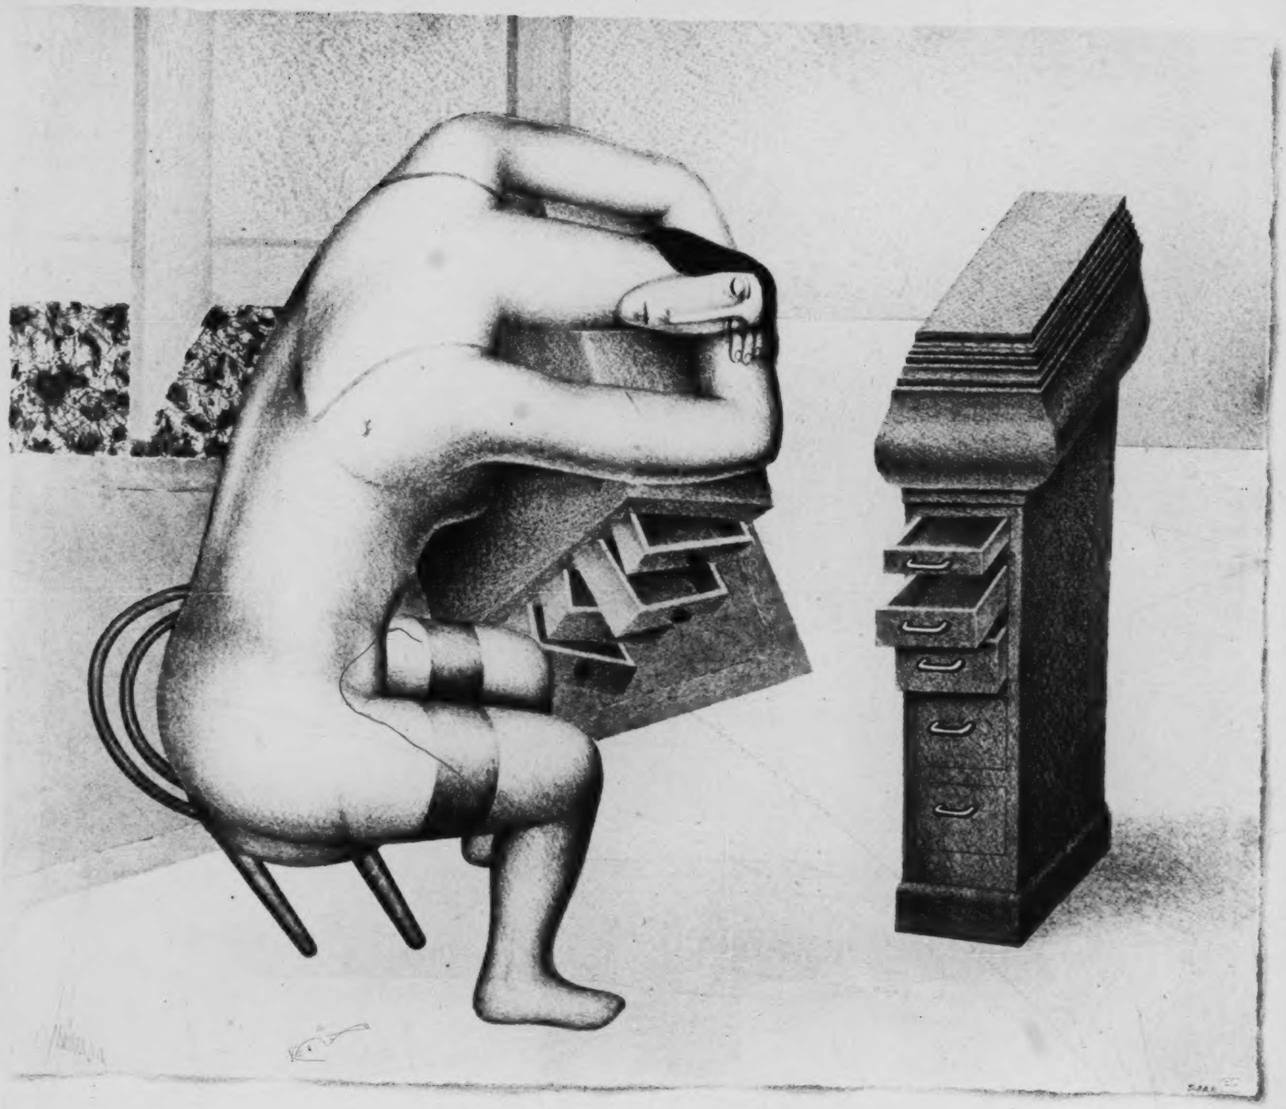


Union Suit, 1982
Oil on panel
38¾ x 22⅜ inches

Deborah Deichler

is represented by the
Maxwell Davidson Gallery
43 East 78 Street, New York
Tel 212 734-6702

©Editions Press, 1983.

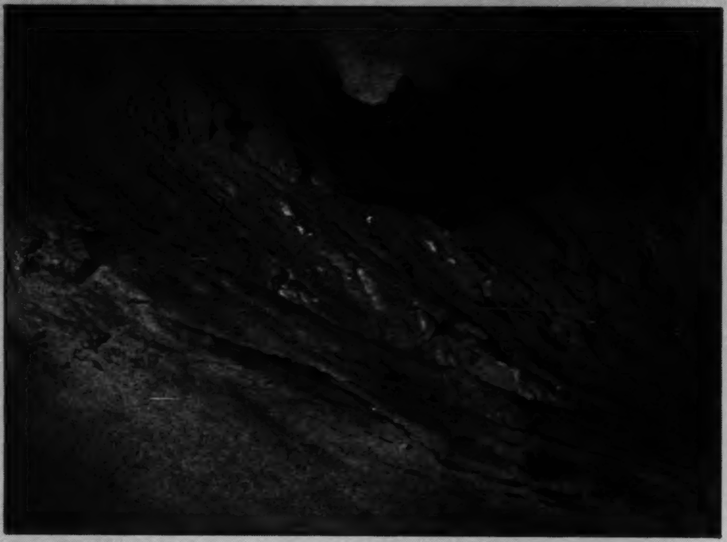


ROY CARRUTHERS

This recent lithograph by Roy Carruthers is entitled Sleeping Woman. It was hand printed at the workshop of Editions Press in nine colors on Buff Arches Cover paper, and is published in an edition of sixty. It measures twenty nine by thirty four inches. Please call or write for information.

EDITIONS PRESS
915 Bryant Street, San Francisco, California 94103, U.S.A.
Telephone: (415) 626-1846

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI



"Crestone Morning" Oil and Acrylic on Canvas 60" x 84"

MERRILL MAHAFFEY

Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center

July 2 - August 18, 1983

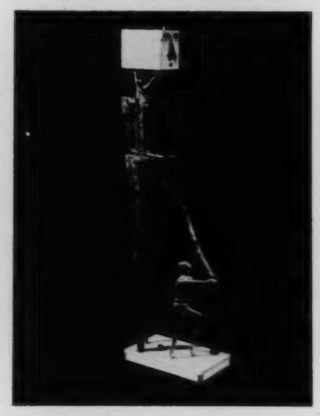
represented by

ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES
4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
(602) 945-0791

FISCHBACH GALLERY
29 W. 57th Street
New York, New York 10019
(212) 759-2345

HARRIS GALLERY
1100 Bissonnet
Houston, Texas 77005
(713) 522-9116

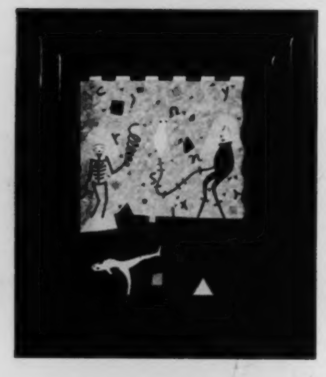
Michael Stevens



"THE MISANTHROPE" PINE, ENAMEL, PAPER, CARDBOARD 70" x 11¼" x 29" 1982

June 17-July 16

Suzanne Adan



"CLOWNING AROUND" OIL ON CANVAS 16" x 14" 1983

Betsy Rosenfield Gallery, Inc.

212 West Superior, Chicago, Illinois 60610 Telephone 312.787.8020

TERRY DINTENFASS

REPRESENTING:

WILL BARNET
HYMAN BLOOM
PETER BLUME
TONI DOVE
ANTONIO FRASCONI
SUZI GABLIK
SIDNEY GOODMAN
ROBERT GWATHMEY
JOHN HIMMELFARB
RICHARD HUNT
FRANCES HYNES
HERBERT KATZMAN
WILLIAM KING
EDWARD KOREN
JACOB LAWRENCE
RONALD MARKMAN
RICHARD MERKIN
ROBERT ANDREW PARKER
DONALD SANDSTROM
PAUL SUTTMAN
CARL NICHOLAS TITOLO
HAROLD TOVISH
ESTATE OF ARTHUR DOVE
ESTATE OF SAMUEL ADLER

50 W 57 NYC 581-2268

INTERNATIONAL BUTLERS CONVENTION
CHIVAS REGAL
12
WEBER

Chivas Regal • 12 Years Old Worldwide • Blended Scotch Whisky • 86 Proof • © 1982 General Wine & Spirits Co., N.Y.

VOL

7
1

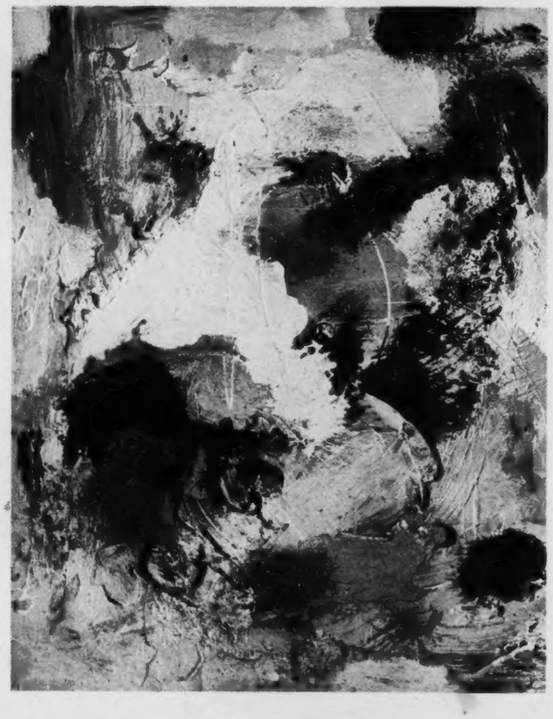
ISS

6

SUM

1983

UMI



HANS HOFMANN
(1880-1966)

oil on paper mounted on canvas
14 1/8 x 11 1/8 inches estate stamped on reverse
536/64

UNTITLED

Provenance:
Estate of the artist;
Andre Emmerich Gallery, New York;
Estate of Dorothy De Borchgrave, New York

R.H. LOVE 20th CENTURY GALLERY
108 EAST OHIO CHICAGO, IL 60611
312/664-9620

The Gallery Collection

European:	American:
Eugene Boudin	Albert Bierstadt
Marc Chagall	Jasper Cropsey
Camille Corot	William S. Horton
Edgar Degas	Walt Kuhn
Raoul Dufy	William McGregor Paxton
Claude Monet	John Singer Sargent
Pierre Renoir	Everett Shinn
Maurice Utrillo	John Sloan
Maurice Vlaminck	Edmund Tarbell
Edouard Vuillard	J. Alden Weir
and others	and others

19th and 20th Century European and American Paintings

Hammer Galleries
SINCE 1928

33 West 57th Street
New York N.Y. 10019
(212) 644-4400

Art in Italy

THE ARTISTS • CARLO BATTAGLIA • GIORGIO DE CHIRICO • LUCIO FONTANA
BERTRAND LAVIER • SOL LEWITT • NINO LONGOBARDI • LUIGI MAINOLFI • MARINO MARINI
MARIO MERZ • GIORGIO MORANDI • MIMMO PALADINO • ERNESTO TATAFIORE • EMILIO VEDOVA

THE GALLERIES • KAREN & JEAN BERNIER • GALERIE BEYELER • CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY • GIMPEL-HANOVER & ANDRE EMMERICH GALERIEN • UGO FERRANTI
L'ISOLA • GALLERIE MARESCALCHI BOLOGNA • DENISE RENE HANS MAYER • MASSIMO MININI GALERIE NEUENDORF • GALLERIA TUCCI RUSSO • TONINELLI ARTE MODERNA • FRANCO TOSELLI

Art in America

A Special Advertising Supplement

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

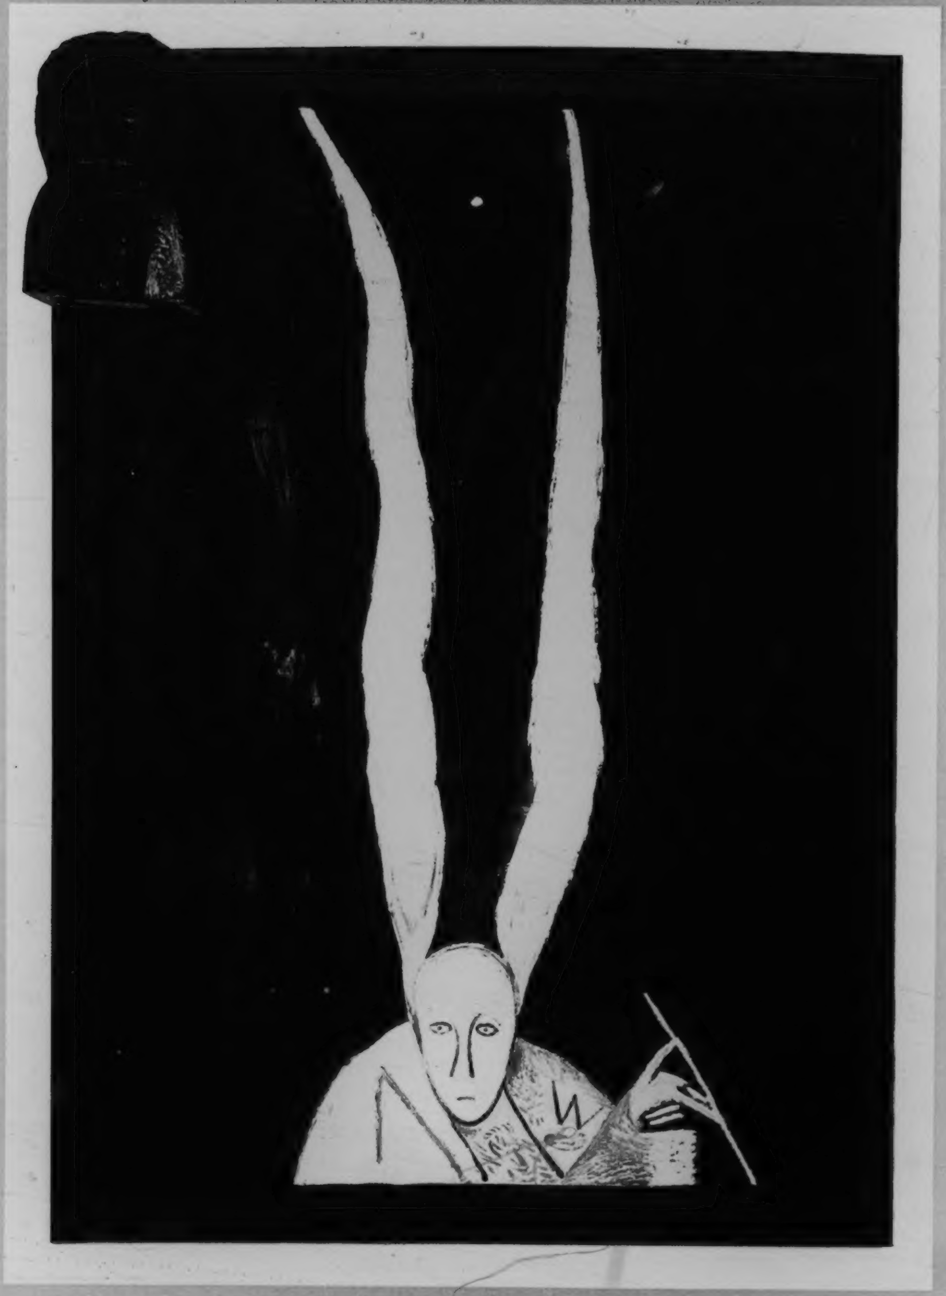

Photo: Giorgio Colombo

MIMMO PALADINO

"Quadro Muto." 1983. Mixed media on canvas. 2.20 m. x 1.60 m.

FRANCO TOSELLI

VIA DEL CARMINE 9, MILAN. TEL: (2) 805 0434 / FORO BONAPARTE 5, MILAN. TEL: (2) 805 0308

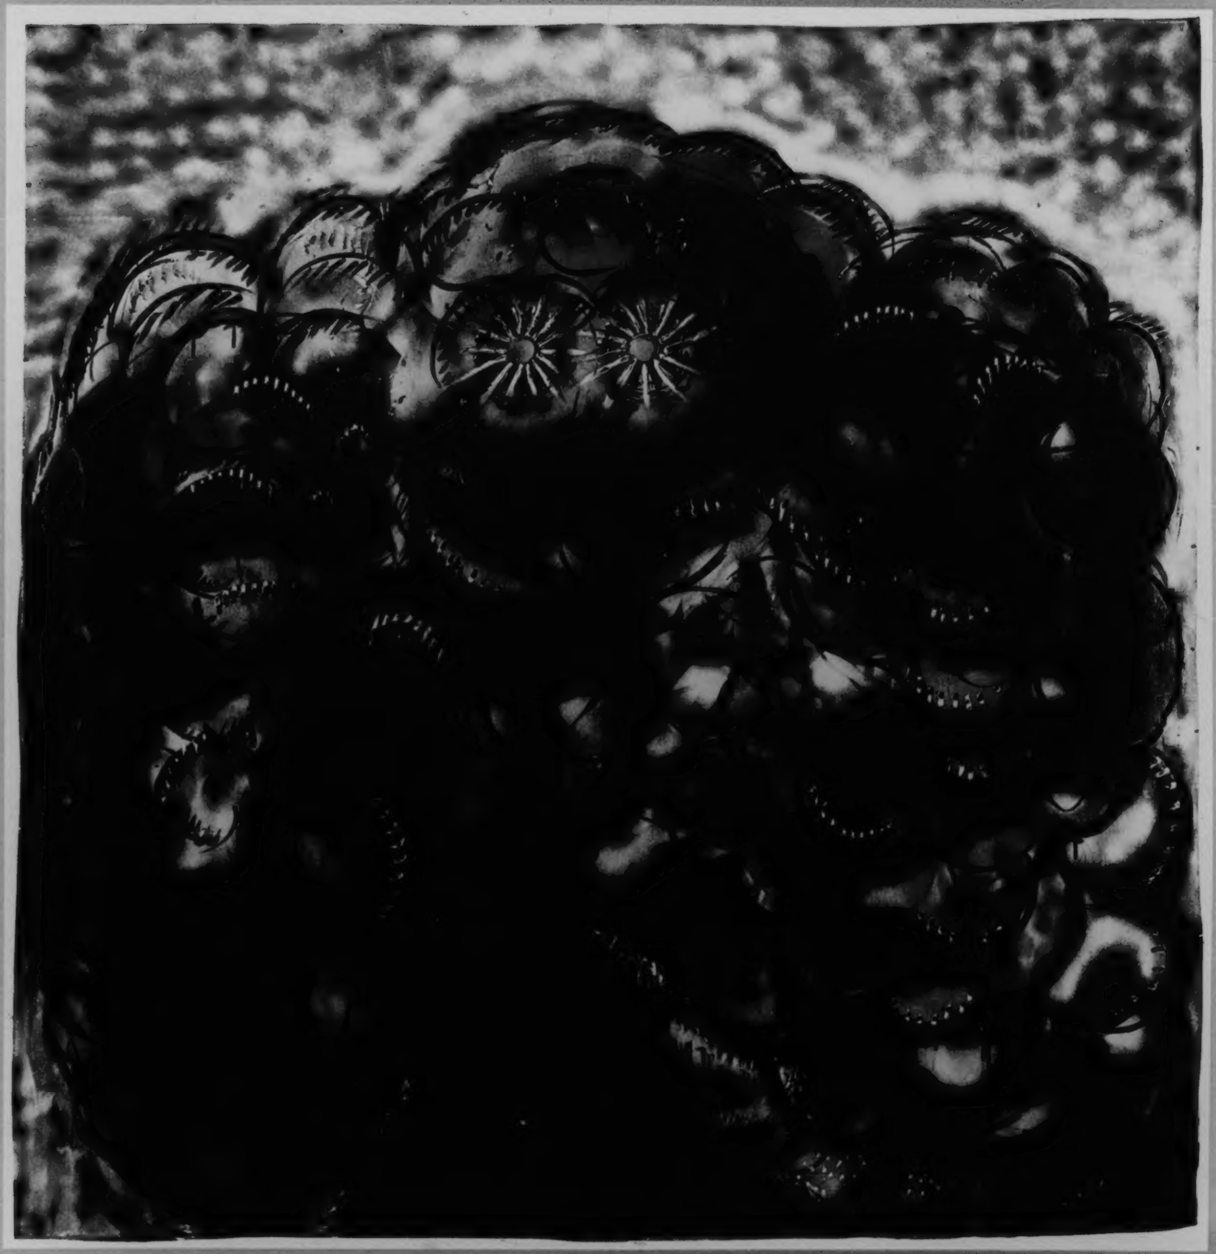

Photo: Giorgio Colombo

MARIO MERZ

"Gufo." 1980. Mixed media on canvas. 2.10 m. x 2.10 m.

FRANCO TOSELLI

VIA DEL CARMINE 9, MILAN. TEL: (2) 805 0434 / FORO BONAPARTE 5, MILAN. TEL: (2) 805 0308

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

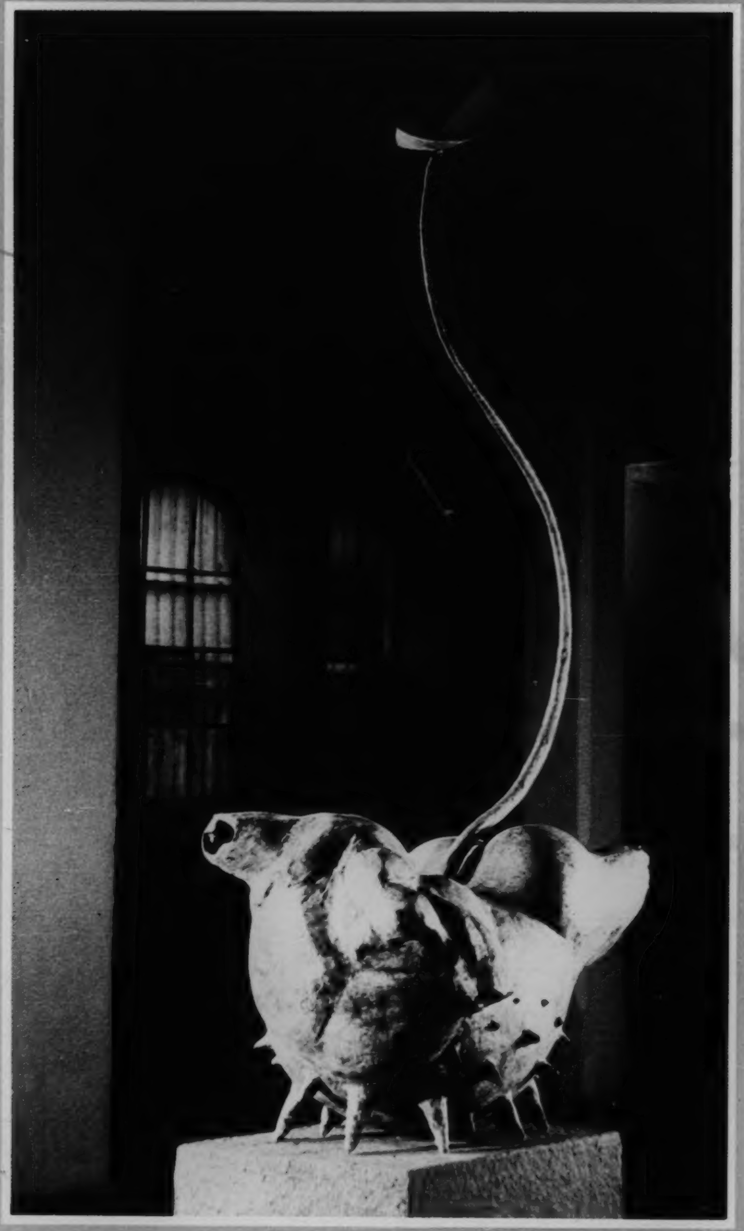

Photo: P. Mussat Sartor

LUIGI MAINOLFI

"Il Trionfo (Elefantessa)." 1982. Bronze. 90 cm. x 50 cm. x 185 cm.

GALLERIA TUCCI RUSSO S.N.C.
CORSO TASSONI 56, 10144 TORINO. TEL: 011 779 304

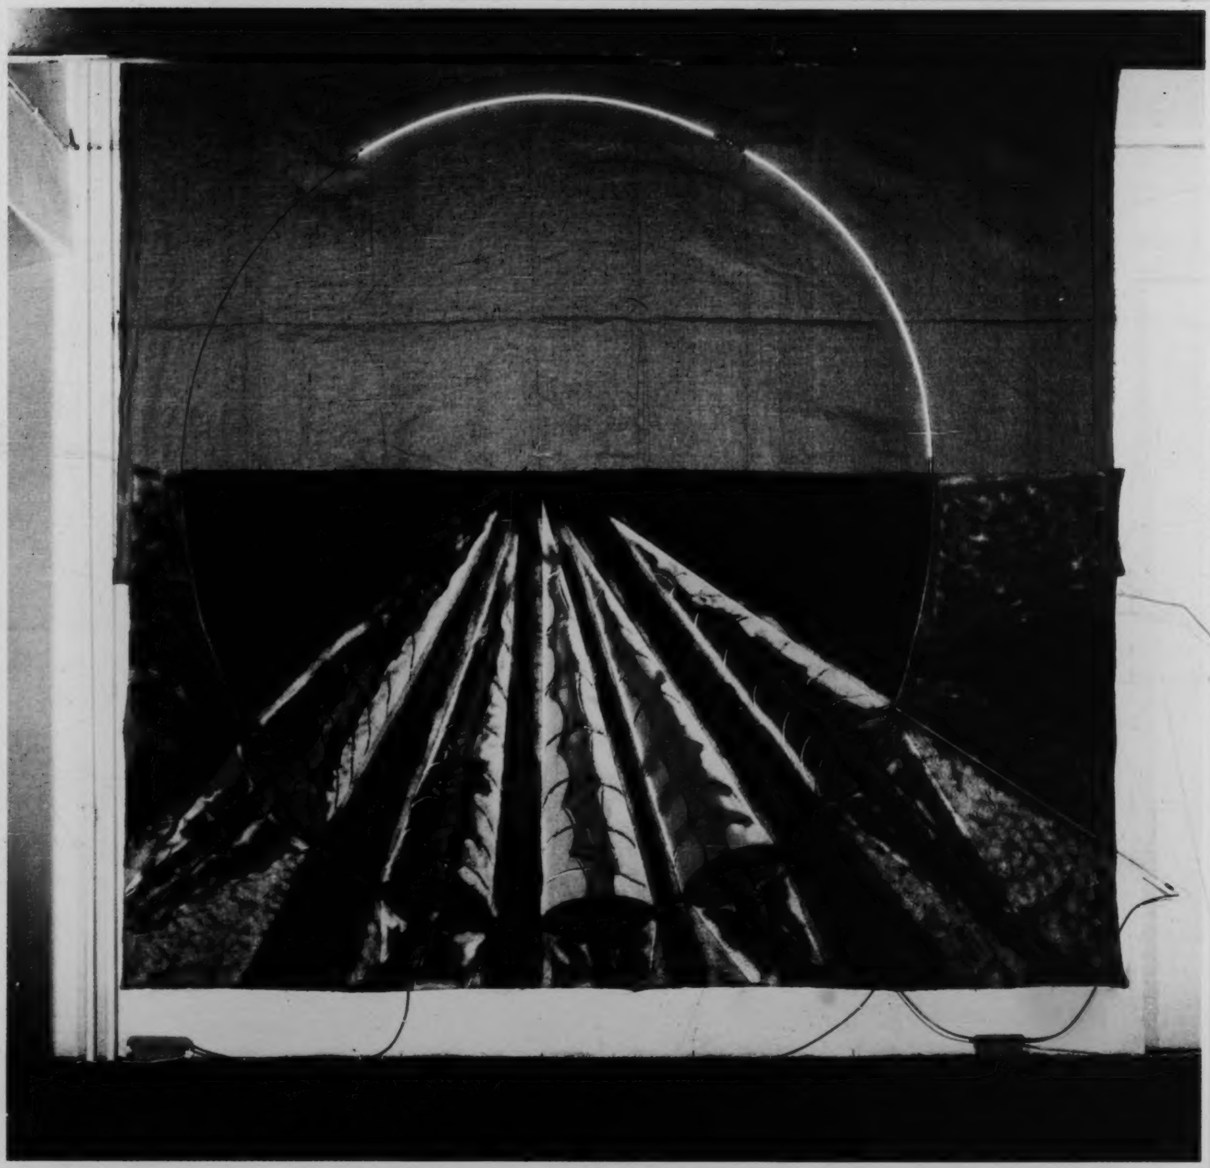

Photo: Euzo Ricci

MARIO MERZ

"I Musicanti," 1981. Mixed media on canvas, yellow and blue neons. 400 cm. x 330 cm.

GALLERIA TUCCI RUSSO S.N.C.

CORSO TASSONI 56, 10144 TORINO. TEL: 011 779 304

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

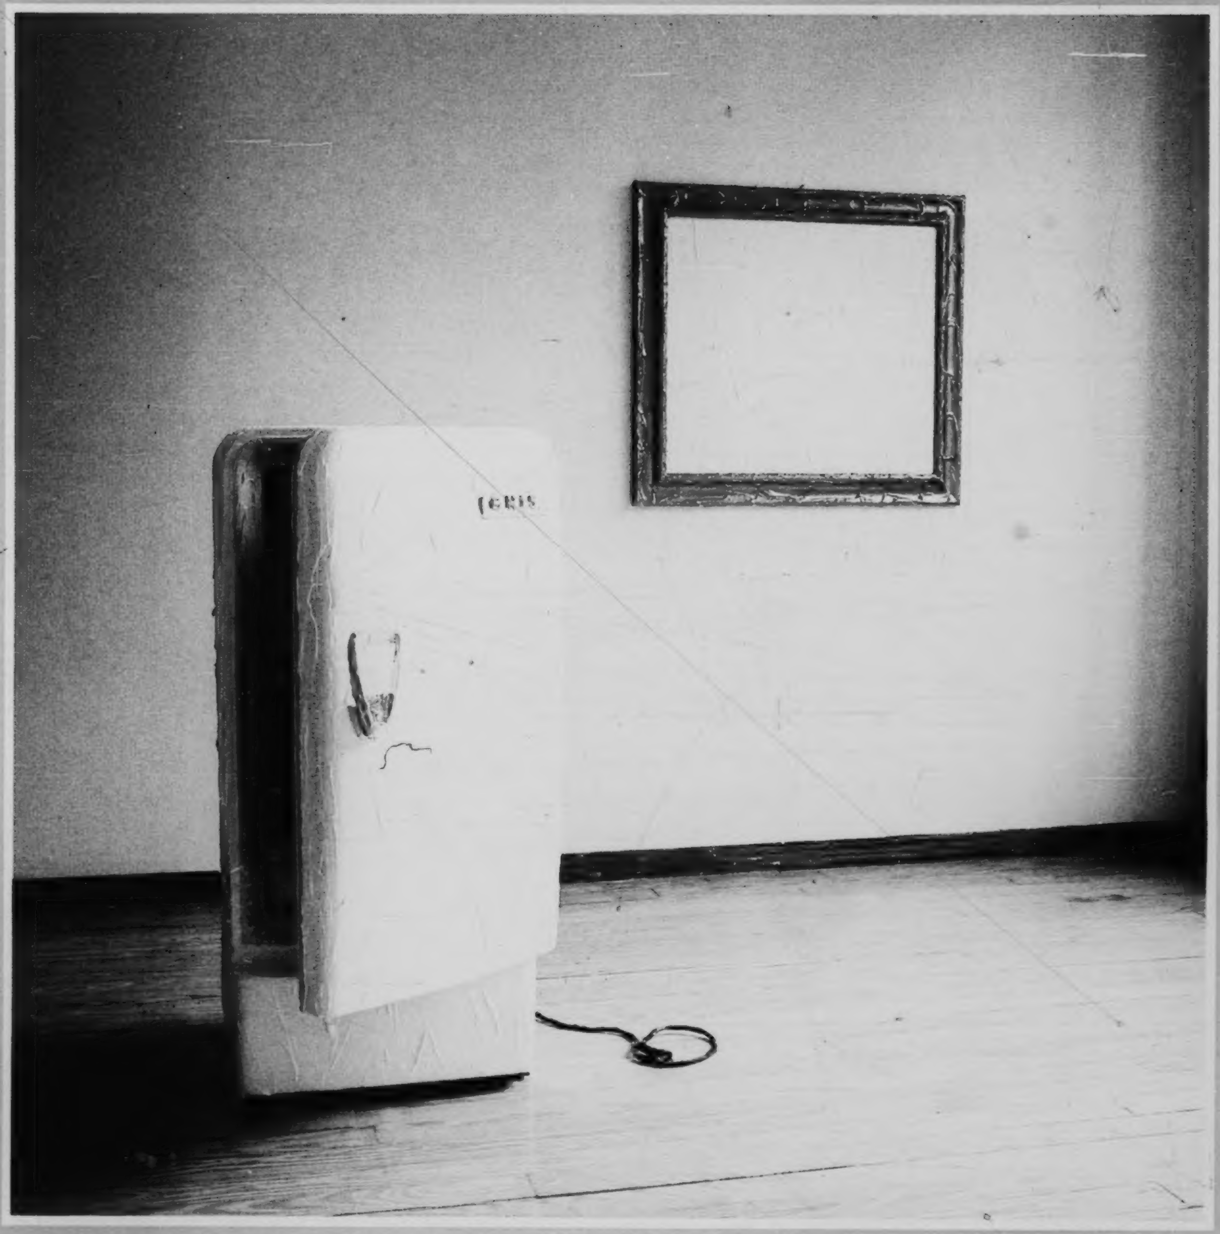

Photo: Salvatore Licitra

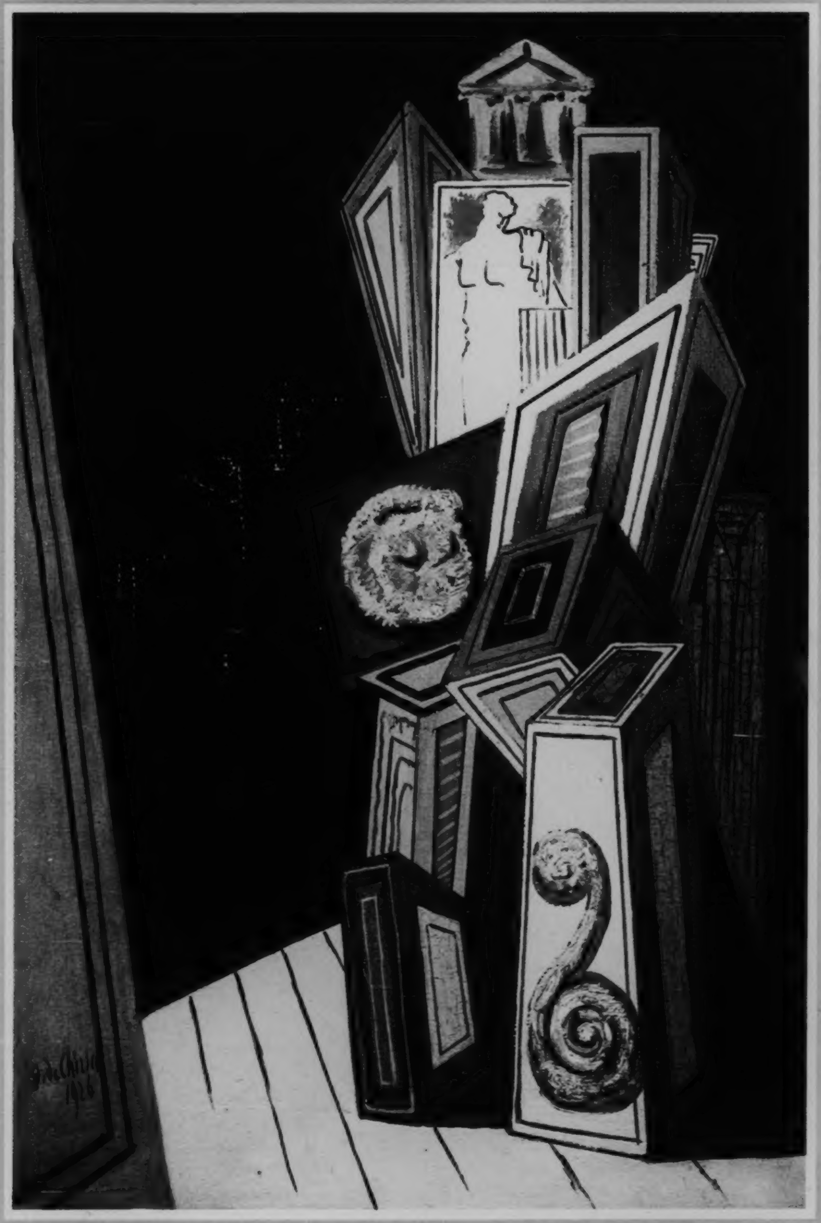
BERTRAND LAVIER

View of new works exhibited in Milan, March-April 1983

MASSIMO MININI

VIA C. DEL S. SEPOLCRO 10, MILAN. TEL: 02 867130 / VIA APOLLONIO 68, BRESCIA. TEL: 030 56275
TELEX: 300859



GIORGIO DE CHIRICO

"La Notte de Pericle." 1924. Oil on canvas. 36¼" x 24½".
Basel Art Fair. June 15-20.
Expressionist Painting Beyond Picasso
Including works by Picasso, Bacon, Jorn, Dubuffet, Penck, Baselitz, Kieffer, Cucchi, Clemente, Paladino

GALERIE BEYELER
BAUMLEINGASSE 9, 4001 BASEL. TEL: (061) 23 54 12

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

GIORGIO MORANDI

"Cortile de Via Fondazza." 1962. Oil on canvas. 40 cm. x 45 cm.

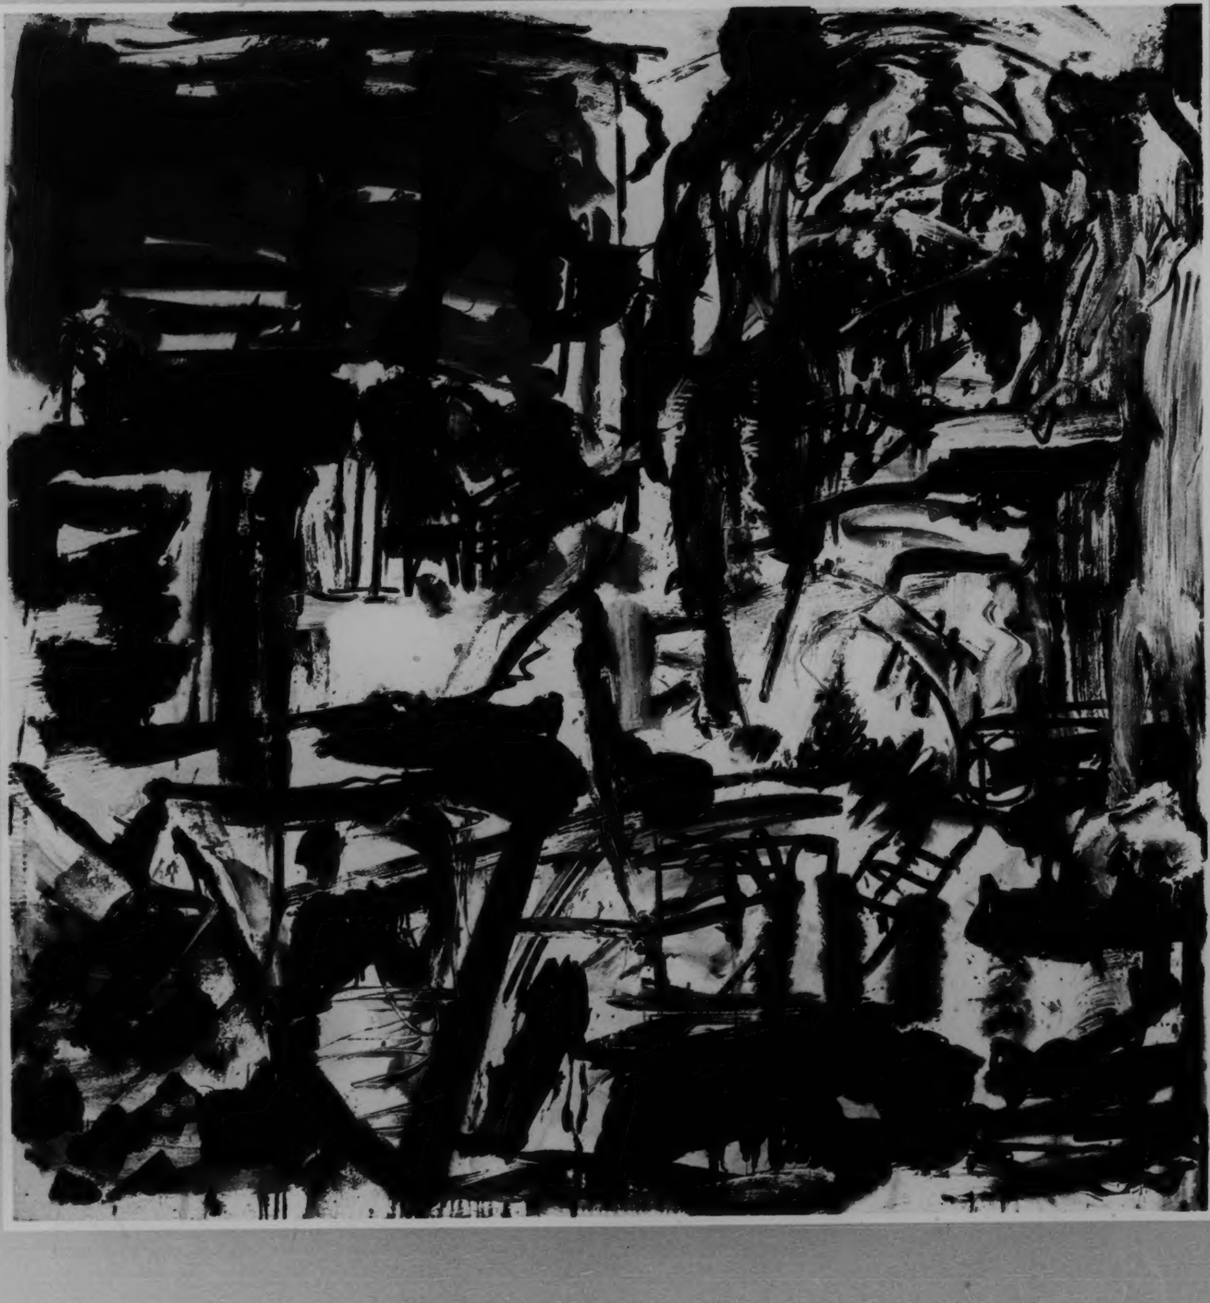
GALLERIA MARESCALCHI BOLOGNA

VIA MASCARELLA 116/B, BOLOGNA. TEL: (051) 27 05 91 / 26 46 21



EMILIO VEDOVA

"Supporti Transitori '82-1-." 1982. Oil on canvas. 2.35 m. x 2.35 m.

GALERIE NEUENDORF

FELDSTRASSE, HOCHHAUS 1, HAMBURG. TEL: (040) 431 175

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
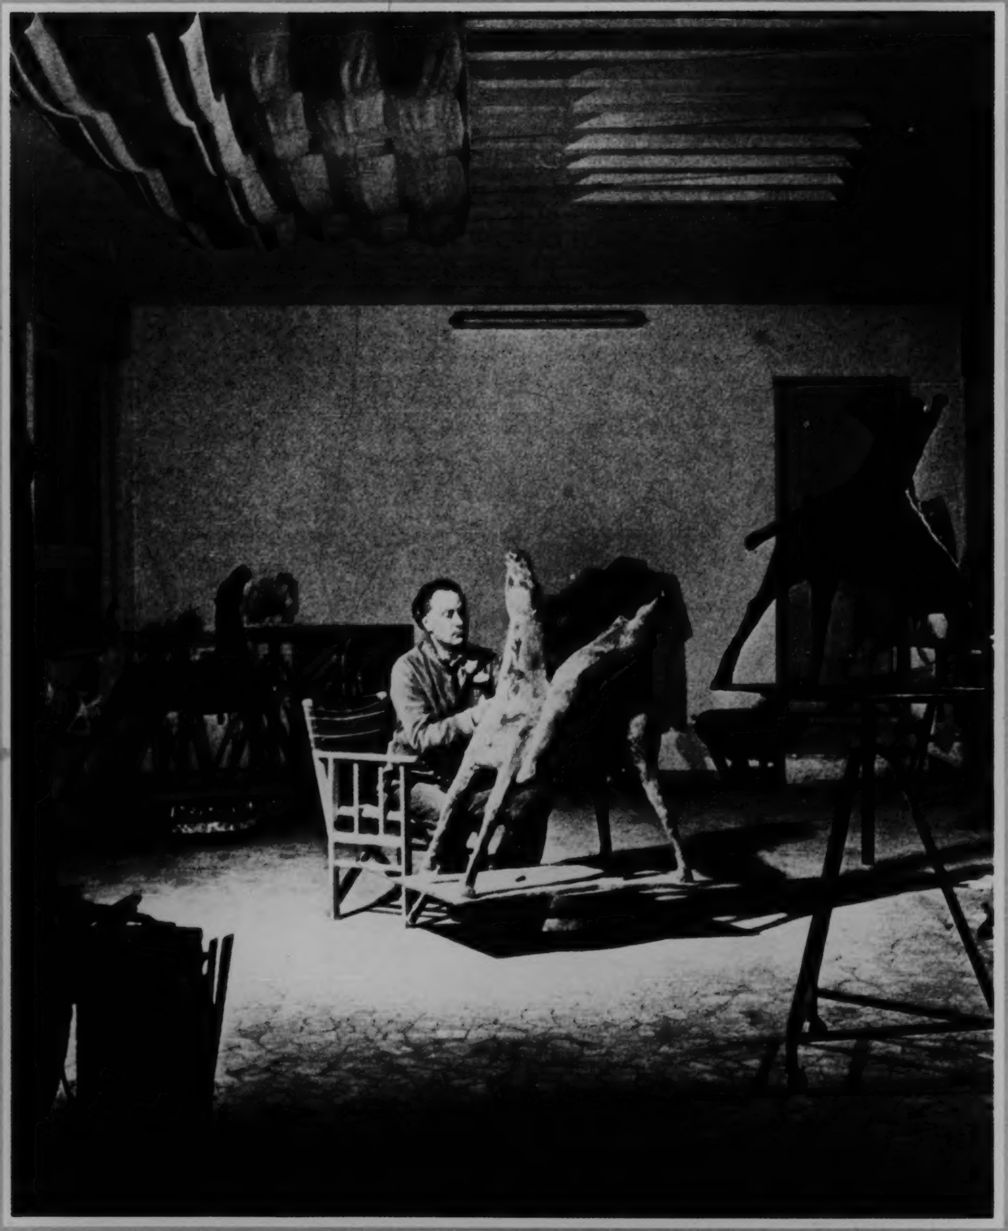
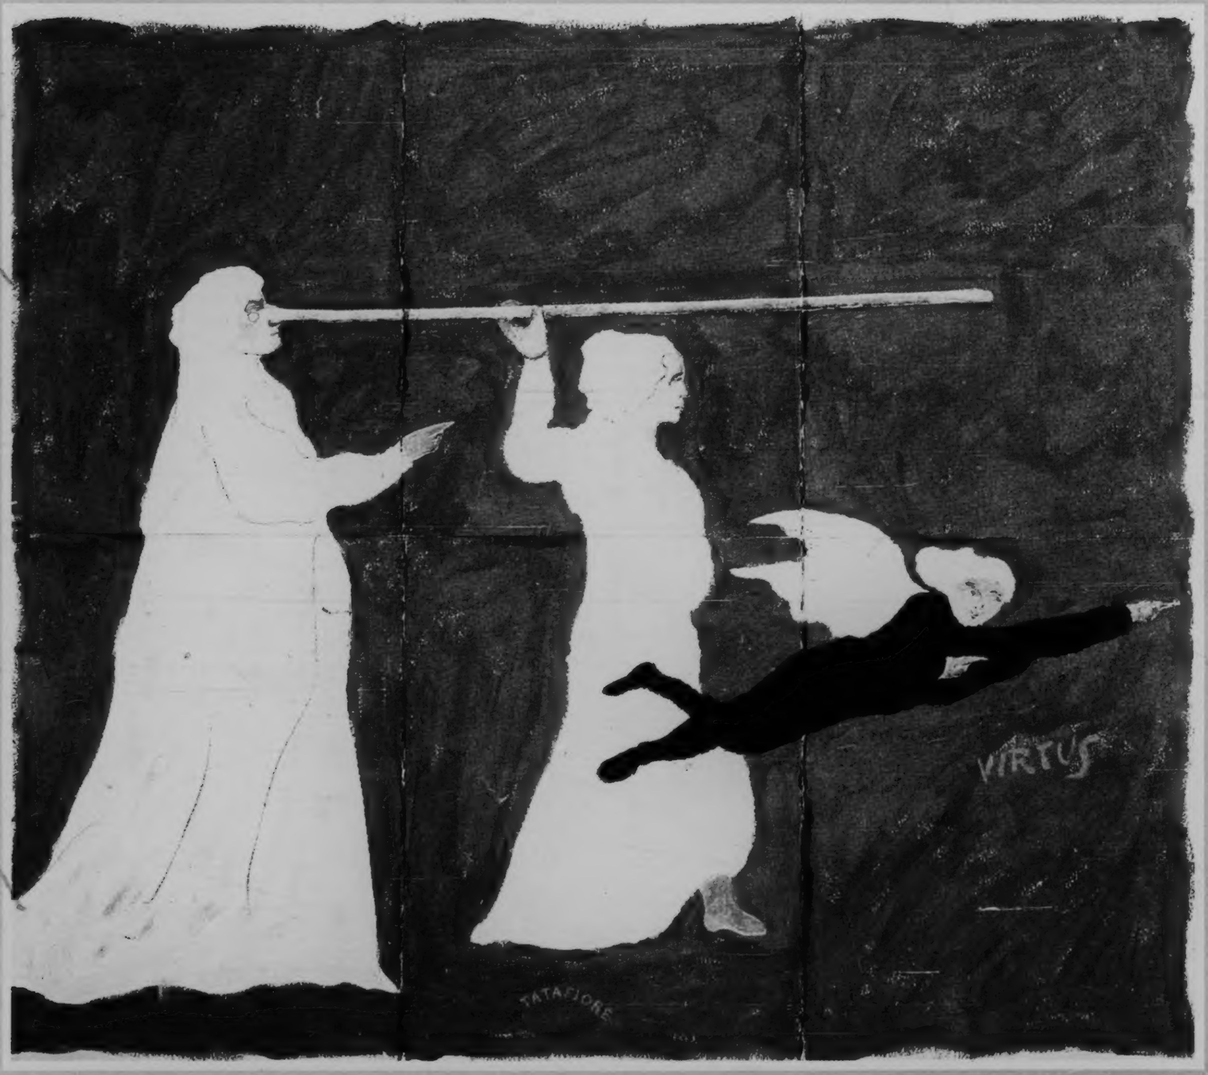
UMI



MARINO MARINI

Marino Marini in his Milan Studio, 1951
Major sculptures by Marini and other Italian masters sometimes available.
Enquiries from public institutions and non-speculative private collections invited and welcome.

TONINELLI ARTE MODERNA
86 PIAZZA DI SPAGNA, 00187 ROME. TEL: 782 393



ERNESTO TATAFIORE

"Virtus," 1982. Acrylic on six panels. Height 5 feet, width 6 feet (1.52 m. x 1.82 m.)

ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY

41 EAST 57TH STREET, NEW YORK 10022. TEL: (212) 752 0124

GIMPEL-HANOVER & ANDRE EMMERICH GALERIEN

TODISTRASSE 40, 8002 ZURICH. TEL: (01) 202 0300

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

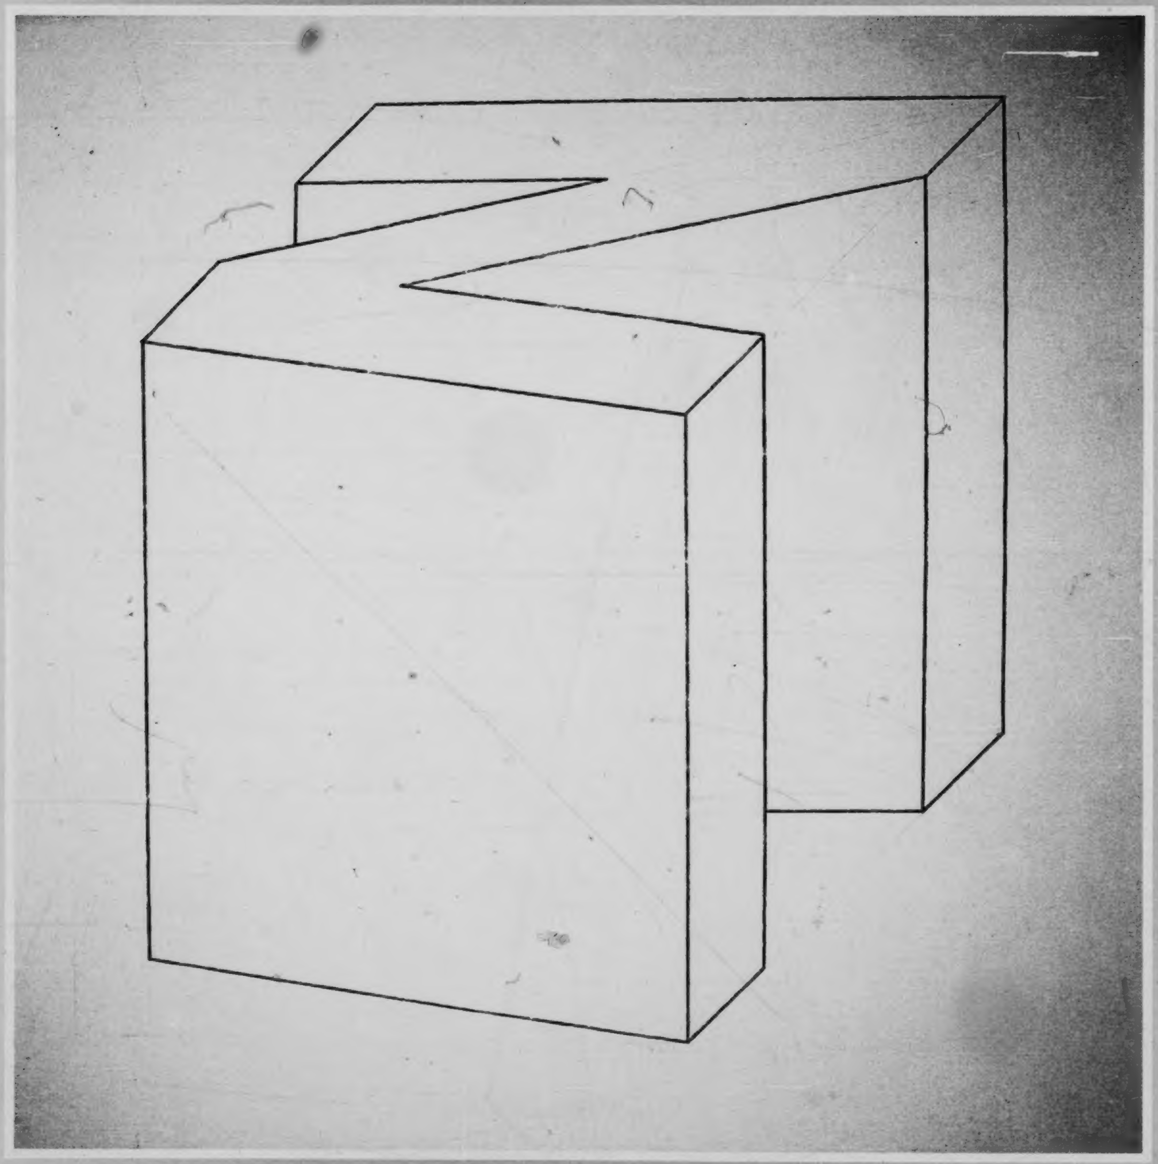

Photo: Mimmo Capone

SOL LEWITT

Wall Drawing. 1983. 3m. x 3m.

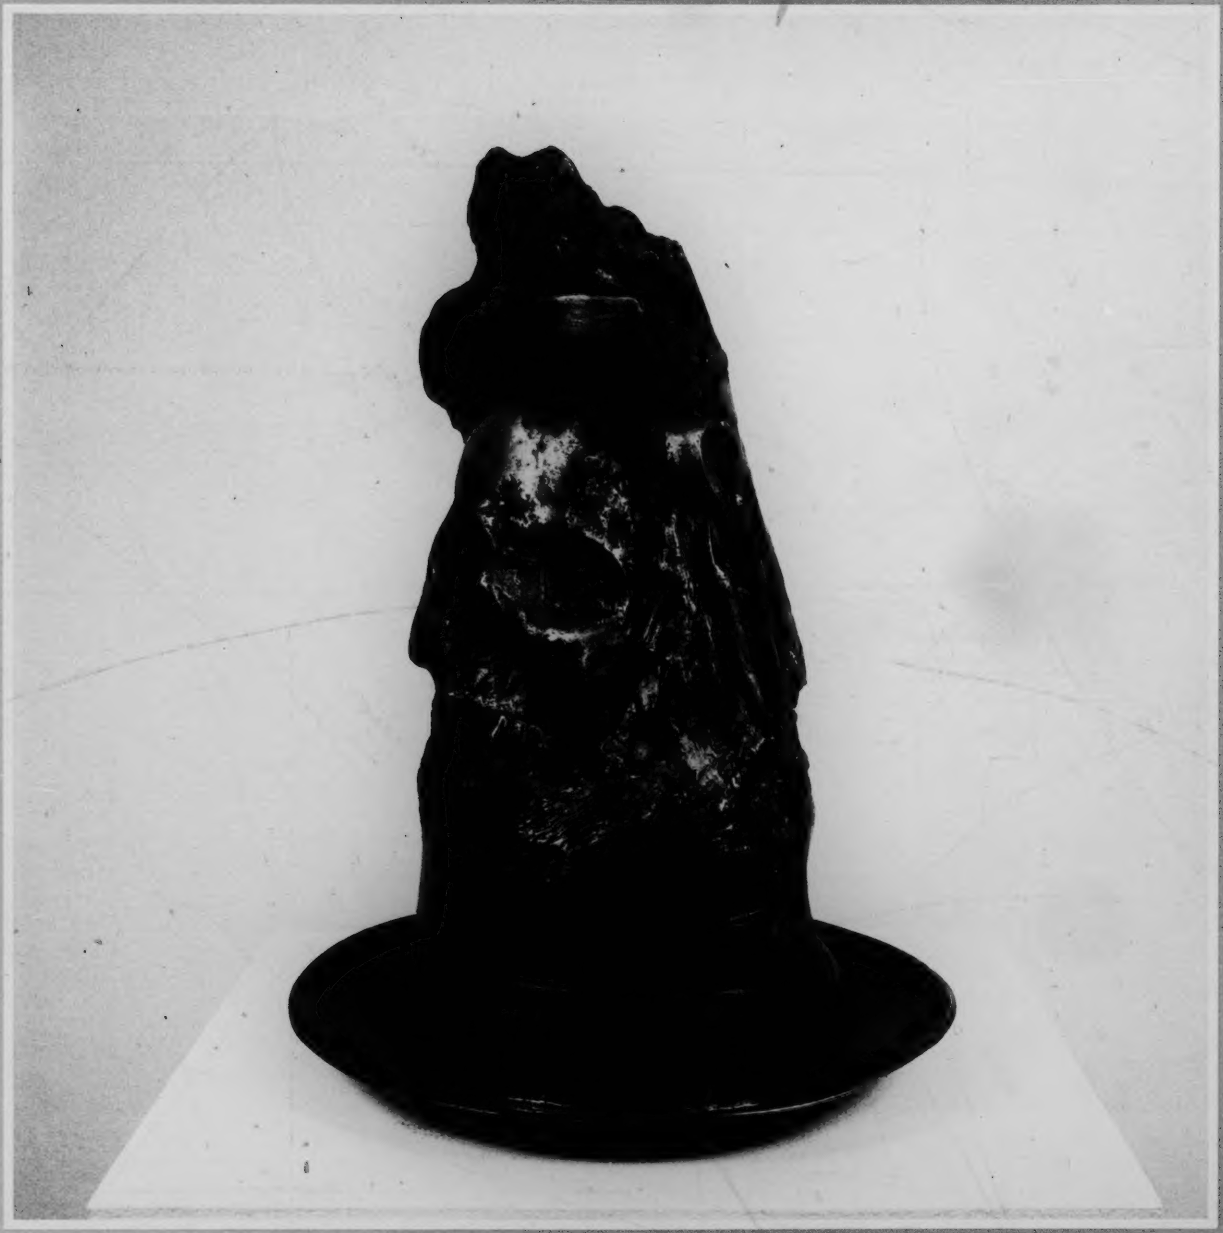
UGO FERRANTI

VIA DI TOR MILLINA 26, ROME. TEL: (06) 654 21 46



NINO LONGOBARDI

"Maestro Napoletano." Bronze, unique, 12" diameter, 15" height.

CHARLES COWLES GALLERY

420 BROADWAY, NEW YORK 10012. (212) 925 3500

VOL
7
1

ISS
6

SUM

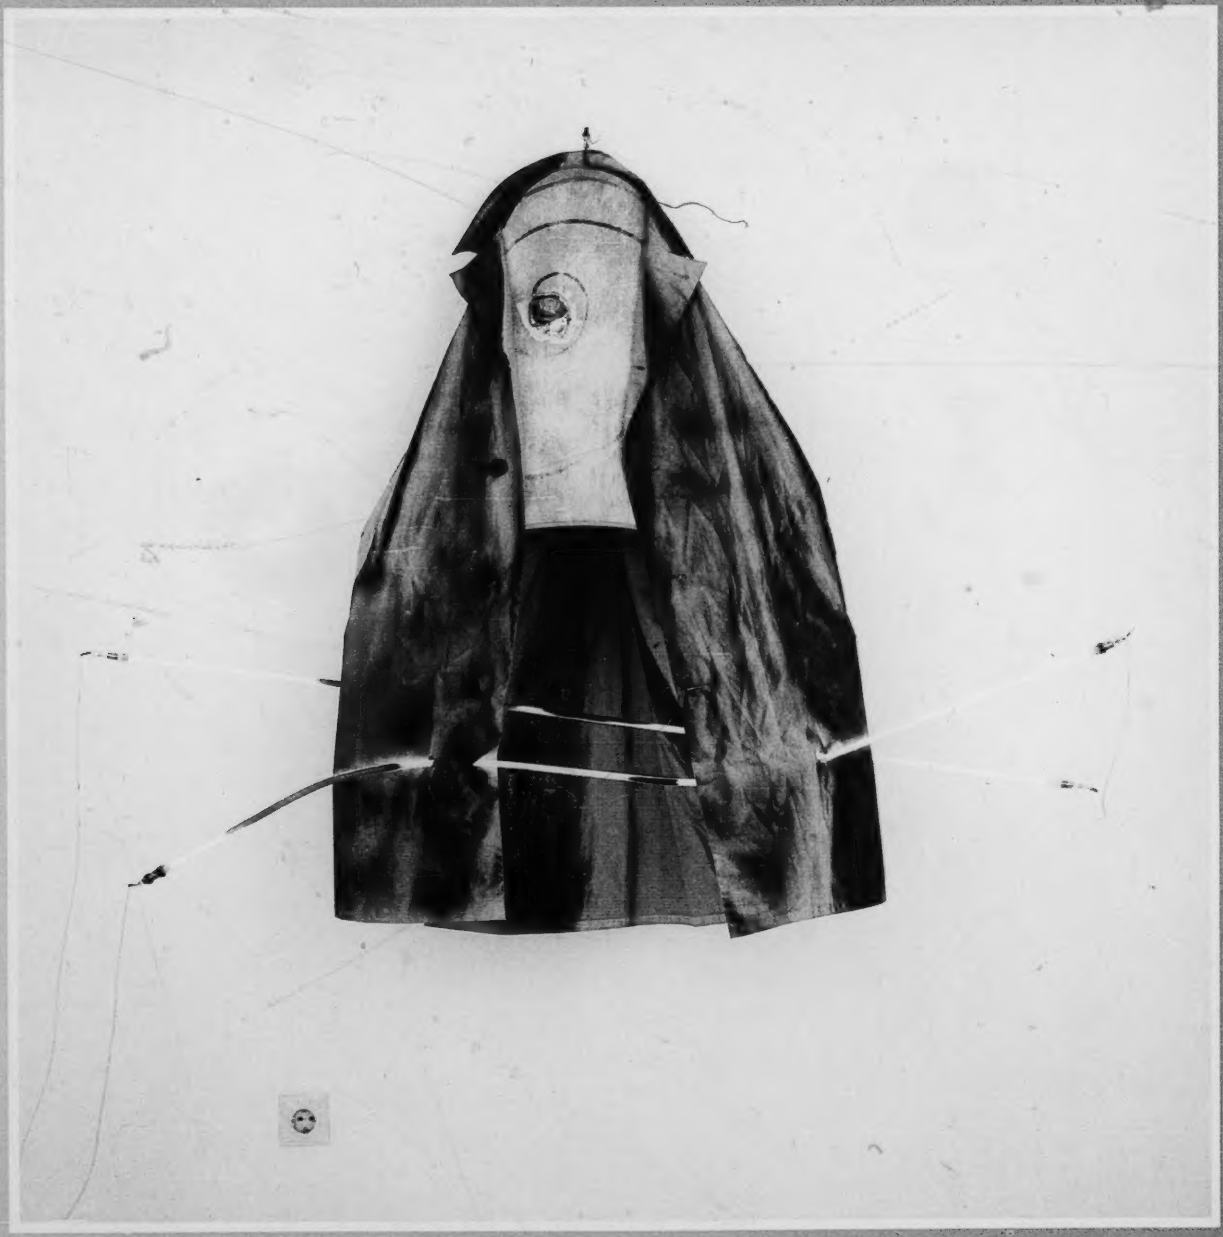
1983

UMI

CARLO BATTAGLIA

"Oltremarina, 6." 1983.
Egg tempera and oil on linen. 134 cm. x 160 cm. (52.8" x 63")

L'ISOLA
VIA GREGORIANA 5, 00187 ROME. TEL: (06) 679 00 29 / 678 54 77



MARIO MERZ

Untitled. 1971. Mixed media, neon, spray paint, wood. 220 cm. x 160 cm. x 40 cm.

KAREN & JEAN BERNIER

51 MARASLI, ATHENS 140. TEL: (1) 723 5657

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
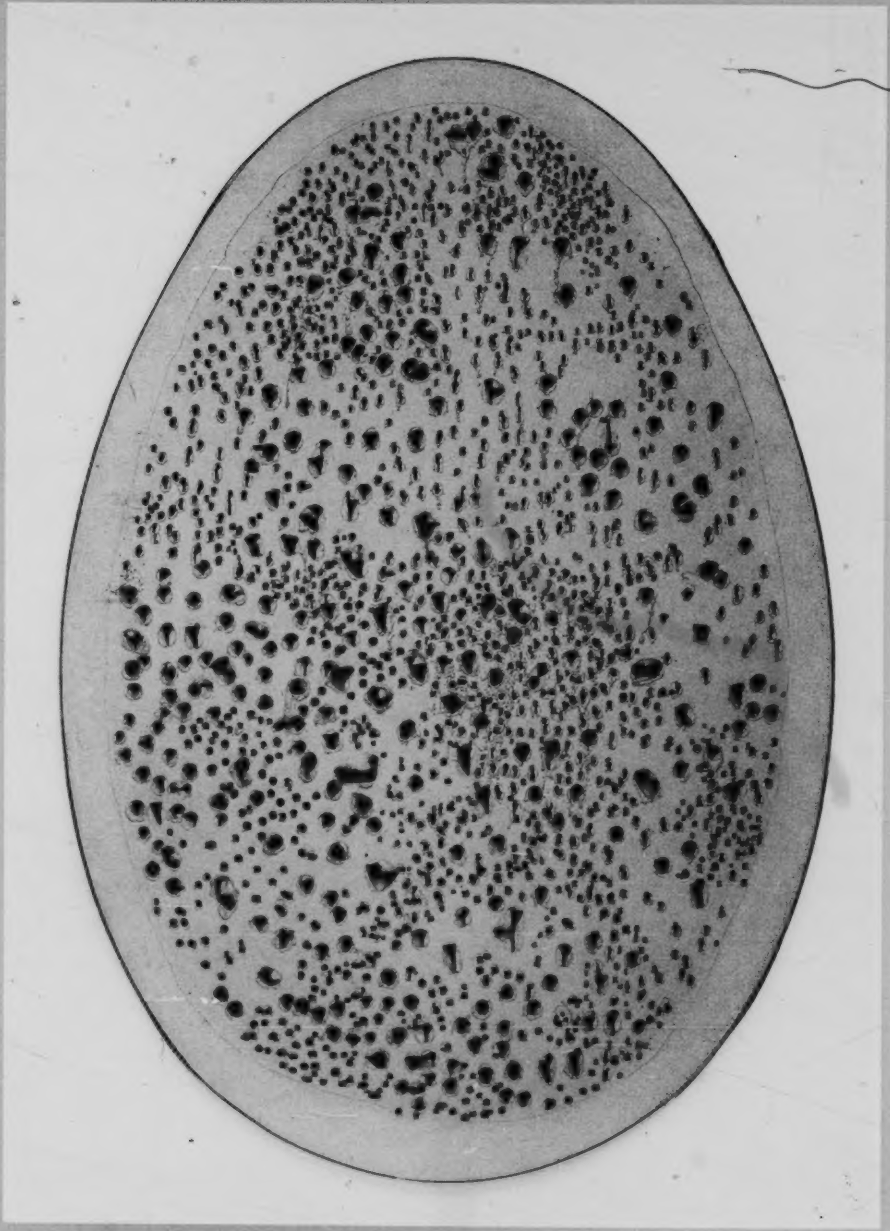
UMI



LUCIO FONTANA

"64 FD 4-La Fin di dio." (206/3) 177 cm. × 123 cm.

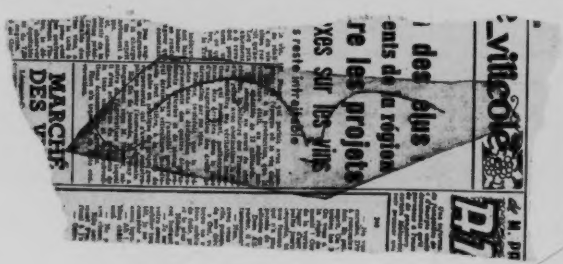
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER

GRABBEPLATZ 2, 4000 DUSSELDORF. TEL: (02 11) 1321 35

PABLO PICASSO

THE ILLUSTRATED BOOKS



PATRICK CRAMER, PUBLISHER

PABLO PICASSO

The Illustrated Books: Catalogue Raisonné

Compiled by Sebastian and Herma Goeppert and Patrick Cramer.
Patrick Cramer, Editeur, Geneva, 1983.

The complete catalogue of the illustrated books, albums and catalogues, with 156 entries and 804 reproductions (35 in color). Preface, poem by P. A. Benoit, chronological table, etc. 416 pp. Full cloth, illustrated jacket, cloth slipcase. 12⅗ x 9¼ in.

Regular edition
(English or French) Sw. fr. 180.—

English de luxe edition of 20 copies with an original drypoint etching by Picasso (Bloch 983) from a numbered edition of 40 impressions with the signature stamp
Sw. fr. 5800.—

GALERIE PATRIC CRAMER
13, rue Chantepoulet
1201 GENEVE (Suisse)

THE DAN FLAVIN ART INSTITUTE CORWITH AVENUE BRIDGEHAMPTON LONG ISLAND NEW YORK 11932 DIA ART FOUNDATION

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

SUMMER '83 SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

CRISTOF'S (505) 988 - 9881
106 WEST SAN FRANCISCO ST.

A GALLERY OF FINE NAVAJO RUGS
AND OTHER BEAUTIFUL CREATIONS
SORRY, NO CATALOG

JANUS GALLERY (505) 983 - 1590
110 GALISTEO

Charles Pebworth/Pierre Tresfort	June 17-28
John Hogan/Jesus Bautista Moroles	June 30-July 19
Pat Wolf/Marcy MacKinnon	July 22-August 16
Dolona Roberts	August 19-September 6

EL TALLER (505) 988 - 9298
235 DON GASPAR #2

CONTEMPORARY & SOUTHWESTERN ART
ONE MAN SHOW FOR AMADO PENA
AUGUST 19th

MUNSON GALLERY (505) 983 - 1657
653 CANYON ROAD

June 24-July 7	James Harrill
July 8-July 21	Gallery Artists
July 22-August 3	Al Losfetter
August 4-September 1	Gallery Artists

Mon.-Sat. 10-5 Sun. 11-4

GONDECK GALLERY (505) 988 - 3580
211 OLD SANTA FE TRAIL
THE INN AT LORETTO

ORIGINAL GRAPHICS BY KEVIN RED STAR
BRONZES BY BILL PROKOPIOF

MON—SAT 10 - 5

SCHARF GALLERY (505) 982 - 6161
76 EAST SAN FRANCISCO ST.

MAY 29, AMIEL SCHARF sculpture
JUNE 26, BREN PRICE watercolor
JULY 24, ALBERT J. DREHER oil
AUGUST 20, HENRY GOBIN & CARL BEAM
MON – SAT 10-5 SOME SUNDAY OPENINGS

Santa Fe Gallery Association

SIDNEY GUBERMAN JULY
TOM FRANCIS

FAY GOLD GALLERY 3221 CAINS HILL PLACE ATLANTA GA 404 233 3843

DEE VAN DYKE AUGUST
SAM WANG

GIANNI DESSÌ

june 1983

salvatore ala 32 west 20th new york 10011 tel. 675-3267

MARTYL

PAINTINGS JUNE 3-28, 1983

Exhibition Catalogue Available

FAIRWEATHER HARDIN

101 East Ontario Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60611
(312) 642-0007

NEW PAINTINGS

Alexandra Antic
Mary Anderson Armstrong
Robert Ferrandini
William Flynn
Nan Freeman
David Kelley
Walter Pashko
Miklos Pogany

NEW CERAMICS

Christina Bertoni
Harvey Goldman
Jan Holcomb

IMPRESSIONS GALLERY

275 Dartmouth, Boston MA 02116 (617) 262-0783

M. Knoedler & Co.

Estate of Alexander Calder
Adolph and Esther Gottlieb Foundation, Inc.
Estate of Ludwig Sander
Estate of David Smith

Walter Darby Bannard
Richard Diebenkorn
Friedel Dzubas
Herbert Ferber
Nancy Graves
Howard Hodgkin
Robert Motherwell
Jules Olitski
Jack Roth
Frank Stella
John Walker

19 East 70 Street. New York 10021
Telephone (212) 794-0550

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

DAVID SALLE

THE DRUNKEN CHAUFFEUR

A SUITE OF 8 SCREENPRINTS

JUNE 4 THROUGH JUNE 25

CASTELLI GRAPHICS

4 EAST 77 STREET NEW YORK

1983

JUNE/JULY CHANGING GALLERY GROUP SHOW

SEPTEMBER NEW WORK: PHIL SIMS
THORNTON WILLIS, BARD BREIVIK

OCTOBER VALENTINA DUBASKY

NOVEMBER JOSEPH HASKE

DECEMBER FRANK LOBDELL

OSCARSSON HOOD GALLERY 41 WEST 57TH ST. NYC 10019 (212) 750 8640

AND THE CONTINUAL REPRESENTATION OF

JACKIE BROOKNER
PAUL BROWN
JENE HIGHSTEIN
ALFONSO OSSORIO
MARSHA PELS
VICTOR PESCE
JAY SWIFT

1984

Hokin/Kaufman Gallery

210 West Superior Street, Chicago, Illinois 60610
Telephone 312/266 1211

Hokin Gallery Inc.
245 Worth Avenue, Palm Beach, Florida 33480
Telephone 305/655 5117

1086 Kane Concourse, Bay Harbor Island, Florida 33154
Telephone 305/861 5700

Michael LUCERO

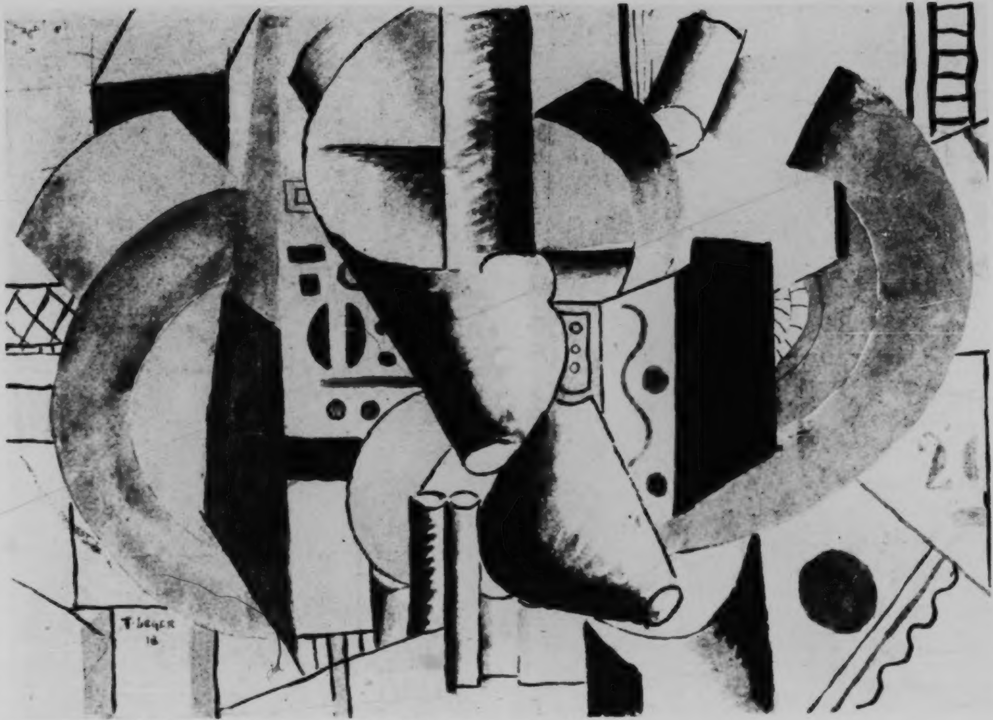
June 11 – June 30, 1983

SEAN SCULLY

IS REPRESENTED BY

DAVID MCKEE GALLERY

41 EAST 57 STREET NEW YORK 10022 TEL 212/688-5951



"Composition: Eléments mécaniques", 1918, 27,5 x 38 cm, watercolour

F. LEGER

June 1 - July 16
Ill. catalogue $7

EDWARD TOTAH
GALLERY
39 Floral Street
London WC2
01-379 6241

Ceramic Artists

Max Protetch 37 West 57 Street NY 10019 838-7436

In September

Portraits For The 80's

Protetch McNeil 214 Lafayette Street NY 10012 (212) 226-8957

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Charles Cowles Gallery

Gerald Incandela

Peter Voulkos

June 4-25

420 West Broadway New York 10012
(212) 925-3500

PHOTO: LEE YOUNGBLOOD

William Sawyer Gallery
3045 CLAY STREET SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94115
TUESDAY-SATURDAY 11-6 (415) 921-1600

MIRÓ
A CELEBRATION
90 YEARS

SCULPTURE
MIXED MEDIA

EXTENDED TO JUNE 18

MAY 10-JUNE 11
PIERRE
MATISSE
GALLERY
41 EAST 57
NEW YORK

GP

MAJOR PRINTS

BARTLETT
CHIA
DINE
ESTES
HOCKNEY
JOHNS
MOTHERWELL
RAUSCHENBERG

JUNE-AUGUST
GETLER/PALL
50 WEST 57 NY 212/581-2724

BEN BENN

1884 – 1983

"the OCTOGENARIAN decade"

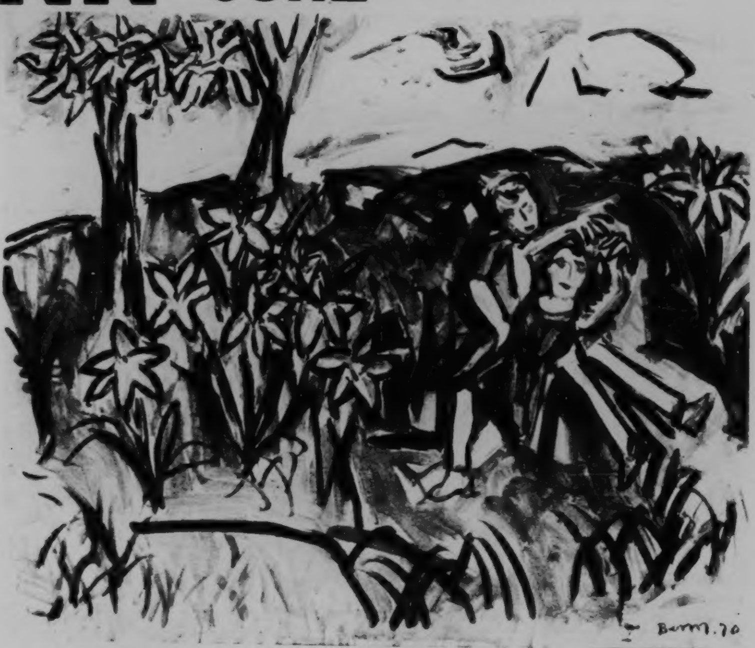
JUNE Tues.–Sat. 1–4 p.m.



BRANCHVILLE SOHO GALLERY
Ridgefield, CT 06829
R.R. Station, Routes 7 & 102
203•544•8636

WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
Midtown Branch May 18 – June 22
the FORUM exhibition of 1916
BENN'S first major group show

JULY Saturdays, 9•16•23•30 or by appt.

STATE OF THE ART

THE NEW SOCIAL COMMENTARY

AHEARN, APPLEBROOG, GLIER, HOLZER, IMMENDORF, KOMAR &
MELAMID, KRUGER, ROLLINS, SPERO, AND OTHERS

BARBARA
GLADSTONE GALLERY
[illegible] WOOSTER ST N Y N Y [illegible]

Oosbimik 1962 Oil on canvas

Maurice Sievan [1898-1981]

Paintings
15 June - 23 July 1983

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary Street San Francisco 94108 Tel. [415] 433-2710

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

ZAJAC

IANUZZI
GALLERY
PHOENIX, ARIZONA 85016 TELEPHONE 602/956-4522

PERSPECTIVES
OF LANDSCAPE

JULY-AUGUST

Fuller Goldeen Gallery
228 Grant Avenue, San Francisco, California 94108
(415) 982-6177

Extensive Inventory of Works by

Botero, Bravo, Castañeda, Cuevas, Gerzso, Kahlo, Lam, Matta, Orozco, Paternosto, Portinari, Rivera, Siqueiros, Tamayo, Toledo

Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art
213 East 49th Street, New York 10017

Tel. (212) 980-8104 by appointment

Susan Van Campen

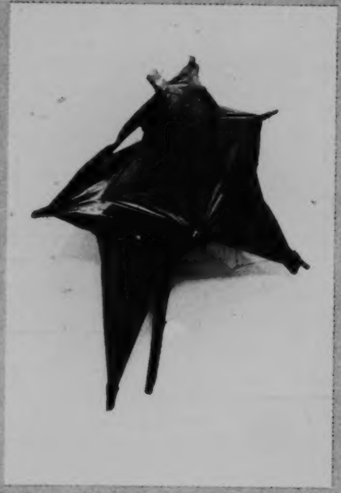
May 18 – June 28
Watercolors

watercolor, 22½ × 30½

also:
SHAWN WEISBACH
Hand-blown glass

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY
1000 MAGNOLIA AVENUE LARKSPUR CALIFORNIA 94939 415/461-2522

july



Makara, 1982

STEVE WOOD sculptures and drawings

the eason
gallery

338 east de vargas
santa fe, nm 87501
(505) 982-9573

KRAUSHAAR
GALLERIES

724 Fifth Avenue, New York
(Bet. 57th & 56th Sts. • Tel. 307-5730)

thru June 11
KENNETH EVETT
Paintings & Drawings: 1940's-1980's

Changing SUMMER GROUP SHOWS by 20th CENTURY AMERICANS and in the Graphics Gallery:

Drawings & Sculpture by Ethel Myers June 14-July 8
Drawings by Boardman Robinson July 12-Aug. 12
Drawings by Robert Laurent Aug. 16-Sept. 9

Hours: thru June 18—Tues. thru Sat. from June 20—Mon. thru Fri. 10 to 5

ARTISTS
CHOOSE
ARTISTS

an exhibition curated by Jack D. Flam

Carl Andre/Nancy Haynes
Jim Dine/Norman Sunshine
Brice Marden/Jane Swavely
Lawrence Poons/Sherron Francis
Richard Serra/Steve Keister
Frank Stella/Dennis Ashbaugh
William Tucker/Lee Tribe
John Walker/Michael Young

24 page illustrated catalog available $5 cds

Gallery
13 East 75 Street New York 10021 (212) 772-9555

VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

Richard Artschwager

Paintings and Sculpture
June 18–July 16, 1983

Daniel Weinberg Gallery

619 North Almont Drive
Los Angeles CA 90069
213 271-7101

GALERIE MICHAEL WERNER

BASELITZ
BYARS
IMMENDORFF
KIRKEBY
LÜPERTZ
A.R.PENCK

D—5000 KÖLN—1—
GERTRUDENSTR. 24/28 T.210661

SMALL FIGURES
Group Exhibition

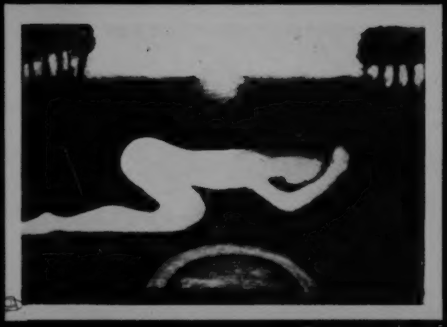
GEORGE TINWORTH
19th Century Ceramics

May 21 – June 25, 1983

GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 Wilshire Blvd Los Angeles 90036
(213) 939 2189

ALICE WISE

JUNE 7-25



"Figure and Arc"

PHOENIX GALLERY
30 W. 57

REBECCA CUMING
LYDIA DONA
FRANK HOLLIDAY

JUNE 21 - JULY 23
1983

BONLOW GALLERY
JEANETTE BONNIER
150 GREENE ST. N.Y.C. 10012
(212) 925-4482

BOTERO
Sculpture, Watercolors and Drawings

SAM FRANCIS
New Monotypes from Experimental Workshop, San Francisco

Thomas Segal Gallery
73 Newbury Street
Boston, MA 02116
Tel (617) 266-3500
Tues-Sat, 10 to 5:30 or by appt

Alice Aycock Reed Estabrook Harmony Hammond
Glenn Jampol Maximino
Javier Jun Kaneko Brian
Longe David Middlebrook
Salvatore Pecoraro Sam
Richardson Michael Todd

KLEIN GALLERY
356 WEST HURON, CHICAGO, IL 60610
312/787-0400

JUNE Judith Foosaner
Drawings and Paintings

JULY Carlos Almaraz
Recent Paintings

AUGUST Talent/Color

JEREMY STONE GALLERY
126 POST SAN FRANCISCO CA 94108 415/398 6535

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

MICHAEL SMITH
In collaboration with Alan Herman
Government Approved Home Fallout Shelter snack bar
May 11th through June 30th

CASTELLI GRAPHICS 43 West 61 New York N.Y. 10023

JACK RUTBERG FINE ARTS, INC.
357 North La Brea Avenue □ Los Angeles, CA 90036 □ (213) 938-5222

19th & 20th Century
Paintings, Drawings
Fine Prints

Alechinsky
Aman-Jean
Benton
Besnard
Bonnard
Braque
Burchfield
Burkhardt
Carriere
Chagall
Cheret
Dali
Denis
Dubuffet
Dufy
Fantin-Latour
Gorky
Goya
Helleu
Henri
Jenkins
Kandinsky
Kollwitz
Marsh
Masson
Matisse
Matta
Miro
Picasso
Rauschenberg
Renoir
Robbe
Rodin
Rouault
Shinn
Steinlen
Tissot
Tobey
Toulouse-Lautrec
Villon
Vlaminck
Whistler

DAVID THOMAS

MIRIAM PERLMAN
Lake Point Tower 505 N. Lake Shore Drive Suite 5410 Chicago

Pierre-Auguste Renoir, Original lithograph
"Une mere et deux enfants"

PASQUALE IANNETTI
ART GALLERY, INC.

Dealers in fine Original Prints and other unique works from the 16th century to the present. Including works by:

Durer
Rembrandt
Goya
Renoir
Whistler
Cassatt
Lautrec
Robbe
Zuniga
Picasso
Miro
Rouault
Matisse
Chagall
Kollwitz
Cezanne
Folon
Amaya
(Sculptures)

575 Sutter Street, San Francisco, CA 94102 (415) 433-2771

R.C.GORMAN

R.C. Gorman is seen above in the studio of Editions Press at work on the clay model for "Doreen," his most recent sculpture. Behind him are two of his many preparatory sketches, studies for the final bronze which is published by Editions Press. It is offered for sale in an edition of ten numbered examples. "Doreen" is the latest sculpture in the series of Navajo women that has brought R.C. Gorman to international recognition. It is, morover, the artist's first sculpture of a mother and child. The work measures eleven and a half inches high by twenty six and three quarter inches long by fifteen and a half inches deep. Its ease of line and tranquility confirm R.C. Gorman as a master of the lyric realism he practices. Please call or write for further information.

EDITIONS PRESS
915 Bryant Street, San Francisco,
California 94103, U.S.A.
Telephone: (415) 626-1846

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

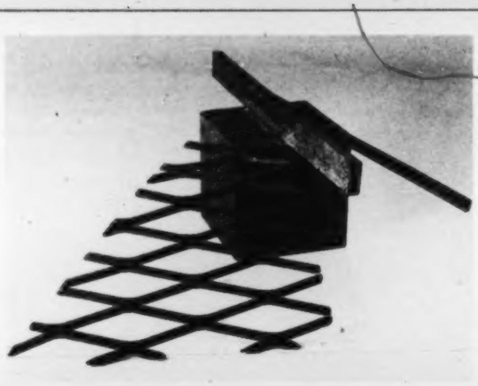
Roy Boyd

Los Angeles

Frank Faulkner

Paintings

170 S. La Brea
Los Angeles 90036
213 938 2328



George Neubert
Sculpture
River Rapids Series

15 June - 23 July 1983

River Falls, (River Rapids Series) 1982
Welded steel scuplture, 7"x 20"x 21"

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary Street San Francisco 94108 Tel. [415] 433-2710

SYLVIA PLIMACK MANGOLD

PAINTINGS
1965-1983

YOUNG HOFFMAN GALLERY
215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

JUNE 7 THROUGH JULY 8, 1983

SIGRID BURTON PAINTINGS

CERAMICS RAYE FORE

13225 SHAKER SQUARE CLEVELAND, OHIO 44120 216/491-8062

DBRGALLERY

Roy Boyd

Chicago

Mark Williams
Dan Ziembo

215 W. Superior
Chicago 60610
312 642 1606

AVERY, BOLOTOWSKY, BRACH, J. G. DAVIS, FRATT, GUSTON, JIMENEZ, McGARRELL, OLITSKI, OSSORIO, PEART, REED, SABA, F. A. SMITH, UMEDA, VICENTE, WAID, WENGER.

YARES GALLERY

JUL—AUG: BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

3625 BISHOP LANE SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA 85251 (602) 947-3251

OPENS JUNE 1
IN NEW YORK
NEW ADDRESS ☜
136 GREENE ST.

PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY
CHANGING GROUP
EXHIBITIONS

OPENS JUNE 10
IN CHICAGO
☞ NEW ADDRESS
313 W. SUPERIOR

THE TWINING GALLERY INC.

3 BLEECKER ST. NYC 10012 (212) 674-2070

JAMES RILEY
PHILLIP WARNER
ANNIE HAMILTON

drawings
paintings fibre

THROUGH JUNE

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

RICHEBOURG/McCOY

Announces their new location at

19 East 71 Street
New York, New York 10021
Telephone: 212/570.2131

By appointment
Elizabeth Richebourg · Jason McCoy

Brentwood Gallery

May: Peter Marcus x 3

June: Squeak Carnwath
Kurt Weiser

July: St. Louis Artists

Always: Superb ceramics and glass

1221 South Brentwood Boulevard
Saint Louis, Missouri 63117
(314) 863-0808

MEL BOCHNER Monotypes
by Parasol Press, Ltd.

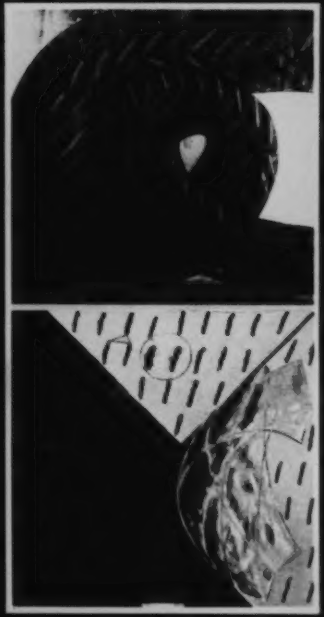
June 10 — July 16, 1983

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
2508 cedar springs dallas, texas 75201 (214) 745-1923

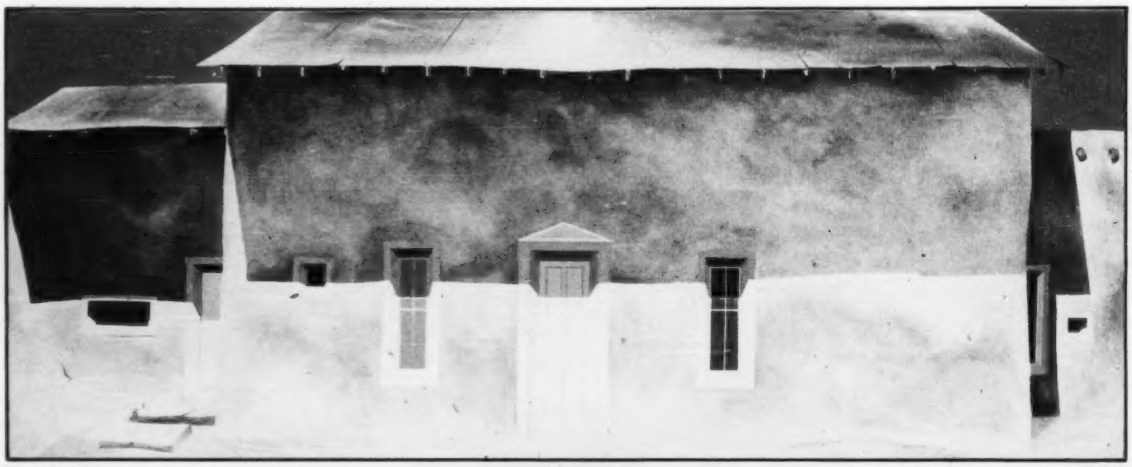
CINDY KARASEK



JUNE 1983

SUELLEN HABER GALLERY
133 GREENE STREET, NEW YORK CITY 10012

JAMES HARRILL



"Tierra Amarilla" Acrylic 40x96"

Poster Available
32" x 54"
$80 ppd.

MUNSON GALLERY
One of America's oldest art galleries
653 Canyon Road, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
(505) 983-1657
Monday-Saturday 10:00-5:00, Sunday 11:00-4:00

June
PATRICIA REYNOLDS
July
JOHN GABLE
•
AMERICAN PAINTINGS
1870-1935
•
RICK PHILLIPS
August
WALTER BRIGHTWELL

hobe sound
GALLERIES NORTH
A Payson Art Enterprise

One Milk Street, Portland, Maine 04101 207 773-2755

19th and 20th Century American
Paintings

Beaumont Bricher
Crane Sartain Wyant
•
Gable Kipniss
Langlais Laurent Sisson

PAYSON · WEISBERG
822 Madison NYC 212 249-1666

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

ESSYE PERELLIS
MELTZER

Paintings Etchings
June 5th - 29th

Pearl Fox Gallery
103 Windsor Avenue
Melrose Park, PA 19126
(215) 635-4586

MANY FACES OF EVE OIL 36" x 42"

SIEGEL CONTEMPORARY ART is opening in a new space at

24 West 57 Street,
5th floor

New York City
in September.
During June, July, and August,
you may reach us at

(212) 838-7680

for consultations and for viewings
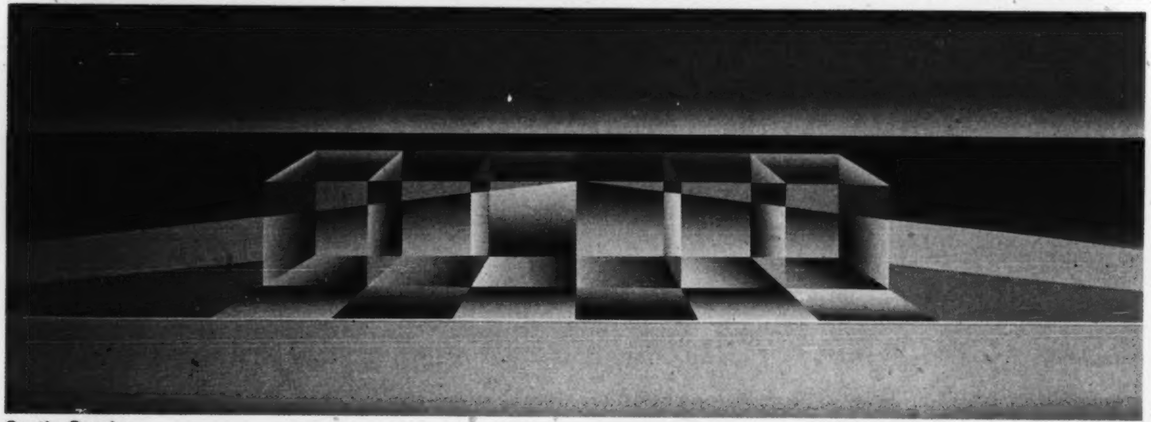
by appointment.

OTELLO GUARDUCCI
Sculpture

IRIS GUARDUCCI
Paintings

June 2 - July 2

Martha White Gallery
330 W. Main St.
Louisville, KY 40202
(502)589-3347



Castle Condo 24" x 66" Acrylic on Canvas

George Snyder

Upcoming Solo Exhibitions:

Sept.
Sante Fe, NM
Los Llanos Gallery

Oct.
Grand Rapids, MI
City Art Gallery

Dec.
Highland Park, IL
Eva Cohen Gallery

afi Representation:
Arts Focus, Inc.

401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301 (304)345-9059

San Francisco Bay Area 3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Suite 210, Lafayette, CA 94549 (415)284-7703

ROBERT WINSLOW GENETRIX plaster

[illegible]47
[illegible] Illinois 60010
Telephone 312 526-00[illegible]

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

BETTY PARSONS AND HER ARTISTS

Works on Paper June 11–30, 1983

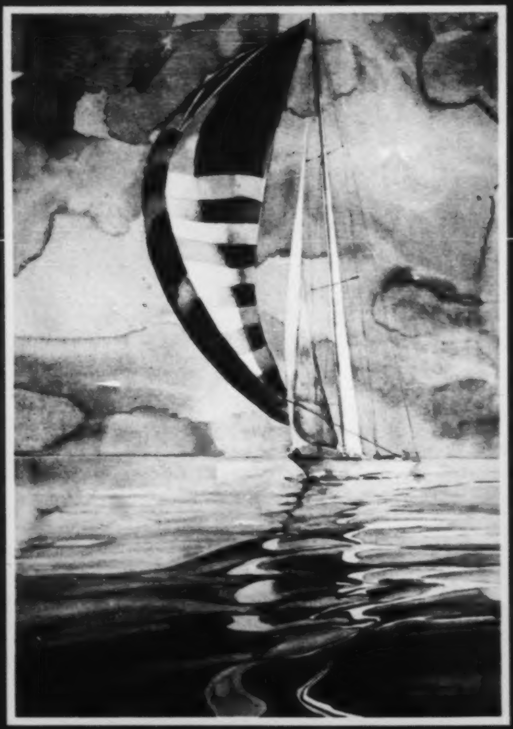
BETTY PARSONS GALLERY
24 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 212-247-7480

DRAWINGS

Opening 11 June Leo Castelli 420 West Broadway

Customs House Gallery
Wellfleet/Cape Cod

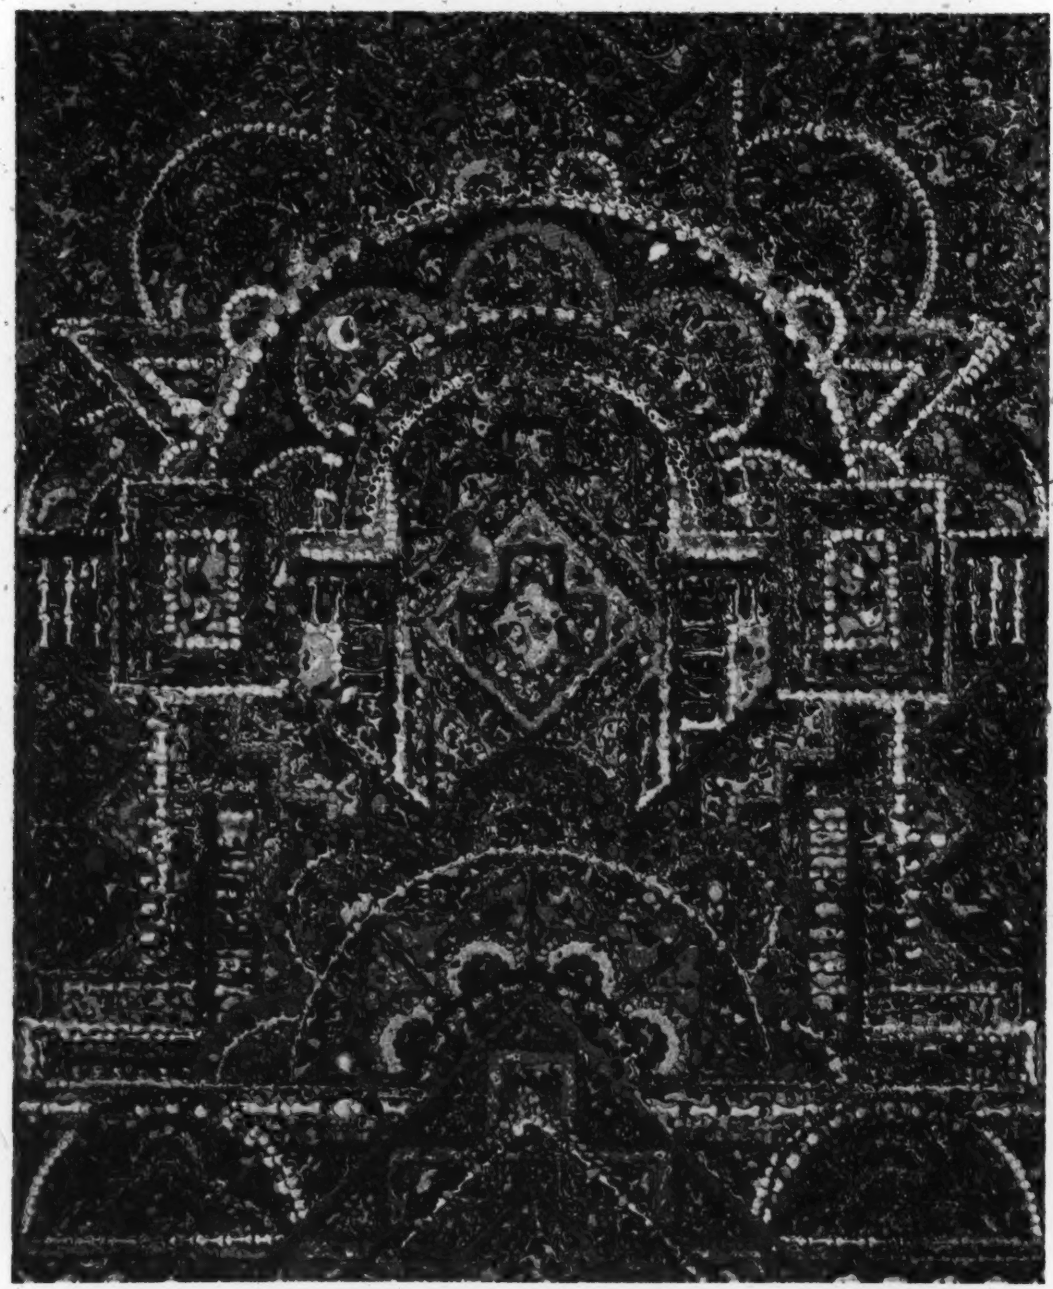
A contemporary [illegible]



Willard
BOND
Watercolors

[illegible]

EDGAR BUONAGURIO RECENT PAINTINGS



Jasmine 1982 52 x 42 (142.2 x 106.7) Acrylic on Canvas Collection of Mint Museum of Art

Andre Zarre Gallery
New York, New York
February 15-March 18, 1983

Everson Museum of Art
Syracuse, New York
July 15-August 14, 1983

Mint Museum of Art
Charlotte, North Carolina
April 10-July 3, 1983

Bronx Museum of the Arts
Bronx, New York
April-May 1984

ORGANIZED BY THE MINT MUSEUM, CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

Full color catalogue and poster available from the Mint Museum, 501 Hempstead Place, Charlotte, N.C.
Edgar Buonagurio is represented by Andre Zarre Gallery, New York, N.Y.

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

At Long Last Bronze

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

CURRENT EXHIBITIONS:

Opening June 17
FOUR SEASONS HOTEL
WASHINGTON, D.C.

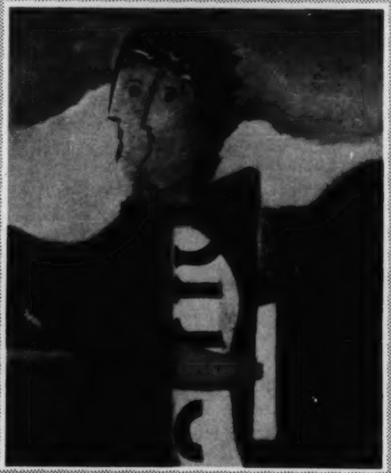
CITICORP CENTER
NEW YORK, NEW YORK

YALE CAMPUS and
NEW HAVEN PARKLANDS,
NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT

RIVERSIDE THEATER
VERO BEACH, FLORIDA

For brochure and information contact:
Sculpture Placement · Suite 304, Dept. 8 · 2828 Pennsylvania Ave., NW · Washington, D.C. 20007 202-362-9310

MAX
PAPART

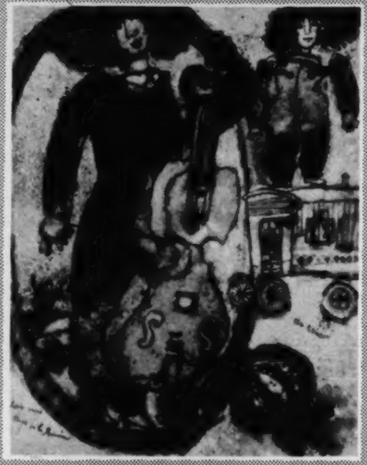


Oil on canvas "Sweet Lady" 24" x 29"

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Max Papart - Graphics, Oils & Gouaches

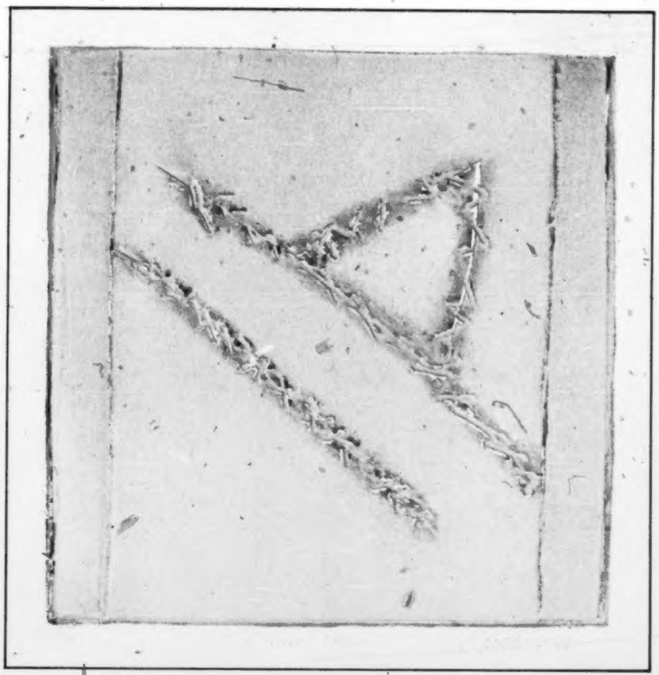
THEO
TOBIASSE



Oil on canvas "Symphonie venue du temps de la Memoire" 22" x 29½"

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Theo Tobiasse - Graphics, Oil, Pastels & Gouaches



A Silent Thorn
collagraph
Edition: 15 unique variations
23'' H x 21'' W

Paula Clendenin

June
Concord College
Print Residency

Aug.-Oct.
Vence, France
Karolyi Foundation Fellow

Dec.
Shepherds College
Print Residency

Published by:
Arts Focus, Inc.
401 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301
(304)345-9059

San Francisco Bay Area
3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Suite 210,
Lafayette, CA 94549 (415)284-7703

PARK ROW EDITIONS GALLERY
[illegible] Canyon Road, Santa Fe, New Mexico [illegible]

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
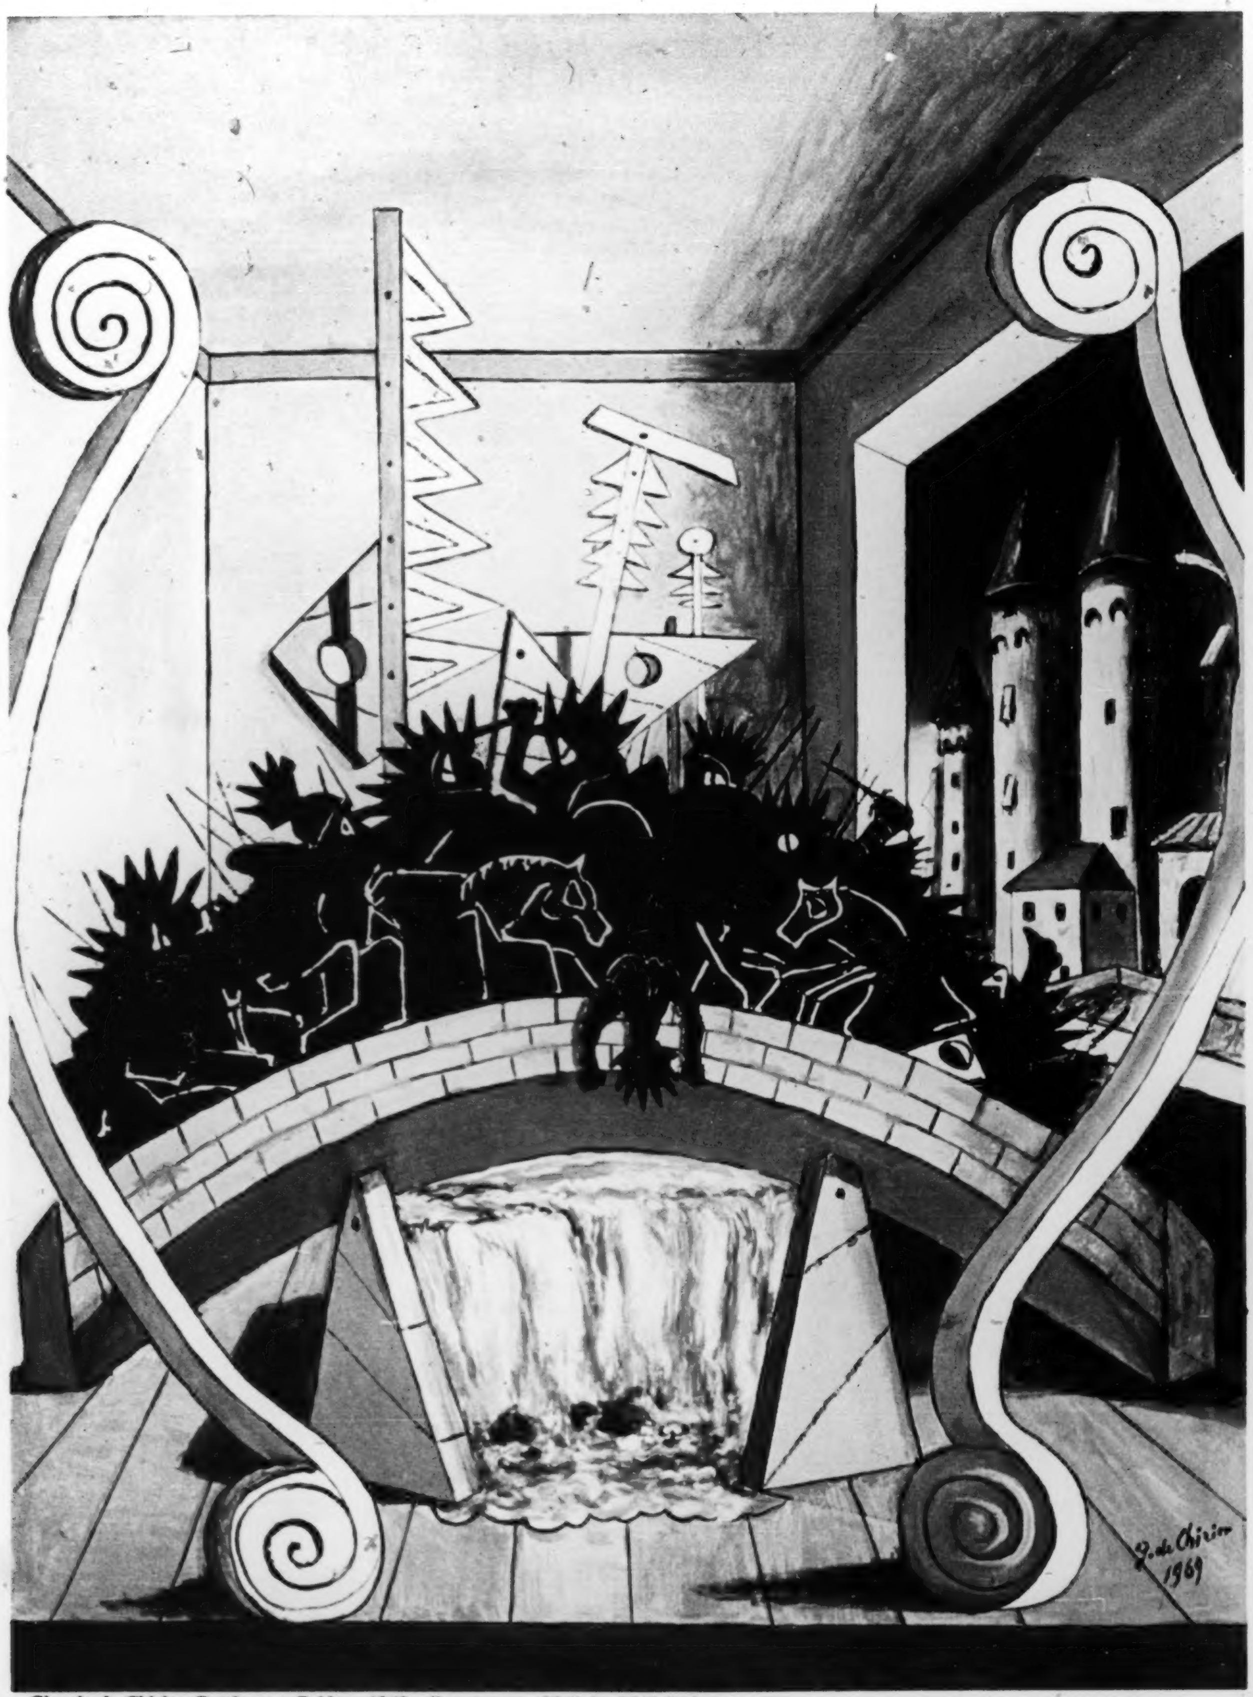
UMI



G. de Chirico
1969

Giorgio de Chirico: Battle on a Bridge, 1969, oil on canvas, 32 ½ by 23 ⅝ inches.

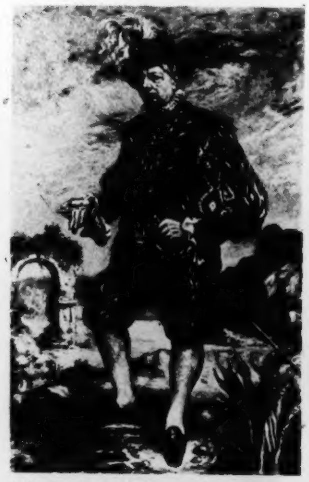
Art in America

The Good, The Bad, The Ugly: Late de Chirico

Quotation was so central to all of de Chirico's work that it is no longer possible to dismiss it as merely an esthetic aberration to which the artist succumbed once inspiration had left him.

BY CLAUDE GINTZ



Self-Portrait of the Artist as a 17th-century Gentleman, 1948.

Why must we prefer the True to the False?
—Nietzsche

Museum curators, it seems, must be unusually circumspect when dealing with Giorgio de Chirico's pictorial production. For William Rubin, the reason for their caution is self-evident: only the artist's metaphysical period is worthy of consideration. The "seeming affinity of his early painting with that of the Florentine masters of the Quattrocento" which some critics have found is deceptive; "Despite first appearances," Rubin writes, "de Chirico will emerge as much a modern painter as the poet of a specifically modern sensibility." The "modernist sensibility" of the metaphysical de Chirico worked to subvert "classicism, by turning it inside out," in order to empty it of all spatial illusionism and to communicate "the singular malaise of modern life."

This view of de Chirico as a critical artist—critical, because despite his nostalgia for the classical order, he knew that it was unavailable to him—governed the selection of works for the Museum of Modern Art's 1982 de Chirico exhibition, which tended either to accredit or confirm the idea that the artist's career began around 1911, somewhere between Florence and Paris, and that it was over by 1918 in Rome. Thus, the majority of works in the exhibition were produced between 1910 and 1917; the Roman period of a return to classicism (1920–24) was represented by an extremely limited number of paintings, as though it merely marked the end of a career, beyond which point it is better not to venture.

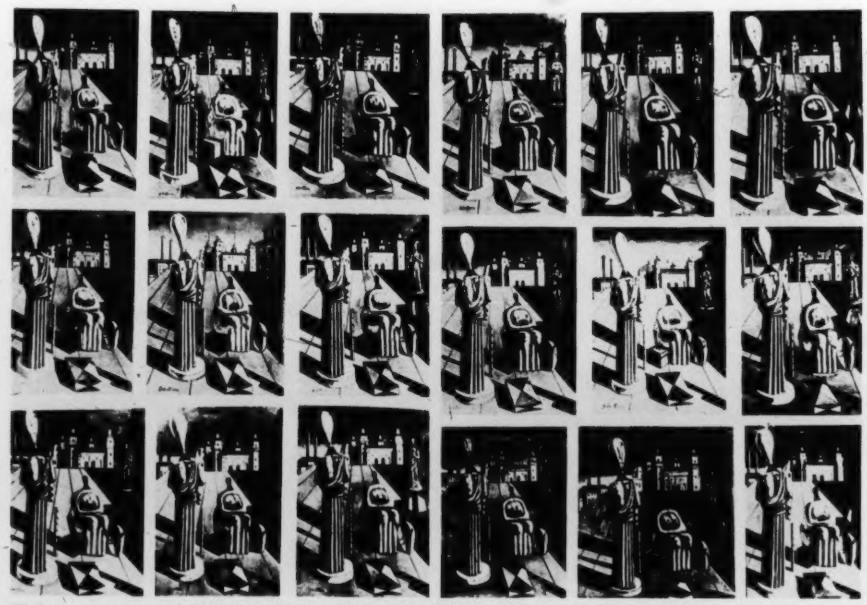
Jean Clair, who was responsible for the de Chirico exhibition at the Centre Georges Pompidou in Paris this past spring, prefers to date to 1935 "the career's real turning point, and perhaps its decline, until the unexpected final efflorescence of 1974–76." For Clair, the "Neoclassical" (perhaps even Neoromantic) works of the '20s—the "Roman Villas," for example—are "no less affecting" than the metaphysical paintings. But if the selection of works at the Pompidou Center seemed much less restricted than that in New York, it still displayed an exemplary prudence. After the works of the Roman period there was only a handful of paintings representing the various new themes to which de Chirico turned during his second visit to Paris, in the mid- '20s (The Archeologues, 1926; Furniture in a Valley, 1927; Horses by the Seaside, 1926–27; Gladiators, 1927; Mysterious Baths, 1934.)

Of works executed between 1934 and de Chirico's death in 1978, the public was permitted to see only two portraits of the artist's wife Isa—one from 1935, the other from 1940—and a self-portrait of the artist dressed as a 17th-century gentleman. Except for a 1934 academic portrait, the five other self-portraits in the exhibition all belong to the "classical" period of the early '20s. But when we learn that during some 60 years of artistic activity de Chirico painted a good one hundred self-portraits, we get an idea of just how much this exhibition withheld from us, as though the reality of de Chirico's production constituted a scandal of sorts. . . .

If the repetition of self-portraiture gives rise to difference, it also proves that there is more than one way to repeat. De Chirico specialists generally maintain that it was in 1924–25—that is, just before or at the beginning of his second visit to Paris—that the artist began to copy himself (a phenomenon Breton denounced in 1926), and that beginning in the '40s de Chirico's studio transformed this practice into a production organized on a massive scale. It was at this time that the paintings in the style of—from Titian to Fragonard via Veronese and, above all, Rubens, to mention only a few—began to proliferate. The 6-volume general catalogue of de Chirico's work gives 18 versions of The Disquieting Muses executed between 1945 and 1962, as well as some 45 more or less identical *Piazza d'Italia*s from the last 10 years of the artist's life alone—not to mention his many *Troubadour*s and *Hector and Andromache*s.

De Chirico's repetitive activity could take multiple forms. Although from the end of the '50s through the mid-'60s pictorial production in general pursued a kind of geometric abstraction, de Chirico never stopped painting series of antique landscapes, galloping cavaliers, or horse-trainers in the Hellenistic tradition. Nor does he seem to have distinguished the copy pure and simple from quotation or self-quotation, or even from pastiche. The Pompidou exhibition, however, gave no indication whatsoever of this phenomenon.

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI



Eighteen versions of de Chirico's The Disquieting Muses (original executed 1917) dating from 1945 to 1962. Courtesy Carlo Ragghianti and Critica d'Arte.

To get some idea of just how pervasive it was, one had to visit the Right-Bank gallery Artcurial, where some 60 canvases from the last period of the artist's life (1960–78) were exhibited concurrently. Because of his involvement with pastiche, the old Master seemed suddenly to have acquired an unexpected contemporaneity, making Italian artists of the current generation appear as simple epigones. But what is most interesting about this very last period is not so much pastiche per se, but rather the artist's technique of recapitulating earlier periods of his own work through their amalgamation.

This procedure is already apparent in The Friend's Departure (1961): on the disquietingly empty stage of what was once The Anxious Journey (1913), repeated here in painstaking detail, de Chirico has placed two diminutive figures in business suits taken from his 1934 album of prints titled Mythology. The presence of these figures dispels the anxiety that permeated the earlier work; only its memory remains.

Sometimes, de Chirico's recapitulation through amalgamation is more complicated: in Ulysses' Return (1968), for example, an armoire and a Voltaire armchair once placed in a valley now occupy an interior while at right, a veduta opens onto the landscape of hills and a Greek temple they previously inhabited. At left, a Piazza d'Italia in the form of a painting within the painting evokes the metaphysical period. Finally, the boat and oarsman come straight out of Mysterious Baths, except for the fact that the vessel no longer floats on a sea of glittering waves, but in a puddle as blue as the Aegean, and the oarsman has changed his two-piece suit for a linen toga.

Autumnal Meditation, 1912, oil on canvas, 21 by 27 ½ inches. Private collection.

In these works the nocturnal atmosphere which pervaded the interiors from the Ferrara period (1916–17) has disappeared. The Metaphysical Interior with Head of Mercury (1969), for example, is characterized by light, airy tones—luminous ochers, tender greens and azure blues—which create the atmosphere of a nursery or an animated cartoon. Indeed, the montage in Battle on a Bridge (1969)—figures, a chateau, a bridge over a river—imparts a comic-strip ferocity to a subject appropriate to classical painting. And in Mysterious Spectacle (1971) the typical de Chirico iconography, drawn from every period of his career, is redeployed on a stage separated from the viewer by an orchestra pit filled with the eyes of "a distant friend."

In quoting himself, de Chirico ultimately quotes his own sources as well. For example, in the foreground of Still Life with Head of Apollo (1974)—the scenographic orientation of which is indicated by the drawn curtain to the left—there is a still life of scattered fruit. This subject originally belongs to classical painting; de Chirico, however, had already treated it many times, before. Similarly, the head of the Belvedere Apollo previously figured in his famous The Song of Love (1914). But we also know that the original Apollo in the Vatican is itself probably only a Roman copy of a Greek original and that, despite its mediocrity, it has long been considered as a kind of symbol of Greekness, especially by generations of Beaux-Arts students who have tried to copy it as best they could. In this still life, however, de Chirico's quotation of his sources is not simply a form of self-quotation, for the painting's entire background was taken directly from an 1879 drawing by Max Klinger, in which a bust appears in profile against a backdrop of hills. De Chirico's displacement of this source consists merely in shifting the hill from the left to the right, and in placing the Apollo in an informal three-quarter view.

Ulysses' Return, 1968, oil on canvas, 23 ½ by 31 ¼ inches. All color photos courtesy Artcurial, Paris.

How long, then, can we continue to present only the artist's good copies, while prudently "forgetting" all the bad ones? Quotation is not limited to a particular Mysterious Spectacle, 1971, oil on canvas, 19 ½ by 23 ½ inches.

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

The Anxious Journey, 1913, oil on canvas, 29 ¼ by 42 inches. Museum of Modern Art.

The Friend's Departure, 1961, oil on canvas, 23 ½ by 31 ¼ inches.

period of de Chirico's career; nor was it an aberration to which he succumbed once inspiration had left him. It is already apparent in his much-esteemed early works. Thus we find, reversed in The Enigma of an Autumn Afternoon (1910) and in three-quarter view hidden behind a curtain in The Enigma of the Oracle (1910), the same statue which occupies the center of Autumnal Meditation (1912). (This statue also appears in a painting by De Chirico's brother Savinio titled Oracle.) But all these traces themselves lead us back to the statue in Arnold Böcklin's 1883 Ulysses and Calypso, itself inspired by a 19th-century statue of Dante that stands in the Piazza Santa Croce in Florence. And how far back must we go to locate its origin?

In Munich, at least when de Chirico lived there as a youth, smokestacks rose up behind the tranquil alignment of traditional public buildings, and banners flew from the towers in the Königsplatz; they reappear behind the arcades of the metaphysical paintings, which were probably inspired by another Böcklin painting (compare The Enigma of the Hour, 1911, with Böcklin's Three Arcades in a Landscape, 1872)—unless these are the long, severe avenues of Turin. And the statues in the Piazza d'Italias—what are they if not the traces of some Ariadne in the Louvre or the Vatican? What is more, the "disembodied shadows" which populate these same piazzas appear to come right out of a Klinger etching (Shame, 1887). What we witness here is a kind of fixation in de Chirico's iconographic vocabulary; the various "Enigmas" of the metaphysical period appear as an incessant permutation of the same elements—arcades, trains, towers, factory smokestacks, exotic fruits—which circulate from one painting to another according to the artist's whim. As Jean Clair has written, "From 1910 to 1916, the paintings will repeat the same images with minute variations."

It therefore seems more and more arbitrary to attempt to distinguish the paintings of the good period—in which the tension between "the attraction of a past which was about to die . . . and a future world of technology and industry" (Clair) reads as a translation of the lived experience of modernity—from all the others, in which this tension seems to have disappeared in the wake of some sudden psychic transformation which would have unburdened the artist of all creative anxiety and would thereby account for his lapsing into pastiche. For this distinction does not account for the fact that the structure of the latter works appears to refer back to that of the former. If de Chirico's historicist veneration of the past expresses a hypotrophy of the vital forces of the present and therefore a refusal of modernity—first implicit, then explicit—perhaps this is only one symptom among many of a discontent in European (i.e., Western) civilization in general. This discontent surfaces in all of de Chirico's work in the form of a recapitulation of the history of Western painting, a recapitulation which oscillates perpetually between the pathetic and the grotesque. Certainly, de Chirico's work would not be so compelling if its very form did not correspond to an attitude of contemporary thought. Repetition is no longer experienced as a return of the same by the reiteration of identity, but rather as the production of difference. Can we not, in fact, say that de Chirico's painting, to paraphrase Jacques Derrida, is the "supplement par excellence which presents itself as the supplement of a sign, the sign of a sign, taking the place of a speech which is already meaningful"? As if the old master had so loved and respected the old masters that he staged for us that originary delay according to which, in art as in everything else, the first comes into being only through the second, through the power of its delay. . . . □

Author: Claude Gintz is the editor of the new French art journal Territoires.

The Song of Love, 1914, oil on canvas, 28 ¾ by 23 ⅜ inches Museum of Modern Art.

Still Life with Head of Apollo, 1974, oil on canvas, 37 by 29 ¾ inches.

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

VOL

7
1

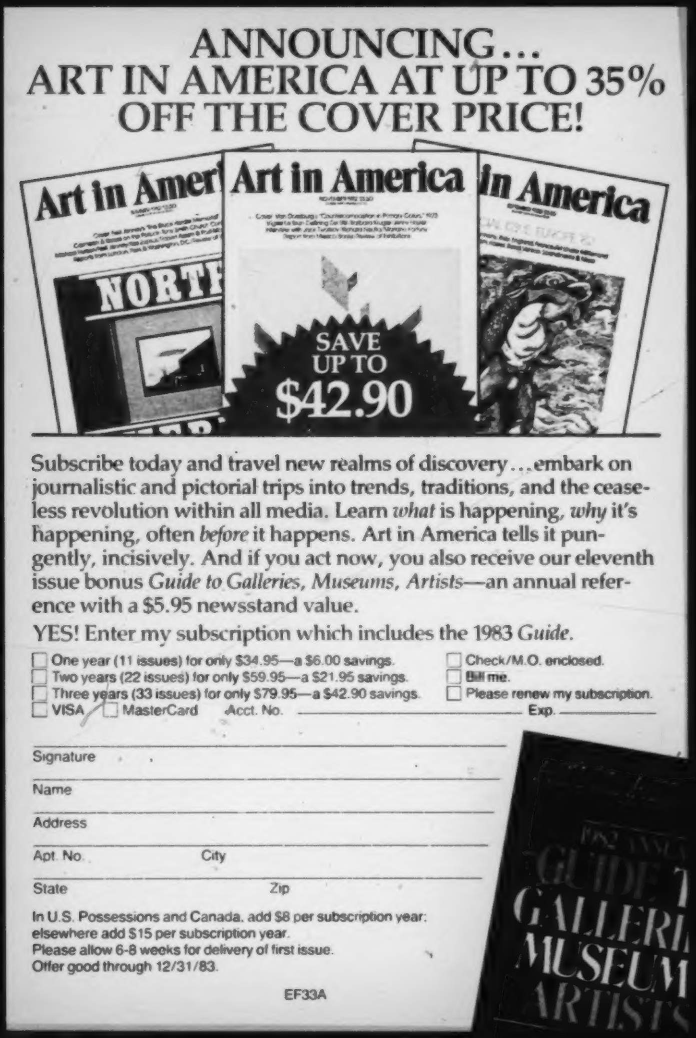
ISS

6

SUM

1983

UMI



ANNOUNCING…
ART IN AMERICA AT UP TO 35%
OFF THE COVER PRICE!

Subscribe today and travel new realms of discovery…embark on journalistic and pictorial trips into trends, traditions, and the ceaseless revolution within all media. Learn what is happening, why it's happening, often before it happens. Art in America tells it pungently, incisively. And if you act now, you also receive our eleventh issue bonus Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists—an annual reference with a $5.95 newsstand value.

YES! Enter my subscription which includes the 1983 Guide.

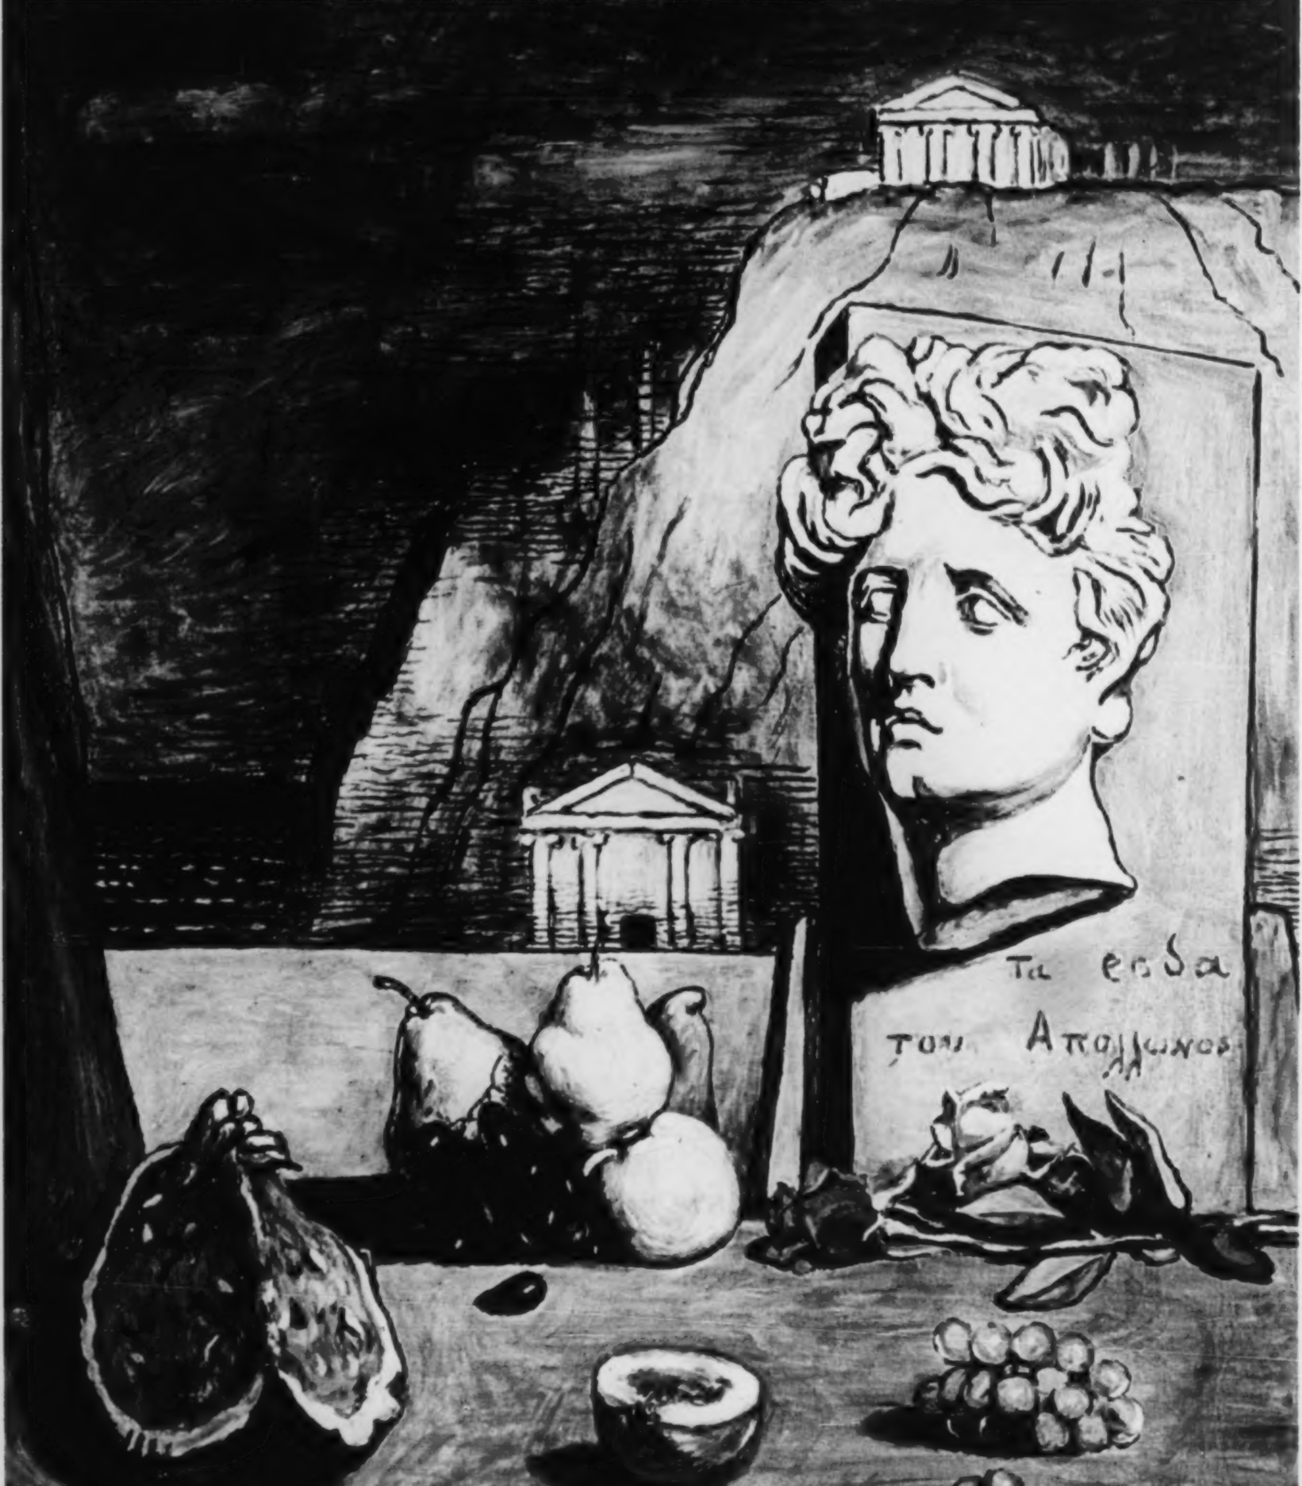
☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95—a $6.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95—a $21.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95—a $42.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard Acct. No. ______ Exp. ______

☐ Check/M.O. enclosed.
☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ______
Name ______
Address ______
Apt. No. ______ City ______
State ______ Zip ______

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year.
Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue.
Offer good through 12/31/83.

EF33A



Τα εδρα
του Απολλωνος
G. de Chirico
1974

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
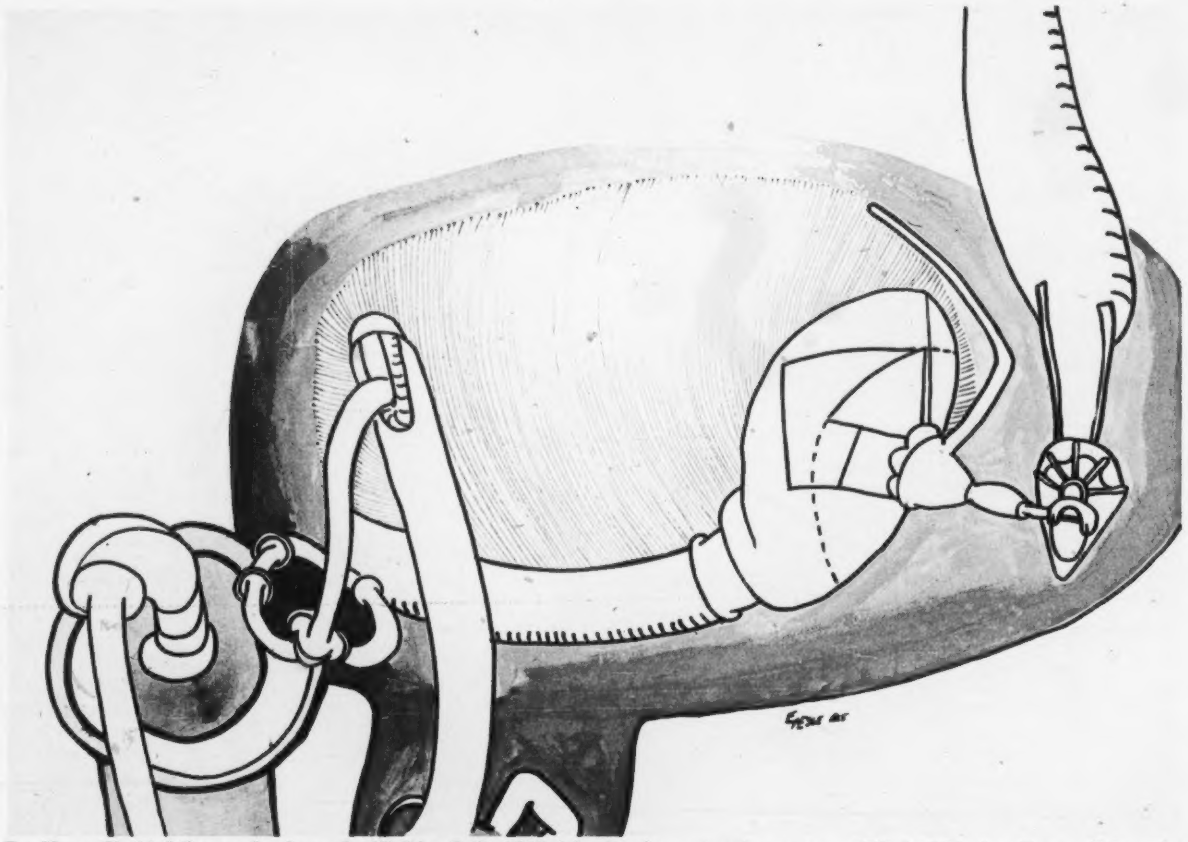
UMI



Eva Hesse: Untitled (for or after Legs of a Walking Ball), 1965, ink, gouache, watercolor on paper, 11⅜ by 16 inches. Estate of the artist.

Order and Chaos: From the Diaries of Eva Hesse

SELECTED AND INTRODUCED BY ELLEN H. JOHNSON

An artist whose short career was troubled by both psychological and physical trauma, Eva Hesse left journals and other written records of her tragic life and her intense commitment to her work. Below, some excerpts from these documents.

All of the following passages, unless otherwise indicated, are excerpted from the diaries, notebooks, sketches, student essays, letters and other papers in the Eva Hesse Archives at the Allen Memorial Art Museum, Oberlin College, donated by the artist's sister, Helen Hesse Charash, and by Donald and Philip Droll. Selections are taken from the diaries if no other source is given; entries from Oct. 28, 1960 through April 21, 1964 are from a diary still in the possession of Mrs. Charash.

Eva Hesse was born in Nazi Germany in 1936. She was not quite three years old when, together with her sister Helen, she was put on a children's train to Amsterdam, where she was later rejoined with her parents and brought to New York in 1939. During the early '40s, Eva's beloved mother became mentally ill, was hospitalized, and then divorced from Eva's father. Her equally loved father remarried soon after, and in 1946, when Eva was 10, her mother took her own life. Besides this loss and "abandonment," Eva carried the fear that she might have inherited her mother's instability and would follow the same course. In 1961, Eva met and married Tom Doyle, but by 1964–65, when they spent a year in Germany, their marriage had already begun to break up. Eva's father died in 1966, soon after she and Doyle had separated. Eva finally accepted the fact that her husband would not return to her (although she never divorced him), and she began to learn to control—or at least to live with—her persistent feelings of anxiety, rejection and desertion. She was working full force and becoming increasingly recognized when cancer struck in the spring of 1969. She underwent surgery for tumor of the brain three times; yet during this last year of her life she produced some of her greatest works. She was only 34 when she died on May 29, 1970.

The Eva Hesse revealed in her diaries is as psychologically disturbed as one might expect from such a biography. But she is also stubbornly persistent, courageous, faithful, cognizant of her own shortcomings, ambitious and, though tormented by self-doubt, convinced of her significance as an artist. The passages I have culled from Hesse's diaries (my primary source) include just about all she recorded there on art; otherwise, the diaries deal almost totally and painfully with her personal life. Significantly, there are fewer entries from the time of her meeting and marrying Tom Doyle until the happiness of their life together began to be threatened in 1964. Then she turned again to her diary as an outlet for her anxious emotions, recurrent dreams and nightmares, and her feeling of being lost and abandoned. From 1967 on, however, as she grew more secure in her work, the diaries change in tone and become simply engagement books, listing appointments and chores to be done; but there are also many loose sheets with ideas and sketches for sculpture accompanied by brief notations, such as: "Square patches rubber over canvas/rubber strands from centers/or over mesh (folded on hooks to hang over wire)."

It was after Hesse's return to New York in 1965 from her year in Germany that she began to produce the distinctive sculptures and drawings upon which her reputation is based. She was one of the first, most significant and influential artists to reject the strictures of the Minimalist mode, the style with which her friends LeWitt, Bochner and Smithson were commonly, if not always accurately, associated. Since she extolled the personal, organic, unexpected, irrational and "absurd" (her word), Hesse had little use for the rationally ordered, geometric forms of extreme Minimalism, nor for its unbroken edges and deliberately machine-made look. Although she was especially indebted to Sol LeWitt, her first major freestanding sculpture, the Laocoön of 1966, in which she used his trademark of the open cube, may also be seen as a symbolic stepping away from her mentor and from the type of work he represented. The cubes in Laocoön arise from structural necessity at least as much, and probably more, than from esthetic choice. The sculpture's gray, obsessively wrapped, tall, thin form reaches up toward the sky, but is hopelessly weighted down by the tangled coils that hang and droop around it.

Though we may read more emotional content into Hesse's art than we should if we did not know her tragic history, Hesse was nevertheless a born expressionist whose work inevitably manifested her personal feelings. Like all expressionists (from Rodin and van Gogh to contemporaries such as Borofsky, Pfaff and Schnabel), Hesse marked her work with her personal presence, with the traces of her path through it. This is as true of her drawings on graph paper, where the repeated minuscule circles or x's vary slightly, but tellingly, in their shape, width of line and density of ink, as it is of the fiberglass and latex sculptures, which bear imprints of Hesse's hand on their irregular surfaces.

The expressionist style is as evident in Hesse's words as in her work, and those words tell us a good deal about her art: how important drawing always was for her; how the freeing of line in her German drawings led to her first sculptures (reliefs with cords and wires suspended or shooting out from them); how the lines and planes of her translucent latex and fiberglass pieces are built up in layers like glazes of oil or watercolor to create masterpieces in which painting, drawing and sculpture become one. E.H.J.

March 21, 1955

The more I see of life, day to day experiences, the more dissatisfied I am with conditions and with myself. I know so little how can I really paint or just paint? What do I have to say that's worthwhile, and if I spend all my time saying and feeling when will I learn more which in turn will be told? It's like writing memoirs, without a previous life.

March 19, 1959

Art is controlled and disciplined perception, creatively and imaginatively expressed. [From a paper on Clive Bell's On Significant Form for a Philosophy of Art course at Yale University.]

May 7, 1959

The Abstract Expressionist attempts to define a deeply-rooted bond between himself and nature and to evoke this kind of union between himself and his painting. He does this by suggesting the forces that shape things, equating an objective experience of nature into a subjective expression of his feeling toward nature. Although he, too, can work directly from nature, he, nevertheless, expresses a personal attitude that radically alters objective reality. [From a paper, "An Abstract and Concrete Consideration of Form in Painting," for a Philosophy of Art course at Yale University.]

Undated, ca. 1960

The painting that is of importance is never the one where the esthetic stands alone and is both the form and content. The esthetic is a means to an end. It should not be viewed in and by itself, it is the by product of an idea—which is content. My form comes from the figure whether it is the figure or not so why not do it for a while?

October 28, 1960

If I'm O.K., I will abandon restrictions and curbs imposed on myself. Not physical ones, but those restrictive tabs on my inner being, on solely myself. I will strip me of superficial dishonesties. I will paint against every rule I or others have invisibly placed . . . . I should like to achieve free, spontaneous painting delineating a powerful, strong structured image. One must be possible with the other. A difficult problem in itself, but one which I shall achieve.

Undated, ca. November 16, 1960

I must be totally engrossed in my own work, it is the only thing that is permanent, matures and is lasting.

Undated, November 1960

One thing has changed of late, or developed—I want to and feel I can and should sell paintings. What I am doing now might not be a peak of matured painting; but they are good, follow an idea, and they are works of a young active developing painter.

Laocoön, 1965-66, cord, wire, acrylic paint, papier maché, pipe, 10 feet high. Allen Art Museum, Oberlin College.

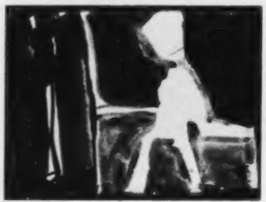
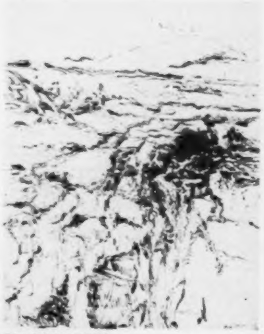
Untitled, 1967, black ink on graph paper, 11 by 8 ½ inches. Collection Dorothy and Herbert Vogel.

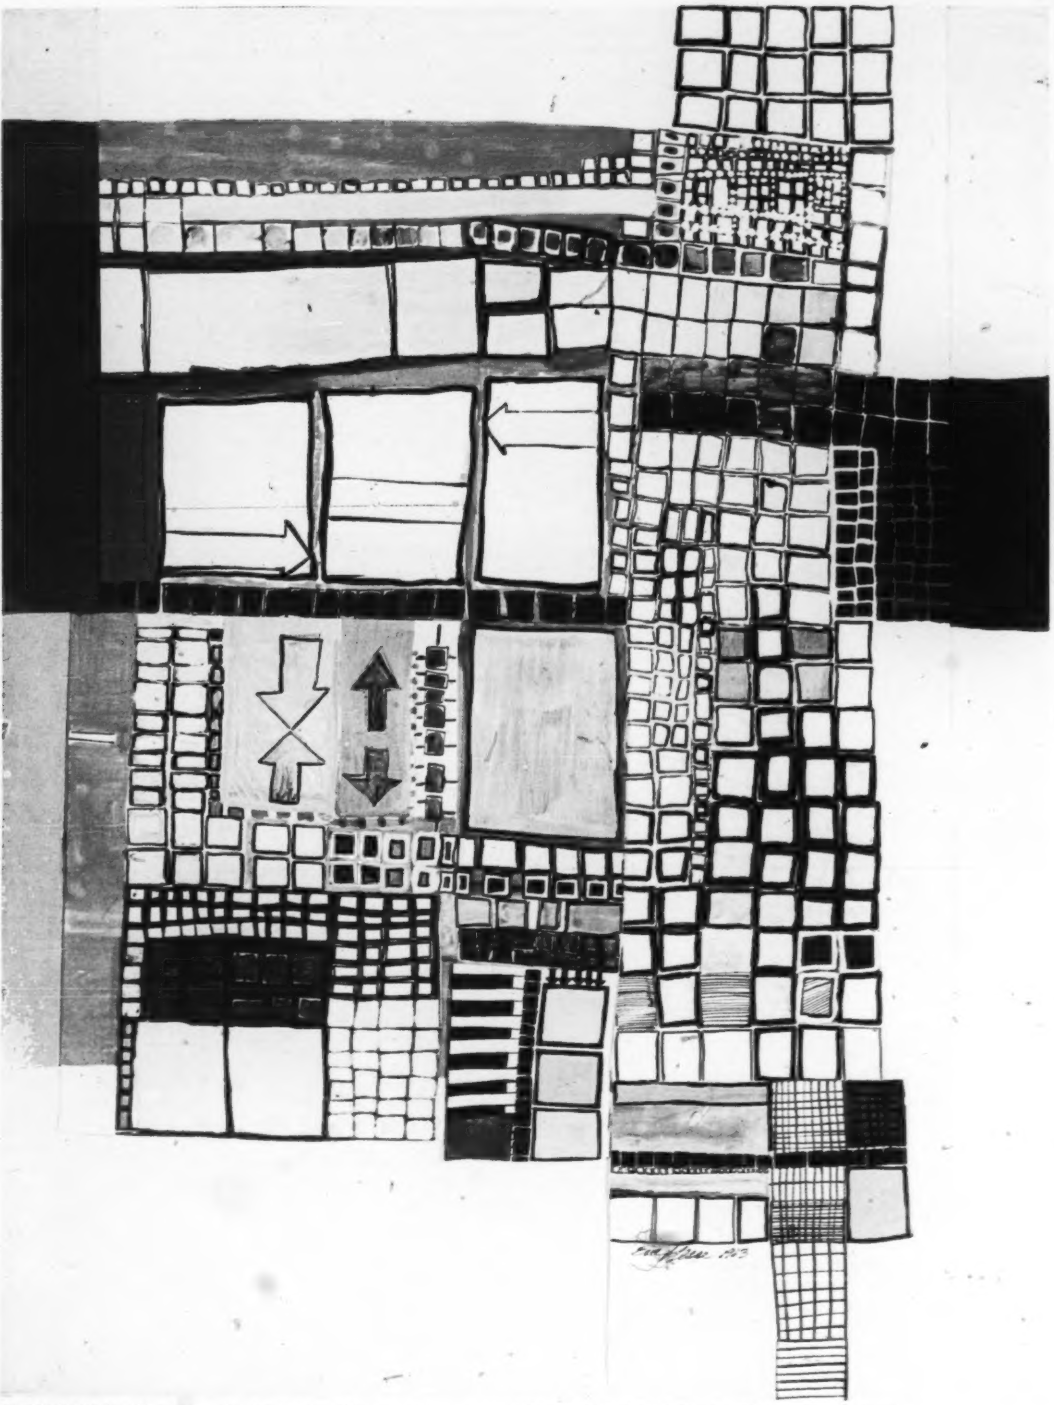


Untitled, 1960, black ink and wash on paper, 4 ½ by 6 inches. Estate of the artist.



Untitled, 1960, brown ink on paper, 14 by 11 ½ inches. Estate of the artist.

VOL 7 1 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI



Untitled, 1963, collage, gouache, black ink and watercolor on paper, 36 by 27 ½ inches. Collection Helen Hesse Charash.

Undated, November 1960

Only painting can now see me through and I must see it through. It is totally interdependent with my entire being. It is source of my goals, ambitions, satisfactions and frustrations. It is what I have found through which I can express myself, my growth—and channel my development. It affords the problems which I can think through, form ideas which I can work with and arrive at a statement. Within its scope I can develop strength and conviction.

Undated, December 1960

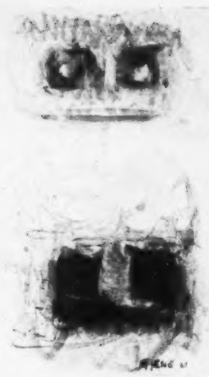
Dubuffet is really good. I enjoy his drawings mainly for his humour—his esthetic is there and is there with ease. He makes no obvious contention with that aspect alone.

January 27, 1961

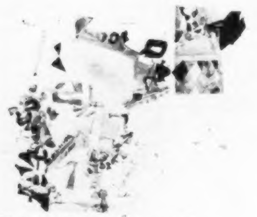
I am beginning to sell and show my work in that order. One gave me the confidence to proceed to the other.

August 3, 1962

I am working; even though I so often contest the fact, when I work all else seems to hold together much better. [On a separate sheet in the diary.]



Untitled, 1961, brown and black inks, wash, pencil on paper, 9 by 6 inches. Estate of the artist.



Untitled, 1963, ink, pencil, watercolor on paper, 22 by 28 inches. Wadsworth Atheneum, collection Sol LeWitt.

Ashokan, 1961, casein on paper, 17 ¾ by 24 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.

Untitled, 1961, black ink and wash on paper, 9 by 12 inches. Collection Helen Hesse Charash.

August 8, 1962

To sustain the feeling of that last week is still not possible for me. My feelings of inadequacy persist and I am constantly torn in a million directions. I cannot believe enough in myself to make any statement mine. [Same as preceding.]

April 21, 1964

It is as difficult as it is said to be to be an artist's wife and an artist also.

On the early 1960s

That struggle between student and finding oneself . . . I don't think . . . can be avoided, and mine was very difficult and very frustrating . . . but I worked. I never had the trouble of not being able to work . . . . I think there was a time when I met the man that I married [Tom Doyle, 1961], I shouldn't say I went backwards but I did because he was a more mature artist . . . and I would unconsciously be somewhat influenced and he would push me in his direction and of course when I met him I already had a drawing show [1961, John Heller Gallery, New York, "Drawings: Three Young Americans"] which was much, much more me. [From a 1970 interview with Cindy Nemser. This and other passages cited from the interview are taken from the original transcript in the Hesse Archives at Oberlin rather than from the published version in Nemser, Art Talk: Conversations with 12 Women Artists, New York, 1975.]

June 13, 1964

Our studio [Kettwig, Germany], top floor with skylight and windows every two feet, is very hot. I sit and hope I will work some. I might just have to believe in me more before working will mean something.

June 19, 1964

Started work in oil paint today. That is new since last 1½ years I used magna paints. Did two tiny very expressionistic paintings. Feel rather enthused since I enjoyed them and they seemed real to me. Somehow I think that counts. What counts most is involvement and for that to happen one must be able to give lots. Just like with a person. The giving must be very constant and thorough. . . . It just seems to me that the "personal" in art if really pushed is the most valued quality and what I want so much to find in and for myself.

July 1, 1964

I have to do what I have to do. I should by now believe that that is not only what I am, but that what I am shouldn't be fought because it is good. It is good to be what one is. In fact, the more I'm me, the better I would paint as then it can only be mine as no one else is me. . . . I still am agonized about my painting but at least now the agony is in and about work. And if I work that will most probably change into another kind of feeling. And if it remains it is better placed there than back into myself.

July 14, 1964

Am wondering if not my reasons for working are all wrong. The need for recognition, praise, acceptance is so excessive a need it causes an impossible pressure to live with. My feelings of inadequacy are so great that I oppose them with equally extreme need for outside recognition to establish some equilibrium. I think it is so in everything but greatest in art. Tom can achieve both in the right way, that is he can find himself in his work and then and therefore achieve recognition. With this I then compete and find no success.

November 8, 1964

Tom and I went to Folkwang Museum in Essen. Photograph show and Arshile Gorky drawings—great.

November 19, 1964

I refuse to fear any longer. . . . When a problem, just do it then and there, say it, write it and get rid of it. Face all that I fear, to fear it no longer. . . . In my work too. If crazy forms, do them outright. Strong, clear. No more haze; . . . Risk nothing—nothing gained.

November 21, 1964

One must take pride in what one is and achieves. I still doubt myself in both myself and my work. In competing with Tom I must unconsciously be competing with my alter ego. In his achievements I see my failures.

December 4, 1964

Started sculpture, lead wire though a huge screen. Shortage of wire forced change to plaster.

December 5, 1964

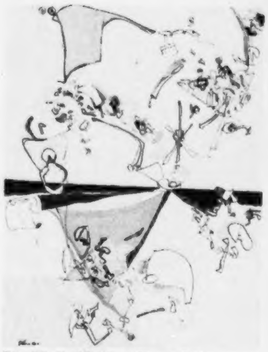
Went to Köln. Opening of Zwirner's Gallery. Stayed at Hans Haacke's house, saw his new work.

December 6, 1964

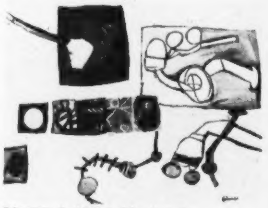
Had worst dream-nightmare, bloody cut-up scene involving self. [Throughout her diaries are lengthy recordings and descriptions of her dreams and nightmares.]

December 10, 1964

Plaster! I have always loved the material. It is flexible, pliable, easy to handle in that it is light, fast working. Its whiteness is right. I will take those screens. Finish one I began in lead. Then get cloth cut in strips and dip in plaster and bring through screen. I needed a structure that is perfect. . . . For me painting has become that [anti-climactic]. "Making Art"—"painting a painting." The Art, the history, the tradition, is too much there. I want to be surprised. To find something new.



Untitled, 1964, collage, ink, gouache, watercolor, pencil on paper, 25 ¼ by 19 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.



Untitled, 1964, black ink, gouache, watercolor, pencil on paper, 19 ¼ by 25 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.

Eighter From Decatur, 1965, paint, cord, metal, masonite, 27 ⅛ by 21 ¼ inches. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

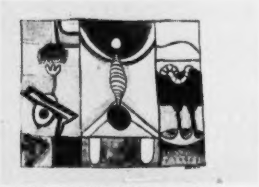
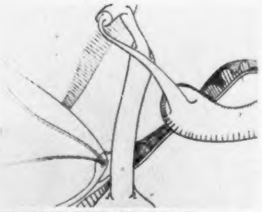
VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI



Untitled, 1965, ink, gouache, watercolor, pencil on paper, 11 ¾ by 16 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.



Untitled, 1965, black and colored inks, wash on paper, 19 ½ by 25 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.

Cutouts, 1965, ink and pencil on paper. Eva Hesse Archives, Allen Art Museum, Oberlin.

December 14, 1964

I want to explain what I have been doing. And although I already question validity, worth, meaning, antecedent etc., I have been enjoying the newness and the work. In the abandoned factory where we work there is lots of junk around. Tom has used much steel and odds and ends for his sculpture. I have all these months looked over and at much of the junk. I finally took a screen, heavy mesh which is stretched on a frame like so and taken cord which I cut into smaller pieces. I soak them in plaster and knot each piece through a hole and around wire. It is compulsive work which I enjoy. If it were really a new idea it would be terrific. But it is not. However I have plans with other structures and working more with plaster. It might work its way to something special. I will try to draw what it looks like. On other side it's the knots that are seen. It is all white. [From a letter to Rosie Goldman, quoted in Lucy Lippard, Eva Hesse, New York, 1976, pp. 28-29, illustrated p. 36.]

February 5, 1965

If painting is too much for you now, fuck it—quit—if drawing gives some pleasure—some satisfaction do it—go ahead. It also might lead to a way other than painting, or at least painting in oil. First feel sure of idea then the execution will be easier.

Undated, February 1965

I am ultimately convinced that people must first be told that so and so is great and then after a period of given time they come to believe it for themselves.

Undated, February-March, 1965

Do I have a right . . . to womanliness? Can I achieve an artistic endeavour and can they coincide?

Undated, between March 30-April 4, 1965

Dear Sol,

It is to you I want to talk about what is in my mind. It is because I respect and trust you and also in this case you are one who understands somewhat me personally and my art existent or non-existent. . . .

I don't want sympathy but I don't want you to laugh at me. I would only like to be able to show you what I have done here and ask you what you think. That is impossible so I am talking with you.

What drives us to work? It seems to me some kind of recognition which maybe we cannot give ourselves. Mine seems to be disproportionate like I respect myself too little so too much must come from the outside. . . .

I mean to tell you of what sits in front of me. Work.

I have done drawings. Seems like hundreds although much less in numbers. There have been a few stages. First kind of like what was in past—free, crazy forms—well done and so on. They had wild space, not constant, fluctuating and variety of forms etc. Paintings were enlarged versions, attempt at similar space, etc.

2nd Stage—contained forms somewhat harder often in boxes and forms become machine like, real like, and as if to tell a story in that they are contained. Paintings follow similarly.

3rd Stage—Drawings—clean, clear, but crazy like machines, forms larger, bolder, articulately described so it is weird—they become real nonsense.

So I sit now after two days of working on a dumb thing which is 3-dimensional, supposed to be continuity with last drawings. . . . The 3-d. one now actually looks like breast and penis—but that's O.K. and I should go on with it, maybe it or they would make it in another way, but I don't know where I belong and so I give up again. All the time it is like that. . . .

Have really been discovering my weird humor and make-sick or maybe cool but I can only see things that way—experience them also but I can't feel cool. That is my hopelessness . . . . Everything for me personally is glossed with anxiety. . . .

I rewrote this letter to Sol. [From a letter to Sol LeWitt entered into her diary, a practice she often followed, either as a trial or record.]

April 14, 1965

I am working steadily, I will give much effort now, as I might well soon fare on my own.

May 4, 1965

I am working like crazy. . . . Have one completed. I will describe. Am working on masonite which is pressed wood fibers. On this I build forms (glue and paper), on some forms I have glued cord. On one I have a heavy twisted cord which can be moved. [From a letter to Rosie Goldman, Lippard, p. 35, illustrated p. 36.]

May 11, 1965

I have been working harder than ever in my life, and under a lot of pressure.

May 15, 1965

Show. [Her reliefs and drawings and Doyle's sculpture, Kettwig, Scheidt estate.] Went well. I sold two. Tom also maybe two. I will also show Aug. 6 in graphics room in Kunsthalle Düsseldorf.

July 31, 1965

Have 14 objects plus 14 new terrific drawings.

August 2, 1965

Moved all work to Düsseldorf.

August 3, 1965

Hung show.

August 4, 1965

Worked like crazy, did five more groovy drawings.

Legs of A Walking Ball, 1965, paint, metal, papier maché, masonite, 17 ¾ by 26 ⅜ inches. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

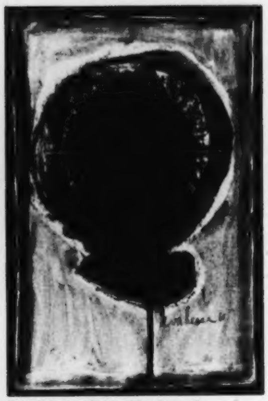
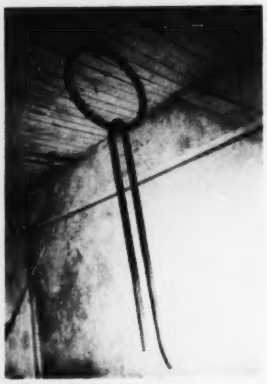
Photograph of Eva Hesse, from the catalogue accompanying her exhibition at the Kunsthalle, Düsseldorf, 1965.



Untitled, 1961, black and brown inks, wash, pencil on paper, 9 by 6 inches. Collection Ellen H. Johnson.



Untitled, 1965-66, paint, cord, mixed mediums; hoop, 32 inches in diameter; hose, 12 feet, four inches long.

Hang-Up, 1966, acrylic on cloth over wood and steel, 6 by 7 by 6 ½ feet. Collection Victor Ganz.

August 6, 1965

Our opening.

September 30, 1965

Almost one [work] complete in US!

December 12, 1965

I feel I have no where to turn. All my stakes are in my work. I have given up in all else. Like my whole reality is there—I am all there. When then I am rejected it is an entire loss,—like all of me. . . . I do feel I am an artist—and one of the best. I do deeply. . . . I have one person here and one there, artists who know me and think I am good, most others don't know me as an artist and give me no credit at all and I can't take this.

Undated, December 1965

Incredible! Spent evening with Giles and Lee Bontecou. Dinner, they here—we there. I am amazed at what that woman can do. Actually the work involved is what impressed me so. The artistic result I have seen. This was the unveiling to me of what can be done, what I must learn, what there is to do. The complexity of her structures, what is involved absolutely floored me.

On 1965-66

It [Hang-Up] was early when I first came back from Europe . . . like the fifth piece I did. And I think the most important early statement I made . . . close to what I feel now I achieve in the best pieces. It was the first time where my absurdity or extreme feeling came through. . . . It has a kind of depth that I don't always achieve. And that is the kind of depth or soul or absurdity or life or meaning or feeling or intellect that I want to get. . . . It is a frame . . . on the wall . . . all tied like a hospital bandage—as if someone broke an arm . . . out of that structure, this little thing comes out about ten or eleven feet. . . . It is the most ridiculous structure I have ever made and that is why it is really good. . . . This ridiculous form is coming out of nothing. . . . It is very surreal, very strange. It is weird . . . like those things that I did in Europe. . . . There was nobody doing anything like this. . . . [It] was totally absurd to everybody at that time . . . the height of minimal and pop. . . .

I started working in sculpture when we lived for 1½ years in . . . Europe. . . . I had a great deal of difficulty with painting and never with drawings. . . . They ranged from linear to complicated washes or collages and the translation or transference on a large scale and in painting was always tedious; it was not natural and I thought to translate it in some other way so I started working in relief and the lines . . . . The ropes that are now so commonly used started by the drawings becoming so linear and I really translated the lines. They weren't ropes because they were done on a small scale, they were cords . . . and I kept the scale in Europe fairly small and when I came back to America, I varied the materials even further and didn't keep the rectangles . . . and then they just grew. They came from the floor, the ceiling, the walls, then it just became whatever it became. [From 1970 Nemser interview transcript, Hesse Archives, Oberlin.]

Undated, spring 1966

I went to help Sol wrap his work. . . . Helping Sol also was Ethlyn [Honig]. Even in wrapping I am competitive, saw this so clearly . . . the extent I have this awful trait in competing with "male" artists, which is to say almost everyone. Then that's not bad enough, I compete then as a "woman" with women in "Female" area.

Undated, spring 1966

Marisol does all [the] work herself. She will try anything. Experiment with any media, incorporating all things. What she does do though is leave too much on the surface. Design, decoration. Mystery is lost. She cannot any longer just attach dime store paraphernalia all over, over everywhere. It sits there and is no longer even humour. Because one can expect it and there it is. A ring, a necklace, a shoe, a glass, a mirror, a piece of lace. When she hides from this, when her pieces hide something from the viewer, we look at it differently. . . .

Undated, spring 1966

Finished my last two pieces, one today and one the other day: Laocoön and titleless so far. Cords everywhere. Will do one that does not come from a form, that is endless, totally encroaching and irrational. With its own rationale, even if it looks chaotic.

Undated, spring 1966

I then met Sol at Whitney. Saw recent acquisitions (Held, Johns, Kelly). And Lipman collection. Lot of mediocrity, along with a few fine pieces. One beautiful Samaras (two inferior ones), a fine Morris, and Judd. The Samaras I loved was a box covered with pins, cover slightly ajar with bird's head forcing its way out from under cover. Old cords and rope dropping out from front. The piece sits in a plexiglas case. Sol went to Dwan. I on to Modern. . . . Saw Kahn architecture, beautiful forms, very related to "primary structures." Turner was crowded and boring after Kahn. Although interesting to note how much abstract expressionism is indebted to 1830 Turners. . . . Also slide talk on Kahn by Vincent Scully (Yale). Met Diana McKown who still lives with Louise Nevelson. We went to Pace to see show. Then to Dwan with Smithson and Mel Bochner. Mel and I went for cokes and then to my studio.

Undated, May 1966

It's wild, I have many critics (writers) believing in me and my work before I have really shown. Lucy, Mel, Gene [Swenson], Smithson, all want to write about it. Wild. Mel said he has heard much talk about my work.

Ennead, 1966, wood, plastic, cord, acrylic, 36 by 22 by 1 ½ inches. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

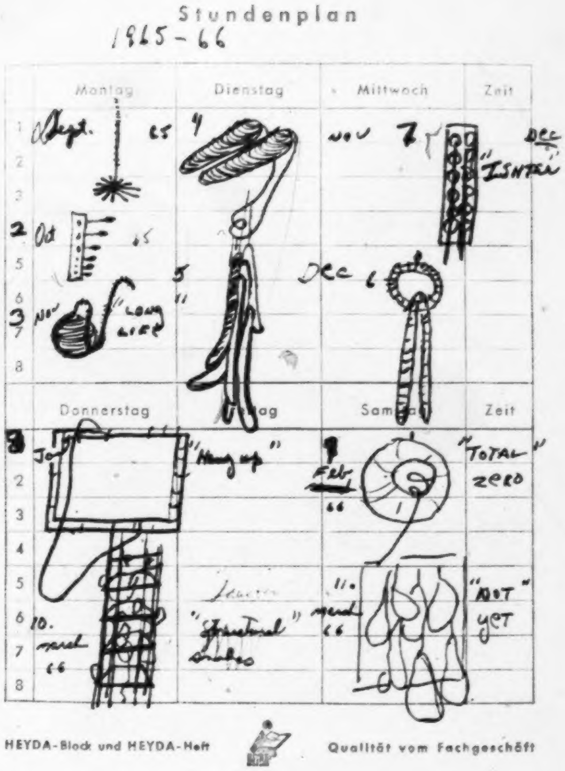
Untitled, 1966, brown ink, wash on paper, 13 ¾ by 10 ¾ inches. Collection Marilyn C. Fischbach.

VOL 7 1 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI



Inside back cover of diary, 1965-66. Allen Art Museum, Oberlin.

Metronomic Irregularity II, 1966, painted wood and cotton-covered wire, 4 by 20 feet. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

May 25, 1966

Lucy wants me to do a big piece for show ["Eccentric Abstraction," Fischbach Gallery, September, 1966]. It scares me to have it put that way. A finality, also like an examination.

Undated, June 1966

We [with Mel Bochner] went to Fischbach, looked at space. Bad for all art, my big piece Laocoön will not be right with all the gadgetry above.

July 5, 1966

Thursday will go (against desire) for job interview which I know I will get. Teaching children in Riverdale. Spent morning shopping on Canal St. Sol joined me. Must have spent approximately 25 to 30 dollars. I think I reconsidered job because of that total spent on relatively little supplies. . . . If I get more private students I can quit in January. . . . I bought a lot of small extras for small work. I really should do them as in between main work. Sol will help build sub-armatures (structures). Am still thinking about main summer piece [Metronomic Irregularity].

Undated, August 1966

I realize how hung up I am about always feeling what I do is wrong, not good enough. In art, my work. Always that it will break, wear badly, not last, that technically I have failed. It does parallel my life for certain.

Undated, August 1966

I have grown so this year, last August 28 we came back to America. Since then in fact I have lost my husband (through separation) and my father through death.

Undated, September 1966

Some of my work is falling apart. 2 pieces. 2 other pieces are discolored from the varnish. If and when I can repair. If not, so what. They are not wasted. I went further in the work that followed. I take more care technically, I plan and figure out more wisely.

Undated, September 9, 1966

Sol's birthday [September 9]. Doctor. Dan Graham, Sol and Mel met me at 91 St and Park. . . . Went to Avant Garde festival. There we met N.Y. Art Scene 66-67. Smithson and Steiner and Virginia. Smithson hardly knew us. He is solo in Dwan. My whole world is in Dwan. She does not even accept me as an artist. . . . Tonight again, same crew. Dinner at Smithsons. I am again non-artist, amongst Virginia. . . . Dan Graham fine, bright.

October 28, 1966

He [Donald Droll] asked to buy Several. Earlier this week Florette Lynn asked to buy Ishtar. Still earlier this week or late last week I promised Metronomic Irregularity I to Smithson as a trade.

Undated, December 1966

Tonight Visual Arts show opened. Working drawings. I have five drawings, along with Sol, Mel, Smithson, Judd, Andre.

Undated, December 1966

Started to work. Difficult, but I know how important it is for me now, and that it almost alone can again make me stand tall. . . . That in 1967 I will be in Jewish Museum and probably have first one-man sculpture show. "Things Show," "objects." I would call them "objects." What's the difference? Makes none at all. Little [do I] like "Eccentric Art," little like "Abstract inflationism," nor "stuffed expressionism."

Several, 1965, papier maché, rubber hose, acrylic, 7 feet by 11 inches by 7 inches. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

Study for Contingent, 1969, pencil on yellow lined paper, 11 by 8 ½ inches. Eva Hesse Archives, Allen Art Museum.

And He Sat in a Box, 1964, collage, ink, gouache, watercolor on paper, 29 ¾ by 21 ¼ inches. Estate of the artist.

Untitled, 1968, black and brown inks, wash, gouache on paper, 11 by 15 inches. Neuberger Museum, Purchase.

Contingent (prototype), 1969, fiberglass, rubberized cheesecloth, 14 by 3 feet. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

Undated, December 1966

Took off wedding ring. My progress. I did not want to. Left no longer any alternative. I have been alone one year.

December 24, 1966

Sol gave me this book December 23, 1966. Lots of books. . . . It is a fitting ending for another strange, bewildering, sad and yet strangely productive year. A final abandonment. And daddy's death. And now on to work, and other changes, changes for another start.

January 1, 1967

I am working well and eager to go on. Might even be ready for first one-man by next fall. . . . Tonight we meet at Smithson's; midnight it will be his 28th birthday.

January 2, 1967

Highlight of evening, Nancy [Holt Smithson] read a suburban official Xeroxed Christmas letter; read a Smithson parody of letter. . . . Nancy gave me a drawing she made for me. . . . Went to Whitney annual. As crowded as Macys two weeks before Christmas. Pieces themselves without people hardly had the room they needed. It was depressing, people knowing nothing, just there as a place to go, or the right thing to have seen.

Undated, ca. 1968-69

Solipsism: the theory of belief that only knowledge of the self is possible and that for each individual the self itself is the only thing really existent and that therefore reality is subjective . . . . [From a loose sheet.]

November 11, 1969

Titles vivify all to me. Right After, Tori, Contingent.

Hanging./Rubberized, loose, open cloth./Fiberglass—reinforced plastic./ Began somewhere in November–December, 1969./Worked./Collapsed April 6, 1969. I have been very ill. . . .

Piece is in many parts./Each in itself is a complete statement,/together am not certain how it will be. . . .

irregular, edges, six to seven feet long./textures coarse, rough, changing,/ see through, non see through, consistent, inconsistent. . . .

they are tight and formal but very ethereal, sensitive, fragile, see through mostly./not painting, not sculpture, it's there though. . . .

today, another step, on two sheets we put on the glass./did the two differently./one was cast—poured over hard, irregular, thick plastic;/one with screening, crumpled, they will all be different./both the rubber sheets and the fiberglass. . . . [From a statement about Contingent in catalogue for Art in Process IV exhibition, Finch College, New York, Dec. 11, 1969–Jan. 26, 1970. In the Hesse Archives, Oberlin, is a tape recording of Hesse reading it.]

Vinculum I, 1969, fiberglass, rubber tubing, metal screen, 8 ⅝ by 2 feet. Collection Mr. and Mrs. Victor W. Ganz.

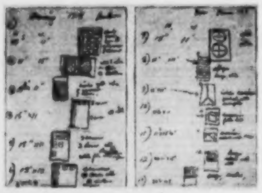
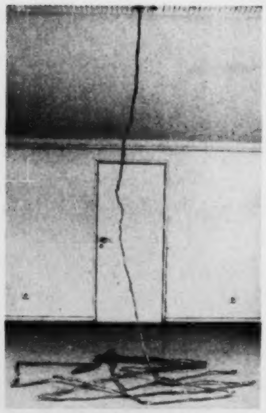
VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI



Drawings on notebook pages, 1968, pen, ink, pencil on paper. Eva Hesse Archives, Allen Art Museum, Oberlin.

Assorted small and test pieces, 1967-69, installed at Droll/Kolbert Gallery, 1977. Courtesy Ellen Johnson.

Untitled, 1969, silver paint, watercolor, gouache, pencil on paper, 23 by 17 ½ inches. Collection Murray Charash.



Untitled (Ice Piece), 1969, fiberglass on wire, 62 feet by 1 inch. Courtesy Metro Pictures.

Undated, ca. December 1969

Try to sit up. . . . Build up some energy. Try to stay up. Have a lot of work waiting for me to get done. Other people. Waiting. Exhibitions. I don't mean I feel pressured. I don't. It's kind of nice. Waiting for each thing I do. It is better than doing and no one waiting to see at all.

Undated, ca. December 1969

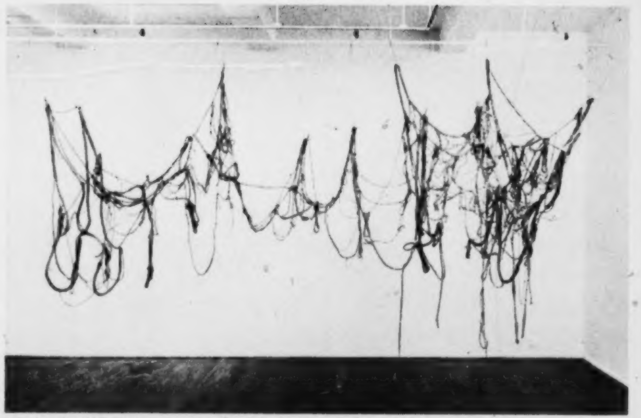
You must begin making small things so that starts cycle going. Doing begins things and it continues. It is always that way, as one piece leads into the next. As it was I never remember working on one thing; it always is in at least pairs and further ahead . . . doing perpetuates doing,—and thinking. It works for me. . . . I have to begin to learn to work and or plan, and supervise others making my pieces. [From a loose sheet.]

Undated, 1969-70

Intentionally two pieces of great contrast in form but similar in their thought and extreme position. [Doubtless refers to Expanded Expansion and Untitled, 62 feet by 1 inch, both 1969.] Both are endless, if ceiling were higher or space on floor larger it could as well be continued and exaggerate its position more. The rubberized cheese cloth also could continue. Both take a stand on absurdity. Both by means of form as well. One is endless and yet a thin longish substance that is linked together and one feels the infinity to which it could extend. The other is opposite in form, large, looming, powerful yet precarious. Its positioning as a unit or sectional units could take many stands. The flexible and also inflexible quality is there and in contrast. [From a loose sheet.]

1970

Everything for me has always been opposites, nothing has ever been in the middle. . . . My life never had anything normal or in the center. It was always extremes; and in the forms that I use in my work is contradiction . . . even when I was younger or a less mature artist I would take order vs. chaos, huge vs. small, stringy vs. mass. I would try to find the most absurd opposites or extreme opposites and I was always aware of their absurdity and their contradiction formally. . . . The total absurdity of life is where I relate, if I do, to certain artists I feel very close to not so much from having studied their writings or works, but for me there is that total absurdity in their work. I don't know if they intended it, but I read that: Duchamp, Yvonne Rainer, Jasper Johns, Sartre, Ionesco . . . (everyone else might disagree)—Carl Andre . . . . [When asked if she had been influenced by Oldenburg's soft materials]: I like Oldenburg very, very much. I respect him, his writings, his person, his energy, his humor, his art, the whole thing. But I don't think I've studied it or taken or used those materials in any way. . . . Andy Warhol too is high up on my favorite list. . . . He is the most artist that you could be. . . . what I want to be is the most Eva can be as an artist or a person.



Untitled, 1970, latex over rope, string, wire; 3 strands, 12 and 10 ½ and 7 ½ feet. Installation at Droll/Kolbert Gallery, 1977.

Process—that is the mold that I felt I was going to be put in. I don't really understand it. Everything is process and the making of my work is very interesting but I never thought of it as now I am throwing—now I am scraping—now I am putting on the rubber—for any reason other than the process was necessary to get to what I was going to get to. . . .

I never did any traditional sculpture. I don't think I ever did any traditional painting except what you call abstract expressionism. I didn't even do much sculpture in school and once I started on my own, there wasn't anything traditional about any of the pieces. . . .

The drawings could be called painting legitimately and a lot of my sculpture could be called painting. I don't know if that piece I had at Finch [Contingent] can be called painting or sculpture. It is really hung paintings . . . hung from the ceiling and hung against the wall . . . more than it is sculpture.

Color is whatever comes out of the material and keeps it what it is. Light I'm not too concerned with because if you use fiberglass clear and thin, light does beautiful things to it . . . it is there—part of its anatomy. [From a transcript of Nemser interview, Hesse Archives, Oberlin.]

1970

This piece [Untitled, "the knot piece" 1970, Victor Ganz collection] is very ordered. Maybe I'll make it more structured, maybe I'll leave it changeable. When it's completed its order could be chaos. Chaos can be structured as non-chaos. That we know from Jackson Pollock. [From "Fling, Dribble and Drip," Life, February 1970, p. 66.]

1970

The way to beat discrimination in art is by art. Excellence has no sex. [Inscribed by Hesse on a letter to her from Cindy Nemser asking her views on discrimination against female artists. Hesse Archives, Oberlin.]

For Gioia, 1969, gouache, pencil, colored inks on paper, 14 by 11 inches. Collection Gioia Timpanelli.

Expanded Expansion, 1969, rubberized cheesecloth, fiberglass, 10 by 15 to 20 feet. Guggenheim Museum.

"Eva Hesse: A Retrospective of the Drawings," organized by the Allen Memorial Art Museum, Oberlin College, was also shown at the Renaissance Society at the University of Chicago; the Contemporary Arts Museum, Houston; the Grey Art Gallery, New York University; and the Baltimore Museum of Art. "Eva Hesse: Paintings and Reliefs from 1963 to 1966" was exhibited at Metro Pictures in January.

Author: Ellen H. Johnson is Honorary Curator of Modern Art, Allen Memorial Art Museum, Oberlin College.

Precise Implications

Though Ellsworth Kelly's latest sculptures continue to thrive on the tension between paradigmatic geometrical shapes and their own meticulous deviations from those forms, they now exploit a wider range of materials as well as a newly expansive sense of scale.

BY BARBARA KNOWLES DEBS

Ellsworth Kelly's sculpture, as his recent retrospective made abundantly clear, is about a particular way of seeing. Even more than the paintings, drawings and photographs that coexist with it, Kelly's sculpture, especially his most recent work, allows and stimulates us to share in some small measure in the artist's preternatural capacity for distilling visual sensation. The rigor and exhilaration of this encounter more than compensate for the frustrating awareness that our experience of these elegant, enigmatic objects is almost impossible to translate into words.

At the same time, the show itself—beautifully organized and installed, fully documented, chronologically complete[1]—challenged us to try. As has long been his custom, Kelly was intimately involved in the selection and installation of the exhibition, making models for both the Whitney and St. Louis locations.[2] At the Whitney (my remarks about installation focus on that version of the show), both the arrangement of the whole and the juxtapositions of individual objects invited us to think through a larger set of formal problems, and at the same time triggered a series of emotional and visual associations that multiplied our pleasure.

Kelly's sculpture is highly ordered, not by rules but by instinct. This rarefied and disciplined work has the power to evoke in us a complex range of emotional and sensory response. Kelly's sculpture, even more than his painting, brings us face to face with some of the most basic questions about our responses to art, and about perception itself. Why, for instance, do we respond to certain forms and not others? What makes us think something is "just right"? Why do we so often need to invest abstract forms with meaning? Why is there always some lurking anthropomorphism in our response to freestanding vertical shapes? Somehow Kelly's own capacity to translate things seen into another, more abstract, plane of being propels us into a realm of experience we could not reach on our own.[3]

Although it affords our first chronologically complete view of Kelly as a sculptor, the emphasis of this exhibition was properly on his most recent work. It thus accurately reflected the increasing importance of sculpture in his oeuvre. While Kelly has always made sculpture, most of his 140-odd works in that medium have been made since 1973. At present, sculpture is quite clearly much more to him than simply the alternative to painting it was for many years. His latest work, seen in this retrospective for the first time, makes fully apparent the fact that while Kelly continues to deal with certain basic ideas and formal problems in painting, sculpture and drawing, he is also now working on certain problems that can find solution only in sculpture. It is on these most recent works that I will focus.[4]

Several new monoliths (all of 1982) were grouped at the Whitney: an untitled standing aluminum slab; Concorde Angle, weathering steel; Curve XXXI and Curve XXXII, both weathering steel; the great oak totem, Curve XXVII; and Standing Curve XXX, weathering steel. Taken as a group, they reveal all but one of the issues that seem to preoccupy Kelly at present. Some of these issues are old, some new. Refinement of shape, distinctive color and precision of scale have been basic concerns for Kelly from the beginning. New elements here are the variety of materials, the richness of texture, the greatly increased scale. A necessarily more rigorous and sophisticated concern with the problems of physical weight and balance occurs here as well. All of these factors contribute to an increasingly resonant expressive quality.

These large, deceptively simple forms had their origins in Kelly's paintings and reliefs of the 1950s. Indeed, most of the motifs of his recent work can be traced back to smaller versions in his formative years.[5] Then, the motifs were often embedded in the fabric of multiple image works. Now, they have been abstracted from their earlier (already abstract) context, simplified and vastly enlarged to stand alone as single objects. As Kelly himself remarks, "It all just gets larger and simpler."[6]

In the process of making things larger and simpler, Kelly has changed scale and materials and adjusted shape; these changes have expanded the expressive character of the resulting forms. Ranging now from 9 to 11 feet in height, the new sculptures are usually unpainted, and are strange and muted in color; they are often allusive in surface texture, and ample and elegant in shape.

Despite their rigorously abstract vocabulary, they convey a convincing sense of individual personality. Whether in its earlier geometric or biomorphic modes, Kelly's sculpture has always seemed animated by some inner dynamism, but in the recent works this sense of animation is heightened and transmuted into something far more mysterious and compelling. They appear to us, now, as ancient, benign and sentient presences. So pressing is the sense of personality, of presence, in these new works, that it is nearly impossible to think about them—to be in their company, so to speak—without investing them with a range of attributes normally associated with living things.

Much of this feeling of life and personality results from the tensions and ambivalent, unexpected relationships between knowing and seeing that Kelly has built into the sculptures. In dealing with the recent Curve and Angle pieces, we must respond to the animating tensions between the elegant and precisely particularlized forms we see, and our awareness of the basic rectangle that underlies them all—between the perfect stability of the unseen form and dynamic variations from it, between what is in our eye and what is in our head. Like other classical artists before him, Kelly possesses an acute sense of the enlivening power of irregularities injected into geometric conventions. We perceive and enjoy the variations from the norm, interpreting the peculiarities as a kind of shorthand for the infinite variety and movement of nature itself.

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

Of course, it is Kelly's extraordinary relation to nature that underlies and determines our reaction to his work. All of Kelly's forms start with a thing seen. The artist has spoken eloquently about the way his abstract forms come into being; his drawings and photographs often document this as well. A leaf, a shadow, part of a building, a randomly torn scrap—all of these, and many other specific starting points as well, have served to germinate Kelly's final abstract shapes. The "normal" rectangles that underlie the new sculptures also derive from things seen, rather than an arbitrary, geometric ideal. The artist refers to his process as translation of things seen—a process in which, although the original subject is indeed lost in translation, the warmth of his response to the particularities of the original stimulus somehow is not. When the translation is complete, the object is then set free to generate a whole new spectrum of responses and associations.

If references to the natural world persist in the new sculptures, it is on a less specific, far more generalized plane. Here, the sense of nature expands like the scale of the works themselves to encompass suggestions of cosmic space and the infinite reaches of time. Segments of vast circles suggest interplanetary perspectives, enormous distances, "snapshots" of fragments of the universe. These great arc motifs have rightly been related both to Kelly's interest in actual photographs made from outer space, and to more earthbound versions of a curved horizon line.[7] Kelly likes to talk of shifting focus from the telescopically distant to the microscopically near as part of the working process, as if he himself were a kind of living zoom lens.

A different sense of time and change, however, has developed in many of the newer works; its source is primarily in the character of the materials with which Kelly has been working in recent years. Weathering steel, aluminum, stainless steel and wood[8] offer a range of surfaces and textures quite different from those afforded by smoothly painted canvas or steel. Here, new references appear, which encompass the forces of change and decay. According to the artist, the steel for his work is chosen primarily for color rather than texture; though muted, the metal's natural colors and textures are rich and various. The textures of the new pieces, their inherent beauty aside, at once work to underscore the tension between real surface and imagined depth always present in Kelly's work, and to embody the actuality of physical change.

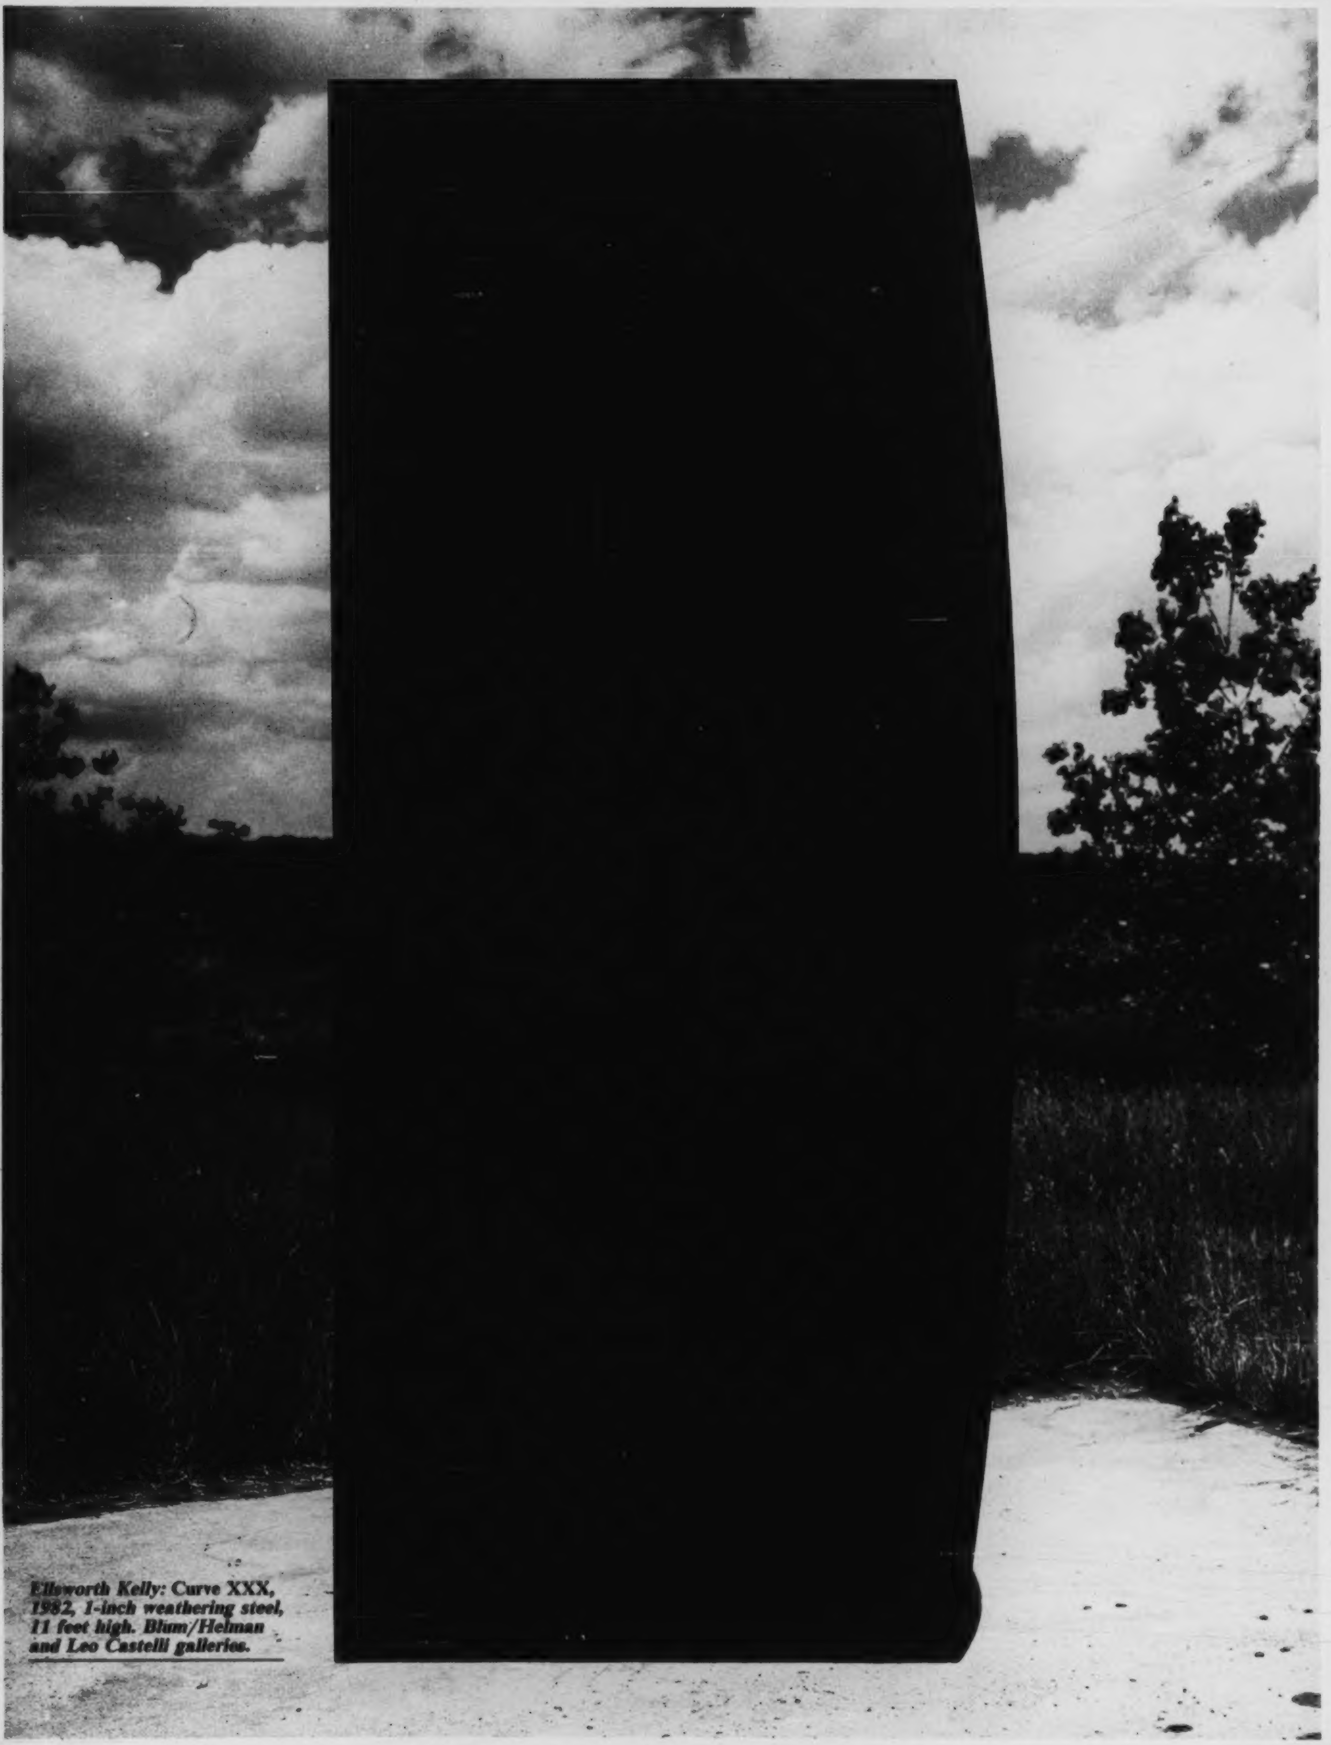
Kelly's sculpture, even more than his painting, brings us face to face with some of the most basic questions about our responses to art, and about perception itself.

Curve XXXI offers a striking example of the increasingly dramatic presence of texture and its effects in Kelly's sculpture. The near-black near-rectangle (present intermittently as a motif from Kelly's earliest years) has a double reading—is it a thin dark surface, or a hole in space? The "window" effect in Curve XXXI is intensified by the extraordinary fernlike pattern of the rusted surface, which is strikingly evocative of some primeval, vegetal world, perhaps already fossilized in geological strata. Further, one senses a depth that requires one to look into as well as at the surface. Thus, this carefully calculated, precisely defined, mechanically derived steel shape that belongs to a modern and orderly world carries within its material substance an overwhelmingly affecting vision of a nonorderly, "natural" and very ancient world. At the same time, we are poignantly aware that the surface must change with time and weather; only the shape will remain the same. In a sense, time itself is trapped within the boundaries of Kelly's geometric form.

Kelly recently discussed these issues in relation to three new wood reliefs, two of them with exceptionally beautiful grain. He said that he never used a finish, even oil, on his wood surfaces because he did not want the viewer to be stopped by a polished surface, but rather to "look into the wood." He speculated about how the aging process would affect the pieces, adding that he didn't care what eventually happened to them; he noted that one of his earliest wood reliefs (Palm Relief, 1958) had grown very dark with time. As to his work in untreated metal, he expressed curiosity, interest and pleasure in some (but not all) of the results of time and different degrees of exposure. Although he occasionally alters the rate of surface change by bringing outdoor sculpture indoors, and vice versa, he exhibits no sustained interest in attempting to control the process of their weathering. This interest in—or submission of the work to—the processes of nature can be seen as an aspect of Kelly's early and continuing delight in chance. It is surely also an extension of his often stated wish to dissociate his own personality from his work.

Kelly's breadth of art-historical interest, his sympathetic understanding of artists very unlike himself, is well known.[9] Recently we talked in rapid succession about Guido da Siena, Pollaiuolo, Matisse, Claude, Poussin, Ruysdael, Chardin, Giotto, Piero, the Ravenna mosaics, a host of 20th-century painters—and Donatello. Kelly commented that his own work has "something to to do with Donatello—maybe the line." Maybe so—few sculptors have been as much masters of profile as Donatello. But there may be an even deeper kinship than that—their common interest in the life and independence of the object and the primacy of its character and personality, as opposed to that of the artist.

It may be possible—and this is a notion I advance with caution—that some specific experience of Donatello underlies, probably unconsciously, the most recent, most complex and perhaps most beautiful of Kelly's new sculptures, Untitled, 1982. This three-part aluminum piece is made up of forms that "comment upon and culminate [Kelly's] activity of the previous decade."[10] The ample totem shape at the left, the unaltered rectangle in the center and the ground-based quarter-circle at right are all versions of forms that have dominated Kelly's sculpture since the early '70s, but in purer, more refined and, in the latter two cases, more strictly geometric form. Together they represent the canonical repertory



Ellsworth Kelly: Curve XXX, 1982, 1-inch weathering steel, 11 feet high. Blum/Helman and Leo Castelli galleries.

VOL 71
ISS 6
SUM 1983
UMI

of form for Kelly's recent work as a sculptor. Each of these forms could stand alone—indeed, versions of them all have. Here, however, for the first time, the artist has chosen to present them as a composed group of elements. It is the nature of this composition that suggests to me a connection with a historical tradition outside Kelly's art, and at the same time suggests solutions to one of the most difficult problems within it.

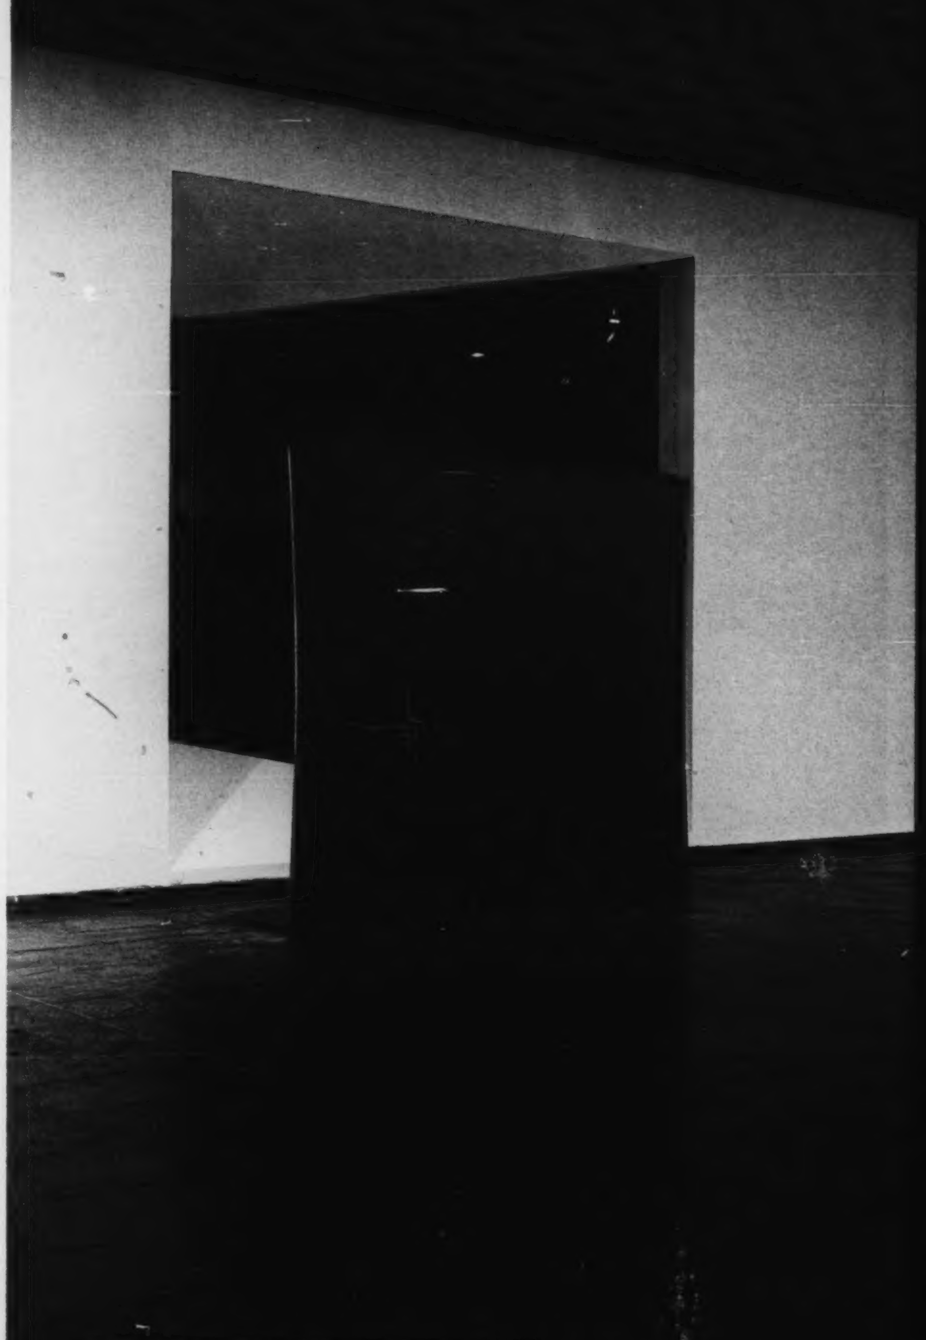
The most striking effect of this work is the odd but satisfying sense that something is going on—that a strange, distilled drama is being played out before our eyes. In this work, the life of the individual elements is absorbed into a dramatic relationship among the forms. This new sense of interaction is expressed primarily through the relationship between forms and space.

Although the individual forms remain frontal and planar, the space they inhabit is volumetric. Each element occupies a markedly different plane, thus establishing a subdued dynamism of spatial interval, charged with potential movement. The sculpture now shares in the three-dimensional realities of our world, and is brought psychologically nearer to us.

The interplay between two-dimensional form and three-dimensional space again has precedents in Kelly's earlier work. A similar relationship between flat plane and volumetric space, as well as the juxtaposition of elements to imply movement, occurred in Whites, 1963, where the imagined possibility of the slow movement of flat leaf forms through space was basic to the work.

The central rectangle of Untitled, 1982, also relates to Kelly's past work. There may be some reference in this three-part piece to the multi-image paintings of a couple of decades ago—to the period when Kelly was wrestling with the tyranny of the rectangle imposed by the traditional format of easel painting. Kelly has often stated his dislike for the rectangle as a container for other forms, since he views images thus contained as having no life of their own. As imprisoned forms, they cannot be perceived as self-sufficient. Furthermore, for Kelly the image on a rectangle necessarily carries the stamp of the artist's personality.

The solution to this problem was, of course, the isolation of the image as a shaped canvas—a "real" substitute for the painted image. His adoption of the shaped canvas logically led Kelly to a much greater involvement with sculp-



Installation view, Whitney Museum. From left to right, Curve XXXII, 1982, steel, 9 feet high; Curve XXXI, 1982 steel, 9 feet high; Curve XXX, 1982, steel, 11 feet high; and Curve in Relief IV, 1982, oak, 12 feet long. All works but the last, Blum/Helman and Leo Castelli galleries.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

ture. Once the rectangular format is gone, the shapes set free from it appear as things that "already" exist on their own. Kelly sees the abandonment of the pictorial rectangle as a crucial step in his work—as a significant liberation. Nevertheless, as an abstract idea, the rectangle persists: it plays a crucial, though camouflaged, underlying role in all his new monoliths. But in Untitled, 1982, the newest piece, the unaltered rectangle suddenly reappears as an independent, perhaps even allegorical element, on an equal footing with the sculpture's two other independent forms. It is as though the two foreground forms are literally—physically—freed from the idea of a rectangle which itself, no longer dominant, can now be relegated to the background. Once separated, however, the form becomes an indispensable, equally weighted presence.

Is it possible to suggest a historical prototype for this three-part work as well? I think so. Certainly we've seen the composition before. Why is it so familiar? Where else does a tripartite arrangement consisting of a tall curved vertical, a segmented form, and a central, rectangular element in the background appear? It is one of the standard compositional types (more common in Italy than elsewhere) for the Annunciation, though with the front elements reversed, left to right. Was this historical association a conscious part of the artist's working process, or simply a fully absorbed element in the rich compost of things seen that forms the basis of all Kelly's work?

The pairing of the two front forms, their relationship to each other, and their individual associations within the gamut of Kelly's work are all of relevance here. The vertical form is placed significantly forward of the segmented element; they thus address each other in three as well as in two dimensions. The standing form is the one often described by Kelly as the "Venus" form; the quarter-circle, on the other hand, in its finlike directional aspect, can be seen as a variation on the Diagonal with Curve pieces associated with flight. Here, we see a classic instance of Kelly's capacity to radically change the expressive character—the "meaning"—of one of his forms by changing its context. Seen alone, the fin form seems to be impelled forward by its curve in the direction of its vertical side, which acts as a kind of cutting edge.

The same form, however, when combined with the other two elements of this work, reverses direction, addresses its "Venus" counterpart and reveals its relationship not only to wing forms, but to all Kelly's recent fan forms with their suggestions of slow opening and closing. So a form that once seemed to describe an aggressive cutting movement now, by virtue of its context, assumes another role entirely. Indeed, it now seems to bend in a downward curve toward the standing "Venus." Without pushing any of this too far, it may be observed that Kelly's composition restates the formal relationships of the time-honored Annunciation type with standing virgin and kneeling (or alighting) angel.

As for the rectangle in this three-part work, we have already seen that this form is often associated with openings in Kelly's work. In Annunciation imagery, a major rectangular element—a door or wall—often appears in the background, iconographically amplifying the role of the Virgin as the porta clausa, and compositionally providing a controlling element for an otherwise hard-to-handle arrangement of two unequal elements. Certainly the latter function is filled by the rectangle here. Did Kelly have any of this in mind? Consciously, probably not; but surely in his remarkable visual memory bank are at least two exceptionally beautiful examples of these compositions: Donatello's Cavalcanti Annunciation in Sta. Croce, Florence, and Piero's Annunciation in Arezzo. Both of these share compositional elements similar to the Kelly work, but they share as well an expressive affinity, an exceptionally lyrical and moving combination of strength, classical restraint and courtly elegance.

> Kelly's sculptures always seemed animated by some inner dynamism, but in recent works this sense is heightened. They now seem to be ancient, benign and sentient presences.

Today, the "new" Kelly, like the early Kelly, is operating somewhat apart from and in opposition to fashionable currents in the visual arts. Is he in some measure finding kinship and sustenance in his connections with history? Is he finding in sculpture the solutions to the major challenges of his art, challenges first posed in painting? And will sculpture, therefore, gradually become his primary means of expression? Is it so already? Or will the discoveries made in his recent sculpture—the explorations of texture and the expressive possibilities of implied and actual three-dimensional space, for instance—be carried over into his painting? All these questions, and more, are raised by Kelly's newest work. They can't of course be answered; only time will tell. Meanwhile, thanks are due to the artist inches high, 85 inches high, and 85 inches high. Private collection.

Untitled, 1982, 1-inch aluminum, three parts: 105 ½

and to the organizers of this major retrospective for the chance to ask them. □

1. The exhibition was cocurated by Patterson Sims of the Whitney Museum, New York, and Emily Rauh Pulitzer, former curator of the St. Louis Museum, where the exhibition made its second and final appearance (it closed May 29, '83). Their excellent, exhaustive and useful catlogue includes an extensive bibliography on Kelly, to which the reader is referred.

2. Kelly has apparently always made models of his exhibition installations. As he explains it, this level of participation is required by a kind of art in which scale, shape and color are everything.

3. This characteristic of Kelly and his work has been noted from his earliest years. E.C. Goossen, Ellsworth Kelly, New York, 1979, p. 20, records Kelly's friend, Ralph Coburn, as making a similar comment about his Breton sojourn with Kelly in 1949.

4. A number of good critical discussions of Kelly's earlier sculpture exist. See especially those by Elizabeth C. Baker, Rosalind Krauss and Barbara Rose.

5. Kelly himself is fond of looking back at his earliest work as a kind of incubator of his whole development. Recently, we looked at some of his student works with an eye to finding some of the shapes characteristic of Kelly's later work. This appears to be kind of act of discovery for the artist.

6. All direct quotations from the artist are drawn from recent conversations. I am deeply grateful to him for his time, patience and understanding of the difficulties of writing about his work.

7. See the excellent discussion by Sims and Pulitzer, p. 27; see also B. Rose, Ellsworth Kelly, peintures et sculptures, Paris, 1980, p. 11.

8. Sims and Pulitzer, p. 27. Kelly turned to these materials when it became apparent that painted steel weathered poorly.

9. E.C. Goossen, Ellsworth Kelly, New York, 1973.

10. Sims and Pulitzer, p. 111.

Author: Barbara Knowles Debs is an art historian and critic, and president of Manhattanville College.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
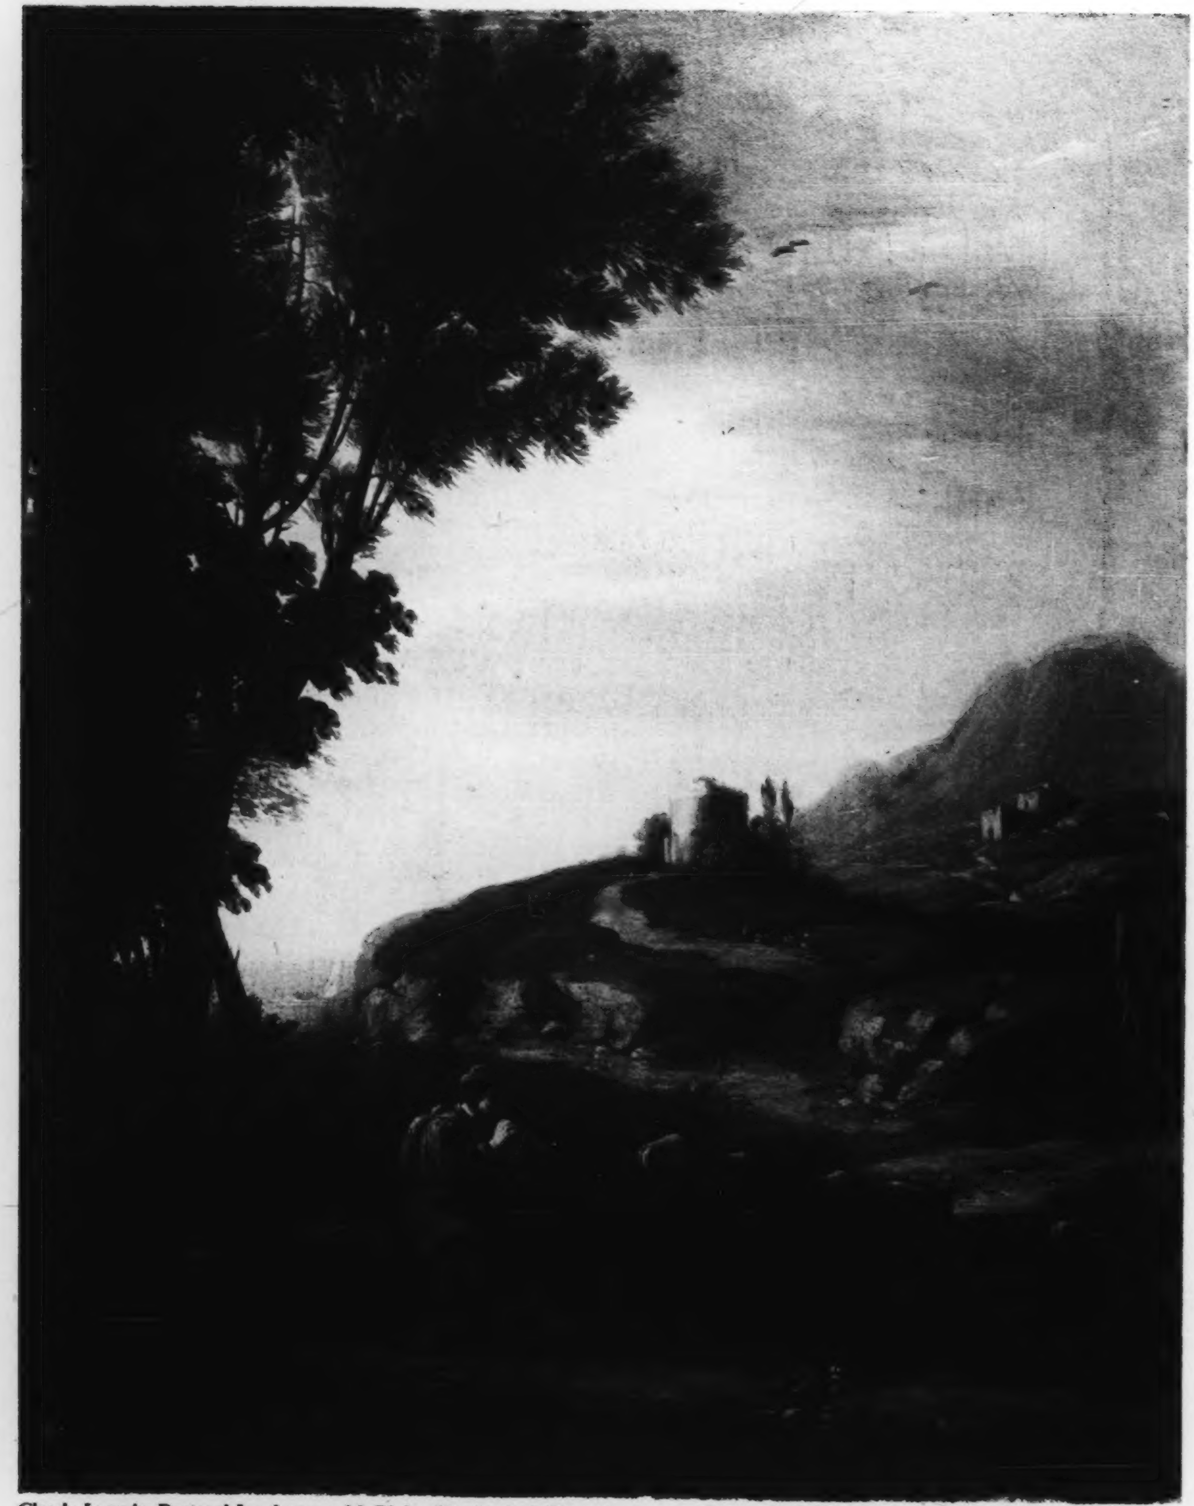
UMI



Claude Lorrain: Pastoral Landscape with Piping Shepherd, 1630s, oil on canvas, 19 5/16 by 15 3/8 inches, Musée des Beaux-Arts, Nancy.

Past Perfect: Claude Lorrain

Visions of an arcadia achieved, the landscapes of Claude Lorrain have generally been seen as irrelevant to the modernist mind. By subordinating landscape to layout, however, Claude's compositions became a model for the ages—even ours. A recent retrospective clarified the Claudian connection.

BY CARTER RATCLIFF

Our curators have been making heroic efforts in recent seasons, and much of their energy has focused on 17th-century painting. Late in 1980, a team of internationally prominent figures put together "Gods, Saints & Heroes: Dutch Painting in the Age of Rembrandt," an exhibition valuable for its demonstration that the art in question is not solely a matter of proto-sublime landscapes bathed in shivery North Atlantic light. Mannerists, Caravaggisti, Baroque and classicizing history painters—we've overlooked these Netherlanders in favor of Ruisdael, Hobbema and company, yet the latter gain much when we see them in the vicinity of the Dutch contribution to 17th-century high style. The landscapists look all the more innovative, and the others come into focus as proponents of pan-European culture. (Rembrandt, of course, appears in both camps, a major Northern landscape painter and, by way of his Caravaggism, a leading descendent of the great history painters of the Renaissance.) Then came Seymour Slive's and H. R. Hoetink's Ruisdael show [see A.i.A., April '82] to remind us how very important that painter has been to our sense of the particular and the contingent—our sense, in other words, of the individual immersed in the bleak plenitude of modernity.

Last spring Pierre Rosenberg assembled "France in the Golden Age: Seventeenth-Century French Painting in American Collections"—more Caravaggisti; Poussin, Sebastien Bourdon and that band of classicizers; the Le Nain brothers, national(ist?) heroes; Laurent de La Hyre and Eustache Le Sueur, with their Parisian classicism, both colder and more sensual than the earlier, heroic kind; and the landscapists, Italianate and more or less Flemish. This last group of painters is so dominated by Claude Lorrain that we tend to overlook others, Pierre Patel and Gaspar Dughet among them—brilliant artists, especially Dughet. His painterliness puts the body, the sense of touch, in imaginary contact with every region of space, foreground, middle distance and the far regions articulated by the echoing shapes of mountain and cloud. That 17th-century painters have been storming the ramparts of our museums may only reflect the trends of academia, yet one looks for a livelier reading. I think the shape of art history is in flux; at the very least, there is a half-conscious sense that the 1600s, not the Renaissance, is modern painting's port of embarkment.

No band of scholars are or could be responsible for this shift (if indeed it is taking place). There is nothing earthshaking about it. Piero stands firm on his culture-hero's pedestal. So does Michelangelo. Yet we are not as awed by their formal and stylistic breakthroughs as we once were, perhaps because the breakthroughs of our own modernist period no longer enchant us utterly. The eye looks for something more subtle and much larger than, say, Masaccio's magisterial command of linear perspective.

Ever since the 1840s, when Jules Champfleury launched his polemic in support of Vermeer, there have been Romantics and modernists who found the 17th century more pertinent than the 16th, more fully alive to the possibilities for art in a world with a secular sense of its history (and a class of acquisitive capitalists for patrons). Champfleury's insights were singular in his day. Now they are so general we hardly know we have them. We know much more clearly how strong we find the works of Rembrandt and Ruisdael and the off-handedly fastidious Velásquez. We respond to the grand melodrama of Caravaggio and his followers, the artificial heat of Bernini's spiritual ecstasy, the ironic bravura with which 17th-century history painters preserve and exploit the myths that Renaissance artists still treated as the highest form of history per se. In the Renaissance, the fundamentals of easel painting looked to their inventors like discoveries of natural fact, hence Leonardo's career as artist–naturalist–wizard. 17th-century painters, like those of our era, were artists first and last. If they knew literature, it was for a purpose they shared with Delacroix—to drum up subject matter. If they knew "nature," it was for the sake of the image, not for the furtherance of science. They turned art into transcendent artifice and thus invented painting as we know it today.

VOL 71 1 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

No painter of the 17th century is more artificial than Claude Lorrain, yet his work seems at first glance a vast body of evidence counter to my claim. Rembrandt seems to have something to do with realist psychology. There are links between Ruisdael and Constable and certain forms of abstract painting. Velázquez's Las Meninas, perhaps the canvas most studiously copied by 19th- and 20th-century painters, is also the one most often worried at by critics of the same period. It appears to offer endlessly varied paradigms of self-and-world to an era obsessed with the links (or lack of them) between seeing and what is seen. Yet Claude, one of the most celebrated artists of the 1600s, was thought to offer little more than unbelievable idylls. William Hazlitt said in 1817 that "Claude's landscapes, perfect as they are, want gusto. . . .He saw atmosphere, but he did not feel it." Few critics have quibbled on the matter of Claude's perfection, but as the 19th century wore on more and more felt Hazlitt's impatience with Claude's refinement. John Ruskin gave this feeling a moral tone: Though Claude brought about "a revolution in art" by bringing the sun into the painting and making the effects of its light his primary subject matter, Ruskin concludes that his "capacities were of the most limited kind. . . .He may by such tenderness as he possesses, and by the very fact of his banishing painfulness, exercise considerable influence over certain classes of minds; but this influence is almost exclusively hurtful to them" (1856).

So Claude's art is bad for you. Contemporary opinion trumps this moralism with the judgment that the Claudian vision is neither good nor bad, only irrelevant. But the most recent of the major 17th-century exhibitions—"Claude Lorrain: 1600-1682"—convinced me that the opposite is the case.

H. Diane Russell of the National Gallery in Washington assembled over 50 paintings, 75 drawings and another 50 etchings (with variant states) for a brilliant exhibition. Claude's way with an etcher's plate is suave, tactful, self-assured. He draws with brooding grandeur. He is not a dashing painter. No one would call him fussy, yet he charges his most fluid medium with no Baroque fervor. (Hazlitt was right.) Nonetheless, Claude's paintings are the best portion of his art, and that is saying a great deal, for his prints and drawings offer, in their serene modesty, a challenge to Rembrandt's. His graphic images all point to the unflappable authority of his canvases.

Everyone knows how a Claudian landscape works. His use of the coulisse, the form edging in from the side (as on the stage from which the device is borrowed); the diagonal rhythms that lead the eye from one coulisse to the next, and so into the depths of the image; the slow-moving luminosity that makes these transitions so smooth—the 18th-century picturesque made clichés of all this, and the following century did its best to bring this pictorial apparatus back to life. There would have been no Corot, no Barbizon, without Claude, nor any structure to Impressionism without Barbizon. (Someone ought to look into the Claudianism of Sisley and the early Monet.) In our time, every designer of a fashion magazine layout knows how to manipulate these forms—a knack which does not, of course, entail any knowledge of Claude. And that is my point. Claude's relevance is so great we can't see it.

Claude commands the elements of landscape much as a major philosopher lords it over his concepts. His detachment is seignorial.

He is only one artist from a time more obsessed with painting than our own, yet he epitomizes his century's vision of landscape—and he does this with such efficiency that he stands apart. Claude is so much of his times, and ours, that he counts almost as an eccentric. Most of us have more doubts about our allegiance to our culture. Serenely turning art into artifice, Claude was thoroughly detached from the world of ordinary experiences; his eye generalized appearance with an ingenuity so resourceful it counts as genius. Claude commands the elements of landscape much as a major philosopher lords it over his concepts. His detachment is seignorial.

His forms and their arrangements are thoroughly abstract, yet this doesn't mean that his art is empty of values. It is laden with them, and they all rest on his grandest value—abstraction itself, which we happen to prize very highly too. I don't know how to argue that such abstract matters as form and its placement were peculiarly modern for Claude and his major contemporaries, thus deeply familiar to us, yet I believe it is so. Rather than veer off into a tangle of cultural and temporal comparisons (Plato dealt with abstraction too), it would be best simply to say that Claude's landscapes give me the feeling that their order is ultimately reflexive—not in the service of God or history, nor the neo-Platonic ideals to which Bellori and other 17th-century theorists clung in order to keep from slipping off the edge of traditional culture into a thoroughly secular world. A Claudian landscape is an emblem of the mind sufficient to itself, of the consciousness dedicated to the project of defining its own sphere. Hence the importance of the sun in Claude's painting. His light is a metaphor for thought thinking through to a clarified image of its own motions.

But isn't the art of the 17th century sensual? Didn't the Baroque wed its intellectuality to the flesh on one hand, and a passionate religiosity on the other? Two points: Claude isn't Baroque; and much (I'd say most) of the Baroque sacrifices sensuality to an imperious rhetoric of the flesh and the upward aspiring soul. (Bernini's images are as contrived or—what amounts to the same thing in this setting—as abstract as Claude's.) Insofar as the Baroque does touch directly the reflexes of bodily and spiritual feeling, it survived into the early modern period only as the Rococo—a court style, the flirtatious companion of a class whose members tended to be thrown to the embankment as modernity gathered steam. The genuinely modern impulses of 18th-century painting produced the picturesque, whose mechanisms owe everything (save their Lockean, Newtonian rationales) to Claude.

Neoclassical painting intended to rescue the medium for some higher purpose than the connoisseur's detached pleasure. It produced the pleasure of the high-minded picturesque. Neoclassicism is 18th-century Claudianism moralisé. But David derives from Poussin, no? Well, no, not exactly. David's heroic, revolutionary version of Poussin (The Oath of the Horatii and so on) wouldn't have made much sense to his early modern, bourgeois audience if he hadn't adjusted it to the demands of eyes whose notions of high art rested on visual comforts first devised by Pastoral Caprice with the Arch of Constantine, 1651, oil on canvas, 38 ⅝ by 57 ⅛ inches. Collection the Duke of Westminster.

Claude. Not that David would have admitted this. By the end of the 1700s, even an artist of David's astounding acuity could have assimilated Claude without knowing it—without, in fact, having paid much attention to the earlier painter's work. By then, the space of Western painting, its orderliness and its version of the truth about the relationships between objects (including people), was simply Claudian.

In the work of all the painters who have followed Claude, I see very few devices that are not variants on his. And, as I've suggested, his influence carries over into the mass media. I wonder if I've ever seen, at the Museum of Modern Art or in Vogue, a photograph that pushes beyond Claude's premises. For photos of that sort, one must turn to the work of low- or no-style documentarians—forensic photographers, for instance, whose only interest is to secure evidence. They are Claudian by accident, if at all, like their counterparts in the laboratory and in the midst of battle. (After the battle, we get Matthew Brady's bloated, blood-stained picturesque, the invocation of a gruesome serenity.) The camera's documents were preceded by prints and drawings intent on recording the look of the naturalist's catch or the botanist's collection. These images are not Claudian, nor are topographical paintings, so long as they seek empirical accuracy about some stretch of terrain. (Most topographers, of course, are also devotees of the picturesque.)

An image-maker steps free of Claude's heritage in pursuit of the truth about a matter of fact. But the moment he tries to ascend to high art or fashionability, he draws on Claude. Certain Dutch paintings of the 17th century offer exceptions—elevated style in a region far from the orderliness of Claude's campagna—but 18th-century Dutch painters are as Claudian as Robert Wilson, a Welshman who seems to have been born with a Claude glass stuck in his eye. Dutch trees of the 1700s may look like Hobbema's but they arrange themselves according to the dictates of Claudian space.

If all this sounds excessive, let me say that I mean "Claude" as an emblem of his century, the one in which our way of seeing was invented. There's lots of talk these days about the media's power to reduce affect to near-zero, to put effect in its stead. We're told that photography, movies, television—all the new visual technologies—have given images a detachment, a degree of abstraction, peculiar to our times; and that we ought to be particularly interested in the artists who subject this development to a critique.

Such critiques are a touch limited. 18th-century theorists of the picturesque laid down the rules for manipulating images with a view to producing effects. Their rules still obtain and their exemplar was Claude (or "Claude," used generically to stand for all the forward-looking aspects of 17th-century painting taken together). Manipulative visual images are not the product of the latest mechanical and electronic technologies. Perhaps it is the other way around: the capacity for intellectual detachment signaled by "Claude" may well be a precondition for the develop-

VOL

7
1

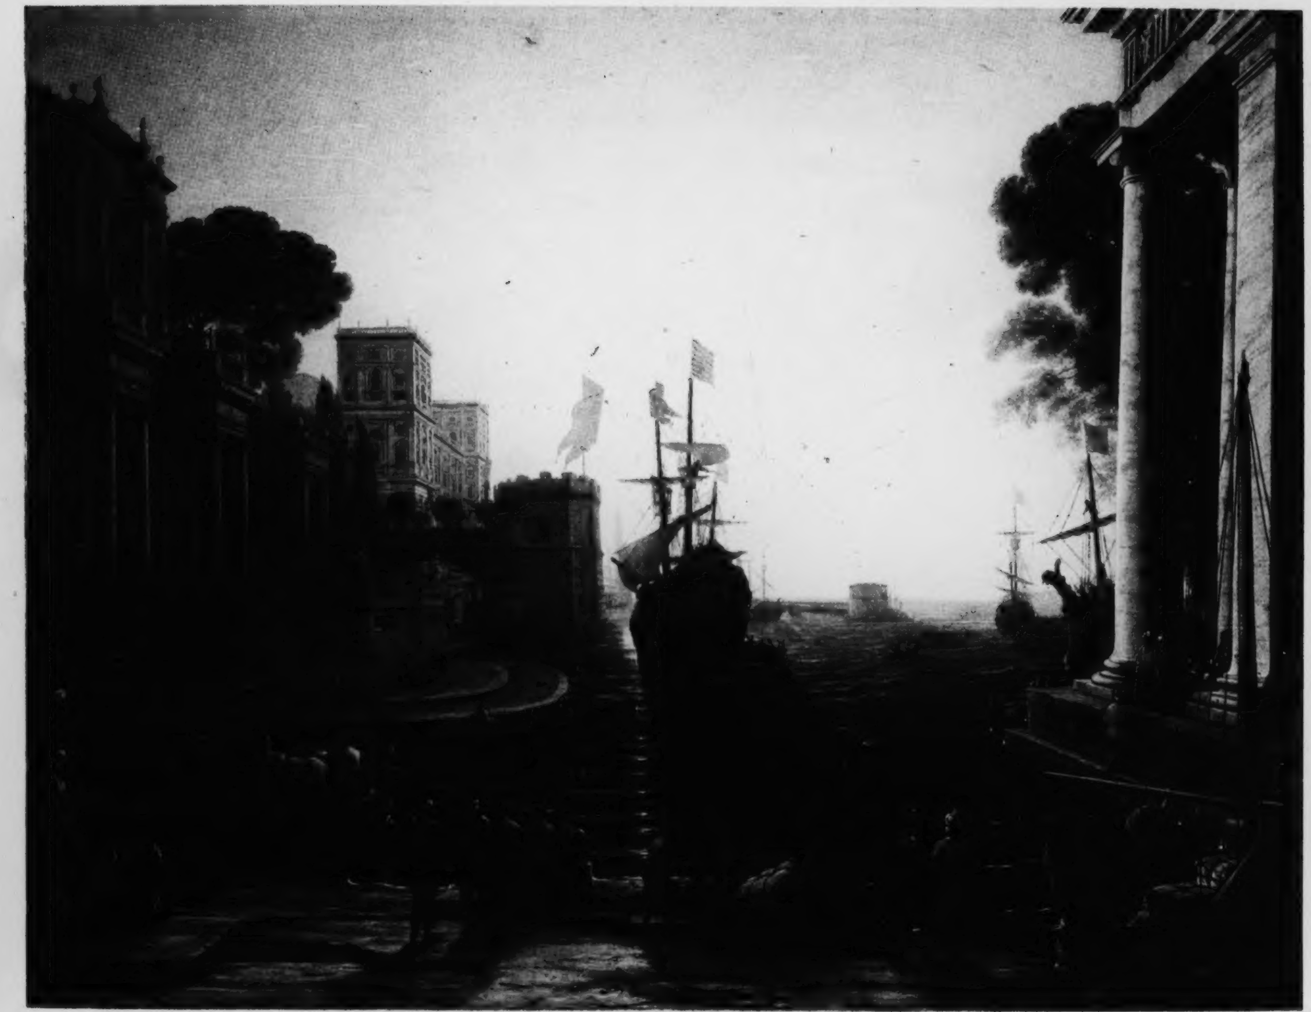
ISS

6

SUM

1983

UMI



Above*, Seaport with Ulysses Returning Chryseis to Her Father, *ca. 1644, oil on canvas, 46 ¾ by 59 inches. Musée du Louvre. Detail opposite.

ment of modern science and technology.

It's not quite accurate to say, as critics so often do these days, that our world of hyped and artificial images is all effect, no affect. And it's wrong as well to say that Claude's art is merely beautiful, hence empty of feeling. Even Hazlitt was willing to feel enchanted by Claude. And the "affectless" images of our media-soaked world at least give us the dubious pleasure of feeling that we are in control because we are alert to the nuances of manipulation: For the last three centuries or so, the dominant images of our culture have incited in the initiated the emotions associated with detached command, with knowledge. Hazlitt and the rest of the Romantics objected to this sort of pleasure. They found it thin, disembodied. They were not against thought, but they wanted the mind to exercise itself with particulars—mind and the occasion for thought were to be united by the shaping powers of the imagination. The locale for this unification was to be the body. But the pleasures of abstraction proved to be too strong. Major modernist painters (Manet, Picasso and company) play on the seeming impossibility of sustaining the Romantic program, which is to say they have produced dazzlingly ironic commentaries on the individual's dependence on pictorial convention. Minor modernists have simply done variants, more or less outrageous, on the same conventions—which are "Claudian."

In Claude, landscape is an emblem of the self-sufficient mind, of consciousness' project of defining its own sphere. Hence the importance of the sun—Claude's metaphor for thought's self-image.

Claude presents emblematic images of the modern mind at work, detaching itself from the world, turning inward, learning self-sufficiency. Insofar as his images are not emblems, they are pictures of the world as the secular, disengaged mind wants to see it—calm, predictable and yet capable of endlessly varied effect. I don't mean to sound disparaging. Claude implicates us all. We can't, if we are frank with ourselves, help seeing his landscapes as astonishingly beautiful. The reason we can't help it is that these paintings formulate the definition of pictorial beauty accepted by us all, consciously or not.

The reflexive mind imaged forth by

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

View of Carthage with Dido and Aeneas, 1675, oil on canvas, 47 ¼ by 58 ¾ inches. Hamburger Kunsthalle.

Claude's art is not exactly his, it is the culture's, and thus not very much like the mind of a Romantic like Hazlitt or Turner or Coleridge—which is intent on creating itself, not merely assuming an attitude of command in respect to the world and others. But command (no matter how illusory) is more tempting than the arduous (and perhaps more profoundly illusory) project of self-creation, so modernity has more use for Claudian abstraction than Romantic particularity.

> By the end of the 1700s, even an artist of David's acuity could have assimilated Claude without knowing it. By then, the space of Western painting was simply Claudian.

Claude subjected Renaissance perspective to the pressures of ellipsis. He did this with such calm and authority that his effects came to seem "natural." The 16th-century devices that Claude simplified strike the modern eye as pointlessly diagrammatic. When a 20th-century painter wheels out the complete machinery of Renaissance perspective, the results are likely to look gimmicky, as in Dali's "dream photographs" of the 1930s (or, these days, in the Wagnerian mudscapes of Anselm Kiefer). It comes down to this: Claude taught us composition. He showed us how to see art, the world and our feelings as if they were effortlessly composed. We don't thank him for this the way the 18th and 19th centuries used to do because it's glamorous to imagine that in our media-hyped world nothing so dull as standard pictorial composition is pertinent. But it is. What hot new image, in the art world or the media, refuses to be compositionally "correct"? The 20th century has found only two ways beyond "Claude." One is the unitary image, the other is the allover field. Both are the invention of the New York School (Reinhardt's symmetries in black, Pollock's webs of flung paint). "Claude" finds uses even for anticomposition, but that is another story. ☐

"Claude Lorrain 1600-1682" was seen at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. [Oct. 17-Jan. 2] and the Grand Palais, Paris [Feb. 16-May 16]. The show was organized by H. Diane Russell, who also wrote the catalogue: softbound $15, hardbound (Braziller) $60.

Author: Carter Ratcliff's most recent book is John Singer Sargent (Abbeville).

Trees, Figures, and Sheep, 1660-1665, chalk, pen with wash, 15 ¾ by 9 ¾ inches. Teylers Museum, Haarlem.

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

George Segal: The Holocaust, 1982, plaster, wood and wire, 10 by 20 by 20 feet. Photo Allan Finkelman.

Segal's Holocaust Memorial

Explaining his motives in accepting a commission to create a sculpture commemorating the victims of the Nazi death camps, Segal discusses the technical and ideational problems posed by his horrific subject matter.

AN INTERVIEW WITH GEORGE SEGAL BY MATTHEW BAIGELL

George Segal agreed to let me talk to him about his multifigured The Holocaust, a memorial to the victims of the Holocaust, on March 18, 1983. His initial remarks were so heartfelt that further discussion seemed unnecessary. With his approval, I then edited the tape minimally.

The figures, in plaster, were shown at New York's Jewish Museum in April. They are to be cast in whitened bronze and permanently installed in Lincoln Park, San Francisco. The work was commissioned by Mayor Dianne Feinstein's Committee for a Memorial to the Six Million Victims of the Holocaust. —M.B.

At first, I did not want to make this piece. I was asked months ago, and for half a year I turned it down. I turned down the idea of dwelling with all that death. After all, it happened 40 years ago.

When I was younger, helping my father work on his chicken farm, I remember him sending me over to the farm of a couple that had survived Auschwitz, and my job was to teach them how to use machinery, how to feed the chickens properly and when to collect the eggs. They were fragile people with bad hearts who told me in mild, benign voices of all the awful things that happened—of police dogs trained to leap, to tear a baby out of its mother's arms, to murder the child savagely. I heard these stories firsthand in 1947, but we had heard about these stories during the war. My father came from Russian Poland; he was a Zionist and something of a Socialist. He and his friends made up about 50 percent of the Jewish chicken-farmer community. The other 50 percent were German Jews who had had the brains, insight and nerve to leave Germany early enough, after they had been beaten up in the streets where they had grown up, for simply being Jews. The statistics were horrifying. Every member of my mother's and father's families who had stayed behind in Europe was gone as far as we knew. The Yiddish papers made this news more appallingly clear than the English-language American papers did during the war. In 1945, when the Allied armies swept through Germany and there was the torrent of photographs of the survivors of the German death camps, it was an awful drenching, and the only response for Jews was to work incessantly for the establishment of the state of Israel.

Now, this is very strong subject mat-

Above and below, details of The Holocaust. Photos Allan Finkelman.

ter. I have spent years in the civilian art world, U. S. A., and, I must add, happily—happily—civilian. The history of the New York art world has to do with the applause and celebration of formal invention—the sheer pleasure and sensual delight taken in the quality of a mark, the thickness of a stroke of paint or the drag of a brush through a wash. The pleasures of esthetics and art are somewhat akin to the pleasures of gourmet eating or to the visual delights of architecture, to gorgeous natural landscape and incredibly attractive manmade landscape, and once the disasters of war are put behind us, there is a huge temptation to lose yourself in the joys of the art world. I found myself rejecting the whole idea of dwelling with death, thinking I'd long since left that behind. The people in San Francisco kept call-

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

ing me and saying, "At least stop and see the site." I said, "Yes, I would." Helen [Segal] and I were coming back from Tokyo where I had been installing a show—again, the pleasures of the art world—and it was simple to stop off in San Francisco on the way home.

While in Tokyo, we saw on television the reports of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon. We couldn't make out any details. The Japanese knew very little about the invasion and were essentially unconcerned, it being on the other side of the world, and I couldn't blame them. We landed in San Francisco and checked into a hotel. When I turned on the T.V. set, I was horrified for the first time in my life to hear anti-Semitic words tumbling out of the tube. It was a strange, critical reporting of Israeli behavior in Lebanon. I've been to Israel four or five times. I know many Israelis on intimate terms, and I was disturbed at the tone of the reporting because it didn't jibe with what I had heard to be the real behavior of the P.L.O., which was far from innocent—which was brutal and domineering; and the P.L.O. was the hidden government of Lebanon.

In that moment, I decided I had to do the Holocaust piece. It was a multilevel decision. It seemed precisely the wrong moment for me to abandon my support of the state of Israel and my fellow Jews, despite my objections to Begin and Sharon. I didn't like the chauvinism. I didn't like the militarism; yet I'd been there and visited there and was perfectly aware of the Arabs' implacable hatred and resentment of the Israelis. The overwhelming feeling was one of anguish over the inevitability of this increasingly hard standoff. After five wars, the sensation of metallic taste in your mouth when you visit the area increases. For me it is always a relief to leave the area and stop off in civilian Rome for the joys and pleasures of shellfish at ten p.m. in the Trastevere.

I felt I had to make the sculpture. I was introduced to the representatives of a large committee of 40 people, who represented an older, established Jewish-American community whose ancestors, ironically, had come generations ago from Germany, arriving in San Francisco during Sutter's gold rush. They had prospered enormously, become well educated and tended toward complete American identification; but they had also finally acknowledged the presence of a small, vigorous Jewish community made up literally of survivors of the camps. These survivors, ranging from 50 to 70, had themselves been silent about their experiences for years, wanting to bury them; but of late, convinced that they were the last surviving witnesses of this awful occurrence, they were demanding some recognition of it—of the Holocaust.

Detail of The Holocaust. All photos courtesy Sidney Janis Gallery.

After I got home, I went to two libraries, but could find none of the pictures I remembered so vividly from 1945. The third library I went to, the Rutgers Library, had a six-foot shelf of books, but again, no pictures. My greatest memory of the Holocaust was my horror at the photographs in Life magazine that appeared at the time of the uncovering of the camps. I had to go to a Zionist library in New York, one that's locked up tight with security, to find a cache of these photographs. I must have examined thousands of them. I kept being struck by one single horrifying fact. The German determination to kill the Jews was a determination made by a modern, sophisticated industrial state that had all kinds of sophisticated bureaucracy and power to implement that kind of decision. It meant the careful, precise, Germanic construction of places and buildings, and the teams of men for the systematic eradication of a selected race. The Jews were held arbitrarily to be responsible for Germany's problems. If you were born Jewish, you could be tabbed for murderous wipeout by the insane logic of a modern political leader—any modern political leader. The dissident mentality that we grew up with, "Hell, no, I won't go," served the Jews no protection.

The one visual hook I uncovered was the arrogant contempt displayed by the Germans in their chaotic heaping of corpses. In any culture, if a human being dies, there's an elaborate, orderly ritual that accompanies the burial. The body is laid out in a straight line. Hands are crossed. There's a burial case and a prescribed, almost immovable succession of events that involve the expression of grief of the family, the expression of love, the expression of the religious beliefs in whatever civilization. It's a prescribed order, and if a modern state turns that order topsy-turvy and introduces this kind of chaos, it is an unthinkable obscenity. I determined that I would have to make a heap of bodies that was expressive of this arrogance and disorder.

One member of the committee who was himself a survivor said, "Forget all those intellectual ideas you have, George. A memorial like this has to make you cry." I decided I had to go for my own emotional jugular. This was the central core of the piece. It meant that I had two options. I could deal with skeletal remains or I could ask live friends to pose, which meant that I couldn't get—with modern American nutrition—the super-thin survivors (or nonsurvivors) true to the photographs. I decided, since I had reread the literature, that the trains delivered enormous crowds of Jews who were tricked into the disinfecting showers and were then gassed. There could be bodies, I reasoned, that were of normal size as well as thin. This made it easier. It meant I didn't have to go to New York hospitals and make casts of corpses or Bowery victims. I could simply ask friends of mine to pose and tell them what it was for. That was bad enough, but not quite as bad as it would have been to make castings of corpses. Each person who posed went into a long free association with his or her ideas of death, so I got that from 11 different people. I must have transmitted my own, as well. Not very pleasant, not very exalting. . . .☐

Authors: George Segal exhibits regularly in New York and elsewhere. Matthew Baigell teaches art history at Rutgers University.

John Walker's Multivalent Monolith

John Walker uses a single form — a notched monolith — to stand for all the subjects of the painter. It can be male or female, saint or saviour, a living presence or a tombstone or cenotaph commemorating death.

BY PAUL BRACH

John Walker has been exhibiting regularly in New York since 1971, first at Reese Palley, then at Betty Cuningham. He was born and educated in England, lived in the United States through the '70s and now lives in Australia. Until now, I'd been impressed, but seldom moved, by his paintings. They had seemed tough-minded, well made, muscular, but somehow not fully engaged with their secret subject matter. The new work is earnest, ambitious and far more resolved. It is earnest because it is lacking in any of the coy ironies that abound in today's new figurative art. It is ambitious in that it seems based on an ongoing dialogue with such major artists of the past as Velázquez and Goya as well as Braque, and Motherwell's "Je t'aime" series.

John Walker: In Truth II, 1981–82, oil on canvas, 96 ½ by 84 inches. M. Knoedler & Co.

Walker's principal motif is the image of a notched monolith. It appears singly or in groups in all of these new paintings. It is a symbol of the painter's subject, that thing out there to be confronted and turned into art. For Walker it is a composite of all of the subjects of the painter. It is male or female, the image of saint or saviour in Christian art. It is the upright presence of a living human or the tombstone or cenotaph commemorating death. He uses it over and over, changing its setting and altering its possibilities for revealing meaning and its emotional climate. Since Walker is neither a sculptor nor a set designer, the immanence of these monoliths and the implications of place

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Oceania IV, 1982, oil on canvas, triptych, each panel 84 by 66 inches. Private collection. Photo Robert Mates. John Walker's most recent exhibition at in which they exist can only be conveyed by paint.

Clement Greenberg once referred to the rich paint surfaces of Abstract Expressionism as "homeless representation." This was pejorative since he felt that thin paint and flat surfaces were the essence of modernism. Fat paint carried a hint of space and of subject contradicting the flatness of modernism. It is precisely the "homeless representation" or almost at-home representation of Walker's painterly process that gives his work its presence.

In Truth II, 1981–82, is one of the earlier works in the exhibition. The quotation from St. Matthew: "In truth, in very truth, I tell you I am the door" is written across the top of the painting. Below, a monolith daubed with paint (wounds, blood?) is pierced by shafts. If all the martyrdoms of the saints are echoes of the primal martyrdom of Christ, then the piercing shafts are St. Sebastian's arrows and they point to Christ's wounds. Walker dares to rephrase the heaviest theme in Western art. In this work the colors are somber, almost monochromatic, suggesting the silvery grays of Velázquez and the dark, hallucinatory visions of the late Goya.

The skull in "Oceania IV"—a memento mori, perhaps, from Golgotha—faces an Oceanic mask, becoming, through this interaction, a memento Maori.

The same quote from St. Matthew is written across the central canvas of the triptych Oceania IV. The recurrent monolith image is covered with bright, almost pictographic patches of paint. By bringing together the portentous Christian phrases with the barbaric immediacy of the central image, Walker sets up a cultural collision that sends shock waves of meaning out to the two flanking canvases. In the painting on the left, the stele is confronted by an impaled head or mask. Background paint passages suggesting the airy geometry of analytical Cubism surround the stark confrontation of the Christian and the pagan with hints of 20th-century classicism. In the canvas on the right a skull is imbedded at the indentation of the notched monolith (at the waist if it is a "personage"). If the skull is Christian, it is a memento mori from Golgotha. Yet it faces an Oceanic mask suspended in the upper right of the canvas, becoming, through this interaction, a memento Maori. Surely Walker's stay in Australia has opened him up to the expressive power of Aboriginal and Oceanic Art.

Knoedler closed April 21.

Perhaps I oversimplify when I speak of confrontation. It is the paint that unifies, only the images contradict. The paint, with its energetic surface, resolves all contradictions of culture, making the image, be it idol or icon, a unitary vision evoking life and death, sacrifice and redemption. The imagery is always imbedded in the tactile field of the paint, never just depicted or alluded to. Sometimes the paint is excessive and the imagery cannot absorb its physicality. Walker's risk is twofold. If the paint is not totally at the service of his imagery, the paintings feel like overwrought Abstract Expressionist canvases with added mythic titillations. If the imagery dominates, then the painterly execution strains to catch up with the power of the symbols. I prefer this risk. At a time (this season in particular) when inflated Neo-Expressionism from Germany and Italy and our homegrown variety dominate the art-publicizing system, it is exhilarating to experience work which takes on the greatest challenge an artist can face. This is the challenge of confronting the dark mythic forces of life and death and, through the ultimate illusion that is a work of art, of cheating death by seeming to stop time. ☐

Author: Paul Brach is a New York artist and critic.

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

John Marin: Brooklyn Bridge, ca. 1912, watercolor on paper, 18 ½ by 15 ½ inches. Metropolitan Museum of Art.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE GREAT NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN BRIDGE, AND GRAND DISPLAY OF FIRE WORKS ON OPENING NIGHT.

Bird's-eye View of the Great New York and Brooklyn Bridge and Grand Display of Fireworks on Opening Night, 1883, anonymous photograph published by A. Major. New York Historical Society.

The Brooklyn Bridge at 100

The centenary of the Brooklyn Bridge, a structure long consigned to a marginal position in the history of modern design, has spurred a revaluation of its function as an urban set-piece and monumental civic symbol.

BY MARTIN FILLER

Even from the vantage point of the postmodern moment, it is still quite easy to understand the enthusiasm with which architects and engineers of the 19th century greeted the technological developments of the Industrial Revolution. More had changed in 50 years than had occurred in the 50 centuries before that. And while few doubted that a new age in building had dawned, it still remained to be proven that man's architectural imagination was equal to the new materials and methods at his command. Two incomparable structures provided the necessary evidence.

The first great popular symbol of the triumph of technology was the Crystal Palace of 1851 in London, the prefabricated iron-and-glass exhibition hall which confirmed that human inventiveness was indeed able to keep pace with the machine. It was of such high significance not so much for its originality of materials; after all, its designer, Sir Joseph Paxton, had built several spectactular iron-and-glass greenhouses before it. Nor was it most important for the new construction techniques devised for its rapid erection and easy dismantling for subsequent reconstruction elsewhere. Rather, it marked a turning point in the public's perception of the new capabilities of mechanization, and it opened the way to fresh thinking that would lead within three decades to the birth of steel-frame construction and, in America, the skyscraper.

The second pivotal project was the Brooklyn Bridge of 1869–83 by John Augustus Roebling and his son, Washington Augustus Roebling. Like the Crystal Palace, it was not so much a singular invention as a synthesis of its designers' earlier, piecemeal advances combined with new elements devised specifically for the stupendous scale of the new work. Likewise, its most profound effect was on shaping new attitudes, propagandizing the possibilities of the Machine Age, and underscoring the emergent belief that the new technology would lead to a perfectability of the human spirit—which millennia of religion, philosophy and art had somehow failed to achieve. As symbols of the materialist optimism of the Victorian Age, the Crystal Palace and the Brooklyn Bridge are without peers.

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

Bridge Promenade, ca. 1891, anonymous photograph. Museum of the City of New York.

The centennial celebrations in honor of the Brooklyn Bridge this year understandably emphasize its success as urban set-piece and civic symbol, a work that has inspired the public in general and artists in particular for the past 100 years. (A selection of some of the most famous depictions of the Brooklyn Bridge, by such artists as Joseph Stella, John Marin and Walker Evans, as well as works by such contemporary figures as Red Grooms, Kenneth Snelson and David Hockney are the basis of a commemorative exhibition, The Great East River Bridge, 1883–1983, at the Brooklyn Museum through June 19.) Yet few of the critical discussions of this admirable structure have focused on the two central reasons behind its continuing fascination for professionals and laymen alike: it is both a revealing (if inadvertent) symbol of the age that created it, and it relates to its users in a way that remains unique among bridges (to say nothing of other structures) of its scale.

The great bridge was never a remote scientific prodigy, but a vital fact of everyday life, an adjunct of livelihood, a trysting place, a source of recreation—proof of the continuing validity of the social contract.

To a certain extent, a precise definition of the special qualities of the Brooklyn Bridge has been difficult to formulate, for as Lewis Mumford observed:

> Like every positive creative work, the Brooklyn Bridge eludes analysis, in that its effect is disproportionate to the visible means, and it triumphs over one's objections even when it falls short of its highest possibilities.[1]

And although that final questioning note seems at odds with the virtually unanimous critical acclaim the Brooklyn Bridge has received—as much upon its centennial as at its completion—Mumford echoes the perceptive evaluation of his great predecessor Montgomery Schuyler, remarkable for his quick grasp of the design's fundamental quality. Published two days after the festive day the bridge was opened to the public, Schuyler's review made an accurate assessment:

> It so happens that the work which is likely to be our most durable monument, and to convey some knowledge of us to the most remote posterity, is a work of bare utility; not a shrine, not a fortress, not a palace, but a bridge. This is in itself a characteristic of our time.[2]

But perhaps even more characteristic of the time was the deep-seated unease that many people had about the truth of Schuyler's observation. It is not farfetched to think that an underlying awareness that the new age lacked the spiritual content of earlier epochs translated itself quite graphically into the element of the bridge's design which Schuyler found most unsatisfactory: the two monumental granite piers. Traditional in material, historicizing in detail and massive in form, they were the antithesis of the bridge's weblike steel cable system, which was modern in conception, innovative in application and ethereal in line. Schuyler was careful to point out that:

> Its defects in design are not misdeeds, but shortcomings. They are the defects of being rudimentary, of not being developed. The anatomy of the towers and of the anchorages is not brought out in their modelling. Their fingers, so to speak, are all thumbs. Their impressiveness is inherent in their mass, and it is what it could not help being.[3]

But what it could have avoided, in Schuyler's and Mumford's opinions, was structural "dishonesty," a concern that was to become a virtual obsession among orthodox modernist historians such as Sigfried Giedion and Sir Nikolaus Pevsner, who shared Schuyler's and Mumford's progressive interest in functionalism but who did not possess their animating social impulse.

Schuyler faulted in particular the way in which the four great catenary cables of the Brooklyn Bridge meet the tops of the two great stone towers:

> The flatness of the top alone conceals instead of expressing the structure. . . . The cable simply disappears on one side and reappears on the other, as if it were two separate cables, one on each side, instead of one continuous chain. . . . The architecture of this crowning member of the tower has nothing whatever to do with the purpose for which the structure exists. . . . This is architectural barbarism.[4]

Today that detail seems to be not so much barbarism as recidivism, a cautious step backward from the exciting

George Brainard: New York and Brooklyn Bridge, ca. 1882, photograph. Brooklyn Public Library.

Vincent Svoboda: Watching the Progress of the Work through a Spyglass, drawing published 1948 in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

Brooklyn Eagle - 4 cols -
Watching the progress of the work through a spyglass -

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

new direction toward which the brilliantly inventive cable system led.

Given Schuyler's early identification of the bridge's anomalous character—at once revolutionary and reactionary—it was not surprising that the leading polemicists of orthodox modernism assigned a relatively insignificant place to the Brooklyn Bridge in their histories. For example, it received only passing mentions in two of the most influential texts on modern architecture, Pevsner's Pioneers of the Modern Movement (1936) and Giedion's Space, Time and Architecture (1941). What makes their downward assessment all the more noteworthy is the fact that both books (especially Giedion's) devote considerable attention to the design of bridges, although the bridges discussed in those works were primarily those which looked "modern" in the ahistorical, reductivist sense that had come to dominate the definition of the new style. The Brooklyn Bridge, with its Gothic arches, cornices and moldings, by the 1930s seemed to some like a technically advanced but esthetically retardataire office machine housed in traditional cabinetry. Thus, it was the George Washington Bridge of 1931, with its fully exposed structure, to which Le Corbusier wrote his famous paean in 1938, not the Brooklyn Bridge.

Lewis Mumford saw the contradictory aspects of the Brooklyn Bridge in terms of transition, believing that:

> In this structure, the architecture of the past, massive and protective, meets the architecture of the future, light, aerial, open to sunlight, an architecture of voids rather than solids.[5]

But while this interpretation is more accommodating than the purist view of Giedion and Pevsner, Mumford's evaluation, like theirs, nonetheless implies the evolution of forms toward a higher truth, rather than the existence of those forms within a perfectly complete truth of their own. For it is precisely the undeniable stylistic schism between the towers and cables of the Brooklyn Bridge that gives the composition its dynamic tension, so characteristic of the times that produced it. The architectural historian Robert Furneaux Jordan was writing of the Crystal Palace, but could have been commenting on the Brooklyn Bridge as well, when he observed that:

> [It] resolved, in a most curious manner, the great Victorian schizophrenia—that dichotomy that split so disastrously what might have been one of the great cultures of history, the dichotomy between romanticism and materialism.
>
> The fascination and failure of the Victorian era is that its quintessence was in itself a conflict. Tennyson's Idylls of the King was written for stockbrokers' daughters . . . Rossetti's painting sold in Liverpool and Belfast. The Conway Bridge had on it everything from the Baron's War except a portcullis. . . .
>
> It can never have seemed very likely that those seething, turbulent years of wealth and poverty, cruelty and philanthropy, piety and skepticism, fanaticism and hypocrisy, elegance and squalor, could leave behind them any symbol of their monstrous two-headed nature. In any event they did, and that symbol was the Great Exhibition of 1851.[6]

The stylistic schism between the towers and the cables of the Brooklyn Bridge gives the composition its dynamic tension, so characteristic of the times that produced it.

But that fact has become clear only with the passage of time, and cannot account for the great affection the Brooklyn Bridge has inspired among the general public, which has little interest in how well a work of art evokes the spirit of the period that produced it. Of much greater concern to the average citizen is how well a work of architecture relates to one's own life; and this the Brooklyn Bridge has done not just well, but perhaps better than any other major structure of the past 100 years in America.

THE NEW YORK
FAMILY STORY PAPER
GOLDEN HOURS

Brooklyn Bridge and Manhattan Bridge, anonymous

The Brooklyn Bridge is first and foremost a potent civic symbol. At the time of its construction, the bridge's two towers, at 276 feet, 6 inches above the East River, were the second tallest structures in New York after Richard Upjohn's Trinity Church of 1839–46, with its 284-foot spire. Like Trinity Church, the towers of the Brooklyn Bridge are in the Gothic Revival style, albeit a greatly simplified version. Its most pronounced Gothic motifs are the pairs of soaring pointed arches on each of the span's two towers. Although highly schematic (especially when compared to the overtly historicizing Conway Bridge cited by Furneaux Jordan), the arches of the Brooklyn Bridge possessed clear spiritual implications. The average New Yorker might never have heard the word "Gothic," but was well aware of the ecclesiastical semiology of the pointed arch, a symbol sufficient to signify even the humblest store-front church as sanctified.

Not that a religious reference had been the intention of the Roeblings; indeed, the early set of plans that John Augustus Roebling drew up for an East River bridge in 1857 presented alternative versions of towers in three distinct historical styles: Egyptian, Roman and and undated photograph. Museum of the City of New York.

Gothic. Roebling seems to have personally preferred the Egyptian (the mode then in favor for major public works projects in New York City, including the Croton Reservoir and Waterworks and the municipal prison, the Tombs) and vestiges of the characteristic mastaba silhouette can be discerned in the final tower designs, which taper slightly and then flare out at the top like ancient Egyptian prototypes.

But what has continued to affect the users of the bridge most directly is the way in which the design mediates so skillfully between monumental and human scale. The most striking aspect of the Brooklyn Bridge is the placement of the pedestrian at the very center of the structural composition, rivaling the most adept Classical designs in which a similar conciliation of scale occurs without the diminution of the greater elements or the inflation of the smaller. Not only is the Brooklyn Bridge unique in having a central walkway—other great bridges with pedestrian paths invariably place them at the outer edges of the span, with the inner roadways the exclusive domain of vehicular traffic—but the quadripartite cable system of this bridge gives additional linear emphasis to the position of the human figure as the ultimate focus of the structural system. One cannot stand midway between the two towers without almost palpably feeling the great cables and guy wires converge like magnets toward a lodestone. This is the world's one great anthropocentric bridge, and it is no wonder that artists by the score have responded to its ultimately human cynosure.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Andreas Feininger: New York: East River, Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridges, 1914, silverprint. Courtesy Daniel Wolf, Inc.

Erich Hartmann: Sunday under the Bridge, Abandoned Car, August 1955, silver gelatin print. Collection Grace M. Mayer.

Andreas Feininger: New York: Underside of the Brooklyn Bridge, 1940, silverprint, 10 by 8 inches. Courtesy Daniel Wolf, Inc.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
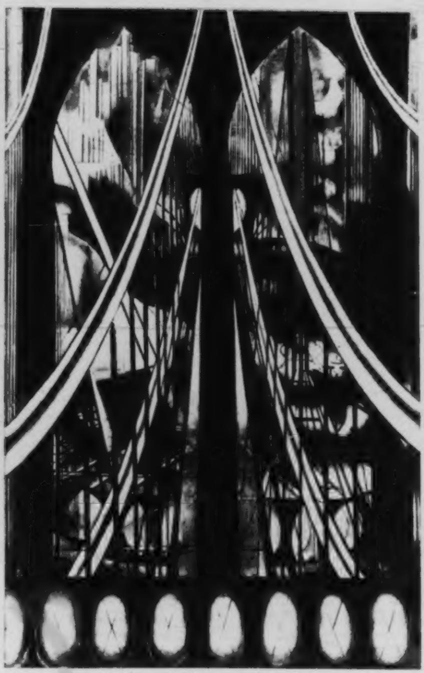
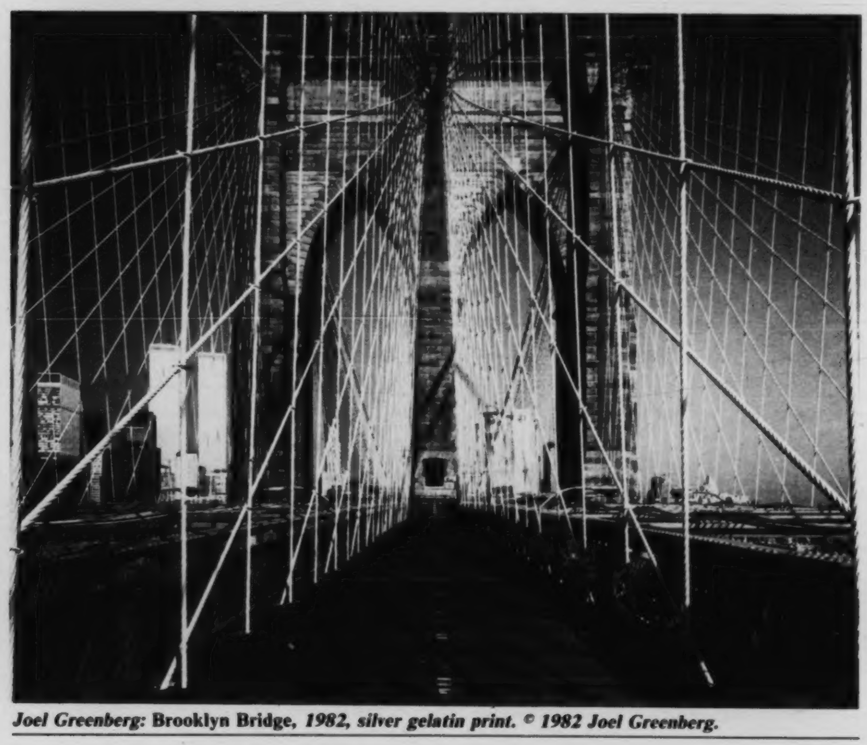
UMI

Red Grooms:* Brooklyn Bridge (from Ruckus Manhattan*), 1976, polychromed steel, 16 by 12 by 31 feet. Courtesy Marlborough Gallery.



Joseph Stella:* The Bridge, *1920-22, oil and tempera on canvas, 88 ½ by 54 inches.



Joel Greenberg:* Brooklyn Bridge, *1982, silver gelatin print. © 1982 Joel Greenberg.

As confirmed by the Brooklyn Museum show, depictions of the Brooklyn Bridge have tended to be made from one of two primary vantage points: the first, the lateral "picture postcard" view, concentrating on the gracefully bowing arc of the bridge's unprecedented 1595-foot, 6-inch central span; and the second (and more iconic), from the midsection of the pedestrian walkway, generally looking toward Manhattan, the tall buildings of which from the beginning presented a more dramatic backdrop than those on the Brooklyn side. Joseph Stella, John Marin and Georgia O'Keeffe all used the famous symmetrical central perspective, with varying degrees of success: Stella achieved a powerfully hieratic position, Marin a nervously fragmented one, O'Keeffe an uncharacteristically lifeless impression.

Lewis Mumford was well aware of the physical basis of the younger Roebling's design scheme when he wrote:

> He learned the law that struck its curves, the law that fixed the strength and relation of its parts, and he applied the law . . . in a work in which the lines of forces constitute the structure.[7]

That might serve as a basic definition for all the most simplified structures, or for the abstract sculptural forms of such later artists as Naum Gabo, which Mumford described (in terms that are also true of the Brooklyn Bridge) as resolving > the old breach between the subjective and the objective, the inner and the outer, the vital and the mechanical . . . in a unified image which restores and re-creates the organic realities that were eliminated in the classic conceptions of mechanics and physics. Here, one of the highest functions of the mind, the capacity for abstraction, realizes in the act of carrying further its own discipline, the perfect symbol of etherealization, released from mechanistic constrictions.[8]

Of course, a utilitarian object such as the Brooklyn Bridge could never fully escape the constraints of function, but Chromolithograph fan, 1883, 9-inch diameter; made for the Cowperthwait Co. New York Historical Society.

the principle expressed by Mumford is exactly what makes the Roeblings' spatial sculpture no less modern or remarkable than Gabo's.

But it is not as a web, but as a gate, that the Brooklyn Bridge has made its most lasting impact on those who have used it over the past century. The city of New York was already notorious during the 17th century for its haphazard growth, and compared to such carefully planned American cities as William Penn's Philadelphia, James Oglethorpe's Savannah, and Pierre L'Enfant's Washington, it was little more than an accretion of Colonial cowpaths surmounted by the most stultifying of speculative grids.

> One cannot stand between the bridge's two towers without feeling the great cables and guy wires converge as though towards a lodestone.

The Brooklyn Bridge did a great deal to undo that image, imparting a sense of civic grandeur in keeping with the sweeping conceptions of 19th-century city planning in the imperial mode. It provided an impressively monumental entrance to the nation's greatest metropolis, and directed traffic toward New York's governmental center: the minuscule but magnificent early-19th-century City Hall, the mansarded Victorian Post Office building and the Italianate Court House later dubbed with the name of the legendary, corrupt politician William Marcy ("Boss") Tweed who was sent to jail because of his financial chicanery in the early phases of the bridge project.

Despite the vicissitudes that beset this incredible 14-year undertaking, it was able to succeed largely because it was carried out before the very eyes of the inhabitants of two huge cities (Brook-

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

O. Louis Guglielmi: Mental Geography, 1938, oil on canvas, 35 ¾ by 24 inches. Collection Barney A. Ebsworth.

lyn, not yet part of New York, was the fourth largest in America), just as the astonishing rise of the Crystal Palace had given daily refutation to skeptics and naysayers some 30 years before in London. The 19th century's major innovative engineering projects before those two landmark structures were for the most part built far from major centers of population. Thomas Telford's Menai Bridge of 1819–24 in Wales and J.A. Roebling's own Niagara Railway Suspension Bridge (completed in 1855) might have been impressive precursors, but they had not been crossed by anywhere near the more than 1,350,000 persons who had gone over the Brooklyn Bridge in trains alone during its first year. Thus the great bridge was never a remote prodigy of incomprehensible science, but a vital fact of everyday life, an adjunct of livelihood, a trysting place, a source of recreation—proof of the continuing validity of the social contract in an age of unprecedented social and technological upheaval.

That factor, as much as anything, helps to explain the Brooklyn Bridge as an enduring urban masterpiece. Each new period has been able to find its own reflection in some aspect of the bridge's forms. Painters from the American Impressionists to the Ashcan School to the Precisionists were all able to interpret the bridge with convincing contemporaneity. And if architectural modernists looked askance at the nostalgic masonry forms of the Brooklyn Bridge's towers, then the postmodernists can see them as confirmation that a historicist impulse was not lacking even at a seminal moment of the modern movement.

But the uninitiated viewer need know none of this in order fully to appreciate the Brooklyn Bridge, for notwithstanding its esthetic duality, it is easily perceived as a work of surpassing harmony and grace, especially when viewed in the context of the later and vastly less distinguished bridges that also cross the East River. In contrast to them, its span seems as economical and essential as that of an archer's drawn bow, the irreducible expression of forces held in perfect equilibrium.

The equation of machine-made objects with works of fine art was one of the most characteristic propositions of the modern movement. And although that view is now widely discredited—for there is as much difference between art and industrial design as there is between poetry and prose—it still pertains in the case of the Brooklyn Bridge. Montgomery Schuyler felt that the bridge "is a noble work of engineering; it is not a work of architecture."[9] He faulted the design of the towers not so much because he felt they were stylistically inferior to the modern superstructure, but because they were not articulated skillfully enough. But as Lewis Mumford pointed out:

> To say that the masonry might have been better is different from being able to point out a single architect who might have done it better: the Richardson of 1885 might have qualified, but the young romantic architect of 1870 would, I fear, have made a horrible botch of it.[10]

David Hockney: Brooklyn Bridge, 1982, photo collage, 74 by 40 inches. Petersburg Press.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Georgia O'Keeffe: Brooklyn Bridge, 1949, charcoal on brown paper, 40 by 29 ½ inches. Collection Doris Bry.

Ellsworth Kelly: Brooklyn Bridge IV, 1956-58. 30 by 13 inches. Collection Sheldon Krasnow.

More importantly, he wrote:

> This was not the first work of engineering to be a work of art; but it was the first product of the age of coal and iron to achieve this completeness of expression.[11]

The continuing high critical acclaim accorded the Brooklyn Bridge gives further proof that it is, without qualification, among the most exceptional products of its period. It is rare for an artist to predict with complete accuracy the status a work of his will come to have in the estimation of future generations, but John Augustus Roebling presaged (16 years before Schuyler's similar forecast) the ultimate evaluation of the Brooklyn Bridge:

> The completed work, when constructed in accordance with my designs, will not only be the greatest bridge in existence, but it will be the greatest engineering work of the continent, and of the age. . . . As a great work of art, this structure will forever testify to the energy, enterprise and wealth of that community.[12]

Or as one Brooklyn storekeeper expressed it on a sign in his shop window: "Babylon had her hanging gardens, Egypt her pyramid, Athens her Acropolis, Rome her athenaeum; so Brooklyn has her Bridge."[13] We in our own time will be lucky to find as proud a symbol, as concise an emblem. ☐

---

1. Lewis Mumford, The Brown Decades: A Study of the Arts in America 1865–1895, New York, 1931, pp.102–3.
2. Montgomery Schuyler, "The Bridge as a Monument," Harper's Weekly, May 26, 1883, p. 326.
3. Ibid.
4. Ibid.
5. Mumford, p. 104.
6. Robert Furneaux Jordan, "Sir Joseph Paxton," in Victorian Architecture, Peter Ferriday, ed., Philadelphia and New York, 1964, pp. 158–9.
7. Mumford, p. 103.
8. Lewis Mumford, The Myth of the Machine: The Pentagon of Power, New York, 1970, plate 32.
9. Schuyler, p. 326.
10. Mumford, The Brown Decades, pp. 103–5.
11. Ibid., p. 105.
12. John Augustus Roebling, Report of John A. Roebling, C.E., to the President and Directors of the New York Bridge Company, on the Proposed East River Bridge, Brooklyn, 1870. (Originally published in The Brooklyn Eagle, Sept. 10, 1867.)
13. David McCullough, The Great Bridge, New York, 1972, p. 528.

Author: Martin Filler is editor of House & Garden and frequently writes criticism on architecture and design.

Chicago International Art Exposition
ART 1983 CHICAGO
May 19-24 Navy Pier
A Project of the Lakeside Group

1983 Poster and Lithograph

The specially commissioned poster representing Chicago International Art Exposition 1983 is by the noted American artist Edward Ruscha. The multi-colored lithograph was designed exclusively for the Exposition in cooperation with Bernard Jacobson Ltd.

The five color poster, a limited edition of 1,500, is printed on Arches Cover paper, is 27¾"×39" with the Exposition title, and is signed in the plate by the artist. Price is $30. Add $5 for postage and handling. Illinois residents add $2.10 tax per poster.

The four-color lithograph, without the Exposition title, is in a limited edition of 100, with 25 artist's proofs. It is printed on Arches 88 paper, signed and numbered by the artist, and is 28¼"×33". Price is $750. Add $5. for postage and handling. Illinois residents add $52.50 tax per lithograph.

1983 Catalogue

The Chicago International Art Exposition 1983 Catalogue has 296 pages and is printed in a 9"×9" format. The Catalogue contains an extensive listing of the artists that were represented in the Exposition and each exhibitor has two pages chronicling the work that was shown at the Exposition. Price is $5. Add $3. for postage and handling. Illinois residents add .35 tax.

The Chicago International Art Exposition wishes to thank all who exhibited and attended the Exposition in May for their support.

Chicago
International
Art
Exposition

Chicago International Art Exposition
600 North McClurg Court
Chicago, Illinois 60611 USA
Telephone 312.787.6858

A Project of the Lakeside Group

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
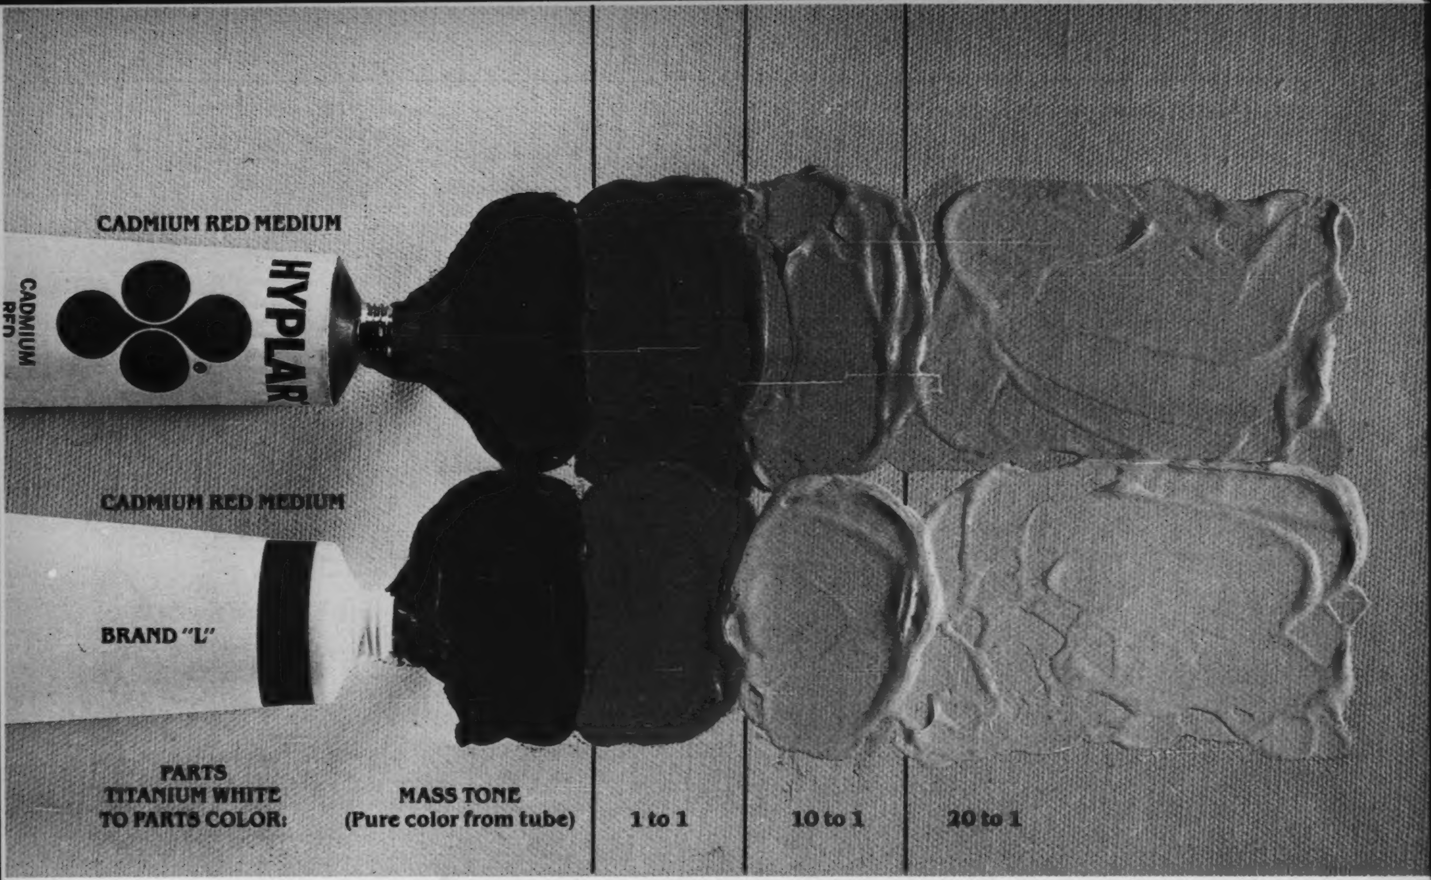
UMI



CADMIUM RED MEDIUM
HYPLAR
CADMIUM RED
CADMIUM RED MEDIUM
BRAND "L"
PARTS TITANIUM WHITE TO PARTS COLOR:
MASS TONE (Pure color from tube)
1 to 1
10 to 1
20 to 1

PERHAPS SURPRISING, BUT TRUE...
RICHER COLOR BY FAR WITH HYPLAR® ACRYLICS

Right out of the tube, Grumbacher Hyplar and the leading acrylic competitor look about the same.

But mix them with white and you begin to see the difference.

At twenty parts white to one part color, the extra richness of Hyplar makes the other acrylics pale by comparison.

Hyplar Cadmium Red Medium actually has over TWICE the color strength when compared to the leading U.S. competitor, Brand "L".

That means your dollar buys more when you buy Hyplar. Much more. Because the color goes so much further.

But it isn't just color intensity that makes Hyplar Acrylics superior. We "mill" our paint in a process that results in the finest, most uniform dispersion.

So you get a paint that covers better and responds better to your brush or knife

Next time, give yourself the acrylic advantage. Get Grumbacher Hyplar... and get color as rich as your ideas.

THE RICHER COLORS OF GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC., 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001.
In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc., 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough, Ontario M1X 1C4

Review of Exhibitions

Jody Pinto: Henri over an Occupied Sea, 1983, watercolor gouache, crayon, graphite on paper, 5 by 7 feet; at Hal Bromm.

NEW YORK

Jody Pinto at Hal Bromm

Jody Pinto has an alter ego; his name is Henri. While the viewer might think of Matisse or Rousseau, Pinto has another figure in mind: Henri Lamothe, a character from her childhood who used to fling himself across Central Park's Wollman Memorial Skating Rink on his stomach.

"I decided that Henri would be my flying saint," Pinto has said, and in her latest show there he was flying all over the place—an androgynous silhouette gripping a Soft Meteor in one painting, falling into a red sea full of blue tongues with whiskers in another. Henri's adventures are all exceeding strange: in Henri in Serpentine Flight, the silhouetted Henri, wings billowing, tangles with a green serpent, while the triptych Henri in Three Movements features black tongues in a green sea in the left panel, Henri covered with serpents over a blue, tongue-ridden sea in the center, and, in the right panel, more tongues, more snakes and more Henri. Pinto is nothing if not consistent.

The challenge of this kind of highly personal art, of course, is to make one's obsession meaningful to the viewer. While Pinto leans a little toward the hermetic—mutilated human limbs clinging to a piece of driftwood in a purple sea dotted with waving tongues, for instance—her images can generally be read, if mostly on her own terms. Her purple seas, orange skies and "Saint" Henri might even have a popular religious significance. "I have always felt that the Bible & the story of Christ," writes Pinto, "have an element of drama and magic/sorcery about them." Though obviously surrealist, her paintings reach beyond an exclusively artistic label. Indeed, if the paintings are read as religious works, the question then becomes, Are we in heaven or hell?

Those orange skies are certainly infernal, but whoever heard of a hell with a sea? Heaven is surely a more pacific place, so perhaps this is purgatory, where Henri has gone to cool off after a libidinous life. In any event, Pinto's inner landscapes seem to represent a realm of the psyche where heaven and hell are one and the same. Her obsession with Henri is couched, tellingly, in dreamlike terms—and the unconscious, we know from our dreams, makes no sharp distinction between good and bad. These are concepts of the rational mind; to the unconscious, pain can be pleasure, and the ugly beautiful. Pinto projects these psychic truths onto her alter ego with good-hearted verve and nervy painterliness. Painting where angels fear to tread—out of the subconscious—Pinto achieves her own brand of saintly—i.e., esthetic—purity, alone with her alter ego and snakes in a paradise of fire.

—Gerrit Henry

Mel Kendrick at John Weber

Since 1974, Mel Kendrick's sculpture has moved from the mentally to the visually analytic, from being thought out to being seen through. For him ideas have increasingly come forward during the construction of the sculptures, and his new works don't give form to some acquired list of dos and don'ts. Kendrick belongs to the generation of sculptors, generally born after World War II and having exhibited for less than ten years,

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Kenneth Noland: Seclude, 1982, acrylic on canvas, 31 by 105 inches; at Andre Emmerich.

Sam Gilliam: Arc Maker #I & #II, 1981, acrylic on canvas with collage, 83 by 23 by 3 inches; at Studio Museum (review on p. 161).

who are interested in making objects which emphasize invention and foster touch. These sculptors are as unimpressed by the concepts and rhetoric which propelled '60s sculpture as they are unmoved by the lure of architecture and scale which so controlled '70s practice. The extent of this shift in sculpture has been little remarked: critical interest has recently been directed at painting or has remained stuck on site-connected work.

Kendrick's pieces have grown progressively looser visually as they have become physically more compact. The earliest works (from 1974) were paired rectangles leaned up against the wall; later he canted horizontal planes upon supporting frames; the planes were next thinned to parallel wooden slats while the frames grew into lively, horizontally extensive ribs, yielding an ever more open structure. In these new vertical works the ribbing has seemingly contracted. The previous play of line against plane, or of straight against curved, has given way to the setting off of positive shape or mass against negative shape or void. Compositional rhythm or springiness has progressively replaced generative logic as the motive force in Kendrick's sculptures. Although we can still reconstruct the operations that gave certain works their form, we don't thereby elucidate their effect or meaning.

The sculptures—ranging in height from one to four feet, and in shape from boxlike to columnar—are made in a consistent fashion, partly carved, partly fabricated. Kendrick generally starts with a 4-by-4-inch post of rough-sawn poplar—a soft, close-grained wood, white or greenish white in hue. In the simplest pieces, he bandsaws into the post from the sides and corners to produce a carving whose surfaces—either planes or simple curves—aren't burdened with self-conscious marks. In the more complex sculptures he relocates parts he has cut out, or slides severed pieces partially through the block, creating a cavity on one side matched by an extension opposite. These constructional processes help Kendrick establish patterns: our eyes are led to connect parts with their sources. He sometimes inks cut surfaces (now porous) to distinguish them from original ones. Most of the wood from the posts remains in the finished sculptures.

The sculptures have a particular sort of presence: they are obviously reminiscent of early modern sculpture and painting—Boccioni, Brancusi, Picasso—as well as of African art, but their referentiality seems to be somewhat casual. Though suggestive of Cubist fragmentation, they are not analytically derived from the model. Pieces like Split Bullet, Permission, and Untitled do suggest portrait busts. In each a headlike mass rises from a sort of shoulder; each couples frontality with four-sidedness.

My favorite pieces in the show were the ones in which Kendrick considered the question of the monolith, even if at what amounted to maquette scale. For various reasons—size, material, context—we tend to perceive monolithic sculpture as compositionally predictable (boring), physically hollow (bombastic), and emotionally suspect (false). Kendrick's monoliths are visually aggressive. He has figured out that diagonals keep things moving, so he tilts parts—such as his staircase forms—or puts wedges under entire pieces to get them going. Since his working method affects opposing sides simultaneously, the pieces exist strongly in the round. Although partially hollow, the pieces convey a pleasing solidity; their surface does not read as a skin. The best sculptures are direct, clear about being three-dimensional objects: color comes from light and shadow, from the reddish glue seeping from the joints, and from pencil lines that didn't lead to bandsaw cuts; mass comes from Kendrick's peculiar and persuasive combination of forming and arranging. They're quick; they jump. —Wade Saunders

Steve Gianakos at Barbara Gladstone

The invitations to a benefit for Artists Space went out in late March, and suddenly the art world was inundated with Steve Gianakos's images of penguins. They recalled a happier time—a world of P.S. 1 sock hops, a world in which penguins stood for black tie. Those penguins were tinged with nostalgia for the '70s, for an art world that was just beginning to remember the meaning of "fun."

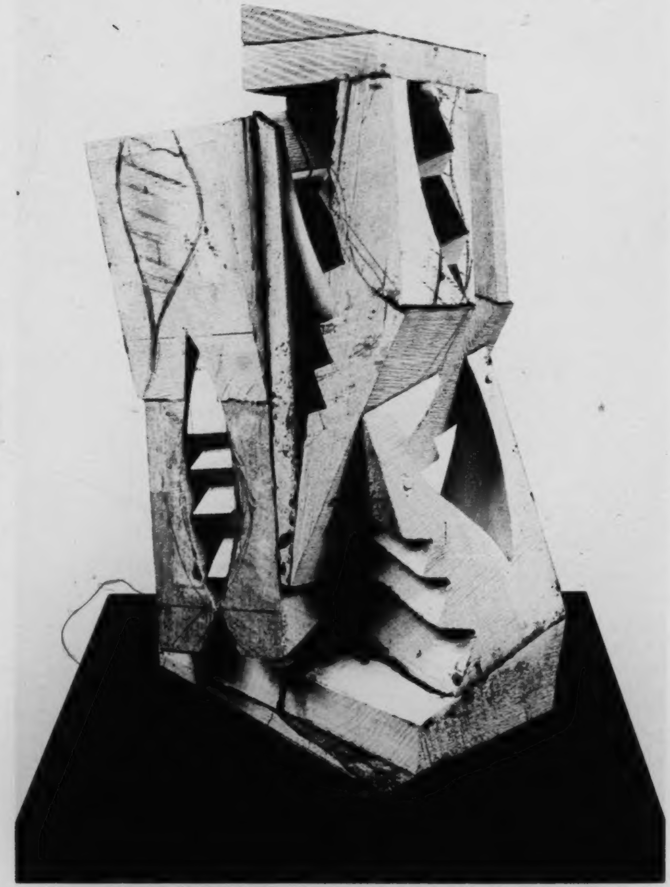
Before the current resurgence of youthquakers, before the fashion wars and endless apocalypses of the early '80s, Steve Gianakos was one of the primordial funsters. Now at 45, he has had his first New York show in almost four years. Don't think he was unheard of during this absence. The appearance of his artist's book in 1981 recapped his greatest hits of the '70s and in a sense educated a new audience that may have missed his original forays. But the book created problems for Gianakos's subsequent paintings and drawings. If his previous works had aspired to the state of cartoons, his images now were in fact cartoons in reproduction. And without that gap between genres his work no longer seemed as novel. The influx of younger artist-cartoonists only added to the pressures attending his debut with a new dealer in new headquarters.

Yet with all this in mind, who would have thought that Gianakos's wild card would turn out to be expressionism? Next to all the endless double shows of heavy-handed, gorilla painting in SoHo, Gianakos's colored pencil-and-ink drawings of gorillas, expanding upon his original idea of doing gorillas in the Hamptons, came off as oddly refreshing. Their easygoing offensiveness, their economical size and essential modesty were among the first signs of summer. Women may be offended by his gorilla girl scouts camping out and his gorilla matrons sipping martinis. Gay men may want to throw rocks at Gianakos's gorillas who live in glass houses. Blacks, especially residents of Bridgehampton (or, as one artist calls it, Lionel Hampton), may not cotton to Gianakos's images of gorilla schwarze serving the master. But then again the anecdotal virulence of Gianakos's imagery should be taken personally. If it isn't, you're missing the joke.

Beyond the subject matter, the style of Gianakos's drawings may prove offensive enough to induce deep belly laughs. His proliferation of meaningless drafting flourishes—the carefully plotted points that occasionally become constellations of stars, but otherwise seem as random as a Barry Le Va; the dotted lines that lead nowhere and look like diagrams of football scrimmages; the mysteriously dissolving walls that could never be built—all seem to lampoon the tricks of the architect's trade as well as the new market for architectural drawings. Moreover, the slight messiness of Gianakos's execution (not so visible in reproduction) causes the spectator to see the artist as a talented but sloppy student, implicitly begging to be corrected, or even as a gorilla who has almost but not quite mastered the human art of drafting.

The gorilla-as-artist belongs to the tradition of singeries, or monkey pictures, in which the animal sometimes literally wields a brush. Often as not, this satirical convention has some autobiographical significance. In Gianakos's case, is the graduate with the B.I.D. degree from Pratt alluding to some personal failure as an industrial designer? More generally, the panoramic painting of gorillas called Class of '83 may be meant to suggest that such near misses and miscreants on the evolutionary ladder shall inherit the earth. On the other hand, they may be no more or less meaningful than the 50th anniversary celebration of King Kong.

Like Chicago imagist Roger Brown (who also has a querulous sense of humor, an early training in industrial design and a slightly sloppy approach to painting-as-mockup), Gianakos chooses 1930s and '40s imagery seemingly to recapture the intensity of his childhood sensations. His "Chubby Girls" series of six paintings (1981) goes through sexist, classist and ethnic jokes to arrive at Chubby Girl Tidal Wave, which seems to summon up a boy's appalled response to menstruation. When in the "Chubby Boys" series (1981) we encounter a canvas called Chubby Boy Shelf Portrait, we can only wonder if this is not Gianakos's view of himself as a pudge with a slight lisp.



Mel Kendrick: Untitled, 1983, wood, 17 1/4 by 9 by 7 1/2 inches; at John Weber.

Steve Gianakos: Gorillas #10, 1983, ink and colored pencil on paper, 40 by 60 inches; at Barbara Gladstone.

The latter image is probably as close as Gianakos comes to outright self-mockery, except that his own ethnicity may be at stake in the group of six paintings collectively called "Greek Mythology" (1983). There, in the recurring motif of two Greek boys dressed in national costume and viewed from the seat down, we may be seeing a kind of serial autobiography. The series seems to move from the artist's beginnings in Two Greek Boys Stuck in New York (in which the boys' legs are entwined in a fire hose) through his ambitions to be an artist in Two Greek Boys Museum Piece (in which the boys' legs become broken marbles in an exhibition case) through a puerile fixation stage in Two Greek Boys with Small Cocks (in which tiny roosters cluster around the boys' pom-pomed slippers) to his deliverance as a playboy in Two Greek Boys on Water Skis. So much for machismo, nationalism and ethnic pride: Gianakos has lambasted us all in the course of his comeback.

—Brooks Adams

Kenneth Noland at André Emmerich

The best-known of Kenneth Noland's work comes from an artistic golden age—the 1960s. Think of it: Louis, Kelly, Noland, Held and Stella, all together in the Jewish Museum's 1963 "Toward a New Abstraction," then in all the textbooks, and finally circling the globe with color-field and hard-edge painting—for a while, anyway. Will we look back at the early '80s as the time when Schnabel, Salle, Cucchi, Clemente, and Chia emerged, with sudden brilliance, on the scene? Not quite the way we look at the color-field and hard-edge era perhaps, mainly because Noland, Kelly and Stella all bespeak a classicism—a modern American classicism that, one suspects, we won't soon see again.

Classics or not, painters have to keep painting. Held and Stella certainly have adjusted to changing times. One question on approaching the new Nolands was, has he evolved too?

The answer is a qualified yes. Although Noland is still painting in translucent washes, and his works retain a geometric format, he has introduced subtleties in both. For one thing, he's using shaped canvases that look like big, stillborn rectangles. For another, he no longer has a horror of the painterly. The irregular purple, pink and green stripes of a work like Push are still near-transparent acrylics, but the gray mass of thick brushstrokes at the center of the painting can only be described as impasto. There's more impasto in the dark blues and grays of Flame, and in In-Vital the lime greens are delicious as well as sensual.

Noland can still be submitted to formalist scrutiny and walk away with all the prizes. His brushed stripes, for example, sometimes reinforce, sometimes contradict, the elegant irregularities of the

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Sylvia Sleigh: Triple Portrait, 1969 oil on canvas, 30 by 50 inches; at G.W. Einstein.

shaped canvas, and his acrylic washes still have that '60s "plastic fantastic" look. But there is something new—if not a new expressionism, then a new lyricism, arrived at partly by the subtle ambiguities of the canvas shapes and partly by color. While the Noland reds and oranges remain, there are, in Solar Salute, new Eastertide mauves and passages of aqueous green and blue. The raggedy raspberry and purple stripes on a dry gray field in Ambitend are similarly engaging.

There's also a trace of the heroic in the relatively mammoth size and gentle-giant brushstroke of these new works. Although they mark no revival of Action Painting for this color-field master, Noland seems to have grown restless with "the aesthetics of boredom" (Sam Hunter's term). It is this very restlessness—dramatized through experimental color and inventive form—that gives these works their appeal. An American classic can't, by definition, stay classic forever. —Gerrit Henry

Sylvia Sleigh at G.W. Einstein

Critic Lawrence Alloway must be one of the most painted men in art history. When his wife, painter Sylvia Sleigh, seizes upon a subject she likes—witness also Paul Rosano—she goes all out in using him as a subject. Sleigh married Alloway, so we can only imagine how popular he must be with her.

Sleigh has done, by her own count, some 50 renderings of Alloway. A nice selection of them was on view at Einstein, dating from the early years of ther marriage—the late '40s—onward. Beginning with First Portrait, 1948, we see a handsome, distinctively British young man with ever-so-slightly pompadoured blond hair and bow-tie—as a young woman, Sleigh remembers in a book she's working on, she was attracted to "Lawrence's great intelligence and sensitivity," not to mention his "touch of arrogance." At the time, he was a poet. In Ajax and the Poet, we see Lawrence to the right, profile to us, writing away next to a Wedgewood vase with single flower—Ajax, Sleigh reminds us, slew himself when he lost dead Achilles's armor to Ulysses, and on the spot where his blood sank into the earth a hyacinth sprang up.

In The Rectory Garden, 1949, we have a delicious, almost farcical scene of the rector in the foreground talking to a plump parishioner, with Lawrence reading and sunning to the back. Sleigh's style was only developing in those days, but portents of the sexual role-switching she was to make so much of the '70s—a shapely, nude Lawrence on his stomach on a bed; or as the Bride, Lawrence decked out in gown and lacy, jeweled headdress—are evident even in the early '50s.

"I married Lawrence for his coloring," Sleigh laughs, and Lawrence in Bed from 1959 shows the bare-chested critic resting, staring at the artist, who is, it should be said, at the point where she is attaining her mature style—the fine, painterly rendering of "beautiful people," their faces and their flesh, in their natural surroundings. The style is further evolved in portraits of Lawrence and gallery owner Betty Parsons (her back, oddly, to us) and Lawrence and critic/artist Suzy Gablik, all seen on the beach at Horton's Point, in the '60s.

Jane Freilicher: Siesta, 1982, oil on canvas at Fischbach.

The Avocado is a highly formal yet psychologically revealing double portrait of Lawrence standing in suit and Sylvia sitting in dress, the tall, gangly plant between them. Beside them, on a low shelf in their new brownstone in Manhattan's Chelsea, is a Victorian figurine of a Green Mountain boy, a Revolutionary-era soldier, carrying a little American flag—Sleigh says, yes, this just might be a symbolic celebration of their settling down in America. The well-known Turkish Bath, 1973, features nude portraits of critics John Perreault and Carter Ratcliff, artist Scott Burton, and a luxuriating Lawrence, reclining on the floor. A Triple Portrait shows Lawrence in three facial poses—both profiles and full-face—with three odd, beanbag-type dolls behind him—a Statue of Liberty, a mermaid, and a South American miss. Here, Sleigh's symbolism seems eccentric, but mysteriously so.

A Tondo from 1980 brought the show up to chronological date—it shows an older, and obviously wiser, Lawrence than First Portrait, but, with age, Alloway has taken on a tantalizing faunlike character that belies his years. Or that's the way Sylvia sees him. Really, this show was not only about Alloway, but about his wife's perceptions of him, which, through her insight and talents and skill, have coincided with his figure and person for many years. Nowhere was this made clearer than in a painting from 1949, Painter, Poet and Muse. Here we have a profile of Sleigh on the left, a three-quarter of Lawrence—Expressionistically toned in red and yellows—on the right, and, in the middle, in a little round mirror Lawrence is holding up, a full face of Sleigh, seductive and severe. The woman in the mirror—the archetypal female—is the muse, and Sylvia and Lawrence are in her thrall. Sleigh's symbolism speaks volumes about poet and painter, husband and wife, and the art that, as it literally comes between them, unites and sustains them, sometimes, as in Avocado, in grace sometimes, as in Lawrence's burning face in Muse, in frenzy. —Gerrit Henry

Jane Freilicher at Fischbach

Jane Freilicher's paintings are like self-portraits. I can't recall seeing paintings in which I felt the presence of a painter more strongly. It seems like sacrilege to say it, but I sense more presence in her work than in a van Gogh. Jane Freilicher is stamped on every flower, on every object; her mark is evident in the way she affectionately groups her motifs on a table, or frames in a window a glitter-green view of a seemingly unfading moment. "Rotten with literature," Picasso once said in praise of a painting by Bonnard, and that's the way such painting ought to be.

Freilicher's paintings are reconstructions of things seen more than simply perceived and represented—like Victor Hugo's remarkable book Choses Vues in which the words do not seem to get between the reader and what Hugo is describing. Her paintings are also catalogues of treasured things without monetary value: mussel and oyster shells, sprouting onions, a tomato can, a photograph, various cloths, bottles, flowers and plants—petunias, peonies, poppies, hollyhocks, calendula, marigolds. And then there are the views—the pictures—within her paintings: a salt water pond, fields, a line of distant trees, shrubs and firs—everything quite natural and unrehearsed, just what's out there. But how beautiful the light that seems to radiate from her own vision rather than out of the sky!

It looks as if Freilicher plunges straight into a painting without any advance planning. Thus she is ready for the unexpected, as when her dog curled up asleep on a stool next to a window (a scene which reminded her of Titian's Venus of Urbino) while she was at work. The dog remains in the painting, as do two cats who appear as a reflection in a mirror. The same fate befalls some ducks we see splashing in a pond outside—all duly recorded.

A Freilicher sky may be as smooth as a sky by David, but she knows how to adapt her self-effacing brushstrokes when more texture is needed. Although Freilicher improvises a great deal, she does not accept everything (in fact, she alters much more than one might at first suspect). Her paintings have the pervasive light of Impressionism, although there is also a hint of Luminism—as though not even the texture of paint separates the viewer from what she has painted (and this without any attempts at trompe l'oeil).

Sometimes Freilicher's paintings are very unexpected. Her colors are often like the strange chords of modern music—for instance, the savagely red draperies and the dark green, almost black cloth in the superb Fish, Onions, Flowers and Photo, or the strange, reddish gray-black cloth in Still Life: The Opalescent Vase. In When it Snowed in April, sprigs of forsythia—a paradoxical metaphor for the snow outside—explode from a vase of cut glass, and a witheringly blue carafe stands against a window full of the springtime pinks of New York City. What astonishing paintings! For me Freilicher continues to be one of the most deeply satisfying painters. —Lawrence Campbell oil on canvas 117 by 156 inches; at Sperone Westwater.

Enzo Cucchi: Paesaggio Barbaro, 1983,

Sam Messer: Memory is the Invention of Misery for John Donne, 1982, oil on canvas, 78 1/2 by 114 inches; at Twining (review on p. 160).

Enzo Cucchi at Sperone Westwater

There were five works in this exhibition; all of them are masterpieces. Three of them are heroic in scale, two are more modest in outer if not inner scale. All are made of the same tense substance: a nervous contrast between a living creature and a dead civilization. Rising bird (phoenix?) conflicts with earth-bound skull; both are set in a desolate, charred landscape, with a pulse of its own. (Cucchi has always used anonymous space; now its symbolic meaning is more fully realized. In the same way, the vital meaning in his earlier whimsical, fairy-tale mode is realized by its transformation into a rhetorical "realism.") In Respiro Misterioso (1983) a horse serves the same purpose as the bird, and in Le Case vanno in Discesa (1983), more subtly, a small horse-drawn gypsy wagon calls the same attention to the moment of life in the void. In this same work, and in Il Vento dei Galli Neri (1983), the void is circumscribed—further articulated—through a stylized town, seemingly abandoned. It is out of the containment of this town, which functions like this devil's own halo, that the life-symbol emerges, ambivalent in tone and stance: resurrected yet crucified. If, as Alfred North Whitehead wrote, "it belongs to the depths of the religious spirit to have felt foresaken, even by God," then these paintings issue from the depths of the religious spirit, like many great Italian works. If "the great religious conceptions which haunt the imagination of civilized mankind are scenes of solitariness," then these brooding masterpieces partake of the great religious conceptions of civilized mankind.

It has been pointed out that "Roman literary education . . . consisted largely of rhetoric, the art of making out a case regardless of strict veracity . . . . Originality was not highly valued; the favorite exercise was the re-dressing of commonplace themes." Even subjective poets, L. P. Wilkinson, writing on Horace, notes, "wove traditional themes and situations into the record of their experience." Like many of the new Expressionists, Cucchi offers us rhetorical paintings, re-dressing—and re-addressing—a traditional theme, to record a personal experience of Italian life. The same desolateness that de Chirico experienced is bedrock; the skulls are those of the ancients, the creatures belong to the peasants, the towns are the shells of an old civilization, an old grandeur. Today only the worn out land is grand, with a mysterious power of renewal, for all its apparent barrenness. Like the works of the Futurists, these paintings are about the possibility of regeneration in an unregenerate world, dominated by memory, the past—a world a large part of whose presence is determined by a heroic absence. Only instead of looking to a future determined by technology, like the Futurists, Cucchi looks to the past, or even beyond the past, to a nature which precedes all man-made worlds and man himself. Cucchi's birds are mirages from a golden age that appear in our own dark age, not as pious symbols of faith in life but, like clenched fists, as angry images of the forbidden thought of freedom—freedom from the entire cycle of life and death symbolized by the skulls.

Cucchi's religious rhetoric is completed in the altarpiece look of the works, and confirmed by their hierarchical structure. In Paesaggio Barbaro (1983), the raised surface (oil-encrusted cloth), with

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

its terraced effect, is explicitly reminiscent of certain Trecento altarpieces showing the divine surface fully embodied, mysteriously corporeal. The memento moris are levitated by the barbaric mystery of the erupting landscape as much as the bird, traditional symbol of the Holy Ghost. So desperate has life become that it must sacrifice its ultimate symbol, to ransom us from the recklessness that has led us to death. It is by refusing to harmonize his life and death symbols that Cucchi gives us a glimpse of the abyss between them, the abyss whose bottom we see in the landscape. Next to such an allegory of the abyss—that sublimation of the negative—the narcissistic fumblings of many of the American. Expressionists, where gesture feeds off gesture to give a sense of vibrant subjectivity (rather than of objectively charged content), fades into insignificance.
—Donald B. Kuspit

Sam Messer at Twining

This is Sam Messer's first New York show. A graduate of Cooper Union, he was until recently at the Provincetown Fine Arts Work Center. He currently has a studio at P.S. 1. Messer's themes are the still life—a Soutine-like fish recurs—and figure, isolated or as elements in a violently dramatic mise-en-scene.

Sam Messer's paintings bring out, with particular vehemence, one of the main points of the new Expressionism: the refusal to live in an anesthetized world of abstraction. They make clear to us the "expressive" point that there is no pristine experience in the world, that everything reeks with obscenity, i.e., has a smelly underside which is the real source of its power. Thus, in Eating Alone (1982), Messer's studio becomes an unholy place of expressive possibilities. The stillness is broken by a profane energy, which ripples through the flatness of the surfaces, invades the ordinary objects, disrupting but not dissolving the surroundings, yet declaring the unclear, restless character of our relationship with them. Looking at the unclear, restless character of Messer's paintings, the way they return the definite to the indefinite, the immediate to the half-remembered, reducing all foregrounds into a primitive background, one can't help thinking of Alfred North Whitehead's remark that what makes for the "peculiar originality" of expression is the sense that something "remains unformularized" by it. One sees Messer in pursuit of the unformularizable—not exactly the perfume of the je ne sais quoi that dusts the immediate, but rather of something that Whitehead characterizes as more "evil," because it is "neither learned nor imitative." In a world where "most expression is . . . responsive expression . . . which expresses intuition elicited by the expressions of others"—a world where "there is very little firsthand expression"—Messer, like the best of the Expressionists, is in search of the "expressive sign" which is not simply "interpretable" but "creative," in that it "elicits the intuition which interprets it."

This implicitly means a denial of the adequacy of the terms used to create the expression. (It is this inadequacy that modern art is constantly faulting, because it thinks it has discovered adequate terms for art—which is why its art is not expressive.) In Messer one sees a struggle to undo the adequacy of familiar objects so as to recover their expressivity. The point is to undo this adequacy without substituting for it—as Cézanne attempts, however unsuccessfully—a mythical adequacy of sensation, that is, a new myth of perceptual adequacy. Messer, I think, is on the verge of successfully denying the adequacy of his subject matter both as a familiar constituent of every day life—and thus dissolving that artifical scenario, that fake social contract of ordinariness—and as a sign indicating the epistemological adequacy of perception. This opens an intermediate zone between perception and comprehension, a free zone of nonresponsive expression—the critical zone of the firsthand, the unformularizable—in which neither general truths about things nor their supposedly impenetrable particularity makes sense, has relevance. A zone simultaneously free of subjective mystique and absolute objectivity is created—an intermediate zone of sensibility equally free of truth and habit. It is a zone which is superficially established, in Gadamer's words, by "the romantic non-method of presentiment and enthusiasm," but which in fact offers us the logic of a reality de-ritualized, and so freshly intuitable, if inconsistent. The aura of indeterminacy that hangs about it—not just veiling it but giving it its only shape—is an opportunity.

The important thing about Messer's works is that they realize this opportunity is not there by default, not just there for the asking, but must be worked at: the unformularizable must be worked at, is not just there for the asking, like another thing, just out of reach. It is this distrust of the unformularizable as much as of known formulas of responsive expression that makes Messer's paintings verge on the visionary, without knowing what they want to envision. Instead, there is that sense of erosion of appearance which is the primary way of declaring the possibility of the unformularizable, without predicting—guaranteeing—its presence. Messer knows it can never be secured; all one can do is be in position to perform it when it occurs. Messer teaches us once again the value of unclarity, with all its seeming barbarism. He shows us that the exaggeration of unclarity and indefiniteness can be the only just way of making art, particularly when clarity threatens to become a sign of sterility.
—Donald B. Kuspit

Michael Goldberg at Sonnabend

Architecture has figured principally in Michael Goldberg's painting for the last five years—not as a motif but as an actual rational system of constructing the picture surface. Virtually obsessed with basic post-and-lintel assembly, Goldberg has explored within the terms of painting the implications of real architectural form as determined by gravity, counterpoint, tensile stress, compression—in other words, the physics of structure. Goldberg was equally concerned with the genesis of space, for the space defined by the post-and-lintel is not only the first created by man, but is continually re-addressed by culture—from Vitruvius to Alberti to Le Corbusier—and is at stake in any scenographic, fenestral or mural representation. This space, which is both an opening and a framing, is no less the primitive model of the painting support, and Goldberg has continually brought our attention to this fact by building his stretchers with domed or gabled "roofs" and with edges that are a solid and block-like four inches deep.

Goldberg's paintings are executed on a table, in "flat-bed" style using cut-out shapes and taped edges. This accounts for the mysterious density of the painted fields which paradoxically manage to appear floating and only loosely connected at their joints. This paradox of weightlessness is further reinforced by the uneven and almost trembling edges that Goldberg's cut-out and taping technique lends to his otherwise bold architectural elements, and finally by the magical status given to paint in these canvases as it splashes indifferently upwards and sideways, its metallic surfaces shimmering and reflecting light while at the same time b(e)aring the coarse and regular weave of the cotton canvas.

These paintings were of such overwhelming brilliance and richness, so rife with humor, irony and salubrious philosophical reflection that one cannot help being somewhat astonished at the way their architectonics are laid to ruins in the most recent work. The (Umbrian) landscape, which had already begun invading limited areas of the canvases of the last year and a half, seems now to have risen up "against" the architecture, smashing it apart and scattering it in fragments across the picture surface. What remains are a few stray, irregularly hewn beams, crazily pitched amidst serpentine lightning bolts whose bobbing and weaving only partially relate the detached architectural forms to the tipped-up landscape ground.

Clearly, Goldberg is no longer insisting on a literal reading of painted form. He no longer stacks painted fields like blocks, but allegorically pits landscape against architecture within the disjunctive dynamics of the ruin. What emerges is an entirely new event, but one which cannot be absolutely specified as yet. On the one hand, there is a development of his painting as a cartographic surface which was always implicit in its "flat-bed" origin; the result is a new and remarkable haptic quality due to the patchwork division of the canvas into areas of intense and violent scoring, hatching and shoring up of materials. On the other hand, a new temporality has emerged whose index is those lightning bolts which knit the landscape together but which paradoxically place themselves between the viewer and the earth.

This strange Dantesque image of transcendence is perhaps further underscored by the unresolved hierarchy of separate registers of being: the architectural fragments which carry their own Newtonian space with them; the distant landscape which appears as a map with its own aggravated topography of congealed chalk, pastel and medium; and the rarefied heavens through which the lightning bolts charge, reducing the fathomless depth of a panorama to the rapturous dance of a painted line across a few square feet of canvas.

It is hard to tell whether these paintings are about transcendence and as such merely continue some of the metaphysical propositions implicit in post-and-lintel architectonics (e.g., monumentality, verticality, and separation of elements), or whether they are about an entirely new polyvalent surface that it has been the uncompleted task of our late modern period to usher into the world. What is certain is that a new and troubling kind of painting has emerged here which, in its own way, has completely dispensed with the laws of composition, favoring instead an organization of disparate series of elements whose proper relations it is perhaps still too early to apprehend.

—Sanford Kwinter

Ana Mendieta at Yvonne Seguy

Mendieta's latest show, her first at Seguy, was also her first in which drawings rather than photographs were the focus. In her previous shows at A.I.R., Mendieta exhibited her life-sized, black-and-white photos of sculptures she made by gouging the earth in shapes and sizes corresponding roughly to her own dimensions—making a personal imprint in the landscape. Over the years, these works have evolved from rough cuts to more studied shapes, built up as well as cut out, that more explicitly describe the female form.

Only two photographs of this kind of work were included in this show, and they indicated a further evolution in her earthworks series. For both new works (done in Iowa) Mendieta cleared the site of grass, then built a relief sculpture out of earth on the ground surface. In Vivification of the Flesh, 1982, the figure is reduced to a hulking, toothlike form within which are tubular ridges set in concentric ovals. Venus' Conch is a less abstract, three-part figure with tubular rings in the body's bottom part. These earthworks, like her previous ones, were created solely as subject matter for her photographs. The sculptures themselves are left to erode or otherwise be destroyed; Mendieta is unconcerned with their fates.

The two series of drawings in this show are based on the same imagery as the photos: female shapes primitively delineated and occasionally combined with spirals that the artist refers to as labyrinths. In one seven-part series, Mendieta draws on the enormous leaves of a tropical succulent while they're still fresh and green, using a thin instrument (like a ballpoint pen with no ink) that releases their juices. When the leaves go brown and thin, her drawings turn an opaque white. Each drawing is of a symmetrical, archetypal female figure drawn around the central vein of the leaf and reduced to extremely basic shapes (e.g., an oval for a head atop two stacked hearts for torso and hips), forms that are echoed by the shapes of the leaves themselves.

Ana Mendieta: The Vivification of the Flesh, 1982, black and white photograph; at Yvonne Seguy.

Michael Goldberg: Codex Caboso—N.Y. #VII, 1983, oil on canvas, 112 by 80 inches; at Sonnabend.

Mendieta's other series of drawings is done in black acrylic paint squeezed directly out of the tube onto paper made by Mexican Indians from amate tree bark. The paper's texture is sueded, with soft fluid browns and a grain like fur or hide. In one sense, the primitive black drawings exist in contrast to the elegant texture of the paper on which they've been executed. Conceptually speaking, however, Mendieta's drawing is entirely consonant with her materials, as her figures resemble ancient cave or papyrus drawings. Again, the female figure is the subject. These images are so simple and rough, and rendered so summarily, that they resemble figures created for invoking spirits, or for some other ritual. Mendieta regards them as Venus figures, embodying the most basic aspects of femaleness. Indeed, all Mendieta's work has a dark, incantatory power that is mysterious and compelling—basic and primitive without being falsely mythical or superfically feminist. She has created for herself a spare, reduced art with a rich, expressive content.
—Ellen Lubell

Sam Gilliam at the Studio Museum in Harlem

Closely associated with Color Field painting in the '60s and '70s, and the inventor of a distinctive subgenre, the draped stained canvas, Sam Gilliam at 50 has already created for himself a secure niche in the history of contemporary formalism. For those acquainted with the prickly lyricism of his early work, the structural rigidity and strident hues of the new paintings may come as a surprise. But pleasant or not, and successful or not, this exhibition is a clear sign that in mid-career, Gilliam has chosen not to settle into a signature style.

The work in this recent show fell into two groups: the "D" series, so-called because set into a bottom corner of each rectangle is a blocky "D" form, and the "Red & Black" paintings, a suite of shapes, mural-scale modules painted in unforgiving cadmium reds, jet blacks, acid blues and greens. The "D" series pieces are essentially easel works. Manageable in size, they are comparatively relaxed exercises in formal collage in which Gilliam has pieced together heavily impastoed strips and patches of material into a whiz-bang homage to Braque and early modernism. The sculptural quality of the work is emphasized by the use of aluminum enamels, the plaquelike relief of the support, and the metal "D" elements which appear like commas at the bottom right of each variation.

In the larger paintings, the tug-of-war between Gilliam's painterliness and his architectonic sense is far more pronounced. The surfaces of these panels are thickly splattered with Rhoplex and acrylic, and then raked, making high ridges of harsh red and gritty blue-blacks while exposing the fragile, blurred pinks and ultramarines of the underpainting. As with the smaller pieces, most of the actual painting seems to have been done prior to the construction of the final work—thus discrete geometric shapes, arcs, sectors and triangular fragments were carved out of heaped sheets of pigment and then carefully positioned in repeating formats which themselves were then arranged according to the architectual possibilities of the exhibition space.

The link between process and installation has always been crucial to Gilliam's work, but logical as his development seems here, and aggressive as his painting has become, the result is curiously bland. In order that the parts which make up the paintings be interchangeable, he has designed their inner armatures in a cautious and tastefully "Cubist" manner while at the same time making his painterly gesture consistent and predictable. By so doing he saps the work of much of its potential strength; it is as if Gilliam cannot escape one formula without taking refuge in another, and the abiding sense is that he treats painting as though it has no essential insides, only degrees of outside. For a generation of artists of which Gilliam is a part, the idea that painting was a "problem" amenable to systematic solutions was an article of faith, but shedding the con-

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

MARIO MERZ
BRUCE NAUMAN
MICHAEL SINGER
MICHAEL VENEZIA

June

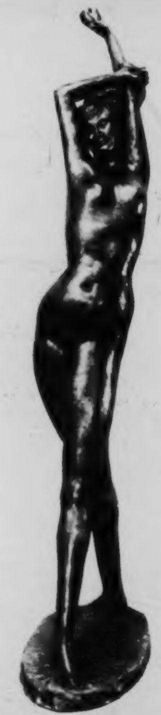
SPERONE WESTWATER
142 Greene Street New York 212/431.3685

REPRESENTING
MID-AMERICA'S FINEST EMERGING TALENT

CATHERINE MASSARO
JANICE ATKINS
ANN BAGBY
DONALD BATMAN
MARY VIRGINIA BRANDON
ANNIE BURKHOLDER
LAURA CANSLER
VICTORIA CHICK
MARY BYRNE CONRY
SHARON EIKER
LIZ FORT
MICHAEL FOWLER
JERRY KENISON HART
MARILYN PROPP
KAREN KOBLITZ
LU BRO
DAVID GORDINIER
RON GRAFF
BETTE HEATH
THOMAS KOOLE
MARY FRANCIS KRAUSE
MARGIE KUHN
DIANE LAWRENCE
RAEFORD LEWIS
SUSAN LONG
SANDRA McALLISTER
NORMA PENCHANSKY
PHILLIP ROBERTS
JANET SIMPSON
DENNIS SOUTHWICK
LANE STARKEY
LA DEL STONECIPHER
HEIDI STOCK
WANDA WILSON
WILLIAM K WELLS III
DANIEL RUPE
MARY ANN WILLIAMS
JERRY WRAY

When in Kansas City,
we welcome your visit to our gallery.

db
DONALD BATMAN GALLERY
825 WESTPORT ROAD / KANSAS CITY MISSOURI 64111 / (816) 531-2588



EMILIO GRECO, "BAGNANTE", 1964, BRONZE, 81¼ x 16 x 27½ INCHES

DOMINION GALLERY
1438 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal H3G 1K4
514-845-7471 and 7833

RICHARD SERRA
IN TOKYO

JUNE-JULY

AKIRA IKEDA GALLERY
8-18, KYOBASHI 2-CHOME, CHUO-KU, TOKYO

straints and detachment of '60s formalism involves more than simply jazzing up the format or turning on the heat. Gilliam has done both and done them very well, but one still wants to know what the real import of his work is, and one has still to find out. —Robert Storr

DALLAS

Nic Nicosia at Delahunty

Nic Nicosia: Domestic Drama 1, 1982, C-Print, 30 by 40 inches; at Delahunty.

Nic Nicosia turns life into farce through obvious use of artifice and exaggerated gesture. Although many of the artist's subjects derive from common traumatic experiences—the exhibition is dominated by a series titled "Domestic Dramas"—Nicosia's photographs are a witty, comic and ingenuous diversion from the heavy-handed morality of much contemporary Expressionist work.

In Domestic Drama No. 4 a couple stands bickering on top of an oversized blueprint floorplan of a house. The pair seems oblivious to both the industriousness of the workmen surrounding them and the attentiveness of the small girl (their daughter?) facing them. Despite the painful intensity of the moment, the photo is funny; its serious content is deflected by the excessiveness of the couple's standoff pose (they are clearly overacting) and by the enormous scale of the floorplan. In addition, while the architectural rendering metaphorically represents the material demands regularly placed on relationships, it also creates an effective spatial device: the man appears to be about to fall backwards into the schematic bedroom, making an obvious visual pun on the underlying sexual tension between the couple. It is easy to identify with the scene; the melodrama is just close enough to actual experience to be familiar, though probably in real life the absurdity of the situation would never be quite so obvious. Nicosia's greatest strength seems to lie in his ability to blur the fine line between tragedy and comedy without becoming trite.

In the best work in the show, the artist's message is multifaceted. For example, Domestic Drama No. 1 shows a small girl scribbling on a bedroom wall. The child's naughtiness is not yet perceived by her parents, who can be seen changing clothes in separate dressing rooms. The primary subject of this work is the destructive scribbling of the unsupervised child, but it is hard not to read this ostensibly domestic incident as a sly commentary on the nature of artistic means and "the expressionist impulse" per se. Nicosia, for his part, incorporates a high degree of premeditation into his working method, constructing all his sets beforehand from a lightweight material called Artcore. Some elements of the props are three-dimensional, others are illusionistically rendered by means of a schematic drawing which highlights their makeshift quality. The bureau in Domestic Drama No. 1, for example, is clearly ersatz, and its three-dimensionality is verified only by the decoy, cup and other objects which sit on top of it. Meanwhile, a freehand drawing on the wall imitates a mirror, complete with a scribbled mock-reflection.

Nicosia plays with real and illusionistic images throughout the work. In some cases he even alters "real" objects, but always by way of offering up some specific bit of commentary. In Domestic Drama No. 1, for instance, the doll in the foreground has been painted gray to match the floor. The bizarre hue of this neglected plaything suggests that the artist is poking fun at the classic restraint of black-and-white photography by confining his palette to black, white and gray, an effect interrupted only by the flesh tones of the actors.

Nicosia's desire to parody black-and-white photography might stem from his own background as a "straight" photographer. Even now, his work is always formulated in terms of the photographic medium: the peculiarly distorted vision of the camera lens defines the perspectival drawing and design of all of his theatrical sets. Seen on their own, the props would appear oddly misshapen, and as such they are never intended to be self-sufficient art works. (In this respect they differ radically from, say, Sandy Skoglund's sets.) Nicosia utilizes manipulative techniques common to commercial photography but relatively new to art photography. Like the work of William Wegman and Cindy Sherman, his photographs shun the traditional documentary and voyeuristic idioms of photography by working in a controlled studio situation. All of the figures in Nicosia's works are actors (friends of the artist) whom he directs in every detail. Unlike Wegman and Sherman, however, Nicosia appears to have little interest in the psychological substructure of his photographs; instead he presents his figures quite explicitly as caricatures, the better to highlight the artificiality and illusionistic nature of the medium as he employs it. Nicosia irreverently undermines Cartier-Bresson's notion of the decisive moment, since the nature of his process itself predetermines that moment in every detail.

—Susan Freudenheim

Contributors

Brooks Adams, Gerrit Henry and Ellen Lubell are free-lance critic living in New York . . . Lawrence Campbell, Wade Saunders and Robert Storr are artists who also write on art . . . Susan Freudenheim is a free-lance critic writing on art from Fort Worth . . . Sanford Kwinter is a doctoral candidate at Columbia University . . . Donald B. Kuspit received the College Art Association 1982 award for art criticism.

COBRA

Graphics by:
Alechinsky
Appel
and others

COBRA

CARL-HENNING PEDERSEN

"The Ugly Duckling"
10-color lithograph

Juliette Halioua Editions, Ltd.
37 East 67 Street New York, N.Y. 10021 - (212) 794-2757 by appointment only.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
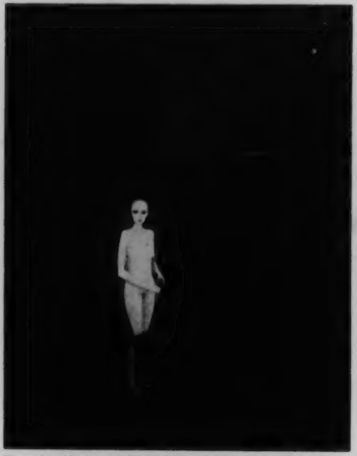
UMI

Norma Bessouet

Figures and Silences
Paintings and Drawings/June 1 - June 26



Traveler, Heart of a Bird, Oil on canvas, 51" x 27½"

Yvonne Séguy Gallery
61 West 62 Street • Harkness Plaza • New York, New York 10023
(212) 265-3314

Kevin Cannon
Morris Graves
Ralph Humphrey
Harriet Korman
Lois Lane
Barry Ledoux
Robert Lobe
Kenneth Price
Susan Rothenberg
Barbara Schwartz
Judith Shea
Joan Thorne
Mark Tobey
Tod Wizon
Daisy Youngblood

Willard Gallery
29 EAST 72 STREET NEW YORK 744-2925

ELAINE KURTZ

INCANDESCENT SPECTRUM
MAY 20 - JUNE 15

ML
Marian Locks Gallery
1524 Walnut Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19102
215 546-0322

MEL BOCHNER

PAINTINGS
&
DRAWINGS

1974 – 1983

YARLOW/SALZMAN GALLERY
May 30–June 25 185 Richmond Street West Toronto M5V 1V3 (416)598-4644

Our Chief Chemist's job is no bed of roses.
Just ask Alun Foster.

His work is a real challenge because, as Chief Chemist at Winsor & Newton, he personally supervises the production of the Genuine Rose Madder pigment we use for our Artists Colours. And Winsor & Newton is the only company in the world today where this unique shade is still made from the roots of the madder plant (rubia tinctorum) grown in Holland.

First, the dry roots are crushed. Then the dye is carefully extracted by treating the roots with alum and precipitating them in a borax solution. Next, it is washed several times to remove any salts, filtered through fine linen screens, and finally, oven dried Because any contact with iron could change its delicate colour, only wooden tools and vats are used throughout this process.

Alun carefully oversees the production of Rose Madder pigment during the 12-weeks it takes to make it, checking the pH frequently in his laboratory to ensure that the correct colour strength is maintained. It's a slow and costly procedure, to be sure, but that's the only way we know to guarantee the highest quality and consistency, as well as the rare brilliance and permanency, of our inimitable Artists Colours.

An amateur artist in his free time, Alun Foster has been with Winsor & Newton for more than fifteen years. He is one of our many dedicated craftsmen and scientists whose pride in their work and insistence on uncompromising standards help make Rose Madder, and the other colours bearing our name, the finest on earth. Colours you may be confident will always perform precisely as you expect because you've learned to expect nothing but the best from Winsor & Newton.

Winsor & Newton, 555 Winsor Dr., Secaucus, NJ 07094. Western Distr.: Pacific Stationery, 415 SW 2nd Ave., Portland, OR 97204; Pacific Artists Materials, 2410 W. 3rd St., Santa Ana, CA 92703. WY, No. & So. DA Distr.: The Mathison Co., 1213 No. P. Ave., Fargo, ND 58102.

WINSOR & NEWTON
1832 150th ANNIVERSARY 1982

Time and expense aren't our main concern.
Quality is.

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
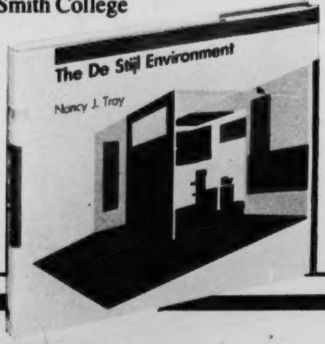
UMI

The De Stijl Environment

Nancy J. Troy

"Nancy Troy offers a brilliant analysis of De Stijl theory and practice that will add immeasurably to our understanding of one of the most significant movements in twentieth-century art.
–Helen Searing, Smith College

368 pp. $45.00
89 illus.,
12 in color



The MIT Press

28 Carleton Street, Cambridge, MA 02142

CREATIVE TIME PRESENTS

ART IN THE ANCHORAGE

INSTALLATIONS
- BRUCE DOW
- R. M. FISCHER
- JANE GREENGOLD
- SUZAN PITT
- SAL ROMANO
- NED SMYTH
- ROBERT STACKHOUSE
- TARO SUZUKI
- WARNER WADA
- THOMAS WEAVER

PERFORMANCES WEDNESDAYS AT 8 PM
STATION HOUSE OPERA THEATRE	6/1
COMPANY	6/8
MEL WONG DANCE COMPANY	6/15
RHYS CHATHAM AND MUSICIANS	6/22
NINA WIENER AND DANCERS	6/29
AFRICAN CONNECTION	7/6
JANA HAIMSOHN AND MUSICIANS	7/13
JACOB BURCKHARDT/ALVIN CURRAN (film/music)	7/20
KENNETH RINKER AND DANCERS	7/27
SAEKO ICHINOHE AND COMPANY (dance)	8/3
SPALDING GRAY (reading/interviews)	8/10
BEBE MILLER AND DANCERS	8/17
KIRK NUROCK/NATURAL SOUND	8/24
PETER GORDON AND THE LOVE OF LIFE ORCHESTRA	8/31
DAVID HYKES AND THE HARMONIC CHOIR	9/7
HUGH LEVICK/THE IMAGO ENSEMBLE	9/14
HUGH LEVICK/THE IMAGO ENSEMBLE	9/21
SPECIAL EVENT TO BE ANNOUNCED	9/28

BROOKLYN BRIDGE ANCHORAGE
CADMAN PLAZA WEST AT FRONT STREET, BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

MAY 25 - OCTOBER 10, 1983
NOON - 8:00 PM DAILY (WEDNESDAYS, NOON - 7:00 PM)
EXHIBITION ADMISSION: $2.00
PERFORMANCE ADMISSION: $5.00/TDF
PLEASE CALL 571-2206 FOR INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
TRANSPORTATION: SUBWAY, IND A & CC TO HIGH STREET, IRT 2 & 3 to CLARK STREET

CREATIVE TIME'S ART ON THE BEACH (BATTERY PARK CITY LANDFILL, GATE 18, CHAMBERS AND WEST STREETS) OPENS JULY 9 (3-6:00 PM) WITH SIX COLLABORATIVE PROJECTS.

Art Books and Illustrated Books

Ars Libri, Ltd. specializes in rare and scholarly books in the fine arts and in illustrated books from the fifteenth to the twentieth century. Our stock of art reference material includes monographs, catalogues raisonné, periodicals and documents relevant to all periods and all fields of art history.

We issue catalogues regularly and provide quotations upon request. We make periodic offerings as well of scholarly libraries and collections, and of original prints and photographs.

Currently available:

Catalogue 34:	Art of the Americas, Africa and Oceania
Catalogue 33:	Monographs on Italian Artists: New Acquisitions
Catalogue 32:	Monographs on Artists (Excluding Italian)
Special Bulletin 20:	Sculpture

ars libri, ltd.

286 Summer Street, Boston, MA 02210 U.S.A.
tel. (617) 357-5212 / telex: 95 1075 (Ars Libri, BSN)
cable: Ars Libri, BSN

KEEP SOHO LOW

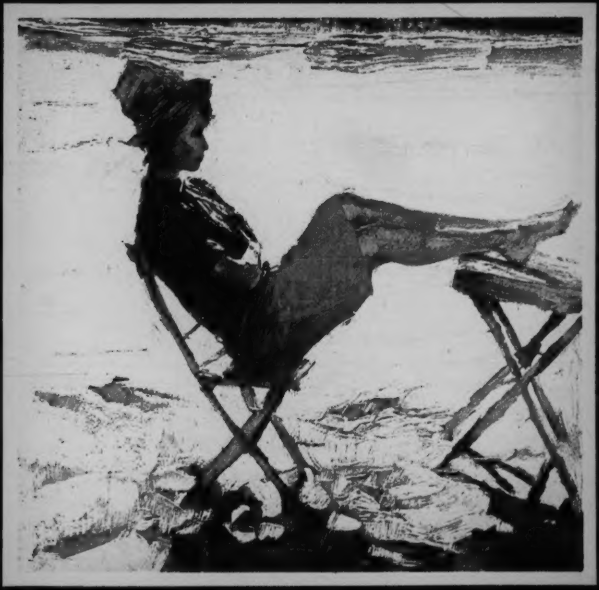
Hi-rise development threatens the historic community of cast-iron buildings. Help us preserve SoHo as a landmark district and center for the arts.

Please call or write:

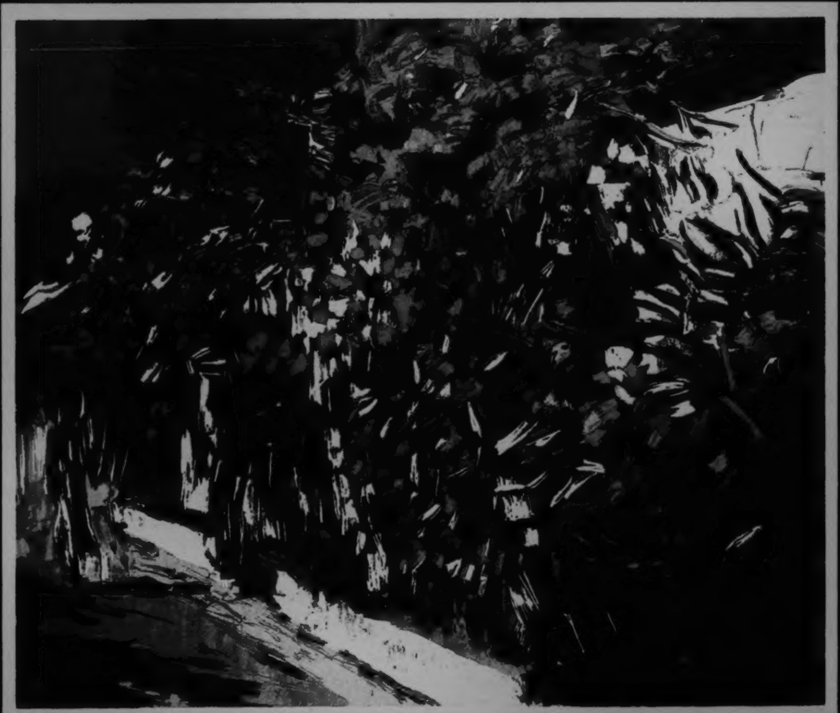
Friends of SoHo
22 Wooster
New York, N.Y. 10013
(212) 431-6503

(All contributions are tax-deductible)

Typesetting donated by First Galley Typography, New York City



LILY list price $1350
© 1981 Nicola Simbari



CAPRI list price $1400
© 1981 Nicola Simbari

Retablos in silkscreen, lithographs and etchings

SIMBARI

For authorised Simbari Galleries in your area contact
U.S. DISTRIBUTORS

Tamar Arts LTD
60 EAST 54TH ST, SUITE 1201, NEW YORK,
N.Y. 10022 TEL. (212) 308-2161

PUBLISHER
SELENE
P.O. Box 75, Normandy House
St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands.

Authorised Simbari Galleries

GRAPHIC ART COLLECTION
133 N.E. First Avenue,
Hallendale, Florida 33009
305-454-8806

ART GALLERY — STUDIO 53 LTD.
424 Park Avenue,
New York, N.Y. 10022
212-755-6650

JOHN MILLER GALLERIES
San Carlos between Ocean & 7th
Carmel, California 93921
408-625-1213

VOL 71 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

9

We were pleased to nominate, we are proud to applaud, this year's winner of the Pulitzer Prize for Criticism:

Manuela Hoelterhoff, The Wall Street Journal's Arts Editor.

On April 18, the 1983 Pulitzer Prize Board announced its selections for the most coveted awards in American journalism.

Manuela Hoelterhoff, The Journal's Arts Editor, won the Pulitzer for her "wide-ranging criticism on the arts and other subjects."

This is the ninth Pulitzer Prize awarded to Journal reporters and writers.

As The Journal's six million readers know so well, Ms. Hoelterhoff's keen and critical eye—and distinctive, lively style—is turned on topics as disparate as Disney World and the opera, television and the quality of life in a police state, art and the buildings in which it is displayed.

Whatever the subject, Ms. Hoelterhoff leaves no doubt as to where she stands—as these excerpts from her columns confirm:

On opera:

> "Fierce and fickle are those who wield the pen in the land of opera. Consider Luciano Pavarotti. Only yesterday he was settling into his comfortable throne overlooking musical America and already he's being nudged to the jester's stool in favor of tenor Placido Domingo, now 'King of the opera,' according to a recent Newsweek cover..." (March 19, 1982)

On Prague:

> "After the first aesthetic rush, you get the disturbing feeling that what you're admiring is a neatly maintained, lovely looking comatose patient. Prague is without the bustling people that make cities come alive. There's no pulse here, no heartbeat, only the pallid blip-blip emitted by a planned economy..." (October 15, 1982)

On freedom, affluence and art:

> "...Part of the Spanish Empire, hopelessly heretical but attractively affluent, the Netherlands was one of the Low Countries Philip II terrorized with his armies, tax deputies and inquisitors. But in 1609, the Netherlands secured its independence and became, as the catalog points out, 'a safe place where people were free to think, say and print what they chose.' And, one should add, paint as they pleased." (August 20, 1982)

On Germany:

> "Who are the Germans and why do they so frequently behave in ways beyond the comprehension of rational minds? Arranged like bricks, the books and articles probing every nip and tuck of the German psyche...could produce a secondary wall around West Berlin. Over the past two centuries, Germany has inspired great music, great literature, great hate. The only flattering entries under 'Germany' in an old great quotations book I own are penned by Hitler and his henchmen." (March 3, 1982)

On new Italian art:

> "It's admittedly a wildly uneven show. A painter like Sandro Chia seems to have a style change and a tantrum every time he sees an empty canvas. But looking back on the show after a week, I find several works still spinning in my memory and that—given the fact most new stuff I see has an afterlife of 10 seconds—is about as good a measure of good art as any." (April 23, 1982)

On Disney World:

> "I didn't have a great time. I ate food no self-respecting mouse would eat, stayed in a hotel that could have been designed by the Moscow corps of engineers and suffered through entertainment by smiling, uniformed young people who looked like they had their hair arranged at a lobotomy clinic. Somehow the plastic heart of Disney didn't beat for me..." (July 2, 1982)

On television:

> "I am watching David Attenborough's 'Life on Earth' carried over PBS...while I am not ready to venture forth and call the worm my sister, as Charles Darwin once demanded, I am becoming pleasurably acquainted with the worlds of squids, moths, lemurs and gorillas, only some of the creatures in Mr. Attenborough's extraordinary series..." (January 29, 1982)

On museum architecture:

> "The (Boston) Museum of Fine Arts is a noble building designed in 1909 by Guy Lowell in the neo-classical style... you feel you are in a special place. Your spirits are lifted and you lower your voice. Such sentiments fled speedily as I recently visited the museum's new west wing...so undistinguished as to be beyond controversy. The granite for the facade comes from the same quarry Lowell used. But, oh boy, what a difference a little time and a little talent make." (April 2, 1982)

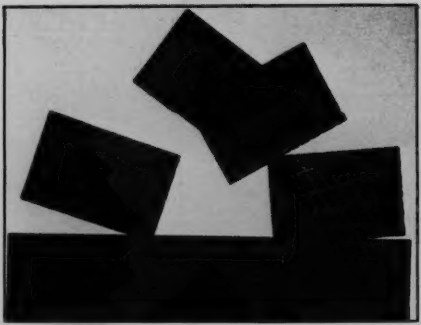
Congratulations, Manuela, from your friends and colleagues at

The Wall Street Journal.

Collector's Items. 11 Finds a Year.

Dig up an Etruscan vase. Authenticate a doubtful Turner. Scan the galleries for tomorrow's masters. Or dabble in new techniques reshaping the medium. You'll share these adventures and many others with Art in America . . . whose pages brim with discovery.

Searching and eclectic, Art in America is alone in how fully it satisfies your need to know and learn. About painting, sculpture, photography, prints and much more. About where to find them and more profoundly experience what you find. Eleven times a year.



And if you order now, you'll also receive as part of your subscription our upcoming 1983 annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists published in August—a $5.95 reference volume. Beyond that, you save a rewarding 15% (that's a $6.00 saving) off the newsstand price with your $34.95 subscription for one year.

Stay with us longer and do better yet. Two years for only $59.95 nets a full $21.95 savings off the cover price. Best of all, invest $79.95 for three fascinating years with Art in America and save an impressive $42.90 off the cover price.

Art in America is an addictive event . . . the most intriguing and compelling way to stay abreast. Return your order card today and join the collectors.

Art in America

Whitney Communication Corporation
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

Save up to 35% on Art in America

I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95—a $6.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95—a $21.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95—a $42.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ________ Exp. ________
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ________
Name ________
Address ________ Apt. No. ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ________

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 12/31/83.

EF31A

Save up to 35% on Art in America

I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95—a $6.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95—a $21.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95—a $42.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ________ Exp. ________
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ________
Name ________
Address ________ Apt. No. ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ________

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 12/31/83.

EF31A

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

NO POSTAGE NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO

POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

EXPLORE.
PROBE.
MUSE.
CONCLUDE.

Art in America
NOVEMBER 1982/$3.50
Outside North America $4.00

Cover: Van Doesburg's "Countercomposition in Primary Colors," 1923
Vigée Le Brun/Defining De Stijl/Barbara Kruger/Jenny Holzer
Interview with Jack Tworkov/Richard Neutra/Mariano Fortuny
Report from Mexico/Books/Review of Exhibitions

DISCOVER IT
FIRST AND BEST
IN ART IN AMERICA
WHILE SAVING
UP TO $42.90 BY SUBSCRIBING TODAY!

SAVE 35%

The Golden Age of Flight

An Art Competition and Exhibition
Sponsored by the National Air and Space Museum
Smithsonian Institution

$5,000 1st Prize, $3,000 2nd Prize, $2,000 3rd Prize

During the period between WWI and WWII, aviation burgeoned. The airplane was developed from a fragile biplane to a high performance, streamlined machine, and along with the many advances in aviation technology, there was an intense public interest in air racing and aerobatics, and record breaking flights such as that of Charles Lindbergh. As well, commercial airlines came into being, offering world wide travel. To encourage artists to consider the subject of peace-time aviation between 1919 and 1939, and to depict the various kinds of aircraft of that period, the National Air and Space Museum is sponsoring a major juried exhibition of paintings and drawings. For information and application, call 202/357-1641; or write to "Golden Age of Flight" Art Contest, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560.

Application and slides of completed work are due no later than December 17, 1983.

RANDELL
TIMMONS
SIGNE
STUART
KEITH MORRISON
KATHLEEN FORECKI
KATHLEEN KING

june

JAN
CICERO
GALLERY
437 N CLARK CHICAGO, IL 60610 312 644 5374

B. LEWIN GALLERIES
ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR 25th ANNIVERSARY OF
MEXICAN MASTERS

SELECTED WORKS ON EXHIBITION BY

RUFINO TAMAYO
CARLOS MERIDA
RAFAEL CORONEL
JEAN CHARLOT
DIEGO RIVERA
FELIPE CASTANEDA
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA ETC
GUSTAVO MONTOYA

B. Lewin Galleries

266 North Beverly Drive 213-278-5769
Beverly Hills, California 90210 213-550-1825

INSURANCE SPECIALISTS TO THE ART WORLD

GALLERIES · COLLECTORS ·
MUSEUMS · PUBLISHERS ·
AUCTION HOUSES ·

GREAT NORTHERN
BROKERAGE CORP.

INQUIRIES INVITED
CONTACT: NORMAN NEWMAN OR LARRY MORREALE
950 THIRD AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022 (212)371-2800
TWX 710-581-2250 CABLE: GREATNORTH NEW YORK

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
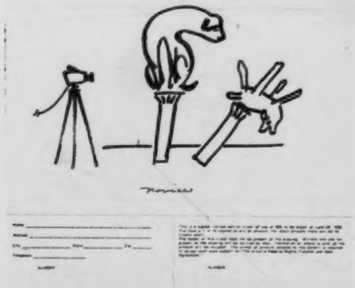
UMI

One in ten chance to win!



The benefit ticket (one of three signed graphics by William Wegman) will be printed in a limited edition of 2400 (800 of each). A donation of $40 per ticket or $100 for three tickets is suggested in order to participate, but not obligatory.

Donors of $100 will receive 3 different graphics. All proceeds will benefit Franklin Furnace, a non-profit organization, the largest publicly funded museum for artists' publications in the world. Franklin Furnace must match state and federal funds with private contributions in order to continue its programs and maintain its collection.

The raffle will be held at a private party for ticket holders from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Ronald Feldman Gallery, 31-33 Mercer, NYC on Wednesday, June 29, 1983. Absent winners will be notified.

For further information, call Barbara Quinn, Benefit Coordinator at (212)-925-4671. This benefit drawing is void wherever prohibited or restricted by federal, state, or local law.

Special Thanks to: Carl Morelli, Esq.: Leon Golub: Turon Travel: Pan American: Best Products Co., Inc.: Monsieur Henri Wines, Ltd.: Buckingham Corporation: The Odeon: Acute Cafe: Capsouto Freres: Wings: Soho Charcuterie: Greene Street Cafe: 211 Restaurant: Riverrun: Rainbow Room: Interview Magazine: Artnews: Art and Auction: Robert Bell: Anthony McCall: Rapoport Printing Corp.

Franklin Furnace Board of Directors: Alexandra Anderson, Henry Korn, Rosanne T. Livingston, Shelly Rice, S.O.J. Spivy, Fredericke S. Taylor, Arnold Weinberger, Lawrence Weiner, Martha Wilson.

Franklin Furnace Advisory Board: Kent Barwick, Anne Coffin, Nancy Drew, Ronald Feldman, Peter Frank, Lisa Frigand, Alanna Heiss, Jon Hendricks, Caryn Leland, Lucy Lippard, Chester Lowenthal, Kathryn Markel, Weston Naef, Barbara Novak, Brian O'Doherty, Stephen Reichard, David Resnicow, Allan Schwartzman, Donna Stein, Marcia Tucker, James Lewis Yassky. Counselor: Carl Morelli.

A copy of Franklin Furnace's latest annual report filed with the New York Department of State is available upon request from Franklin Furnace or Department of State.

Over 200 paintings, drawings, prints and photographs have been donated by the following artists to Franklin Furnace's Fabulous End-of-Seventh-Season Benefit Raffle:

Alice Adams
John Alexander
Carl Andre
Benny Andrews
Stephen Antonakos
Ida Applebroog
Nancy Arlen
Dottie Attie
Alice Aycock
John Baldessari
Jared Bark
Robert Barry
Jennifer Bartlett
Barton Benes
Lynda Benglis
Judith Bernstein
Max Blagg
Ross Bleckner
Miriam Bloom
Lyn Blumenthal
Power Boothe
Jack Boulton
Louise Bourgeois
Martha Boyden
Bern Boyle
Joe Brainard
Ellen Brooks
Tom Butter
Sayzie Carr
Rosemarie Castoro
John Chamberlain
Lenora Champagne
Louisa Chase
Nancy Chunn
Vince Ciniglio
Francesco Clemente
Chuck Close
Charles Clough
Arthur Cohen
Colette
Papo Colo
Armand Conine
Linda Connor
Billy Copley
Susan Crile
Peggy Cyphers
Brad Davis
Douglas Davis
Claudia De Monte
Agnes Denes
Daria Deshuk
Mark Di Suvro
Tom Doyle
Russell Drisch
Don Dudley
Nancy Dwyer
Sally Eckhoff
Mary Beth Edelson
Sean Elwood
Karen Eubel
Lauren Ewing
Jean Feinberg
Sandi Fellman
Larry Fink
Eric Fischl
Janet Fish
Audrey Flack
Linda Francis
Ruth Ann Friedenthal
Cynthia Gallagher
Sandy Gellis
Christo Gianakos
Michael Goldberg
Jack Goldstein
Leon Golub
Juan Gonzalez
Dana Gordon
Ilona Granet
Jane Greer
Julie Gross
Dominick Guida
Richard Haas
Marcia Hafif
Susan Hall
Pieter Holstein
Keith Haring
Geoff Hendricks
Donna Henes
Kay Hines
Stewart Hitch
Robin Holland
Jenny Holtzer
Becky Howland
Bryan Hunt
Gerald Incandela
Patrick Ireland
Richards Jarden
Joan Jonas
Jasper Johns
Daile Kaplan
Cynthia Karasek
Deborah Kass
Alex Katz
June Kaufman
Steve Keister
Kathryn Kennedy
Alan Kikuchi-Yngojo
Robert Kitchen
Komar and Melamid
Joseph Kosuth
Joyce Kozloff
Max Kozloff
Lee Krasner
Barbara Kruger
Mark Lancaster
Ellen Lanyon
Rex Lau
Thomas Lawson
Ruth Lazar
S. Brody Lederman
Minnetie Lehmann
Robin Lesser
Les Levine
Linda Levit
Joe Lewis
Sol Le Witt
Roy Lichtenstein
Vera Lieb
Jane Logemann
Robert Longo
Renee Magnanti
Robert Mapplethorpe
Diane Mayo
Robert McBride
Michael McClard
Ed McGowin
Paul McMahon
Jim Melchert
Melissa Meyer
Joe Milittello
Brenda Miller
Keith Milow
Todd Miner
Candace Montgomery
Elisa Moore
Owen Morrel
Robert Morris
Mary Mulcahy
Matt Mullican
Arthur Natale
Alice Neel
Ross Neher
Janet Nolan
Richard Nonas
Barbara Novak
Doug Ohlson
Valery Oisteanu
Helen Oji
Lydia Okumura
Claes Oldenburg
Dennis Oppenheim
Deborah Ossoff
Jack Ox
William Pangburn
George Peck
Ericka Peterson
Alice Phillips
Lois Polansky
Lucio Pozzi
Richard Prince
Robert Rauschenberg
Deborah Remington
James Richards
Judy Rifka
Rodney Ripps
Abby Robinson
Walter Robinson
Ann Rosen
Betsey Rosenwald
Michael Ross
Susan Rothenberg
Richards Ruben
Randal Rupert
Christy Rupp
David Salle
Miriam Schapiro
Julian Schnabel
Carolee Schneemann
Mira Schor
Barbara Schwartz
Joel Shapiro
Ann Sharp
Karen Shaw
Judith Shea
Cindy Sherman
Alan Shields
Bonnie Sherk
Morris Shuman
Kiki Smith
Larry Silver
Mimi Smith
Susan Smith
Ned Smyth
Jenny Snider
Joan Snyder
Jack Solomon
Eve Sonneman
Helen Soreff
Nancy Spero
Robert Stackhouse
Bob Stanley
Gary Stephan
Leora Stewart
Racelle Strick
Donald Sultan
Robin Tewes
Paul Thek
Patty Trimble
Gwenn Thomas
Jonathan Thomas
Richard Tobias
Tingley
Patty Trimble
Merrill Wagner
Stella Waitzkin
Andy Warhol
Susan Weil
Larry Weiner
Hannah Wilke
Mark Williams
Larry Williams
Randy Williams
Thornton Willis
Robin Winters
Christine Zounek
and others

Tickets from Franklin Furnace, 112 Franklin Street, New York, NY 10013. Raffle: June 29 1983

AMERICAN DESIGN ETHIC
A History of Industrial Design
Arthur J. Pulos

"A massive achievement. Pulos has given industrial design what it really needed–its own history. Finally we have a book that is worthy of being put alongside Mechanization Takes Command by Siegfried Giedion."–George Nelson

"It charts with loving detail the continuous and powerful flow from American craftsmanship in the pre-machine era to design for industry in the twentieth century... a truly important book."–James Alexander 440 pp. 350 illus.

$50.00

American Design Ethic
A History of Industrial Design
Arthur J. Pulos

The MIT Press
28 Carleton Street, Cambridge, MA 02142

2
2nd Edition!
Directory
of Corporate Art Collections

An indispensable reference tool for arts councils, arts administrators, museums, libraries, art dealers, art consultants and artists.

Save hours of research time by using this up-to-date resource directory. Provides you with information on over 350 corporate art collections

- over 50 totally new corporations
- contact person, address and phone
- description of the collection
- size and location of the collections
- cross indexes by state and personnel
- and much more

$35* each plus shipping and handling *postage paid on prepaid orders

International Art Alliance,
P.O. Box 1608, Largo, Florida 33540 813-581-7328

ATTENTION ARTISTS!
DOES THE NAME
RUBY BERGONSKI RING A BELL?
PROBABLY NOT BUT IF ANY OF THE FOLLOWING DO:

WINSOR & NEWTON, GRUMBACHER, LEFRANC, HOLBEIN, LIQUITEX, TALENS, PELIKAN, BLOCKX, BOCOUR, ROWNEY, PERMALBA, SHIVA, MARKAL, PERCY BAKER, ISABEY, ROBERT SIMMONS, KOH-I-NOOR, BIENFANG, KRYLON, BEROL, DERWENT, D'ARCHES, WHATMAN, FABRIANO, CARAN D'ACHE, STAYCORE, NEOLT, TESTRITE, LUXO, BADGER, PAASCHE, THAYER & CHANDLER, ALTOS, C&H, DEXTER, FREDRIX, AND MORE...

YOU CAN FIND THEM AND OTHERS IN OUR HUGE DISCOUNT ART MATERIAL CATALOG.
YOURS FOR ONLY $1.00. OH, IF RUBY BERGONSKI DOES RING A BELL, SEND $2.00 FOR SPECIAL RUSH SERVICE.

☐ YES SEND ME YOUR CURRENT CATALOG. ENCLOSED IS $1.00 AND MY NAME AND ADDRESS

Name
Street Town
State Zip

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.
248-12 DEPT AIA UNION TURNPIKE BELLEROSE NY 11426 AIA1

What's your art really worth?

FIND OUT BY PHONE

Call us with the artist's name, a description of your painting, print or sculpture, and its size, and let our computer give you facts. Chances are that we will find your artist's auction prices within minutes. $20. per item. $10. if no pricing data is found.

Toll free: 1-800-645-6002, in New York: 516-625-0610.

Call 10-6pm, 7 days a week. We accept major credit cards. Inquire for our written services and brochure.

The quality and novelty of our services are receiving increasing attention from the American press. Lately, we have been covered by Business Week and The Philadelphia Inquirer, as well as WOR Radio.

TELEPRAISAL
20 Main Street, Roslyn, NY 11576

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983

ARTISTS PAINTSTIK®
shiva, inc.

Beauty without the brush.

SHIVA/MARKAL Soil PaintStiks® give you the results and the satisfaction of painting with conventional oil paints without the need of brushes, tubes, turpentine, or the time for clean-up. PaintStiks are solid oil paint in stick form and can be spread or blended in infinite color variations. They can be used with conventional oils and are self-sealing. Just peel the seal before using.

shiva®

4300 West 190th Street, Torrance, CA 90509
Telephone: (213) 542-5583 or (800) 421-1325

Editions Limited Galleries, Inc.

Artists: Altman, Alvar, Barnet, Block, Closson, Fannin, Faust, Kipniss, Kitchell, McMillan, Meyers, Peters, Puhalla, Price, Shorr, Sherri Smith, Summers, Weinberg, Williams and Wolters.

Dealer Inquiries Invited

8702 Keystone Crossing
Indianapolis, IN 46240
Tel. (317) 848-7878

1 Market Plaza
San Francisco, CA 94105
Tel. (415) 777-5711

The Metropolitan Arts Commission announces a $250,000 program for the purchase/commission of art at the Portland Performing Arts Center being designed by B.O.O.R./A-ELS Design Group-Barton Myers Associates.

A prospectus is available from the Metropolitan Arts Commission
1120 S.W. Fifth Avenue, 518, Portland, Oregon 97204
503-796-5111

FREE

catalog with purchase of Sketch Book or Hand Soap.

Art Brown
AMERICA'S LARGEST ART SUPPLY DISTRIBUTOR
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
Art Brown

- Unique 228p resource for artists
- Use for one-stop shopping
- Contains over 20,000 items

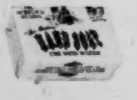
Just purchase
Artist's Sketch Book™

$6.00

Fine quality bond paper text. Hard cover.

OR

Just purchase
HAND SOAP™



$1.49

Completely safe
Fresh scented

Enclosed find check for items checked below:

Sketch Book ☐ plus catalog $6.00
Hand Soap ☐ plus catalog $1.49
Art Brown ☐ catalog only $3.00

C683AA

Name ____________
Address ____________
City/State/Zip ____________

America's Largest Art Supply Distributor
ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC.
2 West 46th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

'Biach'
W Galleries

[illegible]
123 North Union Ave.
Cranford, New Jersey 07016
(201) 272-7070

L.A. Packing And Crating

Fine Art Specialists
Packing, Crating, Installation
Storage, Transportation

(213) 933-5602

5852 W. Adams Boulevard Culver City, CA 90230

UMI

ART SERVICES

ADVERTISING AGENCIES

WEBB DESIGN STUDIO/TAOS Circle No. 1
501 Ranchitos Road
Taos, NM 87571 (505) 758-3447
Graphic design to promote the arts: exhibition catalogues, brochures, advertisements, quality color postcards.

APPRAISERS

AUDREY REAL HELFAND Circle No. 2
945 Fifth Avenue Member: I.S.A.
New York, NY 10021 (212) 535-5972
Appraiser of European and American Fine Arts
For Insurance, Gift-Tax, Property Division, and Estates.

MARK KESHISHIAN AND SONS, INC. Circle No. 3
6930 Wisconsin Avenue, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 (301) 654-4044
836 Rockville Pike, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 340-6666
James M. Keshishian, A.S.A., Harold M. Keshishian,
Appraisal, Cleaning, Restoration and Sale of Oriental Rugs.

KELVYN G. LILLEY AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 4
620 North Michigan Ave., Suite 520
Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 787-0985
Fine and Decorative Arts, Appraisals and Consultations.
Over 15 yrs Exp. Recognized by Major Insurance Companies.

L. McADOO PROFESSIONAL APPRAISERS 5
503 Canyon Road
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 984-0152
Fine Art and personal property appraisals.
Member of Int'l Society of Appraisers.

PIERCE GALLERIES, INC. Circle No. 6
721 Main St. Route 228
Hingham, MA 02043 (617) 749-6023
19th and Early 20th Century American Art.
By Appointment Only.

PROFESSIONAL ART SERVICES Circle No. 7
17765 Beach Drive, NE, Seattle, WA 98155 (206) 587-7214
Serving Pacific NW. Phd., History of Art, Member I.S.A. Appraiser of American & European Art. Advisor for diversified art investors. Experienced in Insurance, Legal, I.R.S.

TELEPRAISAL Circle No. 8
20 Main Street
Roslyn, NY 11576 (800) 645-6002
Appraisals & evaluations substantiated by a computer data base of art auction results.

ART BOOKS

ART IN FORM Circle No. 9
P.O. Box 2567
Seattle, WA 98111 (206) 623-6381
Specializing in contemporary art publications; Books, Periodicals, Recordings. Mail order catalog & trade list available.

WILLIAM AND VICTORIA DAILEY, LTD. Circle No. 10
8216 Melrose Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90046 (213) 658-8515
Art reference, catalogues raisonnes, illustrated & rare books, 19th & 20th century graphics. Catalogues issued.

ART CONSULTANTS

ANN H. BISSELL Circle No. 11
2844 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20007 (202) 363-2867
Art Installation, Lighting Design and Framing on a Consulting Basis.

COLSON SCULPTURE SERVICE INT'L Circle No. 12
1375 5th Street
Sarasota, FL 33579 (813) 365-3818, 953-5892
Ceramics Shell Sculpture Casting Set-up and Related Information.

CONTEMPORARY ART CONSULTANTS Circle No. 13
393 North Euclid Avenue
St. Louis, MO 63108 (314) 361-5110
Consultants to Corporations, Designers, Architects and Private Collectors.

FRANZ VILA Circle No. 14
24 East 97th Street, Apt. 20
New York, NY 10029 (212) 410-1702
Advisory Counseling, Analysis & Critique for Corporations, Collectors, Research & Art Education.

ART POSTERS

POSTER ORIGINALS LTD. Circle No. 15
924 Madison Ave. New York, NY 10021 (212) 861-0422
158 Spring Street New York, NY 10012 (212) 226-7720
Major Distributor of American and European Art Posters.

ART SUPPLIES

THE ART STORE Circle No. 16
7200 West Beverly Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90036 (213) 933-9284
Quality artist material; save 10% to 30% off manufacturer's list.

ARTHUR BROWN & BRO., INC Circle No. 17
2 West 46 Street
New York, NY 10036 (212) 575-5555
America's Largest Art Materials Distributor.
Home of the International Pen Shop.

EASTERN ARTISTS & DRAFTING MATERIALS 18
352 Park Avenue South
New York, NY 10010 (212) 725-5555
Everything for the Artist, Draftsman, Photo-Studio at 20% to 50% off list.

GRUMBACHER Circle No. 19
460 West 34th Street
New York, NY 10001 (212) 279-6400
Fine quality art materials since 1905.
See what our art can do for yours.

JERRY'S ARTARAMA, INC. Circle No. 20
248-12X Union Turnpike
Bellerose, NY 11426
Huge savings on art materials and picture frames.

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 21
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897 (203) 762-8363
Picture hanging rods, mouldings, security devices, stanchions, vitrines, art storage racks, gallery carts, tablets, and plaques. FREE CATALOG.

RISING PAPER COMPANY Circle No. 22
Dennis M. O'Connor
Housatonic, MA 01236 (413) 274-3345
Manufacturers of Mirage, Dansk, Stonehenge, and more. Now in pads.

THE SAINT ARMAND PAPER MILL, INC. Circle No. 23
110 Young
Montreal, Canada H3C 2E7 (514) 935-7526
Finest Linen watercolor papers.
22x30, 300 lbs., $7.50/sheet: samples.

Continued

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

ART SERVICES

SELWYN TEXTILE COMPANY INC. Circle No. 24
15 West 38th Street
New York, NY 10018 (212) 921-9355, (800) 223-3032
Direct source linen and cotton UNPRIMED ARTIST'S CANVAS. No minimum yardage requirements. Send for Free Samples.

SHIVA® INC. Circle No. 25
4320 West 190th Street
Torrance, CA 90509 (213) 542-5583
Artists PAINTSTIK®, solid oil paint in stick form.
Call (800) 421-1325

UTRECHT Circle No. 26
33 Thirty-Fifth Street
Brooklyn, NY 11232 (212) 768-2525
Major Manufacturer & Distributor of Art & Drafting Supplies at Impressive Savings. Free Catalog.

WINSOR & NEWTON Circle No. 27
555 Winsor Drive
Secaucus, NJ 07094
Manufacturers of the world's finest artists' materials since 1832.

ARTISTS WANTED

GALLERY II RSVP Circle No. 28
ARTISTS! Exhibition space in new high quality fine arts sales & exhibition gallery. All media accepted. Send slides and S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901. (804) 977-R.S.V.P.

AUCTION HOUSES

HANZEL GALLERIES Circle No. 29
1120 South Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60605 (312) 922-6234
Midwest's foremost auctioneers of fine art properties for over 40 years.

COMPETITIONS

GALLERY II R.S.V.P. Circle No. 30
"Regional Sensibilities-USA" ALL MEDIA, $10 entry fee, $5/slide, no limit. First jury by slide. Deadline June 30. 5 cash prizes, 1 purchase award. Send slide & S.A.S.E. to: Gallery II R.S.V.P., Director, Colene Later, 218 W. Main, Charlottesville, VA 22901.

EXHIBITION CATALOGUES

WORLDWIDE BOOKS Circle No. 31
Brian Gold 37 Antwerp Street
Boston, MA 02135 (617) 787-9100
The foremost specialist in Int'l Art Exhibition Catalogues since 1960.

FINE ART CASTING

AELCO FOUNDRIES, INC. Circle No. 32
1930 South 4th Street
Milwaukee, WI 53204 (414) 645-3771
Silicon bronze, ferrous & non-ferrous sand & investment castings - also production quantities - $75 minimum order.

FINE ART PHOTOGRAPHERS

THOMAS MOON PHOTOGRAPHY Circle No. 33
1 Holden Street
Brookline, MA 02146 (617) 232-8044
Photography Services for the Fine Arts. Black & White, Color, INFRARED. Print or Transparency. All formats.

FINE ART PRINTERS

COLOR Q Circle No. 34
AFFORDABLE FINE ART REPRODUCTIONS
2835 Springboro West Dayton OH 45439 (513) 294-0406
Get your FREE booklet: "How to gain wider recognition for your artistry, and make more money, too."

FINE ART PUBLISHERS

GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER Circle No. 35
211 Old Santa Fe Trail
Santa Fe, NM 87501 (505) 988-3580
Original Graphics, Lithographs, Serigraphs, etchings of contemp. Indian artists. Specializing in Kevin Red Star.

FINE ART TRAVEL

ART EXPLORER'S TOURS Circle No. 36
P.O. Box 26689-P, San Francisco, CA 94126 (415) 921-7677
1983: Africa-Aug./Sao Paulo Biennale-Oct./1984: New Guinea-Mar./Scandinavia-June/Venice Biennale-Sept./
1985: China/Japan.

FOUNDRIES/FABRICATORS

JOHNSON ATELIER TECH. INSTITUTE Circle No. 37
Jim Barton, 743 Alexander Road
Princeton, NJ 08540 (609) 452-2661
Bronze, Aluminum, Stainless Steel, Ductile Iron: Sand Molding-Ceramic Shell, Rubber Molds. Bronze Repair & Repatina

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 38
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
Casting in bronze, lead, or stone, also fabricating large art work of copper or bronze sheets repousse.

MATTHEWS CLASSIC BRONZE DIVISION 39
2230 North Chico Avenue
South El Monte, CA 91733 (213) 444-0468
Our lost wax casting capabilities assure the quality and fidelity of your art. Contact Mel Scheibauer.

JOEL MEISNER FOUNDRY & GALLERY Circle No. 40
120 Fairchild Avenue
Plainview, NY 11803 (516) 349-0260, (212) 895-1472
THE COMPLETE CENTER FOR BRONZE SCULPTURE: for the Sculptor . . . for the Collector . . . for the Art Dealer & Publisher.

FRAMERS

AESTHETIC FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 41
800 Traction Avenue
Los Angeles, CA 90013 (213) 680-4710
Wholesale Custom Framing Specializing in Archival Presentation for Artists, Galleries, Museums, Consultants.

ARTISTS' FRAME SERVICE INC. Circle No. 42
1919 North Clybourn
Chicago, IL 60614 (312) 248-7713
Wholesale custom framing and supply. 80 metal, 200 wood styles, mat board, museum board. Fast professional service.

BRADIN CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 43
3646 South Westshore Blvd.
Tampa, FL 33609 (813) 837-5916
Archival Framing, Nielson Metal Molding for Artists, Designers. Wood Frames. Wholesale.

ART SERVICES

FRAMERS

GRAND STREET FRAMES LTD. Circle No. 44
32 Grand Street
New York, NY 10013 (212) 334-9354
Custom framing with conservation materials. Hardwoods or metal. Cut glass, mats, painting strippings. Fast service.

GREY GOOSE CUSTOM FRAMING Circle No. 45
5046 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90019 (213) 938-6795
Art Framing to Museum Standards. Plexiglass, Aluminum, Brass, Hardwood. Wholesale.

TURNER FRAMING Circle No. 46
7508 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22043
Serving Washington D.C. Metropolitan Area
Excellence in Quality Custom Framing. Private Individual and Commercial Accounts.

WALLNUTS FRAME DESIGN Circle No. 47
2018 Locust Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103 (215) 732-8850
Design Consultants to PROFESSIONAL PICTURE FRAMERS ASSOC. Museum Matting, Exotic Woods, Acrylic Boxes, Pedestals.

HANGING & DISPLAY EQUIPMENT

KENNETH LYNCH & SONS Circle No. 48
Box 488, Wilton, CT 06897
(203) 762-8363
The famous Lynch picture rods made of stainless steel have been the standard in galleries for 100 years. Send for FREE CATALOG.

WALKER SYSTEMS, INC. Circle No. 49
530 South 21 Avenue East
Duluth, MN 55812 (218) 728-4434
Picture Hanging Devices (Rails, Rods, Hooks, Holders) Panel Hardware for freestanding displays & exhibits.

INSURANCE

FLATHER & HAYES COMPANY, INC. Circle No. 50
888 Seventeenth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 466-8888
Fine arts insurance for collectors and dealers.

GREAT NORTHERN BROKERAGE CORP. 51
Norman Newman or Larry Morreale
950 Third Ave
New York, NY 10022 (212) 371-2800
Insurance Specialists to the Art World.

MOVERS AND PACKERS

L.A. PACKING AND CRATING Circle No. 52
5852 West Adams Blvd.
Culver City, CA 90230 (213) 933-5602
Specialist in Packing, Crating, Installing, Warehousing, Shipping Fine Art and Antiques. Jim Isenson.

PRO-PAK PROFESSIONAL PACKERS, INC.® 53
527 Dundee Road
Northbrook, IL 60062 (312) 272-0408
Fine Arts Packing, Crating and Shipping Specialists. Pick-up and Delivery Service. Full Insurance Coverage.

RESTORERS

THE TOMSICH ART GALLERIES LTD. Circle No. 54
11916 Manchester Road
St. Louis, MO 63131 (314) 966-6777
Conservation of Oil Paintings, Art on Paper, Framing conservation. Appraisals.

VIDEO SERVICES

VAN GOGH VIDEO Circle No. 55
Star Route 81 A, Rosendale, NY 12472 (914) 338-8943
Video Cassette Art News Magazine Distributed Weekly by Satellite/Cable TV & Cassette Subscription. Production and Distribution Services for the Art World.

To receive information from the companies listed, circle the corresponding number on the REPLY COUPON below, and drop it in an envelope. You will receive information directly from them.

Art in America REPLY COUPON
Reader Service Dept., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

JUNE 1983
THIS COUPON EXPIRES
September 30, 1983

NAME (PLEASE PRINT) ____________ TELEPHONE ____________
ADDRESS ____________
CITY ____________ STATE ______ ZIP ______

Art Services & Schools ▽ Please send information circled.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30
31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60
61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90
91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100 101 102 103 104 105 106 107 108 109 110 111 112 113 114 115 116 117 118 119 120

ALLOW 6-8 WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Lynn Chadwick
Eduardo Chillida
Jose Luis Cuevas
Giacomo Manzù
Marino Marini
Roberto Matta
Henry Moore

Tasende
Gallery
820 Prospect Street, La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

MORTON
RACHOFSKY SCULPTURE

3
Three Sisters
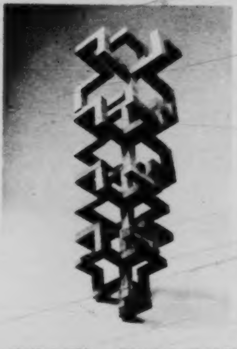
Gallery

2300 Mercantile Bank Bldg.
Dallas, Texas 75201
214/748-1248

Catalogue Available
$6.00



Untitled #126 Walnut H: 34.5"

AMERICAN REALISM
PAINTINGS & SCULPTURE
Representing
CARROLL CLOAR · ALAN FELTUS · GREGORY GILLESPIE
CHAIM GROSS · JULES KIRSCHENBAUM · DAVID LEVINE
BRUNO LUCCHESI · HERMAN MARIL
WILLIAM McELCHERAN · ELLIOT OFFNER
CORNELIS RUHTENBERG · HONORE SHARRER
LAURA SHECHTER · RAPHAEL SOYER · MARINA STERN
JACK ZAJAC · LAURA ZIEGLER
ESTATES: JOSEPH FLOCH · BERNARD KARFIOL
HUGO ROBUS · MAX WEBER
FORUM GALLERY
1018 MADISON AVENUE · NEW YORK 10022 · (212) 772-7666

GROUP SHOWING
June

SL Art Gallery
2133 Cedar Springs
214/761-9912 • Dallas, Texas 75201

BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY
24 West 57 Street, New York, NY 10019

WILL HAVE A NEW ADDRESS IN NEW YORK THIS FALL.

During the summer,
please direct all inquiries to:
Bernard Jacobson Ltd.
8364 Melrose Ave., L.A., CA 90069
(213) 655-5719

We'll make you work hard so you'll have an easier time getting the job you want. For information about our programs in Graphic Design, Advertising, Illustration, Fine Arts and Photography, call (617) 262-2844.

THE ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON
700 Beacon St., Boston, MA 02215
We'll put your creativity to work.

LEONOR FINI
Original Certified
Lithographs

Direct from atelier to consumer

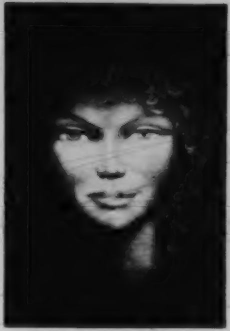
18" x 15"
Limited edition of 297
Price $220



By appointment only: (212) 582-6430

Wave Hill 1983
BRONZE
Sculpture in the Landscape
May 19—September 30, 1983

Independence Ave. at 249th St.
Bronx, New York 10471 (212) 549-2055

A FINE SELECTION OF CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN ART

ELAINE F. ALT
MAREK CECULA
BETH CHANGSTROM
MARY ANN LOMONACO
LYDIA YIN
MAY 19 - JUNE 18

incorporated
gallery

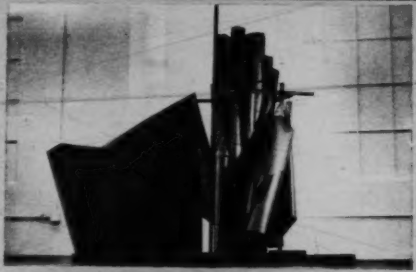
1200 MADISON AVE. (87th ST.) NYC 10028 • (212) 831-4466

MIDTOWN
GALLERIES EST. 1932 11 East 57 St., N.Y. (212) 758-1900

SUMMER GROUP SHOW

ISABEL BISHOP • PAUL CADMUS • EDWARD BETTS
BRUCE CURRIE • EMLEN ETTING • RUTH COBB
HANS MOLLER • RICHARD MAYHEW • FRED NAGLER
JASON SCHOENER • ROBERT VICKREY • WILLIAM PALMER
WILLIAM THON • ETHEL MAGAFAN • CHARLES COINER
JULIEN BINFORD • MAURICE FREEDMAN • FRED MEYER
MARGIT VARGA • G. PRESTOPINO • ROBERT SIVARD
STEPHEN ETNIER

REPRESENTING CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN ARTISTS



Joyce Goldstein
May 15 to June 26
Palisades Gallery - The Hudson River Museum
511 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers, New York, 10701, 914-963-4550

MODERN MASTER
TAPESTRIES INC.

Group Exhibition
of Gallery Artists

11 E. 57th St., New York 10022 • (212) 838-0412
Summer Hours: Tuesday-Friday
Renovation of the gallery: May 31-June 17

THE SOURCE
RC Gorman
AT Now
& Then Gallery Ltd.
797 Merrick Ave. East Meadow, L.I., N.Y. 11554
(516) 481-1447 (212) 895-1145
LITHOS—CERAMICS—SCULPTURE—SILKSCREENS

Art expo TEXAS
Dallas Market Center
September 30–October 3, 1983
The 7th international forum for fine art dealers.
Space reservations accepted subject to qualification and availability.
For further information, contact
International Art Exposition
509 Madison Avenue, New York 10022
Telephone: (212) 935-7607

PRINTS·SCULPTURE·PAINTINGS
DONN HEDMAN
CHARLES BATTAGLINI
NED O. WERT
TOM DONGILLA
JOHN DROPCHO
FIVE IUP ARTISTS
NOHO GALLERY
542 LAGUARDIA PLACE, NEW YORK, NY 212-473-9619
JUNE 28-JULY 17, 1983

CHIA RYMAN
GORCHOV SHAPIRO
JUDD STELLA
MANGOLD TRUE
MARDEN TWOMBLY

4 JUNE, 1983
BONNIER GALLERY
420 WEST BROADWAY NYC 334-8414

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

SUMMER MONTHS

by appointment only please call

312-944-1748

Exhibit A
233 E. Ontario Street
Chicago, Illinois 60611

LAURA RUSSEL

New Work
JUNE

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 E 57 NYC 10022 212 752-7734

CAROL KARDON
new .... landscapes

June 2-29; 1983

C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 n. charles, balto., md. 21201 301/539-1080

TEXAS
CONTEMPORARY ART

GALLERY
ONE INC

4935 Byers
(817) 737-9566 Fort Worth, Texas 76107

HENRI MATISSE
JAZZ May - June 1983

HARCOURTS GALLERY
935 Powell Street
San Francisco, CA 94108
415-421-3428

Yoseido Gallery

Contemporary Japanese prints

5-5-15, Ginza, Chuo-ku, Tokyo,
Japan phone: 571-1312, 2471

100 page catalog upon request — $8.00

SUSAN SCOTT
Paintings
June 7–July 9

BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY
8364 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles 90069 213-655-5719

theOctober
GALLERY

Specializing in Contemporary Works on Paper by American, Canadian and European Artists

1226 Spring St., St. Helena, CA 94574 707 963-7501

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

A guide to current exhibitions abroad

ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES ☎ 54 (1)

RUTH BENZACAR
Talcahuano 1216-1° • Tel. 41-8549, 42-5614/5568
Amaiz, Aizenberg, Audivert, Benedit, Benguria, Cáceres, Castilla, De Monte, Esteves, Kleiman, Puente, Robirosa, Smoje, Torroja, Vegezzi.

DEL RETIRO
Florida 943 • Tel. 32.5850
Gallery artists: Pablo Bobbi, Marcello Bonevardi, Sergio Camporalle, Dalla Cujat, Lea Lublin, Aldo Parella, Daniel Selaga.

AUSTRIA

INNSBRUCK ☎ 43 (522)

KRINZINGER
Adolf Pichlerplatz 8 • Tel. 32.131
Franz Mölk, malerei

KLAGENFURT ☎ 43 (4222)

CARINTHIA KLAGENFURT
Volermarkter Ring 25 • Tel. 57.377
June 8-July 2, Andrew Hudson; July 6-Aug. 6, Jože Cluha; From Aug. 8, gallery artists; at Stift Ossiach: Valentin Oman; from July 30, Hoke

VIENNA ☎ 43 (222)

ARIADNE
Bäckerstrasse 6 • Tel. 52.94.79
Until June 25, Juan Navarro-Baldeveg, oil paintings

GRITA INSAM
Köllnerhofg. 6 • Tel. 52.53.30
Until June 15, Peter Hujar, photos; Until June 25, Berty Skuber, drawings; Cherif and Sylvie Defraoui, "Conversations on a Raft"; Humanic artists

NÄCHST ST. STEPHAN
Grunangergasse 1/11 II • Tel. 52.12.66
Until July 2, Hubert Schmalix, oil paintings and work on paper

ULYSSES
Opernring 21 • Tel. 57.12.26.
Stanley Boxer, paintings 1976-1982 (catalogue available)

GALERIE HUBERT WINTER
Sonnenfelsgasse 8 • tel. 52.92.85
Until June 28, K. R. H. Sonderborg, gouaches

BELGIUM

ANTWERP ☎ 32 (31)

AVANTGRADE
Volkstraat 60 • Tel. 216.04.81
Until July 15, Panamarenko, new graphics

MICHELE LACHOWSKY
27 Waalse Kaai • Tel. 237.23.93
Jan Vercruysse

LENS FINE ART
Mechelsesteenweg 148 • Tel. 237.88.57
Jan Van Riet

"121"
Mechelsesteenweg 121 • Tel. 218.88.73
From June 16, "Sculptura 83," international group show Gallery closed during August

BRUSSELS ☎ 32 (2)

ALBERT BARONIAN
89. Avenue Emile de Beco • Tel. 647.3414
Siegfried Anzinger
"Art 14'83" Basel

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

BRUSSELS (CONT'D) ☎ 32 (2)

ISY BRACHOT 62a, Avenue Louise • Tel. 511.05.25	Felix Labisse
CAMOMILLE 30, Rue Vilain XIV • Tel. 649.23.68	François Martin Jean-Louis Vila
FABIEN DE CUGNAC 55, Rue de Livourne • Tel. 537.14.15
PALAIS DES BEAUX ARTS 10, Rue Royale • Tel. 512.04.03	"Ferne Volker, Frühe Zeiten," exhibition from Stuttgart Museum Karel Appel
POST-SCRIPTUM 37, Rue des Eperonniers • Tel. 511.96.43	Books and catalogues on contemporary art and photography, records.

GHENT ☎ 32 (91)

BARONIAN/LAMBERT Oudburg 22 • Tel. 254.057	Volker Tannert
RICHARD FONCKE 18 St. Janvest • Tel. 23.81.28	Closed for the summer
GEWAD 23 Gewad • Tel. 25.56.16	Kounellis
MUSEUM HEDENDAAGSE K'NST. Citadelpark • Tel. 21.17.03	Events relating to the German week (Vostell, Knaack, concerts)

KNOKKE ☎ 32 (50)

ELISABETH FRANCK 124 Kustlaan • Tel. 606.881	Pat Andrea
GALLERY TRIADE Res. St. James, Kustlann 130 • Tel. 610.087/601.925	Abstracts from the 50's: Alechinsky, Appel, Atlan, Bissière, Esteve, Fautrier, Herbin, Jorn, Soulages, Bram & Geer van Velde, Vieira da Silva

COLOMBIA

BARRANQUILLA

GALERIA QUINTERO CRA 51 B N° 80-65 • Tel. 359.210	Bernardo Salcedo

BOGOTA ☎ 57

GARCES Y VELASQUEZ CRA 5 N° 26-92 - AA 26936 • Tel. 284.5593	Ammaral, Amat, Barrera, Caballero, Cardenas, Castles, Gonzales, Hernandez, Saramillo, Negret, Porter, Ramirez, Rosas, Salcedo, Sanin
QUINTANA Carrera 11 N° 85-62 • Tel. 236.8226	XIXth and XXth Century paintings: Botero, Degas, Gauguin, Hockney, Matisse, Moore, Picasso, Rodin, Vuillard

ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE ☎ 44 (223)

KETTLE'S YARD GALLERY Northampton Street • Tel. 352.124	Until July 3, Joseph Beuys, "Drawings 1941-1983"

LONDON ☎ 44 (1)

ANNE BERTHOUD GALLERY 1 Langley Court • Tel. 836.73.57	Through June 30, Michael Upton, paintings
ART HOUSE 213 South Lambeth Road • Tel. 735.2192	Representing contemporary British artists, including John Bellany. Also collection of Outsider Art—by appointment
BLOND FINE ART 33 Sackville Street • Tel. 437.1230	Through June, British painting and drawing 1910-1950 Contemporary gallery artists
CHRISTIE'S PRINT COLL'CTION 8 Dover Street • Tel. 499.6701	Graphics by British and international artists. Hockney, Moore, Sutherland, Miró, Chagall, others. Catalog (quote AIAED).
ANTHONY d'OFFAY 23 Dering Street • Tel. 499.4695	Through June, Anselm Kiefer, paintings and watercolors
12 DUKE STREET GALLERY Duke Street, St. James • Tel. 930.62.47	Until June 10, William Wilkins, recent paintings From June 13 through June, Janet Leroy, drawings
FISCHER FINE ART 30 King Street, SW1 • Tel. 839.3942	Until June 3, "American Photo Realists" June 9-July 19, Hannah Hoch
GIMPEL FILS 30 Davies Street • Tel. 493.2488	Until June 18, 10 Swiss Artists from Gimpel & Hanover, Zurich
NIGEL GREENWOOD, INC. 41 Sloane Gardens • Tel. 730.8824	Until June 25, new paintings by Lebrun, Walker, McKeever, Setch, & others

LONDON (CONT'D) ☎ 44 (1)

I.C.A. The Mall, SW1. • Tel. 930.3647	Until June 26, Carole Conde and Karl Beveridge, "Union Works"; Richard Prince
NICOLA JACOBS 9 Cork Street • Tel. 437.3868	Until June 18, Jeffe Lowe, sculpture; John McLean, paintings
BERNARD JACOBSON, LTD. 2A Cork Street • Tel. 439.8355	Through July, William Tillyer, new paintings
LEWIS JOHNSTONE GALLERY 7 Bolton Gardens (Old Brompton Rd.) • Tel. 373.1192	Until June 18, Amikam Toren
ANNELY JUDA/JUDA ROWAN 11 Tottenham Mews • Tel. 637.5517/8	Through June, Arp, Exter, Lissitzky, Rodchenko, Schwitters, etc. Until July 1, Gottfried Honegger, recent paintings; Phillip King, sculpture
KNOEDLER GALLERY (Kasmin, Director) 22 Cork Street • Tel. 439.1096	June 3-July 2, Helen Frankenthaler, paintings 1959-1963
LEINSTER FINE ART 9 Hereford Road • Tel. 229.99.85
LISSON GALLERY (Nicholas Logsdail) 66/68 Bell Street • Tel. 262.1539	Through June 4, Jenny Holzer June 7-July 9, Jack Goldstein
MAYOR GALLERY 22A Cork Street • Tel. 734.3558	Through June 18, Jim Nutt, recent work
PETERSBURG PRESS 59A Portobello Road • Tel. 229.0105	June, Roy Lichtenstein, "7 Apple Woodcuts"; Howard Hodgkin, 5 lithographs; Frank Stella, "Shards." Graphics, art books. Also Hockney, Johns
PICCADILLY GALLERY 16 Cork Street • Tel. 499.4632	Through June 25, David Suff, watercolors and drawings: "Gardens of London"
REDFERN GALLERY 20 Cork Street • Tel. 734.17.32 734.05.78	June 9-July 14, Ascher, textiles: panels, squares and designs June 9-July 14, Adrian Ryan, paintings and watercolors
EDWARD TOTAH GALLERY 39 Floral Street • Tel. 379.6241	June 1-July 16, Fernand Léger, "Paintings, gouaches, drawings and prints 1918-1955"
WADDINGTON GALLERIES 2, 4 & 34 Cork St. • Tel. 439.1866	Until June 18, Adrian Berg (4 Cork St.), Milton Avery (34 Cork St.) June 23-July 16, Allen Jones (4 & 34 Cork St.)

SOUTHAMPTON ☎ 44 (703)

JOHN HANSARD GALLERY The University. Southampton • Tel. 559.122	Through June 11, Maggie Hambling, Max Wall pictures; David Ward, portraits June 16-July 16, Nigel Henderson, "Heads Eye Wyn"; Cindy Sherman

FRANCE

BORDEAUX ☎ 33 (56)

C.A.P.C. ENTREPOT LAINE Rue Ferrère • Tel. 44.16.35	Until August 27, Sol LeWitt, structures and wall drawings Richard Long, "Postcards 1968-1982"; Exposition-dossier: Mondrian

CANNES ☎ 33 (9)

GALERIE HERBAGE 17, Rue des Etats-Unis • Tel. 39.19.15	En permanence: Calder, Max Ernst, Matisse, Miró, Picasso, Chadwick, Hepworth, Moore, Nicholson, Sutherland

LYONS ☎ 33 (7)

LE NOUVEAU MUSEE 11, r. Dr. Dolard-69100 Villeurbanne • Tel. 884.55.10	Until July 3, Anish Kapoor, Gerard Collin-Thiebaut From July 7, Salvo

NICE ☎ 33 (93)

GALERIE PAUL HERVIEU 26, Rue Pastorelli • Tel. 80.02.10	Paintings and gouaches by Atlan, Clavé, Coignard, Goetz, Hélénon, Marchand des Raux, Papart and Key Sato.

PARIS ☎ 33 (1)

BAMA 40, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.38.87	June 3-July 9, Tom Phillips Closed mid-July until mid-September
BEAUBOURG 23, Rue du Renard • Tel. 271.20.50	June 15, through July, recent acquisitions and gallery artists: Arman, Bettencourt, César, Degottex, Mathieu, Pignon, Soulages, Schneider, Warhol
GALERIE CAROLINE CORRE 14, Rue Guenegaud 75006 • Tel. 354-5767	Until June 18, Christopher Harmon Cheung As of June 21, group show
CLAUDE BERNARD 5-7-9, Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 326.9707	Until June 18, Gérard Barthlemy, paintings and drawings June 22 through July, Guccione, paintings
ISY BRACHOT 35, Rue Guénégaud • Tel. 354.22.40	Until July 9, Sandorfi

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

PARIS (CONT'D)	☎ 33 (1)
GALERIE JEANNE BUCHER 53, Rue de Seine • Tel: 326.22.32. 326.75.23	Through July, accrochage of gallery artists: Amado, Aguayo, Bissière, Flechemuller, Nallard, Reichel, Stael, Szenes, Tobey
FARIDEH CADOT 77, Rue des Archives • Tel. 278.0836	From June 4, Daniel Trembley
LOUIS CARRE ET CIE. 10, Avenue de Messine • Tel. 562.57.07	Accrochage
JEAN CHAUVELIN 147, Rue St. Martin • Tel. 887.77.76	Russian and European Constructivists, gallery artists.
CREATIS ESPACE ALTERNATIF 50, Rue du Temple • Tel. 887.28.56	Through June 16, Francis Dumoulin, François Maurige; June 16-30, 25 artists' paintings of David Bowie; July, Charles Sirouya, Carmelo Carra
CHANTAL CROUSEL 80, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 887.6081	Through June 27, Sophie Calle From June 29, Boyd Webb
JACQUES DAMASE Galerie de Varenne, 61 Rue de Varenne, • Tel. 705.55.04	June, Jean Cocteau, Man Ray: graphics July, Sonia Delaunay; group show
DURAND-DESSERT 3, Rue des Haudriettes • Tel. 277.6360	June 10-July 22, Jannis Kounellis Until July 22, Patrick Tosani
LE DESSIN 27, Rue Guenegaud • Tel. 633.04.66	June 2-July 15, Velickovic, drawings 1982-83 Closed July 16-September 8
ERIC FABRE 6, Rue du Pont de Lodi • Tel. 325.42.63	June 16-July 9, Côme Mosta-Heirt; Nicole Stenger
PAUL FACCHETTI 20, Avenue de Friedland • Tel. 563.80.26	By Appointment
KARL FLINKER 25, Rue de Tournon • Tel. 325.18.73	Jean Hélion, recent work
GALERIE FARIS 50, Rue de l'Université • Tel. 544.29.48	Through August, Adam Henein, Malek Salah, Farid Haddad
JEAN FOURNIER 44, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 277.3231	Sam Francis
GALERIE DE FRANCE 50-52, Rue de la Verrerie • Tel. 274.38.00	Velickovic, paintings
LILIANE FRANCOIS 15, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.94.32	Until June 30, De Biasis, paintings July 1-20, group show of gallery artists
MAURICE GARNIER 6, Avenue Matignon • Tel. 225.61.65.	Bernard Buffet, permanently.
DANIEL GERVIS GALLERY 34, Rue du Bac • Tel. 261.11.73	Benrath, Constant, Dubuffet, Eterovic, Gerzo, Ghertman, Malaval, Montyn, Mutal, Nevelson, Olson, Pan, Pasotti, Toledo, others.
GILLESPIE/LAAGE/SALOMON 24, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 278.1171	June 11-July 14, David Ryan, paintings
GALERIE MARWAN HOSS 12, Rue D'Alger • Tel. 296.39.45	"Important Works: Masters of the 19th and 20th Centuries," paintings, drawings and sculpture; Through June, Gargallo, one-man show
SAMY KINGE 54, Rue de Verneuil • Tel. 261.1907	Until July 14, Victor Brauner, paintings, drawings and ceramics
LAHUMIERE 88, Bd de Courcelles • Tel. 763.03.95	June 15-20, "Art 14'83" Basel July, gallery artists (Constructivist)
LA HUNE GALERIE EDITIONS 14, Rue de l'Abbaye • Tel. 325.54.06	Original prints by Bacon, S. Delaunay, Ernst, Fassianos, Folon, Friedlaender, Hartung, Kozo, Marcoussis and others
LA HUNE-LIBRAIRIE 170, Boulevard St. Germain • Tel. 548.35.85	Books, catalogues and magazines: Fine arts, literature, architecture, graphics, photography and fashion.
YVON LAMBERT 5, Rue de Grenier St. Lazare • Tel. 271.09.33	As of June 4, Lea Lublin
GALERIE JEAN-PIERRE LAVIGNES 15, Rue St. Louis en l'Isle Paris • Tel. 633.5602	June 27 through July, Mélois, sculpture; August, gallery closed
BAUDOIN LEBON 36, Rue des Archives • Tel. 272.09.10	June 9-July 16, "L'Egypte sort des archives," 19th-century photographs
ADRIEN MAEGHT 46, Rue du Bac • Tel. 222.12.59	June, Miró July, gallery artists

PARIS (CONT'D) ☎ 33 (1)

GALERIE MAEGHT 13 & 14, Rue de Téhéran • Tel. 563.13.19	As of May 26, Valerio Adami, Emilio Tadini, paintings
DENISE RENE 196, Blvd. St. Germain • Tel. 222.77.57	June-July, Kinetic art: Agam, Boto, Le Parc, Morellet, Schoffer, Soto, Tinguely, Tomasello, Tsai, Vasarely, Vardanega
DARTHEA SPEYER 6, Rue Jacques Callot • Tel. 354.78.41	Through June 11, Granet
STADLER 51, Rue de Seine • Tel. 326.91.10	June 2-July 9, Antonio Saura
NANE STERN 25, Ave. de Tourville • Tel. 705.08.46	Until June 11, Jean Pierre Guiot, recent paintings June 14-July 9, Zenzo Sakamoto, paintings
DANIEL TEMPLON 30, Rue Beaubourg • Tel. 272.14.10	June 14-July 13, Alain Kirili
TEXBRAUN 12, Rue Mazarine • Tel. 633.47.84/633.14.57	A permanent collection of XIXth Century French photography
TRANS/FORM 22, Ave de la Bourdonnais • Tel. 550.40.32	Basel Art Fair: Beuys, de Dominicis, de Maria, Dicrola, Kounellis, Lista, Montesano, Salvo
PATRICE TRIGANO 4 bis Rue des Beaux-Arts • Tel. 634.15.01	Through August, gallery artists, Arman, Brauner, Carrière, César, Léger, Masson, Mathieu, Mimiague, Picasso, Richier, Schlosser
GALERIE VALLOIS 41, Rue de Seine • Tel. 329.50.84/85	Csaky, Blegas, Rodin, Dunand, Ruhlman, Franck, Cheret. Fine furniture of the Thirties.
ZABRISKIE 37, Rue Quincampoix • Tel. 272.35.47	From July 5, "Quatre Américains": Lester Johnson, Alex Katz, Max Kozloff and Tim Woodman

LES SABLES D'OLONNE ☎ 33 (51)

MUSEE DE L'ABBAYE STE. CROIX Rue de Verdun • Tel. 32.01.16	Bernard Pagès, sculpture, recent work; Jean Launois "Lithography at the turn of the century: Donation Sorlier"

ST. PAUL DE VENCE ☎ 33 (93)

FONDATION MAEGHT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.81.63	Until June 20, Louis Cane, paintings From July 5, Max Ernst, retrospecitive: 120 paintings, sculptures and drawings
GALERIE CATHERINE ISSERT Saint Paul de Vence • Tel. 32.96.92	July and August, Jean Charles Blais, recent work

TOULON ☎ 33 (94)

MUSEE DE TOULON 20, Boulevard Leclerc • Tel. 93.15.54	Until June 30, "Carte Blanche à Francois Bazzoli" Malllet, Ruquet, Letournelle, De Leusse, Bartolani; Tissier. As of July 16, Chacallis, Lamouroux

TOULOUSE ☎ 33 (61)

AXE-SUD 11, Place de la Daurade • Tel. 25.37.17	Until June 16, Patrick Reynaud June 16 through June, Batlle, Gaspari, Venzac

GERMANY

BERLIN ☎ 49 (30)

GALERIE AKMAK Hohenzollerndamm 7 • Tel. 883.53.12	Until June 11, Kevin Red Star, Crow Indian portraits June 24-30, Armond Lara, paintings, constructions
GALERIE LEITZOW Knesebeckstrasse 32 • Tel. 881.28.95	Until June 25, Robert Mapplethorpe, recent photos
R. ONNASCH AUSTELLUNGEN Niebuhrstr. 5 • Tel. 882.77.18	Until June 11, William Copley, "Post-Raphaelite" paintings (1966-1981) June 15-August 27, Gianni Piacentino
GALERIE POLL Lützowplatz 7 • Tel. 261.70.91	Through June, "Zum Theme: Neue Bilde" G.L. Gabriel, Thomas Lange (catalogue available). Closed July and August
GALERIE FOLKER SKULIMA Niebuhrstrasse 2 • Tel. 881.8280	June 7-July 10, Jannis Kounellis

BONN ☎ 49 (228)

GALERIE LINSSEN Prinz-Albert-Strasse 47 • Tel. 21.89.09	German Expressionists. Russian Avant Garde. International classics. Osvaldo Romberg and Jan Voss.

COLOGNE ☎ 49 (221)

ERVEN'S ART SERVICE Machaerstrasse 1 • Te.12.34.36	We hang the shows
GALERIE GMURZYNSKA Obenmarspforten 21 • Tel. 23.66.21/2	Robert Delaunay
GALERIE KARSTEN GREVE Wallrafplatz 3 • Tel. 21.39.21	Fontana, sculptures

VOL 7 1 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

COLOGNE (CONT'D) ☎ 49 (221)

GALERIE HOLTMANN Richartzstr. 10 • Tel. 21.51.50	Young French Artists: Blais, Blanchard, Boisrond, Combas, DiRosa
GALERIE JOLLENBECK Lindenstrasse 20 • Tel. 24.67.59
RUDOLF KICKEN Albertusstrasse 47/49 • Tel. 21.02.34	Paul Outerbridge Jr., "Platinum Prints"
KÖLNISCHER KUNSTVEREIN Josef-Haubrich-Hof 1 • Tel. 21.70.21/221.3740	Artothek Artists, John Cage
PAUL MAENZ Schaafenstrasse 25 • Tel. 21.81.02	Until June 21, Peter Bömmels From June 25, Salvo
GALERIE ORANGERIE REINZ Helenstrasse 2 • Tel. 23.46.84	Eduard Bargheer
GALERIE RECKERMANN Albertusstr. 16 • Tel. 21.20.64	Alf Lechner, "Neue Ordnungen": massive steel sculptures 1980-83
GALERIE ROLF RICKE Volksgartenstrasse 10 • Tel. 31.57.17	"Art means absolutely nothing, if it ain't new" - from Artschwager to Wolf
GALERIE WENTZEL St. Apernstrasse 26 • Tel. 24.24.00	Milton Avery, paintings; Alexander Archipenko, sculpture; Jules Olitski, sculpture
MICHAEL WERNER Gertrudenstrasse. 24/28 • Tel. 21.06.81	Through July, Markus Lüpertz, bronze sculptures As of August, Baselitz, Byars, Immendorff, Kirkeby, Lüpertz, A.R. Penck
GALERIE RUDOLF ZWIRNER Albertusstrasse 18 • Tel. 23.58.37/8	Kippenberger

DUSSELDORF ☎ 49 (211)

KONRAD FISCHER Platanenstrasse 7 • Tel. 685.908	Jannis Kounellis
GALERIE GMYREK Mutter-Ey-Strasse 5. • Tel. 32.77.70	June, Koberling; July, Chevalier, Finkeldei, Hödicke, Klinkan, Koberling, Lanneau, Middendorf, Sandoz, Szczesny, Tadeusz, Tannert, Zimmer
DENISE RENE HANS MAYER Grabbeplatz 2 • Tel. 13.21.35	June, Takashi Naraha
KUNSTVEREIN RHEINLANDE/WESTFALEN Grabbeplatz 4 • Tel. 327.023	Harry Szeeman: Der Hang zum Gesamtkunstwerk

HAMBURG ☎ 49 (40)

ASCAN CRONE Isestrasse 121 • Tel. 040/47.42.94	Until June 23, Bernd Koberling (catalogue available) From June 23, Imi Knoebel
THOMAS LEVY GALERIE Tesdorpfstrasse 18 • Tel. 45.91.88.	Until June 26, Domenico Gnoli, paintings, drawings, sculptures, graphics (catalogue and poster available)
GALERIE MUNRO Barmbeker Str. 138 • Tel. 48.45.52.	Helmut Middendorf, paintings, works on paper

MUNICH ☎ 49 (89)

GALERIE + EDITION A Amalienstrasse 81 & 87 • Tel: 28.13.64/28.84.45	Anna Recker, paintings and drawings
GALERIE SIX FRIEDRICH Maximilianstrasse. 15 • Tel. 29.50.21 & 29.61.10	Gerard Kever
TANIT Maximilianstr. 38 • Tel. 29.22.33	June 23 through July, Michael von Biel, drawings, paintings

NUREMBERG ☎ 49 (911)

GALERIE JOHANNA RICARD Königstrasse 33/37 • Tel. 22.50.20	Russian Avant-Garde

STUTTGART ☎ 49 (711)

MAX-ULRICH HETZLER GmbH Schwabstrasse 2 • Tel. 62.15.38	Donald Judd, objects and graphics Meuser, sculpture

GREECE

ATHENS ☎ 30 (1)

KAREN & JEAN BERNIER Marasli 51 • Tel. 723.5657	Until June 24, Martin Silverman, sculpture

HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM ☎ 31 (20)

GALERIE KRIKHAAR Spuistraat 330 • Tel. 26.71.66	Appel, Brande, Constant, Corneille, Cottavoz, Henning-Pedersen, Lindstrom, Seura, Sonderlinque and others.
STEDELIJK MUSEUM Paulus Potterstraat 13 • Tel. 73 21 66	Until June 20, Martin Disler, drawings; Kurt Naef, toys

EINDHOVEN ☎ 31 (40)

STEDELIJK VAN ABBEMUSEUM Bilderdijklaan 10 • Tel. 44.85.55	Until June 19, Sculpture: Andre, Baselitz, Chamberlain, Fabro, Flanagan, Long, Lüpertz, Nauman, Penck, Rückriem

ITALY

BARI ☎ 39 (80)

MARILENA BONOMO Via Nicolò dell' Arca 19 • Tel. 21.01.45	Pat Steir

BOLOGNA ☎ 39 (51)

DE FOSCHERARI Via Goidanich 1 • Tel. 27.52.26.	Giosetta Fioroni, paintings 1963-1983
GALLERIA FORNI Via Farini 26 • Tel. 27.07.60	Group show
STUDIO G7, G. GRIGOLO Via Val d'Aposa 7C • Tel. 26.64.97.	Pinuccia Bernardoni

BRESCIA ☎ 39 (30)

PIERO CAVELLINI F.lli Bandiera 18A • Tel. 57.401	Franco Guerzoni
MASSIMO MININI Via Apollonio, 68 • Tel. 56.275	Basel Art Fair Stand 15/215

FLORENCE ☎ 39 (55)

GALLERIA SCHEMA Via della vigna nuova 17. • Tel. 28.40.90.	By appointment, American Contemporary Art, Acconci, Baldessari, Bochner, Burden, Fox, Graham, Huebler, Kaprow, Kosuth, Levine, Oppenheim, Rippe, Rockburne

MILAN ☎ 39 (2)

SALVATORE ALA Via Mameli 3 • Tel. 716-500
ARIETE GRAFICA Via S. Andrea, 5 • Tel. 79.55.73
ARTRA/STUDIO Via Fiori Chiari 8 • Tel. 861.190	"La poetica dell'immagine tra azione e seduzione, opportunità di un incontro." Curated by Marisa Vescovo
STUDIO CANNAVIELLO Piazza Beccaria 10 • Tel. 837.6368	Sigmar Polke, tele; Jorg Immendorff, works on paper
DIAGRAMMA (Luciano Inga Pin) Via Pontaccio 12a • Tel. 874.237	Enzo Preda, "Three Arabian Rooms"
DISEGNI DI ARCHITETTURA Antonia Jannone Via del Carmine 5 • Tel. 878.384	Arduino Cantafora, "Quindici stanze per una casa"
STUDIO CARLO GROSSETTI Via dei Piatti 9 • Tel. 837.5594	Helmut Schober, "Expansion: canvases and drawings in black and white"
FRANCOISE LAMBERT Bastioni di Porta Nuova 11 • Tel. 650.087	Robert Barry Basel Art Fair Stand 15/313
STUDIO MARCONI Via Tadino 15 • Tel. 225.543	Sam Francis
GALLERIA DEL MILIONE Via Bigli 21 • Tel. 780.879
MASSIMO MININI Via Cavalieri des S. Sepolcro • Tel. 86.71.30	Shirazeh Houshiary, new sculptures Basel Art Fair Stand 15/215
GALLERIA SENO Via Ciovasso 11 • Tel. 805.80.64	Riccardo Licata
GALLERIA STENDHAL Via Santo Spirito 10 • Tel. 781.825	"Sculpture in the Urban Space": Bill, Karavan, Gio Pomodoro, Legnaghi, Somaini, Noguchi and others
FRANCO TOSELLI Via del Carmine 9 • Tel. 805.0434	Tony Cragg

VOL 7 1 ISS 6 SUM 1983 UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

MODENA ☎ 39 (59)

GALLERIA EMILIO MAZZOLI Via Nazario Sauro 58a • Tel. 357.605/243.455	Agnetti, Boetti, Calzolari, Chia, Clemente, Cucchi, de Maria, Germanà, Paladino, Schifano, Turcato.

NAPLES ☎ 39 (81)

LUCIO AMELIO Piazza dei Martiri 58. • Tel. 42.20.23/769.0521	Markus Lüpertz Maurizio Cannavacciuolo

ROME ☎ 39 (6)

IL COLLEZIONISTA Via Gregoriana 36 • Tel. 678.45.85	Burri, di Kooning, Afro
GALLERIA ANNA D'ASCANIO Via del Babuino, 29 • Tel. 678.5920	Balla, Broodthaers, Burri, Carrá, Cucchi, Guttuso, Manzu, Melotti, Turcato
UGO FERRANTI Via di Tor Millina 26 • Tel. 654.2146	Richard Tuttle
L'ISOLA Via Gregoriana 5 • Tel. 679.00.29./678.54.77	Carlo Battaglia
GALLERIA IL PONTE Via S. Ignazio 6 • Tel. 679.6114	Through June 18, José d'Alpice, works on paper From June 21, Francesco Maselli, photographs
PRIMO PIANO Via Panisperna 203. • Tel. 460.309	Alberto Moretti; Bookstore specializing in European catalogues and books by artists
IL SEGNO Via Capolecase • Tel. 679.1387	Ilse Bernheimer, works from 1910-1983; International contemporary graphics permanently
SPROVIERI 3 Piazzi del Popolo • Tel. 360.8918/361.0975	Futurism Dada Surrealism.
TONINELLI 86 Piazza di Spagna • Tel. 679.34.88	Important sculpture by: Bodini, Fontana, Marini, Arturo Martini, Melotti, Moore, Medardo Rosso, Schmettau, Vangi.

TURIN ☎ 39 (11)

GIORGIO PERSANO Via dei Mille 29 • Tel. 835.527	Renato Messtri, sculpture
TUCCI RUSSO Corso Tassoni 56 • Tel. 779.304	Richard Long
CHRISTIAN STEIN Piazza San Carlo 206 • Tel. 535.574	Kounellis

VERONA ☎ 39 (45)

STUDIO LA CITTA Via Samaritana 10 • Tel. 25.728	Mario Schifano, recent works

JAPAN

TOKYO ☎ 170

RYU INTERNATIONAL GALLERY P.O.B. 1383 Sunshine-City, Toshima-Ku • Tel. 987.6160	Contemporary Japanese and Chinese (Mainland) original prints. Catalogue upon request. U.S. $10 sea mail postage included

SPAIN

BARCELONA ☎ 34 (3)

GALERIA CIENTO Consejo de Ciento 347 • Tel. 215.63 65	Patricio Velez
SALA GASPAR Consejo de Ciento, 323 • Tel. 318.87.401.318.87.36	Alfaro, Arranz Bravo, Bartolozzi, Clavé, Fenosa, Gudiol, Ibarz, Llové, Miró, Picasso, Riera Rojas, Tharrats, Torralba, Vila-Casas, Viladecans, Villelia
GALERIA MAEGHT Calle Montcada 25 • Tel. 310.42.45	Miró, recent sculpture
LA CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Passeig Sant Joan 108 • Tel. 258.89.07	Amadeo Modigliani
GALERIA JOAN PRATS Rambla Catalunya 54 • Tel. 216.02.84	June, Noland, Secunda, Jim Bird July, group show

IBIZA BALEARES ☎ 34 (71)

GALERIA ES MOLI Carretera San Miguel Sta Gertrudis	Azocar, Bechtold, Calbet, Faber, Galbraith, Hedrich, Kugler, Monreal, Segal, Tomlin, Villanueva, Zush.

	MADRID	☎ 34 (1)
	LA CAJA DE PENSIONES (Centro Cultural) Paseo Castellana 51 • Tel. 419.0440	Amadeo Modigliani
	GALERIA KREISLER DOS Hermosilla 8 • Tel. 431.42.64	Until June 11, Agueda de la Pisa As of June 14, Monica Rubio
	EGAM Villanueva 29 • Tel. 435 3161	Jaime Barrutia, Marina G. Olivares, Carmen Peña, Jose Carlos Ramos
	GALERIA HEINRICH EHRHARDT Barquillo 44 • Tel. 419.52.86	Hans-Peter Adamski
	GALERIA JUANA MORDO Villanueva 7 • Tel. 435.84.42	Until June 30, Miguel Zapata, recent work
	GALERIA DE ARTE MUN Hermosilla 26 • Tel. 401.01.92	Gallery Artists
	GALERIA THEO Marqués de la Ensenada, 2 • Tel. 410.26.51	"Quince años de Galeria Theo"
	TORCULO GRAPHICS & BOOKS Claudio Coello 17 • Tel. 275 86 86	Eusebio Sempere, "Cántico Espiritual de S. Juan de la Cruz" Estampa Rusa, "Grabado soviético actual"
	GALERIA FERNANDO VIJANDE Nuñez de Balboa 65 • Tel. 435 8025	Ian Brackwell
	GALERIA YNGUANZO Antonio Maura 12 • Tel. 231 54 10	Japanese Contemporary Painters
	SEVILLE	☎ 34 (54)
	GALERIA JUANA DE AIZPURU Calle Canalejaz, 10 • Tel. 22.85.01	Diaz Padilla
SWEDEN	MALMO	☎ 46 (40)
	GALERIE NORDENHAKE Ostra Ronneholmsvagen 5 • Tel. 23.15.33	June, Alan Uglow July-August, gallery artists
	STOCKHOLM	☎ 46 (8)
	KONSTRUKTIV TENDENS Nybrogatan 69 • Tel. 61.16.65/61.50.65	June-July, gallery will be closed
SWITZERLAND	BASEL	☎ 41 (61)
	KUNSTHALLE BASEL Steinenberg 7 • Tel. 23.48.33	Until June 19, Philip Guston (1930-1980) Until June 19, Balthasar Burkhard, "Fotowerke"
	GALERIE BEYELER Baumleingasse 9 • Tel. 23.54.12	Cézanne, paintings and watercolors "Art 14'83" Basel, Stand 13.225: "Expressionist paintings beyond Picasso"
	FELIX HANDSCHIN GALERIE Petersgraben 18 • Tel. 25.59.85
	BERNE	☎ 41 (31)
	MARBACH Wasserwerkgasse 37 • Tel. 22.42.05/22.38.25	Contemporary art. By appointment only.
	GENEVA	☎ 41 (22)
	GALERIE BONNIER 4, Rue Saint-Laurent • Tel. 35.87.35	Accrochage of contemporary artists, Arman, Fautrier, Klein, Spoerri, Tinguely
	CENTRE D'ART CONTEMPORAIN Bd. du Pont d'Arve et Bd Karl Vogt • Tel. 28.88.03	(Former Palais des Expositions) Sol LeWitt
	GALERIE ERIC FRANCK 15 Route de Florissant • Tel. 47.08.09	Shirley Goldfarb, retrospective
	CLAUDE GIVAUDAN 3, Rue du Soleil-Levant • Tel. 29.91.61.	XXth Century drawings and prints Paper Tablecloths, collected by Georges Hugnet
	MARIE-LOUISE JEANNERET 59, Avenue de Champel • Tel. 46.34.57
	DANIEL VARENNE Galerie Clos de Sierne 15, Chemin de Sierne • 84.15.93	Impressionist and 20th Century masters. By appointment only

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORY

GENEVA (CONT'D) ☎ 41 (22)

WEBER 13, Rue de Monthoux • Tel. 32.64.50	June, Francisco Zuñiga, lithographs; Peter Takal, drawings (Hilton Hotel) July, peintres Suisses naïfs; August, William Papas, watercolors

ZURICH ☎ 41 (1)

THOMAS AMMANN FINE ART Restelbergstrasse 97 • Tel. 362.62.31	Impressionists & 20th Century Masters—by appointment only.
GALERIE BISCHOFBERGER Utoquai 29 • Tel. 910.43.62	June 11-July 7, Sandro Chia, new works
KONRAD FISCHER Ackerstrasse 44 • Tel. 42.71.61	June-July, Richard Brintzenhofe
GIMPEL•HANOVER•EMMERICH Tödistrasse 40 • Tel. 202.03.00	June 11-July 16, Raffael Benazzi, bronze sculpture new gallery: June 11-July 16, Ruedi Bechtler, "Papercuts". Closed until mid-Aug.
M. KNOEDLER Kirchgasse 24 • Tel. 69 35 00	June 11-July 16, Calder From July 23, Franz Gertsch
GALERIE MAEGHT Predigerplatz 10-12 • Tel. 251.11.20	June-July, Markus Lüpertz, paintings August, gallery closed
MAURER Münstergasse 14-18 • Tel. 47.85.00	June, Stefan Wewerka July, gallery closed
PETER NOSER St. Jakobstrasse 11 • Tel. 242.55.16	June-July, Jean Mauboulès, sculptures, drawings, paintings
GALERIE SCHLEGL Minervastrasse 119 • Tel. 251.4963	June-July, "Abstraction géometrique," U.S.A. and France "Art 14'83" Basel, Stand 15.237
ANNEMARIE VERNA Mühlegasse 27 • Tel. 252.27.70	Contemporary art. By appointment only
ANNEMARIE VERNA Scheuchzerstrasse 35 • Tel. 44.27.15	June 9-July 16, Donald Judd, sculptures and drawings "Art 14'83" Basel, Stand 15.237
JAMILEH WEBER Schanzengasse 10 • Tel. 47.79.89	June-July, Alex Sadkowsky
WORK GALLERY Frohalpstr. 65 • Tel. 482.39.58	International photography
RENÉE ZIEGLER Rämistrasse 34 • Tel. 251.23.22	Through July 16, Gotthard Graubner

VENEZUELA

CARACAS ☎ 58 (2)

GALERIA MINOTAURO
Calle Madrid-Entre Mucuchies y Monterrey • Tel. 92 27 40

ART IN AMERICA IS AVAILABLE IN EUROPE AT:

Amsterdam

Athenaeum Boekhandel, B.V.
Spui 14-16

Art Something Co.
Herengracht 259

Robert Premsela Boekhandel
van Baerlestrasse 78

Antwerp

Boekhandel Ban Den Bosch
St. Jacobsmarkt 1-B

Basel

Stampa
Spalenberg 2

Berlin

Galerie 2000
Knesebeckstrasse 56

Bern

Hans Huber
Länggasstrasse 76 und
Marktgasse 9

Brussels

Librairie Post Scriptum
Rue des Eperonniers, 37

Cologne

Walther König
Breite Str. 93

Erlangen

Buchhandling Redmann
Bohlenplatz 6/12

Florence

Centro Di
l/r Piazza de' Mozzi

Geneva

Ecart
16 rue d'Italie

Hamburg

Sautter & Lackmann
Klosterstern 8

London

Arts Bibliographic
37 Great Russell Street

Arts Council Shop
8 Long Acre
Covent Gardens, WC2E 9LG

Lyon

L'Ollave
58, rue Tramassac

Madrid

Torculo Graphics & Books
Claudio Coello 17

Milan

PAC - La Libreria
via Palestro 14

Idea Books Bookstore
Via Cappuccio, 21

Paris

Artcurial
9 Avenue Matignon

Flammarion 4
Librairie du Centre Georges Pompidou
Plateau Beaubourg

Galerie Jean Fournier
44 rue Quincampoix

Librairie La Hune
170, boulevard Saint-Germain

Librairie Musee d'Art Moderne
de la Ville de Paris
11, Avenue du President Wilson

Rome

Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna
Viale delle Belle Arti, 131

Strasbourg

Librairie Les Idees et Les Arts
Place Brant

The Hague

Artline
Toussaintkade 67-68

Toulouse

Ombres Blanches
Librairie/48
rue Gambetta

Turin

OOLP
Via Principe Amedeo

Vienna

Buchhandlung am Hafnersteig
Hafnersteig 10

PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY
OF THE FINE ARTS

Oldest art school in America offers majors in Painting, Sculpture & Printmaking. Admission to Day school by Portfolio. Accredited by NASAD. Financial Aid available. Approved for Veterans.

Evening & Summer programs in Painting, Drawing and Sculpture.

Founded 1805

For catalog write:
PAFA, Room M,
Broad & Cherry Sts.,
Phila., PA 19102

SUMMER GROUP EXHIBITION

ADELE ALSOP	PHILIP MULLEN
MICHAEL FILMUS	RICHARD PITTS
JANE IRISH	BILL SULLIVAN
DANIEL LANG	MARQUERITE WALSH
CHARLES MOSER	JOHN WILDE

DAVID FINDLAY JR
CONTEMPORARY
41 East 57 New York 10022 212-486-7660

NEW PRINTS
Rosenquist
Warhol

Summer Exhibit "New Talent '83"

Barbara
Gillman
Gallery

270 N.E. 39th Street
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

3886 Biscayne Blvd.
Miami, Florida 33137
(305) 573-4898

NEW ACQUISITIONS
FERNANDO BOTERO
LOUISE NEVELSON
JOAN MIRÓ
HENRY MOORE
IMPRESSIONIST DRAWINGS
LILLIAN HEIDENBERG GALLERY
50 WEST 57 STREET NEW YORK CITY 10019 (212)586-3808

E.A.T. BIBLIOGRAPHY 1965-1980
by BILLY KLUVER

Lists 969 publications documenting the evolution of art and technology since 1965

$7.50 plus $1 postage and handling

EXPERIMENTS IN ART AND TECHNOLOGY
49 East 68th Street New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 285-1690

WOO SHIK HAHN
24 May - 18 June

GALLERY ARTISTS through August

Barbara Walter Gallery, Inc.
1015 Madison Avenue, N.Y.C. 10021

MARVIN KING DIRECT CARVING IN HARDWOODS
SIGNED, LIMITED EDITION, 30 MIN. VIDEO CASSETTE ORIGINAL MUSIC $268.00, VHS OR BETA
JANE LEE VIDEO GALLERY P.O. BOX 50014 AUSTIN, TEXAS 78763 512-476-2799

JON LEON GALLERY
PROGRESSIVE VIDEOS
"Six Televisions: Cityscape . . . Landscape . . . Escape." by Michel Auder with music by Rhys Chatham Opening Saturday June 4 - July 1

plus works by:	Peter Harron
Lynn Blumenthal	Michael Marton
Ed Bowes	Larry Rivers
John Chamberlain	Keith Sonnier
Matthew Geller	Michel Auder

call for program
31 Desbrosses Street New York City 226-7789
Open Saturday 12 to 6 pm. Other Days by Appointment Only

VOL
71
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Rosa Esman Gallery

29 West 57 Street
New York NY 10019

212 421 9490

A Surprise Move

CLEMENT MEADMORE

THROUGH JUNE 25

MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

JUNE / JULY 1983
LUCIA JAHSMANN: Clay
BEVERLY MOOR: Paper
JUNE 11 - JULY 16
JAY PHILLIPS: Prints
JULY 23 - AUGUST 27

B. Z. WAGMAN GALLERY
34 NORTH BRENTWOOD
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI 63105
314-721-0250

PAPERWORKS
June
GALLERY ARTISTS
July

HABER THEODORE GALLERY
29 West 57th Street, New York 10019 (212) 752-3338

TATISTCHEFF

WE ARE PLEASED TO ANNOUNCE OUR MOVE TO EXPANDED QUARTERS AT
50 WEST 57TH STREET
THE NEW SPACE
WILL OPEN
JUNE 1, 1983
WITH A SPECIAL
GALLERY ARTISTS
GROUP EXHIBITION

TATISTCHEFF
50 WEST 57 • NEW YORK • 888-1599

CHRISTOPHER WHITE

ERICSON GALLERY 23 EAST 74TH STREET NEW YORK

Modern American Masters
1900 - 1945: A Survey

THE HARCUS GALLERY
7 Newbury Street
Boston, MA 02116
(617) 262-4445

Review*Preview*
JUNE 7 THROUGH AUGUST 19

REVIEW 1982/1983	PREVIEW 1983/1984
WILL HORWITT	HEIDE FASNACHT
JOE NEILL	DENNIS OPPENHEIM
DAVID SHAPIRO	BILL SPIRA
ALVIN TADA	TINA STACK
	ABBIE ZABAR

VANDERWOUDE TANANBAUM
24 E 81 STREET/NEW YORK/212 879 8200

Index of Advertisers

Adams-Middleton ... 32
Adler Gallery, Pam ... 54
Akira Ikeda Gallery ... 162
Ala, Salvatore ... 82
Alexander, Brooke ... 24
Allport Associates ... 88
Alspark, Inc. ... 176
Ars Libri ... 166
Artexpo, Texas ... 177
Art Institute of Boston ... 176
Art Services Listings ... 173-175
Arts Focus ... 99, 103

Batman Gallery, Donald ... 162
Berggruen Gallery, John ... 22
Biach Gallery ... 172
Bladen, Ronald ... 28
Blum/Helman ... Cov.IV
Bonlow Gallery ... 91
Bonnier Gallery ... 177
Boone Gallery, Mary ... 58
Borgenicht Gallery ... 60
Bornstein Gallery, Karl ... 56
Boyd Gallery, Roy ... 94, 95
Branchville SoHo Gallery ... 87
Brentwood Gallery ... 96
Brown & Bro., Inc., Arthur ... 172

C.A.P.C. ... 14
Castelli Gallery ... 100
Castelli Graphics ... 84, 92
C.D.S. Gallery ... 89
Chicago Int'l Art Exposition ... 153
Chistof's ... 82
Chivas Regal ... 63
Christie's ... 17
Cicero, Jan ... 169
Clark Gallery, Garth ... 90
Cooper Gallery, Paula ... 58
Cowles Gallery, Charles ... 86
Creative Time ... 166
Crown Point Press ... 15
Custom House Gallery ... 100

Davidson Gallery, Maxwell ... 60
DBR ... 94
Del Re Gallery, Marisa ... 4
De Nagy, Tibor ... 60
DIA Art Foundation ... 81
Dintenfass Gallery, Terry ... 63
Dominion Gallery ... 162

Eason Gallery ... 89
Editions Ltd. Gallery ... 172
Editions Press ... 61, 93
El Taller ... 82
Emmerich Gallery, Andre ... 6
Ericson Gallery ... 190
Esman Gallery, Rosa ... 190
Exhibit A ... 178

Fairweather Hardin Gallery ... 83
Findlay Jr., Inc., David ... 189
Firebird Gallery ... 26
Fiterman Gallery, Dolly ... 54
49th Parallel ... 55
Forum Gallery ... 176
Fourcade, Xavier ... 55
Fox Gallery, Pearl ... 98
Franklin Furnace ... 170
French Museums ... 34
Frumkin Gallery, Allan ... 52
Fuller Goldeen ... 88

Galerie Claude Bernard ... 46
Galerie Patrick Cramer ... 81
Galerie de France ... 5
Galerie Maeght (NYC) ... 2
Galerie Maeght (Zurich) ... 60
Galerie St. Etienne ... 57
Galerie St. Etienne ... 57
Galerie Michael Werner ... 90
Gallery Paule Anglim ... 87, 94
Gallery One, Inc. ... 178
Getler/Pall ... 86
Gillman Gallery, Barbara ... 189
Gladstone Gallery, Barbara ... 87
Gold Gallery, Fay ... 82
Goldstrom Gallery, Foster ... 53
Gondeck Gallery ... 82
Great Northern Brokerage ... 169
Greenberg Gallery ... 42
Grimaldis Gallery, C. ... 178
Grumbacher, Inc. ... 154
Haber, Suellen ... 96
Haber-Theodore ... 190
Hadler-Rodriques ... 178
Halioua Editions, Ltd., Juliette ... 163
Hamilton Gallery ... 54
Hammer Gallery ... 64
Harcourts Gallery ... 178
Harcus Gallery ... 190
Heidenberg, Lillian ... 189
Hirschl & Adler Modern ... 59
Hobe Sound ... 97
Hoffman Gallery, Nancy ... 54
Hokin Gallery ... 84
Hokin/Kaufman Gallery ... 84
Horan Gallery, Vivian ... 56
Horwitch Gallery, Elaine ... 62, Cov.III
Houston Fine Art Press ... 57
Hudson River Museum ... 177
Hutchinson Gallery, Max ... 190
Iannetti Gallery, Pasquale ... 92
Ianuzzi Gallery ... 88
Impressions Gallery ... 83
Incorporated Gallery ... 177
Ind. University of PA ... 177
International Art Alliance ... 171
International Art Exposition, Inc. ... 177
Jacobson, Bernard (NY) ... 176
Jacobson, Bernard (LA) ... 178
Janus Gallery ... 82
Jerry's Artarama ... 171
Kind Gallery, Phyllis ... 95
Klein Gallery ... 91
Knoedler & Co., M. ... 83
Knowlton Gallery, Monique ... 56
Krakow Gallery, Barbara ... 26
Kraushaar Galleries ... 89
L.A. Packing & Crating ... 172
Leavin Gallery, Margo ... 57
Lee Video Gallery, Jane ... 189
Leon Gallery, Jon ... 189
Lewin Galleries, B. ... 169
Locks Gallery, Marian ... 164
Love Galleries, R.H. ... 64
Marlborough Fine Art, London ... 12
Marlborough Gallery ... 52
Maroney & Co., James ... 18
Martin Fine Art, Mary-Anne ... 88
Mathes Gallery, Barbara ... 22
Matisse Gallery, Pierre ... 86
Metropolitan Arts Commission ... 172
Midtown Galleries ... 177
Miller Gallery, Robert ... 16
Milliken Inc., Alexander ... Cov. II
Mint Museum of Art ... 101
MIT Press ... 166, 170
Modernism ... 27
Modern Master Tapestries ... 177
Multiples/Marian Goodman ... 58
Munson Gallery ... 82, 97
McKee Gallery, David ... 84
Nahan Art Galleries ... 102
National Art & Space Museum ... 169
Nielson Gallery ... 56
NoHo Gallery ... 177
Now & Then Gallery ... 177
October Gallery ... 178
Oscarsson-Hood Gallery ... 84
PA Academy of Fine Arts ... 189
Pace Editions ... 1
Park Row Gallery ... 103
Parsons, Betty ... 100
Payson Weisberg ... 97
Perlman, Miriam ... 92
Phoenix Gallery ... 90
Pleiades Gallery ... 25
Protetch Gallery, Max ... 85
Rachofsky, Morton ... 176
Richebourg/McCoy ... 96
Rosenfield Gallery, Betsy ... 62
Rutberg Gallery, Jack ... 92
Santa Fe Gallery Association ... 82
Sawyer Gallery, William ... 86
Scharf Gallery ... 82
Sculpture Placement ... 102
Segal Gallery, Thomas ... 91
Seguy Gallery, Yvonne ... 164
Semaphone Gallery ... 58
Shiva, Inc. ... 172
Siegal Contemporary Art ... 98
SL Art Gallery ... 176
Solomon Gallery, Holly ... 51
Sperone Westwater ... 162
Staempfli Gallery ... 40
Stoler Gallery, Bette ... 40
Stoller & Co., John ... 59
Stone Gallery, Jeremy ... 91
Storm King ... 50
Studio 47 ... 99
Tamar Arts ... 167
Tasende Gallery ... 176
Tatistcheff & Co., Peter ... 190
Taylor Art, Carol ... 96
Telepraisal ... 171
Totah Gallery, Edward ... 85
Twining Gallery ... 95
Vanderwoude Tananbaum ... 190
Waddington Galleries, Theo ... 24
Wagman Gallery, B.Z. ... 190
Wall Street Journal ... 168
Walter Gallery, Barbara ... 189
Wave Hill ... 176
Weinberg Gallery, Daniel ... 90
White & Assoc., Roberto ... 26
White Gallery, Martha ... 98
Willard Gallery ... 164
Winsor & Newton ... 165
Yares Gallery ... 95
Yarlow/Salzman Gallery ... 164
Yoseido Gallery ... 178
Young/Hoffman ... 94
Zabriskie Gallery ... 16
Zwirner & Sproveri ... 20
ART IN ITALY
Karen & Jean Bernier ... 79
Galerie Beyeler ... 71
Charles Cowles Gallery ... 77
Andre Emmerich Gallery ... 75
Gimpel-Hanover & Andre Emmerich Galerien ... 75
Ugo Ferranti ... 76
L'Isola ... 78
Galleria Marescalchi Bologna ... 72
Denise Rene Hans Mayer ... 79
Massimo Minini ... 70
Galerie Neuendorf ... 73
Galleria Tucci Russo ... 68-69
Toninelli Arte Moderna ... 74
Franco Toselli ... 66-67

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
UMI

Artworld

BBC Rothko Program Sued

"The Rothko Conspiracy," a TV docudrama based on the much publicized Rothko trial [see "Artworld," Jan., Feb. '83] and the events that led up to it, is under fire on legal as well as artistic grounds. Described in various press reviews as ragged, outrageous, tasteless and shocking, it is also allegedly defamatory to some of the protagonists. Produced for the BBC and aired here on May 3 as part of PBS's "American Playhouse" series, the film is billed as "a distillation of the events as perceived by the filmmakers." Their principal sources were the public prosecutor, Gustave Harrow, who provided technical advice and trial transcripts, and Lee Seldes's book, The Legacy of Mark Rothko. Both Harrow and Seldes have disavowed any artistic involvement with the production.

That the program entailed considreable distortion was acknowledged by the BBC and American Playhouse, which together, prior to public viewing in the U.S., deleted sections from the film that had been separately objected to by painter Theodore Stamos and attorney Edward J. Ross, who was chief counsel to Kate Rothko. Each contends he is falsely characterized in the film. Though satisfied that the portions he found personally defamatory have been expurgated, Ross maintains that the film is still inaccurate in portraying his role in the trial as subsidiary to Harrow's, and he asserts that the unauthorized use of his name in such fictitious context is illegal. He also points out, and the Rothko Foundation concurs, that the film violates copyright law by showing reproductions of Rothko's paintings.

Stamos, a former executor of the Rothko estate who was convicted of negligence and conflict of interest, is not content with the cut version of the film. Stamos's most general complaint is that he is portrayed in a degrading manner throughout. Based on damages sustained from the film's previews alone (these were uncut, and were reportedly attended by film and art critics, dealers and other art-world figures), Stamos initiated a $10-million suit against New York's Channel 13, one of PBS's member stations. According to Stamos's lawyer, Robert G. Cucinell, the actual compensation sought in the pending lawsuit will undoubtedly be much higher, since the program has subsequently been broadcast nationally and repeated in certain regions.

More Rothko Damages

On May 12, seven of nine Rothko paintings on 18-month loan from the Rothko Foundation to the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art [see "Artworld," May '83], were vandalized while the museum was open to the public. The damage, reported by a guard in the late afternoon, consists of a single, z-shaped scratch, about 2½ inches square, in the center of each painting. The marks, some of which are detectable only under raking light, do not penetrate the canvases and appear to have been made with a small, blunt instrument. According to Rothko Foundation conservator Dana Cranmer, the works are "not wholly compromised" and are most likely repairable. Four of the damaged paintings are mural-size, roughly 89 by 65 inches.

All of the works in the show are from 1949 and were hanging in a small, individually guarded gallery. No assessment of financial damages had been announced as this issue went to press.

The Rothko Foundation says the occurrence will not curtail the foundation's newly instituted program of lending works for public exhibition, but that extra security precautions will be taken in future.

Artist Demographics

According to statistics from the most recent (1980) national census, the U.S. artist population has increased 81 percent since 1970 (the year of the last census), with 1,085,693 artists comprising 1.4 percent of the total civilian labor force. California has overtaken New York as the state with the largest artist population (176,321 versus New York's 138,424). Texas is number three, with 61,802 artists, followed by Illinois (50,467), Florida (48,302), Pennsylvania (43,363), and Ohio (39,768). Wyoming comes last, with a mere 1,602.

For the purposes of the census, artists are identified as authors, designers, musicians, composers, actors, directors, painters, sculptors, craftspersons, printmakers, photographers, dancers, radio and TV announcers, art teachers and architects—employed and unemployed.

People

Joan Simon, managing editor of Art in America, has been named director of the new Broida Museum of Contemporary Art, New York [see Artworld, April '83]. Art critic and cofounder of the literary publishing company, Full Court Press, she was an editor at Praeger before joining Art in America nine years ago.

I.M. Pei is recipient of the 1983 $100,000 Pritzker Architecture Prize.

Presidential Awards

The President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities honored six artists and six patrons for their contributions to the arts. Among them: Frank Stella, Philip Johnson, Philip Morris Inc., the Dayton Hudson Foundation of Minneapolis, and Elma Lewis, founder of Boston's Elma Lewis School of the Arts and the National Center of Afro-American Arts. These awards by the presidential committee, which was formed in 1982 to encourage private-sector arts support, are hoped to be the forerunners of an annual national medal in the arts.

Obituaries

James Van Der Zee, 96, photographer best known for his 1920s and '30s portraits of celebrities of the "Harlem Renaissance." Van Der Zee began as a studio photographer in Harlem in 1916, making formally posed, often retouched portraits of members of the local community. He also chronicled the street life, photographing parades, funeral processions and other events for nearly 50 years.

Van Der Zee's first recognition by the art world came in 1969, when he was 82 and had a selection of his work included in the Metropolitan Museum's exhibition "Harlem on My Mind." He was subsequently shown at galleries and museums across the country, with numerous exhibitions at the Studio Museum in Harlem, to which he donated his archives in 1981, and where a small permanent exhibition is on view.

Museum Preview of the Month

"Expressions: New Art from Germany" at the St. Louis Art Museum [June 24–Aug. 21] will present the work of five major proponents of the current figurative painting in Germany: Georg Baselitz, Jörg Immendorff, Anselm Kiefer, Markus Lüpertz and A.R. Penck. The show will include paintings, sculpture and drawings dating back as far as the mid-'60s. Approximately half of the 112 works—including all of the drawings—have never before been seen in this country; about 70 percent are loans from European collections.

Jack Cowart, the St. Louis Museum's curator of 19th- and 20th-century art and organizer of the show, considers the five artists under examination the principal catalysts of the resurgence of German art over the past two decades.

After leaving St. Louis, the show travels to P.S. 1, Long Island City, N.Y. [Oct.–Nov.]; the Institute of Contemporary Art, Philadelphia [Dec. 3–Jan. '84] and the Contemporary Arts Center, Cincinnati [Dec. 8–Jan. 21, '84], which will divide the show between them; the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago [Feb. 3–Apr. 1]; Newport Harbor Art Museum [Apr. 19–June 10]; Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D.C. [July–Sept. '84]. A soft-cover catalogue [$17] with essays by Cowart, Siegfried Gohr, director of Cologne's Kunsthalle, and Donald Kuspit is being published by Prestel-Verlag, Munich, in association with the St. Louis Art Museum.

Michael B. (Mickey) Ruskin, 50, an owner of Chinese Chance restaurant at One University Place in Manhattan, died in New York in May. As proprietor of or partner in a series of artists' bars and a generous friend to untold numbers of New York artists, he was a conspicuous figure in avant garde art circles for many years. Ruskin filled his bars with art works in return for which he extended food and drink—on a more or less unlimited basis for many artists during hard times.

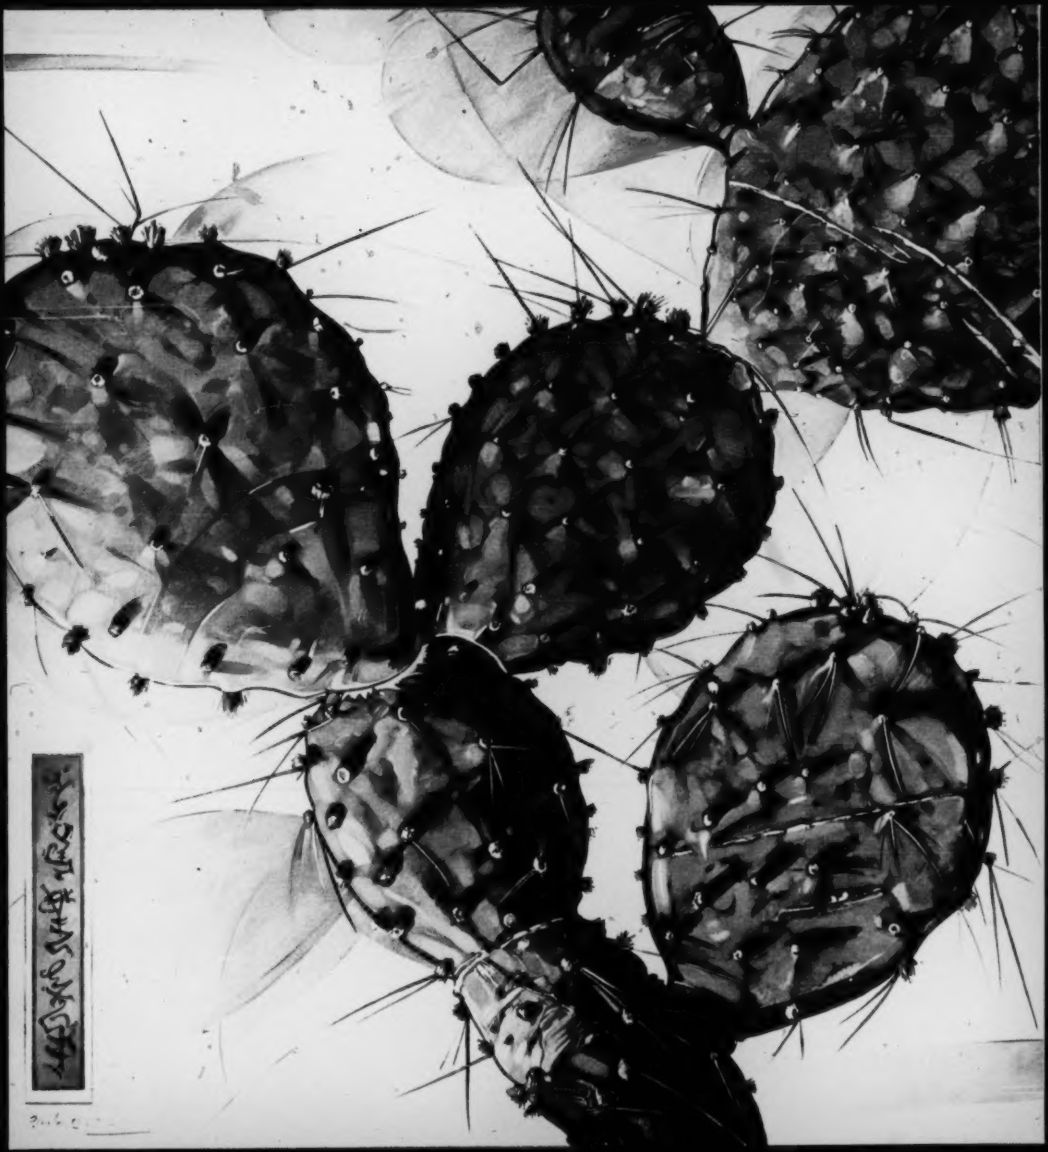
Best known was the famous Max's Kansas City (1965-74) on Lower Park Ave., a social/intellectual hangout for those who made the '60s scene in New York what it was. His artist clientele drew a much larger cast of characters ranging from the intelligentsia to the fashionable to the outrageous.

Michael Ruskin, 1982. Photo (detail) Gerard Malanga.

More serious devotees will also remember (in chronological order) the Tenth Street Coffee House (which held poetry readings), Deux Magots, the Ninth Circle (where the artist connection began and which preceded Max's), the Annex, the Longview Country Club, Max's Terre Haute (an art world refuge on the upper East Side), the LoCal on Waverly Place, the Lower Manhattan Ocean Club on Chambers Street, and of course Chinese Chance, open since 1978, which a couple of years ago celebrated its third birthday with an exhibition of 30 works by its artist customers [see A.i.A., Jan '82].

—Elizabeth C. Baker

JOHN FINCHER



"Oriental Cactus" Oil on Canvas 72" x 66"

Santa Fe Exhibition:
July 2-21, 1983

ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

129 W. Palace Avenue
Santa Fe, New Mexico
87501
(505) 988-8997

4211 N. Marshall Way
Scottsdale, Arizona
85251
(602) 945-0791

Schnebly Hill Road and Highway 179
Sedona, Arizona 86336
(602) 282-6290

VOL
7
1
ISS
6
SUM 1983
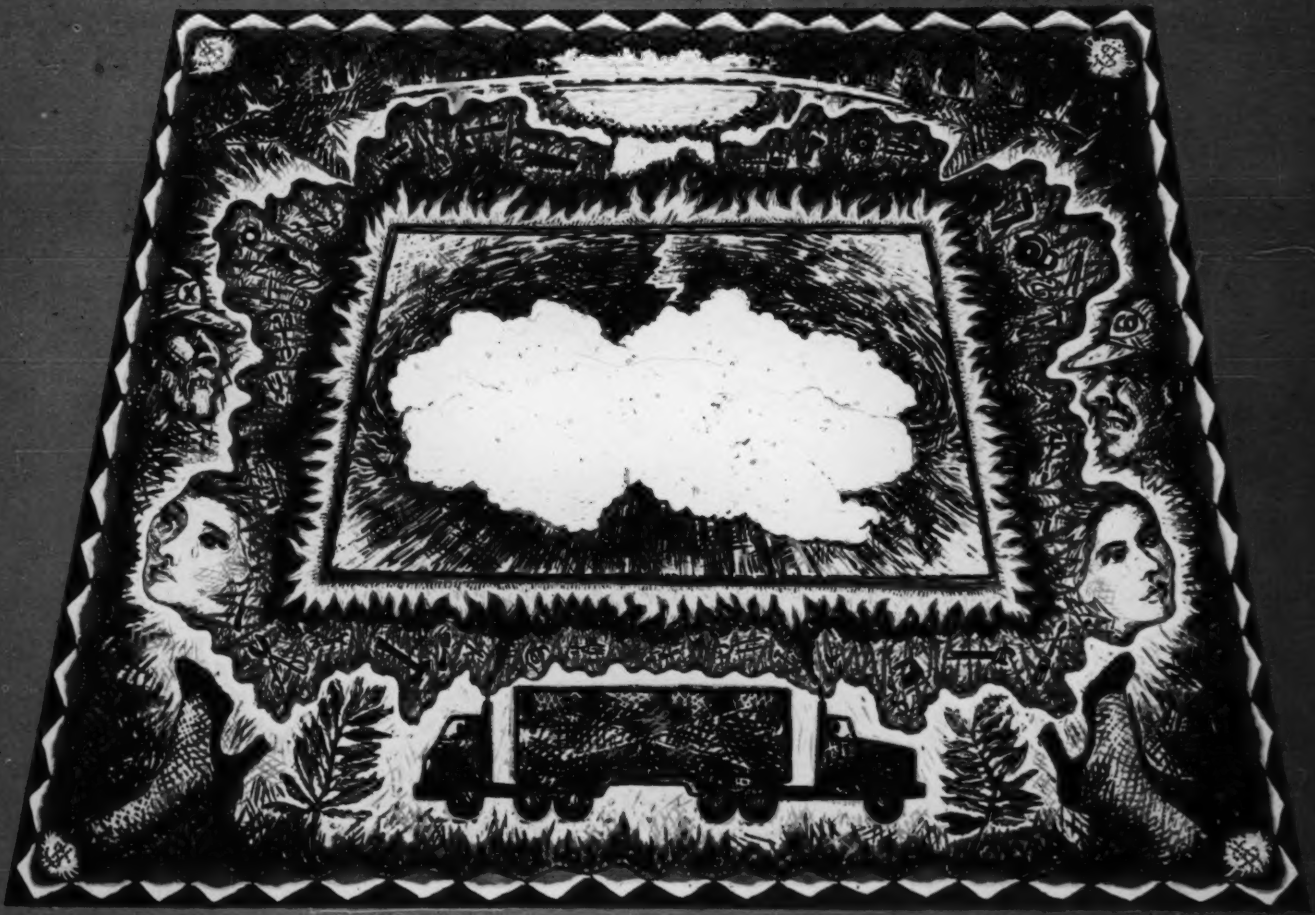
UMI



"Earth Farewell," 1981

John Tweddle
Paintings 1968-1982
1 June - 25 June

BlumHelman
20 West 57 New York

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
A G 1983
UMI

359

Art in America

ANNUAL 1983-84/$5.95

1983-84 ANNUAL

GUIDE TO GALLERIES MUSEUMS ARTISTS

Sourcebook to the U.S. Artworld / More Than 2,500 Annotated Listings
Who's Where and How to Find Them / Desk Reference, Address & Telephone Book
Solo Exhibitions / Key Personnel / Artist-Gallery Indexes / Catalogue Index
1982 Pictorial Review / 1983-84 Previews / Editorial Index to Art in America

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
A G 1983
UMI

The extraordinary art of Wendell Castle

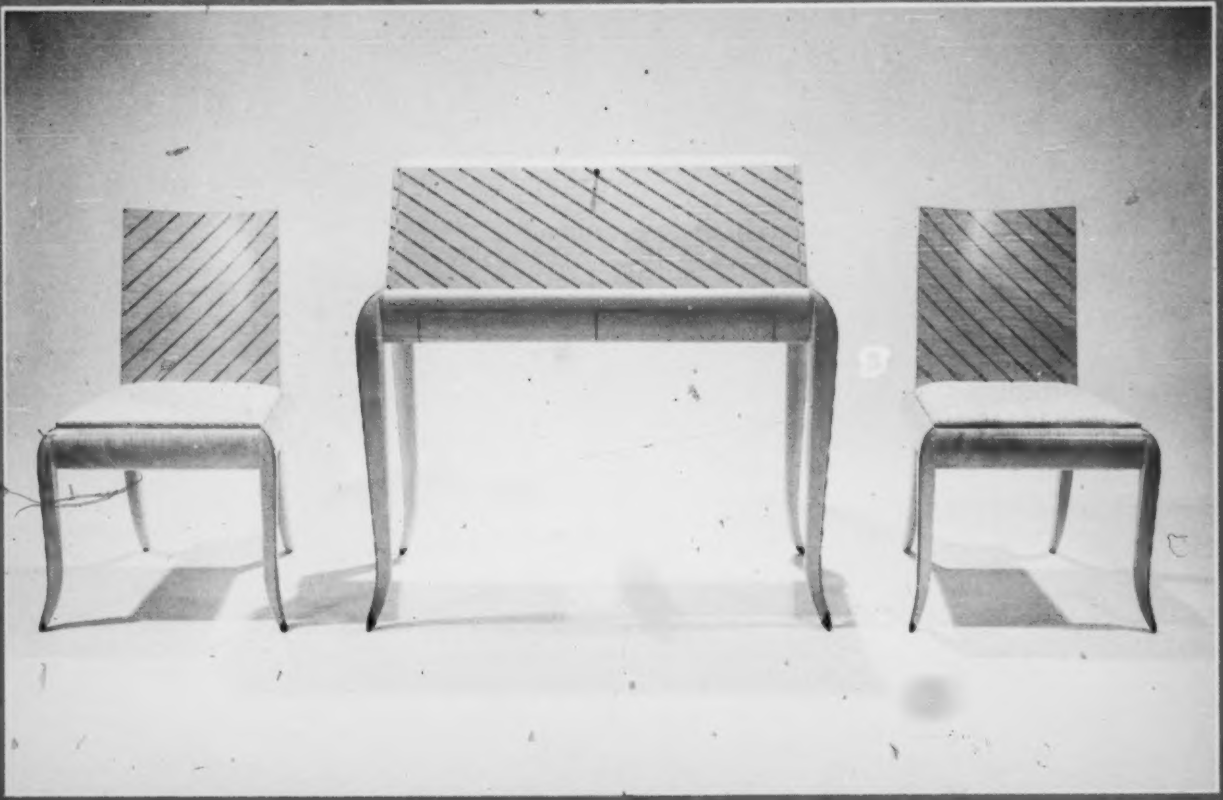
Alexander F. Milliken Inc.
98 Prince Street, New York, NY 10012
Telephone: 212 - 966 - 7800



Lady's Desk with Two Chairs, 1981
Curly English sycamore, ebony, amaranth
Desk: 40" x 41½" x 22¼"
Chairs: 32" x 22" x 22"

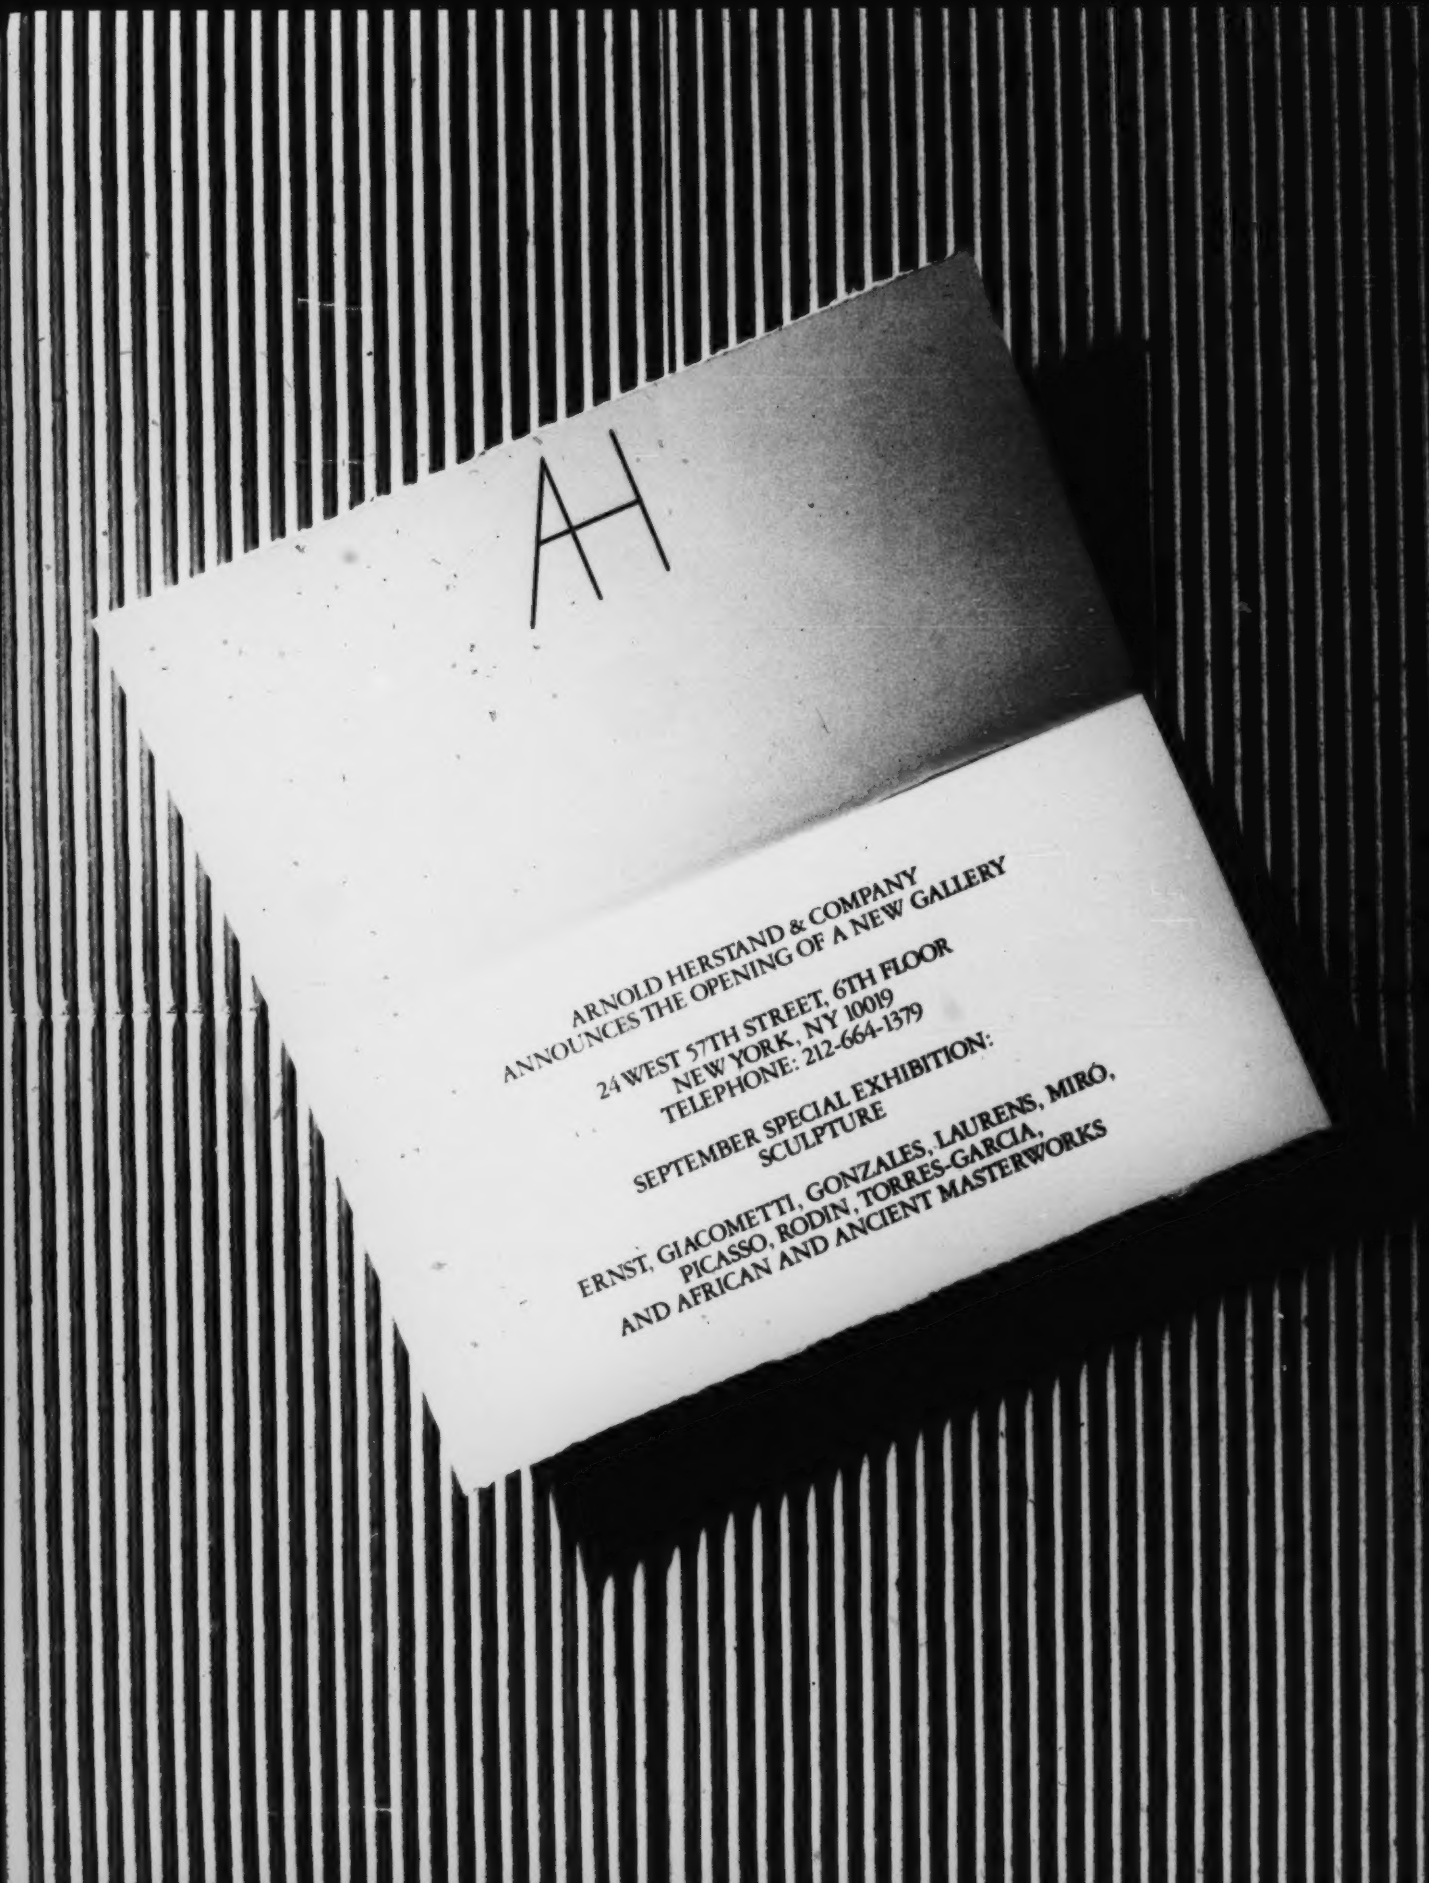
pierre matisse gallery

since 1932 at 41 east 57, new york

balthus	1938 · 39 · 49 · 57 · 62 · 67 · 77
calder	1934 · 36 · 37 · 40 · 41 · 42 · 43
chagall	1941 · 42 · 44 · 45 · 46 · 47 · 48 · 68 · 68 · 69 · 72 · 73 · 75 · 79 · 81 · 82
chirico	1935 · 40
dubuffet	1947 · 47 · 47 · 48 · 50 · 51 · 52 · 54 · 56 · 58 · 59 · 78
giacometti	1948 · 50 · 58 · 61 · 64
lam	1942 · 44 · 45 · 48 · 50 · 82
matta	1942 · 44 · 45 · 46 · 47
millares	1965 · 74
miró	1932 · 33 · 35 · 36 · 38 · 39 · 40 · 41 · 42 · 44 · 45 · 45 · 47 · 48 · 49 · 50 · 51 · 51 · 52 · 1953 · 56 · 58 · 59 · 61 · 63 · 65 · 67 · 70 · 72 · 73 · 73 · 75 · 76 · 76 · 78 · 80 · 83
riopelle	1954 · 56 · 69 · 74 · 74 · 77
rouan	1976 · 82
saura	1961 · 64 · 71
tanguy	1939 · 42 · 43 · 45 · 46 · 50 · 63
zao wou-ki	1980

important one-man exhibitions since 1932

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI



ARNOLD HERSTAND & COMPANY
ANNOUNCES THE OPENING OF A NEW GALLERY

24 WEST 57TH STREET, 6TH FLOOR
NEW YORK, NY 10019
TELEPHONE: 212-664-1379

SEPTEMBER SPECIAL EXHIBITION:
SCULPTURE

ERNST, GIACOMETTI, GONZALES, LAURENS, MIRÓ, PICASSO, RODIN, TORRES-GARCIA, AND AFRICAN AND ANCIENT MASTERWORKS

Art in America
GUIDE TO
GALLERIES · MUSEUMS · ARTISTS

Preview of 1983–84: In the Museums 9

1982 in Review:

- Museums 14
- Galleries 16
- Public Sculpture 20
- Alternative Spaces 22
- People 25
- Obituaries 27

THE GUIDE

The Guide is a comprehensive alphabetical listing, arranged by state and city, of U.S. museums, galleries and alternative spaces. Included are addresses, phone numbers, business hours, key staff members and a short description of the type of art shown. Artists given solo shows in 1982 are listed; an asterisk after the artist's name indicates a catalog was produced for the show (see catalog index). Other artists represented exclusively or in affiliation with another gallery are also listed. Each institution is assigned a key number, used for cross-referencing in all indexes.

INDEXES

Galleries, Museums and Alternative Spaces 225
An alphabetical listing of all the institutions listed in the Guide.

Catalogs to Solo Exhibitions 237
Indexed by the last names of artists, listing the title, number of pages, and price; cross-referenced to key numbers of exhibiting institutions.

Artists 245
Alphabetical listing cross-referenced to artists' gallery affiliations and institutions where they had shows in 1982.

1982 Editorial Index to Art in America 285
All articles and reviews published during 1982 indexed by author as well as artists and/or subject; an additional index lists book reviews by author.

Art Services: Classified Listings 295

Editor: Elizabeth C. Baker

Managing Editor: Joan Simon / Executive Editor: Nancy Marmer / Senior Editors: Ted Mooney, Craig Owens / Associate Editors: Prudence Carlson, Hal Foster / Assistant Managing Editor: Kathryn Howarth / Assistant Editor: Robert Fisher / Designer: Alberto P. Gavasci / Associate Designer: Louis D'Esposito / Consultant: John Peter / Contributing Editors: Donald B. Kuspit, Lucy Lippard, Sarah McFadden, Linda Nochlin, Carter Ratcliff, Bryan Robertson, Irving Sandler, Peter Schjeldahl, Roberta Smith, Charles F. Stuckey / Corresponding Editors: Chicago, Franz Schulze; San Francisco, Peter Selz; Washington D.C., David Tannous; London, Suzi Gablik; Rome, Milton Gendel

STAFF FOR GUIDE Project Director: Amy Slaton / Editorial staff: Kerry Green, Karen Ritter, Mary Ellen Johansen, Esther Nordin, Marianne Meyer, Deena Shoshkes, Frederic W. Nardin III, Pamela Nowell / Assistants: Tori Beauclaire, Mary Lou Janiak

Publisher: Paul Shanley

Director of Advertising: Susan B. Anthony / Advertising Sales: Deborah J. Gardner, Karen Niedzielski, Ruth B. Rothseid / Advertising Services: Julia H. Price, Susanne Vorster / Production: Mary Jontry / Production Assistant: Sarah King / Promotion Director: Valerie Green / Circulation Director: Barbara Gutman / Circulation Manager: Susan Blattman / Marketing Services Director: Karen Tubridy / Art in America, 850 Third Ave., N.Y.C., 10022, Tel. (212) 715-2600

Director for International Development: John H. Liesveld Jr/Administrative Assistant Grant S. Barker, , Art in America, 39 Quai des Grands Augustins, 75006 Paris, France. Tel. (1) 325.26.55.

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION MAGAZINE DIVISION
PRESIDENT John S. Prescott SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, FINANCE/ADMINISTRATION Gordon H. Duncan
VICE PRESIDENT MARKETING William Hitzig VICE PRESIDENT PLANNING Dean Heine
VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCTION James Kearney VICE PRESIDENT PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT Virginia Evans

WHITNEY COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATION
CHAIRMAN Walter N. Thayer
PRESIDENT Charles H. G. Rees

Vol. 71, No. 7 (August) Art in America is published 11 times a year (monthly except July) by Art in America, Inc., 850 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. Telephone (area code 212) 715-2600. Cable address: AMARTMAG. A member of the Magazine Division of Whitney Communications Corporation. Contents copyright © 1983 by Art in America, Inc., and may not be reproduced in any manner or form without permission. ISSN: 0004-3214. The opinions expressed in "Issues and Commentary," apart from the editor's comments, are those of the writers themselves and not necessarily those of this magazine. Not responsible for unsolicited manuscripts or photographs. Art in America is indexed in the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Art Index. Back volumes of Art in America are available in microfiche from Bell & Howell, Att. Periodical Department, Old Mansfield Road, Wooster, Ohio 44691. Microfilm copies are available through Xerox University Microfilm, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. Articles appearing in this magazine are abstracted and indexed in Historical Abstracts and/or America: History and Life and RILA. Circulation is verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Controlled circulation postage paid at Concord, N.H. and New York, N.Y. BACK ISSUES AND COMPLETE VOLUMES: Lawrence McGilvery, P.O. Box 852, LaJolla, Calif., 92038. SUBSCRIPTIONS: U.S. 11 issues $34.95, 22 issues $59.95, 33 issues $79.95. Possessions & Canada add $8.00 per year. All others add $15.00 per year. Domestic single copy $4.00 prepaid. Single copy August/Annual $7.45 prepaid (includes $1.50 postage and handling). SUBSCRIPTION OFFICE: Art in America, 542 Pacific Ave., Marion, Ohio 43302. Telephone (area code 614) 383-3141. FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS send old and new addresses and label from a recent issue. POSTMASTER Send Form No. 3579 to Art in America, 542 Pacific Avenue, Marion, Ohio 43302.

ABC Member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Now Representing:

Valerio Adami
Arman
José Luis Cuevas
Jeffrey Maron
Kenzo Okada
Richard Pousette-Dart
George Tooker

Extensive Collections of:

Antoni Tapies

André Masson:
The American Years, 1941-45

20th Century Paintings, Drawings and Sculpture by American and European Masters

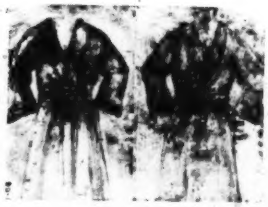
Marisa del Re Gallery

41 East 57th Street, New York 10022, Tel (212) 688-1843

Modern Master Prints

European and American 19th and 20th Century prints by Avery, Bonnard, Cassat, Cezanne, Hopper, Kandinsky, Leger, Marin, Matisse, Picasso, Roualt, Toulouse Lautrec, and Whistler.



Contemporary Prints

Extensive selection of prints published during the last 20 years by important contemporary American and European artists including Albers, Close, Dine, Dubuffet, Held, Hockney, Johns, Kelley, Lichtenstein, Marden, Motherwell, Nevelson, Oldenburg, Rauschenberg, Steinberg, Trova and Warhol.

African Art

Sculpture and beadwork from the traditional art producing ancient cultures of the Western Sudan, West Africa and Central Africa.

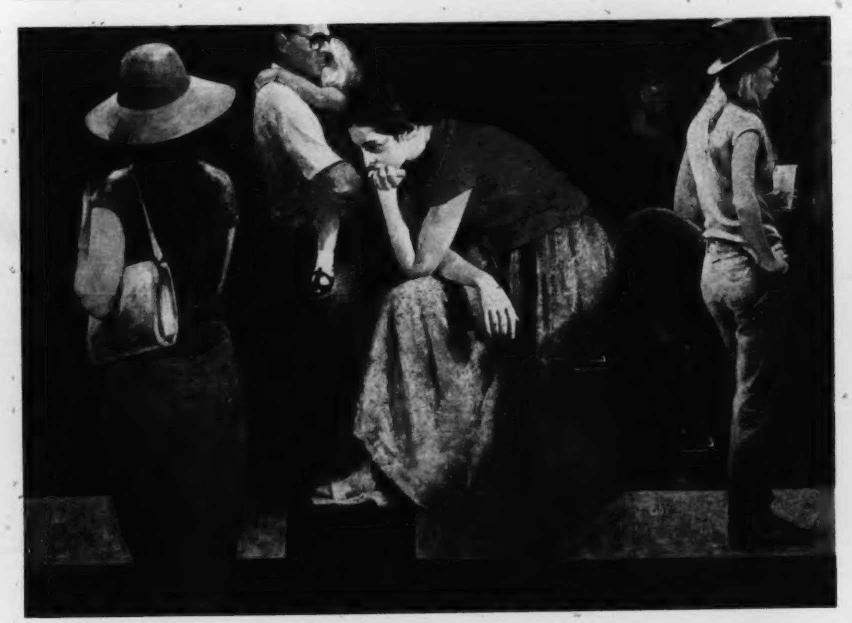
Photography

Vintage and contemporary American and European 19th and 20th Century photographs by a wide variety of artists.

PACE EDITIONS 32 EAST 57 NEW YORK

PACE

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI



"Central Park at Night" Oil 50½ × 70 Inches

Marc Klionsky

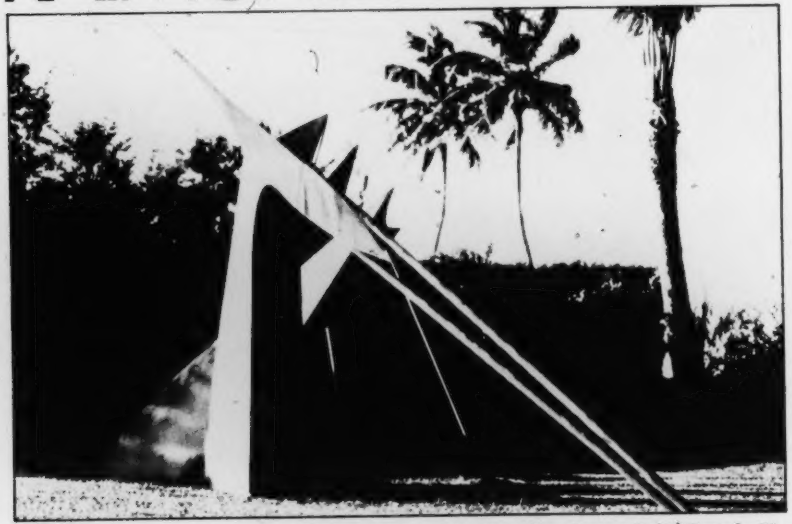
We are pleased to announce the exclusive representation of the artist's work.

Hammer Galleries

SINCE 1928

33 WEST 57th STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019
(212) 644-4400

RAIMONDI



"EQUULEUS" 1980 Cor-ten 11' x 25' x 12' Private collection, Palm Beach, FL.
Commissions available through Dolly Fiterman Gallery.

df
Fine Art

AVERY
D'ARCANGELO
DINE
FRANCIS
INGEBRAND
JACOBSON
JOHNS
JUDGE KRAUSS
LATTANZI
McCULLOUGH
MOORE
MOTHERWELL
MUNZNER
MYERS
PHILLIPS
PLIOPLYS
ROSENQUIST
SMITH STAVITSKY TILSON
WARHOL

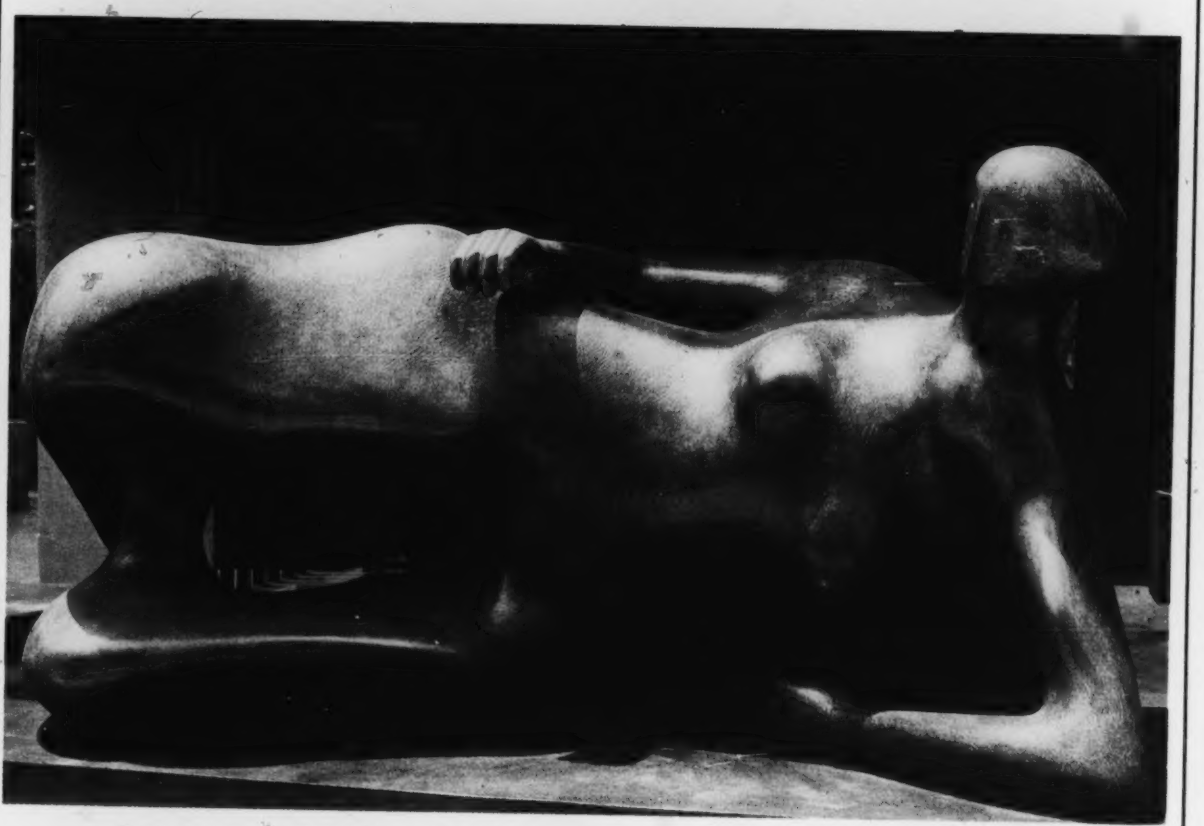
and other 20th Century Masters

DOLLY FITERMAN GALLERY

contemporary, American & European paintings, sculpture, drawings and prints

Suite 238 Plymouth Bldg. Mpls., MN 55402 (612) 370-8722

HENRY MOORE

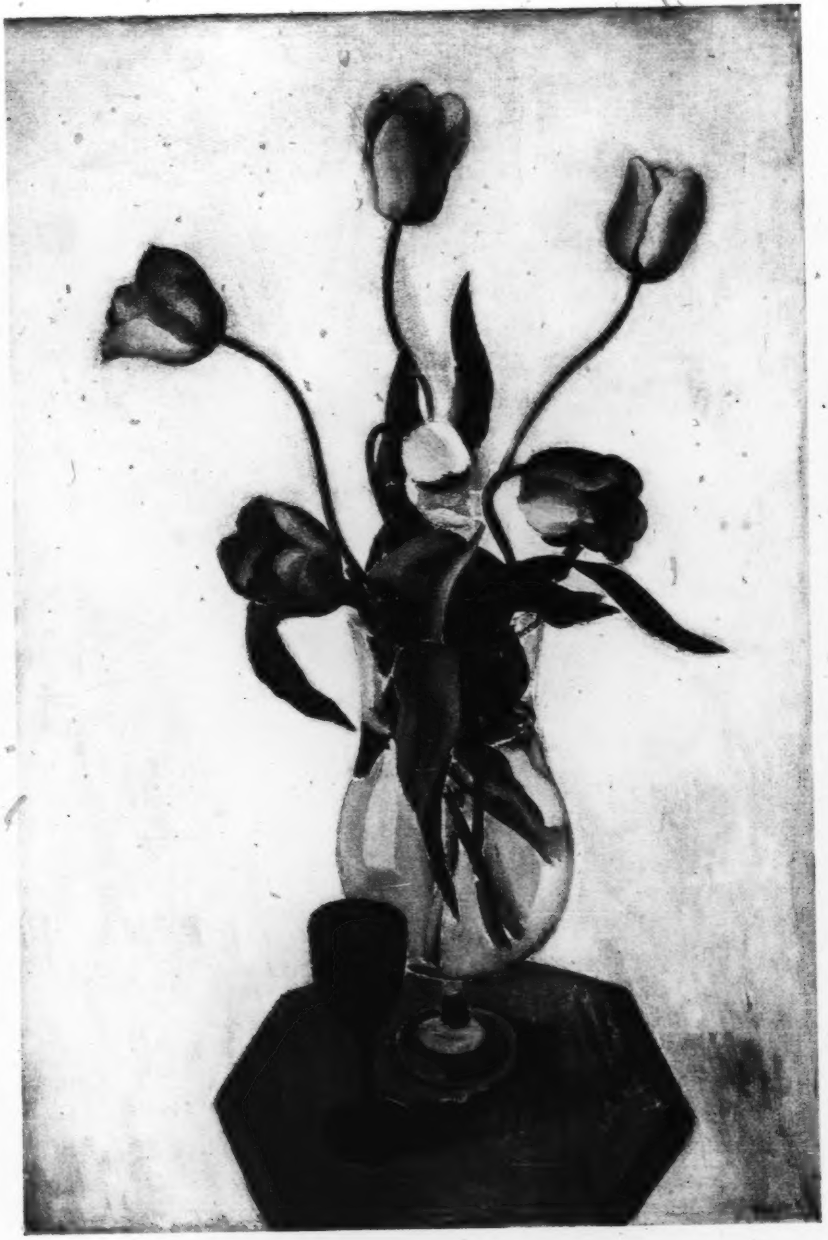


Reclining Woman, 1982, Bronze, 87 inches long

Tasende Gallery

820 Prospect Street
La Jolla, California 92037
(619) 454-3691

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI



Charles Sheeler
Red Tulips
Oil on canvas, 30 x 20 inches
Painted circa 1926
Signed Sheeler, lower right

JAMES MARONEY incorporated

129a East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 879-2252
Church Street, Roxbury, CT 06783 (203) 354-6783

Preview 1983-84

An advance look at highlights of the forthcoming museum season.

SEPTEMBER '83

Tang Dynasty (618–907 A.D.):* Female Rider in Foreign Attire.

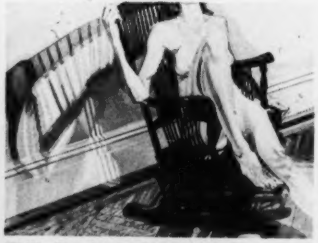
Treasures from the Shanghai Museum: 6,000 Years of Chinese Art at the Asian Art Museum, San Francisco, opened this summer and runs through Sept. 30; the show features 232 ceramics, bronzes, sculptures, jades and paintings, selected by Yuon d'Argencé, director of the Asian Art Museum, and Shen Zhiyu, director of the Shanghai Museum. Itinerary: Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, Nov. 1, '83–Feb. 14, '84; Houston Museum of Fine Arts, Mar. 16–July 9, '84; National Museum of Natural History/National Museum of Man, Aug. 11–Nov. 30, '84.

Cymon: Syracusan Decadrachm, ca. 400 B.C.

Wealth of the Ancient World: The Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt Collections at the Kimbell Art Museum, Ft. Worth (to Sept. 18), features 38 bronzes, 15 painted vases and 112 coins from the eighth century B.C. to the fifth century A.D., drawn from the collections of the Hunt brothers of Dallas. The show travels to the Virginia Museum, Oct. 18–Dec. 11, '83; the Detroit Institute, Feb. 1–Mar. 24, '84; and the Dallas Museum, Apr. 25–June 10, '84.



Philip Pearlstein:* Female Model on Platform Rocker, *1977–78.

Philip Pearlstein: A Retrospective is on view at the Brooklyn Museum to Sept. 18; it features more than 100 paintings, drawings and watercolors, and was organized by Russell Bowman for the Milwaukee Art Museum (where it premiered, Apr. 15–June 19, '83). It travels to the Pennsylvania Academy, Dec. 15–Feb. 26, '84, the Toledo Museum, Mar. 18–Apr. 29, '84, and Carnegie Institute, May 19–July 15.

Hungry Ghosts Scroll, 12th century.

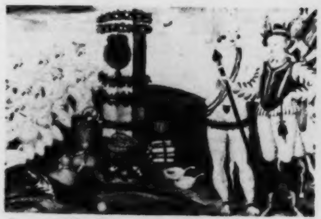
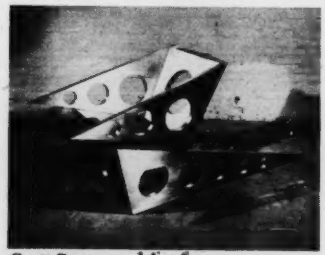
Emaki: Narrative Scrolls from Japan at the Asia Society, Sept. 22–Nov. 6, '83, curated by Miyeko Murase of Columbia U., will present 35 works never before shown in the U.S.; dating from the 8th century to the 20th, these long, horizontal scrolls combine rich illustrations with calligraphic texts and tell classic tales of court life, miraculous religious stories, or sagas of battles and journeys. This is its only U.S. stop.



Jacques Le Moyne de Morgues:* Rene de Laudonniere and the Indian chief Athore Visit Ribaut's Column, *1564.

Painting in the South: 1564–1980 at the Virginia Museum (Sept. 14–Nov. 27) features ca. 150 works by professional and folk artists of the south, as well as European and northern artists who worked there, in the first comprehensive study of painting in the southern U.S. Included is a small watercolor on vellum of an explorer and an Indian chief painted in 1564 and thought to be the earliest work executed on the North American continent. The show travels to the Birmingham Museum of Art (Jan. 8–Mar. 4, '84), the National Academy of Design (Apr. 6–May 27, '84), the Mississippi Museum (June 24–Aug. 26, '84), the J.B. Speed Art Museum, Louisville (Sept. 16–Nov. 11, '84), and the New Orleans Museum (Dec. 9–Feb. 3, '85).



Scott Burton:* Aluminum Chair, *1980–81.

Scott Burton Chairs at the Ft. Worth Art Museum, (Sept. 24–Nov. 6), includes 11 chair designs, dating from the early '70s to the present, in the first museum show covering the full range of the artist's formal vocabulary. Jointly organized by Marge Goldwater of the Ft. Worth Art Museum and Robert Stearns of the Cincinnati Contemporary Art Center (where it premiered this spring), the exhibition traveled to the Walker Art Center (through Aug. 21) and goes on to the Contemporary Art Museum, Houston (Nov. 12–Jan. 9, '84).

The Inside Story: Intimate Fashions Then and Now at the Denver Art Museum, Sept. 3, '83–Jan. 15, '84, curated by Imelda Degraw, will focus on fanciful and practical underclothing, from bustles to long johns, largely drawn from the museum's own costumes and textiles collection. About 140 exhibits dating from ca. 1850 to the present will be complemented with illustrations of earlier items as well as period costumes demonstrating the silhouettes that resulted from the undergarments.

Art of Aztec Mexico: Treasures of Tenochtitlan at the National Gallery, Sept. 28–Jan. 8, '84, is the first major international show of objects from the Templo Mayor of Tenochtitlan, capital of the Aztec Empire, and features ca. 90 items, including monumental stone sculptures, gold jewelry, feather work, polychrome Mary Cassatt:* The Bath, *1891.

A New World: Masterpieces of American Painting, 1760–1910 at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Sept. 7–Nov. 13, '83, organized by Theodore E. Stebbins, Jr., will present 110 "icons" of American art. The show includes works by 49 artists, but focuses on ten major painters—Copley, Cole, Church, Heade, Lane, Bingham, Mount, Harnett, Homer and Eakins. The exhibition travels to the Corcoran, Dec. 6–Feb. 12, '84 and the Grand Palais in Paris, Mar. 16–June 11, '84.

ceramics and small sculpture of semi-precious stone. The exhibition is curated by Elizabeth Boone and is a joint undertaking of the NGA and Dumbarton Oaks in Washington, D.C. This is the show's only stop.

Manet: Woman with a Parrot, 1866.

Manet at the Metropolitan Museum, Sept. 10–Nov. 27, '83, jointly organized by Françoise Cachin of the Louvre (where the show premiered Apr. 22–Aug. 1, '83) and Charles S. Moffett of the Met, will include 80 paintings, 45 drawings and watercolors and 33 prints in the most extensive Manet show since the memorial exhibition in 1884. The Met is its second and final stop.

Grant Wood: American Gothic, 1930.

Grant Wood: The Regionalist Vision arrives at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, Sept. 25–Jan. 1, '84, after a summer-long run at New York's Whitney (to Sept. 4). Curated for Minneapolis by Wanda M. Corn of Stanford U., it contains more than 80 paintings, drawings and lithographs and traces Wood's development from early Impressionist works through mature American Scene paintings of 1930–42; the show also includes documentary sections on Regionalism and on selected caricatures of American Gothic. It travels to the Art Institute of Chicago (Jan. 21–Apr. 25, '84) and San Francisco's de Young Museum (May 12–July 15, '84).

The Presentation in the Temple, from The Hours of William Lord Hasting, before 1483.

Renaissance Painting in Manuscripts: Treasures from the British Library at the J. Paul Getty Museum, Malibu, Oct. 6–Jan. 8, '84, comprising 48 exhibits from 24 of the library's finest French, Flemish and Italian Renaissance manuscripts. For all but five of the manuscripts, this will be their first trip outside the British Library. Organized by Thomas Kren of the Getty and Derek Turner and Janet Blackhouse of the British Library, the show travels to the Morgan Library, New York, Jan. 20–Apr. 29, '84, and the British Library, May 20–Sept. 30, '84.

MEN USED TO MASTURBATE
WE APOLOGIZE FOR USING SEX TO SELL OUR PRODUCTS AND WE SOLEMNLY PROMISE NO MORE SEXY PHOTOS. NO MORE PHOTOS AT ALL! JUST GOOD, CLEAN UNDERWEAR ADS— THE KIND THAT NO ONE WILL GET EXCITED OVER. NOW YOU CAN SAY "I FOUGHT PORNOGRAPHY IN MY MAIDENFORM BRA."
NEW! NO FRILLS, NO THRILLS PACKAGE
The lingerie against pornography

Erika Rothenberg: Morally Superior Products: Feminist Underwear, 1982.

Language, Drama, Source and Vision at the New Museum, Sept. 23–Nov. 9, '83, will be the inaugural show at the museum's new SoHo space (at 583 Broadway), and will include work by ca. 50 artists, including Nicholas Africano, John Baldessari, Elizabeth Murray, Al Souza and others. The show will address what the museum curators, Marcia Tucker, Ned Rifkin and Lynn Gumpert, see as some of the most important issues in contemporary art since 1977.

New Perspectives in American Art: 1983 Exxon National Exhibition at the Guggenheim Museum, Sept. 30–Nov. 27, '83, is organized by Diane Waldman and will present the work of 11 as-yet unnamed artists from across the U.S. This will be the fifth in the series of such shows sponsored by Exxon, which also provides the museum with funds to purchase one work of earch artist for its permanent collection. Does not travel.

Morley: Cradle of Civilization, 1982.

Malcolm Morley at the Corcoran (Sept. 9–Nov. 6) includes 55 works dating from his early loaded-brush Photo-Realist work of 1964 (ships, landscapes, racetracks) to his recent lyrical landscapes and symbolic figure paintings. Organized by Nick Serota of London's Whitechapel Gallery, the show toured in Europe and goes on to the Chicago Museum of Contemporary Art (Nov. 19–Jan. 22, '84) and the Brooklyn Museum (Feb. 18–Apr. 15, '84).

A.R. Penck: Untitled (Festival), 1974.

Expressions: New Art from Germany, organized by Jack Cowart of the St. Louis Art Museum (where it opened in June), arrives Sept. 25 at P.S. 1, Queens (to Nov. 20). Featuring about 10 paintings each from Baselitz, Immendorff, Kiefer, Lüpertz and Penck, it is the first museum show of this generation of German Neo-Expressionists. Further itinerary: the show splits into two parts for December, at the Philadelphia ICA, Dec. 3–Jan. 21, '84 and the Cincinnati CAC, Dec. 8–Jan. 21, '84; reassembled, it continues to the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, Feb. 3–Apr. 1, '84; Newport Harbor Art Museum, Apr. 19–June 10, '84; Corcoran, June–Aug. '84.

Morris Graves: Blind Bird, 1940.

Morris Graves: Vision of the Inner Eye, organized by Ray Kass for the Phillips Collection, includes 140 works of this Northwest coast artist known for his fluid, calligraphic style; it arrives in New York's Whitney Museum Sept 16–Nov. 27. The show covers the range of his mystical images, from the Message series (1937) to the Tantra Yantra series (1982). The show opened at the Phillips in April, '83 and is at the Greenville County Museum of Art, Greenville, S.C. to Aug. 28; after the Whitney, it travels to the Oakland Museum, Jan. 18–Mar. 25, '84; Seattle Art Museum, Apr. 19–July 8; San Diego Museum, July 24–Sept. 4.

OCTOBER '83

Robert Motherwell: Elegy to the Spanish Republic No. 34, 1953–54.

Robert Motherwell at the Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Oct. 1–Nov. 27, curated by Douglas Schultz, is a retrospective including 74 paintings and 18 collages spanning 1941–1982. Itinerary: L.A. County Museum, Jan. 5–Mar. 4, '84; San Francisco MOMA, Apr. 12–June 3, '84; Seattle Art Museum, June 22–Aug. 5, '84; Corcoran, Sept. 15–Nov. 4, '84; Guggenheim, Dec. 7–Feb. 3, '85.

Charles Bird King: Young Omaha, War Eagle, Little Missouri and Pawnees, 1821.

The Capital Image: Painters in Washington 1800–1915 at the National Museum of American Art, Oct. 19–Jan. 22, '84, guest-curated by Andrew Cosentino, will include ca. 200 paintings, 25 prints, 50 photographs and a reconstruction of a late-19th-century artist's studio; the capital's unique cultural position particularly encouraged portraiture of national leaders, history painting embodying American ideals, political cartooning, and scientific illustration engendered by the presence of the Smithsonian.

Pablo Picasso: Nude and Smoker, 1968.

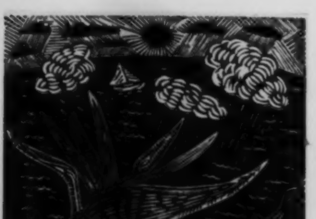
Picasso: The Last Decade at N.Y.U.'s Grey Art Gallery, Oct. 26–Dec. 10, curated by Gert Schiff of N.Y.U.'s Institute of Fine Arts, includes ca. 40 paintings, 40 drawings and 70 graphics from Picasso's last ten years and will argue that this period contains some of his greatest works. The possibility of a tour to Japan is being negotiated.



Richard Mock:
Bird of Paradise, 1979–83.

The American Artist as Printmaker at the Brooklyn Museum, Oct. 27–Jan. 1, '84, curated by Barry Walker, is the museum's 23rd print national, held every other year, and features more than 100 prints by 90 artists.

Thomas Gainsborough: Study of a Lady for "The Richmond Water-Walk," 1780s.

Gainsborough Drawings at the National Gallery, Oct. 2–Dec. 4, '83, organized by John Hayes, director of London's National Portrait Gallery and Lindsay Stainton of the British Museum, features 91 works—landscapes, figure studies, costume sketches—in the first U.S. show of his drawings. Itinerary: Kimbell Art Museum, Ft. Worth, Dec. 17–Feb. 19, '84; Yale Center for British Art, Mar. 7–Apr. 29.

Marcello Nizzoli: Lexicon 80 standard typewriter, 1946.

Design Since 1945 at the Philadelphia Museum, Oct. 16–Jan. 8, '84, curated by Katherine B. Hiesinger and installed by designer and architect George Nelson, will include ca. 450 items in a survey of mass-produced contemporary decorative art and designs. The show will not travel.

Rembrandt in 18th-Century England at the Yale Center for British Art, Oct. 19–Dec. 30, '83, presents 167 items, largely mezzotints, in an examination of Rembrandt's reputation through etchings by his followers (James McArdell, Richard Houston, Richard Earlom, William Pether and Johann Gottfried Haid). The show was curated by Christopher White of the Paul Mellon Center for Studies in British Art, London, David Alexander of Oxford and Ellen D'Oench of Wesleyan. The show will not travel.

Lee Krasner: A Retrospective at the Houston Museum of Fine Arts, Oct. 28–Jan. 8, '84, curated by Barbara Rose, will include 70–80 paintings and 30–40 works on paper made from 1937 to 1982; the show tours to the San Francisco MOMA, Feb. 16–Apr. 5, '84, the Corcoran Gallery, June–Aug. '84 (exact dates not yet set), and New York's Museum of Modern Art, Dec. 19, '84–Feb. 12, '85.

Eugene Atget: Saint-Cloud, 1926.

The Work of Atget: The Ancien Regime, opening at the Houston Museum of Fine Arts, Oct. 14–Dec. 18, is the third installment of a four-part Atget show organized by John Szarkowski and Maria Morris Hambourg for MOMA, and will concentrate on photos of the gardens of Versailles, St. Cloud and Sceaux made in the first quarter of the 20th century. After a nine-month break, the show opens at Minneapolis Institute of Arts, Sept. 15–Nov. 11, '84; and appears at Detroit Art Institute, Dec. 4–Jan. 13, '85; Cleveland Museum, Jan. 23–Mar. 3, '85; MOMA, Mar. 14–May 14, '85; St. Louis Art

Juan Gris: Harlequin with a Guitar, 1917.

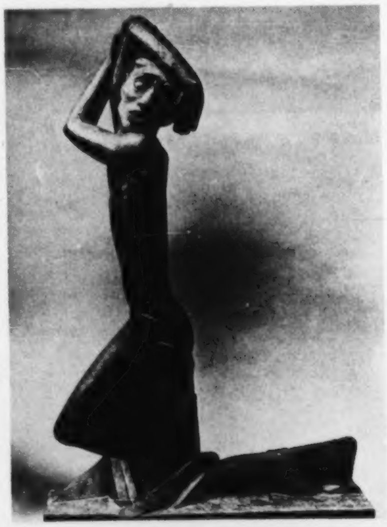
Juan Gris at the National Gallery, Oct. 15–Dec. 21, '83, will include 90 works in the first Gris retrospective in 25 years. The show was organized by Mark Rosenthal for the University Art Museum, Berkeley, where it opens Feb. 1–Apr. 14, '84; it travels to the Guggenheim, May 14–July 30, '84.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI



Milly Steger: Youth Rising from the Dead, ca. 1919-20.

German Expressionist Sculpture at the L.A. County Museum of Art, Nov. 1–Jan. 22, '84, organized by Stephanie Barron, will include more than 120 sculptures in bronze, wood, plaster, stone and porcelain made by 33 artists in the '20s. Travels to the Hirshhorn, Apr. 4–June 17, '84, and the Josef-Haubrich-Kunsthalle, Cologne, July 7–Aug. 26, '84.

Museum, June 6–July 21, '85; Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, Aug. 29–Oct. 27, '85.

NOVEMBER '83

David Hockney: Mr. Arithmetic, 1980.

Hockney Paints the Stage at the Walker Art Center, Nov. 20–Jan. 22, '84, will include ca. 250 drawings, paintings, models and reconstructions relating to his designs for eight operatic works, including Stravinsky's The Rake's Progress, Mozart's The Magic Flute, Satie's Parade and works by Poulenc and Ravel. Organized by Walker director Martin Friedman, the show travels to the Art Gallery of Ontario, Toronto, June 9–Aug. 12, '84, the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, Sept. 16–Nov. 11, '84, the Ft. Worth Art Museum, Dec. 16–Feb. 17, '85, and the San Francisco MOMA, Mar. 24–May 26, '85.

Abstract Painting and Sculpture in America 1927–1944 at Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute, Nov. 5–Dec. 31, curated by John R. Lane and Susan C. Larsen, will deal primarily with the second generation of American modernist painters and sculptors, including Albers, Bolotowsky, Calder, Davis, Diller, Gorky, Greene, Roszak, D. Smith and Storrs. The show travels to the San Francisco MOMA, Jan. 26–Mar. 25, '84, the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, Apr. 15–June 3, '84, and the Whitney Museum, June 28–Sept. 9, '84.

Lionel Feininger: Cathedral, 1919.

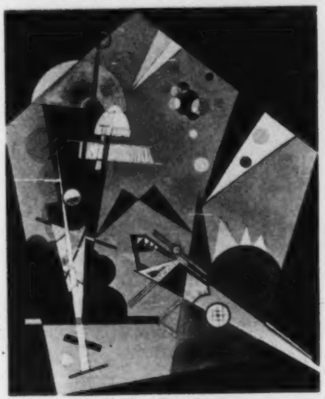
End of the World: Visions of Apocalypse at the New Museum, Nov. 18–Jan. 11, '84, curated by Lynn Gumpert, will investigate the impact of themes of cataclysmic and nuclear disaster in contemporary art.

Giovanni Battista Piazzetta: A Tercentenary Exhibition at the National Gallery, Nov. 20–Feb. 26, '84, will feature drawings, prints and illustrated books by this 18th-century Venetian artist; George Knox of the U. of British Columbia is guest curator and Diane Russell of the NGA is coordinating the show.

DECEMBER '83

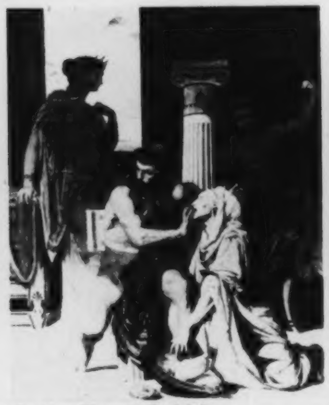
Dreams and Nightmares: Utopian Visions in Modern Art at the Hirshhorn, Dec. 8-Feb. 12, '84, curated by Valerie Fletcher "with a sidelong glance at George Orwell," will present both optimistic and pessimistic views through 135 paintings, sculptures, architectural projects and drawings by ca. 60 artists.



Vassily Kandinsky: Tension in Red (No. 326), 1926.

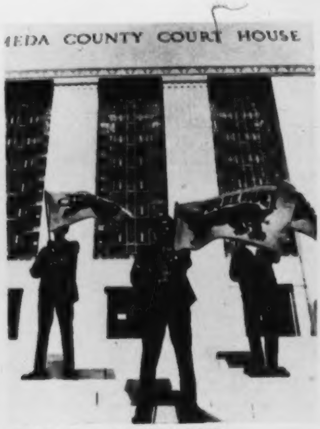
Kandinsky: Russian and Bauhaus Years, 1915-1933 at the Guggenheim, Dec. 9, '83–Feb. 12, '84, curated by Clark Poling of Atlanta's Emory University, is the second of a series of three Kandinsky exhibitions; it will also include work from other Russian avant-gardists and Kandinsky's Bauhaus colleagues.

JANUARY '84



Gustave-Clarence-Rodolphe Boulanger: Ulysses Recognized by Euryclein, 1849.

Grand Prix de Rome Paintings: 1797–1863 at the National Academy of Design, N.Y.C., Jan. 10–Feb. 26, '84, will feature ca. 100 prize-winning paintings from the Grand Prix de Rome competition of the Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts and about 40 related works. Organized by the International Exhibition Foundation and curated by John Dobkin and Philippe Grunchec, the exhibition travels to the Virginia Museum (Apr. 3-May 27, '84), the Indianapolis Museum (June 24-Aug. 20, '84), the Walters Art Gallery, Baltimore (Sept. 9-Nov. 4, '84), the Phoenix Art Museum (Nov. 18, '84-Jan. 13, '85) and three other cities.



Pirkle Jones: Untitled, 1968.

Pushing the Boundaries: Photography in California, 1945–80 at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, Jan. 12–Mar. 11, '84, curated by Louise Katzman, will present ca. 250 photographs by 50 photographers, including Lewis Baltz, Judy Dater, Judith Golden, Jack Welpott and Minor White. Itinerary: Akron Art Museum, Apr. 6–June 10, '84; Corcoran Gallery, June 28–Aug. 19, '84; L.A. Municipal Art Gallery, Sept. 7-Oct. 21, '84; Johnson Museum, Ithaca, Nov. 9-Dec. 30, '84; High Museum, Atlanta, Feb. 15-Apr. 14, '85; Folkwang Museum, Essen, West Germany, June 7-Aug. 4, '85; Centre Georges Pompidou, Paris, Sept. 6–Nov. 3, 1985.

Dieter Rot: Gummibandbild, 1961.

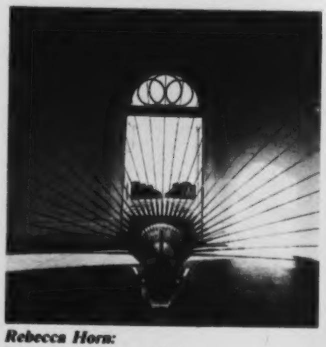
Dieter Rot at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, Jan. 14-Apr. 1, '84, curated by Mary Jane Jacob, will present more than 200 objects, from Rot's early-'60s chocolate paintings to numerous postcards, graphics, and a complete survey of his books. Rot will also make a new installation at the museum. The show will not travel.

Art and Politics: Six Points of View at the New Museum, Jan. 20–Mar. 20, '84, will survey recent developments in "political art"; two artists will be selected by each of five guest curators: Jack Agueros, Donald Kuspit, Benjamin Buchloh, Lucy Lippard and Lowry Sims.

FEBRUARY '84

Rebecca Horn at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, Feb. 3-Apr. 1, '84, will feature about eight major objects, including Horn's Peacock Machine from Documenta 7, as well as showings of film and video. The show was organized by the MCA's Mary Jane Jacob in conjunction with Tony Stooss of the Kunsthaus, Zurich (where it opened June 10, '83); it travels to two cities in England prior to its appearance in Chicago, its only U.S. stop.



Rebecca Horn:
Peacock Machine, 1982.

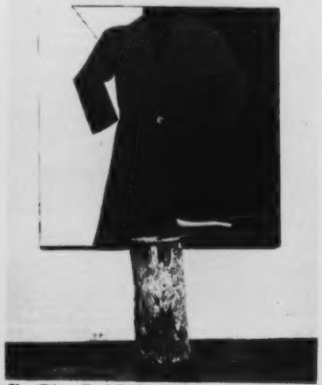
Jim Dine: Five Themes at the Walker Art Center, Minneapolis, Feb. 12-Apr. 8, '84, curated by Graham Beal, will include 75 works and span the period from 1964 to the present, focusing on five major motifs: hearts, robes, tools, gates, trees. Itinerary: Phoenix Art Museum, May 13-June 24, '84; St. Louis Art Museum, July 22-Sept. 3, '84; Akron Art Museum, Sept. 30-Nov. 11, '84; Albright-Knox, Dec. 9, '84-Jan. 20, '85; Hirshhorn, Feb. 20-Apr. 29, '85.



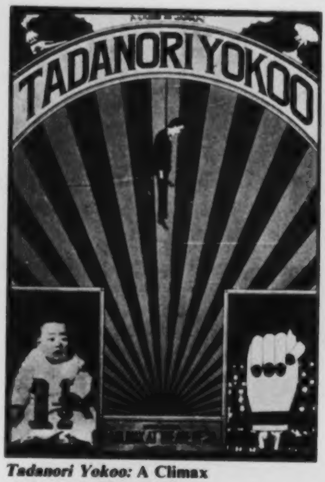
Jim Dine:* Red Robe with Hatchet (Self Portrait), *1964.

Reflections of Nature: Flowers in American Art at the Whitney Museum, Feb. 29-May 20, '84, curated by Ella Foshay, will include about 100 drawings and paintings spanning three centuries and tracing the development of flower imagery in American art; among the artists will be the Peales, Audubon, La Farge, Burchfield, O'Keeffe, Sheeler, Demuth, Kelly. The show will not travel.

MARCH '84

Light of Asia: Buddha Sakyamuni in Asian Art at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Mar. 6-May 27, '84, organized by Pratapaditya Pal, will be a major loan show examining the broad impact of Buddhism in Asian art; the exhibition will include over 170 works, ranging from the 1st century A.D. to the 19th century, in more than 10 different mediums from all over Southeast Asia. Travels to the Art Institute of Chicago (June 30-Aug. 26, '84) and the Brooklyn Museum (Nov. 1, '84-Feb. 10, '85).

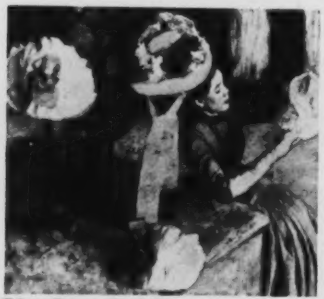
APRIL '84



Tadanori Yokoo:* A Climax at the Age of 29, *1965.

The 20th-Century Poster at the Walker Art Center, Minneapolis, Apr. 29-June 24, '84, will feature ca. 150-200 works by more than 35 graphic designers, curated by Mildred Friedman. Itinerary available so far: Baltimore Museum, Sept. 8-Oct. 20, '84; Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Apr. 6-May 18, '85; other stops to be scheduled.

MAY '84

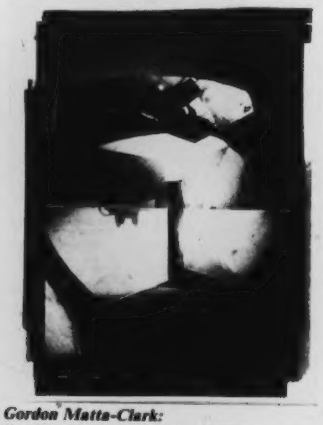


Edgar Degas:* The Millinery Shop, *ca. 1882.

Degas in the Art Institute of Chicago at the Art Institute of Chicago, May 23-Aug. 12, '84, curated by Richard Brettell and Suzanne McCullagh, will include ca. 100 paintings, drawings and prints from the collection in a monographic show that will not travel.

An International Survey of Recent Painting and Sculpture at the Museum of Modern Art is tentatively scheduled to open in May, '84. It will include works by ca. 120 artists selected by Kynaston McShine, seniorcuratorofMOMA'sdepartment of painting and sculpture. Limited to art made in the last five years, MOMA's first major contemporary survey since 1970 will analyze and evaluate the "individualism" now prevalent in contemporary art.

JUNE '84



Gordon Matta-Clark:
Carribbean Orange Series, 1978.

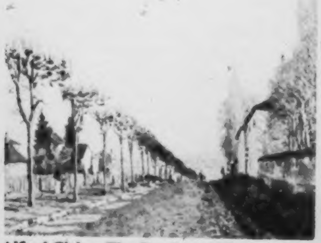
Gordon Matta-Clark at the Chicago Museum of Contemporary Art, June 22-Aug. 26, '84, curated by Mary Jane Jacob in conjunction with Richard Armstrong, will include 120 works—photo-pieces, documentation of "anarchitecture" and some sculpture. Tour to be announced.

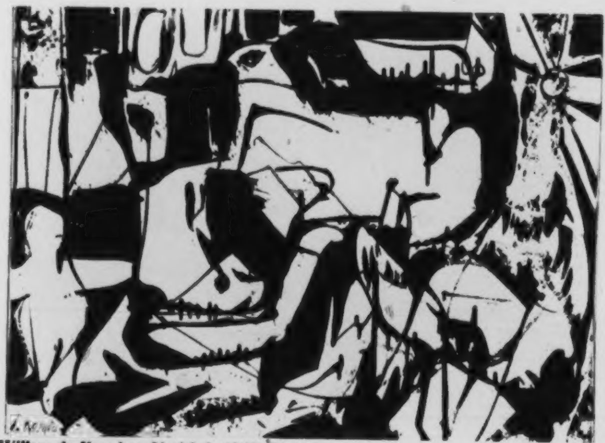
Artistic Collaboration in the Twentieth Century at the Hirshhorn Museum, June 9-Aug. 19, '84, organized by Cynthia Jaffee McCabe, will focus on ca. 90 visual art works that two or more individuals conceived and executed together. Some of the artist teams: Ernst/Arp; Malevich/Matiushin; Arp/Tauber-Arp/Delaunay/Magnelli; Picasso/Dali; Rauschenberg/Susan Weil. Itinerary: Milwaukee Art Center, Nov. 18, '84-Jan. 15, '85; J.B. Speed Art Museum, Louisville, Feb. 28-Apr. 21, '85.

JULY '84



Alfred Sisley:* The Road, seen from the chemin de Sèvres, Louveciennes, *1873.

A Day in the Country: Impressionism and the French Landscape at the L.A. County Museum of Art, July 3-Sept. 16, '84, will include ca. 120 works and demonstrate the geography of Impressionism. The show was jointly organized with the Art Institute of Chicago and will appear there (Oct. 18, '84-Jan. 6, '85) and at the Louvre (Feb. 8-Apr. 22, '85).



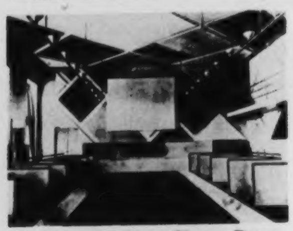
Willem de Kooning: Untitled, 1949–50.

Willem de Kooning Retrospective Exhibition 1938-1983 opens at the Whitney Museum, Dec. 15–Feb. 26, '84, with ca. 100 paintings and 25 sculptures ranging from the '30s to the present. After traveling to its organizing institution, the Akadamie der Kunste, Berlin, Mar. 10–Apr. 28, '84, the show continues to the Pompidou Center, Paris, May 30–Sept. 3, '84. On view concurrently with the retrospective at all three institutions will be a retrospective of de Kooning drawings curated by Paul Cummings of the Whitney.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

1982 in Review:

Major museum events, from in-depth treatments of important



Theo Van Doesburg: Cinema-Dance Hall, Café Aubette, Strasbourg, 1928.

Thomas Eakins: The Pair-Oared Shell, 1872.

El Greco: Laocoön, ca. 1610–14.

Nam June Paik: V-ramid, 1982.

Edward Ruscha: Motor, 1970.

De Stijl: 1917–1931, Visions of Utopia

This selection of more than 275 items, including furniture, stained glass and room reconstructions, was curated by Mildred Friedman for the Walker Art Center (Jan. 31–Mar. 28, 1982). The show traveled to the Hirshhorn Museum (Apr. 20–June 27, 1982) and then to the Netherlands. The first exhibition to survey de Stijl in three decades, it was widely reviewed, and its catalogue was called by the New Yorker "the year's outstanding exhibition catalogue." Funding: NEA, NEH, Champion International, government of the Netherlands.

Thomas Eakins: Artist of Philadelphia

Organized by Darrel Sewell, the Philadelphia Museum's curator of American art, the show included 150 drawings, paintings, photographs and some sculpture; it opened at the Philadelphia Museum of Art (May 29–Aug. 1, 1982), and traveled to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts (Sept. 22–Nov. 28). Funding: Pew Memorial Trust, IBM.

El Greco of Toledo: An International Exhibition

One of the season's major art historical exhibitions, this show was organized by Toledo (Ohio) Art Museum director Roger Mandle and featured some 60 paintings. Itinerary: National Gallery of Art (July 2–Sept. 6, 1982), Toledo Museum (Sept. 26–Nov. 21, 1982), Dallas Museum of Fine Arts (Dec. 12, 1982–Feb. 6, 1983). Funding: American Express Foundation, NEH, NEA.

Nam June Paik

John Hanhardt curated this show for the Whitney Museum (Apr. 30–June 27, 1982), after which it traveled to the Chicago Museum of Contemporary Art (Sept. 11–Oct. 24). It featured more than 60 works, including a number of major installations and several performances by Charlotte Moorman. Funding in New York: NYSCA, Rockefeller Foundation, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wise, Sony; in Chicago: NEA, the Contemporary Art Circle of the MCA.

The Works of Edward Ruscha

Curated by Anne Livet, this show opened at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art (Mar. 25–May 23, 1982) and traveled to the Whitney Museum (July 8–Sept. 5, 1982), the Vancouver Art Gallery (Oct. 4–Nov. 28, 1982) and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (Mar. 17–May 15, 1983). Included were 140 paintings, works on paper and books. Funding: Phillip Morris, NEA.

The Great Age of Japanese Buddhist Sculpture AD 600–1300

Largely consisting of wood sculptures on loan from active temples, this show premiered at the Kimbell Museum, Ft. Worth (Sept. 8–Oct. 31, 1982) and traveled to Japan House Gallery, NYC (Nov. 23, 1982–Jan. 16, 1983). The 52 objects in the show were chosen by Kyotaro Nishikawa of Japan's Agency for Cultural Affairs; U.S. organizer was Emily Sano, curator of Asian Art at the Kimbell. Funding: Tandy Foundation and Tandy Corp.-Radio Shack.

Giorgio de Chirico

The first large-scale exhibition of de Chirico's early "Metaphysical" work opened at the Museum of Modern Art (Apr. 3–June 29, 1982) and traveled to the Tate Gallery, London (Aug. 4–Oct. 3, 1982), Munich's Haus der Kunst (Nov. 10, 1982–Jan. 16, 1983), and Paris's Musée Nationale d'Art Moderne (Feb. 10–Apr. 17, 1983). The selection of ca. 75 paintings and 20 drawings was organized by William Rubin, MOMA's director of painting and sculpture. The Munich and Paris versions of the show were expanded to include later phases of de Chirico's career as well. Funding: Martini & Rossi.

Claude Lorrain: A Tercentenary Exhibition

The first U.S. survey of this 17th-century artist's work was organized by H. Diane Russell for the National Gallery (Oct. 17, 1982–Jan. 2, 1983) and included 53 paintings, 75 drawings and 68 etchings—the total known graphic oeuvre. The exhibition traveled to the Grand Palais, Paris (Feb. 15–May 16, 1983).

Joel Shapiro

This exhibition, curated by Richard Marshall, surveyed 12 years of Shapiro's work—40 sculptures and 16 drawings. It opened at the Whitney (Oct. 21, 1982–Jan. 2, 1983); other stops: the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts (Mar. 13–May 8, 1983), the Art Gallery of Ontario (Aug. 13–Sept. 25, 1983), and the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art (Dec. 3–Jan. 15, 1984). Funding: NEA.

David Smith

About 70 large works from seven major series from 1951 to 1964—"Agricola," "Sentinel," "Circle," "Zig," "Wagons," the "Boltri Boltons" and "Cubi"—made up this important overview of Smith's work, organized for the National Gallery of Art (Nov. 7, 1982–Apr. 24, 1983) by curator E.A. Carmean, Jr. Funding: American Medical Association.

Yuima Koji, Heian Period, ninth century.

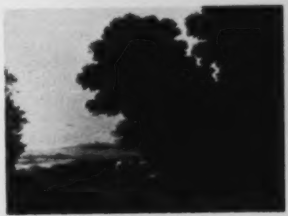
Giorgio de Chirico: Gare Montparnasse, 1914.



Claude Lorrain: Cephalus and Procris Reunited by Diana, 1664.

Joel Shapiro: Untitled, 1980–81.

David Smith: Voltri VIII, 1962.

The Museums

careers to far-ranging surveys of the arts of other continents.

Robert Morris: In the Realm of the Carceral, 1978.

Georges Braque: Large Interior with Palette, 1942.

Jack Tworkov: Diptych II, 1972.

Jacob van Ruisdael: Landscape with Ruins of Egmond Castle, 1650.

Louise Bourgeois: Wood Figures, ca. 1947–53.

The Drawings of Robert Morris

This drawing retrospective included 124 works on paper ranging from Abstract-Expressionist work of the '50s to the Minimalist and Conceptual pieces of the '60s and '70s. Organized by Thomas Krens for the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute in Williamstown, Mass. (May 1–June 27, 1982), the show traveled to the Boston ICA (July 6–Aug. 29, 1982), the Seattle Art Museum (Nov. 27–Jan. 15, 1983), the Laguna Gloria Art Museum, Austin (Apr. 1–May 8, 1983) and the Grand Rapids Art Museum (May 29–July 10, 1983). Funding: NEA.

Georges Braque: The Late Paintings (1940–1963)

The first museum exhibition in the U.S. of the final phase of Braque's work included ca. 50 paintings and was organized by Robert C. Cafritz, adjunct curator at the Phillips Collection, where the show opened Oct. 9–Dec. 12, 1982. Other stops: Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco (Jan. 1–Mar. 15, 1983); Walker Art Center (Apr. 14–June 14); Museum of Fine Arts, Houston (July 7–Sept. 14, 1983). Funding: NEA, Banque Paribas, Philip L. Graham Fund. [Covered in A.i.A., Feb. '83.]

Jack Tworkov: 15 Years of Painting

A major exhibition of the post-Abstract-Expressionist phase of the late Jack Tworkov's long career presented 47 paintings and works on paper. It was his first solo museum show in the U.S. Guest-curated by Linda Shearer at the Guggenheim Museum (Apr. 6–June 20, 1982.) Funding: NEA.

Jacob van Ruisdael

The first retrospective of Ruisdael featured 50 paintings, 30 drawings and 13 etchings and commemorated the 300th anniversary of his death. After opening at the Mauritshuis, The Hague, it traveled to the Fogg Art Museum, Cambridge (Jan. 18–Apr. 11, 1982), where it was organized by Seymour Slive. Funding: NEA, United Technologies, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

Louise Bourgeois

The first retrospective of this artist presented some 100 works dating from the early '40s to the present. Organized by Deborah Wye and Alicia Legg at the Museum of Modern Art (Nov. 6, 1982–Feb. 8, 1983), the show also included a selection of paintings, drawings and prints. Itinerary: Houston CAM, Mar. 12–May 8, 1983; Chicago MCA, Sept. 3–Oct. 30, '83; Akron Art Museum, Nov. 20–Jan. 15, 1984. Funding: NEA.

Northern Light: Realism and Symbolism in Scandinavian Painting, 1880–1910

Co-organized for the Brooklyn Museum by Sarah Faunce, curator of painting and sculpture, and Kirk Varnedoe, professor at N.Y.U., this show featured 94 paintings by 36 artists, and was part of the extensive "Scandinavia Today" festival. Itinerary: Corcoran Gallery (Sept. 10–Oct. 17, 1982); Brooklyn Museum (Nov. 10, 1982–Jan. 6, 1983); Minneapolis Institute of Arts (Feb. 6–Apr. 5, 1983). Funding: Robert Wood Johnson Jr. Charitable Trust, and numerous additional sources.

Fernand Léger

The first major Léger show in the U.S. in 20 years presented 76 paintings from 1905 to 1954 in a major retrospective co-organized by Robert T. Buck and Charlotta Kotik of the Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Buffalo (Jan. 15–Feb. 28, 1982). The show traveled to the Museum of Fine Art, Montreal (Mar. 11–Apr. 18, 1982) and the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts (May 12–July 5, 1982). Funding: NEA, Members Council of the Albright-Knox.

20 American Artists: Sculpture '82

A contemporary sculpture survey of broad stylistic diversity was organized by George Neubert at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art (July 22–Sept. 19, 1982) and funded by the museum's Collector's Forum. Among the artists: O'Keeffe, Noguchi, Bourgeois, Burton, Nauman, Graham, Wiley.

The Last Flowering: French Painting in Manuscripts, 1420–1530

Approximately 130 manuscripts selected from U.S. collections by John Plummer for a survey of medieval painting opened at the Morgan Library (Nov. 18, 1982–Jan. 30, 1983). Funding: NEA, Banque Nationale de Paris, French American Banking Corp., French-American Chamber of Commerce.

Body Language: Figurative Aspects of Recent Art

Curated by critic Roberta Smith for MIT's Hayden Gallery (Oct. 2–Dec. 24, 1981), this selection of photography, painting and sculpture included 20 artists, from Armajani to Schnabel, and toured to the Ft. Worth Art Museum (Sept. 12–Oct. 24, 1982), the University of South Florida, Tampa (Nov. 12–Dec. 17, 1982), and, in reduced form, the Contemporary Art Center, Cincinnati (Jan. 13–Feb. 27, 1983).

Edvard Munch: Summer Night's Dream (The Voice), 1893.

Fernand Léger: The Great Parade, 1954.

Georgia O'Keeffe: Abstraction, 1945–80.

St. Matthew with Angel, from Book of Hours, ca. 1440–50.

Dona Nelson: Weather in a Yard, 1981.

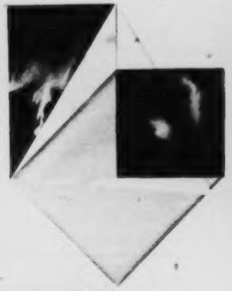
VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

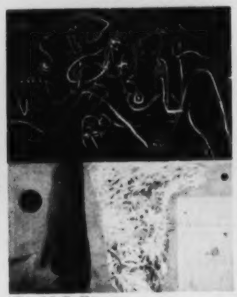
1982 in Review:

A retrospective glance at some highlights of the New York gallery season:

OUTSTANDING SOLOS: A CROSS SECTION

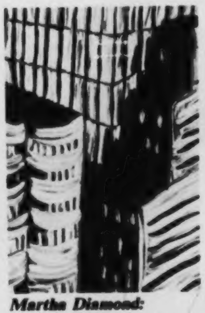


Dorothea Rockburne:
Dark Angel: Memory;
at Xavier Fourcade.



David Salle:
Zeitgeist Painting #3;
at Mary Boone.

Mia Westerlund Roosen:
installation view;
at Castelli Greene Street.



Martha Diamond:
Hudson Group;
at Brooke Alexander.

Michael Hurson: Portrait of Robert Pincus-Witten; at Paula Cooper.

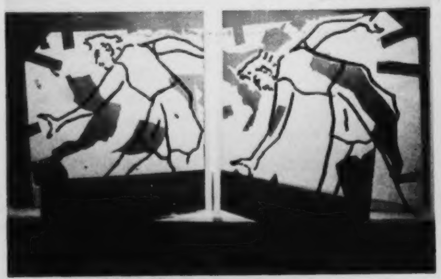
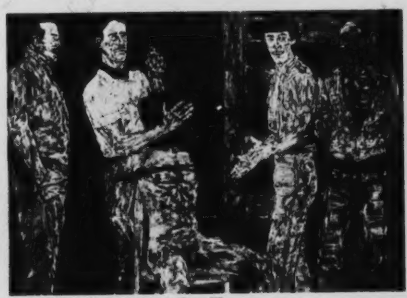
Eric Fischl: The Catch;
at Edward Thorp.



Judy Rifka: Clitter Clatter;
at Brooke Alexander.



Leon Golub: Interrogation II;
at Susan Caldwell.

Richard Prince:
Untitled;
at Metro Pictures.

Komar & Melamid: Khrushchev's Plot Against Beria; at Ronald Feldman.

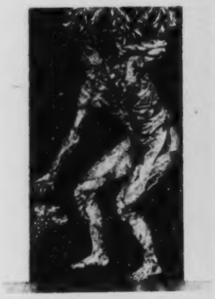
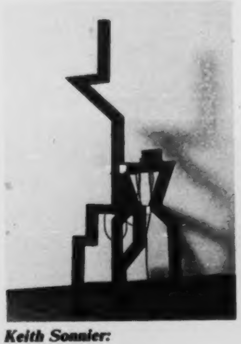
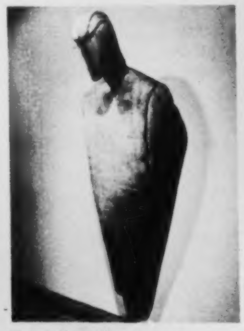
Jean Michel Basquiat:
Baptism;
at Annina Nosei.



Ned Smyth:
Judgment Standing;
at Holly Solomon.



Keith Sonnier:
Quadruped;
at Leo Castelli.



Terry Rosenberg:
Untitled, 1981–1982;
at Hal Bromm.

Bruce Boice: Portrait;
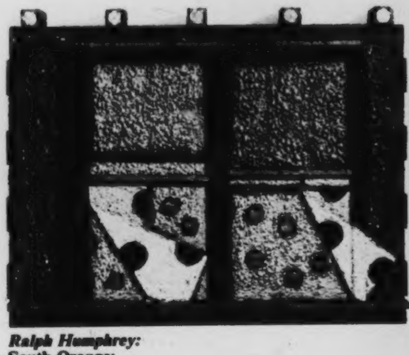
at John Weber.



Ralph Humphrey:
South Orange;
at Willard.

The Galleries

works by well-known contemporaries and some new faces.

Jennifer Bartlett: installation view of Up the Creek; at Paula Cooper.

Robert Cumming: Inhabitant of Polished Cone; at Castelli Graphics.

Lucas Samaras: Reclining Curvaceous VIII; at Pace.

Sarah Charlesworth: installation view of Tabula Rasa; at 421 Broadway.

Dennis Oppenheim: Launching Structure #2; at Bonlow.

Conrad Atkinson: North South Dialogue; at Ronald Feldman.

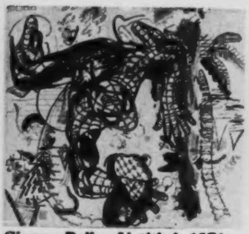
SOME PROMISING FIRST APPEARANCES



Sigmar Polke: Untitled, 1971; at Holly Solomon.

Louise Lawler: Arranged by Barbara and Eugene Schwartz; at Metro Pictures.

Kathleen Thomas: SMBG81; at Barbara Gladstone.

Tony Cragg: Palette; at Marian Goodman.

Walter Robinson: A Secret Place; at Metro Pictures.

Terry Winters: Star; at Sonnabend.

Richard Hambleton: Fountain of Youth; at Milliken.

Emo Verkerk: Portrait of Netje Fernhout; at Marian Goodman.

Mark Tansey: A Short History of Modern Painting; at Grace Borgenicht.

James Casebere: Sutpen's Cave; at Sonnabend.

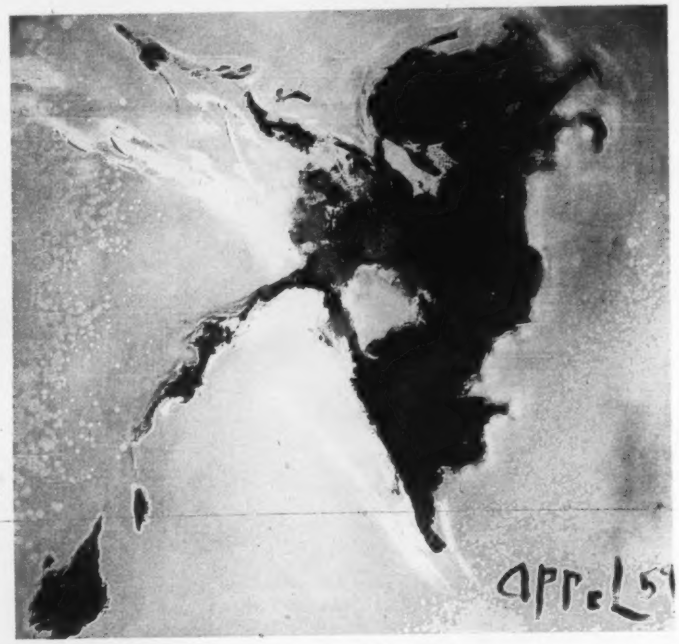
VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI



KAREL APPEL

(1921-   )

COMPOSITION

oil on canvas: 32 x 36 inches signed, dated "Appel '59": LR

R. H. LOVE 20th CENTURY GALLERY

100 EAST OHIO STREET CHICAGO ILLINOIS 60611 312/664-9620

RICHEBOURG/McCOY

19 East 71 Street, New York 10021
Telephone: 212/570.2131

20th Century Masters and Contemporary Artists

By appointment
Elizabeth Richebourg · Jason McCoy

The Galleries

FOCUS ON THE PAST: HISTORICAL SHOWS

"Brancusi/Mondrian"; at Sidney Janis.

Edvard Munch: The Heritage; at Galleri Bellman.

Morton Schamberg: Camera Flashlight; at Salander O'Reilly.

William Rinehart: Hero; at Hirschl & Adler.

"The Sculpture of Picasso"; at Pace.

Elie Nadelman: Standing Woman; at Hirschl & Adler.

Man Ray: New York; at Zabriskie.

Thomas Hart Benton: No. 3; at Salander O'Reilly.

Francis Picabia: Novia; at Adler/Castillo.

Stuart Davis: Abstraction; at Grace Borgenicht.

Patrick Henry Bruce: Still Life; at Washburn.

Charles Sheeler: Still Life; at Barbara Mathes.

Pompeo Batoni: Diana Breaking Cupid's Bow; at Colnaghi.

"A Curator's Choice 1942-1963: A Tribute to Dorothy Miller"; at Rosa Esman.

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG
1983
UMI

1982 in Review:

At diverse sites across the country, an impressive variety of large-scale

John Chamberlain: Deliquescence. A 17-ft.-high amalgam of sheet metal, chrome-plate and other found parts sited at the McNamara Federal building in downtown Detroit. Funding: $70,000 from GSA; $30,000 private sources.

George Segal: Next Departure. A $100,000 percent-for-art commission in cast bronze with a white patina, installed in the waiting room of Manhattan's new Port Authority bus terminal.

Michael Heizer: Levitated Mass. Heizer's first permanent public work in N.Y.C., an 11-ton horizontal slab of honed, wire-cut granite with a continuous sheet of water flowing beneath it, was commissioned by IBM for its E.L. Barnes-designed office building in Manhattan.

Rafael Ferrer: El Gran Teatro de la Luna. Measuring some 60 feet long and sited on the roof of a lavatory in Fairhill Square, a park in a Philadelphia Hispanic Neighborhood. Sponsor: Fairmont Park Art Association; commission: $40,000.

David Saunders: Lizzie and Gaffer Hexam. Taken from a story by Dickens, these two characters stretch 50 feet in welded steel bars at the edge of Battery Park Landfill. Creative Time sponsored the installation, and gave the artist a $1,000 honorarium, as part of its "Art on the Beach" show.

Siah Armajani: The Louis Kahn Lecture Room. The Fairmont Park Art Association commissioned this $35,000 interior installation that doubles as a community meeting room and gallery for shows of Kahn's architectural drawings at the Samuel S. Fleisher Art Memorial, a free school in Philadelphia.

Luis Jimenez: Sodbuster. Sited in Fargo, North Dakota, this sculpture measures 18 feet long and 6 feet high, and commemorates the hardworking virtue of the plains farmer. Commission: $50,000, half from NEA and half from the city.

Richard Serra: Missouri Junction. This work consists of eight large steel plates, 40 to 50 feet long and 10 feet high, arrayed in an irregular polygon and separated by 2 ½-foot spaces that line up with street corners or gaps between the surrounding buildings. Funding: $50,000 NEA; $200,000 private sources.

Maya Lin: The Vietnam Veterans Memorial. Built in Washington, D.C.'s Constitution Gardens and dedicated on Veterans Day, 1982, the polished black granite monument's two walls each measure 250 feet long and gradually rise from the earth to a height of 10 feet at the apex. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, headed by Jan Scruggs, raised more than $7 million from private sources for its construction.

Isamu Noguchi: California Scenario. Materials and flora indigenous to Southern California were used in this 1.6-acre courtyard commissioned by developer Henry Segerstrom and Prudential Insurance for an office complex in Costa Mesa, Calif. The plaza and garden include plantings of redwood, cacti, grasses and wildflowers, two fountains and a 28-ton, 9-foot-high stone sculpture, Spirit of the Lima Bean.

John Willenbecher: Untitled. An $8,000 GSA commission located in the main lobby of a new courthouse in Providence, Rhode Island and measuring approximately 9 by 12 feet, this draped garland of 8-inch hollow wood cones and tetrahedrons painted in green faux marbre is set against an arch-shaped backdrop in silver leaf.

Public Art

public projects that reshape the lived environment.

Dan Graham: Pavilion/Sculpture for Argonne. Private donors supplied $42,800 and NEA $36,000 of the cost of this 15-foot-square pavilion of mirrored and clear glass sited in the center of the University of Chicago's Argonne National Laboratory complex.

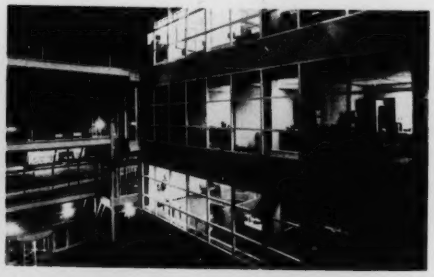
Sol LeWitt: Untitled. LeWitt's first public commission is a cast-concrete sculpture at New Mexico State University, Las Cruces. Funding: $30,000 from NEA; $60,000 from the school's percent-for-art program.



Larry Bell: Untitled. This atrium environment was created by coating existing rows of windows with three densities of gray, reading from light to dark and back again. A $55,000 GSA commission, for the new federal courthouse in Springfield, Mass.

David Von Schlegell: North Light. A 20-foot-high, white-painted aluminum sculpture commissioned by the Oxford Development Corp. for a new office complex in Pittsburgh. Total commission cost is unavailable.

Charles Cropper Parks: Our Lady of Peace. Commissioned by the Our Lady of Peace Parish in Santa Clara, Calif. for $340,000, this 32-foot-high stainless-steel Madonna was originally unveiled in Philadelphia, the sculptor's home, and is due to be installed in Santa Clara this month.

Louise Nevelson: AMA Commissioned Sculpture. About 9 by 24 by 1 feet, this interior relief in black painted wood is installed in the lobby of the American Medical Association's new office building in Washington, D.C.

Lila Katzen: Floten-Escort. A $62,000 GSA commission in poured concrete and aluminum, measuring 14 by 18½ by 3 feet, for the Rodino Federal Building in Newark, N.J.

Martin Puryear: Sentinel. Pennsylvania's Gettysburg College commissioned this work, which incorporates stone from an early campus building, to commemorate its sesquicentennial. Funding: NEA, $22,000; the college, $28,000.

Ned Smyth: A Part of the Whole. A mosaic and terrazzo floor, 35 feet in diameter, with two 20-foot-tall glass and mosaic columns, for the atrium of the Westlake, Calif. office of Prudential Life Insurance.

Keith Haring (with Juan Dubose): Mural. Appearing suddenly one morning in eye-catching fluorescent paint, this anti-nuke mural, on a 15-by-50 foot concrete wall on N.Y.C.'s Bowery, was created graffiti-style, without official permits or funding. After a number of anonymous defacements, the mural was painted out by the artists.

George Rickey: L's: One Up, One Down, Excentric. A 20-foot-tall burnished stainless-steel kinetic sculpture commissioned by the National Steel Corp. and the Oliver Tyrone Corp. for the National Steel Center in Pittsburgh.

Agnes Denes: Wheatfield: A Confrontation. Spring wheat, donated by farmers of North Dakota, was sown and harvested on 1.8 acres of Battery Park landfill. Funds or equipment were provided by the Public Art Fund, NYSCA, NEA, New York State Urban Development Corp., Battery Park City Authority, and American Cyanamid.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1982 in Review:

Some exceptional unconventional shows mounted

"Illegal America" at Franklin Furnace

Franklin Furnace, N.Y.C.

Illegal America (Feb. 10–Mar. 6, 1982) featured documentation of artists' actions that risked police intervention, focusing on "the manipulation of illegality as a discourse in art," according to curator Jeanette Ingberman. Some of the crimes: drug smuggling, graffiti writing, illegal U.S. residency, public indecency. Some of the 32 participants: Vito Acconci, Gunther Brus, Chris Burden, Abbie Hoffman, the Guerrilla Art Action Group, the People's Flag Show, the Real Estate Show, Charlotte Moorman. Special funding: NYSCA.

HARLEM CAN YOU STAND SUCH BEAUTY ?

David Hammons from "Messages to the Public"; Public Art Fund.

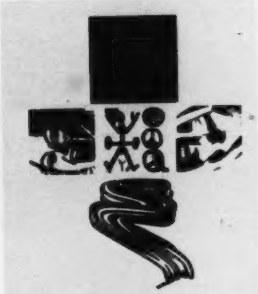
Public Art Fund, N.Y.C.

Messages to the Public consisted of six 30-second animations on the Spectacolor electronic billboard in Times Square, repeated every 20 minutes during the last two weeks of every month of 1982. Eleven artists took part, one per month (plus a recap in May), in a series of works that showed an impressive facility in adopting a very public, cinematic format. Artists: Jane Dickson, Matthew Geller, David Hammons, Keith Haring, Edgar Heap-of-Birds, Jenny Holzer, Christof Kohlhofer, Johnny "Crash" Matos, Bill Sullivan, John Torreano, Ed Towles. Funding: NYSCA, NEA, Public Art Fund, Spectacolor, Inc.

"The James Bay Project" at LAICA

Los Angeles Institute of Contemporary Art (LAICA)

The James Bay Project (May 18-June 19, 1982), conceived and mounted by two Germans, artist Rainer Wittenborn and writer Claus Biegert, was a multimedia display telling the story of the displacement of Canadian Cree Indian culture to make way for a hydroelectric plant, using videotapes, maps, blueprints, photographs, drawings, animal pelts, dead birds, plants and moccasins. The show also appeared at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, and the Center for Contemporary Education in Banff, Alberta. Funding: several German foundations and the Goethe Institute, New York.



Gretchen Bender in "Public Vision," White Columns.

White Columns, N.Y.C.

Public Vision (July 2-24, 1982) included painting, photography and sculpture by 12 women artists in an important grouping of artworld feminists whose work deals with cultural definitions of sexuality. The artists were Gretchen Bender, Nancy Dwyer and Cindy Sherman (who jointly curated the show), Jennifer Bolande, Diane Buckler, Ellen Carey, Barbara Kruger, Louise Lawler, Sherrie Levine, Diane Shea, Laurie Simmons and Peggy Yunque.

Gowanus Memorial Artyard, Brooklyn

The Monument Redefined, organized by Pamela Biondo, R. Scott Lloyd, Scott Siken and Frank Shifreen, took place at three Brooklyn sites with more than 200 artists participating—and shouldering their own expenses. The show included proposals, drawings, photos, video and performance as well as sculpture in a spirited exploration of the concept of the monument within a matrix of art, society and government.

Scott Pfaffman: Equestrian Monument; Gowanus Artyard.

80 Langton Street, San Francisco

Painted Installations, a three-part exhibition (May 11-Oct. 15, 1982) of painted environments, demonstrated that not all painters have returned to the easel for their investigations of perception, scale and allusion. Participants: Justen Ladda, Esme Thompson, Stephen Davis, Peter Lodato, Valerie Reichert, Rita Yokoi. Special funding: Pioneer Fund; NEA museum program.

Justen Ladda: Fly, at 80 Langton Street

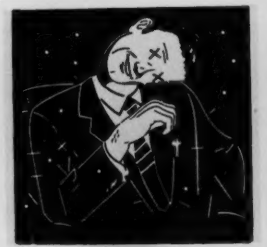
New Museum, N.Y.C.

Not Just for Laughs: The Art of Subversion (Nov. 21, 1981–Jan. 21, 1982), curated by Marcia Tucker, surveyed the use of paradox, false logic, visual puns, irony, sarcasm, comedies of manner, outrageousness, etc., in contemporary art. Artists: Terry Allen, Glen Baxter, Robert Colescott, Steven Cortright, Steve Gianakos, Louis Grenier, J.P. Hutto, Jeff, Pamela Kelly, John Malpede, Linda Montano, Tony Oursler, Richard Ross, Erika Rothenberg, Nina Salerno, Michael Smith, Terry Sullivan, Mark Tansey, David Troy, William Wegman.



Steve Gianakos: Dead Pop with Car Keys, at the New Museum.

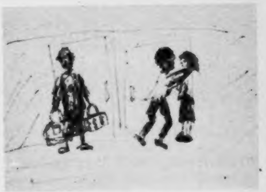
Contemporary Arts Center, New Orleans

The Human Figure in American Contemporary Art (Mar. 6–Apr. 4, 1982), curated by Alexandra Monett, surveyed work by 44 figurative artists, including Jack Beal, Red Grooms, Alex Katz, Thomas Lawson, Alfred Leslie, Alice Neel, Tom Wesselmann, plus New Orleans's own Robert Gordy, George Dureau, Adrian Deckbar, Jesse Poimboeuf and Robert Warrens. Special funding: NEA, Louisiana State Arts Council.

"The Human Figure" at the CAC, New Orleans.

ABC No Rio, N.Y.C.

Unforgettable Moments: Drawings by Non-Artists (Mar. 5–31, 1982), curated by Marc Miller and Bettie Ringma, presented drawings and narratives by 33 ordinary people—largely Vietnam vets and rape or mugging victims—of the kinds of mental and physical trauma that make for disturbingly powerful stories and images.



A subway mugging from "Unforgettable Moments," at ABC No Rio.

Alternative Spaces

by noncommercial galleries and artists' organizations.

"Primer (for Raymond Williams)" at Artists Space.

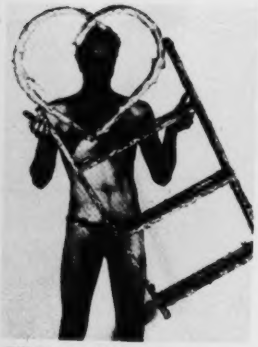
Artists Space, N.Y.C.

Primer (for Raymond Williams) (May 29-July 17, 1982) was a collaborative installation presenting over 30 individual responses to the political and social content of ordinary words (building, check, map, table) alphabetically arranged in a red-painted room, in a show assembled by Group Material, a collective of artists founded in 1979 and dedicated to formally and politically innovative contemporary art. Among the participants: James Brown; Sharon Hunt; Dorothea Kohn; F.S.L.N. of Nicaragua; Futura 2000; Tim Rollins and six children from the Bronx.

Gary Leonard: Natalie Wood in "L.A. Portrait" at LACE.

Los Angeles Contemporary Exhibitions (LACE)

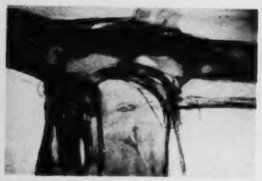
L.A. Portrait: Eleven Views (Sept. 1–Oct. 2, 1982), coordinated by Sheila Pinkel, was an immensely popular show featuring documentary photos of the people of Los Angeles—celebrities and average joes, barrio gangs and weightlifters—by 11 local shutterbugs, mostly photojournalists or commercial photographers: Don Farber, Gil Garner, Mark Greenberg, Tom Kasser, Gary Krueger, Jilly Lauren, Gary Leonard, Jeffrey Scales, Jimmy Townes, John Valadez, Ricardo Valverde.



Bill Norton: Valentine for Cynthia at Just Above Midtown/Downtown.

Just Above Midtown/ Downtown, N.Y.C.

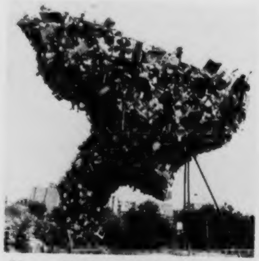
What I Do For Art (June 5-July 3, 1982), curated by JAM's Kathleen Goncharov, focused on an elementary dilemma of most artists: making a living in some non-art occupation. Some participants, and their part-time trades: Kenneth Aptekar, locksmith; Reverend Howard Finster, preacher; Michael Hoskins, hairdresser; Bill Norton, stripper; Steve Miller, commodity training advisor; Patti Paige, baker; Sandra Payne, librarian; Hank Rondina, policeman; Angela Venuto, art therapist.



Eunice Golden: Crucifixion #1 at Westbeth.

Westbeth Gallery, N.Y.C.

Sexuality in Art: Two Decades from a Feminist Perspective (Feb. 14–Mar. 7, 1982), curated by Eunice Golden, was one of 16 shows called "Views by Women Artists," sponsored by the Women's Caucus for Art, the Coalition of Women's Art Organizations and the College Art Association. Work in the exhibition ranged from the metaphorical to the explicit, and traced the reclamation of sexual imagery that emerged as part of the women's movement in the '60s and '70s. Among the 30-plus participants: Suzanne Benton, Joan Brown, Sandro DeSando, Martha Edelheit, Alice Neel, Carolee Schneemann, Nancy Spero, Hannah Wilke.



Nancy Rubins: World's Apart sponsored by WPA.

Washington Projects for the Arts (WPA)

The Washington Art Site Project has presented over 50 temporary installations or site-specific events since 1979, most of them in the downtown area, from Allan Kaprow's The Shortest Parade in the World, a performance piece, to the recent Ritz Show, an open exhibition in an abandoned four-story hotel. Of particular note in 1982 was Nancy Rubins's World's Apart, a 40-foot-high, tornado-shaped collection of discarded household appliances temporarily—and controversially—sited near D.C.'s Watergate Hotel.

EVOLUTION OF MAN... and woman.

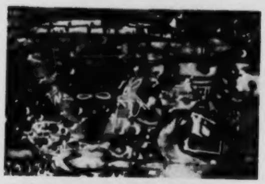
Mike Peters in "Pork Roasts" at Artemisia.

Artemisia, Chicago

Pork Roasts: 250 Feminist Cartoons (Sept. 7–Oct. 2, 1982), curated by Avis Lang Rosenberg, included cartoons by over 100 artists (one quarter were men), divided into eight thematic subdivisions ("life in the phallocracy," "motherhood and homework," etc.). The show originated at the Fine Arts Gallery, U. of British Columbia, and toured 10 cities in the U.S. and Canada with support from NEA and the Canada Council.



A-One in "Iconoclast Panzerism," at Fashion/Moda.

Fashion/Moda, Bronx, N.Y.

Iconoclast Panzerism (Dec. 10, '82–Jan. 14, 1983) was the first gallery show of a graffiti offshoot originated by Rammellzee and given a theoretical underpinning that involves "arming the letter to fight the battle against language." According to the artists—Tony "A-One" Clark, Tory "Toxic" Ablack and Charles "Koor" Hargrove—the new style is not graffiti but "gothic futurism."

"Energism" room in "Critical Perspectives" at P.S. 1.

Project Studios One (P.S.1), Queens, N.Y.

Critical Perspectives (Jan. 17–Mar. 14, 1982) was a bi-coastal group show of group shows, with eight art critics encouraged "to show their biases and passions." Sections included: formalist abstraction curated by Joseph Masheck (Gilbert-Rolfe, Hennessy, Lieb, Scully, Willis, others); visual work from the New Wave night-club scene selected by Edit deAk (Futura 2000, Yoko Ono, Alan Vega, others); "Real Life" artists chosen by Tom Lawson (Goldstein, Salomé, Zwack, others); "Energism" selected by Ronnie Cohen (22 artists, including Arlen, Benglis, Kitchen, E. Murray, Takao Saito); visual art by performance artists chosen by John Howell (Ericka Beckman, Julia Heyward, Robin Winters, others); a selection by Marcia Tucker of work on the subject of violence; a selection by Linda Burnham on the theme of self-indulgence; and a dissimilar group chosen by Peter Plagens.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Good Ideas That Stick
Number Two in a Series

Marcus Ratliff, Inc. Art World Advertising Agency and Graphic Designers for About Twenty Years at 49 East 78th Street, New York, NY 10021 Telephone (212) 249-6261

Adelson Graphics
Rachel Adler Gallery
The Artis Group
Auslander & Wittgenstein
Vojtech Blau
Bonino Gallery
Canadian Consulate General
Colnaghi
Piero Corsini

Charles Cowles Gallery
Maxwell Davidson Gallery
Marisa del Re Gallery
Dia Art Foundation
Martin Diamond Fine Arts
G.W. Einstein
André Emmerich Gallery
Ronald Feldman Fine Arts
49th Parallel

Xavier Fourcade
Galerie Claude Bernard
Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer
James Goodman Gallery
Vivian Horan
Max Hutchinson Gallery
Isselbacher Gallery
Coe Kerr Gallery
Janie C. Lee Gallery

Marlborough Gallery
Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art
Pierre Matisse Gallery
David McKee Gallery
999 Bookshop
Noortman & Brod
Oil & Steel Gallery
Petersburg Press
Poster Originals, Ltd.

A.M. Sachs Gallery
Salander-O'Reilly Galleries
Spencer A. Samuels & Co.
Santa Fe East
Thomas Segal Gallery
Ira Spanierman, Inc.
H. Terry-Engell Gallery
Edward Thorp Gallery
Zabriskie Gallery

People

New appointments and awards in recognition of outstanding achievement.

Jean Sutherland Boggs, formerly director of the Philadelphia Museum, was chosen to oversee the building of a new National Gallery of Canada in Ottawa.

Hilton Kramer, chief art critic for the New York Times since 1973, resigned to found and edit The New Criterion, a critical journal of art and culture.

Anne d'Harnoncourt, curator of 20th-century art at the Philadelphia Museum since 1972, became its director in July.

Kevin Roche, who designed the Oakland Museum and several wings at the Metropolitan, won the 1982 Pritzker Architecture Prize of $100,000.

Robert Herbert, professor of art history at Yale, received the College Art Association's 1982 citation for distinguished teaching of art history.

Maya Ying Lin saw her design for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial realized amid controversy, resolved by a plan to add a sculpture by Frederick Hart.

Robert Hughes, art critic for Time magazine, received the College Art Association's Frank Jewett Mather Award for distinction in art criticism.

Peter Marzio, director of the Corcoran Gallery and School of Art since 1978, was chosen to become the new director of the Houston Museum of Fine Arts.

Sherman Lee, director of the Cleveland Museum since 1958, received the Art Dealers Association of America Award for outstanding achievement in art history.

Michael Botwinick, previously director of the Brooklyn Museum, was appointed director of Washington, D.C.'s Corcoran Gallery and School of Art.

Sylvia H. Williams, formerly curator of African, Oceanic and New World Cultures at the Brooklyn Museum, was named director of the National Museum of African Art, Washington, D.C.

Evan Turner, director of the Ackland Art Museum, University of North Carolina, was appointed director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, effective July 1, 1983.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

FA FABRIANO

FOR THE FINEST PRINTMAKING PAPER, ETCH THIS NAME INTO YOUR MEMORY.

If you want to make prints that make a lasting impression, you need papers that stand the test of time.

The kind of papers they've been making at the Fabriano mills in Italy for 700 years—now available in North America from Grumbacher.

The artisans at Fabriano create their finest printmaking papers today the same way they did for Albrecht Dürer: one sheet at a time.

Whether you require a highly textured surface or a smoother surface, flat white or subtle shades, you get papers of exceptional beauty and dimensional stability.

Papers with the strength to stand repeated printing pressures and a neutral pH to face the years without yellowing.

There are Fabriano handmade and mould-made papers for every type of printmaking: drawings, etching, stone lithography, silkscreen, woodcuts, and embossing.

Ask to see these exquisite papers. Examine them closely. Get the "feel" of Fabriano. You'll never settle for anything less.

Ask for: Umbria, Murillo, Tiepolo, Rosaspina

G™

FABRIANO IMPORTED PAPERS FROM GRUMBACHER

Ask your local artists' material dealers for these products, or write:
M. GRUMBACHER, INC. 460 West 34th Street, New York, N.Y. 10001. In Canada: M. GRUMBACHER (CANADA) Inc. 460 Finchdene Square, Scarborough Ontario M1X 1C4

Obituaries

Horst W. Janson, 68, professor emeritus of art history at NYU, where he had taught since 1949, and author of the fundamental art text, "History of Art," which has been translated into 14 languages.

Tatyana Grosman, 78, founder of Universal Limited Art Editions, the Long Island lithographic studio famed for its painstaking craftsmanship as well as for introducing many contemporary artists to lithography.

John Hay Whitney, 77, investor, philanthropist, sportsman, ambassador and art collector active on museum boards, and publisher of newspapers and magazines, including the International Herald Tribune and Art in America.

Betty Parsons, 82, art dealer who was an early champion of Abstract Expressionism and Minimalist painting; an artist herself, she painted high-key abstractions and later turned to colorful constructions of painted wood.

Alice Baber, 54, lyrical abstract painter known for canvases in which clear, prismatic hues are systematically arrayed in ameboid shapes; she taught at the New School and elsewhere.

Jack Tworkov, 82, Polish-born Abstract-Expressionist painter whose work shifted in the mid-'60s to a more subdued, systemic geometrical style; from 1963 to 1969 he was head of the Yale art department.

Ruth Vollmer, 79, sculptor of mathematically inspired geometric constructions, often executed in transparent or reflective materials, that attracted the interest of many younger Minimal and Conceptual artists.

John Button, 52, San Francisco-born painter and art teacher (at Cornell and Skowhegan) known for serene cityscapes, landscapes and interiors emphasizing balances of color and composition.

Kenzo Okada, 79, Japanese-American painter of subtle abstractions fusing Eastern and New York School ideas; in 1953 he organized the first exhibition of the New York School to appear in Japan.

Wifredo Lam, 80, Cuban-born painter and member of the original Surrealists, known for densely packed paintings suggestive of a primitivistic "other world" of jungle and demonic, horned figures.

Samuel M. Kootz, 83, New York art dealer and proponent of American modernism who also wrote books and collected art; he opened a gallery in 1949 and was an early supporter of the Abstract Expressionists.

José de Creeft, 97, Spanish-born figurative sculptor who was a proponent of sculpting directly in whatever medium he chose; he taught for 46 years at the New School and the Art Students League.

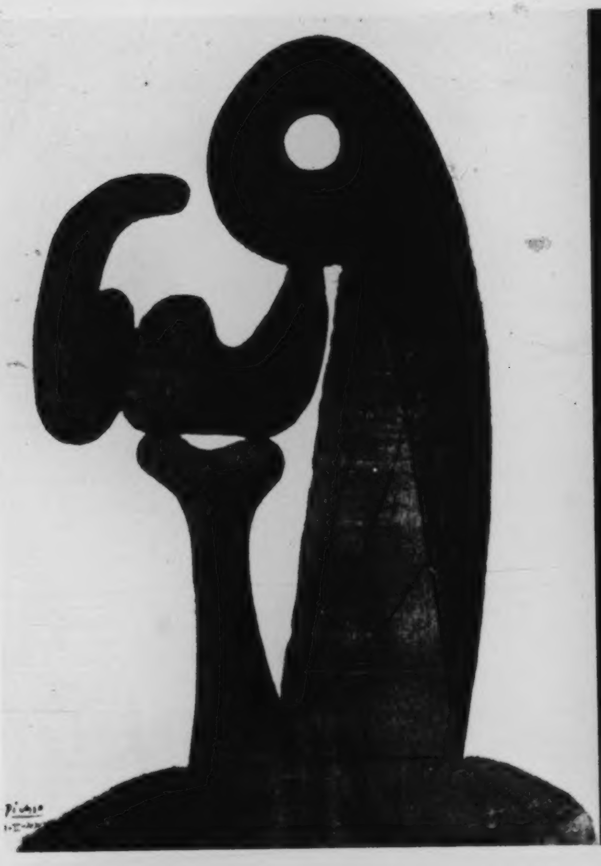
VOL
7
1

ISS
7

AG

1983

UMI



Works by

ARP BOTERO CALDER
DUBUFFET GIACOMETTI
LICHTENSTEIN MOORE
PICASSO STEINBERG

james goodman gallery
1020 Madison Ave New York 10021
Telephone (212) 772-2288

Picasso, Etude pour un Monument, 1930
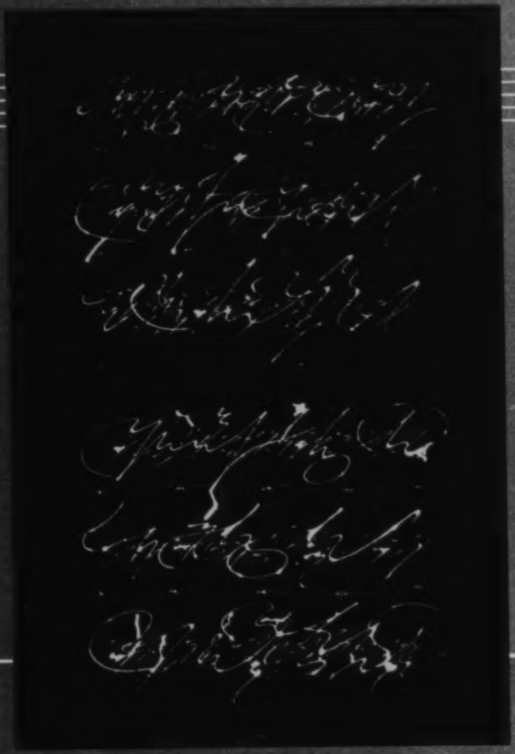
Pencil and oil on panel, 25 x 18½" (63.5 x 47 cm.)



Uzilevsky

"The Wayfarer"

Estample originale serigraph with hand coloring on black arches
Edition of 160 44 1/4" × 30"

Dealer inquiries invited

OAKSPRINGS IMPRESSIONS

P.O. Box 394 Fairfax, Ca., 94930 Telephone 415/457-9154

MICHAEL STOWE

STABA acrylic on canvas 73"x62"

JAN·WEINER·GALLERY
3014 EVENINGSIDE TOPEKA KANSAS 66614 BY APPOINTMENT 913 272-5535

LAVA '83
Los Angeles Visual Arts

ARCO CENTER FOR VISUAL ART
505 S. FLOWER ST., B. LEVEL
(213) 488-0038

CIRRUS GALLERY
542 S. ALAMEDA ST.
(213) 680-3473

JAPANESE AMERICAN CULTURAL AND COMMUNITY CENTER GALLERY
244 S. SAN PEDRO ST.
(213) 628-2725

DOUBLE ROCKING "G" GALLERY
652 S. MATEO
(213) 628-0019

JENNIFER DUMAS GALLERY
756 S. SPRING ST., 2ND FLOOR
(213) 489-3230

THE DOWNTOWN GALLERY
560 S. MAIN STREET
(213) 627-0398

EIGHTH STREET GALLERY
606 E. 8TH STREET
(213) 623-9581

GALLERY 1:16
116 W. NINTH ST.
(213) 626-4983

KIRK DE GOOYER GALLERY
1308 FACTORY PL., 5TH FLOOR
(213) 623-8333

DANIEL GOURO ASSOCIATES AT INTERPOL GALLERY
800 W. 1ST ST., STE 2210
(213) 620-8634

L.A. ARTCORE
652 S. MATEO
(213) 617-3274

LACE, LOS ANGELES CONTEMPORARY EXHIBITIONS
240 S. BROADWAY
(213) 620-0104

LOS ANGELES CENTER FOR PHOTOGRAPHIC STUDIES
814 S. SPRING STREET
623-9410

ORANGES/SARDINES
320 S. OMAR AVE.
(213) 687-4716

NEIL G. OVSEY GALLERY
705 E. THIRD ST., 3RD FLOOR
(213) 617-1351

SECURITY PACIFIC PLAZA ART GALLERY
333 S. HOPE ST.
(213) 613-5555

SIMARD GALLERY
323 S. TOWNE AVE.
(213) 617-3667

STELLA POLARIS GALLERY
303 BOYD ST.
(213) 617-1351

THINKING EYE
1324 S. FIGUEROA ST., STE. 311
(213) 748-3411

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GALLERIES
823 EXPOSITION BLVD.
(213) 743-2799

An association of downtown Los Angeles galleries.
September 10 and 11, 11 AM - 5 PM.

LAVA HOTLINE (213) 680-4090, BUSINESS NUMBER (213) 680-4097.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

1983 JSFA AWARD WINNER

JOHN HOUCK

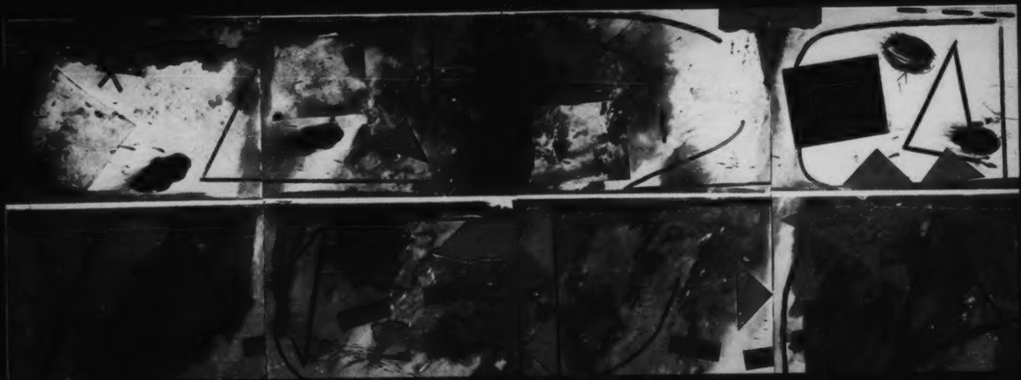

PHOTO CREDIT RICHARD LEWIN

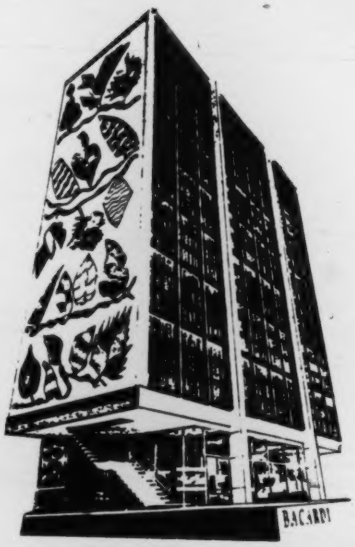
EMBARKATION, mixed media, 44 x 120"

JUDITH SELKOWITZ FINE ARTS, INC.
25 West 56th Street
Suite 504
New York, New York 10019
212-586-2602

ART CONSULTANTS & DEALERS TO CORPORATIONS, ARCHITECTS & INTERIOR DESIGNERS

20th Anniversary Season 1963/1983



Bacardi Art Gallery
2100 Biscayne Blvd.
Miami, Florida 33137

September	Beyond The Figure, installation by Michael Flick
September-December	Urban Sculpture/Bacardi Plaza outdoor works by Florida sculptors
November	Sculpture, Relief, Drawing, by Umberto Mastroianni
December	Robert Indiana's Graphics, a selection of graphic works

The Bacardi Art Gallery is a not-for-profit public service to the South Florida Community supported since 1964 by Bacardi Imports, Inc. Our goal is to enhance the quality of the arts our community enjoys and recognize the contribution it makes toward the visual arts.

WEEKDAYS 9-5 ● TELEPHONE (305) 573-8511 ● TELEX 51-9292 ● CABLE BACARDI

BACARDI AND THE BAT DEVICE ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS OF BACARDI & COMPANY LIMITED

Arts Focus, Inc.

Representation, Publishing

George Snyder
Paintings, Color Tubes

Paula Clendenin
Original Collagraphs, Etchings

Anne Harris
Sculpture: Bronze and Unique

Burl Jones
Sculpture in Bronze

401 Capitol Street
Charleston, WV 25301
(304) 345-9059

San Francisco Bay Area
3708 Mt. Diablo Blvd.
Suite 210
Lafayette, CA 94549
(415) 284-7703

Arts Focus Gallery

Showing

18-20th Century Paintings, Watercolors, Drawings, Sculpture and Fiber Art

401 Capitol Street
Charleston, WV 25301
(304) 345-9059

MASTER SCULPTURE

ARCHIPENKO

ARP
BIEGAS
CSAKY
GIACOMETTI
HEPWORTH

KOTCHAR
LACHAISE
LAMBERT-RUCKI ORLOFF
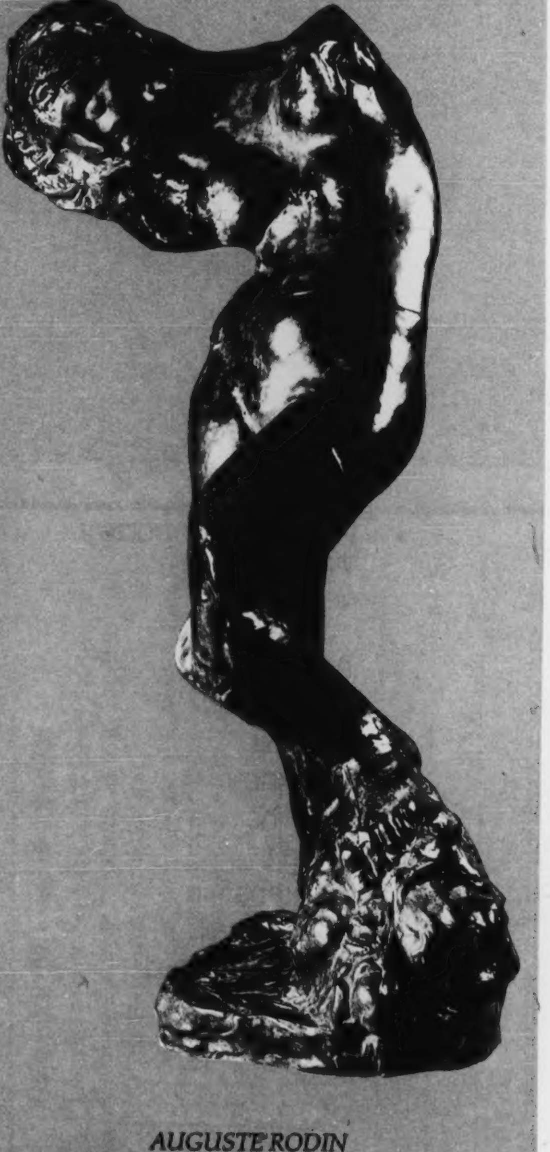
RODIN



AUGUSTE RODIN
"Meditation San Bras" Bronze/Green Patina
57½"h x 23¼"w x 17¾"d Foundry: Coubertin

FEINGARTEN GALLERIES
8380 MELROSE AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CA 90069 (213) 655-4840
GALLERY HOURS: TUESDAY-SATURDAY, 11 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

The WHEELWRIGHT MUSEUM of the American Indian Native American Art and Culture in Santa Fe

Mother Earth and Father Sky,-Sandpainting Textile by Gladys and Irene Manuelito from the exhibit "Holy Woven People"

Presenting the rich fabric of Native American Culture Past and Present

June 12-Sept. 16 "The Red and the Black: Santa Clara Pottery by Margaret Tafoya"

Sept. 25-Dec. 6 "In Search of Coyote: The Paintings and Works on Paper of Harry Fonseca"

Dec. 18-April 30, 1984 "The World of the Navajo Child"

Hours: May—October, Monday through Saturday, 10 AM—5 PM Closed Mondays, November—April
Closed all major holidays

CELEBRATING OUR 45th ANNIVERSARY

BOX 5153 SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO 87502
PHONE (505) 982-9636

Fine Contemporary Works of Art

Arisman
Diebenkorn
Francis
Hockney
Jenkins
Johns
Lichtenstein
Motherwell
Rauschenberg
Rosenquist
R.L. White

HARCOURTS CONTEMPORARY

415-421-5590
550 Powell Street
San Francisco, California 94108

19th and 20th Century Masters

Chagall
Hundertwasser
Lautrec
Matisse
Merida
Miró
Picasso
Renoir
Siqueiros
Tamayo
Zuñiga

HARCOURTS GALLERY

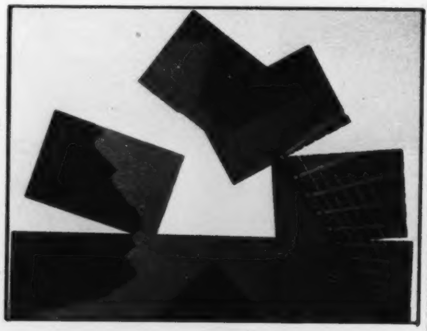
535 POWELL STREET SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415-421-3428

Collector's Items. 11 Finds a Year.

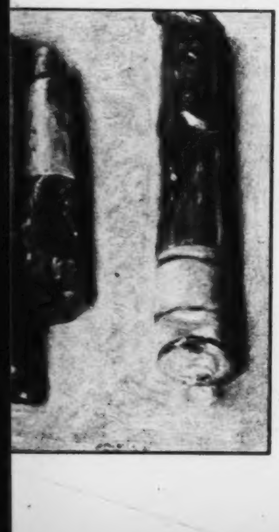
Dig up an Etruscan vase. Authenticate a doubtful Turner. Scan the galleries for tomorrow's masters. Or dabble in new techniques reshaping the medium. You'll share these adventures and many others with Art in America… whose pages brim with discovery.

Searching and eclectic, Art in America is alone in how fully it satisfies your need to know and learn. About painting, sculpture, photography, prints and much more. About where to find them and more profoundly experience what you find. Eleven times a year.

And if you order now, you'll also receive as part of your subscription our upcoming 1983 annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists published in August – a $5.95 reference volume. Beyond that, you save a rewarding 24% (that's an $11.00 saving) off the newsstand price with your $34.95 subscription for one year.



Stay with us longer and do better yet. Two years for only $59.95 nets a full $31.95 savings off the cover price. Best of all, invest $79.95 for three fascinating years with Art in America and save an impressive $57.90 off the cover price.



Art in America is an addictive event… the most intriguing and compelling way to stay abreast. Return your order card today and join the collectors.

Art in America

Whitney Communication Corporation
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

Art in America

Save up to 42% Art in America

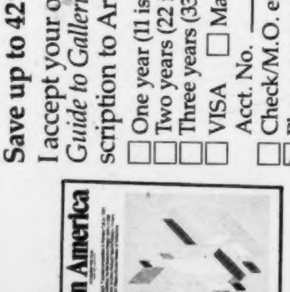
I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95 – an $11.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95 – a $31.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95 – a $57.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ________ Exp. ________
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ________
Name ________
Address ________ Apt. No. ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ________

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 1/31/84.

EH301



Save up to 42% Art in America

I accept your offer which includes your annual Guide to Galleries, Museums, Artists. Enter my subscription to Art in America for:

☐ One year (11 issues) for only $34.95 – an $11.00 savings.
☐ Two years (22 issues) for only $59.95 – a $31.95 savings.
☐ Three years (33 issues) for only $79.95 – a $57.90 savings.
☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard
Acct. No. ________ Exp. ________
☐ Check/M.O. enclosed. ☐ Bill me.
☐ Please renew my subscription.

Signature ________
Name ________
Address ________ Apt. No. ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ________

In U.S. Possessions and Canada, add $8 per subscription year; elsewhere add $15 per subscription year. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery of first issue. Offer good through 1/31/84.

EH301

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

BUSINESS REPLY CARD
FIRST CLASS PERMIT NO. 542 MARION, OHIO
POSTAGE WILL BE PAID BY

Art in America
542 Pacific Avenue
Marion, Ohio 43306

NO POSTAGE
NECESSARY
IF MAILED
IN THE
UNITED STATES

EXPLORE.
PROBE.
MUSE.
CONCLUDE.

Art in America
NOVEMBER 1982 $3.50
Cover: Van Doesburg's "Countercomposition in Primary Colors," 1923
Vigée Le Brun/Defining De Stijl/Barbara Kruger/Jenny Holzer
Interview with Jack Tworkov/Richard Neutra/Mariano Fortuny
Report from Mexico/Books/Review of Exhibitions

DISCOVER IT
FIRST AND BEST
IN ART IN AMERICA
WHILE SAVING
UP TO $57.90 BY SUBSCRIBING TODAY!

SAVE 42%

NOHRA HAIME GALLERY
1000 MADISON AVENUE

Alexander Archipenko
Fernando Botero
Juan Downey
Pierre Dunoyer
David Hockney
Maripaz Jaramillo
Wifredo Lam
Julio Larraz
Ramiro LLona
Volker Seding
Jorge Tacla
Francisco Toledo

NEW YORK 10021 (212) 772-7760

SEPT. BODIES & SOULS PAINTINGS CURATED BY ARTIST CHOICE MUSEUM

OCT. CONRAD MARCA-RELLI PAINTINGS
HOMAGE TO LA BELLE EPOQUE

NOV. MICHAEL HALSBAND PHOTOGRAPHS
THE ROLLING STONES

DEC. PAUL JENKINS COLLAGES
ANATOMY OF A CLOUD

JAN. FORD CRULL/MARILYN DAVIDSON/SHEILA ELIAS/HAROLD JACOBS MIXED MEDIA

FEB. DIANA KURZ RECENT PAINTINGS
TECHNIQUES IN PRINTMAKING

MAR. MANOUCHER YEKTAI RECENT WORKS

APR. GIANCARLO IMPIGLIA PAINTINGS, SCULPTURE, GRAPHICS

MAY ANN CHERNOW RECENT PAINTINGS
HENRY MOORE SCULPTURE, DRAWINGS, GRAPHICS

JUNE DOUGLAS COOPER/WILLIAM HANEY/MARK MENTZER/HERB OLDS DRAWINGS

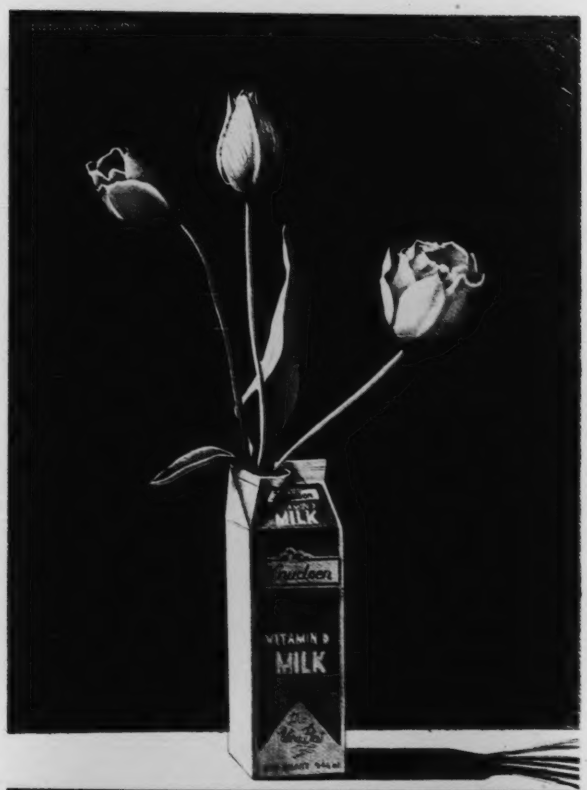
ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY
20 W. 57, NEW YORK 10019 (212) 757-2700

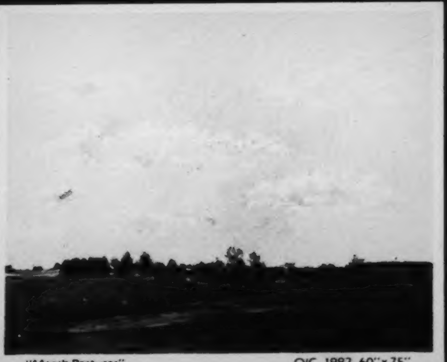


PAUL WONNER:
TULIPS IN A MILK CARTON

Paul Wonner completed his second lithograph in the Spring of 1983 at the workshop of Editions Press in San Francisco. It was hand printed in eleven colors on buff Arches Cover paper using two stones and seven aluminum plates. It measures twenty five by eighteen and three eighths inches, and is offered in an edition of sixty Arabic numbered impressions. Please call or write for information.

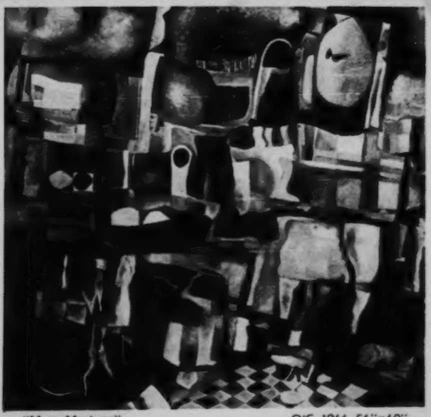
EDITIONS PRESS
915 Bryant Street, San Francisco
California, 94103 U.S.A.
Telephone: (415) 626-1846

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983



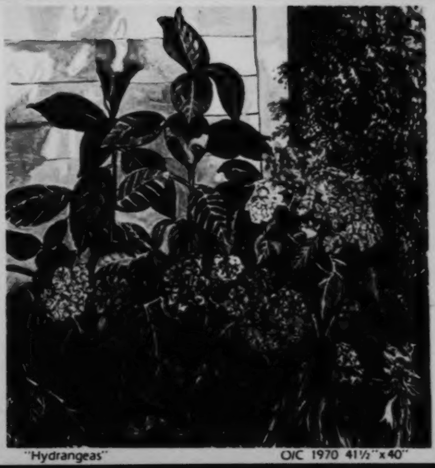
"March Pastures" O/C 1982 60"x75"

EUGENE LEAKE



"Music Machine" O/C 1966 56"x60"

KEITH MARTIN

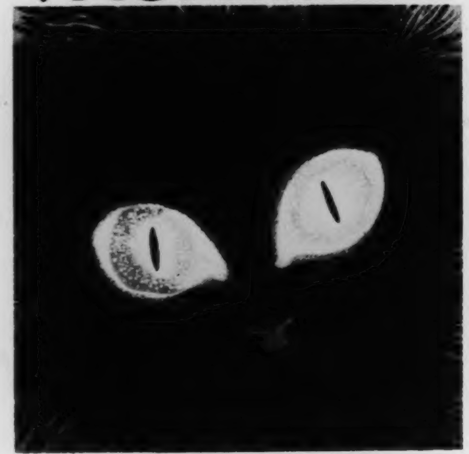


"Hydrangeas" O/C 1970 41½"x40"

ALICE NEEL

C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 n. charles, balto., md. 21201 301/539-1080

VASARELY



Le Chat 20" x 21"
By Victor Vasarely

VASARELY GRAPHICS, LTD.

Vasarely CENTER

1015 MADISON AVENUE
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10021
REL: (212) 744-2332

Send for free brochure or call toll free: (800) 255-0555

Publisher of Limited Edition Lithographs

Rockwell
Neel
Sehring
Groedel
Milinkov
Bomberger
Greve
Lichtenberg
Gisson

Eleanor Ettinger Inc.
155 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10013 (212) 807-7607

UMI

ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN
GALLERY

announces the addition to its group of outstanding contemporary artists of

CHEMA COBO

"Carnegie International 1982"
Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh
Seattle Art Museum

"Recent European Painting"
Guggenheim Museum, New York 1983

and

TERENCE LA NOUE

"Carnegie International 1982"
Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh
Seattle Art Museum

Arts Club of Chicago 1983

356 W. Huron Chicago 60610 312/944-1990

SEPTEMBER 83
STAN GREGORY

OCTOBER 83
ROBERT QUIJADA

NOVEMBER 83
NANETTE CARTER

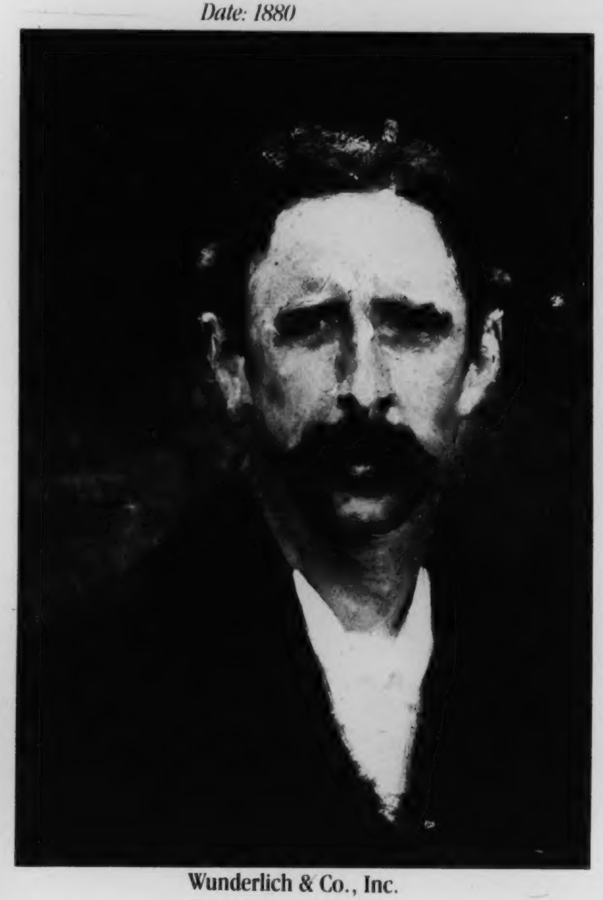
DECEMBER 83
PRICH MATTHEWS

ERICSON GALLERY

23 East 74th Street New York, N. Y.
737-6155

JOHN SINGER SARGENT
(1856-1925)

Francis B. Chadwick
Oil on wood panel, 13½ x 10 inches
Signed lower left: "To my friend Chadwick/
J. S. Sargent Haarlem…"
Date: 1880



Wunderlich & Co., Inc.
Specializing in:

American art of the eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries

Western Americana

American Historical and Fine Prints

Important American Bronzes

41 East 57th Street, Seventh Floor
New York, New York 10022

Telephone (212) 838-2555

Monday–Friday 9:30–5:30
Saturday by appointment

WUNDERLICH ·&COMPANY·INC·

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Dubins Gallery

David Andres
Glenn Brill
Gary Bukovnik
James Byrd
William DeKoornbolt
Robert Frame
Trudi Frank
Carson Gladson
Daniel Goldstein
Erika Kahn
Peter Kitchell
Aris Koutroulis
Stephen Lorber
John Maxon
Philip Michelson
Geer Morton
Philip Mullen
David Patterson
Woodward Payne
Alice Phillips
David Sharpe
James Torlakson
Stephanie Weber
Anne Youkeles

DUBINS GALLERY
11948 SAN VICENTE BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90049
(213) 820-1409

1983-84 EXHIBITIONS

ADRIANNE WORTZEL
September 13 - October 11

PAUL BRACH
October 15 - November 19

JAUNE QUICK-TO-SEE SMITH
November 22 - December 17

WILLIAM C. MAXWELL
December 20 - January 21

ALAN HERMAN
January 24 - February 18

GEORGE LONGFISH
February 21 - March 24

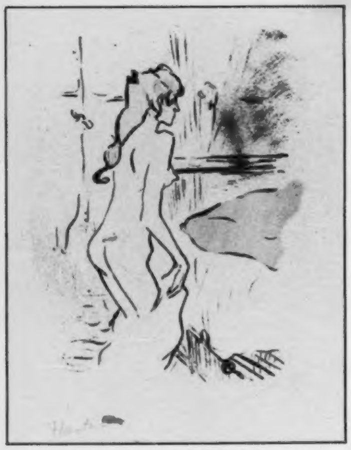
JAMES PILE
March 27 - April 21

HILDA STECHEL
April 24 - May 26

BERNICE STEINBAUM GALLERY, LTD.

903 madison avenue
new york, new york 10021
(212) 734-3373

Gerhard Wurzer Gallery



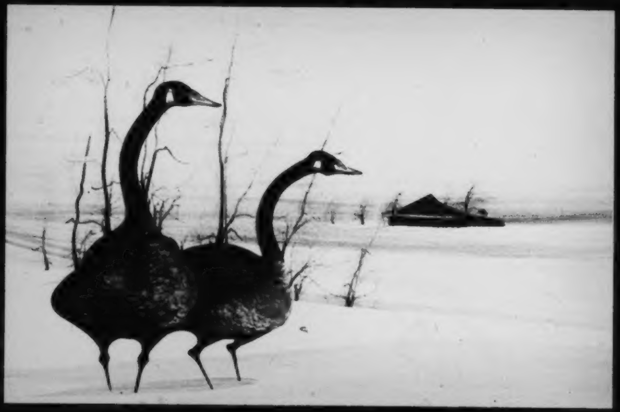
"ETUDE DE FEMME" (1893)
Lithograph, Detail 24, 262 x 198mm

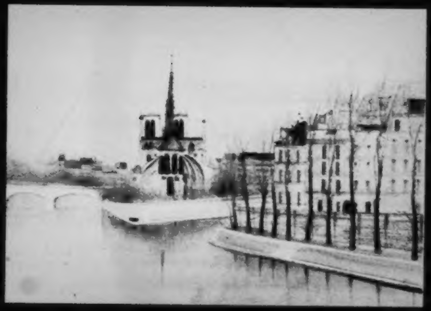
Dealer in Fine Prints
Including:

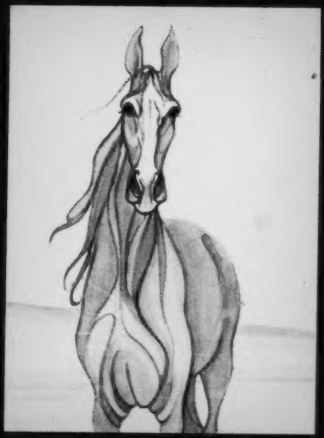
Toulouse-Lautrec
Renoir
Villon
Chagall
Picasso
Buhot
Tissot
Miro
Whistler

10-9 Weekdays • 10-6 Saturdays • (713) 961-9888

the Galleria 5085 Westheimer Suite 3707
Houston, Texas







P Buckley Moss

[illegible]

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Ceramic Masterworks

The premier source for modern and contemporary ceramic art.

GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 Wilshire Blvd Los Angeles 90036
(213) 939 2189
(Opp. L.A. County Museum of Art, alongside Craft and Folk Art Museum)

Opening 24 West 57th Street, New York in late Fall

CONCORD
CONTEMPORARY ART

451 BROOME STREET
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10013
TELEPHONE (212) 925-2994

INSURANCE SPECIALISTS TO THE ART WORLD

GALLERIES · COLLECTORS ·
MUSEUMS · PUBLISHERS ·
AUCTION HOUSES ·

GREAT NORTHERN
BROKERAGE CORP.

INQUIRIES INVITED

CONTACT: NORMAN NEWMAN OR LARRY MORREALE
950 THIRD AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022 (212)371-2800
TWX 710-581-2250 CABLE: GREATNORTH NEW YORK

C. G. REIN GALLERIES
Publishers of Fine Art presents original contemporary art & fine lithographs by the following artists

LESLIE ANDERSON
SALLY ANDERSON
NANCI BLAIR CLOSSON
JAMES CONAWAY
DARRELL HILL
MAXINE MASTERFIELD
GORDON MORTENSEN
GENEVIEVE RECKLING
ANDRE RENOUX
ANN TAYLOR
C.J. WELLS

WITH GALLERIES TO SERVE YOU IN SIX LOCATIONS

- SCOTTSDALE
- SANTA FE
- DENVER
- HOUSTON
- EDINA

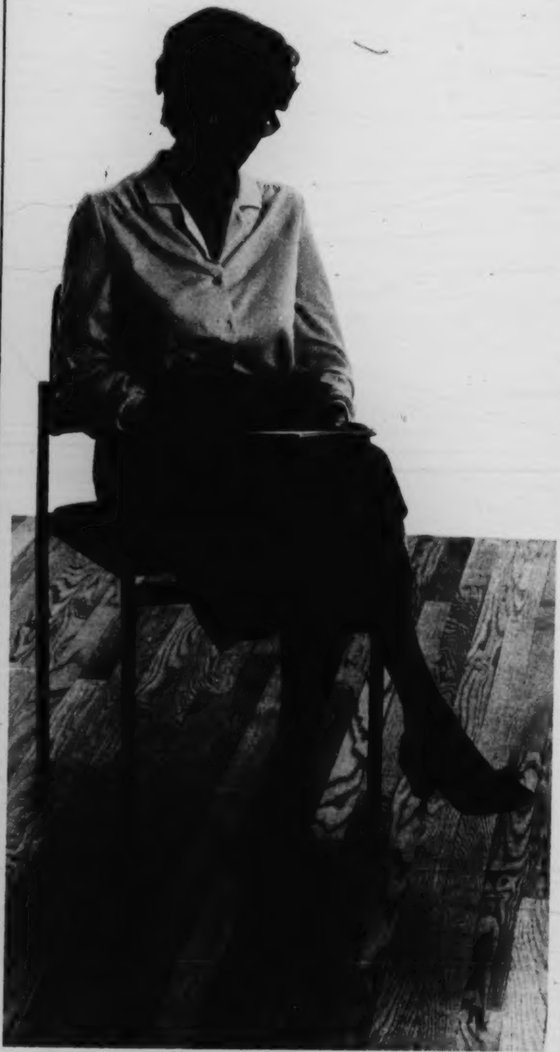
C. G. REIN GALLERIES
MEMBER FINE ART PUBLISHERS OF AMERICA
300 Commerce Building, St. Paul, MN 55101
CALL (612) 222-0591 or 800-328-3158

CALL OR WRITE FOR COLOR BROCHURE

FOSTER
GOLDSTROM
A DEALER IN FINE ART

228 GRANT AVENUE
SIXTH FLOOR
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94108
415/788-5060

DALLAS, FALL 1983



Duane Hanson, SECRETARY, 1972. Lifesize, fiberglas, oilpainted

VOL 71 1
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

ALTERNATIVE GALLERIES

AMOS ENO 101 WOOSTER ST
ATLANTIC 458 W BROADWAY
BLUE-MOUNTAIN 121 WOOSTER ST
BOWERY 121 WOOSTER ST
CENTRAL HALL 386 W BROADWAY
FIRST STREET 386 W BROADWAY
55 MERCER 55 MERCER ST
14 SCULPTORS 164 MERCER ST
GALLERY 84 30 W 57th ST
NOHO 542 LAGUARDIA PL
PHOENIX 30 W 57th ST
PINDAR 127 GREENE ST
PLEIADES 164 MERCER ST
PRINCE 121 WOOSTER ST
SOHO PHOTO 15 WHITE ST
SOHO 20 469 BROOME ST
22 WOOSTER 22 WOOSTER ST
VIRIDIAN 52 W 57th ST
WARD-NASSE 178 PRINCE ST

ASSOCIATION OF ARTIST RUN GALLERIES

MIXOGRAFIA
GALLERY

RUFINO TAMAYO
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA
KENNETH NOLAND
LARRY RIVERS
CARLOS MERIDA
FERNANDO SZYZLO
PEDRO FRIEDEBERG

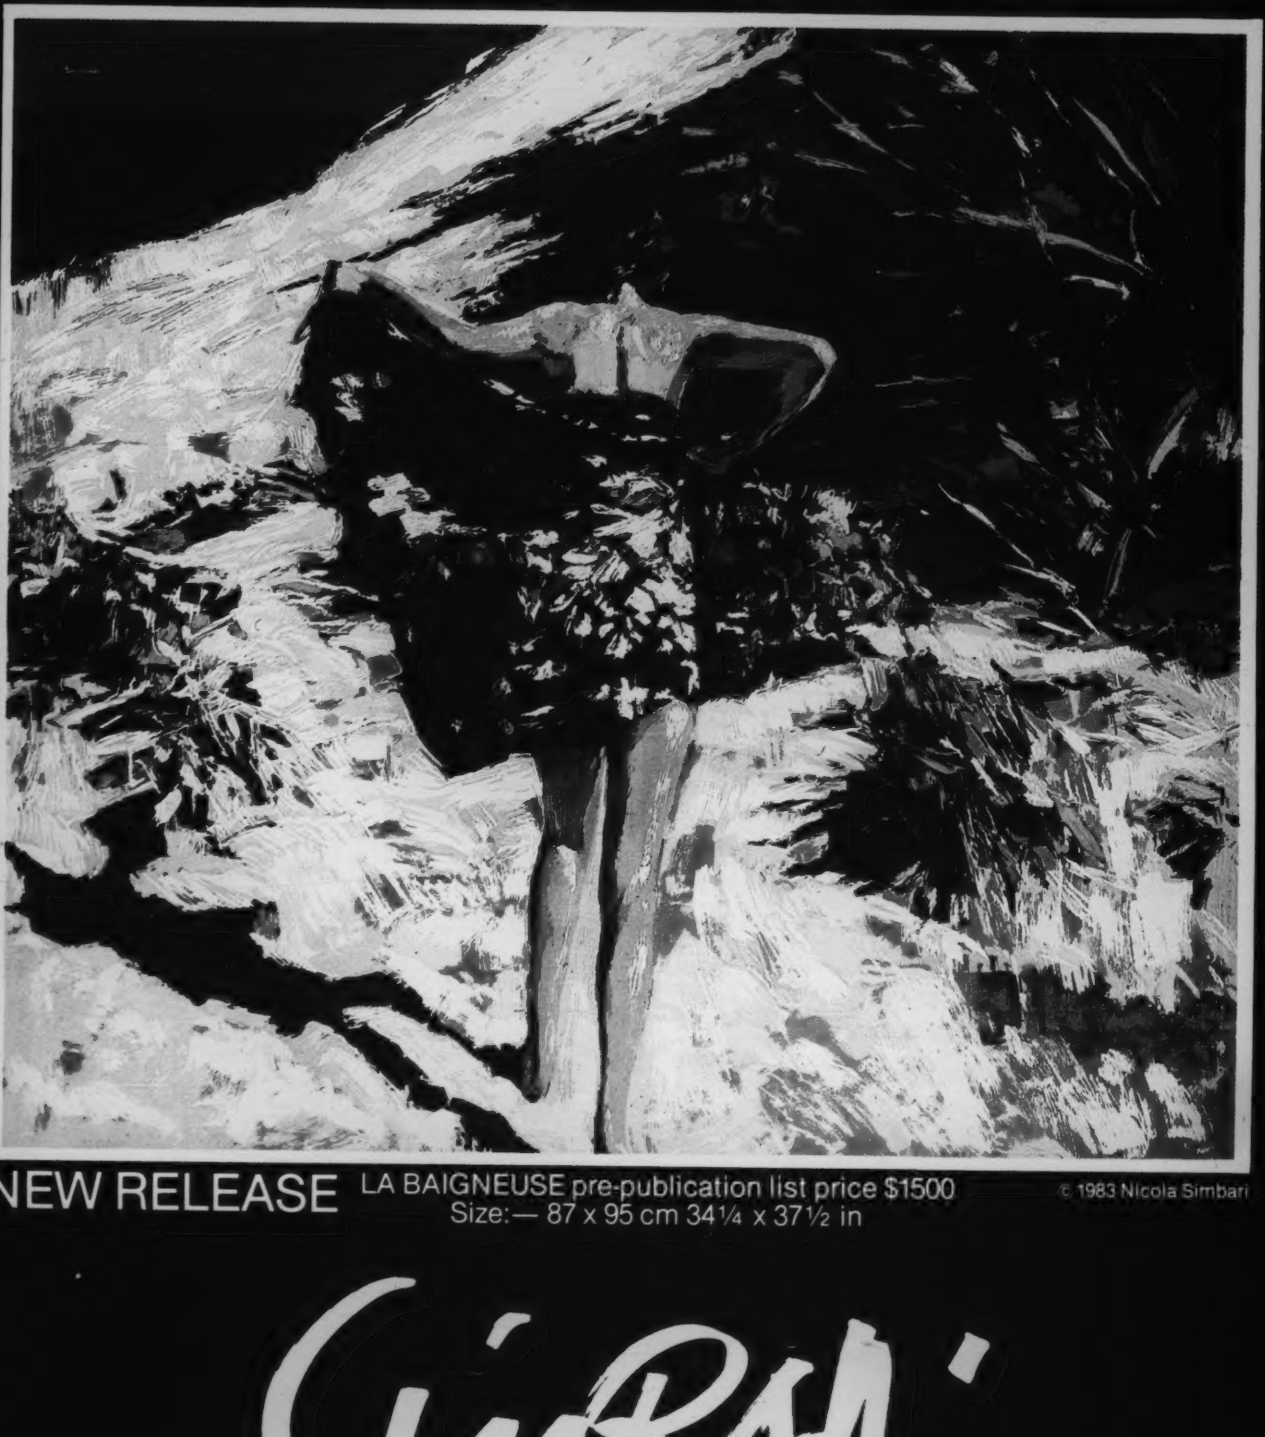
811 MELROSE AVENUE
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90046
(213) 653-1168

RUEBEN AGUILERA
SALES DIRECTOR

STANLEY BLEIFELD

Temple with Figures Bronze 15"h.

Stremmel Galleries, Ltd.
1400 South Virginia Street, Reno, Nv. 89502, (702) 786-0558



NEW RELEASE LA BAIGNEUSE pre-publication list price $1500
Size:— 87 x 95 cm 34¼ x 37½ in © 1983 Nicola Simbari

Simbari

U.S. DISTRIBUTORS
For authorised Simbari Galleries in your area contact Tamar Arts LTD

60 EAST 54TH ST. SUITE 1201, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022 TEL. (212) 308-2161

Authorised Simbari Galleries

STUDIO 53—ART GALLERY
424 Park Ave., New York,
N.Y. 10022
212-755-6650

NAPLES ART GALLERY
275 Broad Avenue South,
Naples, Fla. 33940
813-262-4551

GRAPHIC ART COLLECTION
133 N.E. First Ave.,
Hallandale, Fla. 33009
305-454-8806

THE PATRICIA JUDITH GALLERY
720 East Palmetto Park Road,
Boca Raton, Fla. 33432
305-368-3316

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

September MAJOR NEW WORKS
October DON EDDY
November PHILIP WOFFORD
December HOWARD BUCHWALD
January FRANK OWEN
February RAFAEL FERRER
March JIM SULLIVAN
April DON NICE
May JOE NICASTRI

NANCY HOFFMAN GALLERY
429 West Broadway New York N.Y. 10012

ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY

wishes to announce its new location

126 Post Street, Fourth Floor

San Francisco, California, 94108

415/398/2787

September
Modern and Contemporary Selections

October
David Park Paintings
Tom Goldenberg Paintings

November
Alfred Maurer Paintings
Stanley Boxer Sculpture

December
Alfred Maurer Paintings
Kikuo Saito Paintings

Salander-O'Reilly Galleries, Inc.
22 East 80 New York 10021 Tel (212) 879-6606
Gallery hours: Tues-Sat, 10 to 5:30

20th Century Masters & Contemporary Artists

Robert Elkon
1063 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10028
Tel: 212/535.3940

MARTINA HAMILTON GALLERY

UNIQUE WORKS & PRINTS

JULIAN SCHNABEL
etching, 1983
1 of 9, 24½" x 23¼"

•

Portfolios available to Dealers and Collectors

ALSO FEATURING:
Jennifer Bartlett • Richard Estes • Bryan Hunt
Jasper Johns • Roy Lichtenstein • Robert Longo
A.R. Penck • David Salle • Wayne Thiebaud

NEW ARTISTS:
Fred Faudie • Jeryl Parker
Todd Watts • Steven Wood

19 E. 71st St., New York 10021 • (212) 744-8976
Retail • Wholesale

MEREDITH CONTEMPORARY ART

representative works by:

ED BAYNARD
GENE DAVIS
JAMES HANSEN
MARGIE HUGHTO
BRIAN KAVANAGH
ELLEN MacDONALD
ROBERT MILNES
ROBERT MOTHERWELL
GAYIL NALLS
HARVEY PETERSON
PAUL SISKO
ARLENE SLAVIN
HARRY SOVIAK
TIP TOLAND
COLE WESTON

805 N. CHARLES STREET
BALTIMORE, MARYLAND 21201
(301) 837-3575

Jonathan Poole-Richard Wills Gallery

London New York

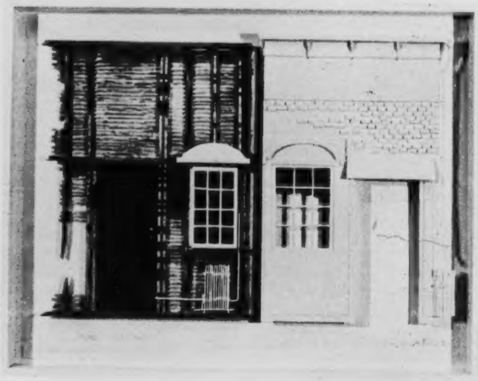
104 Franklin Street, New York, NY 10013
Tel: (212) 334 9220

The gallery specializes in European contemporary sculpture and paintings. All inquiries please ring the above number. A gallery catalogue is available on request. There will be a large stock of paintings, sculpture, stained glass and drawings to view.



Inside, Outside
Guenther Riess
Acrylic, Construction

The Bather
James Butler R.A.
Bronze

1983 Exhibitions:

Summer Show

Mixed Exhibit (works by)*
Guenther Riess
Carol Dick
Helaine Blumenfeld and many others.

September (works by)*
Nissan Engel
Dennis Westwood

October (paintings by)*
Victor Hasch

November (sculpture by)*
Enzo Plazzotta
Jill Tweed

Contemporary Sculpture — POOLE-WILLS PW FINE ART — Exhibition Organizers

915 Fulham Road, London S.W.6., Tel. 01-736-1404

Circle No. 300

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
A G 1983
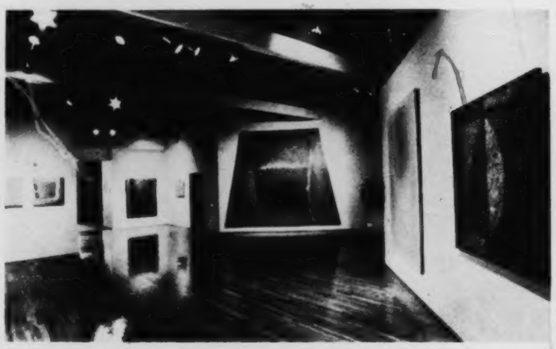
UMI

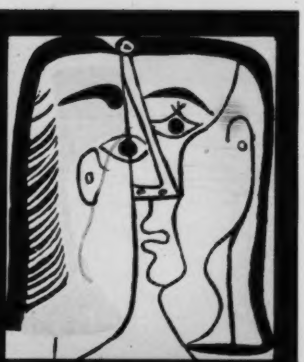
Circle No. 301

ARTSPACE



Contemporary.

VM GALLERIES
VIRGINIA MILLER GALLERIES
THE ARTSPACE 169 MADEIRA
CORAL GABLES, FLORIDA 33134
305-444-4493



From old masters to contemporary and a significant concentration of important emerging California artists.

You will be astounded by the range of Galerie Michael's collection as well as the gallery's philosophy to maintain and exhibit only the more definitive works by the artists.

All works carry a certificate of authenticity, a full two year exchange policy and are archivally framed to museum standards.

We ship worldwide, and maintain a complete corporate division for design, appraisal, curating, and consultation.

Many special exhibitions throughout the year. Call for exact dates and artists to be featured.

DURER
REMBRANDT
RENOIR LAUTREC
PICASSO CHAGALL
MIRO MUCHA ROBBE

A complete set of the Maitre de l'afiche • The most significant collection of CHERET in the U.S. • La Belle Epoque • ART NOUVEAU • and MUCH MORE

GALERIE MICHAEL

10250 SANTA MONICA BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90067 • (213) 556-2762

PARK ROW EDITIONS GALLERY
716 Canyon Road Santa Fe, New Mexico [illegible]

[illegible] Douglas Kent Hall. An [illegible]
[illegible] edition 50 hand sign[illegible]

"The Briefing" One sculpture of a four piece installation at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex in Trenton, New Jersey

Lifesize Bronze Sculpture

J. Seward Johnson, Jr.

For information contact:
Sculpture Placement Suite 304 2828 Pennsylvania Ave NW Wash. DC 202-362-9310

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

JULIAN SCHNABEL OCTOBER
ANSELM KIEFER NOVEMBER
MATT MULLICAN DECEMBER
GARY STEPHAN JANUARY
DAVID SALLE FEBRUARY
RICHARD ARTSCHWAGER MARCH
FRANCESCO CLEMENTE APRIL
TROY BRAUNTUCH MAY DAHN / DOKOUPIL JUNE

MARY BOONE

GALLERY, 420 WEST BROADWAY
GALLERY, 417 WEST BROADWAY
NEW YORK, NEW YORK 966-2114

SERRA · DI · FELICE

THE PUCK BUILDING, 295 LAFAYETTE ST. NEW YORK

TELEPHONE: 212/334.8192

PHOTO: LEE YOUNGBLOOD.

William Sawyer Gallery
3045 CLAY STREET SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94115
TUESDAY-SATURDAY 11-6 (415) 921-1600

BARD BREIVIK
JACKIE BROOKNER
PAUL BROWN
VALENTINA DUBASKY
CAROL HAERER
JOSEPH HASKE
JENE HIGHSTEIN
FRANK LOBDELL
ALFONSO OSSORIO
MARSHA PELS
VICTOR PESCE
PHIL SIMS
JAY SWIFT
THORNTON WILLIS

OSCARSSON HOOD
41 W 57 ST, NYC 10019 (212) 750-8640

LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI

LTM

1080 MADISON AVE., N.Y. N.Y. 10028 (212) 570-6173

Representing:

Nasser Ahari
Bill Barrette
Tom Beverley
Thom Cooney-Crawford
Alessandro Durini Di Monza
Monir Farmanfarmaian
Gilles Jean Giuntini
Leopoldo Maler
Tom McNulty
Nickzad Nodjoumi
Farhad Ostovani
Hossein Zenderoudi

OCTOBER:
Leopoldo Maler
NOVEMBER:
Bill Barrette
DECEMBER:
Hossein Zenderoudi

MAJOR WORKS BY MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY MASTERS

ALBERS-BRAQUE-CHRISTO
CORNELL-DE KOONING
DUBUFFET-GIACOMETTI-KELLY
LEGER-LEWITT-LICHTENSTEIN
LOUIS-MOORE-NOLAND
OLDENBURG-PICASSO-POLLOCK
RAUSCHENBERG-ROSENQUIST
TWOMBLY-WARHOL
WESSELMANN AND OTHERS

MARVIN ROSS FRIEDMAN & CO.
15451 SOUTHWEST 67 COURT
MIAMI, FLORIDA 33157
PHONE (305) 233-4281
BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

ROBERT ARNESON
LUIS CRUZ AZACETA
ROBERT BARNES
JACK BEAL
WILLIAM BECKMAN
JOAN BROWN
ROY DEFOREST
ROBERT HUDSON
ALFRED LESLIE
JAMES McGARRELL
PHILIP PEARLSTEIN
PETER SAUL
JAMES VALERIO
WILLIAM T. WILEY

ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 WEST 57TH STREET NEW YORK

■

CAROLEE SCHNEEMANN

NEW WORK: PAINTINGS, DRAWINGS, SCULPTURE & PRINTS
SEPTEMBER 10 – OCTOBER 8

■

JU MING

BRONZE, WOOD & CERAMIC SCULPTURE
OCTOBER 13 – NOVEMBER 12

■

JEFFREY BROSK

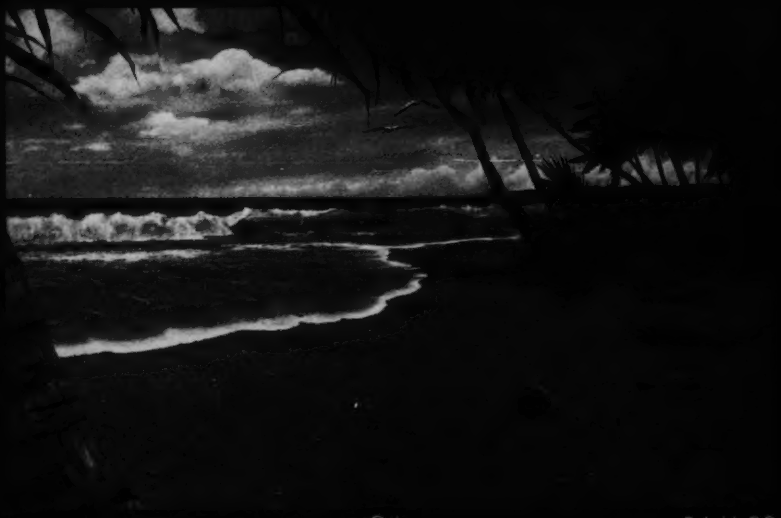
WALL SCULPTURES
NOVEMBER 17 – DECEMBER 17

■

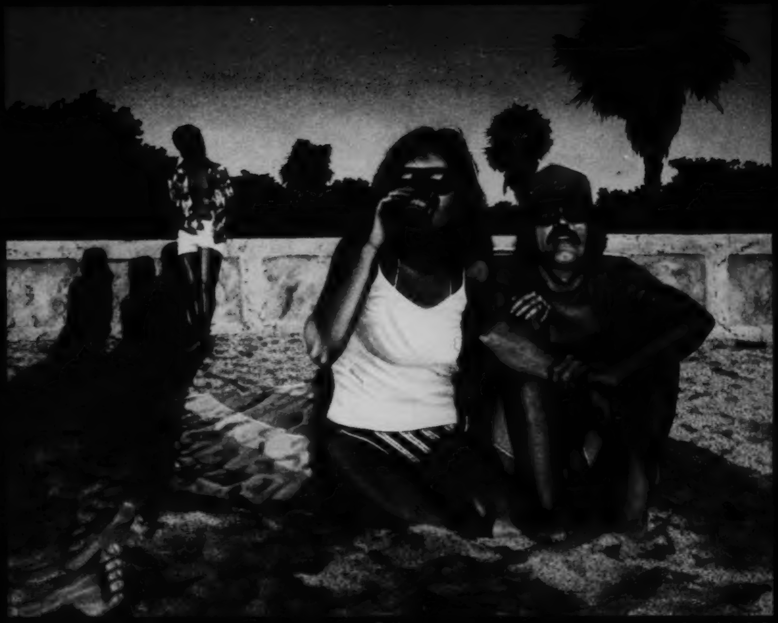
MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 GREENE STREET NEW YORK, NY 10012 212-966-3066

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

KRESMAN



Luquillo Oil 24 X 36



Shades of Summer Oil 24 X 30

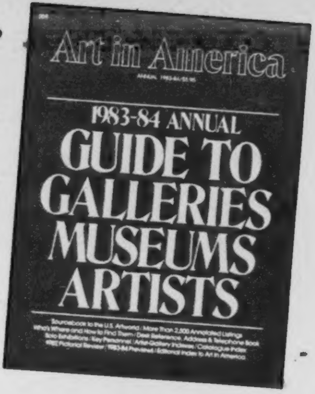
Rosa associates

Poster Available • Brochure Upon Request • Dealer Inquiries Invited

3601 Fifth Avenue • San Diego, CA 92103 • (619) 692-9439

ESSENTIAL ACQUISITION.

This remarkable record of the what, who, when and where of a full year of Art in America has just become THE first source of the entire American artworld. If you don't have it yet, we suggest you order two copies. One for yourself and one for your friends to borrow.



- Complete listing of nearly 2,000 galleries and museums.
- Includes addresses, phone numbers, hours, personnel, artists, specialties and catalogs.
- The only yearly record of all one-person exhibitions.
- Summary of major 1982 events and exhibitions, PLUS major upcoming events.
- Complete 1982 index to Art in America.

Use this postage-paid envelope to order personal and gift copies today... ONLY $5.95, plus postage.

Use this postage-paid envelope to order extra copies of

ART IN AMERICA'S ANNUAL GUIDE to GALLERIES, MUSEUMS, ARTISTS

YES. Send me ______copies of the ANNUAL GUIDE at the cover price of only $5.95 each, plus postage.* My check or money order for $______is enclosed.

Name (please print)

Address

City State Zip

* Postage cost for this 300-page edition—$1.50 per copy.

Send copies in my name to:

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

Recipient's Name

Address

City State Zip

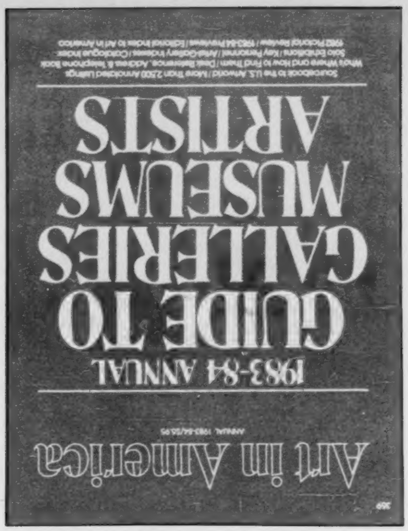
My check or money order in the amount of $______is enclosed for a total of____copies. EH308

Art in America
850 Third Avenue • New York, NY 10022

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

IT'S A WHOLE YEAR OF AMERICAN ART...

don't miss it.



Art in America
1983-84 ANNUAL GUIDE TO GALLERIES MUSEUMS ARTISTS

No Postage
Necessary
If Mailed
in the
United States

BUSINESS REPLY MAIL
First Class Permit No. 3891 New York, NY

Postage will be paid by addressee

Art in America
Dept. GGMA
850 Third Avenue
New York, NY 10022

EIGHT PROFITABLE WAYS TO USE OUR NEW ANNUAL GUIDE:

(for those who haven't thought of them already.)

There's nothing like the new ART IN AMERICA ANNUAL GUIDE to GALLERIES, MUSEUMS, ARTISTS to keep you totally informed on the who, what, where and when of the American art world. But in case you've only thought of some of the many ways the Guide can make your life easier, here are a few ideas:

1. UNCOVER A NEW SOURCE

through the Guide's listings of nearly 2,000 galleries, museums, and alternate spaces throughout the country.

2. LOCATE A SPECIFIC WORK or artist more easily than ever before by using the Guide's pinpoint listings of exactly where artists are represented, if they've had a one-person exhibition, and whether a catalog is available.

3. EXPAND YOUR CONTACTS

by learning to use the Guide's state-by-state listings, which include addresses, telephone numbers, and names of key personnel who can answer your questions.

4. DISCOVER (or rediscover) TALENT

the easy way by checking the Guide's listing of every one-person exhibition in the country for the entire year.

5. FIND AN ARTICLE

fast with the Guide's complete index to all the articles and reviews carried in Art in America for 1982, with helpful references by artist, author, issue and page number.

6. IMPROVE YOUR ITINERARY

by using the Guide's location, personnel, and hours references to help plan your buying, selling, even vacation trips . . . save time and money, too.

7. TREAT A CLIENT or associate to his or her own copy of the Guide. It's something you know they'll enjoy and use.

8. DELIGHT A FRIEND

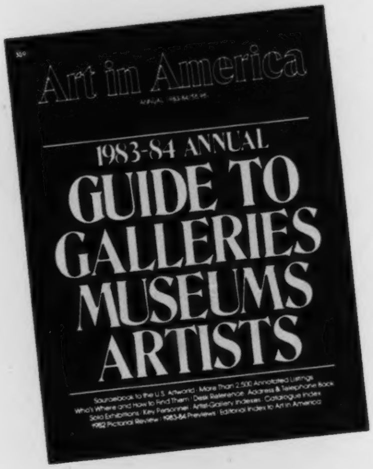
with a thoughtful gift copy of the Guide . . . the perfect remembrance for artist, exhibitor, collector, teacher or student . . . anyone who's as involved in art as you are.



Art in America

1983-84 ANNUAL GUIDE TO GALLERIES MUSEUMS
ARTISTS

Sourcebook to the U.S. Artworld · More Than 2,500 Annotated Listings
Who's Where and How to Find Them / Desk Reference, Address & Telephone Book
Solo Exhibitions / Key Personnel / Artist-Gallery Indexes · Catalogue Index
1982 Pictorial Review / 1983-84 Previews · Editorial Index to Art in America

With all this going for it, the Guide is bound to be a much-used, much-wanted book. And as a special annual edition of Art in America, it's available to you by mail for only $5.95, plus postage. So why not do yourself—and your friends—a favor? Use the coupon to order a back-up copy—or a gift copy for a friend now, while supplies are complete. It could be one of the most astute art acquisitions you make all year!

Art in America

Mail to: Art in America Annual Guide
850 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022

YES. Send me ______ copies of the ANNUAL GUIDE at the cover price of only $5.95 each, plus postage.* My check or money order for $______ is enclosed.

Name (please print) ____________________

Address ____________________

City ______ State ______ Zip ______

 Postage cost for this 300-page edition—$1.50 per copy.

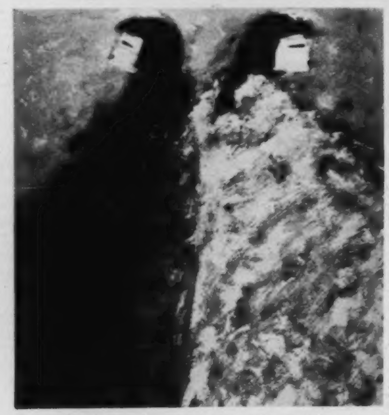
EH307

VOL 71 1
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

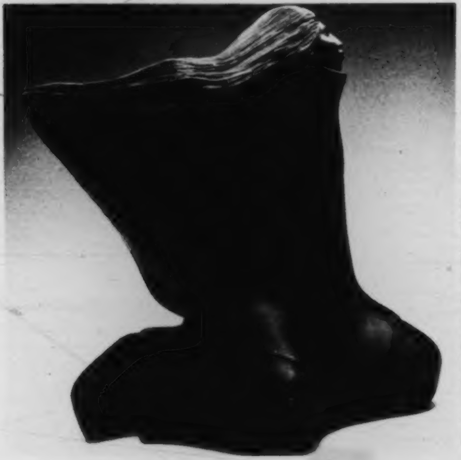
Exclusive representatives for:

Dan Namingha
Paintings, works on paper and sculpture



'Maiden Chanters' Acrylic on Canvas 60" x 46" · Dan Namingha

Allan Houser
Sculpture in stone and bronze



'Thinking of Him' Bronze Ed 10. 19½" x 8" x 13" © Allan Houser

An exhibition of works by both artists is touring the following German cities through 1984: Berlin, Hannover, Stuttgart, Heidelberg, Munich, Frankfurt, Tubingen, Hamburg and Nuremburg.

Their work will also be represented in the FIAC INTERNATIONAL EXHIBIT at the Grand Palais, Paris, in the Fall of 1984.

For further information about either artist and their upcoming exhibition schedules, please contact one of our three galleries:

7051 Fifth Avenue
Scottsdale, AZ 85251
602/990-9110

104 Old Santa Fe Trail
Santa Fe, NM 87501
505/988-4168

7122 North 7th Street
Phoenix, AZ 85020
602/943-8183

the gallery wall Inc

Willard Boepple
Edward Youkilis
Billy Al Bengston
Rachelle Epstein
Todd McKie
Mark Schlesinger
Maureen Connor
George Dowson
Sandi Slone
Catharine Warren
Peter Robbie

ACQUAVELLA CONTEMPORARY ART, INC.
18 East 79th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021 (212) 734-6300

1983

Arthur France
Sam Gilliam
Russell Hamilton
Joe Johnson
Leslie Kuter
Kevin Marshall
Sandra Rubin
Ron Tomlinson
Bror Utter
Harold Joe Waldrum
Estate of Charles Williams

FORT WORTH GALLERY
901 Boland • Fort Worth, Texas 76107 • 817/332-5603

Gallery Paule Anglim

Exhibitions: 1983-84

Milton Avery
Drew Beattie
Christopher Brown
Jay DeFeo
Leon Golub
Susan Hall
Wally Hedrick
William King
Judith Linhares
Joan Mitchell
Haydn Stubbing
Irving Tepper

Sight/Vision/The Urban Milieu
Curated by Fred Hoffman

Gallery Paule Anglim
14 Geary St. San Francisco California 94108
(415) 433-2712 Tues.-Fri. 10:30-5:30 Sat. 11-5

IN NEW YORK
NEW ADDRESS ☛
136 GREENE ST.

PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY

IN CHICAGO
☛ NEW ADDRESS
313 W. SUPERIOR

NICHOLAS CHAPRON

EXHIBITION AUGUST 1 - SEPTEMBER 21, 1983

52 ENGRAVINGS PUBLISHED 1649 AFTER THE FRESCOES BY RAPHAEL IN THE VATICAN.

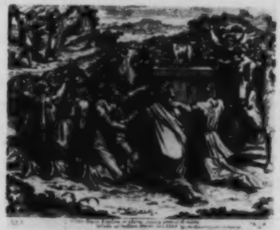

Plate 34 THE GOLDEN CALF engraving
9 11/16 x 11 1/8 inches

This special exhibition celebrates the Vatican exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago and the 500th anniversary of Raphael's birth (1483-1983).

Send $5.00 for a 26 x 22 inch poster reproducing all 52 engravings, and a price list.

DAVID BARNETT GALLERY
2101 West Wisconsin Avenue
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53233
(414) 344-6070

Member Appraisers Association of America

Fall 1983

James Groff

Kermit Oliver

Stevie Manak-Ricks

Charles Schorre

DG DuBOSE
GALLERIES

2950 KIRBY DRIVE • HOUSTON, TX 77098
TELEPHONE: 713/526-4916

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

19th & 20th CENTURY
EUROPEAN AND AMERICAN PAINTING

ANITA FRIEDMAN FINE ARTS LTD.
200 East 71st Street, New York City, 10021
By appointment only (212) 472-1527

An innovative art gallery representing regional and international artists.

Portfolios:
ROSENQUIST
WARHOL

Barbara Gillman Gallery

270 N.E. 39 ST. & 3886 BISCAYNE BLVD
MIAMI, FL 33137 • (305) 573-4898

INTERNATIONAL FINE ART CONSULTANTS, INC.

IN ASSOCIATION WITH DAS HAUS DER GEMÄLDE
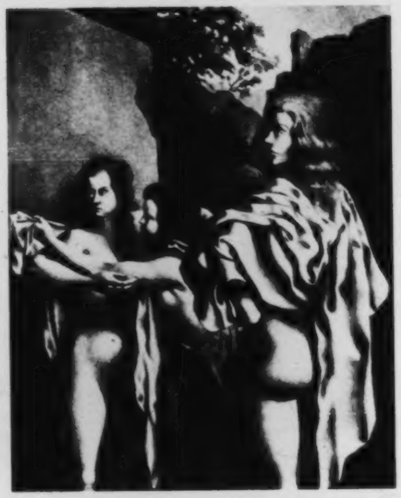
MUNICH, GERMANY

SPECIALIZING IN EUROPEAN AND AMERICAN PAINTINGS FROM OLD MASTERS TO THE PRESENT

REPRESENTATIVES IN:
LOS ANGELES • PALM BEACH • MEXICO CITY
SYDNEY • TOKYO • GENEVA • LONDON • MADRID
MONTE CARLO • MUNICH • VIENNA

IF AC
INTERNATIONAL FINE ART CONSULTANTS, INC.
25 E 77TH STREET • N.Y., NY 10021 • 212-737-5180
TELEX 144594 (TELEMECH FDLE)
CABLES FAFICON-NEWYORK

20th Century American Prints



The New Robe
Lithograph F. Castellon

ANDERSON & ANDERSON
MASTER PRINTS & DRAWINGS
525 N. Garfield Ave. — Loveland, Colorado 80537
(303) 669-2122

Catalogues & lists available.

Circle No. 302

barbara arum

recent sculpture

september 6-25, 1983

Pindar Gallery Invitational
127 greene street
new york, new york 10012
(212) 533-4881
Tues. - Sat., 11-5:30, Sun., 1-5

Vertical Maz ed Steel) 63" x 17" x 7"

EFFECTIVE AUGUST 1, 1983

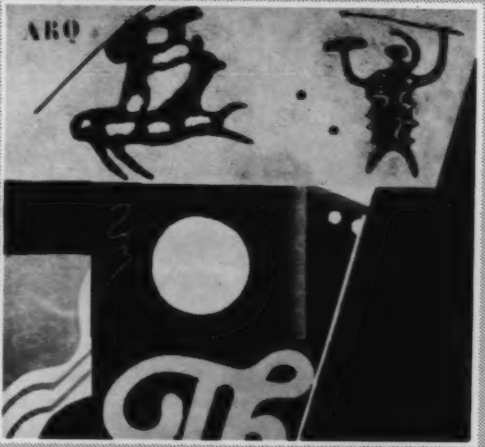
RHONA HOFFMAN GALLERY

215 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
TEL 312.951.8828

Donald Young Gallery

212 WEST SUPERIOR
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60610
FIFTH FLOOR

MAX
PAPART

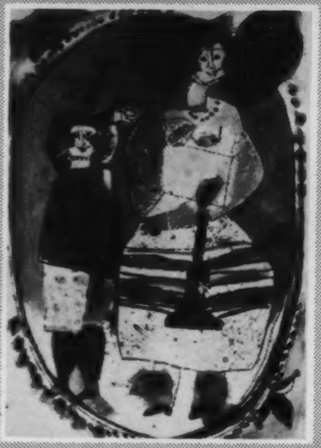


"Combatant Nocturne" 40" x 38"
Etching with carborundum Edition of 75

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Max Papart - Graphics, Oils & Gouaches

THEO
TOBIASSE

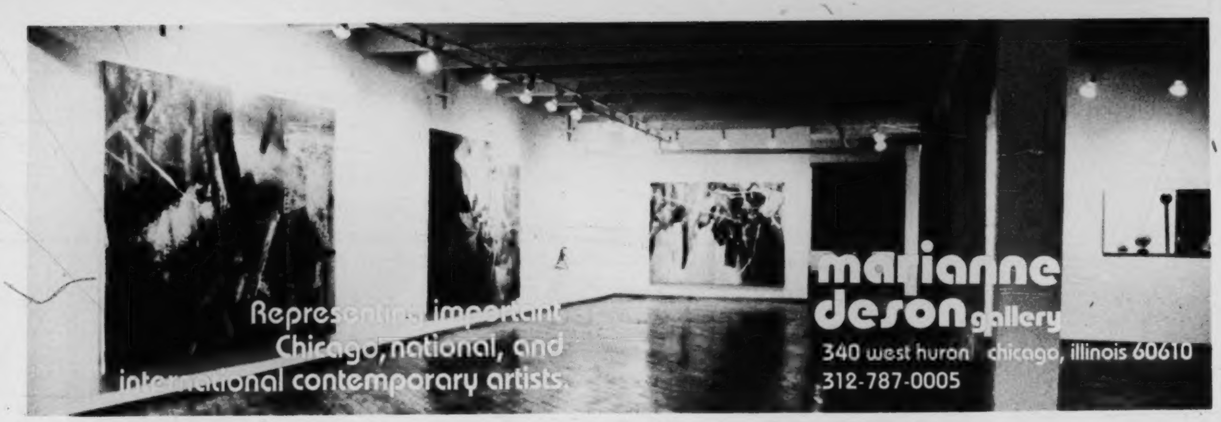


"Lorsque le jour entier devant fruit"
Aquatint with carborundum and collage
37¼" x 53¼" Edition of 60

NAHAN
GALLERIES
540 ROYAL ST. • NEW ORLEANS, LA. 70130
(504) 524-8696

World Agents for Theo Tobiasse - Graphics, Oil, Pastels & Gouaches

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI



Representing important Chicago, national, and international contemporary artists.

marianne deson gallery
340 west huron chicago, illinois 60610
312-787-0005

condeso / lawler ltd.
Dealers and Publishers of Contemporary Art
76 Greene St., 2nd Fl. N.Y., N.Y. 10012 (212) 741-2377 Tues-Sat 11-5

M O N I R

New York
Madrid
Hanover

Hanover Fine Arts exclusively presents
International
Award Winning Artist
MONIR at the Dallas Art Expo.

See his new print
"Creation of a Nature" in the September edition of
Art in America.

HANOVER

Hanover Fine Arts 1078 Main Street Hanover, Massachusetts 02339 617-878-8469

REPRESENTING CONTEMPORARY ART IN HOUSTON

Inquiries welcome regarding these or other artists.

HARRIS GALLERY

DIANE BROWN

GALLERY
100 GREENE
NEW YORK
NY 10012
212-219-1060

METRO PICTURES

METRO PICTURES
MOVES TO A NEW LOCATION AT
150 GREENE STREET, NEW YORK 10012
212/925.8335

HELEN DRUTT GALLERY

HELEN DRUTT

305 Cherry Street
Philadelphia, PA 19106
215-735-1625

In 1974 the Helen Drutt Gallery opened in Philadelphia with an exhibition schedule which included works by Mark Burns, William Daley, Wayne Higby, Richard DeVore, Lizbeth Stewart, David Gilhooly, Paula Winokur, Robert Winokur, Rudolf Staffel, Olaf Skoogfors, Albert Paley, Dale Chihuly, Lenore Tawney, Toshiko Takaezu, Peter Voulkos and Stanley Lechtzin among others. At that time it was one of the first galleries in the United States to make a commitment to that aspect of late twentieth century art which grew out of the post World War II resurgence of modern crafts. It quickly recognized the changes that the craft movement was expressing in its fusion with mainstream art concepts. The recent relocation has enabled the Gallery to broaden its activities with the presentation of project installations. At the same time, the Gallery also remained committed to supporting the historical and traditional attitudes which are a continuing part of the craft field.

During the past nine years, the Gallery has maintained extensive archives which have become a major resource for museums and universities. Through exhibitions and lectures the Gallery activities also encourage scholarship, critical analysis and the development of private and public collections.

An article which appeared in the August/September 1979 edition of American Crafts stated...The Helen Drutt Gallery "has become a place where artists, students and collectors meet. It is to the crafts what Alfred Stieglitz's "291" Gallery was to photography earlier in this century."

Extensive inventory of works by

Amat,* Botero, Bravo, Camporeale,* Castañeda,* Cuartas,* Cuevas, Cugat,* Dreyfus, Figari, Gerzso,* Kahlo, Lam, Matta, Merida, Miretsky,* Orozco, Paternosto,* Rivera, San Aviles, Siqueiros, Tamayo, Torres-Garcia

Mary-Anne Martin/Fine Art
213 East 49th Street, New York 10017
Tel. (212) 980-8140 by appointment

Individual shows planned for 1983-84

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

John Colt • Eleanor Moty • Warrington Colescott
Jack Earl • Keiko Hara • Ken Loeber • Paul Caster
Paul Wong • Natasha Nicholson • Dick Wickman

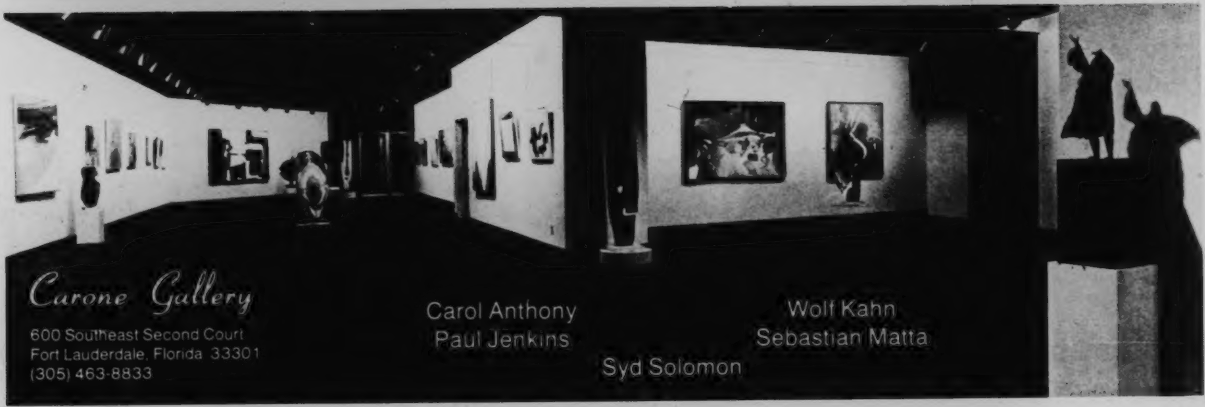
Perimeter Gallery
356 West Huron, Chicago, Illinois 60610 Telephone 312/266-9473

RACHEL ADLER GALLERY

Art of the Twentieth Century
Specialists in European Paintings, Sculpture & Drawings
Russian Avant-Garde · Italian Futurism

58 EAST 79 STREET NEW YORK, NY 10021 TEL 212-831-3824

HADLER · RODRIGUEZ · GALLERIES
38 EAST 57th STREET · NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10022 · 212-752-7734
20 PINEDALE · HOUSTON, TEXAS 77006 · 713-520-6329



Carone Gallery
600 Southeast Second Court
Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33301
(305) 463-8833

Carol Anthony
Paul Jenkins
Syd Solomon
Wolf Kahn
Sebastian Matta

CURATORIAL, ADVISORY, RESEARCH, & APPRAISAL SERVICES

THE FINE ARTS GROUP OF CROSSON DANNIS, INC., provides advisory curatorial services for the care, management, valuation, and enhancement of art collections. Professional services furnished on a consulting basis to institutions, governmental agencies, corporations, and individuals include the following: documentation and registration of art objects; research and cataloguing; curatorial recommendations on the conservation, security, presentation, and exhibition of works of art; advice on acquisitions, disposals, and donations; administration of collections; documented appraisals for all purposes. For further information please contact

THE FINE ARTS GROUP
OF
CROSSON DANNIS, INC.
Robert B. Simon, Ph.D., Director
315 East 72nd Street
New York, N.Y. 10021
(212) 570-7027

KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY

1662 12TH ST/SANTA MONICA
CA 90404 (213) 450-1129

KIM ABELES
JEFFREY BISHOP
JOAN ROSS BLOEDEL
BRUCE DEAN
JEAN EDELSTEIN
MERION ESTES
WALTER GABRIELSON
WILLIAM GATEWOOD
CANDICE GAWNE
GEORGE GEYER
LARRY GRAY
LAUREL HUGGINS
TOM JENKINS
LEONARD KOSCIANSKI
MICHAEL LEVINE
JACK LILLIS
ARNOLD MESCHES
ELLEN FRANCES TUCHMAN

MARILYN BUTLER FINE ART
SCOTTSDALE / SANTA FE

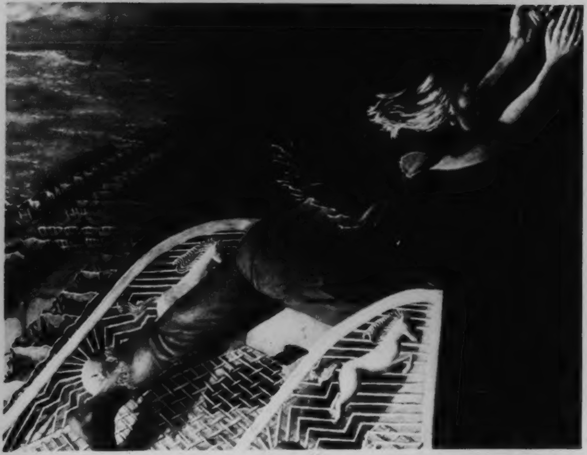
Contemporary
Paintings, Sculpture, Graphics

Representing

FRITZ SCHOLDER
ROY DE FOREST
HOLLY ROBERTS
LAMAR BRIGGS
DAVID DORNAN
FRANK FLEMING
CHRISTOPHER PELLEY
LEONARD LEHRER
EARL LINDERMAN
PAUL SUTTMAN
ANN LACY
MARK McDOWELL
HARMONY HAMMOND
EMMI WHITEHORSE
DAN RICE
JOE ATTEBERRY
JAUNE QUICK-TO-SEE SMITH

MARILYN BUTLER
FINE ART

149 East Alameda Street, Santa Fe, NM 87501 / (505) 982-9359
7157 Main Street, Scottsdale, AZ 85251 / (602) 994-9550



PHAËTON 58 x 44 • Oil, 1982

Sandra Stanton

September 3–22, 1983

westbroadway
gallery

431 W. Broadway, N.Y.C. 10012 (212) 966-2520

Circle No. 303

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

MAURICIO LASANSKY
INTAGLIO PRINTS

Phillip Lasansky
Lasansky Corporation
Quail Creek Condominium 3·E North Liberty, Iowa 52317
319·626·6464

Gekas-Nicholas Gallery
Contemporary Fine Art
Paintings, Sculpture,
Drawings and Prints

6538 East Tanque Verde Road
Tucson, Arizona 85715
(602) 886-5295

Contemporary Art·Dallas

Garo Antresian Jane Lackey
Joy Laville Clinton MacKenzie
Judy Rhymes Jack Silverman
John Strawn Kitty Wallis

NIMBUS GALLERY
1135 Dragon Street
Dallas, Texas 75207
(214) 742-1348

GOLDMAN-KRAFT
GALLERY, LTD.
CHICAGO

Tobey	Braque
Brauer	Tapies
Giacometti	Agam
Kadishman	Bezalel
Chagall	Alechinsky
Miro	Castel

233 EAST ONTARIO STREET
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60611
312-943-9088

WALTON - GILBERT
GALLERIES
WALTON GALLERIES INCORPORATED
Established 1964

NEW EXPANDED LOCATION

A significant Source of Paintings, Sculpture and Master Graphics from the Old Masters thru Contemporary

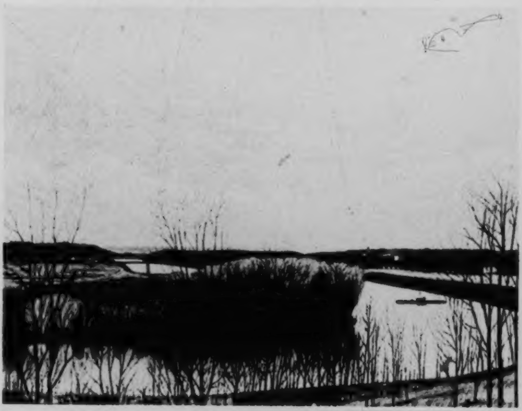
Fine Art Bought, Sold and Appraised

WG

420 Sutter Street
San Francisco, California 94108
(415) 391-8185

ANNE BURKHOLDER
PRAIRIE HORIZONS, SUITE I



"Kansas River, Kansas City" color lithograph, 22" x 30"

Noted prairie landscape painter, Anne Burkholder, announces a suite of four color lithographs on arches paper, scheduled for publication October 1983. Write for information and color brochure. Dealer inquiries invited on letterhead.

db

DONALD BATMAN GALLERY
825 WESTPORT ROAD KANSAS CITY MISSOURI 64111 (816) 531-2588

Circle No. 304

WORKS BY:

ALBERS
CRUTCHFIELD
ESTES
HOCKNEY
JOHNS
KELLY
LICHTENSTEIN
NAUMAN
OLDENBURG
PRICE
RAUSCHENBERG
ROSENQUIST
RUSCHA
STELLA
THIEBAUD
WARHOL

FREIDENRICH CONTEMPORARY ART, INC.
177-F Riverside Dr. · Newport Beach, CA 92663 · (714) 631-5499

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Nathan Silberberg
Fine Arts

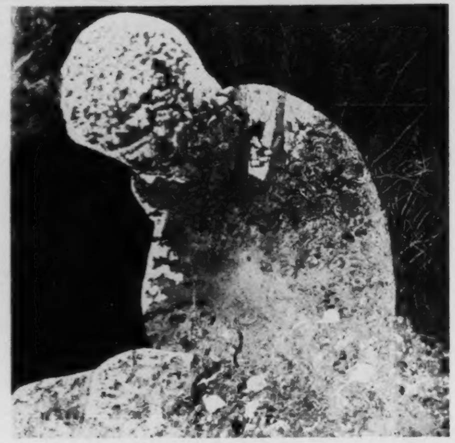
Serving the trade since 1972

Israel, Spanish and International Contemporary Art: painting, sculpture, drawing and original graphics.

Yaacov Agam
Francis Bacon
Christo Javacheff
Antoni Clave
Moshe Castel
Max Ernst
Montserrat Gudiol
Sebastion Matta
Joan Miró
Henry Moore
Rafael Soyer
Rufino Tamayo
Joan-Pere Viladecans
Nada Nadežda Vitorović
Francisco Zúñiga

16 East 79th Street New York, NY 10021 • 212-861-6192

MARY FRANCES JUDGE



Recent Paintings

PRESENTED BY PAIGE GALLERY

1519 Hi Line Drive • Dallas, Texas 75207 • 214-742-8483
Hours 9:30-4:30 Monday-Saturday

ATTENTION ARTISTS!
DOES THE NAME
RUBY BERGONSKI RING A BELL?
PROBABLY NOT BUT IF ANY OF THE FOLLOWING DO:

WINSOR & NEWTON, GRUMBACHER, LEFRANC, HOLBEIN, LIQUITEX, TALENS, PELIKAN, BLOCKX, BOCOUR, ROWNEY, PERMALBA, SHIVA, MARKAL, PERCY BAKER, ISABEY, ROBERT SIMMONS, KOH-I-NOOR, BIENFANG, KRYLON, BEROL, DERWENT, D'ARCHES, WHATMAN, FABRIANO, CARAN D'ACHE, STAYCORE, NEOLT, TESTRITE, LUXO, BADGER, PAASCHE, THAYER & CHANDLER, ALTOS, C&H, DEXTER, FREDRIX, AND MORE . . .

YOU CAN FIND THEM AND OTHERS IN OUR HUGE DISCOUNT ART MATERIAL CATALOG.
YOURS FOR ONLY $1.00. OH, IF RUBY BERGONSKI DOES RING A BELL, SEND $2.00 FOR SPECIAL RUSH SERVICE.

☐ YES SEND ME YOUR CURRENT CATALOG.
ENCLOSED IS $1.00 AND MY NAME AND ADDRESS

Name

Street Town

State Zip

JERRY'S ARTARAMA INC.
248-12 DEPT AIA UNION TURNPIKE BELLEROSE NY 11426 AIA1

THE DELAWARE VALLEY'S FINEST METROPOLITAN GALLERY

Abrahami
Agam
Andraud
Appel
Barnet
Binder
Carruthers
Dahmen
Dali
Dorny
Duron
Feltus
Ginzburg
Gorman
Lee
Lichtenstein
Lindner
Luongo
Masson
Max
Miro
Moore
Nitka
Pena
Rauschenberg
Rothe
Sehring
Serrier
Solombre
Stella
Takara
Vasarely
Wesselman
Wilson
Wonner
Yamagata

Hallowell

THE HALLOWELL GALLERY
151 10TH AVE. EAST, CONSHOHOCKEN, PA 19428
PHONE 215-828-8666, OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Circle No. 305

October

DAVID MORRIS
JIM JUSZCZYK

1984

THEODORE HALKIN
SUSAN MICHOD
RICHARD LOVING

Jan Cicero Gallery
437 N Clark Chicago Il 60610 312 644 5374

ANGELO CIOTTI
July 30-August 28
MICHAEL MORRILL
September 3-October 1
JAMES TURRELL
October 29-February 1
INSTALLATIONS

THE MATTRESS FACTORY, LTD.
500 Sampsonia Way, Pittsburgh, PA 15212 (412) 231-3169

GEORGE RODART

IS REPRESENTED BY

ULRIKE
KANTOR
GALLERY
800 N. LA CIENEGA BLVD.
LOS ANGELES, CA 90069
213/273-5650

CONTRACTS FOR ARTISTS

by William R. Gignilliat, III
Attorney-at-law

A comprehensive, useful book of Model Contracts: Invoices ☐ Bills of sale ☐ Installment sales ☐ Certificates of authenticity (Artist & Expert) ☐ Model releases ☐ Artist's studio lease ☐ Agreements for commissions & employment ☐ Agreements for reproduction & licensing ☐ Art dealer & Gallery agreements (Purchase & Consignment) ☐ Museum loan — & much more. Includes full text of new U.S. Copyright Act, applications, forms, regulations, circulars, and Universal Copyright Convention.
No artist's studio, art school, gallery, museum or library should be without CONTRACTS FOR ARTISTS, the complete introduction to business practice, general contractual principles, and the new American Copyright law.

☐ Softcover—$18.95 —tax, postage
☐ Hardcover—$49.95 —and hndling included

Please send NAME/ADDRESS/CITY/STATE/ZIP with payment to:

Words of Art, inc. P.O. Box 2 Atlanta, GA 30301

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

GALLERY II
RSVP

KALEIDOSCOPE U.S.A.

Antonio Albici
Dan Bollman
K. David Brown
Allen Gilberg
C. Ford LeFevre
Bahram Nashat
Luis Villanueva
Helen Grace Waldman
Barbara Zinkel
Monica Ard
Lou Jene Carter
Ted Hinson
Elizabeth O'Neill
Alexandru Preiss
Carol Rose
H.A. Sinclair, M.D.
Alexandra Alaupovic
Arista Baltronis
John Baldwin
Kim Beard
Kendall Dane
Frances Eubank
Bob Jolly
Virgil Hinesley
Dr. David M. Lockwood
Ed & Jane McGuiness
Amy Sadle
Jeanette Shirley
Diane Turner
Chuck B. Tomlins
Nini Jennings
Elaine Annis
Eugene Armistead
Shirley Cadmus
Larry Christensen
Michael Gault
Mohinder Gill
Nancy Hebard
Judith Kornett
Margaret Martin McElroy
Eddie Owens
Gary G. Pike
Dan Paun
Mary Beth Printz
Mary Talbot Rieckert
Halide Salam

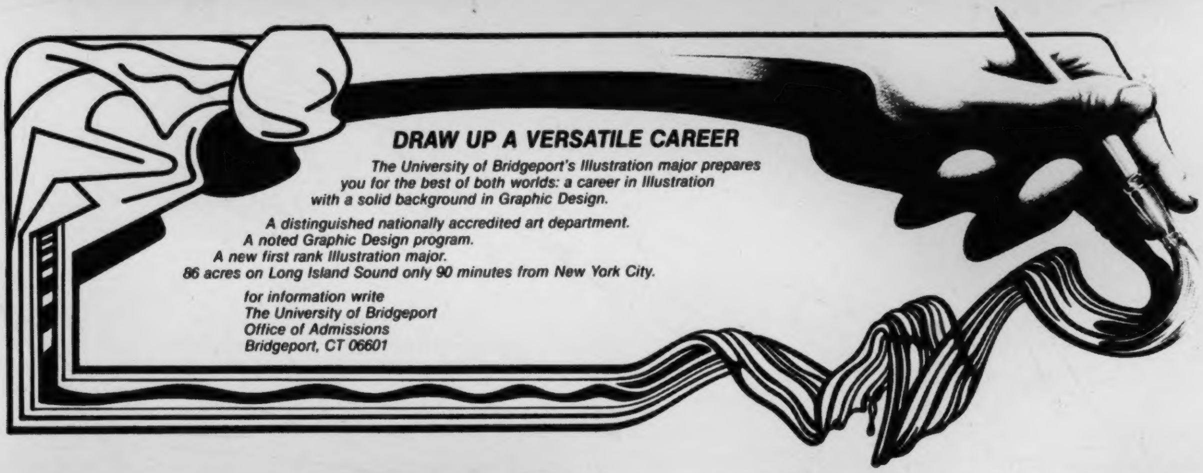
Gallery II/RSVP on the Mall in Historic Downtown Charlottesville, Virginia.

Now accepting slides for future shows

Gallery Director, Colleen Later
218 West Main Street
Charlottesville, Virginia 22901
804 977-RSVP

MULTISCALE SCULPTURE
313 W. 20th Street, N.Y. 10011
(212) 757-1090

BETTY KLAVUN
DOROTHY GILLESPIE
SEENA DONNESON
PAUL SISKO



DRAW UP A VERSATILE CAREER

The University of Bridgeport's Illustration major prepares you for the best of both worlds: a career in Illustration with a solid background in Graphic Design.

A distinguished nationally accredited art department.
A noted Graphic Design program.
A new first rank Illustration major.
86 acres on Long Island Sound only 90 minutes from New York City.

for information write
The University of Bridgeport
Office of Admissions
Bridgeport, CT 06601

PRINTWORLD

☐ 12,000 print listings
☐ 825 top artists profiles
☐ 600 photos ☐ 512 pages

1983/84 PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY

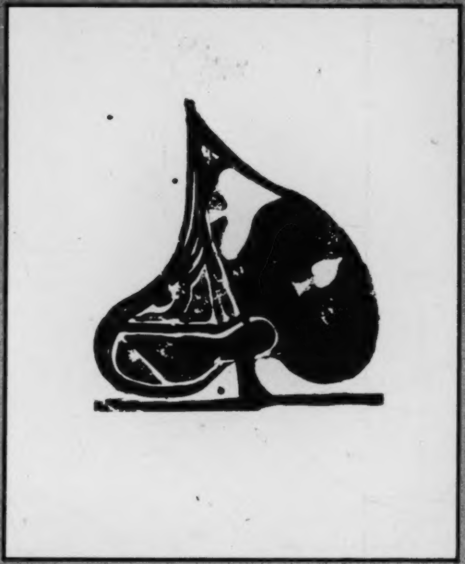
PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is unique! It is the only print/price catalog with complete documentation of limited edition prints and current retail prices. PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY quotes the market price of current & sold out editions. It also lists awards, exhibits, publishers, etc. for each artist. It provides complete addresses of Print Workshops, publishers and galleries.

PRINTWORLD DIRECTORY is a "must" reference for anyone actively involved in the print marketplace . . . an invaluable guide for galleries, collectors, appraisers, collectors, libraries, etc. Send for your copy today! The Complete International Print/Price Reference Guide!

1982 EDITION $35.00 Postage/Handling: $5. USA—$10. Outside USA
1983 EDITION $49.95 NAME
ADDRESS
VISA/MC # EXP

P.O. Box 785 • Bala Cynwyd, PA 19004 (215) 649-5140

MAJOR ARTISTS PRINTS
3 JULY-31 JULY



Richard Diebenkorn · Sugarlift Spade · 1982, 33"×26½"

ROCKLANDS GALLERY
in cooperation with Crown Point Press
375 Alvarado St. Monterey, CA (408) 649-3462

B. LEWIN GALLERIES
ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE OUR 25th ANNIVERSARY OF
MEXICAN MASTERS

SELECTED WORKS ON EXHIBITION BY

RUFINO TAMAYO
CARLOS MERIDA
RAFAEL CORONEL
JEAN CHARLOT
DIEGO RIVERA
FELIPE CASTANEDA
FRANCISCO ZUNIGA
GUSTAVO MONTOYA ETC

B. Lewin Galleries

266 North Beverly Drive
Beverly Hills, California 90210

213-278-5769
213-550-1825

Davis • McClain Galleries

Tom Berg
Frank Faulkner
Gary Faye
Flukinger Harrah
Gail Gash
Jackie Greeves
Woody Gwyn
Aaron Karp
Jesus Bautista Moroles
Bill Shepherd
Henry Sinn
Doug Sweet
John Wenger

2818 Kirby Drive Houston Texas 77098 713 520 9200

MAGNIFICENT OIL PORTRAITS FOR YOUR CLIENTS

Parle Portraits are created from a single sitting or any available photograph and hang in museums, fine homes and corporate offices throughout the world.

Galleries are invited to represent us.
Call or write for color brochure with details.

PARLE PORTRAITS
100 Lasalle Street, New York, N.Y. 10027 (212) 663-7361

VOL 7 1
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Andrea Rosenberg

Donald Judd

Group Show
guest curator
John Weber

Barbara Kasten

Keith Sonnier

James Biederman

CAROL TAYLOR, Art
1983 - 1984 Season

Group Show
guest curators
Irving Blum
Joe Helman

Robert Morris

Michael Venezia

Mel Bochner

Joe Guy

2508 cedar springs, dallas, tx 75201 (214) 745-1923

GUIDE TO

Galleries Museums Artists

Alabama

Birmingham

1001. BIRMINGHAM MUSEUM OF ART
2000 8th Ave N 35203
(205) 254-2565 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-9, Sun 2-6
Dir: Richard Murray
European and American paintings; classical and Oriental arts; graphics; Wedgwood; Pre-Columbian; Old West art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Romare Bearden*, Frank Fleming*, Dick Jemison*, Rosalie Price*, Roger Shimomura*, Arthur Stewart*.

1002. BIRMINGHAM SOUTHERN COLLEGE
Doris Wainwright Kennedy Art Center
Box A21 35254
(205) 328-5250 Mon-Fri 8:30-5
Dir: Bob Tucker
Faculty and student, local and regional works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Linda Burgess, Robert Hagarty, Robert Marchiony, Jim Neel.

Fairhope

1003. WHITING ART CENTER
401 Oak St 36532
(205) 928-2228 Tue-Sat 10-12, 2-4; Sun 2-5
Dir: James L. Whitehead
Exhibitions of local and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Annan, Herman Bischoff, Peter Bryant, Howard Neil Cannon, Mary Lou Carpenter, Carol Connely, Eloise Cook, Adele Davis, Paul Dix, Charles Gatewood, Wilda Gilbert, Casey Ginn, Joe Latil, Joe Elen Macon, Betty Magee, Charles Miltenberger, Annetta Nichols, David Nichols, Marcia Nichols, Jo Patton, Jessie Pettie, Gene Pollock, Everett Rogers, Rick Rolston, Jean Schulman, Sonja Sellers, Harriet Slaughter, Barrie Van Osdell, John Voosen, Roscoe Wallace, Charlotte Woods.

Fayette

1004. FAYETTE ART MUSEUM
City Hall 35555
(205) 932-3300 Daily 7:30-4
Dir: Ned Nichols
Permanent collection of works by Lois Wilson and other artists.

Gadsden

1005. GADSDEN MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
2829 W Meighan Blvd 35902
(205) 546-7365 Mon, Wed, Fri 11-5; Tue, Thu 10-4
Dir: Linda McAdams
Paintings, lithographs, Indian artifacts, decorative arts.

Huntsville

1006. HUNTSVILLE MUSEUM OF ART
700 Monroe St SW 35801
(205) 534-4566
Dir: Donald Knaub
19th- and 20th-century American prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton*, Sally Cleveland, Harold Christopher Davies*, Philippe Halsman*, Elena Karina, Albert Lane, Walter Hollis Stevens*

1007. UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA
Gallery of Art
Department of Art and Art History 35899
(205) 895-6114
Dir: Anthony Clark Argo
Print collection and contemporary work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tom Francis, Paul Martyka, Donna Pinter.

Mobile

1008. BOLAND-BETHEA GALLERY
212 Saint Francis St 36602
(205) 432-6952
Dir: Lois Eastman
Contemporary American paintings, graphics, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jan Dorer, Derald Eastman, Jo Myer.

Other artists represented:
Arthello Beck, T. De Jong, L. Hoffman, F. Lawyer, R. Sabree, William Street, Arie Van Selm, Inge Wright.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1009. FINE ARTS MUSEUM OF THE SOUTH
Museum Dr 36608
(205) 343-2667
Dir: Mary O'Neill Victor
Southern furniture, decorative arts, paintings; contemporary American crafts; 19th- and 20th-century European and American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Gray, Henry Wo Yue Kee, Lee Loring, Romanos Rizk, Charles Shannon.

1010. MUSEUM OF THE CITY OF MOBILE
355 Government St 36602
(205) 438-7569 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Caldwell Delaney
Exhibitions relating to the history of Mobile; local art; Fenollosa Collection of Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edmond Carl deCelle, Sharon Perna.

Montgomery

1011. GREEN GARDEN GALLERY
611 S Lawrence St 36104
(205) 262-0775
Dir: Allan Swafford
Works by regional and local painters.

Other artists represented:
Dwayne Alford, Juan Carchache, Edward Carlos, Ann Copeland, John Foust, Barbara Gallagher, Marilyn Head, Helen Keller, Judith Krause, John Lapsley, Fran K. Loeb, John McDonald, J. Sabel, David Savler, Joel Stephens, Muir Stewart, Miss Takako, John Wagnon, C. B. Whitehead, Sharon Yavis.

1012. MONTGOMERY MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
440 S McDonough St 36104
(205) 834-3490 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-9, Sun 1-6
19th-20th-century American painting, graphics, and drawings; European works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Wayne Brown*, Anne Goldthwaite*, Chris Kakas*, Tom Moore*, Mose Tolliver*, Bill Traylor*.

University

1013. UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA
Moody Gallery of Art
Box F Garland Hall 35486
(205) 348-5967 Mon-Fri 8-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Angelo J. Granata
Contemporary drawings, paintings, photography, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alice Baber*, Mauricio Lasansky.

Alaska

Anchorage

1014. ANCHORAGE HISTORICAL AND FINE ARTS MUSEUM
121 W 7th Ave 99501
(907) 264-4326 Tue-Sat 9-6, Sun 1-5
Dir: R. L. Shalkop
Alaskan art, artifacts of all periods.

1015. ARTIQUE
314 G St 99501
(907) 277-1663
Dir: Jean Shadrach/Tennys Owens
Artists of Alaska, Canada, and Japan.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Machetauz.

Other artists represented:
Byron Birdsall, Dale De Armond, Yasu Eguchi, Susan Pennewell Ellis, Gretchen Hancock, Teri Jo Hedman, John Pitcher, Jean Shadrach, Paul Steucke.

1016. GALLERY 20
800 E Diamond Blvd 99504
(907) 344-2712 Mon-Fri 10-9
Dir: Juanita Smith
Painting, jewelry, ceramics.

1017. STEPHAN FINE ARTS
440 W 3rd Ave 99501
(907) 276-4651 Daily 10-10
Dir: Dawn M. Kelly
Primitive, Western and Alaskan art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Aldo Luongo.

Other artists represented:
Charles Gause, Leroy Neiman, Frank Rademacher, Norman Rockwell.

1018. STEPHAN FINE ARTS GALLERY
600 W 6th Ave 99501
(907) 278-9555 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Dawn Kelly
Contemporary realist Western and Alaskan painting, sculpture, ivory, native baskets.

Other artists represented:
James Bama, Robert Bateman, Sue Ellen Ross, Morton Solberg.

1019. VISUAL ARTS CENTER OF ALASKA
615 Warehouse Ave 99501
(907) 274-9641 Mon 9-7; Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: Patricia Lombard
Regional and national; metals, sculpture, fiber, printmaking.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Bachman, Julie Baugnet, Lee Clapsaddle, David Edelfsen, Dave Felker, Mitchell Gaul, Denis Keogh, Robert Pfitzenmeier, Tony Rubey, Tim Ryan.

Fairbanks

1020. UNIVERSITY OF ALASKA
907 Yukon Dr 99701
(907) 474-7505 May-Sep, Daily 9-5; Oct-Apr, Daily 12-5
Dir: Basil C. Hedrick
Center for the collection, preservation, and dissemination of information pertaining to the natural and cultural history of Alaska.

Ketchikan

1021. GATHERING, A COLLECTOR'S GALLERY
28 Creek St 99901
(907) 225-5987 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Kathleen Johnson-Kuhn
Paintings, prints, sculpture, fiber, jewelry, primarily by Alaskan artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Appel, Jennifer Bellinger, Kate Boesser, Ken De Roux, Dale DeArmond, Catherine Doss, Claire Fejes, JoAnn George, Huong, David Mollett, Ernest Robertson, Sue Ellen Ross, Jim Schoppert, Ron Senungetuk, Turid Senungetuk, Alfred Skondovitch, R. T. Wallen, Marianne Wieland, Kesler Woodward, Craig Zweiffel.

Other artists represented:
Dot Bardarson, Jim Belcher, Bill Brody, Jim Fowler, Mary Ida Henrikson, Linda Larsen, Karen Olanna, Melvin Olanna, Elizabeth Rose, Randy Rutherford, Sharon Scramstad.

1022. TONGASS HISTORICAL SOCIETY MUSEUM
629 Dock St 99901
(907) 225-5600 Mon-Fri 1-5, Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Virginia McGillvray
Northwest Coast Indian and local history; photography.

Nome

1023. CARRIE M. MCLAIN MEMORIAL MUSEUM
200 Front St 99762
(907) 443-2566 Summer Tue-Fri 10-6; Sat
Dir: Roy D. Iutzi Johnson
Prehistoric, historic, and contemporary Eskimo art; non-native artists of the Bering Strait region.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Jane Litchard.

Arizona

Bisbee

1024. COCHISE FINE ARTS
21 Subway St, PO Box 1783 85603
(602) 432-2692
Dir: James Cervantes
Alternative space; local, regional, national artists; annual poetry festival.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ray Levra, Sirkka-Liisa Phillips.

Other artists represented:
Michail Codieux, Howard Conant, Betsy Easterday, Ann Farrell, Herb Gilbert, Yohai Givon, Chuck Hitner, Gil Lutz, Manny Martnen, Dave Pennington, Judy Perry, Lisa Phillips, Ron Pippin, Dik Preston, Raphael Ropek, Toni Sodersten, Robert Wick.

---

*see catalog index

Flagstaff

1025. MUSEUM OF NORTHERN ARIZONA
Route 4, Box 720 86001
(602) 774-5211 Daily 9-5
Art of the Colorado Plateau; Native American art, Southwest painters; crafts.

1026. NORTHERN ARIZONA UNIVERSITY ART GALLERY
Box 6021 86011
(602) 523-3471 Mon-Fri 9-5; Wed eve 6:30-8:30; Sun 3-5
Dir: Joel S. Eide
Collection of graphics, paintings, ceramics, sculpture; workshops, lectures, performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Aurand, Don Bendel, Donald Bjorkman, David Goines, Bruce Howdle, David Johns, Lois M. Johnson, Ken Kerslake, Janus Kozikowski, Nancy Kozikowski, Sherry Leedy, Jim O'Hara, Seth Seiderman, Todd Walker.

Phoenix

1027. JOHN DOUGLAS CLINE GALLERY
424 N Central 85004
(602) 252-7213 Tue-Fri 9-5; Sat 11-3
Dir: Susan Hanch
Contemporary regional paintings, sculpture, ceramics, monotypes.

Other artists represented:
Richard Bauer, Norene Berry, Christine Dawson, Laura Elliott, Tom Ferguson, Ka Graves, George Judson, Nancy Kittredge, Lyle London, Patrick Palmer, Mark Pasek, Christopher Pelley, Carol Sherwood, Charles Strong, Alan Weaver, Suzan Woodruff, Joseph Young.

1028. GALLERY 3
3819 N 3rd St 85012
(602) 277-9540 Mon-Fri 8:30-5:30; Sat 10-4
Dir: Sherry Manoukian
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, graphics of Southwestern artists.

Other artists represented:
Carol Colburn, Gus Kniffin, Harold Mason, Lew Wilson.

1029. GALLERY WALL
7122 N 7th St 85020
(602) 943-8183 Mon-Sat 8-5
Dir: Glenn Green/Sandy Green
Contemporary Southwestern Native American art.

1030. HEARD MUSEUM
22 E Monte Vista Rd 85004
(602) 252-8840 Mon-Sat 10-5; Sun 1-5
Dir: Michael J. Fox
Anthropology and primitive art; Native American paintings, graphics, sculpture; Kachina Collection; works of African, Asian, Amazonian, Oceanic cultures.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joe Baker, Oscar Howe*, Dennis Numkena.

1031. IANUZZI GALLERY
2650 E Camelback Rd 85016
(602) 956-4522 Mon-Sat eves
Dir: Mara Ianuzzi
20th-century art; sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Harry Bertoia, Fred Borcherdt, Fernando Botero, Laddie John Dill, Benjamin Kaiser, Bill Kane, Lyman Kipp, Conrad Marca-Relli, Deborah Remington, George Rickey, Kenneth Snelson, Paul Wunderlich, Jack Zajac.

1032. JUDAICA MUSEUM OF THE TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL
3310 N 10th Ave 85013
(602) 264-4428
Dir: Mrs. Albert Plotkin
Judaic arts and ceremonials, 1600-present; archeaology.

1033. MARS GALLERY
1201 S 1st Ave/PO Box 20431 85036
(602) 253-3541 By appt
Dir: Robert Buitrón
Movimiento Artistico del Rio Salado; co-op alternative gallery; Chicano artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Buitrón, Andrés Girón.

Other artists represented:
Ralph Córdova, Ramón Delgadillo, Ed Diaz, Lennee Eller, Marta de Leon, Elizabeth Lerma Bowerman, Susi Lerma, Annie López, Jose Rodríguez, Reyes Ruiz, Joseph Sánchez, Antonio Tocora, Francisco Zuniga.

1034. PHOENIX ART MUSEUM
1625 N Central Ave 85004
(602) 257-1880 Tue-Sat 10-5, Wed 10-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: James Ballinger
American, European, contemporary, and Oriental paintings; sculpture; graphics; decorative arts; Mexican and Western art; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pierre Balmain, Dale Chihuly, Gustave Cimiotti, Phillip Curtis, Jay Dusard, Donald Evans, William Harper, Edward Hopper, Robert Rauschenberg, Helen Rose, Charles Simonds, John Sloan.

1035. TRAILSIDE GALLERIES
Sky Harbor International Airport 85034
(602) 275-3848 Mon-Sat 8-5
Dir: Ted Mollring/Christine Mollring
19th-20th-century American art.

Other artists represented:
Clyde Aspevig, Rogers Aston, Wayne Baize, Mitch Billis, Joseph Bohler, James Boren, Don Briddell, Reynold Brown, Mike Desatnick, Frank Divita, Francis Donald, Mario Fernandez, Nicholas Firfires, Bill Freeman, Debbie Gessner, Joseph Giordano, Nancy Glazier, Dawn Goodall, Evelyn Haines, K.M. Hendricks, Joanne Hennes, Jack Hines, Wilson Hurley, Marshall Joyce, Buffalo Kaplinski, Mort Kunstler, Ron Lawson, Gary R. Lords, Ray McCarty, Gerald Merfeld, John L. Myrup, Lad Odell, Don Polland, William F. Reese, Cynthia Rigden, Julian Robles, Sherry Sander, John Paul Strain, Jean Pierre Trevor, Nicolas Wilson, Gene Zesch.

1036. WEST SIDE GALLERY
4411 N 19th Ave 85015
(602) 265-8940 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Gary Zodrow
American painting, sculpture, porcelain, glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Bollinger, Betty Braig, Jacqueline Schulz.

Other artists represented:
Jasu Alagia, Alan Alexander, Norma Andraud, Douglas Pentleton Bennion, Brian Brandenburg, Charles Byrn, Denny Carley, Barbara Coburn, Kay Danforth, Gary Davis, Joan Dunkle, Jim Eder, Ruth Oseid Johnson, Diane Maxey, Ann McEachron, Rex Newell, Francis Wagner, Donald Ward, Owen Williams, Blair Williamson, Margery Young.

Scottsdale

1037. AUSTIN GALLERY
7103 Main St 85251
(602) 947-0686 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jo-Anne Austin
Contemporary fine art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Frame, Anne Goetzman, Ken Harbaugh, Ree Kinz, Dick Phillips, Colleen Ross, Larry Toschik.

Other artists represented:
William Aiken, Yasu Eguchi, Fremont Ellis, Robert Kipniss, Jack Pardue, Michael Raburn, Raffaela Schirmer, Drake Seaman, Helen Sowa, Helen Winslow.

1038. BISHOP GALLERY
7164 Main St 85251
(602) 949-9062 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: W. P. Bishop
Contemporary art; paintings, bronzes, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Carlson, Judy Graese, W.P. Hill, Sam Vann.

Other artists represented:
Ken Bunn, Len Chmiel, Ned Jacob, Gene Kloss, Diane O'Leary, Sheridan Oman, Gay Patterson, Fritz Scholder, Jon Zahourek.

1039. SUZANNE BROWN GALLERY
7160 Main St 85251
(602) 945-8475 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Suzanne Brown
Contemporary Southwestern art.

Other artists represented:
Alvin Amason, Doug Ayers, Clifford Beck, Martha Jane Bradford, Richard Bunkall, Anne Coe, Brian Cook, Karl Dowhie, Katalin Ehling, Patricia Tobacco Forrester, Sal Guastella, John Hogan, Daryl Howard, Elizabeth Massie, Ed Mell, Alexander Nepote, Wilma Parker, Gabor Peterdi, Alice Phillips, Walter Piehl, Howard Post, Antonio Sereix, Robert Sherman, Barbara Smith, Sari Staggs, Veloy Vigil.

1040. MARILYN BUTLER FINE ART
7157 Main St 85251
(602) 994-9550 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Marilyn Butler
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy DeForest, Earl Linderman, Mark McDowell, Holly Roberts, Fritz Scholder.

Other artists represented:
Lamar Briggs, David Dornan, Harmony Hammond, Ann Lacy, Leonard Lehrer, Jack Reilly, Dan Rice, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Emmi Whitehorse, Donald Roller Wilson.

1041. FAGEN-PETERSON FINE ART
7077 Main St 85251
(602) 941-0089 Mon-Sat 10-10, Sun 12-5
Dir: G. Fagen/E. Fagen/J. Kofed
Emerging artists; representational.

Other artists represented:
Dagne, Gabriel Ferrer, Antonio Grass, Debbie Hiatt, Kirk Hughey, Ray Jacobsen, Eric Jensen, Janet Lippincott, Mike Prepsky, Kee Rash, Kim Rawdin, James Rome, Lee Seebach, Soshana, Patty Valdez, Kerry Vesper, Bruno Zupan.

1042. GALLERY WALL
7051 5th Ave 85251
(602) 990-9110 Tue-Sat 9-5
Dir: Glenn Green/Sandy Green
Contemporary Southwestern Native American art.

1043. HAND AND THE SPIRIT CRAFTS GALLERY
4222 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 949-1262 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Joanne Rapp/Star Sacks
Contemporary American crafts in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Glen Brill, Andrea Gill, Diane Itter, Enid Kaplan, Richard Landis, Ed Moulthrop.

Other artists represented:
Laura Andreson, Bennett Bean, Gary Bennett, Claude Conover, Rick Dillingham, Avra Leodas, Tom McGlauchlin, George Nakashima, Ed Nesteruk, Jeanne Otis, Ann Pixley, Tom Turnner, Clare Yares, Anne Heiberger Young.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

1044. ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES ANNEX

4222 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 941-5290 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Julie Sasse
Contemporary abstract, pop, photorealist graphics by Southwestern artists.

Other artists represented:
Joe Baker, Brian Blount, David Bradley, John Dawson, Otto Duecker, Rudy Fernandez, John Fincher, Harry Fonseca, Dick Jemison, David T. Kessler, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Bruce Lowney, Michael Maglich, Merrill Mahaffey, Tom Palmore, Bill Schenck, Skynear, Beth Ames Swartz, Suzanne Tilger, Nancy Tokar-Miller, R. Lee White, Janelle Wicht, Masoud Yasami.

1045. ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES

4211 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 945-0791 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Julie Sasse
Southwestern and contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Joe Baker, Brian Blount, David Bradley, John Dawson, Otto Duecker, Millie Ehrlich, Rudy Fernandez, John Fincher, Dick Jemison, David Kessler, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Ida Kohlmeyer, Jeff Low, Michael Maglich, Merrill Mahaffey, Virginia Maitland, Tom Palmore, Bill Schenck, Roger Shimomura, Skynear, Beth Ames Swartz, Suzanne Tilger, Nancy Tokar-Miller, R. Lee White, Masoud Yasami.

1046. LAMBERT-MILLER GALLERY

6137 N Scottsdale Rd #114 85253
(602) 998-0024 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Aline Lambert
Contemporary art with emphasis on the Southwest; sculpture, painting, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Joey Baker, Clariebel Cone, Gayle Gash, Ron Gasowski, Maurice K. Grossman, Russell Hamilton, Richard Johnston, Sandy Kinnee, Vera Kopecek, Michael McCleve, Bruce McGrew, Sam Scott, Don Sorenson, Barbara Spring, William B. Van Nimwegen, James White, David Winston.

1047. LESLIE LEVY GALLERY

7141 Main St 85251
(602) 947-0937 Sep-May Mon-Sat 9:30-5; Jun-Aug Tue-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Leslie Levy
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nick Abdalla, John Bayalis, James Harrill, Robert Jessup, Aaron Karp, Kirk Pedersen.

Other artists represented:
Tom Berg, Eileen Bryce, Allen Garns, Steve Hanks, John Kleber, Caryl Pettit, Linda K. Smith, Andrew W. Taylor.

1048. MAIN TRAIL GALLERIES

7169 Main St 85251
(602) 949-9312
Dir: Pat Harper
Contemporary and historic art of the American West.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Louis DeMayo, Daro Flood, John Sherrill Houser, Gary Kapp, Robert Knudson, Jeffery Lunge, Donald Putman, Bill Schenck, Grant Speed, Ross Stefan.

1049. MAMMEN GALLERY II

4151 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 949-5311 Mon-Sat 10-5, Thu eve 7-10
Dir: Betty Mammen
Contemporary and traditional Western art; paintings, batiks, bronzes, marble carvings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philomena Clarke, Jasper D'Ambrosi, Ed Davieau, Mary De Loyht-Arendt, Del Decil, Dave Flitner, Carol Theroux.

Other artists represented:
Dwayne Brech, Ed Burns, Esther Burns, Betty Cauthen, James Colt, RoseAnn Day, Kenneth Freeman, Gloria Gemmill, Hugo Grieco, Cam Harris, Missy Hunter-Layton, Theron Imlay, King Kuka, Robert Landry, Jack Osmer, Jinni Thomas, Larry Weston.

1050. MISSAL GALLERY

7373 Scottsdale Mall 85251
(602) 946-9612 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Joshua Missal/Pegge Missal
American paintings of Barbizon, Tonalist, Impressionist periods; prints by major artists world-wide.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephen Missal.

1051. MONTGOMERY-TAYLOR

7100 Main St 85018
(602) 945-0111 Daily 10-5
Dir: Claude D. Peters
19th-20th-century American, British, European painting.

Other artists represented:
Francois Brunery, Montague Dawson, Thomas C. Dibdin, Peter C. Dommersen, Rudolph Ernst, Leon Gerome, Roland Hilder, Harold Hitchcock, J. M. Ince, H. J. Yend King, Robert Braithwaite Martineau, Andrew Nichol, Sidney Richard Percy, James Baker Pyne, Herman Schafer, Franz Richard Unterberger, Frederick Water (Williams) Watts, James Webb, Theodore Weber, Edwin Lord Weeks.

1052. O'BRIEN'S ART EMPORIUM

7122 Stetson Dr 85251
(602) 945-1082 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Mr. and Mrs. William J. Dickerson
Contemporary representational paintings, watercolors and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Karl Albert, Kang Yon Cho, Frank de Matteis, Jack Dudley, Stan Ekman, Glenna Goodacre, Joseph Henninger, Tom Hill, Robert Johanningmeier, George Lundeen, Robert Maguire, Clarence McGrath, R. Brownell McGrew, Claudine Morrow, Pete Nisbet, William Sharer, Jim Simmons, Laurence Sisson, Jonathan Sobol, Stanislaus Sowinski, Hahn Vidal, Mortimer Wilson.

1053. O.K. HARRIS WEST

4200 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 941-1284 Mon-Sat 10-5, Thu eve 7-9
Dir: Robert Harper
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roland Baladi, Cynthia Bennett, Allen Brandenburg, Daniel Chard, Edward Evans, Carole Jean Feuerman, Aris Koutroulis, Dana Loomis, Frederick D. Nichols, Joseph Richards, Maasaki Sato, Al Souza.

Other artists represented:
Raymon Elozua, Arie Galles, Robert Gniewek, Edward Hendricks.

1054. OVERLAND TRAIL GALLERIES

7155 Main St 85251
(602) 947-1934 Oct-May, Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: A. DiTommaso/J. DiTommaso
Western art in all mediums.

1055. PHOTOGRAPHY SOUTHWEST GALLERY

7130 Stetson Dr 85251
(602) 994-5541 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Susan Drummond
19th-20th-century American and European photography; workshops, lectures.

Other artists represented:
Dick Arentz, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Edward Sheriff Curtis, Judy Dater, A.A. Dutton, Randy Efros, Susan Felter, Brett Weston, Cole Weston, Kim Weston, Don Worth.

1056. C.G. REIN GALLERIES

4235 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 941-0900 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jane Bainter
Contemporary Southwestern painting, sculpture, graphics; Mexican muralists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Asher, William Atkins, James Conaway, Maxine Masterfield, Woodward Payne, Ann Taylor.

Other artists represented:
Nanci Blair Closson, Chester Comstock, Eichengreen/Gensburg, Nicholas Livaich, James McCain, Genevieve Reckling, Ray Vinella, C.J. Wells, Bruce Wynne, Francisco Zuniga.

1057. SAVAGE GALLERIES

7112 Main St 85251
(602) 945-7114 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Lynne S. Trobaugh
Contemporary Southwest and East Coast paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Gilbert DiCicco, Lincoln Fox, Kenneth M. Freeman, George Gach, Philip Hicken, Bernadette Thomas Hughes, Bill Hughes, William Scott Jennings, Manes Lichtenberg, Edith Maskey, John Maskey, Carole Matwood, Dean Packer, Ken Payne, Phil Prentice, Lee Rommel, Betty Saarni, Jim Schaeffing, George Dee Smith, Roy Lee Ward, Robert Winter, Patrick A. Woodman.

1058. SCOTTSDALE CENTER FOR THE ARTS

7383 Scottsdale Mall 85251
(602) 994-2301 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Ronald F. Caya
Municipal art center; contemporary and Southwestern art; performing arts; cinema.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pegan Brooke, Kunito Nagaoka, Paul Pletka, Bill Schenck*, Barbara Spring, Naomi Weissman.

Other artists represented:
Linda Bryant, Bruce Davidson, David Ebner, Tom Eckert, Ed Epping, Serene Flax, George Goyer, Chuck Hitner, Bill Kane, Robert McCall, Douglas Muir, Susan Newell, Fritz Scholder, Robert Wick, Claudia Wolz.

1059. JOY TASH GALLERY

7236 E 1st Ave 85251
(602) 945-0195 Mon-Sat 10-5; Oct-Mar Thu 10-9
Dir: Joy A. Tash
Contemporary and Southwestern artists.

Other artists represented:
Bert Carpenter, Leszek Forczek, Jenny Kilb, Lawrence Lee, Bernique Longely, Franciscus Maas, Amado Peña, Stephen Reyes, Ed Singer, Alex Thorleifson.

1060. GALLERY 10

7045 3rd Ave 85251
(602) 994-0405 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Lee Cohen
Pre-historic to contemporary American Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sadie Curtis, Nancy Youngblood Cutler, Jody Folwell, Bob Haozous, Charles Loloma, Charles Lovato, Grace Medicine Flower, Paul Pletka, Al Qoyawama, Philomena Yazzi, Nathan Youngblood.

1061. TRAILSIDE GALLERIES

7330 Scottsdale Mall 85251
(602) 949-0133 Mon-Sat 9:30-6
Dir: Ted Mollring/Christine Mollring
See Trailside Galleries, Phoenix, Arizona.

Other artists represented:
Robert Bateman, Joe Beeler, Ken Carlson, John Clymer, Robert Daughters, Thomas Dickson, Robert Duncan, Charlie Dye, Rod Goebel, Walt Gonske, Veryl Goodnight, Jack Hines, Harry Jackson, Robert Lougheed, R. B. McGrew, William Moyers, Bill Nebeker, Maynard Reece, Robert "Shoofly" Shufelt, Kent Ullberg, Curt Walters, William Whitaker.

1062. UDINOTTI GALLERY

4215 N Marshall Way 85251
(602) 946-7056 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 7-9
Dir: Agnese Udinotti
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Crain, Leonel Gongora, Maurice Grossman, Jessica Jackson, Jim Pruner, Sally Roy, Sue Roy, Rudy Turk, Agnese Udinotti*.

---

*see catalog index

1063. VON GRABILL GALLERY
6166 N Scottsdale 85253
(602) 998-3836 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Sharon Rene Miller
Works by contemporary artists living in the West.

Other artists represented:
Lawrence Ahvakana, David Boles, Bob Boomer, Maria Del Carmen Calvo, Mario Cespedes, Dane Clark, Stephen jon Clements, Ed Dwight, John Hays, Robert Krantz, Brenda Morrison, Dennis Numkena, Randolph Polk, John Soderberg, James Verdugo.

1064. YARES GALLERY
3625 Bishop Lane 85251
(602) 947-3251 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Riva Yares
Modern and contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery*, Ilya Bolotowsky, Byron Browne, Fox Joy McGrew, Beverly Pepper, Richard Saba, Miriam Schapiro, Jim Waid.

Other artists represented:
James G. Davis, Helen Frankenthaler, Philip Guston, Hans Hofmann, Morris Louis, James McGarrell, Kenneth Noland, Jules Olitski, Alfonso Ossorio, Jerry Peart, Paul Reed, Frank Anthony Smith, Kenji Umeda, Esteban Vicente.

Second Mesa

1065. HOPI CULTURAL CENTER MUSEUM
Box 38 86043
(602) 734-2411 Daily 8-6
Dir: Terrance Talaswaima
Hopi arts and crafts: pre-historic, historic pottery; weavings; wood carvings; silver; paintings.

Sedona

1066. ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERY
Schneblay Hill Rd & Highway 179 86336
(602) 282-6290 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: James Ratliff
Contemporary and Southwestern art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Cynthia Bennett, Sky Near.

Other artists represented:
James Havard, Paul Jenkins, Ida Kohlmeyer, Merrill Mahaffey, Bill Schenck, Beth Ames Swartz, R. Lee White.

Tempe

1067. ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY
University Art Collections 85287
(602) 965-2874 Mon-Fri 8-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Rudy Turk
American art, colonial to contemporary; sculpture, prints, watercolors, ceramics; European and Latin American collections.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Costa Antonakis*, Karel Appel, Agnes Hahn Brodie, Max Ernst*, Viola Frey*, Joseph Hilton, Maria Martinez, Thomas Nast, Rembrandt van Rijn, Raymond Saunders.

Tubac

1068. TUBAC CENTER OF THE ARTS
PO Box 2731 85640
(602) 398-2371 Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 12-4:30
Dir: Doris A. Fouch
Non-profit art association; exhibitions and instructional programs.

Other artists represented:
Jerrold Bishop, Dale Boatman, Howard Conant, Katalin Ehling, Trudi Fletcher, Jeanne Garland, R.C. Gorman, Mel Kishner, Pat Marohn, Barbara McDonald, Michael Stack, Tom Talbot.

Tucson

1069. CREATIVE DIRECTIONS
4960 Calle Jabali 85711
(602) 748-0162 By appt
Dir: Karin Demorest
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Judith Harper, Dave Pennington, Raphael Ropek.

1070. EL PRESIDIO GALLERY
201 N Court Ave 85701
(602) 884-7379 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-4
Dir: H. Rentschler
Contemporary and historic art of the West and Southwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Olaf Palm.

Other artists represented:
Gil Bolduc, Peggy Butler, Richard Chase, Leighton Fossum, Nancy Fuller, Marcia Gaiter, Ken Hansen, Carl Hoerman, Nellie Knopf, Richard Kozlow, King Kuka, Jon Lightfoot, Mark Ogle, Chuck Pabst, Jim Prindiville, Francisco Rodriguez-Maruca, Charles Ulrich.

1071. GEKAS-NICHOLAS GALLERY
6538 E Tanque Verde Rd 85715
(602) 886-5295 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Genie Nicholas
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, graphics, posters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Dawson*.

Other artists represented:
David Barbero, Tom Barringer, James Byrd, Katie Crown, Joy McGrew, Amado Maurillo Pena, Sari Staggs, Robert Tobias, Tom Weisser, George Welch.

1072. TUCSON MUSEUM OF ART
140 N Main 85705
(602) 624-2333 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: R. Andrew Maass
Art of the Americas: Pre-Columbian, Spanish Colonial, Western; 19th-20th-century American art; European painting, sculpture; Oriental art.

1073. UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA
Center for Creative Photography
843 E University Blvd 85719
(602) 626-4636 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: James Enyeart
20th-century photography; exhibitions, archives.

1074. UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA MUSEUM OF ART
Speedway & Olive 85721
(602) 626-2173 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Peter Bermingham
Renaissance painting; American art of the 20s-40s; 20th-century painting and sculpture.

Mineko Grimmer at the Arco Center for Visual Art, L.A. (Nov. 16-Dec. 31, 1982).

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arakawa*, Keith Crown, Jose Luis Cuevas*, Max Ernst*, Sam Scott, Aaron Siskind, Beth Ames Swartz, James McNeill Whistler*.

Yuma

1075. YUMA ART CENTER
281 Gila St 85365
(602) 783-2314 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: James Nelson
Community gallery showing contemporary and historic works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Victor Curran, Frieda Golding, Hal Painter, Glen Peterson, Fritz Scholder, Sam Scott.

Arkansas

El Dorado

1076. SOUTH ARKANSAS ARTS CENTER
110 E 5th St 71730
(501) 862-5474 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Pam Bosanko
Performing arts center; exhibitions; Japanese prints; regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Betts, Paul Hurd, Melinda Antoon McFillian.

Fayetteville

1077. OZARK BAZAAR
2217 N College 72701
(501) 442-9230 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: Rex Benham
Ozark region art and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Lowell Baker, Ruth Ann Baker, Keith Black.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1078. UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS
Fine Arts Center Gallery 72701
(501) 575-5202 Mon-Fri 9-4, Thu, Fri eves
Dir: Robert Ross
Teaching gallery; visiting artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Ash, Ed Bernstein, Neppie Conner, Angelo Garzio, Jacki Golden, Subrata Lahiri, Joyce Neimanas, Rubin Reif, Darney Willis.

Fort Smith

1079. FORT SMITH ART CENTER
423 N 6th St 72901
(501) 782-6371 Tue-Sat 9:30-4:30, Sun 2-4
Dir: Polly Crews
Non-profit; contemporary art; Ming collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tim Andrews, Debbie Barns, Ted Barns, Richard Lee Barton, Violet Blair, Alice Boatright, Buck Cheavens, Neppie Conner, Rod Fleming, Robin Garret, Steve Hathcock, Ralph Irwin, Larry Jenkins, Elva Johnson, Donna Jones, Sandy Jones, Drew Kilgore, Kathy Korn, Gwyn LaCrone, Sarah McMichaels, F. Wendel Norton, Mildred O'Bannon, Edith O'Kelley, Shelia Parsons, Steven Payne, Pat Wofford Reith, Ada Waelder, Bertha White, Vircy Williams, Ed Wong-Ligdz.

1080. MOULTON GALLERY
501 Garrison and Old Town 72901
(501) 783-5351 Mon-Fri 10:30-4:30
Dir: Bettye Moulton
Artists of Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico.

Other artists represented:
Jill Bush, Sherna Cockrill, Benham Dangers, Lee Ethel, Lincoln Fox, James Hoyle, William McNamara, Judy Pelt, O. Gail Poole, Jean Richardson, Casimer Rutkowski, Bert Seabourn, Emily Guthrie Smith, Tony Van Hassalt, Uwe Werner.

Little Rock

1081. ARKANSAS ARTS CENTER
Box 2137 72203
(501) 372-4000 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Townsend D. Wolfe, III
Works on paper, drawings; decorative arts; European works; regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton*, Saul Steinberg, Robert Vickrey*

Pine Bluff

1082. SOUTHEAST ARKANSAS ARTS AND SCIENCES CENTER
200 E 8th Ave 71601
(501) 536-3375 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-4
Dir: Joseph Kagle, Jr.
Fine arts; Indonesian art; Art Nouveau, Art Deco bronzes; contemporary prints; regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lou Alderman, Benny Andrews, Andrew Kilgore, Bob Sherman, Jack White.

Springdale

1083. ARTS CENTER OF THE OZARKS GALLERY
216 W Grove 72764
(501) 751-5441 Mon-Fri 9-4
Dir: Kathi Blundell
Non-profit community organization; state and regional art and crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gayle Batson, Keith Black, Genevieve Fancher, Bob Shub.

State University

1084. ARKANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY FINE ARTS GALLERY
Box 278 72467
(501) 972-3050 Mon-Fri 8-4
Dir: Charlott Jones
Permanent fine arts collection.

Van Buren

1085. ART GALLERY AND STUDIO
423 N 12th 72956
(501) 474-7767 Mon-Sat 9:30-4:30
Dir: Carolyn Holmes
Non-profit organization; local artists.

Other artists represented:
Tim Andrews, Ethel Ashley, Bradly Ball, Josh Bear, Sylvia Bell, Alice Boatright, Jan Bruce, Betty Campbell, Ann Carrico, J.R. Denton, Lola Doom, Doris Echols, Rod Fleming, Lenice Gordon, Helen Hallum, Tonia Holleman, Judy Howard, Alice Hyman, Arba Landers, Bonnie Marrs, Val McKinney, Bell Cain Morrow, Kay Moss, Georgia O'Kelley, Patsy O'Kelley, Rema Pence, Joyce Poole.

California

Aptos

1086. CABRILLO COLLEGE GALLERY
6500 Soquel Dr 95003
(408) 425-6308 Mon-Fri 9-5; Mon, Tue 7-9
Dir: Jane Gregorius/Dan Martinez
Contemporary art, and crafts with major emphasis on working artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
J.J. Aason, Jamie Bennett, David Keens.

Bakersfield

1087. CUNNINGHAM MEMORIAL ART GALLERY
1930 R St 93301
(805) 323-7219 Tue-Sun 12-3:30
Dir: Ann Brown
Museum; painting, sculpture, graphics; Japanese and American decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Brockman, Clifford Johnson.

Berkeley

1088. JUDAH L. MAGNES MUSEUM
2911 Russell St 94705
(415) 849-2710 Sun-Fri 10-4
Dir: Seymour Fromer
Collection of fine arts; ceremonial and historical artifacts of Judaic culture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Morri Camhi, Adolph Kohn, Jakob Nussbaum*.

1089. PACIFIC BASIN SCHOOL OF TEXTILE ARTS
1659 San Pablo Ave 94702
(415) 526-9836 Mon-Fri 9-4, Sat 1-4
Dir: Mary Gould
Textile and fine arts—contemporary drawing and sculpture, weaving, fabric printing, basketry, felt, paper, and applique.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carole Beadle, Mary Gould.

1090. UNIVERSITY ART MUSEUM
2626 Bancroft Way 94720
(415) 642-1207 Wed-Sun 11-5
Dir: James Elliott
20th-century American and European paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints; Oriental paintings and prints; Pacific Film Archive; pre-20th-century art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elmer Bischoff, Alexander Calder, Chuck Close, Maynard Dixon, Howard Fried, Hamish Fulton, Dorothy Reid, Julian Schnabel.

Beverly Hills

1091. ASHKENAZY GALLERIES
224 N Canon Dr 90210
(213) 271-7777 Mon-Tue, Thu-Sat 10-6; Wed, Sun By appt
Dir: Arnold Ashkenazy
19th- and 20th-century originals.

Other artists represented:
Maurice de Vlaminck, Narcisse Virgile Diaz de la Pena, Raoul Dufy, Gustave-Achille Guillaumet, Henri Joseph Harpignies, Bela Kadar, Moise Kisling, Stanton MacDonald-Wright, Mane-Katz.

1092. B. LEWIN GALLERIES
266 N Beverly Dr 90210
(213) 550-1852 Tue-Fri 10-5
Dir: Bernard Lewin
Paintings, sculptures, graphics by Mexican artists.

Other artists represented:
Felipe Castaneda, Rafael Coronel, Carlos Merida, Gustavo Montoya, Leonardo Nierman, Rufino Tamayo.

1093. LOUIS NEWMAN
322 N Beverly Dr 90210
(213) 278-6311
Dir: Louis Newman
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Aronson, Gerald Brommer, Martin Green, Doug Hyde, Katherine Liu, Harrison McIntosh, Otto Natzler, Kevin Red Star, Wade Reynolds, Lee Weiss.

1094. PETERSEN GALLERIES
270 N Rodeo Dr 90210
(213) 274-6705 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: Jean Stern
American Impressionism; Western and early California art.

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Franz A. Bischoff*, Sam Hyde Harris*.

Other artists represented:
Alson Skinner Clark, Christian von Schneidau.

1095. SUMMA GALLERIES
342 N Rodeo Dr 90212
(213) 278-4434 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Janice Firth Tompkins
Greek, Roman, and Etruscan antiquities.

Canoga Park

1096. RANDI'S ART GALLERY
23630 Baltar St 91304
(213) 716-8232 By appt
Dir: Randi K. Hayutin
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Thomas Hart Benton, Alexander Calder, Salvador Dali, Brian Halsey, Diana Hansen, Renee Lubarow, Joan Miró, Leonardo Nierman, Cuca Romley.

Carmel

1097. FRIENDS OF PHOTOGRAPHY
San Carlos St and Eighth Ave 93921
(408) 624-6330 Daily 1-5
Dir: James Alinder
Non-profit; historic and contemporary photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams, Thomas Barrow, William Christenberry, Avery Danziger, Emmet Gowin, Terry Husebye, Brett Weston.

1098. PASQUALE IANNETTI ART GALLERIES
6th and Mission Sts 93921
(408) 625-2923 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Carrie Curtis
16th-20th-century prints, paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Jacques Callot, Albrecht Dürer, Francisco Goya, Paul Cesar Helleau, Edouard Manet, Camille Pissarro, Rembrandt van Rijn, Pierre Auguste Renoir, James Tissot, James McNeill Whistler.

1099. LAKY INCORPORATED
PO Box 835 93921
(408) 624-8174 By appt
Dir: Les Laky
Estate of Emile Lahner (1893-1980); 20th-century paintings; French School.

Other artists represented:
Emile Lahner.

1100. WESTON GALLERY
PO Box 655 6th Ave 93921
(408) 624-4453 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Margaret W. Weston
Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams, Tom Millea*, Olivia Parker*, Edward Weston*.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Atget, Bill Brandt, Imogen Cunningham, Robert Doisneau, Frederich Evans, Roger Fenton, Yousef Karsh, Man Ray, Edward Steichen, Paul Strand, Fox Talbot, Jerry Uelsmann, Brett Weston, Minor White, Don Worth.

Carmichael

1101. MICHAEL HIMOVITZ GALLERY
1828 Walnut Ave 95608
(916) 486-9335 Mon-Fri 12-5
Dir: Michael Himovitz
Northern California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kurt Fishback, Alguilar Maria, Gary Pruner, Kim Scott, Leslie Toms.

Other artists represented:
Kevin Adams, Daniel DiPierro, Kip Hall, Michael Kenna, Jack Ogden, Thomas Philippe, Lori Rase, Shoshannah, John Smith, Cathy Stone, David E. Stone, Gerald Walburg.

Chico

1102. CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, CHICO
University Art Gallery 95929
(916) 895-5331 Mon-Fri 10-4, Tue-Thu eve 7-10, Sun 1-5
Dir: James W. McManus
Changing exhibitions: professional, faculty, student works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marianne Boers, Roy De Forest, Alice Hutchins*, Bob Kapatof, Sherry Karver, Mike Monatian, Ken Morrow, Steve Wilson.

Claremont

1103. CLAREMONT COLLEGE
Galleries of the Claremont Colleges
College and Bonita Sts 91711
(714) 621-8000 ext 2241 Daily 1-5
Dir: Marjorie Harth Beebe
American painting; Kress Renaissance paintings; old master and contemporary graphics; photography; Oriental and African art.

Cupertino

1104. DE ANZA COLLEGE
Euphrat Gallery
21250 Stevens Creek Blvd 95014
(408) 996-4836 Tue-Thu 11-4; Wed, Thu 7-9; Sun 1-4
Dir: Jan Rindfleisch
Contemporary work in various mediums focusing on political, social, and historical issues.

Davis

1105. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, DAVIS
Richard L. Nelson Gallery 95616
(916) 752-8500 Mon-Fri 12-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Price Amerson
Contemporary and historical American and Northern California art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hanno Ahrens, Patricia Altschul, Robert Arneson*, Scott Donahue, Joan Jonas, Alan Kukuchi-Yngojo, Helen Oji, Dan Rice, Riene River, Stephanie Weber.

Fresno

1106. FRESNO ARTS CENTER
2233 N First St 93703
(209) 485-4810 Mon-Sun 10-5
Dir: Robert Barrett
Oriental, Pre-Columbian, Mexican, California art; graphics.

Fullerton

1107. CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, FULLERTON
Art Gallery
800 N State College Blvd 92634
(714) 773-3262 Mon-Fri 12-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Dextra Frankel
Exhibitions of contemporary art; new and established artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Buck, Viola Frey, Emerson Woelffer*.

Hayward

1108. CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, HAYWARD
University Galleries 94542
(415) 881-3111 Mon-Fri 12-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Sally E. Parker
Primarily work by California artists in all mediums.

Irvine

1109. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, IRVINE
Fine Art Gallery 92717
(714) 833-6610 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Melinda Wortz
Exhibitions by contemporary artists and graduate students.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bruria, Max Cole, Gilah Hirsch, Robert Kushner, Ann McCoy, Beth Ames Swartz, Hap Tivey, William Wegman, Sam Wiener, Michele Zackheim, Elyn Zimmerman.

Laguna Beach

1110. COLLECTOR'S CHOICE
1029 Glenneyre St 92651
(714) 494-4515 By appt
Dir: Beverly Inskeep
Contemporary painting, sculpture, photography, video, performance.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Other artists represented:
Grover Bonham, Luther Broome, Larry Gill, Len Glasser, Doug Hinckle, Ray Howlett, Pat Klotz, Tom Kress, Ken Perdomo, Sally Roberts, David Sabaroff, Myrna Shiras, Pat Sparuhl, Craig Stecyk, Joan Swanson.

1111. LAGUNA BEACH MUSEUM OF ART
307 Cliff Dr 92651
(714) 494-6531 Tue–Sun 11:30–4:30
Dir: William G. Otten
Early and contemporary California art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Alf, Al Belson, Phyllis Green, Paul Landacre*, Scott Moore, Gwynn Murrill, R. Bret Price, Jane Sinclair, Linda Stevens, Jon Swihart, Nick Vaughn, Steve Zoller*.

La Jolla

1112. THOMAS BABEOR GALLERY
7470 Girard Ave 92037
(714) 454-0345 Mon–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Thomas L. Babeor
Contemporary painting, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Alexander, Martha Alf, Billy Al Bengston, Chris Fox, Inez Storer, Ann Thornycroft, De Wain Valentine, Barbara Weldon.

Other artists represented:
Charles Arnoldi, Joel Bass, Marilyn Baum, Robin Bright, Ron Cooper, Laddie John Dill, Jud Fine, Richard Francisco, Nancy Louise Jones, Christopher Lee, Sydney Littenberg, Charles Moore, Gwynn Murrill, Kiki Sammarcelli.

1113. DEICAS ART GALLERY
1224 Prospect St 92037
(714) 456-1555 Mon–Sat 10–6; Sun 12–5
Dir: Leon Deicas
Contemporary fine arts and graphics; Mexican art.

Other artists represented:
George Chemeche, Robert Dash, Max DeMoss, Betty Gold, Nancy Kittredge, Leo Rabkin, Dan Reisinger, George Segal, Vera Simons, David A. Siqueiros, Harry Sternberg, Rufino Tamayo.

1114. GALLERY EIGHT
7464 Girard Ave 92037
(619) 454-9781 Mon–Sat 10–5
Dir: Ruth Newmark
Contemporary crafts—local, national, international.

Other artists represented:
Laura Andreson, Steven Brixner, Florence Cohen, Dora DeLarios, Ruenelle Foy-Temps, Fern Jacobs, Mia Kodani, Sana Krusoe, Richard Marquis, Steven Maslach, Kazuko Matthews, Stephen Paulsen, Hap Sakwa, Smyers, Erika Torri, Lynn Turner, Vivien Vaughn.

1115. JONES GALLERY
1264 Prospect St 92037
(714) 459-1370 Mon–Sat 10–5
Dir: Douglas M. Jones
19th- and 20th-century American painting and sculpture; realists; California Impressionists.

Other artists represented:
J. Chester Armstrong, Stanley Bleifeld, Laura Craig, Tom Darro, Chet Engle, Betty Davenport Ford, William George, Walt Gonske, Glenna Goodacre, Thomas Kinkade, Robert Krantz, Richard Luney, Anthony Melendy, Claire Ruby, Craig Smith, Ross Stefan, Thornton Utz, James Verdugo, Franco Vianello, Robert Watson, Robert Wee, Fritz White.

1116. KNOWLES GALLERY
7420 Girard Ave 92037
(619) 454-0106 Mon–Sat 10–5; Sun 1–5
Dir: Mary Knowles
Paintings and sculpture by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Applegate, B. J. Franklin, Ruth Gewalt, Evelyn Hester, Robert Landry, Joan McKasson, Merri Mechanick-Pattinian, Carl Provder, Maurjo Reser, Jim Saw.

Other artists represented:
Virginia Bendixen, Eleanor Blangsted, Kathryn Brockhagen, Barry Bunker, Thierry Chatelain, Frances Crowell, Don de Llamas, Helen Dowd, Vera Felts, Robert Goldman, Malcolm Jones, Elizabeth King, Tania Kleid, Shirley Lichtman, Georgeanna Lipe, Alison Miner, Fredrick O'Hara, Mavis K. Parker, Betty Riis, Kay Whitcomb, Nancy Wostrel.

1117. LA JOLLA MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART
700 Prospect St 92037
(619) 454-3541 Tue–Fri 10–5; Sat, Sun 12:30–5
Dir: Sebastian J. Adler
Contemporary art and design, primarily since 1950s; paintings, sculpture, drawings, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christo*, Zandra Rhoades, Mies van der Rohe*, Joe Zucker.

1118. MINGEI-INTERNATIONAL MUSEUM OF WORLD FOLK ART
Box 553 92038
(619) 453-5300 Tue–Sat 11–5; Fri eve 5:30–9; Sun 2–5
Dir: Martha Longnecker
International folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Laura Andreson*, Eve Gulick*, Keisuke Serizawa*.

1119. PHOTOGRAPHY GALLERY
7468 Girard Ave 92037
(619) 459-1800 Mon–Sat 11–6
Dir: Holly Howell
Photography; fine art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joel Sternfeld.

1120. TASENDE GALLERY
820 Prospect St 92037
(619) 454-3691 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Jose M. Tasende
Modern painting, drawing, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jose Luis Cuevas*.

Other artists represented:
Lynn Chadwick, Eduardo Chillida, Giacomo Manzu, Marino Marini, Roberto Matta, Henry Moore.

1121. TUNG YAH
1122 Wall St 92037
(619) 456-0455 Mon–Fri 10–5, Sat 9–4
Dir: Robert Osborne
Antiques, fine arts, and gifts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tak-Kwong Chan.

Other artists represented:
Hiroyuki Fukuda, Donna Li, Ku-Hung Ng, Hiroe Suto, Man-Tat Wong, Wei Yeh, Qi-Han Zhu.

1122. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SAN DIEGO
Mandeville Art Gallery
UC San Diego B-027 92093
(619) 452-2864 Tue–Sat 12–5
Dir: Gerry McAllister
Changing exhibitions of contemporary art during the academic year.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Buck.

Larkspur

1123. ALLPORT ASSOCIATES GALLERY
1000 Magnolia Ave 94939
(415) 461-2522 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Ardys Allport
Figurative works, prints, drawings, works on paper and canvas.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Baum, Charles Greer, DeWitt Hardy, Donna McGinnis, Jacqueline Rochester, Susan Van Campen, Don Williams.

Other artists represented:
Jean Decker, Pat Hardy, Norman Lundin, Frederick Lynch, Alan Magee, Kit Opal, Connie Siegel-Smith, Barbara Winkelstein.

Long Beach

1124. CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, LONG BEACH
University Art Museum
1250 Bellflower Blvd 90840
(213) 498-5761 Mon–Thu 12–4, Fri 12–4, Sun 1–5
Dir: Constance W. Glenn
Changing exhibitions of contemporary and historical works; collections include contemporary works on paper and monumental sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sidney Grossman, Ellen Land-Weber, Dan Rice, Terry Schoonhoven*.

1125. LONG BEACH MUSEUM OF ART
2300 E Ocean Blvd 90803
(213) 439-2119 Wed–Sun 12–5
Dir: Russell J. Moore
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints, photographs, and videotapes; modern German art, southern California art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Abraham Walkowitz*.

Los Angeles

1126. ADLER GALLERY
667 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 659-3637 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Abe Adler
Contemporary art; American masters.

1127. JACQUELINE ANHALT GALLERY
748 ½ N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 657-4038 Tue–Sat 1–5
Dir: Jacqueline Anhalt
Contemporary California artists, emphasizing ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Annette Bird, Bruria, Tom Foolery, Richard Haden, June Harwood, Michael Levee.

Other artists represented:
Noma Copley, David Furman, Sandra Jackman, Alan Wolfson.

1128. ANKRUM GALLERY
657 N La Cienega 90069
(213) 657-1549 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Joan Ankrum/Bill Challee
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Enrico Donati, Shirl Goedike, Susan Hertel, Jessie Homer, Harry Lieberman, Gene Logan, Andy Nelson, Terry Stringer.

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Warren Anderson, F.L. Bettencourt, Irving Block, Morris Broderson, Naomi Caryl, Bernie Casey, Ken Goldman, Philip Gronau, Gus Heinze, Suzanne Jackson, Buffie Johnson, Bob Kane, David Kreitzer, Leza Lidow, Marilyn Lowe, Phyllis Manley, David Remfry, Jean Rose, Jan Sawka, Melvin Schuler, Emily Steele, Duane Wakeham.

1129. ARCO CENTER FOR VISUAL ART
505 S Flower 90071
(213) 488–0038 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30, Sat 11–5
Dir: Fritz Frauchiger
Non-profit; contemporary sculpture, painting, crafts, photography, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carlos Almaraz, Ruffin Cooper Jr, John Doe Co, Joe Goode, Terry Husebye, Len Jenshel, Linda G. Rich, Iline Segalove, Stephen Shore, Eugene Sturman, Robert A. Widdicombe, Tom Wudl.

1130. ART SPACE
10550 Santa Monica Blvd 90025
(213) 474–9813 Tue–Sat 1–5
Dir: Lucy Adelman
Contemporary art, primarily of Los Angeles area.

Other artists represented:
Tracy Colvill, Jack Kleinberg, Janice Lowry, Barbara Magnus, Herb Rabbin, Kent Rush.

1131. ALEXANDER GALLERY
8406 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 852–1859 Wed–Sat 11:30–5
Dir: Jill Kitnick
Contemporary art.

1132. ASHER/FAURE
612 N Almont Dr 90069
(213) 271–3665 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Betty Asher/Patricia Faure
Contemporary painting, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Deborah Butterfield, Elaine Carhartt, Ronald Davis, Philip Guston, Li-Lan, Michael McMillen, Robert Wilhite, Robert S. Zakanitch.

Other artists represented:
Nicholas Africano, John Buck, Bruce Cohen, Paul Dillon, Llyn Foulkes, Robert Graham, Kathryn Halbower, Craig Kauffman, Robert Kushner, Masashi Matsumoto, John McIntosh, Gwynn Murrill, Natasha Nicholson, Margaret Nielsen, John Okulick, Marcia Roberts.

1133. MOLLY BARNES GALLERY
750 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 854–1966 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Molly Barnes
Los Angeles artists; photorealists.

Other artists represented:
Daniel Cytron, Lowell Darling, Bill Eckert, Phil Garner, Bruce Houston, Mike Kelley, Mark Kostabi, Lisa Lombardi, Mo McDermott, Susan Meyers, Martin Mull, Nancy Reese, Jack Reilly, Judy Stabile, Doug Webb, Joan Worth.

1134. JAN BAUM GALLERY
170 S La Brea 90036
(213) 932–0170 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Jan Baum
Emerging California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carole Caroompas, Herb Elsky, Dennis Farber, Lorser Feitelson, Betty Gold, Joanne Julian, Claude Kent, Pierre Picot, Laurie Pincus, Mel Rubin, Alison Saar, Reesey Shaw, Guy Williams.

Other artists represented:
Stephen Grossman, Steve Heino, Milano Kazanjian, Charles Kessler, Peter Liashkov, Scott Miller, Robin Mitchell, Peter Plagens, Betye Saar, John White, Takako Yamaguchi.

1135. ROY BOYD GALLERY
170 S La Brea Ave 90036
(213) 938–2328 Tue–Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Daniel Stearns
Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bottini, Carol Burch-Brown, Michael Davis, Joe Fay, Alice Fellows, Jay Phillips, Dan Ramirez, Ernest Silva, Don Sorenson, Bruce White, Mark Williams.

Other artists represented:
Keith Achepohl, David Bower, Stephanie Chiacos, John Dilg, Roy Dowell, Ned Evans, Sarah Krepp, Peter Levinson, Robert McCauley, Joel Perlman, Gordon Powell, Susan Sensemann, Buzz Spector, Barry Tinsley.

1136. CIRRUS GALLERY
542 S Alameda St 90013
(213) 680–3473 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Jean R. Milant
Contemporary California art; print publishers.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jay Willis*.

Other artists represented:
Peter Alexander, Billy Bengston, Michael Farber, Joe Goode, Charles Christopher Hill, Craig Kauffman, Ted Kerrie, Jim Lawrence, Jay McCafferty, Bruce Nauman, Edward Ruscha, Eve Sonneman, Judith Vogt.

1137. GARTH CLARK GALLERY
5820 Wilshire Blvd 90036
(213) 939–2189 Tue–Fri 11–5, Sat 12–4
Dir: Garth Clark
19th- and 20th-century ceramic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rudy Autio, Magdelena Frimkess, Michael Frimkess, Jerry Rothman, Adrian Saxe, Kurt Weiser, Betty Woodman.

Other artists represented:
Jane Ford Aebersold, Ralph Bacerra, Lidya Buzio, Jim Caswell, Phil Cornelius, Ken Ferguson, Suzanne Stephenson, Akio Takamori, Beatrice Wood.

1138. JAMES CORCORAN GALLERY
8223 Santa Monica Blvd 90046
(213) 656–0662
Dir: Barbara Whiting
Contemporary paintings and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Peter Alexander, Charles Arnoldi, Billy Al Bengston, John Chamberlain, Sandro Chia, Joseph Cornell, Laddie John Dill, Sam Francis, Joseph Goldyne, Tom Holland, Valerie Jaudon, Kim MacConnel, Ken Price, Paul Wonner.

1139. CRAFT AND FOLK ART MUSEUM
5814 Wilshire Blvd 90036
(213) 937–5544 Tue–Sun 11–5
Dir: Edith Wyle/Patrick Ela
International contemporary crafts and folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Brady*.

1140. WILLIAM & VICTORIA DAILEY
8216 Melrose Ave 90046
(213) 658–8515 Tue–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–5
Dir: Victoria Dailey
19th-early-20th-century prints; California art, Japanese woodblock prints.

Other artists represented:
Joby Baker, Frances Butler, Terry DeLapp.

1141. DE VILLE GALLERIES
8751 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 652–0525 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sat 10–4
Dir: Christian Title
19th- and 20th-century American Impressionist paintings.

Other artists represented:
Arthur Beaumont, Aurelia Caloenesco, A. C. Goodwin, J. Barry Greene, Bernhard Gutmann, Alfred Hayward, Phillipe Marchand, Marguerite Pearson, Carl Peters, Henri Plisson, John Powell, Jane Wooster Scott.

1142. KIRK DEGOOYER GALLERY
1308 Factory Place 90013
(213) 623–8333 Tue–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Kirk deGooyer
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jacqueline Dreager, Michael Dvortcsak, Susan Elias, Thom Glabman, Lois Graham, Hampton Hall, Robert Hernandez, David Kraisler, Tom Lieber, Richard Phipps, Scott Reeds, Terry Schutte, Stanley Somers, Robert Walker.

Other artists represented:
Tom Bianchi, Cheryl Bowers, Johannes Lacher, Gary Lang, Jack Scott.

1143. DEVORZON GALLERY
8687 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 659–0555 Mon–Fri 10–5:30
Dir: Meri Ellins
Contemporary graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Fox, John Harris, Nancy Louise Jones, David Oxtoby.

Other artists represented:
James Coignard, Joe Goode, Francisco Zuniga.

1144. DUBINS GALLERY
11948 San Vicente Blvd 90049
(213) 820–1409 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Lisa Dubins
Contemporary American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Andres, Gary Bukovnik, James Byrd, Daniel Goldstein, Philip Michelson, Geer Morton, Philip Mullen, Jim Waid.

Other artists represented:
Glenn Brill, Jon Carsman, Yasuhiro Esaki, Robert Frame, Trudi Frank, Carson Gladson, Daryl Ann Howard, Peter Kitchell, Aris Koutroulis, Stephen Lorber, Gene Matthews, David Patterson, Alice Phillips, David Sharpe, James Torlakson, Anne Youkeles.

1145. FEINGARTEN GALLERIES
8380 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 655–4840 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Gail Feingarten
Sculpture of the 20th century.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Yves de la Tour D'Auvergne.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Archipenko, Jean Arp, Alberto Giacometti, Barbara Hepworth, Ervand Kotchar, Guston Lachaise, Howard Newman, Auguste Rodin.

1146. ROSAMUND FELSEN GALLERY
669 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 652–9172 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Rosamund Felsen
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Chris Burden, Karen Carson, Peter Lodato, Robert Rauschenberg, Steve Rogers, Alexis Smith, Keith Sonnier.

Other artists represented:
Dan Burkhart, Richard Jackson, Mike Kelley, Grant Mudford, Maria Nordman, Lari Pittman, Leland Rice, Jeffrey Vallance.

1147. FLOW ACE GALLERY
8373 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 658–6980 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Douglas Chrismas
American and European contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Caro, Guy Dill, Dominique Gauthier, Michael Heizer, Robert Rauschenberg, Edward Ruscha, Robert Therrien.

1148. LARRY GAGOSIAN GALLERY
510 N Robertson Blvd 90048
(213) 276–6051 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Larry Gagosian
American and European contemporary art.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean-Michel Basquiat, Jack Goldstein, Donald Judd, Steven Keister, Barbara Kruger, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mapplethorpe, Cindy Sherman.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, James Brown, Vija Celmins, Jedd Garet, Brian Hunt, Neil Jenney, Ellsworth Kelly, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Rauschenberg, David Salle, Joel Shapiro, Philip Smith, Frank Stella, Cy Twombly, Andy Warhol, Zadik Zadikian.

1149. GALERIE MICHAEL
10250 Santa Monica Blvd 90067
(213) 556-2762 Mon, Wed, Thu, Fri 10–9; Tue, Sat 10–6, Sun 12–5
Dir: Robert Berman
Contemporary California and American paintings, old masters; French posters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Frooman, Andreas Nottebohm, Marcus Uzilevski.

Other artists represented:
Sharon Carol, Kay Lipton, Augusto Ranocchi, Larry Seewack, Peter Tkacheff.

1150. GALLERY K
8406 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 651-5282 Wed–Sat 11:30–5
Dir: Barry Kitnick
African and primitive art.

1151. GALLERY WEST
107 S Robertson Blvd 90048
(213) 271-1145 Tue–Sat 10:30–5
Dir: Roberta Feuerstein
Contemporary paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Jardin, Andre Miripolsky, Dora Navon, Susan Nininger, Kamol Tassananchales, Charles Villiers, Roger Weik, Stuart Williams.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Richard Amend, Larry Flukinger, Clark Harrah, John Keppleman, Alberto Magnani, Sandra Miller, Suthat Pinruethai, Vasa.

1152. GEMINI G.E.L.
8365 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 651-0513 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30
Dir: Sidney Felsen/Stanley Grinstein
Exhibits and publishes contemporary graphic and sculpture editions.

Other artists represented:
Josef Albers, Jonathan Borofsky, Vija Celmins, Ronald Davis, Willem de Kooning, Mark di Suvero, Sam Francis, Joe Goode, Robert Graham, Philip Guston, Michael Heizer, David Hockney, Jasper Johns, Ellsworth Kelly, Edward Kienholz, Roy Lichtenstein, Man Ray, Bruce Nauman, Isamu Noguchi, Claes Oldenburg, Kenneth Price, Robert Rauschenberg, Dorothea Rockburne, James Rosenquist, Edward Ruscha, Richard Serra, Keith Sonnier, Frank Stella.

1153. SUSAN GERSH GALLERY
8426 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 653-4181 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Susan Gersh
Modern and contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Hockney.

Other artists represented:
Sam Francis, Frank Stella.

1154. GOLDFIELD GALLERIES
8400 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 651-1122 Mon–Fri 11–4, Sat 11–3
Dir: Alan Goldfield
19th- and 20th-century American art; American Impressionists, Ash Can School, Western.

1155. G. RAY HAWKINS GALLERY
7224 Melrose Ave 90046
(213) 550-1504 Tue 11–9, Wed–Sat 11–5
Dir: David Fahey
Photography.

Other artists represented:
Jo Ann Collis, Eileen Cowin, Edward Curtis, Robert Doisneau, Jerry McMillan, Helmut Newton, Paul Outerbridge, Alice Steinhardt.

1156. HERITAGE GALLERY
718 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 652-7738 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Benjamin Horowitz
20th-century American art; international prints.

Other artists represented:
William Gropper, Milton Hebald, Robert Russin, Charlotte Sherman, Moses Soyer, Charles White, Richard Wyatt.

1157. HUNSAKER-SCHLESINGER
812 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 657-2557 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Joyce Hunsaker/Lora Schlesinger
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Neda Al-Hilali, Jerrold Burchman.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Jerry Byrd, Gael Crimmins, Raymond Saunders.

1158. BERNARD JACOBSON
8364 Melrose Ave 90069
(213) 655-5719
Dir: Kimberly Davis
Contemporary British and American painting, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ivor Abrahams, Robyn Denny, Michael Heindorff, John Hoyland, Man Ray, Henry Moore, William Tucker.

Other artists represented:
Frank Auerbach, Howard Hodgkin, Peter Kinley, Edward Moses, Edward Ruscha, Richard Smith, William Tillyer, Victor Willing.

1159. JANUS GALLERY
8000 Melrose Ave 90046
(213) 658-6084 Tue–Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Candace Lee
West and East Coast contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lita Albuquerque, Carlos Almaraz, David Bungay, Elaine Lustig Cohen, John Frame, Vivian Kerstein, Michael Mazur*, Ed Moses, Judith Murray, Margit Omar, Peter Shire*.

Other artists represented:
Herbert Bayer, Mary Corse, Tony DeLap, Jackie Ferrara, Denise Gale, Gary Hall, Juan Hamilton, Mineo Mizuno, Paul Mogensen, Jules Olitski, Elsa Rady, Michelle Stuart.

1160. ULRIKE KANTOR GALLERY
800 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 273-5650, Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Ulrike Kantor
20th-century art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Bakshi, Roger Herman, Milan Kunc, Gary Lloyd, Martin Myers, George Rodart, Coleen Sterritt.

Other artists represented:
David Amico, George Condo, Victor Henderson, Manuel Luna, Marc Pally.

1161. KOPLIN
8225½ Santa Monica Blvd 90046
(213) 656-3378 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Marti Koplin
Contemporary American and Southern California art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roger Boyce, Joan Brown, Greg S. Card, Giselle Freund, Connie Jenkins, Nancy Monk, Terry Schoonhoven, Elena Mary Siff, Eugene Sturman, Robert Yasuda.

Other artists represented:
Ida Applebroog, Joseph Clower, Franklyn Liegel, David Ligare, John Mandel, George Miller, John Nava, Carl Fredrik Reuterswärd, Dan Rice, Rick Ripley.

Amundsen: Ottumwa Rotary Massacre, 1976; Colo. State Univ. (Jan. 19-Feb. 19, 1982).

1162. RICHARD KUHLENSCHMIDT GALLERY
4121 Wilshire Blvd 90010
(213) 385-8649 Sat 12–5; By appt
Dir: R. Kuhlenschmidt
Contemporary works by Los Angeles and New York artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kim Hubbard, Jim Isermann, William Leavitt, Christopher Williams, Robin Winters.

Other artists represented:
David Askevold, Louise Lawler, Lori Leckman, Sherrie Levine, Richard Prince, Morgan Thomas.

1163. IVOR KURLAND/SUMMERS
8742-A Melrose 90069
(213) 659-7098 Tue–Sat 11–6; Jun–Aug, Tue–Fri 11–5, Sat 12–4
Dir: Ruth T. Summers

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dan Dailey, David R. Huchthausen, William Morris, John Nygren, Colin Reid, Susan Stinsmuehlen.

Other artists represented:
Dale Chihuly, Sidney Hutter, Margie Jervis, Joey Kirkpatrick, Susie Krasnican, Robert Levin, Harvey Littleton, John Luebtow, Flora Mace, Linda MacNeil, Ann Warff.

1164. L.A. ARTCORE CENTER
652 Mateo St 90021
(213) 617-3274 Wed–Sun 11–4:30
Dir: Lydia Takeshita
Non-profit corporation; contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hoon Kwak.

Other artists represented:
Karen Akashi, Julie Belnick, Cathy Bennaton, Tom Canny, Paul Carmichael, Hyun-Sook Cho, Julie Chu, Ed Dougherty, Janice Edlund, James Ellen, Tony Fly, Eugene Greenland, Roy Herweck, Marius Johnston, Robert Kroese, Robert Lerner, Mitsuko Namiki, Elizabeth Richardson, Hye Sook.

1165. LACE (LOS ANGELES CONTEMPORARY EXHIBITIONS)
240 S Broadway 90012
(213) 620-0104 Wed–Sat 11–5
Dir: Marc Pally
Non-profit "art space" with performances, exhibitions, installations.

---

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eleanor Antin, Eric Bogosian, Barry Campion, Dorit Cypis, Mark Kroening, Jill Kroesen, Joan LaBarbara, Gary Macheel, Paul McCarthy, Jim Morris, Jeffrey O'Connell, Al Payne, Rudy Perez, Lari Pittman, Sally Roberts, Craig Roose, Nina Sobell, Benjamin Weissman, Bruce Yonemoto, Norman Yonemoto.

1166. MARTIN LAWRENCE GALLERIES
313 N Robertson Blvd 90048
(213) 272-1251 Mon-Fri 10-8; Sat, Sun 11-5
Modern and contemporary graphics.

Other artists represented:
Valerio Adami, Yaacov Agam, Salvador Dali, Yankel Ginzburg, Aldo Luongo, Hiro Yamagata.

1167. MARGO LEAVIN GALLERY
812 N Robertson Blvd 90069
(213) 273-0603 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Margo Leavin
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arakawa, Lynda Benglis, Ellsworth Kelly, Dorothea Rockburne, Julian Schnabel, Alexis Smith, Tom Wesselman.

Other artists represented:
Jennifer Bartlett, John Duff, Jud Fine, Charles Gaines, Jill Giegerich, Bryan Hunt, Jasper Johns, Andrew Lord, Robert Moskowitz, Claes Oldenburg, Edda Renouf, Gary Stephan.

1168. LOS ANGELES COUNTY MUSEUM OF ART
5905 Wilshire Blvd 90036
(213) 857-6111 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 10-6
Dir: Earl A. Powell, III
Art of most major civilizations—prehistoric to contemporary.

1169. LOS ANGELES INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART
2020 S Robertson Blvd 90034
(213) 559-5033 Tue-Fri 12-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: Robert L. Smith
Contemporary painting, sculpture, video, performance, artists' registry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kevin Boyle, Bruce Everett, Patricia Ferris, Steve Galloway, Allen Harrison, Ronald In't Hout, James Kenney, Renee Petropoulos, Astrid Preston, Al Ruppersberg, Tom Wolf.

Other artists represented:
Eleanor Antin, Carole Caroompas, Lois Colette, Vida Freeman, Douglas Hall, Laddie John Dill, Gilbert Johnquest, Laura Lasworth, Marc Pally, Anne Scott Plummer, Nancy Reese, Paul Tzanetopolis.

1170. LOS ANGELES MUNICIPAL ART GALLERY
4804 Hollywood Blvd 90027
(213) 485-4581 Tue-Sun 12:30-5
Dir: Josine Ianco Starrels
American contemporary art; primarily work by local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Flick*, Russell Gordon, Marvin Harden*, Dennis Hilger, Panos Koulermos*, Franklin Liegel, Gwynn Murrill, Gifford Myers, Guy Williams*, Paul Wonner.

1171. MEKLER GALLERY
651 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 659-0583 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Adam Mekler
Contemporary sculpture, painting; 20th-century works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Cremean.

Other artists represented:
George Baker, William Dole, Corda Eby, Sorel Etrog, Alberto Giacometti, Bon Gordon, Dimitri Hadzi, Hardy Hanson, Ynez Johnston, Susana Lago, Rico Lebrun, Henri Matisse, Karen Nelson, Pablo Picasso, Carol Rader, David Smith, Paul Suttman, Ulfert Wilke, Jack Zajac.

1172. MELROSE PLACE GALLERY
8467 Melrose Ave 90046
(213) 653-0541
Dir: Paul Henderson
Contemporary art in a variety of mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Fuller, G. W. Mitchell, Rochelle Nicholas, Robert Sanchez, Petrina L. Walker.

Other artists represented:
Daniel Babior, Richard Bauer, Dennis Cigler, Benjamin Kaiser, James Reinke, Rand Schiltz.

1173. METRO
1308 Factory Pl 90013
(213) 680-9850 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30; By appt
Dir: Kathleen R. Davies
Contemporary painting, photography, prints, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Philip Canady, Sue Llewellyn, Scott Lockwood, Tom Post, Charles Villiers, Terry Wier.

1174. TOBEY C. MOSS GALLERY
7321 Beverly Blvd 90036
(213) 933-5523 Tue-Fri 11-4; By appt
Dir: Tobey C. Moss
Paintings; sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Catlett, Sorel Etrog, Lorser Feitelson*, Oskar Fischinger*, Helen Lundeberg, Jay Rivkin, Palmer Schoppe, Alfred Stieglitz.

Other artists represented:
Stephen Anaya, Ben Berlin, Nicholas P. Brigante, Werner Drewes, Ejnar Hansen, Miriam Karoly, Oskar Kokoschka, Knud Merrild, Letta Valeska.

1175. MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE
Fine Arts Gallery
12001 Chalon Rd 90049
(213) 476-2237 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Jim Murray
Contemporary art.

1176. NEWSPACE
5241 Melrose Ave 90038
(213) 469-9353 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: Joni Gordon
Contemporary Los Angeles paintings, sculpture, drawings.

Other artists represented:
Martha Alf, Bob Bates, Judy Fiskin, Christopher Georgesco, Sidney Gordin, Heidi Hardin, Tom Holste, Anne Marie Karlsen, Paul Knotter, Dan McCleary, Barney O'Brien, Betty Parsons, Patricia Patterson, Astrid Preston, Michael Roberts, Wade Saunders, John Sosini, Frederick Wight.

1177. ORANGES/SARDINES GALLERY
320 S Omar Ave 90013
(213) 687-4716 Fri-Sat 12-5; By appt
Dir: Carol Colin/Ted Waltz
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stuart Arends, Robert Hansen, Robert Lerner, Mary Margret, Ivan Morrison, Orleonok Pitkin, Frank Romero, Lyn Roylance, Jack Shear, Brian Skelton, Matthew Thomas, Fred Tomaselli.

Other artists represented:
David Authier, Marlene Bauer, Carol Colin, John Honor, Kathleen McCuistion, Ted Waltz.

1178. OTIS ART INSTITUTE OF PARSONS SCHOOL OF DESIGN
2401 Wilshire Blvd 90057
(213) 387-5288 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Al Nodal
Contemporary art in all mediums.

1179. NEIL G. OVSEY GALLERY
705 E Third St 90013
(213) 617-1351 Tue-Sat 11-5; By appt
Dir: Alice Ovsey/Neil Ovsey
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, drawing, and installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Bain, Susan Hall, Mary Jones, Donal Lumbert, Stephan McKeown, Eric Orr, Ron Rizk, Judith Simonian.

Other artists represented:
Ron Cooper, Constance Mallinson, Leonard Skuro.

1180. PAIDEIA GALLERY
765 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 652-8224 Tue-Sat 11-4:30
Dir: Stevan Kissel
19th-early-20th-century American and European paintings.

Other artists represented:
Albert Bierstadt, Maurice Braun, Bruce Crane, Anton Fischer, William Keith, Martin Rico y Ortega, Edgar Payne, Hanson D. Puthuff, Granville Redmond, Guy Rose.

1181. HERBERT PALMER GALLERY
802 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 854-0096 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: Herbert Palmer/Meredith Palmer
20th-century American and European painting, sculpture, and drawings; art of the theater.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Banks, Russell Forester.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Berman, Max Bill, Raoul Dufy, Sam Francis, Albert E. Gallatin, Charles Gesmar, Ronna Harris, Gary Komarin, Jacques Lipchitz, Man Ray, Henry Moore, Lee Mullican, Edward Ruscha, Kay Sage, Suzanne Valadon, Louis Valtat, Abraham Walkowitz.

1182. MARILYN PINK/MASTER PRINTS & DRAWINGS
817 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 657-5810 Mon-Fri 12-5, Sat 11-5
Dir: Marilyn Pink
15th-20th-century American and European works on paper; works of American Moderns.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Gilbert.

Other artists represented:
Paul Kelpe, Gabe Kohn.

1183. STELLA POLARIS GALLERY
303 Boyd St 90013
(213) 617-2846 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Peter Nelson/Margareta Schock
Contemporary American and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Craig Antrim, Karl Benjamin, Charlotte Cain, Sue Dirksen, Sheila Elias, Curt Kallman, Helen Pashgian.

Other artists represented:
Nick Boskovich, Michael Peter Cain, Carl Cheng, Ford Crull, Nancy Kay, Jerome Kirk, Alexander Kritselis, Yuko Nii, Jack Reilly, Kjell Ringi, Phillip Tarlow.

1184. JACK RUTBERG FINE ARTS
357 N La Brea Ave 90036
(213) 938-5222 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: Jack Rutberg
European and American 19th- and 20th-century paintings, drawings, prints, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hans Burkhardt, Arshile Gorky, Antoni Tapies.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Alechinsky, Thomas Hart Benton, Pierre Bonnard, Georges Braque, Charles Burchfield, Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali, Maurice Denis, Raoul Dufy, Henri Fantin-Latour, Edward Glauder, Francisco Goya, Paul Jenkins, Wassily Kandinsky, Käthe Kollwitz, Andre Masson, Henri Matisse, Roberto Matta, Joan Miro, Pablo Picasso, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Auguste Rodin, George Rouault, T. A. Steinlen, Mark Tobey, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, Ruth Weisberg, James McNeill Whistler.

1185. M.M. SHINNO GALLERY
5820 Wilshire Blvd 90036
(213) 935–1010 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: M.M. Shinno
Contemporary Asian art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Chung Ray Fong, Kunito Nagaoka, Tanaka Ryohei, Kuo Sung Liu, Masaaki Tanaka, Diana Shiu-iu Wong.

1186. SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA CONTEMPORARY ART GALLERIES
Los Angeles Art Association
825 La Cienaga Blvd 90069
(213) 652–8272 Tue–Fri 12–5, Sat 12–4, Sun 2–4
Dir: Helen Wurdemann
Contemporary art of Southern California.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rose Cooper, Jan Hoowij, Shan Bai Qin.

1187. SOUTHWEST MUSEUM
Box 128, Highland Park 90042
(213) 221–2163 Tue–Sat 11–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Patrick Houlihan
Native American art and artifacts of western North America; collections: Plains, Southwest, California, and Northwest Coast materials.

1188. SPACE GALLERY
6015 Santa Monica Blvd 90038
(213) 461–8166 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Edward Den Lau
Works in all mediums by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Russell Baldwin, Seiji Kunishima, Norman Lundin, Ann Page, Tom Stanton, Masami Teraoka, Boyd Wright.

Other artists represented:
Bob Alderette, Robert Anderson, Sandy Bleifer, Ralph Corners, Steven Cortright, Phyllis Davidson, Stephen Geldman, Laurie Green, Kazuo Kadonaga, Sam Lemly, Takashi Naraha, Carlos Padilla, Karl Petrunak, Pepo Pichler, Randye Sandel, Judy Sohigian, Richard Thompson, Maureen O'Hara Ure, Doug Young.

1189. DAVID STUART GALLERIES
748 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 652–7422 Tue–Sat 1–5
Dir: David Stuart/Jacqueline Stuart
Pre-Columbian, African, ancient arts; 19th- and 20th-century painting and sculpture.

1190. SWOPE GALLERY
170 S La Brea 90036
(213) 938–2234 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Topo Swope
Emerging abstract, figurative, construction artists; humorous art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Ansell, Bart Arnold, Rima Goodman, Naomi Seigmann, Nini Swift, Marian Winsryg.

Other artists represented:
Doug Edge, Henry Fonda, Hudson Marquez, Steve Nowlin, Mark Swope, Mary Woronov.

1191. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, LOS ANGELES
Frederick S Wight Art Gallery
405 Hilgard Ave 90024
(213) 825–1461
Dir: Edith Tonelli
Fine art, ethnic arts, and design; 20th-century sculpture garden.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alexandre Lunois, Lou Stoumen, June Wayne.

1192. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, LOS ANGELES University Art Galleries
823 Exposition Blvd 90007
(213) 743–2799 Tue–Sat 12–5
Dir: Selma Holo
Contemporary and Dutch, Flemish, 19th-century American art; Armand Hammer and Elizabeth Holmes Fisher collections: 15th-20th-century paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonardo Da Vinci*, Honore Daumier*, Edvard Munch*.

1193. DANIEL WEINBERG GALLERY
619 N Almont Dr 90069
(213) 271–7101 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Andrew Fabricant
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Scott Burton, Robert Irwin, Barry LeVa, Elizabeth Murray, Alan Saret.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, James Bishop, Mel Bochner, Ralph Humphrey, Robert Mangold, Bruce Nauman, Judy Pfaff, Harry Roseman, Robert Ryman, Richard Tuttle, Terry Winters.

1195. STEPHEN WHITE GALLERY OF PHOTOGRAPHY
752 N La Cienega Blvd 90069
(213) 657–6995 Fri, Sat 11–5
Dir: Stephen White
19th- and 20th-century and contemporary photographs; rare photography books.

Other artists represented:
Bruce Branbaum, Hans Hammarskiold, Karl Struss, Reed Thomas, Otmar Thormann, Albert Watson.

1196. ART STORE GALLERY
7200 W Beverly Blvd 90036
(213) 933–9284 Mon–Sat 9–5:30
Dir: Bobbie Greenfield
Non-profit; contemporary art exhibition space located within art store.

Other artists represented:
Laddie John Dill, Peter Shire.

Malibu

1197. J. PAUL GETTY MUSEUM
17985 Pacific Coast Hwy 90265
(213) 459–2306 Sep–May Tue–Sat 10–5; Jun–Aug Mon–Fri 10–5
Dir: Stephen Garrett
Greek and Roman antiquities; 18th-century European decorative arts; Western European paintings, 13th–19th century.

Monterey

1198. MONTEREY PENINSULA MUSEUM OF ART
559 Pacific St 93940
(408) 372–7591 Tue–Fri 10–4; Sat, Sun 1–4
Dir: Thomas J. Logan
Western and California art and photography; folk and Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams*, George De Groat, Claudette Dibert, Genevieve Edwards, Myron Oliver, Philip Pearlstein.

Moraga

1199. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE OF CALIFORNIA
Hearst Art Gallery
St Mary's Road PO Box AE 94575
(415) 376–4411 Wed–Sun 11–4
Dir: Anne Harlow
International works of art; icons.

Newport Beach

1200. FREIDENRICH CONTEMPORARY ART
177-F Riverside Dr 92663
(714) 631–5499 Tue–Fri 11–5
Dir: Doree Freidenrich
Contemporary paintings, drawings and prints.

1201. NEWPORT HARBOR ART MUSEUM
850 San Clemente Dr 92660
(714) 759–1122 Tue–Sun 11–5
Dir: Cathleen S. Gallander
Contemporary art; American and Californian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Amico*, Milton Avery, Larry Bell*, Robert Cremean, Edward Kienholz, Nancy Kienholz, Gary Martin, Lari Pittman, Alan Saret*, Jon Serl*.

1202. OCEAN WORKS
2811 Villa Way 92663
(714) 673–3804 Wed–Sat 11–5
Dir: Conrad Schwable
Lithography workshop and gallery.

Other artists represented:
Bob Alderette, David Amico, Raul Anguiano, Paul Darrow, Tony Delap, Christian Heckscher, Don Karwells, Kay Mortenson, Conrad Schwable, Sam Scott, Jeffrey Sipple, Veloy Vigil.

1203. SUSAN SPIRITUS GALLERY
522 Old Newport Blvd 92663
(714) 631–6405 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Susan Spiritus
Contemporary photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eikoh Hosoe*.

Other artists represented:
Marsha Burns, Robert Doisneau, Benno Friedman, Betty Hahn, Andre Kertesz, Joan Myers, John Sexton.

Northridge

1204. CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, NORTHRIDGE
Art Gallery
18111 Nordhoff St 91330
(213) 885–2226 Mon 12–4, Tue–Fri 10–4
Dir: Louise Lewis
Exhibitions of historical and contemporary art; no permanent collection.

*see catalog index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Oakland

1205. CALIFORNIA COLLEGE OF ARTS AND CRAFTS
Artists' Gallery
5251 Broadway 94618
(415) 653-8118 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Harry X. Ford
Works by student artists; gallery run by the College's Gallery Management Class.

1206. CALIFORNIA COLLEGE OF ARTS AND CRAFTS
Isabelle Percy West Gallery
5212 Broadway 94618
(415) 653-8118 Mon-Fri 8-4:30
Non-juried shows by alumni, faculty, students.

1207. CROWN POINT GALLERY
1551 San Pablo Ave 94612
(415) 835-5121 Tue-Fri 10-5
Dir: Kathan Brown
Etchings and woodblock prints from Crown Point Press artists.

Other artists represented:
Vito Acconci, Robert Barry, Iain Baxter, Robert Bechtle, Chris Burden, Daniel Buren, John Cage, Francesco Clemente, Richard Diebenkorn, Joel Fisher, Dan Flavin, Terry Fox, Hamish Fulton, Hans Haacke, Joan Jonas, Jannis Kounellis, Joyce Kozloff, Robert Kushner, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mangold, Brice Marden, Tom Marioni, Steve Reich, Ed Ruscha, Italo Scanga, Pat Steir, Wayne Thiebaud, David True, William T. Wiley.

1208. MILLS COLLEGE ART GALLERY
5000 MacArthur Blvd 94613
(415) 430-2164 Tue-Sun 10-4
Dir: Phil Linhares
16th-20th-century works on paper; 19th-20th-century American and European paintings; Asian and South and Central American textiles and ceramics.

1209. OAKLAND MUSEUM, ART DIVISION
1000 Oak St 94607
(415) 273-3005 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-7
Dir: Julian T. Euell
California art and artists; photography; natural science.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Squeak Carnwath, Oliver Jackson, Pat Klein, John Roloff, Hunter Wallof, Daniel Wiener.

1210. LILLIAN PALEY CENTER FOR THE VISUAL ARTS
1515 Webster St 94612
(415) 451-6300 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Evelyn Keilson
Slide library of contemporary visual arts; public exhibitions and permanent archives.

1211. SIERRA CLUB NATURE PHOTOGRAPHY PROJECT
1570 Excelsior Ave 94602
(415) 974-6666
Dir: Nancy Ann Hansen
Nature photography.

Other artists represented:
Ed Cooper, Philip Hyde, Wendell Metzen, John Senser.

Orange

1212. CHAPMAN COLLEGE
Guggenheim Gallery
333 N Glassell 92666
(714) 997-6729 Mon-Fri 1-5
Dir: Richard Turner
Contemporary California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Crown, Norm Hines.

Orinda

1213. BROOK HOUSE
40 Mariposa Lane 94563
(415) 254-1525 Wed-Sun 11-5
Dir: Victor L. Fischer
Contemporary outdoor and indoor sculpture, paintings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Bauer, Michael Beck, Robert Hartman, Clay Jensen, Ricki Kimball, George Neubert, Arthur Silverman, Terry St. John.

Other artists represented:
Roger Barr, Kati Casida, Bella Feldman, Andrew Harader, Jessel, Helen Ann Licht, Richard Mayer, Roslyn Mazzilli, Richard O'Hanlon, Leta Ramos, Joan Savo, Jacques Schnier, Vicki Scuri, Joseph Slusky, Manuel Villamor, Gale Wagner, Gerald Walburg, William Wareham.

Palm Springs

1215. B. LEWIN GALLERIES
210 S Palm Canyon Dr 92262
(619) 325-7611 Daily 10-5
Dir: Bernard Lewin
Paintings, sculptures, graphics by Mexican artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Felipe Castaneda, Rafael Cronel, Carlos Merida, Rufino Tamayo.

Other artists represented:
Jean Charlot, Jose Luis Cuevas, Ricardo Martinez, Gustavo Montoya, Leonardo Nierman, Jose Clemente Orozco, Diego Rivera, Francisco Zuniga.

1216. PALM SPRINGS DESERT MUSEUM
101 Museum Dr 92263
(714) 325-7186 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 10-5
Dir: Morton J. Golden
Painting, sculpture, graphics, ethnology; 20th-century sculpture collection; African primitive art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alberto Burri*, Francoise Gilot*, Gaston Lachaise*, Tim Nordin*.

1217. PALO ALTO CULTURAL CENTER
1313 Newell Rd 94303
(415) 329-2366 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5, Wed eve 7-9
Dir: Laurie Eason
Exhibitions of local and emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Holland, Bruce Johnson, Jane Lidz, Ted Odza, Janice Rowell, Gale Wagner, Ruth Zacherle.

1218. SMITH ANDERSEN GALLERY
200 Homer Ave 94301
(415) 327-7762 Tue-Sat 10:30-4:30
Dir: Paula Kirkeby/Dede Evans
Contemporary art in various mediums including painting, sculpture, ceramics, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leo Holub, Fred Martin, Ed Moses, Jay Phillips, Matt Phillips, Joseph Zirker*.

Other artists represented:
Claire Falkenstein, Sam Francis, Charles Ginnever, Joseph Goldyne, Charles Hilger, Tom Holland, Jack Jefferson, Frank Lobdell, Michael Mazur, Tom Millea, Ann Page, George Page, Miklos Pogony, Barbara Rees, Linda Rosenus, Marguerite Saegesser, Ann Sperry, George Sugarman, Gerald Walburg, Adja Yunkers.

Pasadena

1219. CALIFORNIA INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY
Baxter Art Gallery
Chester Ave and Del Mar Blvd 91125
(213) 356-4371 Daily 12-5
Dir: Jay Belloli
Contemporary American art exhibitions; lectures, talks with artists.

1220. PACIFIC ASIA MUSEUM
46 N Los Robles Ave 91101
(213) 449-2742 Wed-Sun 12-5
Dir: David Kamansky
Traditional and contemporary arts of Asia and the Pacific in historic Chinese palace style building with courtyard garden.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Jacoulet*.

1221. PASADENA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
470 W Walnut St 91103
(213) 577-1660
Dir: Sue Schechter

1222. NORTON SIMON MUSEUM
411 W Colorado Blvd 91105
(213) 449-6840 Thu-Sun 12-6
Renaissance-mid-20th-century European painting; Asian sculpture; tapestries; contemporary art.

Redding

1223. REDDING MUSEUM AND ART CENTER
PO Box 427 96099
(916) 243-4994
Dir: Carolyn Bond
Archeaological, historical and fine arts collections; paintings, sculpture, graphics, photography, ceramics, and crafts by contemporary artists.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Catherine Gibson, Mark Hartman, Robert Hartman, Timothy Hearsum, Howard Ikemoto, David Kuraoka, Therese May, Bob Nugent, Sylvia Seventy, Robert Strini.

Richmond

1224. RICHMOND ART GALLERY
Civic Center Plaza, 25th at Barrett 94804
(415) 231-2163 Tue-Thu 10-4:30, Sat and Sun 12-4:30
Dir: Lynda Guthrie
Non-profit organization; contemporary artists; invitationals.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elio Benvenuto*.

Riverside

1225. RIVERSIDE ART CENTER AND MUSEUM
3425 7th St 92501
(714) 684-7111 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: H. Ray Miller
Painting, sculpture, porcelain, graphics.

1226. ROBERTSON GALLERY
3643 Main St 92501
(714) 684-6450 Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Sun 11-4
Dir: Patricia Capsavage
Specializing in contemporary American painting, sculpture, graphics and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martin Green, Sister Adele, Liz Wilkinson.

Other artists represented:
R. C. Gorman, Harry Jackson, Gloria Jacobson, Maggie Kendis, Roger Medearis, Florence Putterman, Arthur Secunda.

1227. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
California Museum of Photography 92521
(714) 787-4787 Mon-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-7
Dir: Charles Desmarais
Photography and photography-related artifacts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Chuck Close, Mario Giacomelli, Anthony Hernandez, Mary Ellen Mark, David Plowden, Joel Sternfeld.

Rohnert Park

1228. SONOMA STATE UNIVERSITY
University Art Gallery
1801 E Cotati Ave 94928
(707) 664-2295 Tue-Fri 10-4, Sat, Sun 12-4
Dir: Bob L. Nugent
Changing contemporary exhibitions in a variety of mediums.

Sacramento

1229. ARTISTS CONTEMPORARY GALLERY
542 Downtown Plaza 95814
(916) 446-3694 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: Betty D. Mast
Works by contemporary Northern California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Ball, Patrick Dullanty, Gregory Kondos, Irving Marcus, Ruth Rippon, Roger Vail, Barbara Zook.

Other artists represented:
Fredric Dalkey, Darrell Forney, Boyd Gavin, Sharon Harper, Ralph Johnson, Laureen Landau, Philip Menard, Gary Miller, Jack Ogden, Roland Petersen, Jerald Silva, Sheila Sullivan, Harry Troughton, Ken Waterstreet, Larry Welden.

1230. CHAN-ELLIOTT GALLERIES
727½ J St 95814
(916) 446-3806
Dir: Merrill Grove

Other artists represented:
Roger Campbell, Jim Devore, Claude Duplat, Mark Emerson, Tom Frank, Michele Leconte, Jack Mielsen, Jack Ogden, Steve Vanoni, Gerald Walburg.

1231. CROCKER ART MUSEUM
216 O St 95814
(916) 446-4677 Tue 2-10; Wed-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Roger D. Clisby
Renaissance-20th-century European painting, drawing; California painting, sculpture; furniture; Oriental art; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dan Connally, Tom Frank, Boyd Gavin, William Geis III, Marilyn Halevi, Mike Henderson, Georgianna Holden, Ata Kando, Tarmo Pasto*, Helen Post, June Wayne.

1232. FIDO GALLERY
1014½ 10th St 95814
(916) 448-5480 Tue-Fri 11-3
Dir: Brian J. Gorman
Emerging and area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doren Garcia, Phil Savage, Harold Wegener.

Other artists represented:
Robert Charland, Dave Dave, Gary Dinnen, David Estrada, Jean Kouklis, James Nelson, Adrian Sargo, Trixie, Steven Vanoni.

Salinas

1233. HARTNELL COLLEGE
Art Gallery
156 Homestead Ave 93901
(408) 758-8211 ext 261 Mon-Thu 10-1, 6-9
Dir: Gary Smith
Varied exhibitions in all mediums; special collection of works on paper by WPA artists from the Bay Area.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jose Luis Cuevas*.

Other artists represented:
Penny Schuchman Arntz.

San Diego

1234. A.R.T./BEASLEY GALLERY
2802 Juan St, Suite 16 92110
(714) 295-0075 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Contemporary American art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Norma Andraud, Richard Bagguley, Lau Chun, Merilyn Beyrer Dean, Chick Hayashi, Sandy Kinnee, Gita Landwehr, Hiroshi Miyazaki, Fritz Morrison, Jens Morrison, Diane O'Leary, T. F. Poduska, Chris Ranes, Sherri Schrut, Beth Ames Swartz, Ann Taylor, Marshall Davis Taylor, Thép Thavonsouk, Cathy Woo, Masoud Yasami.

1235. QUINT GALLERY
664 9th Ave 92101
(619) 239-8592 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Mark Quint
West Coast contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kenneth Capps, Joseph Clower, Raul Guerrero, Gary Lang, Tony Raczka, Maura Sheehan, Ernest Silva.

Other artists represented:
Reesey Shaw, Peter Stearns, Coleen Sterritt.

1236. SAN DIEGO ART INSTITUTE
1449 El Prado, Balboa Park 92101
(714) 234-5946 Tue-Sat 10-5; Sun 12:30-5
Dir: Shirley Viennese
Contemporary painting, drawing, prints, photography, sculpture by San Diego County artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Allen, Robert Fritsch, Steve Goldstein, Marylee Johnson, Nicholas King, George Lykos, Alexia Markarian, Sue McNary, Allan Morrow, Ben Sager, Roberta Sumner, Charles Turner, Uwe Werner, W. Hasse Wojtyla.

1237. SAN DIEGO MUSEUM OF ART
Balboa Park 92112
(619) 232-7931 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: Steve Brezzo
European painting; old master Spanish, Renaissance, Baroque, Asian collections; American paintings, and decorative arts; Indian, Persian miniatures.

1238. SAN DIEGO STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery 92182
(619) 265-6511 Tue-Sat 12-4
Dir: Dennis Komac
Contemporary American art; some historical and international shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci*, Mary Miss.

1239. TIMKEN ART GALLERY
1500 El Prado 92101
(619) 239-5548 Tue-Sat 10-4:30; Sun 1:30-4:30
Dir: Nancy Ames Petersen
Russian icons; European old masters, American paintings; tapestries.

1240. WENGER GALLERY
4683 Cass St 92109
(619) 454-4414 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Muriel Wenger
Contemporary American and European painting, sculpture, drawings, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nixson Borah, Hugo Duchateau, Judith Foosaner, Poi Mara, Joan Moment, David Provan, Jan Vanriet*, Kay Walking Stick.

Other artists represented:
Richard Anuskiewicz, George Baker, Regina Bogat, Cynthia Carlson, Guy John Cavalli, Francisco Farreras, Alfred Jensen, Antonio Rodriguez Luna, Bruce Richards, George Rickey, Elizabeth Sher, Dan Snyder, VASA.

---

*see catalog index

San Francisco

1241. ALLRICH GALLERY
251 Post St 94108
(415) 398-8896 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Louise Allrich
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, works on paper, textile constructions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lia Cook, Robert Gonzales, Lynn Klein, Nance O'Banion, Dan Snyder, Geoffrey Williams, Adja Yunkers.

Other artists represented:
Neda Al Hilali, Roger Bolomey, Glenn Brill, Ellen Brody, Jerry Concha, Kris Dey, Thomasin Grim, Mary Heebner, Peter Kitchell, Masakazu Kobayashi, Bruce Lowney, Sylvia Seventy, Sharon Shepherd, Angelita Stover, Stephanie Weber.

1242. ASIAN ART MUSEUM OF SAN FRANCISCO, THE AVERY BRUNDAGE COLLECTION
Golden Gate Park 94118
(415) 558-2993 Daily 10-5
Dir: Yvon d'Argencé
Asian art: sculptures, paintings, bronzes, ceramics, jades, lacquers, architectural elements, decorative objects.

1243. BANK OF AMERICA WORLD HEADQUARTERS GALLERIES
555 California St 94104
(415) 622-1265 Mon-Fri 8-5:30
Dir: Bonnie Earls-Solari
Three gallery spaces; exhibitions of BankAmerica Corporation collection and borrowed works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jonathan Bayer, Ruffin Cooper, Robert Hernandez, Gayle Luchessa, Mel Pekarsky, Gerald Walburg.

1244. BAUM GALLERY
2140 Bush St 94115
(415) 921-7677 Mon-Fri 11-5; Sat by appt
Dir: Hank Baum
Contemporary painting, sculpture, watercolors, drawings, collages, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Guy Diehl, Bruce Kortebein, Robert McGill, Joel Oas, John Ploeger, Richard Wilson.

Other artists represented:
Ay-o, Jon Beckley, James Bolton, Martin Camarata, Lew Carson, Rolando Castellon, Harold Gregor, Barbara Hanson, Georg Heimdal, Ynez Johnston, Dick Kakuda, David King, Laureen Landau, Don Reich, Sherry Schrut, Emerson Woelffer, Don Woodford.

1245. GEORGE BELCHER GALLERY
500 Sutter St 94102
(415) 981-3178 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: George Belcher
19th-20th-century Mexican and Latin American paintings.

Other artists represented:
Marcelo Bonevardi, Fernando Botero, Jean Charlot, Gunther Gerzso, Wifredo Lam, Carlos Merida, Jose Clemente Orozco, Diego Rivera, Rufino Tamayo, Francisco Toledo.

1246. JOHN BERGGRUEN GALLERY
228 Grant Ave 94108
(415) 781-4629 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:15; Sat 10:30-5
Dir: John Berggruen
20th-century paintings, drawings, sculpture, and prints.

Jacob Lawrence: Marionettes, 1952; in "Recent Acquisitions: 1980-1982," at The High Museum of Art, Atlanta (Nov. 19 1982-Jan. 2, 1983).

Other artists represented:
Mark Adams, Robert Bechtle, Billy Al Bengston, Fletcher Benton, Tony Berlant, Elmer Bischoff, Marianne Boers, Fernando Botero, Bruce Cohen, Larry Cohen, Ron Davis, Stephen De Staebler, Tony Delap, Richard Diebenkorn, Friedel Dzubas, Sam Francis, Helen Frankenthaler, Joseph Goldyne, Hans Hofmann, Robert Motherwell, Manuel Neri, John Okulick, Nathan Oliveira, Joseph Raffael, George Rickey, Laurent Sarlatte, Saul Steinberg, Wayne Thiebaud, James Torlakson, Beth Van Hoesen, Brian Wall, Paul Wonner.

1247. BLUXOME GALLERY
173 Bluxome St 94107
(415) 546-0449 Tue-Fri 11-4:30; Sat 12-4
Dir: Morley Schreiber Clark
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, graphics, and drawings, especially California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roger Berry, Jim Growden, Edith Hillinger, Joseph Hughes, Larry Hurst, Richard Putz, Bruce Richards, Kent Rush, Jean St. Pierre.

Other artists represented:
Ian Banks, Marcia Hafif, Robert Hartman, Patsy Krebs, David Mackenzie, Phil Sims, Larry Thomas.

1248. PHILIPPE BONNAFONT GALLERY
2200 Mason St 94133
(415) 781-8896 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Philippe Bonnafont
Art related to architecture.

Other artists represented:
Roger Bailey, Lawrence Halprin, Arata Isozaki, Ulisse Pagliari, Keith Wilson.

1249. BRAUNSTEIN GALLERY
254 Sutter St 94108
(415) 392-5532 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Ruth Braunstein
Contemporary California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Anderson, Dale Chihuly, Elin Elisofon, Ted Gordon, Hanna Hannah, Edward Kienholz, Nancy Kienholz, Arthur Okamura, Mary Snowden, Michael Stevens, Peter Voulkos, Franklin Williams.

Other artists represented:
John Altoon, Jeremy Anderson, Robert Brady, Karen Breschi, Tony Costanzo, Mark Dorrance, Rev. Howard Finster, Russell T. Gordon, Julie Huette, Paul Pratchenko, Richard Shaw, Neil Sinton.

1250. CALIFORNIA PALACE OF THE LEGION OF HONOR
Lincoln Park 94121
(415) 558-2881 Wed-Sun 10-5
Dir: Ian McKibbin White
French art from the Middle Ages to the early 20th-century: tapestries, paintings, furniture, and room interiors; Achenbach Foundation for Graphic Arts.

1251. CHARLES CAMPBELL GALLERY
647 Chestnut St 94133
(415) 441-4680 Tue-Fri 11-5:30; Sat 12-4
Dir: Mrs. Charles Campbell
Figurative work, paintings, and drawings by San Francisco area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gordon Cook, Charles Eckart, Charles Griffin Farr, Morris Graves, Keith Jacobshagen, Charles Mattox, Geer Morton, Giovanni Ragusa, Stephanie Sanchez.

Other artists represented:
Michael Barnes, Harry Bowden, James N. Johnson, Walter Kuhlman, Ann Morency, Louis Siegriest, Edna Stoddart, Wayne Thiebaud, Stan Washburn, James Weeks, Donald Weygandt.

1252. CHEVRON GALLERY
555 Market St 94105
(415) 552-1734 Mon-Fri 9-4
Dir: Linda E. Evans
Rotating exhibitions in corporate environments.

1253. JOSEPH CHOWNING GALLERY
1717 17th St 94103
(415) 626-7496 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 2-4
Dir: Joseph Chowning
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Battenberg, Eduardo Carrillo, Bill Geis, Howard Hack*, Stanton MacDonald-Wright.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Akawie, Clayton Bailey, Richard Berger, Michael Bishop, Michael Brennan, Joe Draegert, Richard Frank, Irving Marcus, Bill Martin, Morgan Russell, Diane Sloan, Bill Snyder, Gage Taylor, Ken Waterstreet.

1254. CONACHER GALLERIES
134 Maiden La 94108
(415) 392-5447 Mon-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Don Conacher
Contemporary and traditional American art.

Other artists represented:
Gunnar Anderson, Ralph Anderson, Elizabeth Charleston, Eyvand Earle, Peter Ellenshaw, Gerome Grummer, Dong Kungman, Alan Maley, Dale Peché, Della Roberts, Stan Stokes, Thornton Utz, Charles Wossocki.

1255. M.H. DE YOUNG MEMORIAL MUSEUM

Golden Gate Park 94118
(415) 558-2887 Wed-Sun 10-5
Dir: Ian McKibbin White
Western art to early 20th-century, traditional arts of Africa, Oceania, and the Americas; European and American painting.

1256. ERNEST DESOTO WORKSHOP

319 11th St 94103
(415) 863-3232
Dir: Ernest F. deSoto
Work by Latin American and Bay Area artists.

Other artists represented:
Edmundo Aquino, Alejandro Colunga, Jerry Concha, Roy DeForest, Gustavo Rivera.

1257. EATON/SHOEN GALLERY

500 Paul Ave 94124
(415) 467-2210 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: Timothy A. Eaton/Mary Anna Shoen
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rosemarie Castoro, Susan Dannefelser, Kate Delos, Beatrice Hablig, Bernard Plossu*, Wolf von dem Bussche*.

Other artists represented:
Kevin Bubriski, Nassos Daphnis, Nat Dean, Clarice Dreyer, John Edwards, Timothy Ely, Harry Fritzius, Roger Herman, Josef Koudelka, Donald Lipski, Pier Mahiam, Max Pam, Livio Saganic, Phillipe Salaun, Mark Van Proyen, Frank Young, James Zunk.

1258. EDITIONS LIMITED WEST

1 Market Plaza 94105
(415) 777-5711 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: Joanne C. Chappell
Corporate art consultants; original print and poster publishers; tapestries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve McMillan, Joe Price, Charles Wolters.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Will Barnet, Karen Davidson, Phyllis Fannin, Peter Kitchell, Bill McWhorter, David Meyers, Peter Milton, Gabor Peterdi, Jurgen Peters, Bruce Weinberg.

1259. 80 LANGTON STREET

80 Langton St 94103
(415) 626-5416 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Judy Moran/Renny Pritikin
Site-specific installations, performance art; new music.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jo Harvey Allen, Bruce Chao, Stephen Davis, Paul Dresher, John Driscoll, Esmerelda, Ed Friedman, Diamonda Galas, Malcolm Goldstein, Dan Graham, Ted Greenwald, Jana Haimson, Robert Kaputof, Jill Kroesen, Joan La Barbara, Tony Labat, Justen Ladda, Peter Ladota, Philip Loarie, Glen Moriwaki, Mark Pauline, Jim Pomeroy, Richard Posner, Valerie Reichert, Jill Scott, Fiona Templeton, Esme Thompson, Blue Gene Tyranny, Rita Yokoi, Walter Zimmerman.

1260. FOCUS GALLERY

2146 Union St 94123
(415) 921-1565 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Helen Johnston
Bay Area and international photographers.

1261. FOSTER GOLDSTROM FINE ARTS

257 Grant Ave/228 Grant Ave 6th Floor 94108
(415) 788-5060 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Richard Polsky
Works by international and California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John DeAndrea*, Bill Kane*.

Other artists represented:
Joe Doyle, Sam Francis, Ben Kaiser, Stuart Lehrman, David Maxim, Jack Reilly, Raymond Waydelich.

1262. FRAENKEL GALLERY

55 Grant Ave 94108
(415) 981-2661
Dir: Jeffrey Fraenkel
19th- and 20th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Robert Adams, Bill Dane, Lee Friedlander, John Gutmann, Helen Levitt, Robert Mapplethorpe, Eadweard Muybridge, Nicholas Nixon, Timothy O'Sullivan, Leo Rubinfien, Stephen Shore, Lew Thomas, Carleton E. Watkins, Garry Winogrand.

1263. FULLER GOLDEEN GALLERY

228 Grant Ave 94108
(415) 982-6177 Mon-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Diana Fuller Dorot/Dorothy Goldeen
Contemporary painting, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Arneson, Lynda Benglis, Harry Bowers, Joan Brown, Squeak Carnwath, Roy De Forest, Tom Holland, Robert Hudson*, Dennis Leon.

Other artists represented:
William Allan, Terry Allen, Charles Arnoldi, Pegan Brooke, John Buck, Deborah Butterfield, Mark Di Suvero, Laddie John Dill, Linda Fleming, Craig Kauffman, Marilyn Levine, Jim Melchert, Janis Provisor, Sam Richardson, Kent Roberts, Barbara Rogers, John Roloff, Cornelia Schulz, Paul Staiger, William T. Wiley.

1264. GALLERY PAULE ANGLIM

14 Geary St 94111
(415) 433-2710 Tue-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Paule Anglim
Contemporary California and American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Jay Defeo, David Hering, Jack Jefferson, Hassel Smith, Michael Todd.

Other artists represented:
Allan Adams, David Bottini, Christopher Brown, Dan Connally, Sidney Gordin, Susan Hall, Julius Hatofsky, Judith Linhares, Jack Portland.

1265. GREGORY GHENT FINE ARTS

420 Sutter St 94108
(415) 956-0626 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Gregory Ghent
Contemporary art; primitive sculpture and artifacts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Bauer, Al Farrow, Barbara Kennedy, Rand Schiltz.

1266. GRAPESTAKE GALLERY

2876 California St 94115
(415) 931-0779 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: Tom Meyer/Ursula Gropper
Contemporary painting and sculpture, 20th-century photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Herbert Bayer, Marsha Burns, Jay McCafferty, Richard Misrach, Basilious Poulos, Joel Sternfeld, Takako Yamaguchi.

Other artists represented:
Lewis Baltz, Harry Callahan, Rick Grafton, Wade Hoefer, Claude Kent, Joel Meyerowitz, Bob Nugent, Arthur Ollman, Gregg Renfrow, Eugene Sturman.

1267. GRAPHICS GALLERY

2140 Bush St 94115
(415) 921-7677 Mon-Fri 11-5, Sat by appt
Dir: R. Strauss
Prints and works on paper by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Richard Anuskiewicz, Ay-O, Jose Luis Cuevas, Sam Francis, Masuo Ikeda, Claes Oldenburg, Philip Pearlstein, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Mel Ramos, Frank Stella, William T. Wiley.

1268. GUMP'S GALLERY

250 Post St 94108
(415) 982-1616 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Helen F. Heninger
Contemporary West Coast painting, sculpture, ceramics; Indian miniatures.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ron Bosc, Barry Clinton, Richard Deutsch, Glynn Gomez, Jim Howell, Eli Karpel, Louis Macouillard, Melvin Schuler, Melissa Zink.

Other artists represented:
Ann Arnold, Martha Borge, Michael Bradley, S. Riba Burch, Kris Cox, Ralph Du Casse, Carol Fremlin, Robert Harvey, Katherine Jernberg, Marlon Malcom, Conger Metcalf, Hans Peeters, Jason Schoener, Walter Snelgrove, Bryan Wilson.

1269. HARCOURTS CONTEMPORARY

550 Powell St 94108
(415) 421-5590 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: Robert H. Ballard
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marshall Arisman*.

Other artists represented:
Alfredo A. Arreguin, Nickolas Boisvert, Jeanick Buoys, Felix De Recondo, Luis Filcer, Nick Hyde, Martin Kreloff, Carlos Loarca, Alan Munro, Leroy Parker, Woodward Payne, William Sigfried, R. Lee White.

1270. HARCOURTS GALLERY

535 Powell St 94108
(415) 421-3428 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: Fred Banks
19th-20th-century European, Latin American, American paintings, sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arik Brauer, Marc Chagall, Guillermo Granizo, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Henri Matisse, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso.

1271. HOOVER GALLERY

1681 Folsom St 94103
(415) 558-8944 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Herbert Hoover
Art of Harold Christopher Davies; American art.

Other artists represented:
Henrietta Berk, Harold Christopher Davies, Vincent Perez, Michael Von Meyer.

1272. PASQUALE IANNETTI ART GALLERIES

575 Sutter St 94102
(415) 433-2771 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Maureen Wong
16th-20th-century prints, paintings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Honore Daumier, Francisco Goya, William Hogarth.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Albrecht Dürer, Paul Cesar Helleu, Joan Miró, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Theopole Steinlen, Jacques Tissot, Henri Toulouse-Lautrec, Rembrandt Van Rijn, James McNeill Whistler.

1273. IVORY/KIMPTON GALLERY

55 Grant Ave 94108
(415) 956-6661 Tue-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sat 12-5:30
Dir: Jane Ivory/Kay Kimpton
Contemporary paintings on canvas and paper, prints, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tom Bianchi, Cheryl Bowers, Jerry Byrd, Dan Christensen, Robert Natkin, Richard Phipps, Chris Ranes, Barbara Weldon.

Other artists represented:
Lynn Bostick, Stanley Boxer, Sigrid Burton, Gary Craig, Susan Crile, Cheryl Doering, Martin Facey, Don Fels, William Gatewood, Nancy Genn, Suzanne Hanson, Richard Hennessy, Craig Henry, Linda Kallan, Jeff Long, Beverly Mayeri, Patrick Palmer, Marcea Rundquist, Harriet Shorr, Linda K. Smith, Gerald Walburg, Gary Willoughby, Steve Zoller, Larry Zox.

---

*see catalog index

1274. LA MAMELLE
PO Box 3123 Rincon Annex 94119
(415) 431-7524
Dir: Carl E. Loeffler
Presentation and documentation of video and performance art; art video collection.

1275. LAWSON GALLERIES
56 Kissling St 94103
(415) 626-1159 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Peggy Gotthold
Painting, sculpture, photography; installations by contemporary California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Alliger, Michael Carey, William De Koornbolt, James Patrick Finnegan, Mary Pacios Humphrey, Bob Laney, Judy Moran, Greg Reeder, Gerald Sisco, Andrew Steinhauer, James Vogel.

Other artists represented:
Nelda Barchers, Marcia Dalva, Ralph DuCasse, Louis Juliano, Margeaux Klein, Al Payne, Jan Siegel, Vickie Jo Sowell, Sherry Stewart, Jane Terry.

1276. LEAH LEVY GALLERY
140 20th Ave 94121
(415) 386-7962 By appt
Dir: Leah Levy
Contemporary painting, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Baum, Jim Huntington.

Other artists represented:
Marie Brumund, Rosemarie Castoro, Porfirio DiDonna, Toni Dove, Jean Glassman, Sidney Guberman, David Ireland, Karen Moss, Connie Nelson, Richard Overfield, Erik Saxon, Christopher Sproat, Nina Yankowitz.

1277. STEVEN LIEBER GALLERY
228 Grant Ave, 6th floor 94108
(415) 982-7333 Tue-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sat 12-5
Dir: Steven Lieber
19th-20th-century prints, paintings, sculpture, photography.

1278. MARSHALL-MYERS GALLERY
1177 California St 94108
(415) 922-7577 Daily 10-10
Dir: J. Weinshel/P. Myers

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anton Gintner, Kent S. Marshall.

Other artists represented:
Peter Baczek, Eleanore Bender, Helen Breger, David Gallegos, Karl Kasten, Juan Majdrakoff, Jennifer Myers, Peggy Myers, Kenjilo Nanao, Eleanor Rappe, Phyllis Taplitz, Jenny Weinshel.

1280. MAXWELL GALLERIES
551 Sutter St 94102
(415) 421-5193 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:15, Sat 11-5
Dir: Mark Hoffman/Penny Perlmutter
Turn-of-the-century European art; American art; sculpture; Western art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frederick Frieseke*.

Other artists represented:
Martin Johnson Heade, Thomas Hill, Leon L'Hermitte, Edward Potthast, Diego Rivera, Joseph Sharp, Maurice de Vlaminck.

1281. MEXICAN MUSEUM
Laguna and Marina Blvd 94123
(415) 441-0404 Tue-Sun 12-5, Thu 5-8
Dir: Peter Rodriguez
Mexican and Mexican-American fine arts; colonial, Pre-Hispanic, folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfredo Arreguin, Gunther Gerzo, David Guerrero, George Lopez, Roberto Munguia, Rufino Tamayo.

Other artists represented:
Richard Rios, Daniel Salazar.

1282. MEYER BREIER WEISS
Fort Mason Building A 94123
(415) 928-2119 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Virginia Breier/Dorothy Weiss
Non-profit; clay, glass, and fiber.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philip Cornelius, David Gilhooly, Margie Hughto.

Other artists represented:
Harvey Brody, Scott Chamberlin, Richard Deutsch, Piero Fenci, Andrew Magdanz, Jay Musler, Juta Savage.

1283. MODERNISM
236 8th St 94103
(415) 552-2286 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Martin Muller
Work of modern movements: Russian Avant Garde; Bauhaus; de Stijl; Vorticism; Pop.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Max Gimblett*, Martin Myers*.

Other artists represented:
James Hayward, Cork Marcheschi, Ken Price, Mel Ramos, Erik Saxon, Peter Shire, David Simpson, Robert Slutzky, Leo Valledor, Alan Wayne.

1284. MOSS GALLERY
310 Sutter St 94108
(415) 433-7224 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Marvin Moss
Contemporary art by Latin American artists.

Other artists represented:
Rodolfo Abularach, Julio Alpuy, Felix Angel, Fernando Botero, Julio Larraz, Carlos Merida, Antonio Segui, Rufino Tamayo.

1285. MUSEO ITALO AMERICANO
678 Green St 94133
(415) 398-2660
Dir: Giuliana N. Haight
Art by Italians and Italian-Americans.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Elio Benvenuto*, John Di Paolo, Jannis Kounellis, Tom Marioni, Giacomo Patri, Domenico Purificato, Italo Scanga.

1286. JOHN PENCE GALLERY
550 Sutter St 94102
(415) 986-3937 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: John Pence
American realists, paintings, pastels, ceramics, and sculptures.

Other artists represented:
Maria Alquilar, Michael Bergt, Donald Davis, Robert Devoe, Judith Godwin, Robert Gove, Donald Jurney, J. F. Koenig, Robert Maione, Jacques Maroger, Frank Mason, Melvin Miller, Lionel Picker, Kirk St. Mauf, Edward D. Walker, Douglas Fenn Wilson, Paul Wilson, Will Wilson.

1287. QUAY GALLERY
254 Sutter St 94108
(415) 421-1958 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Rena Branstein
Contemporary art emphasizing clay sculpture and Bay Area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joy Broom, Dennis Gallagher, Oliver Jackson*, Joan Moment, Ron Nagle, Narcissus Quagliata, Elsa Rady, Betye Saar, Peter Vandenberge.

Other artists represented:
Jim Adamson, Ed Blackburn, Viola Frey, Judith Golden, Sam Hernandez, Ken Little, Fred Martin, Michael Peed, Tom Rippon, Joanne Rruff, M. Louise Stanley, Chris Unterseher.

1288. DANA REICH GALLERY
278 Post St 94108
(415) 433-2525 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Dana Reich
Emerging California painters and sculptors.

Other artists represented:
Von Eisenhardt, James Elaine, June Felter, Barbara Friedman, Vicki Goorman, Keith Hendricks, Patrick Humble, George Lloyd, Michael Mastrogiacomo, Mark McCloud, William Morehouse, Bob Murray, John Parmer, Margaret Rinkovsky, Lyn Rose.

1289. SAN FRANCISCO ART INSTITUTE
Atholl McBean Gallery
800 Chestnut St 94133
(415) 771-7020 Tue-Sat 10-5
Contemporary art, paintings, works on paper, sculpture, film, video, installations, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Pinchas Cohen Gan*, Sam Tchakalian, Al Wong.

1290. SAN FRANCISCO ART INSTITUTE
Emanuel Walter Gallery
800 Chestnut St 94133
(415) 771-7020 Tue-Sat 10-5
Contemporary art in static and non-static mediums; painting, works on paper, sculpture, film, video, installations, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Pinchas Cohen Gan*, Phillip Galgiani, John Roloff, Sam Tchakalian.

1291. SAN FRANCISCO MUSEUM OF MODERN ART
Van Ness Ave at McAllister St 94102
(415) 863-8800
Dir: Henry T. Hopkins
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, ceramics; California artists; Avant-Garde German and other photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams*, Mark Boyle, Alberto Burri, Henri Cartier-Bresson*, Robert Graham*, John Hagemeyer*, Nicholas Hondrogen, Wasilly Kandinsky*, Christopher Lane.

1292. SAN FRANCISCO MUSEUM OF MODERN ART
Rental Gallery
Fort Mason 94123
(415) 441-4777 Tue-Sat 11:30-5:30
Dir: Sally Lilienthal/Marian Parmenter
Changing exhibitions of Bay Area and California emerging artists; painting, sculpture.

1293. WILLIAM SAWYER GALLERY
3045 Clay St 94115
(415) 921-1600 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: William Sawyer
Contemporary painting, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Dailey, William Dole, Christopher Gerlach, Jeff Griffeath, Bryan Harrington, Ann Hogle, Setsko Karasuda, Robert Kehlmann, Louise McGinley, Thomas Pomatti, John Rise, Barbara Spring, Lynne Woods Turner.

Other artists represented:
Suzanne Newman Anderson, Guy John Cavalli, Willard Dixon, George Dombek, Tom Foolery, Patricia Tobacco Forrester, Marilyn Halevi, Allen Harrison, Gus Heinze, David Izu, Ida Kohlmeyer, Gary Kuroda, Peter Loftus, Michael S. Moore, Richard Schloss, Connie Smith Siegel.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1294. SELMA FINE ART
78 1st St 94105
(415) 495–7997 By appt
Dir: Sara Henderson
Limited fine art editions; contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Gary Lichtenstein.

1295. SOKER-KASEMAN GALLERY
1457 Grant Ave 94133
(415) 989–6452 Tue–Sat 12–6
Dir: Don Soker
Works on paper, graphics; Japanese artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michi Itami, Kunito Nagaoka*, Kaoru Ogura.

Other artists represented:
Shoichi Ida, Shigeki Kuroda, Helmtrud Nystrom, Shane Weare.

1296. SOURCE GALLERY
1099 Folsom St 94103
(415) 621–0545 Mon–Fri 9–5:30, Sat 11–4:30; By appt
Dir: Toni Danzig
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings and graphics, primarily by West Coast artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Sohigian, Jeff Whyman.

Other artists represented:
Bertha Bonart, Frank Carmelitano, Mark Erickson, Amy Goldman, Phyllis Hammond, John Keppleman, Jerome Kirk, David Kraisler, Phillip Levine, Ken Morrow, Michael Phleger, Joan Savo, Marko Spalatin, Lou Storey, Anita Tortorici, Thomas Wooldridge.

1297. WILL STONE COLLECTION
560 Sutter St 94102
(415) 956–2133 Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Will Stone
Fantastic realism, surrealism, figurative, California visionary art.

1298. JEREMY STONE GALLERY
126 Post St 94108
(415) 398–6535 Tue–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Jeremy Stone
20th-century art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Sheehan.

Other artists represented:
Chris Van Allsburg, Carlos Almaraz, Victor A. Cohen-Stuart, Richard Estes, Judith Foosaner, James Grashow, Susan Hauptman, Jeff Hull, Alan Hunter, Deborah Kamy, Kevin Kearney, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Sylvia Lark, Rooney O'Neil, Heidi Siebel, Wayne Thiebaud, James Watkinson.

1299. THACKREY AND ROBERTSON
2266 Union St 94123
(415) 567–4842 Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Sean H. Thackrey/Sally Robertson
19th- and 20th-century photography, prints, and drawings; Japonisme.

Other artists represented:
Julia Margaret Cameron, Peter Henry Emerson, Hamish Fulton, David Goines.

1300. TRANSAMERICA PYRAMID GALLERY
600 Montgomery St 94111
(415) 552–1734 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Linda E. Evans
Lobby of Transamerica Pyramid building; exhibitions organized by Art Programs, Inc.

1301. TRIANGLE GALLERY
95 Minna St 94105
(415) 777–2710 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Jack Van Hiele
Contemporary American, Japanese, Chinese, Mexican artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joel Barletta, Douglas Holmes, Michael Kennedy, Kek Tee Lim, John E. McCormick, Jim Ochman, Gustavo Rivera, Joseph Romano, Louis Siegriest, Nancy Steele, Kaoru Ueda.

Other artists represented:
Masaki Asaoka, Jack Carrigg, Helen Coleman, John Cook, Chung-ray Fong, Steve Gillman, Taro Ichihashi, Ban Kajitani, Masando Kito, Tatsuo Kondo, Richard Lacroix, Carl Morris, Hilda Morris, Toshiyasu Oi, James Prestini, Soichiro Tomioka.

1302. VORPAL GALLERY
393 Grove St 94102
(415) 397–9200 Daily 11–6
Dir: Muldoon Elder
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints; primitive art.

Other artists represented:
Jesse Allen, Bijan Bahar, Krista Collins, John Denning, Warren Dreher, M.C. Escher, Reimund Franke, Katherine Hagstrum, Yozo Hamaguchi, Robert Holmes, Jack Hooper, Carlie Jimenez, Ivan Kustura, H.G. Pavlata, Gary Smith, Luis Solari, Andy Wing.

1303. WALTON - GILBERT GALLERIES
420 Sutter St 94108
(415) 891–8185 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sat 10–5
Dir: Harris Stewart
19th- and 20th-century graphics, sculpture; 19th-century French posters.

Other artists represented:
Erwin Binder, Marc Chagall, R.C. Gorman, John Mills, Pablo Picasso, Jean-Louis Vergne.

1304. DANIEL WEINBERG GALLERY
2140 Bush St 94115
(415) 563–1620 Wed–Sat 11–5
Dir: Gary Carson
Contemporary American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Humphrey, Bryan Hunt, Barry Le Va, Judy Rifka, Harry Roseman, Julian Schnabel, Gary Stephan.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, James Bishop, Mel Bochner, Scott Burton, R. M. Fischer, Donald Judd, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mangold, Robert Moskowitz, Italo Scanga, Joel Shapiro, Donald Sultan, James Surls.

1305. JAMES WILLIS GALLERY
109 Geary 94108
(415) 989–4485 Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: James Willis/Jean De Tevis
African, Oceanic, and Indonesian art.

1306. STEPHEN WIRTZ GALLERY
345 Sutter St 94108
(415) 433–6879 Tue–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Stephen Wirtz
Post-1945 West Coast and European painting, sculpture, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Miyasaki, Gianfranco Pardi, Jock/Suzanne Reynolds/Hellmuth, Raymond Saunders, Sandra Shannonhouse, Alan Shepp*, Daniel Wiener, Robert Wilhite.

Other artists represented:
Richard Avedon, Harold Edgerton, Marc Katano, Michael Kenna, Gyorgy Kepes, Pat Klein, Scott Newkirk, Ira Nowinski, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Antoni Tapies, Sam Tchakalian.

San Jose

1307. SAN JOSE MUSEUM OF ART
110 S Market St 95113
(408) 294–2787 Tue–Sat 10–4:30, Sun 12–4
Dir: Russel Moore
American painting and prints; California artists; Dorothy Liebes textile collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Beattie, George Bellows, Fletcher Benton, Sheila Elias, Bella Feldman, Rick Grafton, Eric Hoffman, Alan Magee, Barry Masteller, Barbara Rees, Sam Richardson, E. Voelker, Don Williams.

1308. SAN JOSE STATE UNIVERSITY
Gallery I
Washington Square 95192
(408) 277–2579 Mon–Fri 11–4
Dir: Erica Kubic
Exhibitions related to academic programs; works by local and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Maryan Clayton, Joyce Treman.

1309. WORKS SAN JOSE
248 Auzerais Ave 95110
(408) 295–8378 Tue–Sat 12–4
Dir: Anna Koster
Non-profit; visual arts, performance art, films, music, poetry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Hatch, Martha McDaniels, Bill Quin, Brian Tripp.

San Marino

1310. THE HUNTINGTON LIBRARY, ART GALLERY AND BOTANICAL GARDENS
1151 Oxford Rd 91108
(213) 792–6141 Tue–Sat 1–4:30, Sun By appt
Dir: James Thorpe
British and European 18th-century and early-19th-century paintings; 18th-century French sculpture, tapestries, furniture, porcelain, and decorative objects.

Santa Ana

1311. BOWERS MUSEUM
2002 N Main St 92706
(714) 972–1900 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 12–5
Dir: William B. Lee
Pre-Columbian art of the Americas; African, Oceanic, North American Indian art; early California painting, prints; Orange County history; baskets.

Santa Barbara

1312. CONTEMPORARY ARTS FORUM
7 W De La Guerra St 93101
(805) 966–5373 Wed–Sun 12–5
Dir: Mona W. Kwan
Non-profit. Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, installation, performance, video, music, film, and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Victor Cohen-Stuart, Raul Guerrero, John Okulick, Peter Shelton, Susan Vogel, William T. Wiley.

1313. ELIZABETH FORTNER
1114 State St 93101
(805) 966–2613 Mon–Sat 10:30–5:30, Sun 1–4
Dir: Elizabeth Fortner
Contemporary crafts.

Other artists represented:
Jim Danisch, Fritz Dreisbach, Polly Frizzell, David Gilhooly, Coille Hooven, Steve Howell, Fritzi Huber-Morrison, Janet Lever, John Lewis, Steve Maslach, Bradley Miller, William Morris, Jens Morrison, Jay Musler, Richard Royal, Juta Savage, Anne Shattuck, Brenda Wrigley, Brent Young.

---

*see catalog index

1314. JAMES M. HANSEN
27 E De La Guerra 93101
(805) 963-6827 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Alexander Harmer
19th- and early-20th-century American paintings; 18th-century furniture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alexander Harmer*, Ralph Holmes*.

Other artists represented:
Carl Oscar Borg, Colin Campbell Cooper, Gordon Coutts, John Gamble, Henry Percy Gray, Thomas Bush Hardy, Phillip Little, Thomas Luny, Walter Launt Palmer, Henry Ward Ranger.

1315. MEREDITH NILES GALLERY
1114 State St, Studio 24 93101
(805) 962-0922 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Meredith A. Niles
Contemporary sculpture and paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bruria, Donald Davis, George Goyer, Hank Pitcher, Richard Schloss, Robert Thomas, Theodore B. Villa.

Other artists represented:
Kate Delos, M. Hiroko Eejima, Chui Faising, Thekla Hathaway Hammond, Jack Hanley, Helen Noble, Reuben Ramot, Myrna Schiras, Michael Schmitt, Laura Wilkinson.

1316. SANTA BARBARA MUSEUM OF ART
1130 State St 93101
(805) 963-4364 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Richard V. West
Collections of American art, classical antiquities, European paintings and graphic arts, and Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Manuel Alvarez Bravo, Michael Ederman, Ken Hendrickson*, Katherine Kimball, Kenneth Price, Rufino Tamayo, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec*, Elizabeth Voelker, Terry Wild.

1317. RUTH S. SCHAFFNER GALLERY
128 W Ortega St 93101
(805) 966-7577 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Ruth S. Schaffner
Contemporary California and New York artists.

Other artists represented:
Herbert Bayer, Cheryl Bowers, Sam Francis, Charles Garabedian, Ken Hendrickson, George Hermes, John McCracken, Clement Meadmore, James Risser, Rick Stich, Thomas Stokes, Joan Tanner, Robert Therrien, Tom Wudl.

1318. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SANTA BARBARA
University Art Museum 93106
(805) 961-3013 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-5
Dir: J. David Farmer
American and European art; Renaissance medals; Luristan bronzes; Southern California Architectural Archives.

Santa Clara

1319. TRITON MUSEUM OF ART
1505 Warburton Ave 95050
(408) 248-4585 Tue-Fri 12-4; Sat, Sun 5
Dir: Joanne Farb Hernandez
Exhibitions focus on contemporary American and international folk and primitive art; American paintings and prints; majolica collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Arneson, Clayton Bailey*, Gratia Dolph, Willy Dull, Ralph Johnson, Kathe Keller, Alan Kikuchi-Yugojo, Donald Lipski, Jack Nielsen, Dan Rice, Stephanie Sanchez.

1320. UNIVERSITY OF SANTA CLARA
De Saisset Museum 95053
(408) 984-4528 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Brigid S. Barton
Contemporary California art; prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ruth Bernhard, Theodare Fontaine, Janis Crystal Lipzin.

Santa Cruz

1321. UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SANTA CRUZ
Sesnon Gallery, Porter College 95064
(408) 429-2314 Tue-Sun 11-5
Dir: Philip Brookman
Exhibitions used for educational purposes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doyle Foreman, Mary Ellen Mark, Raymond Saunders, Aileen M. Smith, W. Eugene Smith.

Santa Monica

1322. BOLEN GALLERY
2904 Main St 90405
(213) 399-9128 Sun-Thu 10-6; Fri, Sat 10-11
Dir: John Bolen/Lynne Bolen
19th- and 20th-century American painting, sculpture, and drawing; print publisher.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roger Medearis, Florence Putterman, Arthur Secunda.

Other artists represented:
Kalman Aron, Thomas Hart Benton, John Stewart Curry, Susan Logan, William Wolfson, Grant Wood.

1323. INDIA INK GALLERY
1231 4th St 90401
(213) 393-2392 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Joan P. Miller/Marvin Walowitz
Contemporary works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henry Evans, David Lance Goines, John Phelan.

Other artists represented:
Ed Baynard, Richard Crawford, Art Curtis, Gene Holtan, Dan May, David Mekelburg, Peter Milton, Sharleen Pederson, Paul Rangell, Masha Schweitzer, Ross Van Dusen, Beth Van Hoesen, Stan Washburn, Zarina.

1324. MIRAGE/KARL BORNSTEIN GALLERY
1662 12th St 90404
(213) 450-1129 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Lucinda Barnes
West Coast contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Kim Abeles, Jeffrey Bishop, Joan Ross Bloedel, Bruce Dean, Jean Edelstein, Merion Estes, Walter Gabrielson, William Gatewood, Candace Gawne, George Geyer, Larry Gray, Christian Heckscher, Laurel Huggins, Tom Jenkins, Leonard Koscianski, Michael Levine, Jack Lillis, Arnold Mesches, Ellen Tuchman.

1325. TORTUE GALLERY
2917 Santa Monica Blvd 90404
(213) 828-8878 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Mallory Freeman
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Altoon, Stephen DeStaebler, Martin Facey, Robbert Flick, Allen Harrison, Patsy Krebs, Richard Pettibone, Gregg Renfrow, Peter Saari, David Schirm, Stephen Seemayer, Michael Todd, Joyce Treiman.

Other artists represented:
Daniel Douke, Edie Ellis, Claire Falkenstein, Patrick Hogan, Alden Mason, Jim Morphesis, Robert Natkin, Shirley Pettibone.

Sherman Oaks

1326. MARTIN LAWRENCE GALLERIES
15301 Ventura Blvd 91403
(213) 783-2410 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Dennis Weiss
Contemporary art; graphics.

Other artists represented:
Valerio Adami, Yaacov Agam, Salvador Dali, Yankel Ginzburg, Aldo Luongo, Serrier, Hiro Yamagata.

1327. ORLANDO GALLERY
14553 Ventura Blvd 91403
(213) 789-6012 Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Philip Orlando/Robert Gino R.
Contemporary painting, drawing, sculpture, photography; primitive art.

Other artists represented:
Richard Adkins, Lucy Anderson, Susan Clover, Ted Echt, Kyoko Asana Foley, Marilyn Groch, Bob Haas, Bezhad Haghiri, Pat Helmuth, Kathy Howe, Walt Impert, George James, Bill Jehle, Laura Josephson, Caroline Kent, Steve Kingman, Gabe Kreiswirth, Don Lagerberg, Michael Lloyd, John Millei, Philip Orlando, Terrence Osmond, Bob Partin, Leo Robinson, Richard Ralph Roehl, Susan Santiago, Linda Stevens, Bonese Turner, Ernest Velardi, Jose Vaz Vieira, Lynne Westmore, David Whalen, Joyce Wisdom.

Solvang

1328. COPENHAGEN GALLERIA
1618 Copenhagen Dr 93463
(805) 688-4422 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Tina Sadovsky
19th-century European old master; contemporary American and Western painting, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andre Andreoli, Chuck Dehaan, Yasu Eguchi*, Nicholas Firfires, Ahmet Nurai*, Harrison Rucker.

Other artists represented:
Peter Ellenshaw, Manes Lichtenberg, William F. Reece, Oscar Van Young.

South Pasadena

1329. ANNETTE COUCH FINE ARTS
355 Camino Verde 91030
(213) 258-5462 By appt
Dir: Annette Couch
19th-20th-century European, American, and Mexican art.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Joan Miró, Georgia O'Keeffe, Pablo Picasso, Fritz Scholder, Frank Stella, Rufino Tamayo, R. Lee White, Francisco Zuniga.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Stanford

1330. STANFORD UNIVERSITY
Museum of Art
Lomita Dr and Museum Way 94305
(415) 497-4177 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Lorenz Eitner
Ancient-20th-century art including Oriental, African, and Pre-Columbian; post-Renaissance European paintings, drawing, prints, and photographs; Rodin; Stanford family memorabilia.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kristina Branch, Harry Callahan, Paul Harris, Gwen John, Joel Leivick, Katherine Porter, Rex Slinkard, Laura Volkerding.

Stinson Beach

1331. ANNA GARDNER GALLERY
3445 Shoreline Hwy 94970
(415) 868-0414 Fri-Sun 1-5
Dir: Anna Gardner
Ceramics, paintings, sculpture, and mixed mediums by Bay Area artists.

Other artists represented:
Maria Alquilar, Clayton Bailey, David Best, Joanne Burstein, Carl Dern, Robert Dix, Diane Flyr, Lucy Hamilton, Jack Hanley, Karen Jean Jenkins, Clay Jensen, Margaret Keelan, Susan Keizer, John La Francesca, Art Nelson, Jon Nelson, Deborah Oropallo, Paula Pence, Maggie Roth, Inez Storer, Stan Welsh, Ruth Zacherle.

Tahoe City

1332. LAKE GALLERY
PO Box 7470 95730
(916) 583-1002 Daily 10-5
Dir: M. J. Marshman
Contemporary graphics, paintings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Guillaume Azoulay, Enrico Embroli, Jim Gale, Jean Guay, David Herschler, William Jahnke, Aldo Luongo, Joe Pausek, Amado Pena, Chris Ranes, Alice Valdez.

Thousand Oaks

1333. CONEJO VALLEY ART MUSEUM
197 N Moorpark Rd 91360
(805) 495-3253 Wed-Sun 12-5
Dir: Loretta Rubin
Contemporary and folk art.

Van Nuys

1334. LOS ANGELES VALLEY COLLEGE
Art Gallery
5800 Fulton Ave 91401
(213) 781-1200 ext 400 Sep-May Mon-Thu 1-3, 7-9
Dir: Dennis Reed
Contemporary, historical, and ethnic art in all mediums; faculty and student exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carol Caroompas, Don Knaack, Rachel Rosenthal, Gustav Stickley, Judy Von Euer, John White.

Venice

1335. FLOW ACE GALLERY
185 Windward Ave 90291
(213) 392-4931 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Douglas Chrismas
American and European contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Guy Dill, Sam Francis, Dominique Gauthier, Michael Heizer, Richard Long, Mario Merz, Robert Rauschenberg, Klaus Rinke, Edward Ruscha, Robert Therrien, Claude Viallat.

Other artists represented:
Carl Andre, Joseph Beuys, Jonathan Borofsky, Mark di Suvero, Dan Flavin, Jene Highstein, David Hockney, Jasper Johns, Cletus Johnson, Donald Judd, Ellsworth Kelly, Robert Mangold, Bruce Nauman, Claes Oldenburg, Mimmo Paladino, Roland Reiss, George Segal, Richard Serra, Michael Snow, Jean Tinguely, Cy Twombly.

1336. LONNY GANS
21 Market St 90291
(213) 392-8686 Mon-Fri 9:30-5
Dir: Lonny Gans
Corpotate and private collections; acquisitions, investments.

1337. L. A. LOUVER GALLERIES
55 N Venice Blvd 90291
(213) 392-8695 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: P. Goulds/J. McCarron
Contemporary original graphic works by American and European artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tony Berlant, George Herms, David Hockney, K. H. Hödicke, Robert Janz, Leon Kossoff, Sandra Mendelsohn Rubin, Rick Stich, Don Suggs.

Other artists represented:
Larry Bell, Wallace Berman, William Brice, Max Cole, Charles Garabedian, Michael Goldberg, Fredrick Hammersley, Jene Highstein, Edward Kienholz, Nancy Reddin Kienholz, Loren Madsen, Richard Shaffer, Tom Wudl.

1338. L. A. LOUVER GALLERY
77 Market St 90291
(213) 392-8695 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: P. Goulds/J. McCarron
Painting and sculpture by American and European contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tony Berlant, George Herms, David Hockney, K. H. Hödicke, Robert Janz, Leon Kossoff, Sandra Mendelsohn Rubin, Rick Stich, Don Suggs.

Other artists represented:
Larry Bell, Wallace Berman, William Brice, Max Cole, Charles Garabedian, Michael Goldberg, Fredrick Hammersley, Jene Highstein, Edward Kienholz, Nancy Reddin Kienholz, Loren Madsen, Richard Shaffer, Tom Wudl.

1339. MALINDA WYATT GALLERY
76 Market St 90291
(213) 399-9188 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Malinda Wyatt
Environmental installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jo Harvey Allen, Lisa Ferrante, Susan Kaiser Vogel, DeWain Valentine.

Other artists represented:
Stephen Davis, Channa Horwitz, Robert Irwin, Peter Shelton, Bernar Venet.

Dirck de Horne: Still Life; in the permanent collection of The High Museum of Art, Atlanta.

Walnut Creek

1340. WALNUT CREEK CIVIC ARTS GALLERY
1641 Locust St 94596
(415) 943-5866 Tue-Sun 12-5; Fri, Sat 7:30-9:30
Dir: Carl Worth
Contemporary art in all mediums; regional emphasis.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Clayton Bailey, Stephanie Weber.

Other artists represented:
David Bottini, Michael Carey, Richard Feese, Bella Feldman, Kathy Goodell, Dorothy Reed, Louis Siegriest, Lundy Siegriest, Terry St. John, Michael Stevens, Hunter Wallof, Boyd Wright, Jack Zajack.

Colorado

Applewood

1341. APPLEWOOD ART GALLERY
12975 W 24 Pl 80401
(303) 237-0033 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Janet Welch/Wayne Welch
American and Colorado artists.

Aspen

1342. ASPEN CENTER FOR THE VISUAL ARTS
590 N Mill St 81611
(303) 925-8050 Tue-Sun 12-6, Thu 12-8
Dir: Laurel Jones
National and regional art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Caleb Bach, John DeAndrea, Peter Lodato, Paul Sarkisian, Sam Weiner, Bill Westheimer.

*see catalog index

Aurora

1343. JAMES ROBISCHON CONTEMPORARY ART
13570 E Quincy Ave 80015
(303) 695–0123/690–2754 By appt
Dir: James Robischon
Contemporary art in all mediums by regional and American artists.

Other artists represented:
Dan Allison, Garo Antreasian, Lee Bergwall, Jill Englebardt, Russell Hamilton, Charles Bill Hayes, Christi Honigman, Diane Huntress, Luis Jimenez, Sandy Kinnee, Clinton Kline, Linda Foster Leonhard, Earl Linderman, Lindy Lyman, Betsy Margolius, Ron McClure, Mark McIntyre, Fran Metzger, G. E. Moore, Michael Pedziwiatr, Georgia Sartoris, Linda Stein, Mary Sweet.

Boulder

1344. BOULDER CENTER FOR THE VISUAL ARTS
1750 13th St 80302
(303) 443–2122 Tue–Sat 11–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Karen Hodge
Non-profit; contemporary art, performances, educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Clark Richert.

1345. ECLIPSE PHOTOGRAPHICS
2012 10th St 80302
(303) 443–9790 Tue–Sat 9–5:30
Dir: Martin Sugg
20th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Paul Caponigro, William Clift, Marc Allen Feldman, Eliot Porter, Meridel Rubenstein, John Ward.

1346. PIVAN GALLERY
1911 11th St 80302
Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Jan Pivan Sturgeon
Contemporary Southwestern art.

Other artists represented:
Lenore Beran, Joyce Coca, Betty DeMaree, Tom Dickson, JoAnn Dufty, Serene Flax, Loreta Greenfield, Ken Harbaugh, Eli Karpel, Alfred Lee, Lee Shapiro, Suzanne St. John, Zoltan Szabo, Jason Williamson.

1347. UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO
University Memorial Center Gallery
Box 204 80309
(303) 492–7465 Mon–Thu 9–9, Fri 9–5
Dir: Judith Thorpe
Contemporary photography, painting, sculpture, printmaking, and drawing with emphasis on regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Holly Arrow, Susan Brenner, Robbi Hart, Evalyn Hickman, Lou Marcus, Janau Noerdlinger, Larry Sultan.

1348. UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO ART GALLERIES
Sibell-Wolle Fine Arts Building, Box 318 80309
(303) 492–8300 Daily 10–4
Dir: Jean-Edith Weiffenbach
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eric Fischl, April Gornik, Robert Kushner, Ed McGowin, Jody Pinto.

Breckenridge

1349. BRECKENRIDGE GALLERIES
121 S Main St 80424
(303) 453–2592 Daily 10–5
Dir: Gary Freese
Contemporary Southwestern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Axton, Dane Clark, Katalin Ehling, Frank Howell, Richard D. Thomas, Veloy Vigil.

Colorado Springs

1350. COLORADO SPRINGS FINE ART CENTER
30 W Dale 80903
(303) 634–5581 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1:30–5
Dir: Paul Piazza
Southwestern Spanish colonial, Native American art; Western American painting, sculpture, graphics, drawing.

Denver

1351. ARCTIC ART GALLERY
2817 E Third Ave 80206
(303) 320–0469 Mon–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Brigitte Schluger
Antique and contemporary Eskimo sculpture; graphics; masks, baskets, and dolls.

1352. ART RESOURCES
1825 Blake St 80202
(303) 297–0424 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Lori Youngquist/Carol Levin
Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and California artists; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Mell.

Other artists represented:
Beth Ames-Swartz, Douglas Dawson, John Doyle, Larry Gray, Merrill Mahaffey, Frank McCulloch, Carol Pettit, Joy Rushfelt, Tim Saska, Mary Jane Schmidt, Gary Slater, Robert Smith, Veloy Vigil, Susan West, Janell Wicht, Masmoud Yasami.

1353. AURARIA HIGHER EDUCATION CENTER
Emmanuel Gallery/Library Gallery
10th & Lawrence Sts 80204
(303) 629–8337/629–3291 Mon–Fri 11–4
Dir: Carol Keller
Faculty and student work from several area colleges; loan exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mel Carter, Sally Elliott, Deborah Jang, Steve Kaltenbach.

1354. BRENA GALLERY
313 Detroit St 80206
(303) 388–1498 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Rena B. Lifton
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, fiber, and ceramics.

Other artists represented:
Gene Bauinger, Les Bruning, Ken Goehring, Janet Lippincott, Barbara Locketz, John Mansfield, Gene Matthews, Wanda Miller Matthews, Frank Sampson, Iren Schio, Annalee Schorr, Vasa, Peter Vought.

1355. CAMERA OBSCURA GALLERY
1309 Bannock St 80204
(303) 623–4059 Mon–Sat 10–6, Sun 1–5
Dir: Hal Gould
Contemporary and vintage photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Chester, Beaumont Newhall, Eva Rubinstein, Willard Van Dyke.

Other artists represented:
Howard Bond, Judy Dater, Ernest Knee.

1356. CARSON GALLERY OF WESTERN AMERICAN ART
730 17th St 80202
(303) 573–5938 Mon–Fri 10–5, Sat 10–3
Dir: Thomas J. Carson
Traditional American art.

Other artists represented:
James Disney, Bev Doolittle, Peter Fillerup, Una Hanbury, Paul Mattson, Caroline Norton, Susan Grant Raymond, Clifford Sanderson, John Schoenherr, Tucker Smith, Mort Solberg, Daniel Sprick, Kent Ullberg, Rygh Westby, Hollis Williford, Charles Wysocki.

1357. CARSON-SAPIRO GALLERY AND ART CONSULTANTS
2601 Blake St 80205
(303) 297–8585 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Tina Scatuorchio
Contemporary regional and national painting, sculpture, photography, fiber, glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dorothea Cheney.

Other artists represented:
Doug Atwill, Javan Bayer, Richard Carter, Dale Chihuly, Dan Christensen, Ruffin Cooper, Susan Crile, Anne Currier, Luis Eades, Carl Gliko, Robert Gratiot, Dick Jemison, Armond Lara, Michelle Lester, Bonny Lhotka, Elaine Lustig-Cohen, Alden Mason, Fran Metzger, Forrest Moses, Flora Natapoff, Ed Oppenheimer, Jim Pink, Steven Rand, Bill Shepherd, Mary Warner.

1358. COLORADO INSTITUTE OF ART GALLERY
200 E 9th Ave 80203
(303) 837–0825 Mon–Fri 8–5
Group shows of fine and applied art.

1359. COLORADO PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTS CENTER
1730 Gaylord St 80206
(303) 321–4163
Dir: Glenn Cuerden
Photography.

1360. DE COLORES ART GALLERY
2817 E 3rd Ave 80206
(303) 388–1621 Mon–Sat 10–5
Dir: Marsha Getto
Works in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Ron Barsano, Bob Certo, Gayle Crites, Tom Dickson, Stan Eckman, Jay Eighmy, Fred Fellows, Gerald Fritzler, Gene Hamby, Don Hamilton, Doug Higgins, William Hoelzer, Kent Lemon, Leon Loughridge, Joan Marron, Len McCann, Gerald Merfeld, Brian Niebauer, Dan Ostermiller, Dennis Pendleton, Dora Perry, Allen Polt, Kevin Red Star, Kurt Schoelzel, Mick Shimoneck, Tim Stortz, Tom Talbot, Jim Taylor, Dee Toscano, Bob Vaughn.

1361. DENVER ART MUSEUM
100 W 14th Ave Pkwy 80204
(303) 575–2794 Tue–Sat 10–4:30, Wed 10–8, Sun 1–5
Dir: Thomas N. Maytham
Native arts of the Americas; Spanish Colonial, European, Asian, contemporary art; textiles, costumes.

1362. DRISCOL GALLERY
555 17th St 80202
(303) 623–5520 Daily 10–5:30
Dir: Pam Driscol/Deane Knox
Art of the Southwest; bronze sculptures.

Other artists represented:
Gerald Balciar, Rick Brogan, Dane Clark, Robert Daughters, Glenna Goodacre, Veryl Goodnight, George Lundeen, Sandy Scott, Dee Toscano, Fritz White.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1363. GALLERY CJS
3133 E 3rd Ave 80206
(303) 333-1559 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: C. Wagner/J. Oberfield/S. Polger
International contemporary art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
James Coignard, Sue Rusk, Skynear.

1364. GALLERY 609
609 E Speer Blvd 80203
(303) 733-3432 Tue-Fri 10-2, Sat 10-12
Dir: Donna Tuskind
Late 19th- and early-20th-century artists; Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Oskar Fischinger*.

Other artists represented:
Fernand Leger, Pablo Picasso, Yves Tanguy, J. M. W. Turner.

1365. GROVER GALLERY
250 Fillmore St 80206
(303) 377-0095 Daily 10-5
Dir: Margaret Grover
American and European prints.

Other artists represented:
Marsha Immerman, Audrey Grendahl Kuhn, Lee Milmon, James Rizzi.

1366. GRYPHON GALLERIES
2440 E 3rd Ave 80206
(303) 322-0863 Mon-Tue 10-6, Thu-Sat 10-6
Dir: Skip Natzmer
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints, Egyptian tapestries, and ceramics.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Charley Brown, Robert Ellis, Mark Kiryluk, Mel Kishner, Weyman Lew, Deborah Remington.

1367. HILLS GALLERY
3113 E 3rd Ave 80206
(303) 320-0729 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: David K. Hills
Contemporary photography.

Other artists represented:
William Abronowicz, David Avison, Jim Bones, Manuel Alvarez Bravo, Rusty Culp, Frank Hunter, George Krause, Bank Langmore, David Rathbun, Charles Roitz, Karen Strom, Steve Strom, George Tice, John Ward, Brett Weston, Cole Weston, Ray Whiting, Harry Wilks, Ron Wohlauer, Myron Wood.

1368. INKFISH GALLERY
1810 Market St 80202
(303) 297-0122 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Paul Hughes/Nancy Hughes
Contemporary painting, sculpture, prints; Colorado artists.

Other artists represented:
Robert Behrens, John Berland, Don Coen, Susan Cooper, James Day, Mark Dickson, Virginia DuBrucq, Elissa Greisz, Sqndra Kaplan, Jeffrey Keith, Vance Kirkland, Stanley Marcus, Charles Parson, Lee Simpson, Joe Snyder, Susan West, Dave Yust.

1369. C. G. REIN GALLERIES
2827 E 3rd Ave 80206
(303) 399-1942 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Suzanne Koski
See C. G. Rein Galleries: Scottsdale, AZ and Edina, MN.

1370. ROSENSTOCK ARTS
1228 E Colfax Ave 80218
(303) 832-7190 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Stephen L. Good
Paintings by Taos Society; older Western and Southwestern artists.

Other artists represented:
Bob Barlow, Kang Cho.

1371. SEBASTIAN-MOORE GALLERY
1411 Market St 80202
(303) 534-5659 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-5
Dir: Christy Sebastian/Mimi Moore
Contemporary regional and national art.

Other artists represented:
Joe Baker, Larry Bell, Robert Bourdon, Carol Kapelow Brown, Herb Elsky, Linda Fleming, Patricia Tobacco Forrester, Bill Hayes, Carolyn Hoyle, Luis Jimenez, Aaron Karp, Sandy Kinnee, Jerry Kunkel, Elaine Langerman, Reg Loving, Virginia Maitland, Gordon Mansell, Elizabeth McKinne, Mary Obering, Patrick Palmer, Joseph Piccillo, Zachariah Rieke, Meridel Rubenstein, Sam Scott, Roger Shimomura, Frank Anthony Smith, Andrew Taylor, Jerry West, George Woodman.

1372. SPARK GALLERY
3300 Osage 80211
(303) 477-6782 Sat-Sun 12-5
Dir: Suzy Roesler
Cooperative gallery; exhibitions curated by members; performance, video, audio, film.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Baer, Paula Crane, Marilyn Duke, Sally Elliott, John Fudge, Paul Gillis, Erick Johnson, Ron Judish, June Julian, Andy Libertone, Marcia Marfia, Marilyn Nelson, Margret Neuman, Patricia Ortiz, Clark Richert, Suzy Roesler, Jerry Rosenthal, Ted Thomas, Carol Weil, George Woodman.

1373. TURNER MUSEUM
773 Downing St 80218
(303) 832-0924 Sun 1-6 and by appt
Dir: Douglas J. M. Graham
Works of J.M.W. Turner and Thomas Moran exclusively.

1374. UNIVERSITY OF DENVER
School of Art Gallery
2121 E Asbury 80208
(303) 753-2846 Daily 1-4
Dir: Mel Strawn
Contemporary sculpture, photography, paintings, prints, ceramics. Student and faculty shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Brian Dreith, R. Edward Lowe, Gordon Mansell, Michael Meyers, Richard Miles, Pauline Praud, Carmon Slater, Cal Sparks.

Fort Collins

1375. COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY
Center Gallery 80523
(303) 491-6626 Variable hours
Dir: Miriam B. Harris
Faculty, student and guest artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Garretson, Roy Lichtenstein*, James Rosenquist*, Randy Wassel.

1376. COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY
Hatton Gallery
Visual Arts Building 80523
(303) 491-7634 Mon-Fri 8:30-4:30
Dir: Peter Jacobs
Educational exhibitions; contemporary works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy Lichtenstein*, James Rosenquist*.

Georgetown

1377. SAXON MOUNTAIN GALLERY
406 6th Ave 80444
(303) 569-3186/674-0353 Daily 10-6
Dir: Rick Adams
Painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Rick Adams, Bill Alexander, Bob Barber, Carole Barnes, Rick Brogan, Joe Campbell, Chester Comstock, Carl Dalio, Pat Denton, Stan Dudek, Neva Fischer, Arlette Gosieski, David Gregory, Michael Gress, Mary Hoeksema, Mary Ellen Honsaker, Patrick Howe, Sharon Hults, Joe Kinkel, Bonnie L'Hotka, Pat Morse, John Neff, Jean O'Brien, Rob O'Dell, Walter Parke, Judith Pierce, Linda Roberts, Judy Snow, Alan Snyder, Carole Snyder, B.J. Stych, Dorothy Talbott, Sue Wise, Susan Zabinski.

Golden

1378. FOOTHILLS ART CENTER
809 15th St 80401
(303) 279-3922 Mon-Sat 9-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Marian Metsopoulos
Non-profit; shows, classes, juried exhibitions of regional and national work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Virginia Burwell, Sue Daniel, Linda Elinoff, Randy Galloway, Liz Johnson, Darlis Lamb, Liz Louis, Toby Meyer, Leigh Ann Sappey, Rakel Sayre, Jay Seale, Nancy Smith, Diane Totten, Jane Troyer, Cynthia Tolka Weinberg, Paula Chandler Wells, Gene Youngmann.

Grand Junction

1379. FRAMEWORKS
309 Main St 81501
(303) 243-7074 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30; Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Michael Gibbs
Contemporary local and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dave Davis, Charles Hardy, Jac Kephart.

Other artists represented:
Michael Gibbs, L. H. Pye.

Littleton

1380. ARAPAHOE COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Colorado Gallery of the Arts
5900 S Santa Fe 80120
(303) 797-5650 Mon, Wed, Fri 1-5; Thu 5-9, Sat 10-2
Dir: Sally L. Perisho
Traveling exhibitions; regional and national arts.

Loveland

1381. ANDERSON & ANDERSON/MASTER PRINTS & DRAWINGS
525 N Garfield Ave 80537
(303) 669-2122 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Hugo Anderson
19th- and 20th-century prints and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Auguste Brouet*, George Carlson*, Jay Eighmy, Conrad Obrien-ffrench*, Chauncey Foster Ryder*.

Other artists represented:
Sigmund Abeles, Federico Castellon, Robert Ecker, Anna Gola, Wanda Miller Mathews.

---

*see catalog index

Mt. Crested Butte

1382. JAMES MARKS GALLERY
The Mall at Crested Mountain 81225
(303) 349-2121 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: James Marks
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Steve Allely, Greg Beecham, Tom Beecham, Betty Billups, Chris Blossom, Dave Blossom, Mike Curtis, John Duillo, Geoffrey Geary, Charles Gehm, Robert Heindel, Simonne Hulett, Milt Kobayashi, Skip Liepke, Mara McAfee, James N. Muir, Al Ponte, Jim Pugh, Ed Reilly, Harrison Rucker, Don Spaulding, Walt Spitzmiller, Tom Talbot, Jim Triggs, Don Troiani, Ron Tunison, Ed Valigursky, Leonard Wren.

Pueblo

1383. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN COLORADO
University Gallery 81001
(303) 549-2109 Mon-Fri 1-4
Dir: Robert Hench
Cultural center; Southwest textiles, ceramics, baskets; collection: prints, drawings, Huichol Indian works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Sajbel.

Vail

1384. DRISCOL GALLERY
100 E Meadow Drive 81657
(303) 476-5171 Daily 11-9
Dir: Deane Knox/Chuck Whitehouse
Art of the Southwest; bronze sculptures.

Other artists represented:
Gerald Balciar, Rick Brogan, Dane Clark, Robert Daughters, Glenna Goodacre, Veryl Goodnight, George Lundeen, Sandy Scott, Dee Toscano, Fritz White.

Connecticut

Avon

1385. FARMINGTON VALLEY ARTS CENTER
Fisher Gallery
Avon Park N 06001
(203) 678-1867 Tue-Sat 11-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Betty Friedman
Contemporary art and crafts in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Leslye Alexander, Susan Crawford, Susan Hoffman Fishman, Betty Gerich, Ann Kresge, Michael Mastranardi, Virginia Murray, Gary Paul, Barbara Staepelaere, Marianne Swittlinger.

Bridgeport

1386. HOUSATONIC COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Housatonic Museum of Art
510 Barnum Ave 06608
(203) 579-6727 Mon-Thu 8-10, Fri 8-4
Dir: Burt Chernow
19th-20th-century American and European art; ethnography.

1387. MUSEUM OF ART, SCIENCE & INDUSTRY
4450 Park Ave 06604
(203) 372-3521 Tue-Thu 2-5, Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Christine Stiassni
European and American paintings; colonial furnishings; circus memorabilia; Kress Collection of Italian paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Daniele Brescacin, Mario Dal Fabbro, Michael Elias, Pamela Eschauzier, Claude Furones, Gian Paulo Giacomini, Dirk Holger, Freda Howling, Constance Kiermaier, Omera Lenna, Joyce Moore, Irving Sabo, Robert Vickrey.

1388. RENAISSANCE INTERNATIONAL ARTS
250 Smith St 06607
(203) 384-6363 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Ronald J. Cavalier
Contemporary sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Paul Attard, Doris Caesar, Harry Caesar, Harold Castor, Hertzel Emanuel, Steffi Friedman, Roberta Irving, David Kintzler, George Reiley, Katherine van Noorden.

1389. UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT
Carlson Gallery
84 Iranistan Ave 06602
(203) 576-4402 Mon-Fri 11-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Pam Bramble
Contemporary art.

Brookfield

1390. BROOKFIELD CRAFT CENTER: GALLERY
286 Whiconier Rd 06804
(203) 775-4526 Mon-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: John I. Russell
Contemporary crafts in all mediums; classes.

Brooklyn

1391. NEW ENGLAND CENTER FOR CONTEMPORARY ART
Rt 169 06234
(203) 774-8899 Apr-Dec Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Henry Riseman
Contemporary painting and sculpture; Russian and Chinese prints.

Other artists represented:
Francois Gilot, Al Hirschfeld, Mao C. Lee, Chien-Wing Mei, Marion Riseman, Sigmund Rothschild.

Danbury

1392. PRINT CABINET
Spruce Mountain Trail 06810
(203) 797-0814 By appt
Dir: Patricia Wilson
Five centuries of original prints.

Essex

1393. CHAMBERLAIN GARDENS ESSEX
69 S Main St 06426
(203) 767-2040 May-Oct, Thu, Sat 11-5; By appt
Dir: Lorraine Chamberlain
Outdoor sculpture garden sponsored by Dia Art Foundation.

Other artists represented:
John Chamberlain.

Farmington

1394. ZARICK ART GALLERIES
768 Farmington Ave 06032
(203) 674-8225 Tue-Fri 12-6; By appt
Dir: W. Rappaport
Contemporary art in all mediums; special emphasis on artists of the Northeast.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas McKnight, Cary Smith.

Other artists represented:
Michael Cipriano, John Craig, Terry Feder, Jonathan Frechette, William Gunderman, Elizabeth MacDonald, Larysa Martyniuk, Elisa Tenenbaum, Martin Trehub, Gary Wilson.

Greenwich

1395. THE ELEMENTS
14 Liberty Way 06830
(203) 661-0014 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Barbara Wood
Contemporary American crafts.

1396. LUBLIN GRAPHICS
95 E Putnam Ave 06830
(203) 622-8777

Other artists represented:
Graciela Rodo Boulanger, Michel Charpentier, Michel Delacroix, David Lee, Kaiko Moti, Leonardo Nierman, Teige O'Donohue, Charlotte Reine.

Guilford

1397. GREENE ART GALLERY
29 Whitfield St (Rear) 06437
(203) 453-5995 Mon-Fri 11-4, Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard Greene
Regional art in all mediums.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Hartford

1398. OLD STATE HOUSE
800 Main St 06103
(203) 522-6766 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Joseph S. MacLaughlin III
Regional artists; American painting collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ken Hogle, Toshio Odate, Jorge Pizzaro, Richard Welling.

1399. REAL ART WAYS (RAW)
40 State St 06103
(203) 525-5521 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Joseph Celli
Contemporary art in all mediums, video, film, performance, music, and poetry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Eric Bogosian, Stan Brakhage, Kim Cheselka, Robert Cumming, Doreen Gayer, Hilary Gwynn, Siegfried Halus, Harmony Hammond, Tim Keating, Mary Kenealy, Victor Leger, Les Levine, Ana Mendieta, Linda Montano, Judy Moran, Stan Nishimura, Lorenzo Pace, Lucas Samaras, Cindy Sherman, John Woodruff.

1400. WADSWORTH ATHENEUM
600 Main St 06103
(203) 278-2670 Tue-Sun 11-5
Dir: Tracy Atkinson
Ancient to contemporary works; Greek, Roman, Christian bronzes; medieval arts; 19th-century French painting; American fine and decorative arts.

Middletown

1401. WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY
Davison Art Center
301 High St 06457
(203) 347-9411 Tue-Fri 12-4; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ellen G. D'Oench
Collection of 15th-20th-century prints; furnishings; exhibitions of art in all mediums.

New Britain

1402. NEW BRITAIN MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
56 Lexington St 06052
(203) 229-0257 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Charles B. Ferguson
American art from 1740 to the present; paintings, sculpture, graphics.

New Canaan

1403. PHOTO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP
212 Elm St 06840
(203) 966-8711 Mon-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 10-3
Dir: Beth Shepherd
Contemporary and historic photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lou Bernstein, Larry Colwell, Liliana DeCock, Michael DiBrace, Keith Johnson, Fran Riche, Stan Strembicki, Wes Thomas.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Tuozzoli.

1404. SILVERMINE GUILD CENTER FOR THE ARTS
1037 Silvermine Rd 06840
(203) 966-5617 Tue-Sun 12:30-5
Dir: Grace Shanley
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephanie Adam, Anni Albers, Joan Bloom, Mary Eastman, Philip Gibson, Maria Hall, Elaine Huyer, Alyce Chaikin Kleinman, Belle Manes, Margaret McKinnickinnick, Enid Munroe, Gay Schempp, Ann Toulmin-Rothe, Patricia Warfield.

1405. WEBB & PARSONS
134 Elm St 06840
(203) 966-1400 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Pat Parsons/Carol Webb/Bill Webb
Contemporary American art and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Beverly Blair, Bruce Brooks, Rush Brown, Nellie Cooper, David Dunlop, Doreen Gallo, Susan Gardner, Woody Jackson, Jack Moment, Cliff Petterson, Roger Sandes, B.K. Scharbach, Diana Wege.

New Haven

1406. MONA BERMAN GALLERY
168 York St 06510
(203) 562-4720 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Mona Berman
Contemporary and ethnographic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pierre Dardignac, Robert Reed.

Other artists represented:
Lynn Duer, Andrew Forge, Eric Goldberg, Juliet Holland, Richard Hricko, Tom Hricko, James Jackson, Nancy Ketchman, Tony Kosloski, Nancy Lasar, Thom Maltbie, Fethi Meghelli, John Morariu, Edward O'Brien, Dan Rice, Gil Scullion, Mary Teichman, Debra Weier, Rudolph Zallinger, Jeff Zigulis.

1407. GALLERY ONE
1 Whitney Ave 06510
(203) 773-0801 Wed-Sat 12-5
Dir: Paul Alpert
New England artists.

Other artists represented:
Robert Alberetti, William Bracken, Cynthia Eckstrom, Helene Glass, David Hayes, Leo Jensen, Paul Marra, Natalie Melbardis, John Neff, John Noble, Ken Paul, Dalia Ramanauskas, Nick Scalise, William Strosahl.

1408. MUNSON GALLERY
33 Whitney Ave 06511
(203) 865-2121 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Judy Birke
Contemporary art in all mediums; regional work, international artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
S. Adam, George Chaplin, Pamela Holeman, Richard Lytle, Joanne Williams.

Other artists represented:
Anna Held Audette, Ann Chernow, Howard Fussiner, Roger Van Damme.

1409. YALE CENTER FOR BRITISH ART
1080 Chapel St 06520
(203) 432-4594 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Duncan Robinson
16th-19th-century British paintings, drawings, prints, books.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Blake*.

1410. YALE UNIVERSITY ART GALLERY
1111 Chapel St 06520
(203) 432-4200 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Alan Shestack
American painting, drawing, photography, prints; 17th-20th century Near and Far Eastern art; Pre-Columbian art; African sculpture; European painting from 1300-present.

New London

1411. LYMAN ALLYN MUSEUM
625 Williams St 06320
(203) 443-2545 Tue-Sat 1-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Edgar deN. Mayhew
Egyptian, Greek, and Roman antiquities; medieval and Renaissance art, primitive art; American and European paintings; decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Gipstein, Ted Hendrickson, Louise McCagg, Charles Moser, Daniel Truth.

Norwich

1412. SLATER MEMORIAL MUSEUM AND CONVERSE ART GALLERY
108 Crescent St 06360
(203) 887-2506 Sep-May, Mon-Fri 9-4, Sat-Sun 1-4; Jun-Aug, Tue-Sun 1-4
Dir: Joseph P. Gualtieri
17th-20th-century American art and furniture; American Indian artifacts; Egyptian, European, Oriental, and African art; gun collection; textiles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Johnston, Hilary Lasak, Janet Morgan Mol, Mary Nopper, Frank T. Novack, Jack Tennant, Carmela Venti, Ann Wandell, Nathan Wise.

Old Lyme

1413. LYME HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Florence Griswold Museum
96 Lyme St 06371
(203) 434-5542 Sep-Jun, Wed-Sun 1-5; Jun-Sep, Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jeffrey W. Andersen
Late 19th-early-20th-century American art; New England decorative arts and local history collections.

Ridgefield

1414. ALDRICH MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART
258 Main St 06877
(203) 438-4519 Wed, Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Dorothy Mayhall
Permanent and loan exhibitions: contemporary paintings, sculpture.

1415. BRANCHVILLE SOHO GALLERY
Branchville Railroad Station 06829
(203) 544-8636 Tue-Sat 1-4
Dir: Paula Reens
Emerging contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ben Benn*, Albert Cifolleli, Belle Manes, Lynn Sweat, Harvey Weiss.

Other artists represented:
Stephanie Adam, Suzanne Benton, Karen Butler, Corneille, Dolly Curtis, Jill Disque, Rita Edelman, Seymour Fogel, Shirley Kraus, Margaret McKinnickinnick, John Murray, William H. O'Neill, Gunther Reiss, Barbara Rothenberg, Linda Swick, Dale Zheutlin.

*see catalog index

Stamford

1416. SMITH-GIRARD
One Strawberry Hill Ave 06902
(203) 325-2979 By appt
Dir: Jerry Jackson
Paintings and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Theresa Bernstein, William Meyerowitz, Fred Terna.

1417. WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART, FAIRFIELD COUNTY
1 Champion Plaza 06921
(203) 358-7630 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Pamela Gruninger
20th-century American painting, sculpture, drawing, prints; performances, lectures, educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery*.

Storrs

1418. UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT
William Benton Museum of Art 06268
(203) 486-4520 Mon-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Paul F. Rovetti
Works from 15th century to present; 20th-century American painting; Kathe Kollwitz prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Cadmus*, Alexander Cozens, Reginald Marsh, Graham Nickson*, Robert Osborn, Frank Stella.

Waterbury

1419. MATTATUCK MUSEUM
119 W Main St 06702
(203) 753-0381 Tue-Sat 12-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ann Y. Smith
Paintings of Connecticut artists; decorative arts, history.

Westport

1420. CONNECTICUT FINE ARTS
2 Gorham Ave 06880
(203) 227-8016 By appt
Dir: Burt Chernow
19th-20th-century American and European art; African, Japanese, and Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Ann Chernow, Gabor Peterdi.

Other artists represented:
Christo.

1421. SAVOY ART INVESTMENT
2 Manitou Court 06880
(203) 227-8200 By appt
Dir: Arie van Harwegen den Breems
European paintings by Dutch, Barbizon and School of Paris artists.

Delaware

Dover

1422. BRUSH AND PALETTE GALLERY
59 S Governors Ave 19901
(302) 674-9070 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jean Francis
Contemporary regional artists.

Other artists represented:
Pat Carter, George Cramer, Jean Francis, Peggy Kane, Margaret Smith.

Greenville

1423. GALLERY AT GREENVILLE
Greenville Center, Suite E129 19807
(302) 652-0271 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Vicki Manning
20th-century paintings, graphics, crafts and jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Allen Bryan, John Hull, Ann Krupp, Ned Mayne, P. Buckley Moss, Jeffrey Moulton, Deborah Remington, Jerry Schurr, Peter Sculthorpe, Everett Sturgeon, Reynolds Thomas, Jamie Wyeth.

1424. STATION GALLERY
3922 Kennett Pike 19807
(302) 654-8638 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-2
Dir: Nancy Bercaw
Contemporary regional artists.

Other artists represented:
James Anderson, Patrick Carter, Jacquie Cotter, Mary Page Evans, Linda Ford, Mitch Lyons, John Matassa, William Radebaugh, William Renzulli.

Newark

1425. UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE, OLD COLLEGE
University Gallery 19711
(302) 738-1251 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Barbara H. Butler
Theme exhibitions organized by students; works on paper; photography; student and faculty works.

Rehoboth Beach

1426. REHOBOTH ART LEAGUE
Dodds Lane, Henlopen Acres 19971
(302) 227-8408 Apr-Sep, Daily 10-4
Dir: Mary Pearce
Exhibitions by member and invited artists.

Wilmington

1427. CARSPECKEN-SCOTT GALLERY
1707 N Lincoln St 19806
(302) 655-7173 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Fred Carspecken
Contemporary American painting; regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ronnell Douglass, Bill Radebaugh.

Other artists represented:
Carolyn Anderson, Mary Page Evans, Scott Woolever.

M. Staf Brandl: "+ Art 3," an installation at the ARC Gallery/Raw Space, Chicago (Oct. 1982).

1428. DELAWARE ART MUSEUM
2301 Kentmere Pkwy 19806
(302) 571-9590 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Robert H. Frankel
American art 1840-present; English Pre-Raphaelite paintings; works of Howard Pyle, John Sloan, Wyeth family.

1429. DELAWARE ART MUSEUM DOWNTOWN GALLERY
901 Market St Mall 19801
(302) 658-4825 Mon-Fri 10:30-3
Dir: Lial Jones
Changing exhibitions of contemporary American artists.

Winterthur

1430. WINTERTHUR MUSEUM AND GARDENS
Rt 52 19735
(302) 656-8591 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: James Morton Smith
American decorative arts, 1640-1849: furniture, metalwork, ceramics, glass, textiles, paintings, Chinese export porcelain, Oriental carpets.

District of Columbia

Washington

1431. ADAMS DAVIDSON
3233 P St NW 20007
(202) 965-3800 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-6
Dir: Theodore Cooper
19th-20th-century American painting, sculpture.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1432. DAVID ADAMSON GALLERY
406 Seventh St NW 20004
(202) 628-0257
Dir: David Adamson
Graphics by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Hockney, Claes Oldenburg.

Other artists represented:
Gene Davis, Jim Dine, Richard Hamilton, Alex Katz, Robert Motherwell, Philip Pearlstein, James Rosenquist, Jeanette Pasin Sloan, Andy Warhol, William T. Wiley.

1433. AMERICAN HAND
2906 M St NW 20007
(202) 965-3273 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Ken Deavers
Contemporary American ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rick Dillingham, Jim Makins, Don Pilcher.

Other artists represented:
Ralph Bacerra, Harriet Bellows, Mary Bowron, David Crane, Robert Forbes, Rick Hensley, Susan Loftin, Wally Mason, Mineo Mizuno, David Nelson, Charles Olson, Donna Polseno, Ralph Rankin, Judith Salomon, Adrian Saxe, Tom Spleth.

1434. FRANZ BADER GALLERY
2001 Eye St NW 20006
(202) 337-5440
Dir: Franz Bader
Contemporary art; emphasizing Washington, D.C. artists; Canadian Eskimo art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Agass Baumgartner, Anita Bucherer-Godeffroy, Gunter Gumpert, Robert Marx, Peter Milton.

Other artists represented:
Paul Arlt, David Becker, David Bigelow, Richard Dempsey, Clare Ferriter, Zeki Findikoglu, Arthur Hall-Smith, Mitchell Jamieson, Charles Klabunde, Pietro Lazzari, Carol Sue Lebbin, Herman Maril, Alfred McAdams, Otto Natzler, Paul Pollaro, Joan Root, Berthold Schmutzhart, Evan Summer, Ben Summerford, Prentiss Taylor, Stan Washburn, Lee Weiss.

1435. BAUMGARTNER GALLERIES
2016 R St NW 20009
(202) 232-6320 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Manfred Baumgartner
Contemporary American and European paintings, drawings, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arik Brauer, Rene Bro, Friedensreich Hündertwasser, James Kline, Craig Rubadoux.

Other artists represented:
Gottfried Helnwein, Sherry Zvares Kasten, Yoshi Takahashi, R. Lee White.

1436. ROBERT BROWN CONTEMPORARY ART
1005 New Hampshire Ave NW 20037
(202) 822-8737 Wed-Sat 12-6
Dir: Robert Brown
Contemporary European works of art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfredo Halegua, Oleg Kudryashov, Ladislav Novak, Fifo Stricker.

Other artists represented:
Gérald Ducimetiere.

1437. JACKIE CHALKLEY GALLERY
3301 New Mexico Ave NW 20016
(202) 686-8882 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Jackie Chalkley
Contemporary American artists working in clay, glass, fiber, wood, metal.

Other artists represented:
Ron Bower, Sylvia Bower, Peter Bramhall, Tom Buechner, Leslie Correll, Molly Cowgill, Randall Darwell, Claudia Ebling, Stephen Dale Edwards, Nancy Freeman, Andrea Gill, Jan Gilmor, John Gilmor, Bob Green, Susan Green, Ana Lisa Hedstrom, Thomas Hoadley, Jerry Hovanec, Jody Klein, Mia Kodani, Toni Lowenthal, Nancee Meeker, Susan Neal, Mary Nyburg, Mary Lynn O'Shea, Linda Read, Marion Schoettle, Julie Shaw, Josh Simpson, Mary White.

1438. CORCORAN GALLERY OF ART
17th St and New York Ave NW 20006
(202) 638-3211 Tue-Sun 10-4:30, Thu 10-9
Dir: Michael Botwinick
300 years of American art; European art—Renaissance through Impressionism; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Eggleston, Andrew Hudson, Blaine Larson.

1439. DUMBARTON OAKS RESEARCH COLLECTION AND LIBRARY
1703 32nd St NW 20007
(202) 342-3200 Tue-Sun 2-5
Dir: Giles Constable
Byzantine and Pre-Columbian art; rare books; formal gardens; affiliated with Harvard University.

1440. EVANS-TIBBS COLLECTION
1910 Vermont Ave NW 20001
(202) 234-8164 Sat, Sun 2-5; By appt
Dir: Thurlow E. Tibbs, Jr.
19th-20th-century African-American painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Margaret Burroughs*, Marion Perkins*.

1441. KATHLEEN EWING GALLERY
3243 P St NW 20007
(202) 342-8101 Wed-Sat 11-6
Dir: Kathleen Ewing
Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Dater.

Other artists represented:
Allen Appel, Bruce Barnbaum, A. Aubrey Bodine, Frank DiPerna, George Krause, Denny Moers, Steve Szabo.

1442. FENDRICK GALLERY
3059 M St NW 20007
(202) 338-4544 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Julia Fendrick
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, drawings, prints, decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Birmelin, Buckminster Fuller, Tatyana Grossman, Albert Paley*, Genna Watson, Donald Roller Wilson, William Woodward.

Other artists represented:
Robert Arneson, William Bailey, Barton Lidice Benes, Daniel Brush, Wendell Castle, Robert Cottingham, Maria de Conceicao, Roy De Forest, Frank Fleming, Patricia Forrester, Helen Frankenthaler, Sam Gilliam, Caroline Greenwald, Ed McGowin, Robert Motherwell, Thomas Patti, James Pernotto, Joseph Raffael, Robert Rauschenberg, Paul Sarkisian, Steven Sorman, A. Brockie Stevenson, James Valerio.

1443. FREER GALLERY OF ART
Jefferson Dr and 12th St SW 20560
(202) 357-2104 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Thomas Lawton
Oriental art; works by turn-of-the-century American artists, including James McNeill Whistler.

1444. GAGE GALLERY
3019 M St NW 20007
(202) 338-0034 Tue-Sat 11-7, Sun 1-5
Contemporary prints.

Other artists represented:
Annapia Antonini, Mario Avati, Rene Carcan, Erik Desmazieres, Bertrand Dorny, Johnny Friedlaender, Robert Kipniss, Philippe Mohlitz, Kunito Nagaoka, Mary Teichman.

1445. GALLERY K
2032 P St NW 20036
(202) 223-6955 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Komei Wachi
Contemporary paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy De Forest, Fred Folsom, Tom Graffagnino, Andrew Krieger, Maureen McCabe, William Newman, Wayne Page, Lolo Sarnoff*, Ken Saville, William Shirley, Eve Watts.

Other artists represented:
Edwin Ahlstrom, Lisa Brotman, James Bumgardner, James Crable, Georgia Deal, Olivier Debre, Durwood Dommisse, Christian Gardair, Barbara Godwin, Mary Grigoriadis, Lani Irwin, Steve Kruvant, Bernard Martin, Michael Murabito, Jody Mussoff, Jacques Poli, George Rose, Julius Schmidt, Alan Sonneman, Sara Tuft, Alan Weatherley, Kenneth Young.

1446. GALLERY NEW WORLD
3415 Wisconsin Ave NW 20016
(202) 966-7397 Tue-Sat 11-6, Sun 2-5; By appt
Dir: Lucia Chen
Paintings, graphics, drawings; publishers of contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tsing-fang Chen*.

1447. GALLERY 10
1519 Connecticut Ave NW 20036
(202) 232-3326 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Noche Crist
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints, mixed mediums, environments.

Other artists represented:
Maxine Cable, Noche Crist, Ruth Gancie, Sarah Stout Gooding, Margaret Kressley, Percy Martin, Emily Rose, Bella Schwartz, Lila Snow, Gail Watkins.

1448. GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
Dimock Gallery
730 21st St NW 20052
(202) 676-7091 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Lenore D. Miller
Student, faculty, historical shows; 19th-20th-century American paintings, prints, Pre-Columbian artifacts; African sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Max Klinger*.

1449. GUARISCO GALLERY
2828 Pennsylvania Ave NW 20007
(202) 333-8533 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 12-5
Dir: Jane Studabaker/Elizabeth Guarisco
19th-century European, American painting.

1450. SHELLY GUGGENHEIM GALLERY

(202) 488-1320 By appt
Dir: Shelly Guggenheim
Fine art in clay, glass, wood, fiber, metal, and jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Kim Bass, Whitney Boin, Marylyn Dintenfass, Mollie Fletcher, Pat Flynn, Thomas Gentille, Douglas Hoppa, Victoria Howe, Margie Jarvis, Susan Krasnican, Marc Levine, Joan Levinson, Robert McGowan, Robert Piepenburg, Ivy Ross, Ann Scott, Thermon Staton, Cary Stefani, Joan Sterrenburg, Rachelle Thiewes, Howard Ben Tre.

1451. JANE HASLEM GALLERY
2121 P St NW 20037
(202) 785-2707 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Jane Haslem
20th-century American paintings; prints and works on paper; original political cartoons.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jacques Hnidovski, Jeri Metz, John Winslow.

Other artists represented:
Tony Auth, Antonio Frasconi, Hayes Friedman, Billy Morrow Jackson, Misch Kohn, Leonardo Lasansky, Mauricio Lasansky, Jeff MacNelly, Wanda Miller Matthews, Michael Nushawg, Pat Oliphant, Elizabeth Peak, Mike Peters, Michael Ponce De Leon, Richard Ziemann.

---

*see catalog index

1452. JANE HASLEM GALLERY

406 7th St NW 20037
(202) 638-6162 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Jane Haslem

20th-century American paintings, prints and works on paper; original political cartoons.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephen Tanis, Garry Trudeau.

1453. HIRSHHORN MUSEUM AND SCULPTURE GARDEN

Independence Ave at 8th St SW 20560
(202) 357-1300 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Abram Lerner

Smithsonian Institution; 19th-20th-century European and American painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Siah Armajani, Alice Aycock, Ilya Bolotowsky, James Brooks, Willem de Kooning, Lauren Ewing, Red Grooms, Ibram Lassaw, Robert Morris, Samuel Murray*, Alice Neel, Dennis Oppenheim, Raphael Sawyer*, David Smith*.

1454. HOM GALLERY

2103 O St NW 20037
(202) 466-4076 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Jem Hom

19th-20th-century American and European artists.

Other artists represented:
Robert Bates, Leonard Cave, Jacob Kainen, Mark Leithauser, Richard Maury.

1455. HULL GALLERY

3301 New Mexico NW 20016
(202) 362-0507 Mon 1-5, Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Anne D. Hull

19th- and 20th-century American paintings, drawings, and prints.

1456. INTERNATIONAL SCULPTURE CENTER

1050 Potomac St NW, PO Box 19709 20007
(202) 965-6066 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: David Furchgott

Non-profit service organization for sculptors.

1457. B.R. KORNBLATT GALLERY

406 7th St NW 20004
(202) 638-7657 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Barbara R. Kornblatt

Post-1945 American art: paintings, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marshall Borris, Ronnie Landfield, Susan Middleman, Roger Laux Nelson, Jerry Noe, Kenneth Noland, Vincent Peranio.

Other artists represented:
John Ferguson, Michael Todd, James Voshell.

1458. MICKELSON GALLERY

707 G St NW 20001
(202) 628-1735 Mon-Fri 9:30-5, Sat 9:30-3
Dir: Jean E. Danielson

Paintings, sculpture, graphics; realism.

Other artists represented:
Dorothy Abbott, Norman Ackroyd, George Bellows, David Bombeck, James Butler, M.C. Escher, Anthony Gross, Ralph Hurst, W.T. Kinkade, John Loeper, Michael Palmer, William Preston, Florence Putterman, Gary Shankman, Claire Van Vliet.

1459. MIDDENDORF/LANE

2009 Columbia Rd NW 20009
(202) 462-2009
Dir: Christopher Middendorf

Contemporary American art, particularly by Washington artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robin Rose*.

Other artists represented:
Leon Berkowitz, William Christenberry, Gene Davis, Tom Dineen, William Eggleston, Elizabeth Falk, Jo Ferrugia, Sam Gilliam, Edward Kienholz, Stephen Ludlum, Robert Stackhouse, Joseph White.

1460. MONUMENTAL SCULPTURES

2601 30 St NW 20008
(202) 332-7460 By appt
Dir: Raquel Halegua

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfredo Halegua.

1461. MUSEUM OF MODERN ART OF LATIN AMERICA

201 18th St NW 20006
(202) 789-6016 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jose Gomez-Sicre

Contemporary Latin American paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings.

1462. NATIONAL GALLERY OF ART

Constitution Ave at 4th St NW 20565
(202) 737-4215 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-9
Dir: J. Carter Brown

European art from Renaissance to the 20th century; sculpture, bronzes, porcelains.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Bellows, Georges Braque, Claude Lorrain, Edouard Manet, David Smith.

1463. NATIONAL MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART

8th and G Sts 20560
(202) 357-3176 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Charles C. Eldredge

American paintings, sculpture, and works on paper from the 18th century to the present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Berenice Abbott*, Keith Achepohl, Joseph Cornell*, Joseph Goldyne*, William H. Johnson, Louis Lozowick*, Elihu Vedder.

1464. NATIONAL MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART

Barney Studio House
2306 Massachusetts Ave NW 20560
(202) 357-2247 By appt
Dir: Charles Eldredge

1902 showplace illustrating Alice Pike Barney's influence on the cultural life of Washington D.C. in the early 1900's.

1465. NATIONAL MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART

Renwick Gallery
Pennsylvania Ave and 17th St NW 20560
(202) 357-2700 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Lloyd Herman

Smithsonian Institution; American design and crafts.

1466. NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY

8th and F St NW 20560
(202) 357-2866 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Alan Fern

Portraits of Americans who have made a significant contribution to the historical, intellectual, political, and cultural life of the country.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Willson Peale*.

1467. NYANGOMA'S GALLERY

2335 18th St NW 20009
(202) 234-2500 Tue-Sat 12-6; By appt
Dir: Lusetha Rolle

Paintings and sculpture by African-American artists and other third world artists.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Ed Love, Keith Morrison, James Phillips, Al Smith, Hale Woodruff.

1468. OSUNA GALLERY

406 7th St NW 20004
(202) 296-1963 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Josephine G. Greco

20th-century American art, 17th-19th-century Latin American, European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Emilie Benes, Charles Bessant, Robert Bourdon, Jan Magaret Dow, Carol Goldberg, Mary Ann Harman, Lynn Hurst, Margarida Kendall, Elaine Kurtz, Frederick Nichols, Paul Pratchenko, Ann Purcell, John Sanders, Frank A. Smith, Stanley Sporny, John Stewart.

1469. PHILLIPS COLLECTION

1600 21st St NW 20009
(202) 387-2151 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-7
Dir: Laughlin Phillips

19th-20th-century American and European painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Georges Braque, Margaret Olney McBride, Cita Scott, Ben Summerford, John Walker*.

1470. PHOENIX II

1875 Eye St NW 20006
(202) 293-2421 Mon, Sat 11-4; Tue-Fri 11-6
Dir: Arlene Bujese

Contemporary American painting, drawing, sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Calvin Albert, Alice Baber, Priscilla Bowden, Elaine de Kooning, Lee Hall, Elwood Howell, Sheila Isham, Fay Lansner, Ibram Lassaw, John Little, Conrad Marca-Relli, A.C. Mim, Hans Namuth, V.V. Rankine, Syd Solomon.

Other artists represented:
Warren Brandt, Ronnie Chalif, Jimmy Ernst, Perle Fine, Claus Hoie, Helen Hoie, David Porter, Alexander Russo, Jo Anne Schneider, Arline Wingate.

1471. SPECTRUM GALLERY

1132 29th St NW 20007
(202) 333-0954 Tue-Sat 10-5, Fri 7-11, Sun 2-5
Dir: Millie Shott

Cooperative; Washington area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Bledsoe, John Bryans, Elaine Burch, Edythe Cardon, Mike Donner, Norma Eskenazi, Dorothy Hunter, Ingrid Leeds, Peter Stoliaroff.

Other artists represented:
Selma Cohen, Leolla Glick, Maggie Judycki, Wilma King, Margaret Kranking, Marija McCarthy, Nevia (Joseph Sheppard Rogers), David Norton, Harry Richardson, Doris Rief, Joseph Sheppard Rogers, Nancy Sanford, Vera Vandendries, Sandra Walker, Dana Winslow, Peggy Zee, Joyce Zipperer.

1472. TEXTILE MUSEUM

2320 S St NW 20008
(202) 667-0441 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Patricia Fiske

Near and Far Eastern, Pre-Columbian textiles, carpets, costumes; educational programs.

1473. TOUCHSTONE GALLERY

2130 P St NW 20037
(202) 223-6683 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Luba Dreyer

Fine arts; 2- and 3-dimensional clay, marble, bronze, oil, acrylic; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Altina, Susan Clifford, Gretchen Friend-Jones, Ellen Glasgow, Nancy Hammond, Jo Harrop, MaryLou Hartmann, Lynne Kagan, Kit-Keung Kan, Anne Marchand, Harriet Rosenbaum, Cora Rupp, Rima Schulkind, Judith Turim, Frank Van Riper, Zinnia.

Other artists represented:
Ann Barbieri, Lois Beatty, Brenda Belfield, Mirella Belshe, Pat Fox, Jean Morgan George, Patsy Gilbert, Brian Kirk, Leni Liftin, Vinton Pickens, Charles Sawchenko, Janice Sayles, Frances Seeger, Michael Stover-Carr, Maria Tourou, F.L. Wall.

1474. WASHINGTON PROJECT FOR THE ARTS

400 7th St NW 20004
(202) 347-8304 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Al Nodal

Contemporary works by local and international artists; artists' books; performance; video; photography.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Other artists represented:
H. Terry Braunstein, Allen Carter, Helen Harrison, Newton Harrison, Suzanne Helmuth, Brian Kavanagh, Robert McCurdy, Antonio Muntadas, Kevin Osborn, Jock Reynolds, Lyle Rosbotham, Nancy Rubins, Keith Smith.

1475. WASHINGTON WOMEN'S ARTS CENTER
1821 Q St NW 20009
(202) 332-2121 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Helen Levine
Non-profit; women's art cooperative; educational center.

Florida

Bay Harbor Islands

1476. GALERIE 99
1088 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 865-5823 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Ann Jaffe/Ann Rachlin
Contemporary paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jack Roth.

Other artists represented:
Ronni Bogaev, Joan Brams, Lynn Chadwick, Friedel Dzubas, Carole Jeane Feuerman, Gordon Hart, Darryl Hughto, Menashe Kadishman, Terence La Noue, Henry Moretti, Frank Owen, Susan Roth, Kikuo Saito, Ben Schonzeit, Alan Siegel, Michael Steiner, Francisco Zuniga.

1477. HOKIN GALLERY
1086 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 861-5700 Tue-Fri 10:30-5
Dir: Grace Hokin/Dorothy Berenson Blau
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gene Davis, Stephen Edlich, George Green, William King, Pablo Picasso, Lucas Samaras, Larry Zox.

Other artists represented:
Stanley Boxer, Michael Gallagher, Alex Katz, Alexander Liberman, Rupert Jason Smith, Barry Tinsley, Andy Warhol, Tom Wesselmann.

1478. GLORIA LURIA GALLERY
1033 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 865-3060 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Gloria Luria
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jennifer Bartlett, Lynne Golub Gelfman, Robert Goodnough, Nancy Graves, Robert Rauschenberg, Larry Rivers, Bruce Robbins, James Rosenquist, Debbie Schneider, Mindy Shrago.

Other artists represented:
S. Arakawa, Natvar Bhavsar, Enrique Castro-Cid, Dan Christensen, Elaine Lustig Cohen, Jim Jacobs, Andrew Jansons, Clement Meadmore, Doug Moran, Robert Natkin, Joel Perlman, George Segal, David Shapiro, Pat Steir, De Wain Valentine, Andy Warhol.

1479. MEDICI-BERENSON GALLERY
1052 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 864-5355 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lois Cutler/Margo Finn
Contemporary American painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helen Bershad, Richard Saba, Vasa.

Other artists represented:
Tom Garboski, Dorothy Gillespie, Charles Hinman, Ronnie Landfield, Alberto Magnani, Stefanie Peckins, Alice Phillips, Peter Reginato.

1480. RAUCHBACH GALLERIES
1007 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 861-9992 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Shirlee Rauchbach
Contemporary realism; painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Bunny Adelman, Roger Bansemer, Joseph Brun, Jeanne Norman Chase, Paul Freeman, Norman Gardner, Arthur Glickman, Stuart Kaufman, Bruno Lucchesi, Sandra Raphaelson, Michael Schreck, Antonio Sereix, Robert Sherman, Milt Surrey, James Tormey, Esther Wertheimer.

1481. ANA SKLAR GALLERY
1019 Kane Concourse 33154
(305) 868-2008 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat by appt
Dir: Ana Sklar
Contemporary Latin American art.

Other artists represented:
Herbert Bayer, Luis Caballero, Margaret Cheeseman, Lamis Feldman, Lola Fernandez, Murray Gaby, Theodora Gavenchak, Victor Gomez, Enrique Grau, Nenad Jakesevic, Hal Kaye, Harriet Kittay, Sonja Lamut, Rolando Lopez-Dirube, Jerry Lubensky, Antonio Maro, Julio Matilla, Milena Pribis, Jorge Noceda Sanchez, Jan Sawka, Dee Shapiro, Subirachs, Enzo Torcoletti.

Belleair

1482. FLORIDA GULF COAST ART CENTER
222 Ponce De Leon Blvd 33516
(813) 584-8634 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Judith Boodon Powers
Exhibitions of national and regional artists; American painting, 1940-1955.

Boca Raton

1483. BOCA RATON CENTER FOR THE ARTS
801 W Palmetto Park Rd 33432
(305) 392-2500 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Maria Lawton
Non-profit; exhibitions, classes.

1484. BRENNER GALLERY
75 Royal Palm Plaza 33432
(305) 392-3200 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Nili Brenner
International contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Lamar Briggs, Salvador Dali, Paul Jenkins, M. Kravjansky, Morio Matsui, Dominic Mingolla, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Nicola Simbari.

1485. GALLERIA BERENSON
470 NW 20th St, Suite 1056 33431
(305) 395-0333 By appt
Dir: Felice Berenson
Italian artists; catalogs available.

Other artists represented:
Riccardo Benvenuti, Sergio Benvenuti, Gianpaolo Bianchi, Roberto Ciabani, Antonia Fontana, Stefano Rogai, Cesare Ronchi, Manfred Schwartz, Franco Scuderi, Angelo Vadalá.

1486. PATRICIA JUDITH ART GALLERY
720 E Palmetto Park Rd 33432
(305) 368-3316 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Patricia Cohn

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Franz Joseph Bollinger, Anne Harris, Al Hollingsworth, Felix Mas, David Grant Roth, Willi Tobias.

Other artists represented:
Sara Leighton, Bernard Stern.

Coconut Grove

1487. GALLERY AT GROVE ISLE
4 Grove Isle Dr 33133
(305) 858-1522 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Lyder Johnson/Lilliana M. Capuzzo
Modern art; Oriental antiques; Ifugao basketry.

Other artists represented:
Miguel Cubiles, Albert Donat, Arcadio Gonzalez, Erika King, David Shankman, Anthony Sikich.

1488. VIRGINIA MILLER GALLERIES
3112 Commodore Plaza 33133
(305) 444-9844 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Virginia Miller
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harriet Bell, Dee Ann Devine, Fernando Luis.

Other artists represented:
Robert Beach, Leon Berkowitz, Martin Bernstein, Ramon Carulla, Claudia De Monte, Yasu Hiro Esaki, Jose Fors, Tom Graboski, Ernst Haas, Larry Harmon, Shirley Henderson, Timothy High, Kyra, Nino Maggio, Tom McCarthy, Betty Parsons, Elliot Porter, Penny Rakoff, David Salley, Lawrence Salzmann, Ila Seltzer, Ken Weaver, Jean Weinbaum.

Coral Gables

1489. ARTSPACE/VIRGINIA MILLER GALLERIES
169 Madeira Ave 33134
(305) 444-4493 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Virginia Miller
Contemporary and ethnic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Trevor Bell, Sam Gilliam, Byron Sletten*, Patricia Taplin, Jerry Uelsmann, Donald Roller Wilson.

Other artists represented:
Richard Carter, Gilberto Ceron, Jim Couper, Luis Hernandez Cruz, Lanny de Vuono, Fernando Devis, Richard Frank, Masume Hayashi, Jim Kusmierski, Ed McGowin, Alice Neel, John Raimondi, Annette Rawlings, Jack Reilly, Carla Steiger-Meister, Jewel Stern, Timothy Van Laar, John Visser, Jean Welch.

1490. FORMA GALLERY
305 Alcazar Ave 33134
(305) 442-9430 Mon-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sat 10:30-2:30
Dir: Dora Valdes-Fauli
Contemporary painting, sculpture, Pre-Columbian ceramics; art books; consultants.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ramiro Arango, Mario Bencomo, Humberto Calzada, Fernando De Szyszlo, Paquita Parobi, Rogelio Polesello, Elmar Rojas, Lewis Wilson.

Other artists represented:
Félix Angel, Cundo Bermudez, Mario Carreño, Margarita Lozano.

1491. RUDOLPH GALLERIES
338 Sevilla Ave 33134
(305) 443-6005 Daily 10-4
Dir: Lillian Frederick-Fiolic
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Wolf Kahn, Sidney Laufman.

---

*see catalog index

1492. UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI
Lowe Art Museum
1301 Stanford Dr 33146
(305) 284-3535 Tue-Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ira Licht
Renaissance, Baroque, Rococo art; Southwest Indian and Latin American art; Washington Allston Trust; American painting and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carl Andre, Cynthia Carlson, Jean Dubuffet, Alfred Eisenstaedt, Jackie Ferrara, Jacob Kass*, Jacob Lawrence, Sol LeWitt, Ana Mendieta, Lucas Samaras.

Daytona Beach

1493. MUSEUM OF ARTS AND SCIENCES, CUBAN MUSEUM
1040 Museum Blvd 32014
(904) 255-0285 Tue-Fri 9-4, Sat 1-5
Dir: Gary Libby
American and European fine and decorative arts; Cuban, Caribbean, African arts; contemporary Florida paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Lotz*, Daniel Serra-Badué*.

Deland

1494. FIRST FEDERAL MID-FLORIDA (EMPIRE AMERICA, FSA-DIVISION OF)
345 N Woodland Blvd 32720
(904) 734-2551

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benini, Mari Conneen, Hollis Holbrook.

Dunedin

1495. DUNEDIN FINE ARTS AND CULTURAL CENTER
1143 Michigan Blvd 33528
(813) 736-6731 Mon-Fri 8:30-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Deborah K. Eckstein
Exhibitions by national and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lucinda Carlstrom, Susan Harlan, John Krieger, Daniel Pons, Michele Tuegel.

Fort Lauderdale

1496. CARONE GALLERY
600 SE 2nd Ct 33301
(305) 463-8833 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Matthew Carone/Jodie Carone
20th-century and contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Carol Anthony, Agostino Bonalumi, Claude Carone, Nicolas Carone, Paul Jenkins, Edward Kinney, Leon Kroll, Sebastian Matta, Henry Moretti, Norma Penchansky, Syd Solomon.

1497. MUSEUM OF ART, FORT LAUDERDALE
426 E Las Olas Blvd 33301
(305) 463-5184 Sep-Jun Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 12-5
Dir: George S. Bolge
19th-20th-century American and European graphics, paintings, sculpture; COBRA Collection; Pre-Columbian, American Indian, Oceanic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mogens Balle, Christian Dotremont, Dorothy Gillespie*, William Gropper, Duane Hanson, Asger Jorn, Michael Klezmer, George McNeil*.

Fort Myers

1498. EDISON COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Gallery of Fine Art
College Pkwy 33907
(813) 489-9313 Tue-Fri 10-4, Thu 5-9
Dir: Lantz Caldwell
Teaching and community gallery; art in all mediums; Pre-Columbian collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Daniel Chauche, Tony Eitharong, Robert Rauschenberg, Jeff Whipple.

Gainesville

1499. DEPARTMENT OF CULTURAL AFFAIRS
Thomas Center Galleries
302 NE 6th Ave 32601
(904) 374-2197 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Lemuel B. Moore III
Four galleries featuring regional and local artists and natural science and history.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benini, William Conklin, Michael Goody, Nancy Haliday, Byron Harman.

1500. JOAN LING GALLERY
15 SE 1st Ave 32601
(904) 375-8158 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Joan Ling
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Dean*, Kerri Silvernell*.

Other artists represented:
Roger Bansemer, Jill Branham-East, Lucinda Carlstrom, Marti Cowie, Nancy Crawford, Cookie Davis, Nofa Dixon, Rolf Holmquist, Georgina Holt, David Hunter, S. P. Kupperman, Francis Lynn Martin, Maggie Milono, Connie Nelson, Fritzi Olson, Jane Prescott, Bonnie Christina Randall, Bill Renc, James Rome, Edwin Sammet, Stormy Anne Sandquist, William Schaaf, Ruth Andress Stone, Susie Stovall, Kay Sullivan, Martha Swanger, Scott Young.

1501. QUINLIN ART CENTER
514 Green St 30501
(904) 536-2575 Mon-Fri 10-12, 2-4; Sun 2-4
Dir: Barbara Severens
Contemporary regional art and crafts; classes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Boedecker, Brenda Connor, John Kollock, Bill McColloch, Cecil Neal, Meredith Rambo, William Thompson.

1502. UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA
University Gallery 32611
(904) 392-0201 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Roy C. Craven, Jr.
East Indian painting and sculpture, African art, Pre-Columbian ceramics; photography, painting, graphics.

Hallandale

1503. GRAPHIC ART COLLECTION
133 NE First Ave 33009
(305) 454-8806 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Bruce Sher/Dorothy Schaffer
Limited edition graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edna Hibel.

Other artists represented:
LeRoy Neiman, Nicola Simbari.

Hobe Sound

1504. HOBE SOUND GALLERIES
PO Box 682, 11900 SE Dixie Highway 33455
(305) 546-6600
Dir: Nancy L. Payson

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Cook, Betsy Fuller, Sandra Rubel, John Soullière.

Other artists represented:
Diana Kan, Bernard Langlais, Laurence Sisson.

Jacksonville

1505. CUMMER GALLERY OF ART
829 Riverside Ave 32204
(904) 356-6857 Tue-Fri 10-4, Sat 12-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert Schlageter
Museum; antiquity through 20th century.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Carl Faberge*, Hiram Williams*, Theodore Wores*.

1506. JACKSONVILLE ART MUSEUM
4160 Boulevard Center Dr 32207
(904) 398-8336 Tue-Fri 10-4, Thu 10-10; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Bruce H. Dempsey
Contemporary art, Koger Collection of Oriental Porcelains, Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arakawa, Chuck Close, Jim Dine, Joseph Raffael*, George Segal, Peter Voulkos.

1507. JACKSONVILLE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF FINE ART
Alexander Brest Museum
University Blvd N 32211
(904) 744-3950 Mon-Fri 9-4:30
Dir: Debra Murphy
Permanent collection: Pre-Columbian art, Steuben glass, Danish porcelain, Oriental decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Lotz.

VOL 71 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Lakeland

1508. POLK PUBLIC MUSEUM
800 E Palmetto St 33801
(813) 688-7743 Tue–Fri 9–5, Sat 10–4;
Sun 1–4
Dir: Ken Rollins
Changing art exhibitions; permanent display of Pre-Columbian works; 15th-19th-century European ceramics.

Melbourne

1509. BREVARD ART CENTER AND MUSEUM
PO Box EG782 32935
(305) 254-7782 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Robert Gabriel

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benini*, Spence Guerin*, Timothy Greenfield Sanders*.

Miami

1510. FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY
Visual Arts Gallery
Tamiami Trail 33199
(305) 555–2890 Mon–Fri 9–1
Dir: Dahlia Morgan
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Couper*, Manuel Neri.

1511. MARVIN ROSS FRIEDMAN & CO
15451 SW 67th Court 33157
(305) 233–4281 By appt
Dir: Marvin Ross Friedman
Modern and contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy Lichtenstein, James Rosenquist.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Christo, Willem de Kooning, Henry Moore, Claes Oldenburg, Robert Rauschenberg, Cy Twombly, Andy Warhol.

1512. GALLERY AT 24
2399 NE 2nd Ave 33137
(305) 576–6424 Mon–Sat 11–5
Dir: Robert J. Sindelir
Contemporary American and European paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints; African, Oceanic, Indonesian art.

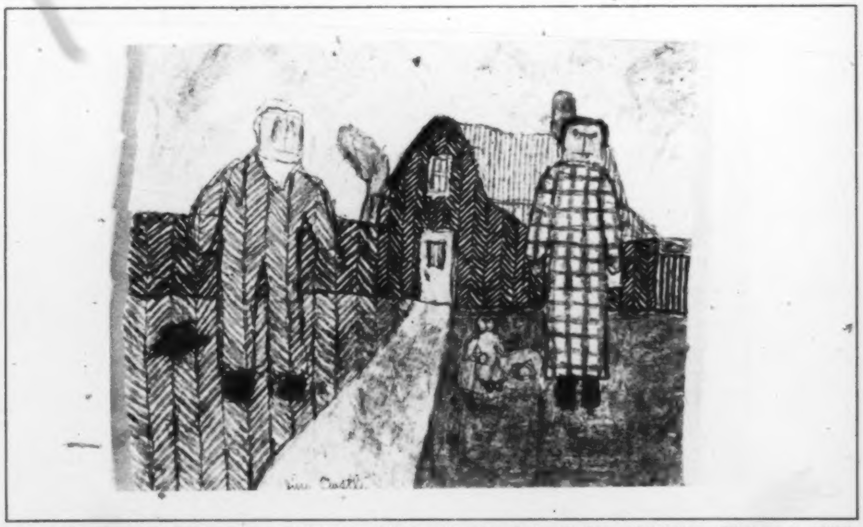
One person exhibitions in 1982:
Werner Bargsten, Maria Brito-Avellana, Jill Cannady, Grail Douglas, Christine Federighi, David Goldhagen, Judith Greavu, Edith Landowne, Susana Sori.

Other artists represented:
Ron Fondaw, Fung-Lin Hall, Rhoda Hepner, David Hockney, Robert Huff, Horst Kohlem, Elena Presser, Craig Rubadoux, Claire Satin, Alice Terry, Susan Zukowsky.

1513. CAROL GETZ GALLERY
4970 S W 80th St 33143
(305) 661–8413 By appt
Dir: Carol Getz
Limited edition prints; contemporary paintings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Per Arnoldi.

Other artists represented:
Ed Baynard, Alan Turner.



James Castle: Untitled Drawing; in "Voices of Silence," at the Boise Gallery of Art (Apr. 30-June 6, 1982).

1514. BARBARA GILLMAN GALLERY
3886 Biscayne Blvd 33137
(305) 573–4898 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–4
Dir: Barbara Gillman
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, graphics, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Emery Clark, Elyse Littenberg, James Rosenquist*.

Other artists represented:
Pat Hammerman, Erika King, Lisa Klausner, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Joyce Kozloff, Martin Kreloff, Salvatore La Rosa, Geoffrey Lardiere, Sylvia Lizama, Stacey Mancuso, Marjatta, Jim Richard, Ruth Romoser, Val Rossman, Miriam Schapiro, Phillip Warner, M. J. Wilson, Tom Wyroba.

1515. BARBARA GILLMAN GALLERY
270 NE 39th St 33137
(305) 573–4898 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–4
Dir: Barbara Gillman
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, graphics, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Burke, Kenneth Shaw, Beryl Solla, Rosalie Wognum.

Other artists represented:
Mario Algaze, Ron Bennett, Stephen Bird, John Bledsoe, Phillip Brooker, Jorge Castaño, Rosemarie Chiarlone, Jeffrey Christ, Carol Cornelison, Bernice D'Vorzon, Joe Davoli, Joyce de Guatemala, Murray Dessner, Susan E. Eisenberg, Del Geist, Alan Gerson, Shirley Green, Sal Guastella, Dan Gunderson, Janice Hartwell, Barbara Kohl, Pete Kuentzel, Connie Lloveras, Carlos Macia, Oscar Melendez, Joe Moss, Barbara Neijna, Mary Nomecos, Janet Paparelli, Adolph Rutkin, Baruj Salinas, Alicia Schmidt, Beau Siegel, Ric Snead, Rafael Soriano, Kate Steiger, Ludwig Stein, Allison Stewart, Anne Tanner, Jean Ward.

1516. LANVIN GALLERY
50 NE 40th St 33137
(305) 576–0108 Mon–Fri 10:30–5
Dir: Robin Lanvin
Contemporary South Florida artists; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eunice Allen Groff, Marc Berlet, R. F. Buckley, Carol Chanin, Dina Knapp, Ward Shelley, Elliott Wennet.

Other artists represented:
Michael Flick, Enrique Riveron, Ann Sams.

1517. MOOSART GALLERY AT STUDIO 38
3800 NE 2nd Ave 33137
(305) 576–0225 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat by appt
Dir: Joy Moos
20th-century American, Canadian, and Latin artists.

Other artists represented:
Anjal, Pat Berger, Joan Brams, R. S. Buckley, Fabino, Ted Fairhurst, Ilise Greenstein, Jane Greer, Robert Helsmoortel, Ghitta Kaiserman-Roth, Norman Laliberté, Hal Larsen, Joy Moos, Jeanne Pelligrino, Ted Powers, Rogelio Pretto, Barbara Schaefer, Tewi, Wayne Timm.

1518. BARBARA MORRIS GALLERY
3601 Biscayne Blvd 33137
(305) 576–9107 Daily 11–5
Dir: Barbara Morris
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, photography.

Other artists represented:
Allan D'Arcangelo, David Lund, George Rickey, Francisco Zuñiga.

1519. VILLA VIZCAYA MUSEUM AND GARDENS
3251 S Miami Ave 33129
(305) 579–4626 Daily 9:30–5
Dir: Carl J. Weinhardt, Jr.
European decorative and fine art; European-style formal gardens.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sandro Chia, Francesco Clemente, Grover Cole, James Hewson, Burrall F. Hoffman, Mimmo Paladino, James Seaman, Walter Stein, Ernesto Tatafiore.

Miami Beach

1520. BASS MUSEUM OF ART
2100 Collins Ave 33139
(305) 673–7530 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Diane W. Camber
Medieval, Rococo, Renaissance painting and sculpture; 19th-20th-century art and vestments; Oriental bronzes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Chaim Gross*, Charmion Von Wiegand*.

---

*see catalog index

Miami Lakes

1521. PHYLLIS POWERS ART GALLERY
7351-A Miami Lakes Dr 33014
(305) 556-6725 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Phyllis Powers
Contemporary and 19th-century art.

Naples

1522. HARMON-MEEK GALLERY
1258 3rd St S 33940
(813) 261-2637 Oct-May Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: J. William Meek III
20th-century American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery*, Eugene Babochenko, Byron Browne*, Adolf Dehn*, Balcomb Greene*, Ralph Hurst, Frank Kleinholz, Eliot O'Hara*, Richard Segalman, Robert Vickrey.

Other artists represented:
Darrel Austin, Aaron Bohrod, Clarence Carter, Jimmy Ernst, Richard Florsheim, Milton Hebald, Ibram Lassaw, Conrad Marca-Relli, Walter Meigs, Don Powers.

1523. NAPLES ART GALLERY
275 Broad Ave S 33940
(813) 262-4551 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Warren C. Nelson/William B. Spink
American painting, pencil drawings, sculpture; American and Scandinavian glass.

Other artists represented:
Francesco Acitelli, Jack Baker, Belva Ball, Michael Barkin, Alfred Buell, Huberto Calzada, Wah Ming Chang, Norman Neal Deaton, Gisson, Winifred Godfrey, Sidney Herschleb, Chi-Chung Hu, David Lind, Bernique Longley, Michael Martin, Hal McIntosh, Nancy Miller, David Grant Roth, Michael Schreck, Albert Schroder, Nicola Simbari, Laurence Sisson, John Soulliere, Gerald Stinski, Mou-Sien Tseng, Robert Watson.

1524. VALAND ART GALLERY
363 12th Ave S 33940
(813) 263-1010 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Peggy V. Lustig
Contemporary graphics, painting, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lamarr Briggs, Gilberte Brilliante, Arnold Eiger, Mark King, Marco Sassone, Nicola Simbari, Alice Terry.

Other artists represented:
Alvar, Marc Chagall, Nancy Denison, Donald Hazen, Jacques Lalande, Henry Moore, Charlotte Reine, E.D. Upham, Victor Vasarely.

North Miami

1525. OSCAR DIOR ART GALLERY
581 NE 125th St 33161
(305) 693-4518
Dir: Edward Pezzi
Oil paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Amador, Oscar Dior, Vilma Lopez, Julio Mesa, Ruby Pacheco, Alex Penalver, Edward Penalver, Edward Pezzi.

Orlando

1526. LOCH HAVEN ART CENTER
2416 N Mills Ave 32803
(305) 896-4231 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Marena Grant Morrisey
African, Pre-Columbian, 20th-century American art.

Ormond Beach

1527. ORMOND BEACH WAR MEMORIAL ART GALLERY AND GARDEN
78 E Granada 32047
(904) 677-1857 Oct-Aug Thu-Tue 12-5
Dir: Kitty Tarelis
Changing exhibits of period and contemporary art; permanent collection of symbolic paintings by Malcolm Fraser.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benini, Rev. Edward Shillito.

Palm Beach

1528. PETER DREW GALLERY
125 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 659-5554 Mon-Sat 11-6:30; By appt
Dir: Carolyn Krebs
Works by contemporary artists in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
John Martino, Clarence Measelle, Daniel Meyer, Mary Louise O'Sullivan.

1529. GALLERY 151
151 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 655-6765 Mon-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Paul Catani
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Luca Alinari, Agostino Bonalumi, Antonio Bueno, Louisa Chase, Louise Nevelson, Robert S. Zakanitch.

1530. GALLERY GEMINI
245 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 655-5924 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Lisa Goldman
19th-20th-century painting, sculpture, photography.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Ilya Bolotowsky, Joan Brams, Alex Caro, Jack Culiner, John Day, Andrea Hahn, Fred House, Frank Litto, Else Martinus, Tom McCartney.

1531. HOKIN GALLERY
245 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 655-5177 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Grace Hokin/Doris Ellenbogen
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, drawings.

Other artists represented:
Fernando Botero, Stanley Boxer, Gene Davis, Sorel Etrog, George Green, James Havard, Louise Nevelson, Ernest Trova.

1532. HOLLY DALY HERMAN PALM BEACH ART GALLERY
240 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 655-9364 Wed-Mon 11-4
Dir: Charles F. Daly
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Anderson, Dorothe M. Chilcutt, Joseph Ciccarelli, Leonard Froio, Jamie Spilman.

1533. HOLSTEN GALLERIES
206 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 833-3403 Mon-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Chandra Holsten/Kenn Holsten
Contemporary American art; glass, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patrick Crabb, Frank Fleming, Grace A. Kraft, Stephanie Ladoff, Harvey Littleton, Tom Patti, Michael Pavlik, Don Reitz, Harvey Sadow.

Other artists represented:
Bennett Bean, Joel Philip Myers.

1534. IRVING GALLERIES
332 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 659-6221 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Irving Luntz
Contemporary American and European painting, sculpture, photography.

Other artists represented:
Guy Bourdin, Bill Branot, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Jim Dine, Jean Dubuffet, Helen Frankenthaler, Edward Giobbi, Nancy Graves, Cleve Gray, Charles Hinman, Robert Motherwell, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Larry Rivers, Richard Smith, Frank Stella.

1535. ROYAL PALM GALLERY
125 Worth Ave 33480
(305) 659-1711
Dir: Bruce Helander
Contemporary American paintings, drawings, sculpture, photographs, and glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Anderson, Dale Chihuly, Seymour Chwast, Elizabeth Jackson, Robert Natkin, Robert Rauschenberg, Italo Scanga, Aaron Siskind, Chris Van Allsburg.

Other artists represented:
John Baeder, Trent Burleson, Claus Bury, Judy Dolnick, Bill Drew, Gilbert Franklin, Joseph Goto, Dimitri Hadzi, James Harmone, Hardu Keck, Gary Komarin, Constance Leslie, Steve Lewis, David Macaulay, Elsie Manville, Jack Massey, Richard Merkin, Sloan Rankin, Miriam Sharlin, Prince Jurgen Van Anhalt.

1536. SOCIETY OF THE FOUR ARTS
Four Arts Plaza 33480
(305) 655-7226 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: James M. Brown
Cultural center; art, music, and dance programs; lectures, films.

1537. JOHN H. SUROVEK FINE ARTS
337-A Worth Ave 33480
(305) 832-0422 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: John H. Surovek
19th-20th-century American art: impressionism, genre, Ashcan School works.

Pensacola

1538. PENSACOLA MUSEUM OF ART
407 S Jefferson St 32501
(904) 432-6247
Dir: Mary H. Takach
Paintings, graphics, contemporary American art; traveling exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Emil Holzhauer*, Terry Ravey.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Safety Harbor

1539. SOHO SOUTH CONTEMPORARY GALLERY OF ART
108 4th Ave S 33572
(813) 725-1116 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lois Berghoff
Contemporary art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ben Ami Braun, Florence Putterman, Helen Romeike-Wisniewski, Jeff Whipple.

Other artists represented:
Zelda Burdick, Peter Chapin, Dorothy Cochren, Betsy Creed, Marguerite Doernbach, Jane Eccles, Michael Lasuchin, Stefen Martin, Pat Feeney Murrell, Marie Sturken, Laura Wortzel.

Sanibel Island

1540. PHOTOGRAPHERS' GALLERY
PO Box 361 33957
(813) 472-6697 By appt
Dir: Renee Twombly
Non-profit; photography; regional, national, international works.

Other artists represented:
Ansel Adams, Leslie Allan Burch, Paul Caponigro, Daniel Chauche, Frances M. Cox, Robert Frank, Yousuf Karsh, Robert Rauschenberg, Peter Woodard.

Sarasota

1541. ADLEY GALLERY
1620 Main St 33577
(813) 366-4059 By appt
Dir: Joan Adley
Works by national artists.

1542. BRUBAKER GALLERY
300 John Ringling 33577
(813) 388-2992 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Don L. Brubaker
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lubi Brugnoni, Francois Cloutier, Roger Sandes, Thornton Utz.

Other artists represented:
Melissa Barry, Ljubo Biro, Deborah Dart, John Dineen, John English, Eli Karpel, Charles Levier, Phyllis Manley, James Myford, Roland Peterson, Julian Stanczak, Raimonds Staprans, James Twitty.

1543. I. IRVING FELDMAN GALLERIES
205 N Orange Ave 33577
(813) 955-0657
Dir: Karen Feldman
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Gene Davis, Jim Dine, Charles Hinman, Paul Jenkins, Joan Miró, Henry Moore, Robert Motherwell, Louise Nevelson, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Donald Saff, Richard Smith, Rufino Tamayo.

1544. FOSTER HARMON GALLERIES OF AMERICAN ART
1415 Main St 33577
(813) 955-1002 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Foster Harmon
20th-century American paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Darrel Austin, Will Barnet, Elena Borstein, Byron Browne, James Dean, Burhan Dogancay, Balcomb Greene, Sidney Laufman, William S. Schwartz, Sue Wall, Robert Watson, Karl Zerbe.

Other artists represented:
Jane Armstrong, Milton Avery, Alexander Calder, Clarence Carter, Harrison Covington, Adolph Dehn, Lamar Dodd, Lloyd S. Gilmour, Milton Hebald, Ralph Hurst, Gyorgy Kepes, Frank Kleinholz, Nat Krate, Doris Leeper, Stanton MacDonald-Wright, Eugene Massin, Walter Meigs, LeRoy Neiman, Eliot O'Hara, Baruj Salinas, Hiram Williams, Thomas Williams.

1545. IMAGE OF SARASOTA
1323 Main St 33577
(813) 366-5097 Oct-May Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Ruth Katzman
Contemporary crafts: glass, fiber, metal, clay, leather.

Other artists represented:
Shari Brush, Jaclyn Davidson, Neil Duman, Ruth Frank, Barbara Joiner, Richard Jolley, Mark Lindquist, Lee McKeown, Yaffa Sikorsky, Bill Slade.

1546. JOAN HODGELL GALLERY
46 S Palm Ave 33577
(813) 336-1146 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-4
Dir: Joan Hodgell
Contemporary paintings, graphics, crafts, sculpture; emphasis on Southeastern artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Raffael, Craig Rubadoux.

Other artists represented:
Gene Babochenko, Roger Bansemer, John Catterall, Jeffrey Christ, Willem de Looper, Patricia Tobacco Forrester, Robert Hodgell, W. Louis Jones, Robert Larsen, William Ludwig, Bruce Marsh, Evelyn Marx, Tatianna McKinney, Philip Pearlstein, Michele Tuegel, Vernon Voelz, James Yohe, Susan Zukowsky.

1547. OEHLSCHLAEGER GALLERIES
28 S Blvd Presidents 33577
(813) 388-3312 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Frank J. Oehlschlaeger
Painting and sculpture; primarily 20th-century.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Berman, Aaron Bohrod, Louis Bosa, Al Buell, Jon Corbino, Fiore Custode, Julio de Diego, Suzanne Eisendieck, Richard Florsheim, Adam Grant, Claude Harrison, Sydney Hauser, Edna Hibel, Pierre Lavarenne, Fletcher Martin, Harry McVay, Eliot O'Hara, Robert Osborne, Edwin Sammet.

1548. JOHN AND MABLE RINGLING MUSEUM OF ART
PO Box 1838 33578
(813) 355-5101 Mon-Fri 9-7, Sat 9-5, Sun 11-6
Dir: Richard S. Carroll
Venetian Gothic building houses collections from 3000 B.C.-present; Baroque art; Rubens; contemporary works; circus memorabilia.

South Miami

1549. NETSKY GALLERY
5759 Sunset Dr 33143
(305) 662-2453 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Harriet Netsky
Contemporary crafts.

Other artists represented:
Kris Cox, Susan Eisen, Susana Espinosa, Fran Kraynek, William LeQuier, Bob Nugent, Stephen Paulsen, Neil Prince, Steven Schrepferman, Helen Shatz, Jamie Suarez, Coleen Barry Wilson.

1550. OPHELIA-ART TO WEAR
5794 Sunset Dr 33143
(305) 665-3986 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: L. Rosenthal/A. Zakarin
Handcrafted wearable art.

Other artists represented:
São-Maria Da Conceicão, Randall Darwell, Richard De Quatro, Gibberson Glass, Marv Graff, Julia Hill, Linda Mendelson, Norma Minkowitz, Yvonne Porcella, Jo Ellen Trilling.

St Petersburg

1551. SALVADOR DALI MUSEUM
1000 3rd St S 33701
(813) 823-3767 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Joan Kropf
Works by Salvador Dali: paintings, drawings, graphics, objets d'art.

1552. MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
255 Beach Drive NE 33701
(813) 896-2667 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Michael Milkovich
American, European, Pre-Columbian art; French, American, Indian, Oriental sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonardo da Vinci*, Arthur Rothstein.

Tallahassee

1553. FOUR ARTS GALLERY
1500 Apalachee Pkwy 32301
(904) 644-1554 Tue-Sat 10-4, 7-9; Sun 1-5
Dir: Allys Palladino-Craig
Contemporary painting, prints, sculpture, photography, clay; exhibitions of illustration, theater design, student work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Maria Brito-Avellena, William J. Burke, Charles Hook, Geoffrey Lardiere, David Partelow, Mary Lou Stewart, Don Wright.

1554. LEMOYNE: CENTER FOR THE VISUAL ARTS
125 N Gadsden St 32301
(904) 222-8800 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ron Yrabedra
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, prints, photography, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Albers, Ray Burggraf, Janet Mauney-Lipner, George Milton, Jo Ann Plachy, Terry Slade, Nadeshda Stahovich, Linda Van Beck.

Tampa

1555. MILLER/TOPAZ GALLERY
2009 15th St 33605
(813) 247-5173 Tue, Thu, Sat 2-5
Dir: Margaret Miller
Work in all mediums by Florida artists; prints by New York artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Oscar Bailey.

---

*see catalog index

1556. TAMPA MUSEUM
601 Doyle Carlton Dr 33602
(813) 223-8130 Tue, Thu, Fri 10-6; Wed 10-9; Sat 9-5; Sun 1-5
Dir: John H. Nozynski
Pre-Columbian sculpture; Seminole Indian artifacts, French Impressionists; modern paintings, prints, sculpture.

1557. TATE GALLERIES
309 S Fielding Ave 33606
(813) 259-1000 Mon-Fri 9-6, Sat 9-2
Dir: Gayle Tate
19th-early-20th-century European and American painting, drawing, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karen Phillips.

Other artists represented:
Kermit O'Steen.

1558. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH FLORIDA
USF Galleries, College of Fine Arts
4202 E Fowler Ave 33620
(813) 974-2848 Mon-Fri 10-5, Wed eve 5-8, Sat 1-4
Dir: Margaret A. Miller
Exhibitions of contemporary local and national artists.

1559. UNIVERSITY OF TAMPA
Lee Scarfone Gallery
401 W Kennedy Blvd 33606
(813) 253-8861 ext 217 Sep-Apr Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Dorothy Cowden
Sculpture, prints, paintings, drawings, ceramics; student and faculty work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Murray, Jane Nieves Murray, O. V. Shaffer, Harry Zimmerman.

Winter Park

1560. MORSE GALLERY OF ART
133 E Welbourne Ave 32789
(305) 644-3686 Tue-Sat 9:30-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Hugh F. McKean
Leaded windows, lamps, vases, pottery, metalwares, paintings of Louis Comfort Tiffany and his contemporaries.

W Palm Beach

1561. NORTON GALLERY AND SCHOOL OF ART
1451 S Olive Ave 33401
(305) 832-5194 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard A. Madigan
French Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings; American art, 1900-present; Chinese bronzes; jades; Buddhist sculpture; ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
J. James Akston*, Dottie Attie, Harry Beethoven, Natalie Bieser, Honore Daumier*, Edwin Dickinson, Jean-Louis Forain, Robert Graham, Joseph Raffael, Michael A. Smith.

Georgia

Athens

1563. GEORGIA MUSEUM OF ART
University of Georgia 30602
(404) 542-3280
Dir: R. Schneiderman
Renaissance, 19th- and 20th-century paintings; prints; Oriental prints and scroll paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
J.M.V. Turner*.

Atlanta

1564. ABSTEIN GALLERY OF ART AND FRAMING
1139 Spring St NW 30309
(404) 872-8020
Dir: Paul Abstein
Contemporary American art; emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Taylor.

Other artists represented:
Lily Chen, Michael Crouse, Jim Dodd, Dale Hill, William Legg, Betty Barnes Loehle, Paul Newman, Cher Thompson, Leila Yarbrough.

1565. AMERICAN ART
56 Andrews Dr NW 30305
(404) 231-0535
Dir: Robert W. Farrar
Contemporary art and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Wendell Castle, C. Andree Davit, Mishael Green, Harvey Littleton, George Mason, Karen Stoller, Katrina Weslien.

1566. ARONSON GALLERY
56 E Andrews Dr 30305
(404) 262-7331 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Frances Aronson
19th- and 20th-century European and American paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stanley Boxer, James Rosenquist, Tom Wesselmann.

Other artists represented:
Alice Baber, James Butler, Eduardo Chillida, Ed Dwight, Betty Gold, Otello Guarducci, Henri Guibal, Harry Hansen, Vadim Kosmachov, Conrad Marca-Relli, Marcia Marx, Seymour Meyer, Robert Natkin, Alexander Ney, John O'Neil, Charles Schmidt, Rodney Shaw, Jean Solombre, Harry Somers, Mark Tobey, Michael Tyzack.

1567. ARTISTS ASSOCIATES, INC.
3261 Roswell Rd NE 30305
(404) 261-4969 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Chris Riley
Georgia and Southeast artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Dewberry, Dorothy Hoeschen, Lonnie Leonard, Thomson Salter.

Other artists represented:
Connie Alexander, Lulu Burns, M. Hill Burton, Constantin Chatov, Roman Chatov, Marjorie Elder, Pat Herrington, Joan Hilliard, Laurie Lea, Betty Loehle, Jack Mason, Joe McKibben, Martha Nix, Marie Norton, Mary Passailaigue, Wilmot Phillips, Whit Harris Robbins, Alan Tiegreen, Leila Yarbrough.

1568. ATLANTA GALLERY OF PHOTOGRAPHY
3205 Paces Ferry Place 30305
(404) 233-1462 Fri-Sat 11-5
20th-century photography.

1569. JANE BICKERTON FINE ARTS
1440 High Point Pl 30306
(404) 874-4750 Mon-Sat 11-5; By appt
Dir: Jane Bickerton
Contemporary European and American prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Smith, Pat Steir.

Other artists represented:
Peter Blake, Richard Bosman, Enzo Cucchi, Jim Dine, Red Grooms, David Hockney, Howard Hodgkin, Mimmo Paladino.

1570. CRYSTAL BRITTON GALLERY
262 E Paces Ferry Rd NE 30305
(404) 231-9448 Tue-Sat 10-6; By appt
Dir: Crystal A. Britton
Contemporary painting and sculpture by American and Afro-American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paula Henderson, Jacob Lawrence.

Other artists represented:
Jerome Brown, Elizabeth Catlett, Richard Hunt, Ana Martinez, Cecil Ramsey, Betye Saar, Freddie Styles, Joan Templer, Richard Yarde.

1571. FORM & FUNCTION GALLERY
1 Rhodes Center N at Peachtree 30309
(404) 874-9718 Tue-Thu 10-6, Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6
Dir: Tom Drum
Contemporary art; clay, canvas, and works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dan Gunderson, Barbara Nelson, Rina Peleg.

Other artists represented:
Chris Christafaro, Ken Ferguson, Michael Flick, John Garrett, Anne Harris, David Barry Lewis, Hiromi Oda, Rio Snead.

1572. FORUM GALLERY
134 E Andrews Dr NW 30305
(404) 262-9294 Tue-Sat, 10-6
Dir: Diana Molina
Latin American and local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tabo Toral*.

Other artists represented:
Mario Bencomo, Kathryn Burke, Ricardo Cinalli, Comer Jennings, Cecilia Mattos, Naul Ojeda, Elmar Rojas, Rufino Tamayo.

1573. SHIRLEY FOX GALLERIES
1586-90 Piedmont Ave NE 30324
(404) 874-7294 Mon-Wed, Fri-Sat 10-6; Thu, Fri 6-10
Dir: John White
19th- and 20th-century prints, graphics, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Wayland Moore, David A. Sampson, Edward Sokol, Susan Stubbs-Robert.

1574. GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery
University Plaza 30303
(404) 658-2257 Mon-Fri 8-8
Dir: Louise E. Shaw
Contemporary painting, drawing, sculpture, prints, photography, crafts; national and regional in scope; art historical exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Nonas.

VOL 7 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1575. FAY GOLD GALLERY
3221 Cains Hill Place 30305
(404) 233-3843 Tue-Sat 10-5:30; Mon by appt
Dir: Fay Gold
20th century art and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Atget, Milton Avery, Robert Beauchamp, Jim Dow, Tom Francis, Sidney Guberman, Robert Jessup, Paul Kwilecki, Jacques Henri Lartigue, Jacques Lipchitz, Kim MacConnel, Robert Mapplethorpe, Louise Nevelson, Cindy Sherman, Bill Turner, Joe Zucker.

Other artists represented:
Georg Baselitz, Jean Michel Basquiat, Louisa Chase, Keith Haring, Jorg Immendorf, Per Kirkeby, Marcus Lüpertz, A. R. Penck, Frank Stella.

1576. GREAT AMERICAN GALLERY
1925 Peachtree Rd NE 30309
(404) 351-8210
Dir: Dean Gillette/Jere Frutchey
Fine American crafts.

Other artists represented:
David Ellsworth, Gene Koss, Jon Kuhn, Bruce Mitchell, Earl Pardon, Robert Pietruszewski, Sally Bowen Prange, Don Reitz, Harvey Sadow, Hap Sakwa, June Schwarcz, Robert Shay, Paul Soldner, Roy Superior, Shaun Weisbach, Brent Young.

1577. GREGGIE FINE ART
32 Forrest 30328
(404) 256-9417 Tue-Fri 10-5
Dir: Peggy Ellen Gregory
19th-, 20th-century graphics, and paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doré Benny, Karas.

1578. HEATH GALLERY
416 East Paces Ferry Road N E 30305
(404) 262-6407 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Annette Cone-Skelton/David C. Heath
American art of the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s; painting, sculpture, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Carl Andre, Judy Barber, Jennifer Bartlett, Lynda Benglis, Dorothy Berge, Joseph Beuys, Beverly Buchanan, Annette Cone-Skelton, Herbert Creecy, Peter Dean, Carlyn Fisher, Frank Fleming, Jim Frazer, Jim Furr, Maud Gatewood, Cheryl Goldsleger, Nancy Grossman, Margie Hughto, John Koegel, Ida Kohlmeyer, Ruth Laxson, Alexander Liberman, Kenneth Noland, Betty Parsons, Howardena Pindell, Basilios Poulos, Alan Shields, Andy Warhol.

1579. HIGH MUSEUM OF ART
1280 Peachtree St NE 30309
(404) 892-3600 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Gudmund Vigtel
19th- and 20th-century American painting, decorative arts, photography, African art, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Riddle, Stan Sharshal.

1580. IMAGE SOUTH GALLERY
1931 Peachtree Rd NE 30309
(404) 351-3179
Dir: Dean Gillette/Jere Frutchey
Contemporary sculpture, prints, photography; unique works.

Other artists represented:
Robert Brewer, James Byrd, Richard Carter, Angelyn Chandler, Roger Dorset, Robert Eginton, Horace Farlowe, Jere Frutchey, Bruce Little, William Morningstar, Philip Mullen, Jan Myers, Pat Preble, Henry Sinn, James Stevens, Raymond Tomasso, Stan Townsend, Anne Vacaro.

1581. ANN JACOB GALLERY
3500 Peachtree St 30326
(404) 262-3399
Dir: Ann Jacob
Contemporary international painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sallie Whistler Marcucci, Julie Warren Martin, Umberto Mastroiani, James Norman, Greta Schelke.

Other artists represented:
Per Arnoldi, Carlo Battaglia, Ted Chatham, William Ludwig, Peter Polites, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Ferdinard Warren.

1582. JACOBSON/HOCHMAN
1197 Peachtree St NE 30361
(404) 875-1438 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Irene Morgan
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Robyn Denny, Howard Hodgkin, Henry Moore, William Tillyer.

1583. RAY KETCHAM GALLERY
3232 Roswell Rd 30305
(404) 237-0770 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Ray Ketcham, Jr.
19th- and early-20th-century American and European paintings.

1584. LAGERQUIST GALLERY
3235 Paces Ferry Place NW 30305
(404) 261-8273 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Evelyn J. Lagerquist
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and etchings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Lou Carpenter, Rossie Clark, Carole Connely, Richard Crichton, Lane Duncan, Jack Ramsey, Dale Rayburn.

Other artists represented:
Larry Anderson, June Ball, Sidney Butches, Constantine Chatov, Mark Chatov, Roman Chatov, Linda Fouts, Mariane Hornbuckle, Steve Jepson, Myrtle Jones, Richard Loehle, Caroline Montague, Daga Ramsey, Mamie Joe Rayburn, Jean Sauls.

1585. EVE MANNES GALLERY
288 E Paces Ferry Rd NE 30305
(404) 237-8477
Dir: Evelyn Herold
Contemporary art: clay, fiber, glass, sculpture, painting.

1586. MCINTOSH GALLERY
1122 Peachtree St 30309
(404) 892-4023
Dir: Louisa McIntosh

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Romare Bearden, Deborah Lee Buchanan.

Other artists represented:
Hans Erni, Cathleen Girdler, Uri Grachev, Sylvia Grogan, Gabrielle Loire, Alexander Ney, Vitali Stesin.

1587. NEXUS GALLERIES
360 Fortune St 30312
(404) 688-1970 Tue-Fri 1-6, Sat 1-5, Thu eve 6-9
Dir: Amy Landesberg/Kiyoaki Kato
Contemporary art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Jere Brookshire, Harry Callahan, Romnie Landfield, Harriet Liebowitz, Mary Carolyn Pindar, Richard Reep, Robert Simone, Roger Vail.

1588. OLYMPIA GALLERIES
267 E Paces Ferry Rd 30385
(404) 237-5660
Dir: Jack Titleman
Vintage photographs, Japanese woodblock prints, 20th-century painting.

Other artists represented:
Mary Dillwyn, Thomas Eakins.

1589. DAVID S. RAMUS GALLERY
273 E Paces Ferry Rd 30305
(404) 266-0044

Other artists represented:
J. J. Audubon, Mary Cassatt, Mark Catesby, Edgar Degas, Childe Hassam, Winslow Homer, Maurice Prendergast, Constant Troyon, Alexander Wyant.

1590. STANLEY AND SCHENCK
229 Peachtree St 30303
(404) 525-4728
Dir: Charles Stanley
American art of the Southeast.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Bronislaw Bak, Clayton Bass, O. J. Bergeron, Edward Carlos, Dale Cochran, Ran Coney, Christopher Cramer, Betty Duncan, Brent Funderburk, Michael Goettee, Richard Hagerty, Phillippe Halsman, John Hardy, Greg Johnson, Charles Keiger, James Lloyd, Jane McCord, Miriam Newman, Peter Nishanian, Henry Ransom, Anthony Rice, Zdislaw Sikora, Mark Smith.

Augusta

1592. GERTRUDE HERBERT MEMORIAL INSTITUTE OF ART
506 Telfair St 30901
(404) 722-5495 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun By appt
Dir: Kay Allen
Art institute; traditional and contemporary exhibitions; paintings and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thompson Salter.

Columbus

1593. COLUMBUS MUSEUM OF ARTS AND SCIENCES
1251 Wynnton Rd 31906
(404) 323-3617 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: William E. Scheele
American and European paintings; American Impressionists; Indian, archeological, and local history exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Walter Anderson, Bo Bartlett*, James Joseph Haverty, Edward Hopper, Robert Hyde, Donna Maddox, Arthur Stewart*, Alma Thomas*.

Macon

1594. MUSEUM OF ARTS AND SCIENCES
4182 Forsyth Rd 31210
(912) 477-3232 Mon-Thu 9-5, Fri 9-9, Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Nancy Anderson
Arts and crafts of Georgia and the Southwest; 20th-century American and European works; contemporary prints.

Savannah

1595. SAVANNAH COLLEGE OF ART AND DESIGN Exhibit A Gallery
342 Bull St 31401
(912) 236-7458
Dir: Norman Blackwell
Non-profit; contemporary American art.

---

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benny Andrews, Phoebe Beasley, Butler Brown, Bernie Casey, Larry Connatser, Mark Flowers, Myrtle Jones King.

1596. TELFAIR ACADEMY OF ARTS & SCIENCE
121 Barnard St 31401
(912) 232-1177 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Alexander Gaudieri
Late 19th- and early-20th-century American impressionist paintings; early-19th-century furnishings; Regency period works.

Hawaii

Hilo

1597. WAILOA CENTER
PO Box 936 96720
(808) 961-7360 Mon-Sat 8:30-4
Dir: Tadao Okimoto
Historical, contemporary, and Hawaiian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Wayne Miyamoto.

Holualoa

1598. HALE O'KULA GALLERY
Box 416 96725
(808) 324-1688 Mon 10-4
Dir: Sam Rosen/Robbin Rosen
Local painting, blown glass, sculpture, wood, poetry, jewelry.

1599. STUDIO 7 AND GALLERY
PO Box 416 96725
(808) 324-1688
Dir: Sam Rosen/Robbin Rosen
Local painting, blown glass, sculpture, wood, poetry, jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Hiroki Morinoue.

Honolulu

1600. ARTS COUNCIL OF HAWAII
PO Box 50225 96850
(808) 524-7120 Mon-Fri 9:30-4
Dir: Karl Ichida
Arts advocacy organization.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gladys Crampton, Robert Fung, Marianna Piñeda, Doug Simonson.

1601. CENTER ART GALLERIES—HAWAII
PO Box 15577 96815
(808) 926-2727 Daily 9-11
Dir: Marvin L. Wiseman
Eight galleries; graphics, paintings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Quinn*

Other artists represented:
Lenore Beran, William DeShazo, Margaret Keane, Walter Lantz, David Lee, Robert Nelson, James Scoppettone, Red Skelton.

1602. CONTEMPORARY ARTS CENTER
605 Kapiolani Blvd 96813
(808) 525-8047 Mon-Fri 8:30-5, Sat 8:30-12
Dir: Laila B. Roster
Museum for experimental, performing, video, film and other visual arts, featuring regional contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Satoru Abe, Robert B. Bush, Steven V. Correia, Douglas M. Doi, Harve McVay, John Takami Morita, Marianna Piñeda.

1603. GALLERY EAS
1426 Makaloa St 96814
(808) 947-1426 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Charlene A. Tashima
Contemporary Japanese and Ukiyo-e prints, works by contemporary Island artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Clayton Amemiya, James Hoyle, Dorothy Mandel, Yukio Ozaki, Frank Salmoiraghi, John Thomas.

Other artists represented:
Satoru Abe, Mary Bonic, Jean Charlot, Kauka de Silva, Ed Higa, Joichi Hoshi, Roy Ihara, Sally Kunstadter, Yoshitoshi Mori, Hiroki Morinoue, John Morita, Shirley Russell, Seikichi Takara, Stan Tomita, Joanne Trotter.

1604. GIMA'S ART GALLERY
Ala Moana Center 96814
(808) 949-7526 Mon-Fri 9:30-9; Sat, Sun 10-5
Dir: Susan Gima
Contemporary Hawaiian artists.

1605. HONOLULU ACADEMY OF ARTS
900 S Beretania St 96814
(808) 538-3693 Tue, Wed, Fri, Sat 10-4:30; Thu 11-8; Sun 2-5
Dir: George R. Ellis
Asian, Western, graphic art; Italian Renaissance paintings, Ukiyo-e prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bernard Childs, Barbara Engle, Joseph Feher, Frank Gillette, Genichiro Inokuma, Sally Shapiro, Kazu Wakita, Andy Warhol, John Young, Francisco Zuniga.

1606. IMAGES INTERNATIONAL OF HAWAII
Hyatt Regency Hotel—Waikiki 2nd Floor 96815
(808) 926-5081 Daily 9-11
Dir: Andrew P. Fisher
Oriental and Hawaiian contemporary paintings and prints.

Other artists represented:
Elba Alvarez, Tatsuo Ito, Peter Jacka, David Lee, Hisashi Otsuka, Joyce Patti, Andrew Weyth.

1607. INTERNATIONAL CONNOISSEURS
1515 Laukahi St 96816
(808) 235-5775 By appt
Dir: Larry V. LeDoux
Paintings and prints by Makk family.

Other artists represented:
A. B. Makk, Americo Makk, Eva Makk.

1608. KOKO HEAD GALLERY
7192 Kalanianaole Hwy 96825
(808) 395-3911 Mon-Fri 10-8, Sat 10-6, Sun 11-4
Dir: Kathryn J. Frey
Contemporary paintings, prints, sculpture, pottery and jewelry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joan Allen.

Other artists represented:
John Bade, Linda Bade, Nereo Bicarme, Rodney Chang, Donald Hallock, Shirley Hasenjager, Anne Irons, Claryca Loring, Robert H. McWilliams, Joel Mochida, Arthur Nelander, Deanne Pitluck, Rosalie Prussing, Helene Romayne, Lenora Suga, John Whyland, Jinja Kim Woolard, George Woollard.

Ken Goodman: Thinker II, 1982; Herron School of Art, Indiana Univ. (Nov. 5-Dec. 18. 1982).

1609. QUEEN EMMA GALLERY
1301 Punchbowl St 96813
(808) 547-4397 Daily 9-4
Dir: Masa Taira
Alternative space specializing in works by Hawaiian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Asakura-Kimura, Linda Bade, Leilani Fox, Sally French, Clarence Lee, Leroy Lehano, Grace Lew, Mayumi Oda, Dorothy Saxon, Sybil.

Other artists represented:
Peter Almeida, Ruthadell Anderson, Allyn Bromley, Winifred Hudson, Marcia Morse, Shigeru Narikawa, Sonchai Nisayaphantha, Elizabeth Train, Dietrich Varez.

1610. UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII
Art Gallery
2535 The Mall 96822
(808) 948-6888 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Tom Klobe
Exhibitions of faculty and student work; historical and contemporary art.

Kailua

1611. PLAZA GALLERY
970 N Kalaheo Ave 96734
(808) 254-4201 Mon-Fri 11-5
Dir: Ann Beeson
Contemporary art works by members of the Windward Artist Guild.

Kailua-Kona

1612. KONA-MINI GALLERY
Box 1134 96740
(808) 329-3757
Dir: Gayle Anderson
Miniature works by Hawaiian artists.

Other artists represented:
Dale Addelsberger, Gayle Anderson, Marian Berger, Benjamin Diama, Pegge Hopper, Mac Johnson, Vicki Serva.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

1613. SHOWCASE GALLERY
Box 4895 96740
(808) 329-3090 Daily 9-9
Dir: Jean A. Josepho
Fine art and crafts by Hawaiian artists.

Kaneohe

1614. HART & TAGAMI GALLERY
47-754 Lamaula Rd 96744
(808) 239-8146 By appt
Dir: Richard Hart/Hiroshi Tagami
Stoneware pottery; paintings.

Other artists represented:
Richard Hart, Hiroshi Tagami.

Kapalua

1615. KAPALUA GALLERY
123 Bay Dr 96761
(808) 669-5047 Daily 9-6
Dir: Gary Smith
Hawaiian and international art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Guy Buffet, Bill Christian, A. B. Makk, Americo Makk, Eva Makk, Robert L. Nelson, Andrea Smith.

Lahaina

1616. CASAY GALLERY
658 Front St 96761
(808) 667-9023
Dir: Jim Killett
Seascapes.

Other artists represented:
Anthony Casay, Art Long, Robert Wood.

1617. LAHAINA GALLERY
117 Lahainaluna Rd 96761
(808) 661-0839
Dir: Jim Killett
Local and West Coast artists.

Other artists represented:
Guy Buffet, Anthony Casay, David Lee, Art Long, Americo Makk, Eva Makk, Robert Nelson, Andrea Smith.

1618. PICTURES OF PARADISE
Lahaina Shopping Center 96761
(808) 661-8196 Mon-Fri 8-6
Dir: Marlene Chock
19th-20th-century prints; Hawaiiana.

Other artists represented:
David Hockney, Robert Motherwell, Frank Stella, Andy Warhol.

1619. VILLAGE GALLERIES
1287 Front St 96761
(808) 661-3280 Daily 10-6
Dir: Lynn Shue
Three galleries; works in all mediums by Hawaiian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Allan, Nel Cary, Lau Chun, Joyce Clark, Curtis Wilson Cost, Anne Fawcett, Gloria Foss, Betty Hay Freeland, Pamela Hayes, Peter Hayward, G. S. Hill, Pegge Hopper, Frederick Kenknight, Kristin Kuhns, Wayne La Com, Keith Lindberg, Lowell Mapes, Macario Pascual, Bernhard Peterson, Cecelia Rodriguez, Ian Tremewen, David Warren.

Other artists represented:
Bill Bagley, Wong Ching, Marian Freeman, Richard Nelson, Barbara Nickels, Hajime Okuda, Louis Pohl, Shirley Shepherd, Hiroshi Tagami, Michele Taylor, Shige Yamada.

Lihue

1620. KAUAI MUSEUM
4428 Rice St 96766
(808) 245-6931 Mon-Fri 9:30-4:30; Nov, Dec Sat 9-1
Dir: David Penhallow
Art exhibitions; history and culture of Kauai.

1621. STONES GALLERY
2042 Kukui Grove Center 96766
(808) 245-6653 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Carol Adams
Fine art and craft work by Hawaiian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carol Bennett, Pegge Hopper, James Kay.

Other artists represented:
Guy Buffet, James Hoyle, Rebecca Hyland, Tambi Larsen, H. M. Luquiens, Richard Moore, Hiroki Morinoue, Boone Morrison, Muriel Parfitt, John Thomas, Elizabeth Train, William Twibell, White-Smith, Wilfred Yamazawa.

Pearl City

1622. LEEWARD COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Foyer Art Gallery
96-045 Ala Ike 96782
(808) 455-0230 Daily 8-4:30
Dir: Pikake Wahilani
Fine arts and crafts by local artists; curriculum-related programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Manuel Cabral, Patrick Ching, Kaoru Higa, Kenneth Kwan, Federito Vinluan.

Poipu Beach, Kauai

1623. A THING OF BEAUTY—GALLERY AT WAIOHAI
Waiohai Hotel 96766
(808) 742-9211 Mon-Sat 9-9, Sun 9-6
Dir: Elizabeth Habermann
Fine art and crafts by Hawaiian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Gregg Byrne, Glenn Habermann, David Kuraoka, A. T. Lyon, John Wisnosky, Wilfred Yamazawa.

Other artists represented:
Carol Bennett, John Burton, Lau Chun, Dane Clark, Steve Davis, Russ Graff, Pat Griffin, Leonard Herbert, Kelley Family, Alice Knight, Pattie Miyashiro, Hiroki Morinoue, Laka Morton, Kelly Mulford, Richard L. Nelson, Louis Pohl, Nancy Smith, Hiroshi Tagami, Reuben Tam, Mark White.

Volcano

1624. VOLCANO ART CENTER
Box 189 96785
(808) 967-7511 Daily 9:30-4:30
Dir: Marsha Morrison
Contemporary Hawaiian fine art and crafts; non-profit.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
S. E. Coleman, Bill Irwin.

Idaho

Boise

1625. BOISE GALLERY OF ART
670 S Julia Davis Dr 83702
(208) 345-8330 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Dennis O'Leary
Municipal visual arts center to promote local and state art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Airhart, Alfredo Arreguin, Marsha Barney, John Bashor*, Deborah Butterfield*, James Castle*, John Mason, Duane Schnabel, Richard Shaw*, Frank Anthony Smith.

Sun Valley

1626. SUN VALLEY CENTER GALLERY
4th and Leadville PO Box 656 83353
(208) 726-9491 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Greer Markle
Exhibitions by artists affiliated with the Sun Valley Center for Arts and Humanities.

Other artists represented:
Terry Allen, David Bradley, Peter de Lory, Stephen De Staebler, Dan Doak, Reed Estabrook, Jo Harvey-Allen, Mike Henderson, James Henkel, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Annie Leibovitz, Mark McFadden, N. Scott Momady, Fran Noel, Jim Pomeroy, Gayle Prunhuber, Jim Romberg, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Darren Vigil, William Wegman, D. W. Wharton, Randy Lee Whitehorse, William Wiley, John Will, Larry Williams, Bob Winokur, Paula Winokur.

Illinois

Bloomington

1627. ILLINOIS WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY
Merwin and Wakeley Galleries 61701
(309) 556-3077 Sep-May, Mon-Sun 1-4, Tue eve 7-9
Dir: Anna Calluori-Holcombe
Exhibitions related to academic programs, the University, and the community; ceramics, painting, photography, drawing, printmaking, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ron Geibert, Sandra Perlow.

---

*see catalog index

Carbondale

1628. SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
University Museum 62901
(618) 453-5388 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sun 1:30-4:30
Dir: John J. Whitlock
13th- to 20th-century European and American paintings, drawings, prints, photography, sculpture; Oceanic, Asiatic, and decorative arts; archeology; Southern Illinois history.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Aldon Addington, Harry Callahan*, Rudy Pozzatti, Ernest Trova.

Carlinville

1629. BLACKBURN COLLEGE
Renner Art Gallery 62626
(217) 854-3231 ext 235
Dir: Peter J. Slavish
Works by contemporary regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Laurence Buxbaum, Linda King, Lisa Lloyd, Brent Sparlin, Stella Tripp, Cathy Waymeyer.

Champaign

1630. UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
Krannert Art Museum
500 E Peabody 61820
(217) 333-1860 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Stephen Prokopoff
Old Master paintings, European and American 20th-century, decorative, ancient, medieval, Pre-Columbian, African, Oriental arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Weston.

Chicago

1631. ALICE ADAM
PO Box 11616 60611
(312) 787-7295 By appt
Dir: Alice Adam
19th- and 20th-century prints and drawings; German Expressionism.

Other artists represented:
Max Beckmann, Lyonel Feininger, George Grosz, Erich Heckel, Wassily Kandinsky, Eili Kirchner, Paul Klee, Gustav Klimt, Oscar Kokoschka, Kaethe Kollwitz, Moholy-Nagy, Edvard Munch, Emil Nolde, Egon Schiele, Karl Schmidt-Rottluff.

1632. ALBANY BANK & TRUST CO SCULPTURE GARDEN
3400 W Lawrence Ave 60625
(312) 267-7300 Mon-Thu 9-3, Fri 9-7, Sat 9-1
Dir: Martin L. Gecht
Sculpture by Chicago and vicinity artists in public outdoor setting; permanent and new works.

Other artists represented:
Alice A. Culbert, Jerald Jacquard, Terrence Karpowicz, Brian Edward Monaghan, Paul Slepak.

1633. ARC GALLERY
6 W Hubbard St 60610
(312) 266-7607 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Gail Simpson
Not-for-profit cooperative art gallery; 24 Chicago-area women members.

Other artists represented:
Carol Austin, Nancy Boswell-Mayer, Jan Calek, Michele Corazzo, Sue Gertz, Margot Gottfried, Donna Hapac, Thelma Heagstedt, Melinda Hunt, Mary Jones, Carol Kaplan, Judith Kasen, Ursala Kavanagh, Joan Lyon, Mary Min, Katherine Pappas-Parks, Sharron Porter, Joyce Rebora, Fern Samuels, Charlotte Segal, Gail Simpson, Marilyn Sward, Justine Wantz.

1634. ARCHICENTER GALLERY
330 S Dearborn 60604
(312) 782-1776 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 9-4:30
Dir: Jane Lucas
Cooperative specializing in architectural exhibitions.

1635. ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO
Michigan Ave at Adams St 60603
(312) 443-3600 Mon-Fri 10:30-4:30, Thu 10:30-8, Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: James N. Wood
European and American Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings; Japanese prints; 18th- and 19th-century French prints and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Atget, Giuseppe Bandirali, Edward H. Bennett, Joseph Cornell, Mariano Fortuny, Nagasaki-e, Eiichi Sakurai.

1636. ARTEMISIA GALLERY
9 W Hubbard St 60610
(312) 751-2016 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Nicole Ferentz
Painting, photography, graphics, installation, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jane Calvin, Barbara Ciurej, Mimi Dolnick, Nicole Ferentz, Judy Geitchman, Judy Hartle, Margaret Lanterman, Lindsay Lochman, Ann O'Malley, Nancy Plotkin, Heidi Seidelhuber, Toby Zallman.

Other artists represented:
Anita David, Michelle Fire, Diana Foster, Olivia Petrides, Alice Shaddle, Fern Shaffer, Maureen Warren.

1637. ARTS CLUB OF CHICAGO
109 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 787-3997
Dir: Patricia M. Scheidt
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings; one-person and group exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Bowers*, Mies van der Rohe*.

1638. BALZEKAS MUSEUM OF LITHUANIAN CULTURE
4012 Archer Ave 60632
(312) 847-2441 Daily 1-4
Dir: Stanley Balzekas, Jr.
Lithuanian antiquities, artifacts, memorabilia, and literature spanning 800 years; textiles, weapons, and armor, wooden folk art, art gallery, research library, archives.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rimvydas Lapšys, Eleanora Marciulionis.

1639. BARBARA BALKIN GALLERY
425 N Clark St 60610
(312) 321-9010 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 11:30-5, Mon by appt
Dir: Kathy Kishner
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and photography; new and master printmakers.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephen Hartman, John Himmelfarb, Donald Newman, Michael Steiner, Michael Tropea.

Other artists represented:
Ida Applebroog, David Deutsch, Richard Deutsch, Art Kleinman, Suzan Kunz, Stuart Nielsen, Alison Ruttan, Italo Scanga, Steven Sorman, Scott Stack.

1640. JACQUES BARUCH GALLERY
900 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 944-3377 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Jacques Z. Baruch/Anne Baruch
Graphics, photographs, tapestries, paintings from Czechoslovakia, Poland, and Yugoslavia.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jiří Anderle, Jan Saudek, Josef Sudek.

Other artists represented:
Magdalena Abakanowicz, Jiří Balcar, Albín Brunovský, Zofia Butrymowicz, Hanna Czajkowska, Juraj Dobrovic, Vladimír Gažovič, Jerzy Grabowski, Francoise Grossen, Jiri John, Cestmir Kafka, Libby Kowalski, Jan Krejčí, Jan Kubicek, Alena Kučerová, Oldřich Kulhánek, Lilla Kulka, Karel Vítěslav Mašek, Jolanta Owidzka, Gabor Peterdi, Andrzej Pietsch, Charles B. Reynolds, Adriena Simotova, Sherri Smith, Judith Steinhauser, Vladimir Suchanek, Han-Lien Wu.

1641. MARY BELL GALLERIES
361 W Superior St 60610
(312) 642-0202 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 1-5
Dir: Mary Bell
Abstract work by contemporary American artists.

Other artists represented:
Esther Brenner, Mark Dickson, Burhan Dogancay, Phyllis Fannin, Tom Gathman, Jeffrey Gelick, Lee Goldstrom, James Knowles, Barbara Kowalski, Audrey Leamon, Patricia Moore, Heidi Schroeder, Liane Sebastian, Marko Spalatin, Edvins Strautmanis, Yvonne Tofthagen, Alice Welton.

1642. BENJAMIN-BEATTIE
1000 Lake Shore Dr 60611
(312) 337-1343 By appt
Dir: Orville C. Beattie
American scene prints, contemporary American graphics; sculpture.

Other artists represented:
George Bellows, Thomas Hart Benton, Armin Landeck, Martin Lewis, Reginald Marsh, John Sloan, Grant Wood.

1643. BERNAL GALLERY
612 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 943-1147 Fri, Sat 12-5
Dir: Lucrecia A. Bernal-Schneider
Primarily Chicago artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Flatzek, William Herman, David Johnson, Tom Kenny, Sam Marts, David Shipman.

Other artists represented:
Sherry Healy, Joel Sheesley, Ann Slavick, William Soltis, Jay Zerbe.

1644. ROY BOYD GALLERY
215 W Superior St 60610
(312) 642-1606 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Roy Boyd/Ann Boyd
Contemporary sculpture, paintings, drawings, watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bower, Jeff Colby, Michael Davis, Joe Fay, Peter Feldstein, Sarah Krepp, Robert McCauley, Bob Nugent, Richard Overstreet, Gordon Powell, Dan Ramirez, Susan Sensemann, Don Sorenson, Buzz Spector, Barry Tinsley.

Other artists represented:
Keith Achepohl, David Bottini, Carol Burch-Brown, Rodney Carswell, John Dilg, Herbert Ferber, Steve Heino, Vera Klement, Tom Levine, Stephen Luecking, Clement Meadmore, Jay Phillips, Charlotte Rollman, Ed Shay, Ernest Silva, Ted Stamm, Bruce White, Mark Williams, Dan Ziembo.

1645. CAMPANILE GALLERIES
200 S Michigan Ave 60604
(312) 663-3885 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 9:30-4
Dir: Howard B. Capponi
19th- and early-20th-century American, French, and Italian masters.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Elliott, A. J. Obara, Clemente Spampinato*, Paul Strayer*.

1646. CARL HAMMER GALLERY

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 266–8512 Tue–Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Ken Hodorowski

Sculptural and figurative folk art: naive, visionary painting; woodcarvings; whirligigs.

Other artists represented:
Eddie Arning, Will Edmondson, Inez Nathaniel-Walker, Nellie Mae Rowe, Edgar Tolson, Bill Traylor, Joseph Yoakum, Albert Zahn.

1647. MERRILL CHASE GALLERIES

Water Tower Place, 835 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 337–6600
Dir: Dale Litt

19th- and 20th-century American and European paintings, sculpture, prints, tapestries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Addison*.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali, Frederick Hart, Robert Kipniss, Thomas Locker, Harry McCormick, Leonardo Nierman, Pablo Picasso, Manuel Robbe.

1648. CHICAGO CENTER FOR THE PRINT

1509-13 W Fullerton Ave 60614
(312) 477–1585 Tue–Sat 12–8, Sun 12–5
Dir: Susan Hunt-Wulkowicz/Dennis McWilliams

Work of Chicago and Midwest printmakers; printshop; educational displays.

1649. CHICAGO HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Clark St at North Ave 60614
(312) 642–4600
Dir: Ellsworth H. Brown

Local, regional, and American history.

1650. CHICAGO PUBLIC LIBRARY CULTURAL CENTER

78 E Washington St 60602
(312) 744–6630 Mon–Thu 9–7, Fri 9–6, Sat 9–5
Dir: Janet Carl Smith

Exhibitions administered by Chicago Council on Fine Arts; permanent art and history collections; public programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Magdalena Abakanowicz, Deborah Bright, Clark Dean, Stephen Deutch, Don DuBroff, Katherine Dunham, Joyce Fernandes, Gretchen Garner, Mary Hatch, John Kimmich, Linda Kramer, Robert McCauley, Joan Moss, Scott Mutter, Melissa Pinney, Peter Ratner, Maya Romanoff, August Sandor, Terry Tepper.

1651. JAN CICERO GALLERY

437 N Clark 60610
(312) 644–5374 Tue–Sat 11:30–5
Dir: Jan Cicero

Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings, and prints; many Chicago-area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barbara Blades, Sydney Drum, Theodore Halkin, David McCullough, Susan Michod.

1652. CIVIC CENTER

66 W Washington St 60602
(312) 744–6630 Mon–Fri 9–5
Dir: Marie Cummings

Public space exhibiting photographs, small paintings, graphics, drawings, folk arts, sculpture; a program of Chicago Council on Fine Arts.

1653. COLLECTORS GALLERY

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 649–0468 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Robert H. Mason

19th-century American and English sporting prints.

1655. COLUMBIA COLLEGE GALLERIES

600 S Michigan Ave 60605
(312) 663–1600 Mon–Thu 10–9; Fri, Sat 10–5
Dir: Steven Klindt

All areas of contemporary art with an emphasis on photography; permanent collection of American photographs since 1960.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marsha Burns, Harry Callahan, Vernon Cheek, Van Deren Coke, Linda Gammell, Gretchen Garner, Betty Hahn, Martin Hurtig, Jay King, Linda Kramer, Barbara Morgan, Helmut Newton, Tom Petrillo, David Plowden, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen.

1656. CONSTRUCT

101 N Wacker Dr 60606
(312) 853–1125 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat by appt
Dir: Elizabeth Wangler

Artist-owned gallery/agency for large- and small-scale sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Mark di Suvero, Linda Fleming, Charles Ginnever, John Henry, Linda Howard, Lyman Kipp, Frank McGuire, Jerry Peart.

1657. CONTEMPORARY ART WORKSHOP

542 W Grant Pl 60614
(312) 525–9624 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30, Sat 12–5
Dir: Lynn Kearney

Two- and three-dimensional, conceptual, and performance work by emerging artists from the Midwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anna Horvath, David Moose, Theresa Taylor.

Other artists represented:
Bob Bechtol, Christopher Boyce, Matthew De Genaro, Kenneth Gortowski, John Kearney, Alex Nelson, Didier Nolet, Arnaldo Roche, Brad Waryan, Terri Zupanc.

1658. DART GALLERY

212 W Superior #203 60610
(312) 787–6366 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 12–5
Dir: Rebecca Donelson/Andree Stone

Contemporary American drawings, paintings, sculpture, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nicholas Africano.

Other artists represented:
Lynda Benglis, Richard Bosman, Phyllis Bramson, Stuart Diamond, Wendy Edwards, Martha Erlebacher, Gretchen Garner, Sam Gilliam, Roland Ginzel, Susan Hall, Michael Hurson, Robert Kushner, Robert Lostutter, Kim MacConnel, Ronald Markman, Irving Petlin, Ellen Phelan, Miriam Schapiro, Barbara Schwartz, Hollis Sigler, Joan Thorne, William Wegman, John Willenbecher, Joe Zucker.

1659. MARIANNE DESON GALLERY

340 W Huron St 60610
(312) 787–0005 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–5
Dir: Marianne Deson Herstein

Experimental contemporary art; abstract, figurative, site, and installation works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edith Altman, Michelle Amateau, Andrea Blum, Michael Brakke, Bill Cass, Paolo Colombo, Cristos Gianakos, Michiko Itatani, Gary Justis, Susan Kraut, Ed McGowin, Dennis Oppenheim, Andy Warhol, Thornton Willis, Charles Wilson, Robert Yasuda, Elyn Zimmerman.

Other artists represented:
Hyong Nam Ahn, Mary Ahrendt, Lita Albuquerque, John Baldessari, Bill Beckley, John Breitweiser, Rosemarie Castoro, Nancy Davidson, L.J. Douglas, Jackie Ferrara, Freya Hansell, Fred Holland, Dennis Kowalski, Heather McAdams, Jim Morphesis, Esther Parada, Tony Phillips, Nancy Pletos, Gerhard Richter, Tom Rose, Ed Ruscha, Rudy Serra, Gregory Spiggle, Bernar Venet, Marcia Weese, Dan Yarbrough.

1654. DOBRICK GALLERY

216 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 337–2002 Tue–Fri 10–5, Sat 12–5
Dir: Jo-Anne Dobrick

Contemporary American paintings, drawings, sculpture, photography.

Other artists represented:
John Alexander, Michael Ansell, Michael Bigger, Jean Chevalier, Stoney Conley, Douglas Cumming, Matthew Daub, Daniel Douke, Mary Beth Edleson, Raymon Elozua, Alan Greenberg, Carol Hammerman, Marvin Harden, Wayne Hazen, Jim Henkel, Claude Kent, Alan Kessler, Stan Klein, Cork Marcheschi, Ed Mayer, John McCracken, Scott Minick, John Mominee, Bruce Monteith, Michael Newhall, Linda Robbennolt, Orie Shafer, Al Souza, Robert Stackhouse, Larry Stark, Ted Victoria, Martin Wanserski.

1660. DUSABLE MUSEUM OF AFRICAN-AMERICAN HISTORY

740 E 56th Pl 60637
(312) 947–0600 Mon–Fri 9–5; Sat, Sun 1–5
Dir: Margaret Burroughs

African and African-American sculpture, paintings, relics, memorabilia.

1661. LINDA EINFELD GALLERY

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 951–0309 Tue–Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Linda Einfeld

Traditional arts of Africa, Oceania, and the Americas.

1662. EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO

130 S Lasalle St 60603
(312) 781–8076 Daily 8:30–5:30
Dir: Herbert Kahn

Photography from its beginnings to the present.

1663. EXHIBIT A

233 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 944–1748 Tue–Fri 10:30–5, Sat 10:30–5
Dir: Alice M. Westphal

Contemporary American ceramics; art in other mediums by ceramists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thom Bohnert, Ruth Duckworth, Tony Hepburn, Dennis Mitchell, George Timock, Robert Turner.

Other artists represented:
Richard DeVore, Richard Diebenkorn, Jim Makins, Peter Voulkos.

1664. FAIRWEATHER HARDIN GALLERY

101 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 642–0007 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Sally Fairweather/Shirley Hardin

Contemporary art, all mediums; regional painters and sculptors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Margo Hoff, Max Kahn, Betty Parsons, George Rickey, Julie Schneider, Jerry Torn, Joyce Treiman, Ulfert Wilke.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Aubin, Rainey Bennett, Harry Bertoia, George Buehr, Francis Chapin, Eleanor Coen, George d'Almeida, Lillian Florsheim, Tom Fricano, Paula Gerard, Santi Graziani, Lee Hall, Po Kim, Martyl, Robert Middaugh, William Moulis, Mickey Myers, Arthur Osver, Abbott Pattison, Will Peterson, David Resch, Lenore Tawney.

1665. JOSEPH FAULKNER-MAIN ST GALLERY

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 787–3301 Daily 10–5
Dir: Joseph W. Faulkner

19th-20th-century prints and drawings.

Other artists represented:
George Bellows, George Braque, Edward Hopper, Henri Matisse, Pablo Picasso, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

1666. FEDERAL CENTER MUSEUM

219 S Dearborn St 60604
(312) 353–6996 Mon–Fri 8–5
Dir: Henry Schueler

Museum "without walls"; exhibitions of local artists in a plaza and three lobbies; affiliated with Art in Public Places.

---

*see catalog index

1667. WALLY FINDLAY GALLERIES
814 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 649–1500 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30, Sat 9:30–5
Dir: Helen T. Findlay
French Impressionists; Post-Impressionists; contemporary painters mainly of the School of Paris.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bernard Gantner*, Claude Gaveau, Fred Jessup*, Constantin Kluge, Gustavo Novoa*, Raymond Quence*, Nicola Simbari, Jean Vollet*.

Other artists represented:
Yolande Ardissone, Philippe Augé, Michèle Battut, Joan Beltran Bofill, André Bourrié, Jean-Pierre Capron, Jacqueline Chuteau, Maryse Ducaire, Jacques Eitel, Louis Fabien, André Hambourg, Don Hazen, Gregory Hull, Le Pho, Henri Maik, Fred McDuff, Michel-Henry, Zvonimir Mihanovic, Ljubomir Milinkov, Marie-Lucie Nessi, Gaston Sébire, André Vignoles, Vu Cao Dam.

1668. ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY-PHOTOGRAPHS
1306 Byron 60613
(312) 883–0888 By appt
Dir: Carol Ehlers
Specializes in European avant-garde and American photographs from the 1920s and 30s.

Other artists represented:
Berenice Abbott, Eugene Atget, Ilse Bing, Patty Carroll, Van Deren Coke, Walker Evans, Laszlo Moholy-Nagy, Man Ray, Paul Strand, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen.

1669. FRUMKIN & STRUVE GALLERY
309 W Superior St 60610
(312) 787–0563 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: William Struve
Contemporary American art; architectural photographs, drawings, and objects.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hedrich Blessing, Jim Cook, Rafael Ferrer*, Neil Goodman, Sue Hettmansperger, Peter Holbrook, Adam Siegel.

Other artists represented:
Robert Arneson, John Baisley, Robert Barnes, Jack Beal, Joan Brown, Roy DeForest, Robert Donley, Robert Hudson, Alfred Leslie, James McGarrell, Philip Pearlstein, Peter Saul, Suzanne Slavick, Jeanette Sloan, Patricia Tobacco-Forrester, James Valerio, William T. Wiley, James Winn.

1670. GALERIES D'ART INTERNATIONAL
720 S Dearborn St 60605
(312) 427–1555 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Ante Glibota
Contemporary European and American art; catalogs available.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Advedor, Jiminez Balaguer, Claude Bellegarde, Max Ernst, Elizabeth Franzheim, Shiela Hicks, John Franklin Koenig, Slavko Kopac, Ferdinand Kulmer.

Other artists represented:
Augusto Barros, Rafael Canogar, Piero Dorazio, Chiara Fiorini, Leon Gischia, Ricardo Licata, Robert Malaval, Jean Messagier, Edo Murtic, Tomislav Nickolic, Achille Perilli, Armando Pizzinato, Charles Pollock, Pierre Soulages.

1671. GALERIJA
226 W Superior St 60610
(312) 280–1149 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Algimantas Kezys
Cooperative gallery; contemporary Lithuanian art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Linda Beresnevicius, Adomas Galdikas, Algimantas Kezys*, Viktoras Petravicius*, Zita Sodeika, Madalena Stankunas, Gabrielius Stanulis*, Maria Strasevicius, Anastazija Tamosaitis, Henrieta Verstas, Vytautas Virkau.

1672. GALLERIES MAURICE STERNBERG
612 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 642–1700 Mon–Fri 9–5, Sat 10–3
Dir: Maurice Sternberg
American and French Impressionist paintings.

Other artists represented:
Berninghaus, Edwin Blashfield, J.G. Brown, E. I. Couse, E. Galien Laloue, Henri Le Sidaner, Luigi Loir, Reginald Marsh, Henri Martin, Edmund Redfield, Harry Roseland, George G. Symons, Wiggins.

1673. GILBERT GALLERY
333 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 951–5459 By appt
Dir: Jeffrey Gilbert
Photography.

1674. GILMAN GALLERIES
277 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 337–6262 Mon–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Mack Gilman
Contemporary paintings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Boris Anisfeld*, David Bushman, Xavier Corbero*, Frank Dininno, Stephen Hansen, Charles Herndon, Emily Kaufman, Brent Kington, Bob Novak, Tom Parish, Roland Poska.

Other artists represented:
Morris Barazani, Bernard Beck, Mark Clark, Walter Fydryck, Frank Gallo, Ghita Hardimon, George Hrycun, Dennis Jones, Phyllis MacDonald, Ante Sardelic, Marko Spalatin.

1675. GOETHE INSTITUTE CHICAGO
401 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 329–0915 Mon, Thu 1–8; Tue, Wed, Fri, 12–5:30
Dir: Wolfgang Ule
German Cultural Center; films, lectures, library; German prints, drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edith Altman.

1676. GOLDMAN KRAFT GALLERY
233 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 943–9088 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–5:30, Mon By appt
Dir: Jeffrey L. Kraft

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Yaacov Agam, Henry Moore, Frank Stella.

Other artists represented:
Valerio Adami, Aahron Bezalel, Jim Bird, Christo, Michael Eisemann, Heinz Seelig, Judah Sibony, Mark Tobey, Yigal Zemek.

1677. GORE FINE ARTS
6436 N Albany Ave 60645
(312) 262–3416 By appt
Dir: Michael Gore
Specializes in graphics; European sculpture, painting, fabric works.

Other artists represented:
René Brô, T.C. Cannon, Mariano Fortuny, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Richard Lindner, James McGarrell, Ed Paschke.

1678. RICHARD GRAY GALLERY
620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 642–8877 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Richard Gray
Modern and contemporary painting, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sam Francis, Ellen Lanyon, Louise Nevelson, George Nick, Francis Picabia*, Lucas Samaras*, Saul Steinberg*, William Weege.

Other artists represented:
Leon Anderson, Milton Avery, Ben Benson, Anthony Caro, Willem de Kooning, Jim Dine, Jean Dubuffet, Tony Giliberto, Nancy Graves, Dimitri Hadzi, David Hockney, Hans Hofmann, Roy Lichtenstein, Agnes Martin, Robert Nickle, Claes Oldenburg, Nathan Oliveira, John Pearson, Frank Piatek, Joseph Raffael, Robert Rauschenberg, Seymour Rosofsky, Tony Smith.

1679. GRAYSON GALLERY
356 W Huron St 60610
(312) 266–1336 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Gael G. Grayson
Modern and contemporary painting and sculpture; ancient and primitive art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tom Lieber, Ed McCullough, David Reed.

Other artists represented:
Arlene Becker, Guy Benson, Sigrid Burton, Carol Cohen, Michael Cook, Michael Croydon, David Jokinen, James Kuiper, Bradley Lastname, Yves Lifton, Steve Mose, Jay Songero.

1680. HOKIN/KAUFMAN GALLERY
210 W Superior St 60610
(312) 266–1211 Mon–Sat 10–5
Dir: Lori Kaufman/Karen Indeck
20th-century paintings, sculpture, and drawings; contemporary art furniture.

Other artists represented:
Joe Agati, Peter Alexander, Richard Anuskiewicz, Stanley Boxer, Hilo Chen, Christo, Jon Cockrell, Gene Davis, Michael Gallagher, George Green, James Havard, John Hoyland, Alex Katz, Michael Killeen, Jiri Kolar, Gary Lee, Judy Lichtenstein, Michael Lucero, Conrad Marca-Relli, Todd McKie, Gordon Moore, Frank Morreale, Lowell Nesbitt, Louise Nevelson, Ann Purcell, John Seery, Peter Shire, Christopher Sproat, Ellen Steinfeld, Tom Wesselmann.

1681. B.C. HOLLAND
222 W Superior St 60610
(312) 664–5000 By appt
Dir: B.C. Holland
20th-century and ancient art; ethnographica; textiles; antique furniture.

1682. JOY HORWICH GALLERY
226 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 787–7486 Tue–Sat 10:30–5
Dir: Joy Horwich
Contemporary Chicago and Midwestern paintings, sculpture, wall hangings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Appel, Joan Danzinger, Susan Falkman, Gensburg/Eichengreen, Dan F. Howard, Laure Ilie, Joan Koinis, Zdzislaw Sikora, Jim Smith, Dennis Wojtkiewics, William Wolter.

Other artists represented:
Bob Amft, Michael Duvall, Frank Gunter, Darryl Halbrooks, Joan Hanley, Jack Jonsson, Nancy Kittredge, Barbara Mahoney, Jan Miller, Kim Mosley, Scott Mutter, Ray Olivera, Paul Pinzarrone, Louis Recchia, Scott Richter, Rhonda Root, Joseph Rozman, Carl Schwartz, Charles Schwartz, Gretchen Sigmund, Nancy Steinmeyer, Steve Stratakos.

1683. EDWYNN HOUK GALLERY
233 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 943–0698 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Edwynn Houk
20th-century photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Atget*, André Kertész, Arthur Siegel*.

1684. HYDE PARK ART CENTER
1701 E 53rd St 60615
(312) 324–5520 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Robert W. Hutchison
Non-profit; alternative space; regional art in all mediums by emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul La Mantia*.

1685. ILLINOIS ARTS COUNCIL GALLERY
111 N Wabash Ave 60602
(312) 793–6750 Mon–Fri 8:30–5
Dir: Carl J. Petrick
Works by Illinois artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Antonia Contro, Dennis Goncher, Judith Joseph, Gonzalo Sadia.

VOL 7 1
ISS 7
AG
1983
UMI

1686. R.S. JOHNSON INTERNATIONAL
645 North Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 943-1661 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
Dir: R. Stanley Johnson
Old master and 19th-century prints and drawings; 20th-century prints, drawings, paintings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Michael Ayrton, Duilio Barnabè, George Bellows, Mary Cassatt, Bela Czobel, Albrecht Dürer, Francisco Goya, Paul Guiramand, Henri Matisse, Pablo Picasso, Giovanni Batista Piranesi, Rembrandt van Rijn, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, Grant Wood, Albert Zavaro.

1687. KAMP GALLERY
1441 N State Pkwy 60610
(312) 787-1153 By appt
Dir: Nicholas Vahlkamp
American paintings; 19th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Jeffery Carr, Barbara Tebbetts, Theodore Wood.

1688. KELMSCOTT GALLERY
410 S Michigan Ave 60605
(312) 461-9188 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Scott C. Elliott
19th-20th-century architecture, decorative arts, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Henry Emerson, Dart Hunter, Paul Rudolph.

Other artists represented:
Frank Lloyd Wright.

1689. DOUGLAS KENYON
155 E Ohio St 60611
(312) 642-5300 Tue-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Douglas Kenyon
Prints, drawings, and photographs; specializing in Audubon.

1690. PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY
313 W Superior St 60610
(312) 642-6302 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: William H. Bengtson
Contemporary American paintings, sculpture, and drawings; Chicago school; naive art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Copley, Reverend Howard Finster, Philip Hanson, Albert Mertz, Russ Warren, Karl Wirsum, Ray Yoshida.

Other artists represented:
Steve Ashby, Roger Brown, Henry Darger, Victor Faccinto, Robert Gordy, Art Green, Cham Hendon, Richard Hull, Miyoko Ito, Martin Johnson, Gladys Nilsson, Jim Nutt, Ed Paschke, Christina Ramberg, Martin Ramirez, Suellen Rocca, Barbara Rossi, Earl Staley, Mary Stoppert, Inez Nathaniel Walker, Margaret Wharton, Joseph Yoakum.

1691. KLEIN GALLERY
356 W Huron St 60610
(312) 787-0400 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Paul Klein/Gwenda Klein
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christine Bourdette*, Reed Estabrook, Joseph Goldyne, Harmony Hammond*, Charles Hilger, Glenn Jampol, Maximino Javier*, Ellen Kamerling, Brian Longe, Salvatore Pecoraro, Sam Richardson*.

Other artists represented:
Alice Aycock, Maryrose Carroll, Jerry Concha, Jun Kaneko, Richard Kelley, David Middlebrook, Stephen Samerjan, Joseph Zirker.

1692. LANDFALL GALLERY
215 W Superior St 60610
(312) 787-6844 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: Ethel M. Lemon
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Connor, James Holmes, Deanie Pass, Stan Singleton.

Other artists represented:
Vicki Briggs, Susan Bush, Charlee Notkin, Michael Peed, Robert Weaver.

1693. KAREN LENNOX GALLERY
620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 787-1477 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Karen Leininger
Painting, drawing, sculpture by contemporary American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Ferris, Frank Jones, Richard Merkin, Bruce Pollock.

Other artists represented:
Jane Hileman, Alex Maldonado, Brian Meunier, Tom Palazzolo, Paul Rosin, Donald Sandstrom, Wade Saunders, Ted Stanuga, Evelyn Statsinger, Carl Nicholas Titolo.

1694. LILL STREET GALLERY
1021 W Lill St 60614
(312) 248-4414 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-4
Dir: Lisa Youngner
Non-profit gallery primarily interested in ceramic arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Beck, Michel Conroy, Penelope Fleming, Floyd Gompf, Nina Hanenson.

1695. R.H. LOVE GALLERIES
100 E Ohio St 60611
(312) 664-9620 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Richard H. Love
18th-20th-century American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Barber*, William Chadwick*, Harriet R. Lumis*.

Other artists represented:
Frederick W. Billing, Helen Hamilton, Rupert Lovejoy.

1696. LOYOLA UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
Martin D'Arcy Gallery of Medieval and Renaissance Art
6525 N Sheridan Rd 60606
(312) 274-3000 ext 2679 Mon-Fri 12-4; Tue, Thu 6:30-9:30; Sun 1-4
Dir: Donald F. Rowe
Medieval, Renaissance paintings, sculpture, enamels, textiles; silver, gold, bronze, ivory.

1697. NANCY LURIE GALLERY
1632 N LaSalle St 60614
(312) 337-2882 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Nancy Lurie
Contemporary American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Almaguer, Joseph Hilton, Clar Monaco.

Other artists represented:
Jim Brinsfield, Michael Cain, Susan Chertkow, Janet Cooling, Fred Escher, Beverly Feldmann, Mark Forth, Harold Gregor, John Hull, Judith Linhares, Darinka Novitovic, Joanna Pinsky, Kenneth Shorr, Michelle Stone, Roxie Tremonto.

1698. MERIDIAN GALLERY
3400 N Lake Shore Dr 60657
(312) 248-1300 By appt
Dir: Alan Kass/Grace Kass
Contemporary graphics, paintings, and watercolors.

Other artists represented:
Karel Appel, Marc Chagall, Jean Dubuffet, Marino Marini, Roberto Echaurren Matta, Joan Miro, Rufino Tamayo, Victor Vasarely.

1699. MICHAEL'S EDITION
505 N Lakeshore Dr, Suite 612 60611
(312) 661-1660 By appt
Dir: Solomon Fima
20th-century contemporary graphics and paintings.

Tom Colbert: Open Line, 1982; at the Sioux City Art Center (June 7-July 18, 1982).

Other artists represented:
G. Rodo Boulanger, Alexander Calder, Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Victor Vasarely.

1700. PETER MILLER GALLERY
356 W Huron 60610
(312) 951-0252
Dir: Peter Miller
Contemporary paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lance Kiland, Linda King.

Other artists represented:
Sharon Burns, Susan Chrysler-White, Rose Divita, Robyn Johnson-Ross, Carl Kock, Ron Miesner, Bill Van Nimwegen.

1701. MOMING GALLERY
1034 W Barry St 60657
(312) 472-9894 Mon-Fri 10-3:30, Fri eve 6:30-8:30, Sat 1:30-3:30, 6:30-8:30
Dir: Peter Hales/Thomas Skomski/Linda Horn
Contemporary art in all mediums; performance art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joel Bujnowski, Belinda Gabryl, Paul Herzberg, Charles Hodges, Charlie Murphy, Paul Sierra, Jock Sturges, Bob Thall, Don Voisine.

1702. MONGERSON GALLERY
620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 943-2354 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Susan Mongerson
19th- and 20th-century American art.

Other artists represented:
Constance Addington, Phil Austin, Wayne Baize, Joe Beeler, Robert Brawley, Harlev Brown, Michael Coleman, Richard Greeves, David Hagerbaumer, Phillip Haozous, Doug Hyde, Tom Lougheed, Tom Lovell, Frank McCarthy, Gwen Melvin, Gary Niblett, Fay Peck, Joyce Reed, David Shepherd, Grant Speed.

1703. MONROE GALLERY/LOOP CENTER YWCA
37 S Wabash 60603
(312) 372-6600 ext 33 Mon-Fri 8-8, Sat 9-4
Dir: Sharon Page
Chicago-area women and minority artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Bailey-Mershon, Miles Blair, Patty Castner, Connie Cavan, Alice Dole, Siu-Jane Liu, Sarah Mertz, Janet Moore, Peg Orcutt, Dorian Sylvain, Patrice Trautch.

*see catalog index

1704. MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART

237 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 280-2660 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: John Hallmark Neff

20th-century contemporary art exhibited in seven galleries; growing permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Magdalena Abakanowicz, Yves Klein, Nam June Paik, Charles Simonds, Sophie Taeuber-Arp.

1705. MUSEUM OF SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY

57th St and Lake Shore Drive 60637
(312) 684-1414 Sep-May Mon-Fri 9:30-4; Sat, Sun 9:30-5:30; Jun-Aug Daily 9:30-5:30
Dir: Victor J. Danilov

Exhibits on cultural, scientific, fine art, and industrial subjects designed for visitor participation.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Justis, Louis C. Tiffany.

1706. MUSEUM OF THE FINE ARTS RESEARCH & HOLOGRAPHIC CENTER

1134 W Washington Blvd 60607
(312) 226-1007 Wed-Sun 12;30-5
Dir: Loren Billings

International collection of holograms; courses in holography and allied fields.

1707. NAB GALLERY

331 S Peoria 60607
(312) 733-0886 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: Bob Horn

Exhibitions of contemporary painting, sculpture, prints, and photographs; performance arts.

Other artists represented:
Craig Anderson, Robert Horn, Michael Piazza.

1708. N.A.M.E. GALLERY

9 W Hubbard St 60610
(312) 467-6550 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Christopher English

Alternative space exhibiting Chicago, national, and international artists.

1709. PHYLLIS NEEDLMAN GALLERY

216 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 951-8660 Tue-Fri 11-4:30, Sat 12-5
Dir: Phyllis Needlman

Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Boswell-Mayer, Charles Heinrich, Klindt Houlberg, George Kleiman, Barbara Mendes.

Other artists represented:
Feliciano Bejar, Pedro Friedeberg, Tracy Gallup, Kurt Larisch, Roza Luz Marroquin, Jo Ann Powers, Charles Ringness, Teodulo Romulo, Jacquelyn Schneider, Thomas Skomski, Eleanor Spiess-Ferris, Leanne Stevenson, Rufino Tamayo, Gianni Veneziano, Phyllis Wiener.

1710. NORTH PARK COLLEGE

Carlson Tower Gallery
5125 N Spaulding Ave 60625
(312) 583-2700 ext 297
Dir: G.V. Bradley-Johnson

Educational art exhibits in a wide variety of mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stuart Carlson, Lou Ann Erickson, Lydra Pohl.

1711. ORIENTAL INSTITUTE MUSEUM

1155 E 58th St 60637
(312) 962-9520 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: John Carswell

7000 B.C.-900 A.D. art and archaeology of the ancient Near East; these collections acquired from the Institute's excavations.

1712. PERIMETER GALLERY

356 Huron St 60610
(312) 266-9473 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Frank Paluch

Contemporary drawings, prints, paintings, sculpture, and photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Brandt, Paul Caster, Keiko Hara.

Other artists represented:
Dick Wickman.

1713. MIRIAM PERLMAN

505 N Lakeshore Dr 60611
Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Lori King

Contemporary paintings and prints.

Other artists represented:
Future Akins, Monica Bain, Jack Damer, Ken Hale, Evelyn Johnson, Lois Johnson, Erika Kahn, Chris Kakas, Kent Kirby, Karen Kunc, Bill McKenzie, Jim Monson, Yuzo Nakano, Masaaki Noda, Mike Nushawg, Frank O'Cain, George O'Connell, Krishna Reddy, Nicholas Sperakis, Caroline Stone, Evan Summer, David Thomas, Randi Vick-Hall, Gary Washmon.

1714. PRINTER'S ROW GALLERIES

725 S Dearborn St 60605
(312) 786-9000 Tue, Thu-Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Muriel Symmons

19th-century English prints.

Other artists represented:
Henry Alken, W. H. Bunbury, J. F. Herring Sr, William Hogarth, Arthur Rackham, David Roberts, Thomas Rowlandson, David Wilkie, Dean Wolstenholme.

1715. ROGER RAMSAY GALLERY

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 337-4678 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Roger E. Ramsay

Small-scale works on paper—contemporary, modern, and old.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hannelore Baron.

Other artists represented:
Marcia Frankel-Harris, Keith Jacobshagan, Hugh Kepets, Peggy Macnamara, John Pittman, Richard Sheehan, Harry Soviak, Billy Sullivan.

1716. RANDOLPH STREET GALLERY

756 N Milwaukee Ave 60622
(312) 666-7737 Daily 11-5
Dir: Nancy Forest Brown

Alternative gallery and performance space.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Beth Berolzheimer, Sandra Binion, Beth Escott, Joanna Frueh, Frank Gozdecki, Richard Hart, Tim Richards, Michael Smith.

1717. RAW SPACE

6 W Hubbard St 60610
(312) 266-7607 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Jan Calek

Grant-funded space for installation art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marciano Biasiello, M. Staff Brandl, Deborah Vidaver Cohen, Christopher Dashke, Valerie Eickmeier, Barbara Hertel, Gabriele Pietsch, Gary Robbins, Marshall Sanders.

1718. RENAISSANCE SOCIETY

At The University of Chicago
5811 S Ellis Ave 60637
(312) 962-8670 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Susanne Ghez

Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, mixed-mediums, and installation pieces.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eva Hesse*, Ed Paschke*, Jeff Wall*.

1719. RIZZOLI GALLERY

835 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 642-3500 Mon-Wed 10-8:30, Thu-Sat 10-10, Sun 11:30-5:30
Dir: Tom Loesch

Contemporary art, architectural drawings, prints and constructions, furniture, and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Grazia De Santis, Nancy Drew, Michelle Fire, Eugene Goldbeck, Rob Krier, Charles Moore, Monte Nagler, Ruth Orkin, Stanley Tigerman.

Other artists represented:
Emily Grimes, Richard Haas, David Hockney, Giancarlo Impiglia, Jay King, Paul Kolnik, Kjell Ringi, Fritz Scholder.

1720. BETSY ROSENFIELD GALLERY

212 W Superior St 60610
(312) 787-8020 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-4:30
Dir: Betsy Bergman Rosenfield

Contemporary paintings, drawings, photography, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Suzanne Adan, Douglas Baldwin, Don Baum, William Carlson, Neraldo De La Paz, Mark Jackson, Marvin Lipofsky, Tom Rippon, Natacha Robert-Falda, Francois Robert.

Other artists represented:
Nina Beall, David Beck, Rosamond Berg, Jack Chevalier, Dale Chihuly, Dan Dailey, Dominic Di Mare, Stephen Dee Edwards, James Harmon, Richard Jackson, Thomas Kovachevich, William Morris, Joel Philip Myers, Tom Palmore, Joseph Piccillo, Ken Price, Sarah Schwartz, Alan Siegel, Michael Stevens.

1721. DOROTHY ROSENTHAL GALLERY

233 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 664-3224 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Dorothy Rosenthal

Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Alf, Ed Moses.

Other artists represented:
Arakawa, Robert Graham, Jon Schueler.

1722. SCHOOL OF THE ART INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO GALLERY

Columbus Dr and Jackson Blvd 60603
(312) 443-3703 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Joyce Fernandez

Exhibitions of students, faculty, and subjects related to the school's curriculum.

1723. ST. ALBUS FINE ARTS

620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 337-3282 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: Lynn St. Albus

19th-20th-century American and European paintings, prints.

1724. SAMUEL STEIN FINE ARTS

620 N Michigan Ave, Suite 340 60611
(312) 337-1782 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Samuel W. Stein

19th- 20th-century graphics, paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Paul Jenkins, Joan Miro, Henry Moore, Robert Natkin, Man Ray, Marko Spalatin, Carol Summers, Rudolph Svehla.

1725. UKRANIAN INSTITUTE OF MODERN ART

2320 W Chicago Ave 60622
(312) 227-5522 Tue-Sun 12-4
Dir: Oleh Kowerko

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Volodymyr Makarenko*, Chrysta Olenska.

Other artists represented:
Alexandra Kochman, Alexandra Kowerko, Konstantin Milonadis, Mychajlo Urban.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1726. UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
David and Alfred Smart Gallery
5550 S Greenwood Ave 60637
(312) 753-2121 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Edward A. Maser
Permanent collection of works of art from classical Greece to contemporary art of the West; art of the Orient.

1727. UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
A. Montgomery Ward Gallery
Chicago Circle 60607
(312) 996-8622 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Larry Zimmerman
Contemporary works in many mediums.

1728. VAN STRAATEN GALLERY
646 N Michigan Ave 60610
(312) 642-2900 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: William van Straaten
Paintings, prints, drawings, works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Neda Al-Hilali, Susan Crile, Alice Phillips, David Shapiro, Janet Stayton.

1729. MORTON B. WEISS MUSEUM OF JUDAICA
1100 E Hyde Park Blvd 60615
(312) 924-1234 Mon-Fri 9-4, Sun 10-12
Dir: Ilene Herst
Unusual illuminated marriage contracts and rare manuscripts in Judeo-Persian and Jeball.

1730. WORTHINGTON GALLERY
233 E Ontario St 60611
(312) 266-2424 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Eva-Maria Worthington
German Expressionism, Blauer Reiter, 20th-century international art; sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Max Beckmann, Jane Egan, Horst Janssen*, Ynez Johnston, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner*, Paul Klee*, Kurt Schwitters*.

1731. YOUNG HOFFMAN GALLERY
215 W Superior St 60610
(312) 951-8828 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Donald Young/Rhona Hoffman
Contemporary arts; photography; architectural projects, drawings, models.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steven Foster, Leon Golub, Richard Haas, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mapplethorpe, Larry McPherson, John Obuck, Tod Papageorge, Martin Puryear, Robert Ryman, Stanley Tigerman.

Other artists represented:
Vito Acconci, John Ahearn, Richard Artschwager, Thomas Beeby, Lee Friedlander, Mike Glier, Eugene Omar Goldbeck, Michael Goldberg, Ron Gorchov, Jesse Hickman, Jene Highstein, Jenny Holzer, Helmut Jahn, Kenneth Josephson, Donald Judd, Barbara Kruger, June Leaf, Robert Mangold, Sylvia Plimack Mangold, Gordon Matta-Clark, Bruce Nauman, Richard Nonas, Lucio Pozzi, Edda Renouf, Julian Schnabel, Joel Shapiro, Cindy Sherman, Irene Siegel, S.I.T.E, Eve Sonneman, Donald Sultan, John Torreano, Richard Tuttle, Claire Zeisler.

1732. ZAKS GALLERY
620 N Michigan Ave 60611
(312) 943-8440 Tue-Fri 11-5:30, Sat 12-5
Dir: Sonia Zaks
Contemporary paintings, drawings, interior and large-scale sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judy Citrin, Tom Gibbs, Francoise Gilot, William Itter, Estelle Kenney, Paul LaMantia*, Elizabeth Morrison, Jack Olson, David Sharpe, Amy Sheng-Kohler, Joan Taxay-Weinger.

Other artists represented:
William Conger, Gary Edgren, Robert Evans, Virginio Ferrari, Moira M. Geoffrion, Sharon Hendrey, George Klauba, Robert Lossmann, Ben Mahmoud, Bradley Petersen, Emily Pinkowski, Joan E. Robertson, Jerry Savage, Richard D. Wetzel.

1733. ZOLLA/LIEBERMAN GALLERY
356 W Huron St 60610
(312) 944-1990 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Robert Zolla/Roberta Lieberman
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, and constructions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Charles, Thomas Golya, Kenneth Holder, Terrence Karpowicz, Edward Larson, Dennis Nechvatal, Will Northerner, James Perry, James Pink, Naj Wikoff.

Other artists represented:
Mary Bero, John Buck, Edgar Buonagurio, Deborah Butterfield, Chema Cobo, Laddie John Dill, Susanne Doremus, Robert Forbes, Linda Herritt, Steven Heyman, Clinton Hill, Loren Madsen, Tony Naponic, Walter Netsch, Joel Oppenheimer, David Simons, Dean Snyder, David Tell.

Decatur

1735. MILLIKEN UNIVERSITY
Kirkland Gallery-Studio Gallery
1184 W Main St 62522
(217) 424-6227 Mon-Thu 8-5, Sat 12-4
Dir: Marvin L. Klaven
Invitational, one-person shows of regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Guy Benson, Anna Calluori-Holcombe, Alan Donahue, Linda Jorgensen, Marvin Klaven, Nick Merrick, Winfield Nash, Andrea Scarbrough, Jim Schietinger, Mike Simpson, Ted Wolter.

1736. MILLIKEN UNIVERSITY
Kirkland Gallery—Main Gallery
1184 W Main St 62522
(217) 424-6227 Mon-Thu 12-5, Sat 12-4
Dir: Marvin L. Klaven
Invitational, one-person shows of regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bower, Lawrence Calcagno, Jerry Foley, Brent Kington, Paul Pinzarrone, Jacquelyn Ruttinger.

Dekalb

1737. NORTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY
Swen Parson Gallery 60115
(815) 753-1936 Mon-Fri 9-4; Tue, Wed eves 7-9; Sun 1-4
Dir: E. Michael Flanagan
Pfaelzer collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rafael Ferrer*, Adolph Rosenblatt.

1738. NORTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY GALLERY 200
Visual Arts Building 60115
(815) 753-1936 Mon-Fri 9-4; Tue, Wed eves 7-9; Sun 1-4
Dir: E. Michael Flanagan

1739. NORTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY PHOTOSPACE
60115
(815) 753-1936 Mon-Fri 9-4; Tue, Wed eve 7-9; Sun 1-4
Dir: E. Michael Flanagan

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Avison, Steven Foster, Deborah Freedman, John Grady, Jay King, Bob Thall, Todd Walker.

Evanston

1740. EVANSTON ART CENTER
2603 Sheridan Rd 60201
(312) 475-5300 Mon-Thu 10-4, 7-10; Fri, Sat 10-4; Sun 2-5
Dir: Diane Gail Lazarus
Non-profit; cooperative gallery, instruction, sales.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nelli Bar*, Warrington Colescott, John Donoghue, Michael Dwass, Theodore Grunsten, Sheila Hicks, Yuriko Kadowaki, Misch Kohn, Edward Larson, Robert Middauga, Michael Ryan, Jan Saudek, Mary Seyfarth, Doug Stock, Victor Verbalaitus, Paul Wieghardt.

Other artists represented:
Sandy Smolinsky, George Suyeoka, Gary Trentham, Weinstein.

1741. 4 ARTS GALLERY
1629 Oak St 60201
(312) 328-8834 By appt
Dir: Sidney B. Zwick/Rosemary Zwick
Works of Midwestern artists.

1742. C.G. JUNG CENTER
550 Callan Ave 60202
(312) 475-4848 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Peter Mudd
Educational facility; exhibitions which underscore the connection between visual forms and the workings of the unconscious.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Don Janis.

1743. MINDSCAPE GALLERY AND STUDIO
1521 Sherman Ave 60201
(312) 864-2660 Tue-Sat 10-6, Thu 10-9, Sun 1-4
Dir: Ronald G. Isaacson/Deborah Farber
Contemporary American sculpture and crafts in a variety of mediums; studio glass, fiber art.

Other artists represented:
Herbert Babcock, Joseph A. Burlini, Michael Cohn, Carl Andree Davidt, Doug DeLind, Sara Drower, Rick Foris, Theodore T. Gall, Bruce Howdle, Robert W. Hurlstone, Dick Huss, Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Robert Levin, John Lewis, Roger Lovell-Cooper, Sylvia Lovell-Cooper, Joan Russell, Susan Shapiro, Marc Sijan, Molly Stone.

1744. NEVILLE-SARGENT GALLERY
509-511 Main St 60202
(312) 328-9417/328-9395 Mon-Sat 10-6, Thu 10-8, Sun by appt
Dir: Jane Neville
Contemporary American painting and graphics.

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Richard Beard, Richard Borso, Glenn Bradshaw, Harry Breen, Bruce Campbell, Graham Clarke, Kathleen Eaton, Pauline Eaton, David Faber, Kim Goldfarb, Harvey Gordon, Eduardo Iglesias, Stevie Manak-Ricks, Melinda Stickney-Gibson.

1745. NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY
Mary and Leigh Block Gallery
1967 Sheridan Rd 60201
(312) 492-5209 Tue-Sat 10:30-4:30, Sun 12-5
Dir: Kathy Kelsey Foley
Exhibits the collection of Northwestern University and other works of all mediums and periods.

1746. TERRA MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
2600 Central Park Ave 60201
(312) 328-3400 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Ronald McKnight Melvin
Daniel J. Terra Collection; two hundred years of American paintings, including major Impressionist works.

Galesburg

1747. GALESBURG CIVIC ART CENTER
114 E Main St 61401
(309) 342-7415 Tue-Fri 10:30-4:30, Sat 10:30-3
Dir: Mary Lou Asaro
Contemporary art; historical and educational exhibitions; annual juried competition.

Highland Park

1748. EVA COHON GALLERY
474 Central 60035
(312) 432-7310 Mon-Sat 10-4
Dir: Sheila Klemperer
Contemporary American and European paintings, drawings, graphics, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Alice Baber, Alexander Calder, Joan Gardy-Artigas, Kieff, Gottfried Mairwoeger, Clarence Measelle, Joan Miró, Josep Royo, Vasa, Doris Wertheimer.

Joliet

1749. JOLIET JUNIOR COLLEGE
Laura A. Sprague Art Gallery
1216 Houbolt Ave 60436
(815) 729-9020 ext 423 Mon-Fri 9-2; Tue, Wed, Thu eve 6-8
Dir: Joe Milosevich
One-person, group, and museum exhibitions of local, statewide, and national scope; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carol Hammerman, Gary Allen Justis, John Link.

Lake Forest

1750. LAKE FOREST COLLEGE
Sonnenschein Gallery, Durand Institute 60045
(312) 234-3100 Mon-Sat 1:30-3:30
Dir: Joan E. Robertson
Contemporary works in all mediums; African art, Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Middaugh, Nicholas Prokos, Eleanor Spiess-Ferris, Jonathan D. Wallace.

Park Forest South

1751. GOVERNORS STATE UNIVERSITY
Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park 60466
(312) 534-5368 Mon-Fri 8:30-5
Dir: William H. Dodd
Contemporary American sculpture.

1752. GOVERNORS STATE UNIVERSITY
Visual Arts Gallery 60466
(312) 534-5000, ext 2412 Mon-Fri 10:30-4:30
Dir: John Payne
Contemporary Illinois artists; American and African art; sculpture park; exhibitions related to academic programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patricia Hennings, John Payne, Bonnie Shilling.

Peoria

1753. LAKEVIEW MUSEUM OF ARTS AND SCIENCES
1125 W Lake Ave 61614
(309) 686-7000 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5, Wed eve 7-9
Dir: John E. Buchanan, Jr.
Illinois artists featured in sales/rental gallery. Archaeology, decorative, and fine arts, ethnology, natural, and physical sciences collections.

1754. PEORIA ART GUILD
1831 N Knoxville Rd 61603
(309) 685-7522 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Janet Jensen
Non-profit; community art center with fine art and crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Rubin, Michael Warrick.

Other artists represented:
Carol Blevins, Randall Dixon.

Peoria Heights

1755. TOWER PARK GALLERY
4709 N Prospect Rd 61614
(309) 682-8932 Daily 10-8, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jacqueline Buster
Contemporary graphics and oils.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Hunt-Wulkowicz, Robert Kipniss.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Glenn Bradshaw, Harriett Hanson, Randall Higdon, Susan Sensemann, Michael Walsh.

Quincy

1756. ELIZABETH M. SINNOCK GALLERY
Quincy Art Club
1515 Jersey St 62301
(217) 223-5900 Tue-Fri 11-4; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Jane Shair
Exhibitions September through June; permanent collection exhibited July and August.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Grant F. Kenner, Kevin L. Kluck.

Rockford

1757. BURPEE ART MUSEUM
737 N Main 61103
(815) 965-3131 Tue-Thu 12-5, Fri 12-9; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Martin DeWitt
19th-20th-century American and European paintings, sculpture, graphics, decorative arts; Arnold Gilbert photography collection.

Springfield

1758. ILLINOIS STATE MUSEUM
Spring and Edwards Sts 62706
(217) 782-7386 Mon-Sat 8:30-5, Sun 1:30-5
Dir: R. Bruce McMillan
Historical and contemporary American art with an emphasis on Illinois art; paintings, sculpture, prints, photography, drawings, and decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Boris Anisfeld, William Carlson, Kathleen Hart, Michael Rubin, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen, Michael Tropea.

Urbana

1759. UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
World Heritage Museum
702 S Wright St 61801
(217) 333-2360 Daily 9-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Barbara Bohen
Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Coptic, Sumerian, and Medieval holdings; early books and manuscripts; decorative arts; textiles; artifacts from Africa, Burma, India.

Winnetka

1760. YOLANDA FINE ARTS
542 Lincoln Ave 60093
(312) 441-5557 Tue-Sat 10:30-4:30
Dir: Yolanda Saul
20th-century art, American and European folk painters.

Other artists represented:
Ann ("Mrs. B") Baker, Jan Balet, Ivan Barnett, Andre Duranton, Milton Fletcher, Cilly Gascard, Darline Jellerson, Merry Kohn, Manuel Lepe, Rie Munoz, Marcia Muth, Mattie Lou O'Kelley, Christine Thorzeau, Malcah Zeldis.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Indiana

Bloomington

1761. GRAPHIC GLASS GALLERIES
107 W Kirkwood at the square 47401
(812) 339-8661 Mon–Sat 10–6:30
Dir: Carl Lenhart
Contemporary glass; ceramics, prints, sculpture, paintings, and textiles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rick Bernstein, Felix Eboigbe, Peter Gold, Will Pappenheimer.

Other artists represented:
Patricia Coleman, T. Ned Cunningham, Jean Paul Darriau, Linda Elgart, Dale Enochs, Patrick Higgins, Margot Strand Jensen, Anne Kessler, Barbara Miner, Mary Ott, Alexis Petroff, Anne Ryan, Paul Wesley Walker, Robin Welch, Patricia White.

1762. INDIANA UNIVERSITY ART MUSEUM
47405
(812) 335-5445 Wed, Fri, Sat 9–5; Thu 10–8, Sun 1–5
Dir: Thomas T. Solley
Ancient Mediterranean, African, Oceanic, Pre-Columbian, Southeast Asian, Far Eastern art; 14th-20th-century European and American art.

Elkhart

1763. MIDWEST MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
429 S Main St 46515
(219) 293-6660 Tue–Fri 11–5, Thu eve 7–9; Sat, Sun 1–4
Dir: Jane Burns
19th- and 20th-century American art; prints; traveling photography exhibition.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery*, Adolf Dehn*, David Labrum, Robert Natkin, Eliot O'Hara*, Norman Rockwell, Harold Zisla*.

Fort Wayne

1764. ARTLINK CONTEMPORARY ARTSPACE
1126 Broadway 46802
(219) 424-7195 Tue–Fri 12–5, Sat 1–4
Dir: Gregg Coffey
Contemporary national and regional artists; music, dance, and poetry performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hilary Jackson-Edwards, Ina Knight, George McCullough, Karen Thompson.

1765. FORT WAYNE MUSEUM OF ART
311 E Main St 46802
(219) 422-6467 Tue–Thu 12–5, Fri 11–5, Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Valerie Braybrooke
19th-20th-century American paintings; contemporary prints, drawings; West African art; medieval sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alexander Gavalas, David Shapiro*

1766. THOMAS SMITH FINE ART
6521 Monarch Dr 46815
(219) 493-3009 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Tom Smith
Prints by American artists.

Other artists represented:
Steven Sorman.

Indianapolis

1767. ARTIFACTS GALLERY
6327 Guilford 46220
(317) 255-1178 Mon–Sat 11–5, Thu 11–6, Fri 11–7
Dir: Ann Kaplan
Contemporary American crafts; ceramics, glass, prints, fibers, jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Ann Baddeley, Myrna Brunson, Jim Gorman, Alan Patrick, Mary Ann Robertson, Gretchen Sigmund, Randi Vick-Hall.

1768. EDITIONS LIMITED GALLERY
8702 Keystone Crossing 46240
(317) 848-7878 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Eva S. Bogar
Painting, sculpture, textiles, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Kipniss, Peter Kitchell, Margie F. Marx, Dennis Puhalla, Harriet Shorr, Bruce Weinberg.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Alvar, Will Barnet, Amanda Block, Jeff Chapp, Nanci Blair Closson, Phyllis Fannin, James Faust, Steven McMillan, John McNaughton, David Meyer, Jurgen Peters, Joe Price, Sherri Smith, Carol Summers, Robert Williams, Charles Wolters.

1769. HERRON GALLERY/HERRON SCHOOL OF ART
1701 N Pennsylvania 46202
(317) 923-3651 Mon–Thu 10–7, Fri 10–5, Sat 10–2
Dir: Martha Winans
Affiliated with Indiana University—Purdue University; international contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Beth Edelson, Edward Mayer, Guy Whitney.

1770. INDIANAPOLIS MUSEUM OF ART
1200 W 38th St 46208
(317) 923-1331 Tue–Sun 11–5
Dir: Robert A. Yassin
Collections of Oriental, Oceanic, Pre-Columbian, African, Native American, American, and European paintings and sculpture; decorative arts, textiles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gayle Austin, James Austin, Batuz, Gianlorenzo Bernini*, Barbara Bihler, Robert Burnell, Steven W. Correia, Adolph Gottlieb, David W. Herrold, Richard Jolley, Balthazar Korab, Lisa Nelles, Scott Nelles, Martha Opdahl, Marilyn Price, Mary Ann Robertson, Charles Schiefer, Walter Schmidt, Rosalyn Tyge, Mary Bliss Vanderlaan, Peter Vanderlaan.

Lafayette

1771. GREATER LAFAYETTE MUSEUM OF ART
101 S Ninth St 47901
(317) 742-1128
Dir: Sharon A. Theobald

Memphis

1772. MEMPHIS BOTANICAL GARDENS
Goldsmith Civic Garden Center
150 Cherry Rd 38117
(901) 685-1566 Mon–Fri 9–4:30; Sat, Sun 1–5
Dir: George U. Wise
Changing exhibitions: contemporary drawing, photography, sculpture by local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elaine Katz, Marjorie Lieberman, Ginger Norcross, Ann Vance.

Muncie

1773. BALL STATE UNIVERSITY ART GALLERY
2000 University Ave 47308
(317) 285-5242 Mon–Fri 9–4:30; Sat, Sun 1:30–4:30
Dir: Alain Joyaux
Italian Renaissance art, furniture; 19th-20th-century American paintings, prints, drawings; graphics.

Nashville

1774. BROWN COUNTRY ART GUILD
Van Buren St 47448
(812) 988-6185 Daily 10–5
Dir: Margaret Colglazier
Non-profit; American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Neil Dunnigan, Margaret Eifler, Doug Henry, Floyd Hopper, Amanda Kirby, Walter Parke.

Other artists represented:
Varaldo Cariani, Marie Goth, Carl Graf, Genevieve Graf.

New Harmony

1775. NEW HARMONY GALLERY OF CONTEMPORARY ART
Main St 47631
(812) 682-3156 Mon–Sat 9–5, Sun 12–5
Dir: John P. Begley
Non-profit; works by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Linda Arndt, Peter Bodnar III, Robert Evans, Joel Feldman, Maria Pastore-Lange, Robert Paulson, Robert Williams.

Other artists represented:
Jane Abrams, John Bott, Pat Brentano, Gary Brown, James Butler, Henry Chodkowski, Harris Deller, Jane Everhart, Darryl Halbrooks, Andrew Jendrzejewski, Bill Kolok, Fran Kratzok, Marvin Lowe, Richard Meier, Stephen Pace, Rick Paul, Rudy Pozzatti, William Renschler, Rhonda Smith, Ingrid Thomas-Hooker, Marilyn Torre-Whitesell, John Whitesell, Bill Whorrall.

*see catalog index

Notre Dame

1776. SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
Moreau Gallery 46556
(219) 284-4655 Mon-Fri 9:30-12, 1-3, Sun 1-3
Dir: Bill Sandusky/Giovanna Sandusky
Teaching gallery; contemporary art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Bock-Tobolski, Margo Hoff, Dolores Milmoe, Betsy Packard, Jim Paradis.

1777. UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME
Snite Museum of Art 46556
(219) 239-5466 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Dean A. Porter
Ancient to contemporary painting and sculpture, works on paper, photography, ethnographic collections.

South Bend

1778. ART CENTER-WOMEN'S ART LEAGUE GALLERY
120 S St Joseph St 46601
(219) 284-9102 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Judy Oberhausen
Traveling shows; regional and local artists in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Ewing, Joan Gallagher, Cynthia Huff, Cecilia Ann Kelly, Peggy Lovett, Stephen Mickey, Aryn Slutsky Rothstein, Carla Steiger-Meister.

Terre Haute

1779. SHELDON SWOPE ART GALLERY
25 S 7th St 47807
(812) 238-1676 Tue-Sun 12-4:50
Dir: Robert D. Kinsman
American and European art, decorative arts; ancient, Far Eastern and ethnographic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Rogers Cox*, Leroy Lamis*.

Valparaiso

1780. VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY
Art Galleries and Collections
Union St 46383
(219) 464-5365 Sep-Jun Mon-Fri 9-9
Dir: Richard Brauer
19th-20th-century American painting; ancient Palestinian ceramics.

West Lafayette

1781. PURDUE UNIVERSITY GALLERIES
47907
(317) 494-3061 Mon-Fri 9:30-4:30, Sun 12:30-4:30
Dir: Mona Berg
Contemporary art; graphics; miniature ceramics; Pre-Columbian textiles.

John Mendelsohn: Survival of Memory Part II, 1981; in "Compassionate Images," at the Herron School of Art, Indiana Univ., Indianapolis (Nov. 5-Dec. 18, 1982).

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Garland, Eduardo Ostergren, Bill Whorrall.

Iowa

Ames

1782. BRUNNIER GALLERY AND MUSEUM
Scheman Continuing Education Building
Iowa State Center 50010
(515) 294-3342 Tue-Sun 11-4
Dir: Lynette Pohlman
Permanent decorative arts collection; Egyptian, American, European, Etruscan, and Oriental cultures represented from ancient times to the present.

1783. OCTAGON CENTER FOR THE ARTS
427 Douglas 50010
(515) 323-5331 Mon 1-9, Tue-Fri 1-5, Sat 10-5
Dir: Martha Benson
Art center; exhibitions and classes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gail Kristensen.

Burlington

1784. ARTS FOR LIVING CENTER
7th and Washington Sts 52601
(319) 754-8069 Tue-Sat 12-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Lois Rigdon
Non-profit arts center; exhibitions of regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karl Christiansen, Marvin Crozier, Kent Kelly, John Schlechter, Jerry Torn.

Cedar Falls

1785. UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA
Gallery of Art
Communication Arts Center 50614
(319) 273-6114 Mon-Thu 9-4; Sat, Sun 1-4, Mon eve 7-9
Dir: Daniel E. Stetson
20th-century American and European painting, sculpture, photography, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonard Baskin*, Fred Burton, Barbara Crane, Marion Faller, Mary Anne Kelly, Pedro Lujan, Dan Powell, Harold Schlotzhauer, Susan Sudmeier, Yuan Yun Sheng.

Cedar Rapids

1786. CEDAR RAPIDS MUSEUM OF ART
324 3rd St SE 52301
(319) 366-7503 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 5-8:30, Sun 2-5
Dir: Joseph S. Czestochowski
20th-century modern and regional paintings; Grant Wood Collection; 19th-20th-century sculpture, prints, crafts, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mauricio Lasansky*, Richard Pinney, Ulfert Wilke*.

Clinton

1787. CLINTON ART ASSOCIATION GALLERY
708 25th Ave N, PO Box 132 52732
(319) 242-9635 Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Hortense Blake
Paintings, drawings, prints, sculpture, glass by member artists.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Davenport

1788. DAVENPORT ART GALLERY
1737 W 12th St 52804
(319) 326-7804 Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-4:30
Dir: L. G. Hoffman
19th- and 20th-century American paintings; Haitian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anna M. Robertson Moses.

1789. MARYCREST COLLEGE
Eberdt Art Gallery
1607 W 12th 52804
(319) 326-9343
Dir: Alan Garfield
Contemporary Midwestern artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alexander Gavalás*.

Des Moines

1790. DES MOINES ART CENTER
Greenwood Park 4800 Grand 50312
(515) 277-4405 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: James T. Demetrion
19th- and 20th-century art; prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Graham*, Giorgio Morandi*, June Wayne, Neil Welliver*.

1791. OLSON/LARSEN GALLERIES
203 Fifth St 50265
(515) 277-6734 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 11-4
Dir: Marlene Olson
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Harrison McKibbin.

Other artists represented:
Robert Bauer, Sharon Burns, Charlotte Cain, Dean Dass, Betty Fitzsimmons, Sandra Kaplan, Florence Kawa, Linda King, Anne MacDougall, Ada Medina, Jim Richmond, Doug Shelton, Rosemary Stuckart, Amy N. Worthen.

1792. PERCIVAL GALLERIES
210 Shops Bldg, 8th and Walnut 50309
(515) 243-4893 Mon-Fri 11-5, Sat 11-4
Dir: Bonnie Percival
Contemporary prints, paintings, sculpture, tapestries.

Other artists represented:
James Bisignano, Byron Burford, David Coolidge, Robert Freimark, Jean Graham, Nancy Koons, Richard Leet, William Luchsinger, Elizabeth Miller, Frank Miller, James Ochs, John Page, Joseph Reed, Ann Royer, Bruce Stillman, Karen Strohbeen, David West, Judith Whipple, Ulfert Wilke.

Fort Dodge

1793. BLANDEN MEMORIAL ART GALLERY
920 Third Ave S 50501
(515) 573-2316 Daily 1-5
Dir: M. Jessica Rowe
Special collections include 17th-century Oriental screens, late 19th- and early-20th-century European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jeff Kohl*, Ada Medina, Henry Moore, Cornelis Ruhtenberg.

Iowa City

1794. ARTS CENTER
129 E Washington St 52240
(319) 337-7447 Mon-Sat 10-4
Dir: Iowa City/Johnson County Arts Council
Exhibitions of local and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Patrick.

Other artists represented:
Betty Bunge, Loret Burton, Donna Friedman, Jan Friedman, Stan Haring, Nina Liu, Emily Martin, Bunny McBride, Karen Sue Miller, Nancy Purington, Naomi Schedl, Rosie Seeks, Emily Gelman Vermillion, Marcia Wegman, Patti Westercamp.

1795. LASANSKY CORPORATION GALLERY
216 Washington St 52240
(319) 626-6464 Mon 1-5 and by appt
Dir: Phillip Lasansky
Intaglio prints and drawings by Mauricio Lasansky; consultant.

1796. UNIVERSITY OF IOWA
Museum of Art
Riverside Drive 52242
(319) 353-3266 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Joann Moser/Robert C. Hobbs
Decorative and fine arts, 19th- and 20th-century European paintings, Stanley Collection of African sculpture, Pre-Columbian works, contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barton Lidice Beneš, Richard Diebenkorn*.

Marshalltown

1797. FERNETTE'S GALLERY OF ART
Highway 30 W 50158
(515) 753-7322 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-4
Dir: Fernette Smith
Contemporary prints, sculpture and unique works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patrick Costello, Yoshisuke Funasaka, Michi Itami, Shigeki Kuroda, Akira Kurosaki, Kunito Nagaoka, Kenjilo Nanao.

Other artists represented.
Yaacov Agam, Alvar, G. Rodo Boulanger, Bruno Bruni, Salvador Dali, Francoise Deberdt, Johnnie Friedlander, Frank Gallo, Bernard Gantner, Paul Jenkins, Roy Lichtenstein, Joan Miro, Gustavo Novoa, Cuca Romley, Jean Solombre, Carol Summers, J. B. Thompson, Marcus Uzilevsky, Victor Vasarely.

Mason City

1798. CHARLES H. MACNIDER MUSEUM
303 Second St SE 50401
(515) 423-9563 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard E. Leet
American and Midwestern painting, prints, sculpture, pottery; exhibitions, concerts, lectures, classes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton, Ed Harris, Warren MacKenzie, Larry Stark, Lee Weiss.

Muscatine

1799. MUSCATINE ART CENTER
1314 Mulberry Ave 52761
(319) 263-8282 Tue-Fri 11-5; Thu eve 7-9; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: William A. McGonagle
19th- and 20th-century American art, furniture, decorative arts, ethnology, historical artifacts of the Mississippi River area.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Graham, Bruce Howdle, James Ochs, Robert Ray.

Sioux City

1800. SIOUX CITY ART CENTER
513 Nebraska St 51101
(712) 279-6272 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5, Mon 5-8
Dir: Bruce Bienemann
Museum. Contemporary art of national and upper Midwest artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tom Arndt, Tom Colbert, Mac Hornecker, Dean Warnholtz.

Waterloo

1801. WATERLOO MUNICIPAL GALLERIES
225 Cedar St 50704
(319) 291-4491 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 9-12, Sun 2-5
Dir: Clarence Alling
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Achepohl*, Stuart Edie, Jane Walsh.

Kansas

Kansas City

1802. DOUGLAS DRAKE GALLERY
4500 State Line 66103
(913) 831-3880 Sat 11-5; by appt
Dir: Douglas Drake
Contemporary New York, Kansas City, and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dan Christensen, Gary Kuehn, Tony Naponic, Kenneth Noland, Miriam Schapiro, Michael Steiner.

Other artists represented:
Walter Darby Bannard, Steven Cromwell, Sherron Francis, Barbara Frets, Robert Goodnough, Virginia Jaramillo, Frank Limone, Allan McCollum, David McCullough, Duane Michals, Robert Motherwell, Robert Natkin, Larry Poons, Warren Rosser, Ronald Slowinski, Vivian Torrence, Larry Zox.

---

*see catalog index

1803. IN THE SPIRIT GALLERY
1911 A W 45th Ave 66103
(913) 262-3377 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Tippy Fuchs
Southwestern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tom DeDecker, Hal Holoun, Howard Post, Douglas Ricks, Dolona Roberts, Carol Whitney.

Other artists represented:
John Axton, Santos Barbosa, Becky Clark, Doug Hyde, Donal Jolley, Fred Ortiz, Amado Pena, Kevin Red Star, Marjorie Rodgers, Richard Short, Judith Sinderson, Dennis Traner, Ed Walker, Jason Williamson, Jack Woods.

Lawrence

1805. KELLAS GALLERY
7 E Seventh St 66044
(913) 841-9460 Tue-Sat 12-5; By appt
Dir: Mary Lisa Pike
Regional prints, photography, drawings, paintings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anne Burkholder, Raymond Eastwood, Barbara Hawkins, Nicholas Hill, Pok-Chi Lau, Gerry Lubensky, Dan Massad, Robert Sudlow, Jean Van Harlingen.

Other artists represented:
Collette Bangert, Jim Bass, Vernon Brejcha, Martin Cheng, Joan Foth, Norman Gee, Lois Greene, Dennis Helm, Philip Hershberger, Judi Geer Kellas, Margo Kren, Sarah Riley Land, Mike Ott, Scott Sandell, Karen Schory, Bill Seeley, Roger Shimomura, Ruth Weisberg, S. Judson Wilcox.

1806. UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS
Spencer Museum of Art 66045
(913) 864-4710 Tue-Sat 9:30-4:30,
Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Elizabeth Broun
Medieval painting and sculpture, American painting and graphics, photography, Japanese prints and Edo paintings, contemporary Chinese painting, quilts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Terry Evans*, Earl Iversen*, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly*, Pat Steir*, Peter Thompson*.

Manhattan

1807. STRECKER GALLERY
330A Poyntz St 66502
(913) 539-2139 Tue-Fri 12-5; Sat 10-5
Dir: Kate Cushman
Contemporary art; regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rebecca Alston, Robert Kipniss.

Other artists represented:
J. E. Fischer, Philip Hershberger, Yoshiro Ikeda, Margo Kren, Volker Kühn, Marci McDonald, Edward Pennebaker, Gary Woodward.

Shawnee Mission

1808. MORGAN GALLERY
5006 State Line Rd 66205
(913) 236-7796 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Myra Morgan
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Brady, William Christenberry, Ken Ferguson, Frank Fleming*, Viola Frey, James Havard, Jun Kaneko, Peter Shire, Gary Sutton, Steve Whitacre, William T. Wiley*.

Other artists represented:
Terry Allen, Rudy Autio, John Baeder, John Balsley, Larry K. Brown, John Buck, Fran Bull, John Clem Clarke, Robert Cottingham, Dale Eldred, David Gilhooly, Wild Bill Harding, Clay Jensen, Alan Kessler, Ed Larsen, James Leedy, Marilyn Levine, Kay Lee Manuel, Cork Marcheschi, Michael Peed, Mel Ramos, George Rickey, Jim Roche, Paul Sarkisian, Roger Shimomura, Larry Stark, Irv Tepper, Alan G. Vopat, Chris Wilmarth, Allen Winkler.

Topeka

1809. JAN WEINER GALLERY
3014 Eveningside Dr 66614
(913) 272-5535 By appt
Dir: Jan Weiner
Contemporary paintings and drawings; primitive art; graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philomene Bennett, Louis Marsk, Michael Smirl, Michael Stowe.

Other artists represented:
Colette Bangert, Philip Hershberger, Zanne Hochberg, Dalton Howard, Jim Hunt, Sandy Kinnee, Margo Kren, James Malone, David McCullough, Edward Navone, Yvonne Rosser, Robert Routson, Robert Russell, Carlos Setien, Richard Slimon, Ron Slowinski, George Thompson, Michael Tichansky, Gregory Walstrom.

Wichita

1810. JOAN CAWLEY GALLERY
1010 N Main 67203
(316) 263-3136 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Joan M. Cawley
Southwestern art; Latin American contemporary paintings, sculpture, graphics.

Other artists represented:
Norma Andraud, Earl Biss, Katalin Ehling, Mary Ann Ginter, R.C. Gorman, Charles Jeffress, Adolph Klugman, Jon Lightfoot, Amado M. Pena, Jacqueline Rochester, Connie Segal, Rufino Tamayo, Shirley Thomson-Smith, Francisco Zuniga.

1811. GALLERY ELLINGTON
3700 E Douglas 67208
(316) 682-9051 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Howard W. Ellington
Contemporary American landscapes in all mediums; sculpture, fiber arts, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John O. Encinias, Sally Piller.

Other artists represented:
David Anderson, Sherry S. Brejcha, James P. Cook, James R. Fallier, Hugh Greer, James R. Hamil, Sheila Hicks, Buffalo Kaplinski, Anita Lehman, Dick Mason, Todd Matson, Terry Maxwell, David Melby, John Mendoza, Sandy Newborn, Birger Sandzen, Larry Saunders, Lowell E. Smith, Kandy Tate, Veloy Vigil.

1812. GALLERY G. FINE ARTS
6611 E Central 67206
(316) 682-4071 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Sondra Goldman
19th- and 20th-century American and European paintings and prints.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Marc Chagall, Thomas DeDecker, John Doyle, Janet Kruscamp, Miguel Martinez, Roland Poska, Norman Rockwell, Andrew Wyeth, Jack Zavatsky.

1813. KNIGHTSBRIDGE GALLERY
3700 E Douglas 67208
(316) 683-1193 Daily 10-3:30
Dir: William Baillie
18th- and 19th-century British and contemporary European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andrew Brown, Fionna Carlisle, Anthea Lewis, Sir Robin Philipson, Joan Renton, Andrew Williams.

Other artists represented:
Lalia Dixon, Wilma Langhamer, Edward McCosh, Michael Snowdon, Don Van Dahl.

1814. VALHALLA GALLERY
5640 E Central 67208
(316) 683-1131 Mon-Fri 10-5:30; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Alice Messman/Tom Messman
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Axton, Robert Katona, Pawel Kontny, George Tate.

Other artists represented:
Tim Cisneros, Dane Clark, Jasper D'Ambrosi, Doug Dawson, Blaine DeMille, Richard Emmert, John Galvan, Len Garon, Maxine Gnazzo, Frank Howell, David Isenberg, Gary Kahle, Ramon Kelley, Vance Kirkland, Mario Kontny, Diane Mason, Frank McCoy, Howard Newcomb, Jean Newcomb, Loren Pahsetopah, Eric Pitsokes, T.F. Poduska, Lee Simpson.

1815. WICHITA ART MUSEUM
619 Stackman Dr 67203
(316) 268-4621 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Howard E. Wooden
18th-20th-century American painting, sculpture, drawing, prints; Pre-Columbian art; hands-on gallery for the blind.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lily Harmon*, Edward Laning*, John Noble*.

1816. WICHITA GALLERY OF FINE ARTS
4th Financial Center 67202
(316) 267-0243 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Robert Riegle
Regional and national realist art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Harrison.

Other artists represented:
Doug Atwill, Doran Barham, Ron Barsano, Bob Daughters, Bill Dickerson, Cal Dunn, John Free, Rod Goebel, Walt Gonske, Una Hanbury, Frederick James, John & Margie Kuhn, Caroline Norton, Jim Pilatos, Paula Plott, William F. Reese, Dan Rippe, Julian Robles, Tony Van Hasselt, Ray Vinella, Yogi Williams, Leonard Wren.

1817. WICHITA STATE UNIVERSITY
Edwin A. Ulrich Museum of Art 67208
(316) 689-3017 Mon-Fri 1-4:30
Dir: Martin H. Bush
19th-20th-century American art; art of Europe and the Americas; prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
F. Blackbear Bosin, Philippe Halsman, Al Hirschfeld, Jean-Louis Le Gall, Gjon Mili, Thomas Moran, Gordon Parks*, Paul Pletka, Joseph Raffael, Richard Rosenblum, Robert Vickrey.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Kentucky

Berea

1818. BEREA COLLEGE
Doris Ulmann Galleries 40404
(606) 986-9341, ext 292 Mon–Thu 8-9, Fri 8-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Sally Wilkerson
Doris Ulmann photographs of Appalachian people and craftsmen; Renaissance art; prints; textiles; paintings; sculpture; ceramics.

Bowling Green

1819. BOWLING GREEN PUBLIC LIBRARY GALLERY
1225 State St 42101
(502) 781-4882 Mon–Thu 9-9; Fri, Sat 9-5
Dir: Karen Turner
Local artists and craftsmen.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Melvin Adamson, Beatriz A. Candioti, Louise Caskey, Roberta Clark, William Leon Davis, Karen Fetterman, Norma Harryman, Juanita Kelsey-Baker, Nona Kinkade, Bill Moats, Cynthia Moore, Pam Osborne, Nell Peperis, Virginia Petty, Dolores Rudzinski, Ruby Wilson, Ginnie Wollin.

Other artists represented:
Cindy Blansit, Nolan Blansit, Tilda Brown, Jo Di Bella, Leo Fernandez, Dorrie Herrmann, Jo-Anne Lindsay, Carolyn Moscoe, Sandra K. Perdue, Mort Shahmir, Amelia Vasquez, Susan Webb.

1820. CAPITOL ARTS CENTER
Ervin G. Houchens Gallery
416 E Main St 42101
(502) 782-2787 Mon–Fri 9-4
Dir: Margaret A. Gluhman
Touring exhibitions; juried exhibitions; work in all mediums by Kentucky artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Benjamin Jones, Robert Love, Laurin Notheisen, Julie Moran Small, Mike Taylor, Susan Hartnett Webb.

1821. WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY GALLERY
Ivan Wilson Center for Fine Arts 42101
(502) 745-2345 Mon–Fri 8:30-4
Dir: John Warren Oakes
Contemporary art; student and faculty exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jack Corn, Unto Jarvi.

Frankfort

1823. CAPITAL GALLERY OF CONTEMPORARY ART
314 Lewis St 40601
(502) 223-2649 Tue–Sat 11-5
Dir: Cecelia B. Hromyak
Prints, drawings and paintings by American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Trudye McRae, Kathleen Middleton.

Other artists represented:
Phyllis Cohen, Meredith Dean, Ellen Glasgow, David P. Hares, Glenda Hares, Betty Haskin, Linda Hendrick, Jaquelin Jenkins, Sandra MacDiarmid, Janice Sayles, Diane Tesler.

1824. KENTUCKY HISTORY MUSEUM
Broadway and Lewis 40601
(502) 564-3016 Mon–Sat 9-4, Sun 1-5
Dir: William R. Buster
Kentucky fine and decorative arts, furniture, textiles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patrick Henry Davenport*.

Ft. Mitchell

1825. THOMAS MORE COLLEGE
T. M. Gallery
2771 Turkeyfoot Rd 41017
(606) 341-5800, ext 56
Dir: Mary de Deo Rauf
Local artists, traveling exhibits, student shows: paintings, drawings, sculpture, ceramics, printmaking, photography.

Georgetown

1826. GEORGETOWN COLLEGE
Georgetown College Gallery 40324
(502) 863-8154 Sep–May Mon–Fri 12:30-4:30
Dir: James McCormick
Regional, national and New York artists; painting, printmaking, sculpture, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mike Breckner, Marilyn Hamman, Trudy McRae, Guy Mendes.

Other artists represented:
Karl Apple, Robert Indiana, Paul Jenkins, Robert Rauschenberg.

Lexington

1827. CROSS GATE GALLERY
219 E High St 40507
(606) 233-3856 Daily 10-6
Dir: Greg Ladd
Equine and sporting art.

Other artists represented:
George Claxton, Kati Sutphin.

1828. HEADLAY-WHITNEY MUSEUM
4435 Old Frankfort Pike 40510
(606) 255-6653 Wed–Sun 10-5
Dir: Anne Gobar
Jeweled Bibelots, Oriental porcelains, European and American painting, decorative arts, sea shells.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Diana Kan, Guy Mendes, Jane Morton Norton.

1829. SKYDOME GALLERY
251 W Second St 40507
(606) 252-8871 Mon–Thu 9-9; Fri, Sat 9-5; Sun 1-5
Dir: Marcia Freyman
Non-profit; local and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Margo Adams, Patricia Banks, Jack Bowman, Rachel Maupin, Aline Winkler.

1830. UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY
Art Museum
Rose and Euclid Sts 40506
(606) 257-5716 Tue–Sun 12-5
Dir: William J. Hennessey
American and European art 1600–present; African and Pre-Colombian collections; full schedule of changing exhibitions.

Louisville

1831. BYCK GALLERY
609 W Main St 40202
(502) 587-1646 Mon–Fri 10-5; Sat 11-3
Dir: Marlene Byck Grissom
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, fine art posters.

Other artists represented:
Mary Ann Currier, Richard Erdman, Paul Fields, Sandy Kinnee, Ann Maikun, Julie W. Martin, David McCullough, Martin McQuinn, Alice Ballard Munn, David Musselman, Jane Morton Norton, Sam Ogden, Bob Paige, Rex Robinson, Peter Rockwell, Susan Scott, Peter Taylor, Ulfert Wilkie, Jirn Yohe.

1832. LIBERTY GALLERY
416 W Jefferson Ave 40206
(502) 566-2081 Mon–Thu 9-4, Fri 9-5:30
Dir: Jacque Parsley
Non-profit; local, regional crafts in many mediums; fine art, photography.

Other artists represented:
Ann Stewart Anderson, Peter Bodnar III, Gayle Cerlan, Barbara Crawford, Lida Gordon, Garry Kaulitz, Lennie Kesl, Tom Lear, Alma Lesch, Rex Robinson, Martin Rollins, Lizi Ruch, Jeff Tull.

1833. LOUISVILLE ART GALLERY
301 York St 40203
(502) 583-7062 Mon–Sat 9-5
Dir: Roberta Williams
Non-profit; regional and national artists; educational programs.

1834. LOUISVILLE SCHOOL OF ART GALLERY
806 E Chestnut St 40204
(502) 589-5867 Daily 9-5, Sat 9-5
Dir: John Yarmuth
Student, faculty, and alumni shows; invitationals.

1835. MERIDA GALLERIES
2007 Frankfort Ave 40206
(502) 896-2331 Daily 10-5
Dir: Frederick A. Merida
19th-century and contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Aldon Addington, John Michael Carter, George Deem, Robert James Foose, Marjorie Freund, Robert Lockhart, Jack Meanwell, Freeman Erle Prior.

1836. KATHLEEN MEYER GALLERY
624 W Main St 40202
(502) 583-4295 Mon–Fri 10-5, Sat 11-6
Dir: Kathleen Meyer
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Robert Greene, Diana Huff, Kim Keever, Robert Pittenger, Mikel Rouse, Duston Spear, Michael Stoughton, John Tomlinson, Worawit.

---

*see catalog index

1837. PARK GALLERY
3932 Chenoweth Square 40207
(502) 896-4029 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lucy Marret
Contemporary and traditional paintings, prints, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Norma Finger, Kristen Kirchner-McDonald, Neisja Yenawine.

Other artists represented:
Ann Stewart Anderson, Debra Barnes, Sue Bolt, Nancy Comstock, Carolyn Connors, Joyce Justus, Diane Reed, Lizi Ruch, Keith Spears.

1838. J. B. SPEED ART MUSEUM
2035 S 3rd St 40208
(502) 636-2893 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 2-6
Dir: Addison Franklin Page
European and American fine, graphic, and decorative arts, ancient to modern; sculpture court; tapestries, American Indian art.

1839. SWEARINGEN GALLERY
4806 Brownsboro Center 40207
(502) 893-5209 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Carol Swearingen
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Wayne Bates, James Byrd, Steve Cull, Jeannie Dueber, Ewing Fahey, Harlan Hubbard, Henry Koehler, Ann Lindstrom, Bob Longhurst, Gerald Matlick, Ken Page, Carl Peveral, Tom Pfannerstill, Selina Treiff, Robin Van Arsdol, Judy Wells, Dennis Whitcopf, Bill Woodward.

1840. MARTHA WHITE GALLERY
330 W Main St 40202
(502) 589-3347 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Martha White
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, works on paper, graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sigrid Burton, Friedel Dzubas, Robert Goodnough, James Havard, Daryl Hughto, Jules Olitski.

Other artists represented:
Dan Christensen, Tom Goldenberg, John Adams Grieffen, Jacob Kainen, Tony Marra, Susan Roth, Kikuo Saito, Theodoros Stamos.

Murray

1841. MURRAY STATE UNIVERSITY
Clara Eagle Art Gallery
Price Doyle Fine Arts Center 42071
(502) 762-3784 Mon-Fri 7:30-9, Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Curt Harris
Contemporary American art; historical and international exhibitions; Oriental collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dennis Gould.

Owensboro

1842. BRESCIA COLLEGE ART GALLERY
120 W 7th St 42301
(502) 685-3131 Mon-Fri 8-9, Sat 8-12
Dir: Gerald A. Matlick
Student exhibitions related to academic programs; loan exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Terry Bailey, Harris Deller, Jeff Goode, David Gossom, Dan McGuire.

1843. OWENSBORO MUSEUM OF FINE ART
901 Frederica St 42301
(502) 685-3181 Mon-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Mary Bryan Hood
18th-20th-century American art; 16th-19th-century decorative arts; Kentucky artists from 1800-present.

Paducah

1844. PADUCAH ART GALLERY
200 Broadway, PO Box 634 42001
(502) 442-2453 Tue-Sat 12-4; Sun 1-5; Jun-Aug Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Michael Watts
Non-profit organization exhibiting contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leo Fernendez, Nell Storer, Bill Whorrall, Mary Yeiser.

Louisiana

Alexandria

1845. ALEXANDRIA MUSEUM/VISUAL ARTS CENTER
933 Main St 71309
(318) 443-3458 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-2
Dir: Timothy S. Allen
Contemporary American and European works on paper, painting, sculpture, weaving; Louisiana folk arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mimi Bolton, Clyde Connell, Salvatore Pecoraro.

Baton Rouge

1846. GUILD GALLERY
7371 Florida Blvd 70806
(504) 925-9011 Mon-Sat 10-4
Dir: Chuck Mauldin
Exhibitions of work by local and member artists.

1847. LOUISIANA ARTS AND SCIENCE CENTER
100 S River Rd 70821
(504) 344-9463 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Carol Gikas
Louisiana and Mississippi River history; 18th-20th-century paintings; contemporary sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams, Conrad Albrizio, Walter Anderson, Turner Browne, Leonardo Da Vinci, Dina Dar, John Margolies, Theodore Wores.

1848. LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY
Union Art Gallery 70893
(504) 388-5117 Mon-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Judi Stahl
Educational facility; exhibitions by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Luis Cruz Azaceta, Elin Eisofon, Sidney Garrett, Harvey Sherman Harris.

Covington

1849. ST. TAMMANY ART ASSOCIATION
129 N New Hampshire 70433
(504) 892-8650 Mon-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Henry Hood
Fine arts and crafts by living artists; sales of local artists' works; art classes.

Other artists represented:
Miriam Barranger, William H. Binnings, Charles Blank, James Campbell, Cathey Cashion, Margaret Chassee, Florence Chesnutt, John Clemmer, Norma Gist, Helen Herdliska, Lyn Hill, John Hodge, Gail Hood, Elizabeth B. Joanen, Lynda Katz, Gene Koss, Tom Lorio, Charles Miltenberger, Augusta Polchow, Claire Rohrbough, Marilyn C. Rougelot, Janet Rucker, Robert Rucker.

Jennings

1850. ZIGLER MUSEUM
411 Clara St 70546
(318) 824-0114 Tue-Fri 10-12, 2-4:30; Sat, Sun 2-4:30
Dir: Ivan Mira/Eva Mira
Permanent collection of American 19th-20th-century artists; works featuring regional wildlife; changing exhibitions.

Lafayette

1851. ELMHURST PARK GALLERY
706 W University 70506
(318) 237-1719 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Judy Bishop
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
David Alpha, Michael Flaherty, John Geldersma.

1852. LIVE OAK GALLERY
102 Amaryllis 70503
(318) 233-3477 Daily 10-6
Dir: Bob Crutchfield
Local and national art; graphics.

Other artists represented:
Jean Angelle, Paul Burkle, Lois Geer, Jim Hill, A.B. Makk, Americo Makk, Eva Makk, Joann Quillman, Kirby Rogers, Larry Russell, Steve Watson.

1853. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHWESTERN LOUISIANA
Union Art Gallery
Box 42611 70504
(318) 231-6372 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Michael Flaherty
Exhibitions; competitions.

1854. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHWESTERN LOUISIANA
University Art Center
USL Box 43850 70504
(318) 231-6224 Mon-Fri 8:30-4
Dir: Herman Mhire
19th-20th-century Louisiana art; Henry Botkin collection; loan exhibitions; student and faculty artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
K. C. Arceneaux, Henry Botkin*, Melody Guichet, Mary Lee Hu, Dutch Kepler, Clarence John Laughlin, Cheryl Savoy, Edward Weston.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Monroe

1855. MASUR MUSEUM OF ART
1400 S Grand 71201
(318) 329-2237 Tue-Thu 10-6; Fri, Sun 2-5
Dir: William C. Pratt
Paintings, prints, sculpture, photographs.

1856. NORTHEAST LOUISIANA UNIVERSITY
Bry Gallery
700 University Ave 71209
(318) 342-3110 Mon-Thu 8-9:30, Fri 8-5
Dir: Edward Schutz
Student and faculty work in all mediums.

New Orleans

1857. AARON-HASTINGS GALLERY
1130 Saint Charles St 70130
(504) 523-1900 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Sam Still
Contemporary Louisiana artists; works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Laura Brenholtz-Gipson, Robert Landry, Steve Sweet.

Other artists represented:
Doug MacCash, Patricia Way.

1858. BEALL CONTEMPORARY GALLERY
3434 Magazine St 70115
(504) 891-6677 Tue-Sat 12-4:30; By appt
Dir: Monte E. Beall
Original contemporary prints, paintings, and sculpture by Louisiana and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Zuleyka Benitez, Ann Chernow, K. Trenchard.

1859. BIENVILLE GALLERY
1800 Hasting Place 70130
(504) 523-5889 Tue-Sat 12-5:30
Dir: Edward Wiegand
Contemporary New York, local, and European sculpture, paintings, graphics.

Other artists represented:
Steve Christo, Ralston Crawford, Peter Dean, Joe Digiorgio, Jane Garner, Simon Gunning, Christopher Johns, Jay Milder, Lee Savage, Albert Smith, George Williams, Margaret Witherspoon.

1860. CASELL GALLERIES
818 Royal St 70116
(504) 524-0671 Daily 10-7
Dir: Joaquin Casellas
20th-century, regional, and Oriental works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Amzie Adams, Larry Larson, Jack Miller, Phillip Sage.

1861. CASELL GALLERIES
633 Royal St 70116
(504) 522-8307 Daily 10-7
Dir: Joaquin Casellas
20th-century, regional, and Oriental works on paper.

1862. CONTEMPORARY ARTS CENTER
900 Camp St 70130
(504) 523-1216 Daily 9:30-5
Dir: Don Marshall
National and regional contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barbara Baer, Romare Bearden, Robert Mapplethorpe, Ed McGowin, John Miller, Owen Murphy, Dan Piersol, Sharon Sauerhoff.

1863. DAVIS GALLERY
3964 Magazine St 70115
(504) 897-0780 Daily 10-5
Dir: Charles B. Davis
Ethnographic art: African and Pre-Columbian.

1864. G. E. FINE ART
834 Rue Chartre 70116
(504) 528-9513 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Mario Villa
Sculpture and painting; works by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Grote, Gyuri Hollosy, Brenda Katz, Arthur Kern, Mario Villa.

Other artists represented:
Toni Krysinsky, D. Nuego, Mark Rosenbaum, Pam Kelly Sills, Norman Therrien.

1865. GALERIE DE VILLE
132 Carondelet 70130
(504) 522-2363 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: George De Ville
Contemporary art by regional artists; graphics.

Other artists represented:
George Dureau, James Fisher, Robert Gordy, John Hodge, Elmore Morgan, George Williams.

1866. GALERIE JULES LAFORGUE
2119 Decatur St 70116
(504) 945-7379 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Leah Laforgue
Louisiana artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Douglas Bourgeois, George Dureau, Ann Hornback.

Other artists represented:
Andrew Bascle, Philip Bascle, Jackie Bishop, Charles Blank, Dona Lief, Barbara Lion, Bunny Matthews.

1867. GALERIE SIMONNE STERN
2727 Prytania St 70130
(504) 895-2452/895-3824 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Barbara K. Muniot
Contemporary painting, drawings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Wayne Amedee, Kitten Christovich, Emery Clark, Dorree Cooper, George Dunbar, Randy Ernst, Robert Gordy, Melody Guichet, Robert Hausey, James Hill, Patricia Whitty Johnson, Richard A. Johnson, Robert Lyon, John Miller, Phillip Neal, John Opie, Dino Pelliccia, Jesse Poimboeuf, Jim Richard, Georgia Ross, Winifred Ross, Arthur Silverman, Robert Warrens.

1868. GALLERY 539
539 Bienville St 70130
(504) 522-0695 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Jim Lamantia
Japanese woodblocks, Piranesi, and 17th-19th-century prints and drawings; architectural prints, books, and drawings.

1869. A GALLERY FOR FINE PHOTOGRAPHY
5423 Magazine St 70115
(504) 891-1002 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Joshua Mann Pailet
19th- and 20th-century photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
W. Eugene Smith.

Other artists represented:
Berenice Abbott, Ansel Adams, Diane Arbus, Edward Sheriff Curtis, Robert Doisneau, E.O. Goldbeck, Emmet Gowin, Yousuf Karsh, Clarence John Laughlin, Eliot Porter, Jerry Uelsmann.

1870. GASPERI FOLK ART GALLERY
831 Saint Peter St 70116
(504) 524-9373 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard D. Gasperi
Southern regional folk art including paintings, drawings, sculpture, wood-carvings.

Other artists represented:
Walter Anderson, Bruce Brice, David Butler, Rev. Howard Finster, Milton Fletcher, Clementine Hunter, Gertrude Morgan, Inez Nathaniel-Walker, Helen Pickle, Juanita Rogers, Nellie Mae Rowe, Jack Savitsky, Mose Tolliver, Bill Traylor, Chief Willey, Malcah Zeldis.

Antoine Coysevox: Mercury; J. B. Speed Art Museum, Louisville (Jan. 11-Feb. 28, 1982).

1871. HANSON GALLERIES
229 Royal St 70130
(504) 566-0816 Mon-Thu 10-6; Fri, Sat 10-Midnight; Sun 11-5
Dir: Stephanie Baus
20th-century graphics; turn-of-the-century posters.

Other artists represented:
Guillaume Azoulay, Charles Bragg, Jules Cheret, Salvador Dali, Joan Miró, Leroy Neiman, Hisashi Otsuka, G. H. Rothe, Rufino Tamayo.

1872. HISTORIC NEW ORLEANS COLLECTION
533 Royal St 70130
(504) 523-4662 Tue-Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Stanton Frazar
Museum, research center; New Orleans and Louisiana history and culture; paintings, drawings, prints, photographs: pre-colonial period to the present.

1873. LOUISIANA STATE MUSEUM
751 Chartres St 70116
(504) 568-6968 Tue-Sun 10-6
Dir: Robert R. MacDonald
Smithsonian Institution; New Orleans and Louisiana paintings; prints, ephemera, books.

1874. NAHAN GALLERIES
540 Royal St 70130
(504) 524-8696 Daily 9:30-5:30
Dir: Kenneth Nahan
Agents, publishers, and representatives of international contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Baggett, Paolo Boni, Max Papart, Theo Tobiasse.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Marc Chagall, James Coignard, Helen Finch, Richard Lindner, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Shalom of Safed, Rufino Tamayo.

1875. NEW ORLEANS ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS
Academy Gallery
5256 Magazine St 70115
(504) 899-8111
Dir: Allison Collins/Auseklis Ozols
Contemporary local, national, and international artists; non-profit.

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Xavier De Callatay, Zella Funck, Joann Greenberg, John Hodge, Dona Lee Lief, Evelyn Menge, Peg Murison, Auseklis Ozols, Madelaine Shellaby.

1876. NEW ORLEANS MUSEUM OF ART
City Park, Lelong Ave 70119
(504) 488-2631 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: E. John Bullard
Arts of the Americas, Pre-Columbian to the present; photography; 13th-19th-century Italian painting; 19th-century French, Japanese and contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Honoré Daumier*, Mother St. Croix*, Edward Steichen.

1877. SANDRA ZAHN ORECK GALLERY
529 Wilkinson Row 70130
(504) 529-7676 Mon-Sat 10-6, Sun 11-5
Dir: Sandra Zahn Oreck
Contemporary American paintings, prints, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Adolph Kronengold, Peter Lipman-Wulf, Rockmore*.

Other artists represented:
Larry Bartlett, Jay Calder, Jim Egleson, Gordon Emerson, Brian Halsey, Arnold Hoffmann, Elwood Howell, Nathan Kern, James McCoy, Morris Shubin, Isabelle Siegel, Hunt Slonem, Billie Stroud.

1878. ARTHUR ROGER GALLERY
3005 Magazine 70115
(504) 895-5287 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Arthur Roger
Contemporary works by regional and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dub Brock, Gerald Cannon, Adrian Deckbar, Carol Hurst, Gene Koss, John Lawrence, Michael Ledet, Warren Neidich, Steve Rucker, Rayford Shaw, Allison Stewart, Robert Tannen, Edward Whiteman.

Other artists represented:
Barry Bailey, Debbie Caffery, Ted Calas, Cynthia Carlson, James De Woody, Doyle Gertjejansen, Ida Kohlmeyer, Wellington Reiter, Harry Soriak.

1879. ST. CHARLES GALLERY
1720 St Charles Ave 70130
(504) 581-9300 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Walker Ronaldson
18th-20th-century English and American art; old master drawings.

1880. TAHIR GALLERY
823 Chartres St 70116
(504) 525-3095 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Abe M. Tahir, Jr.
19th- and 20th-century American prints.

Other artists represented:
Ivan L. Albright, John Taylor Arms, George Bellows, Thomas Hart Benton, Mabel Dwight, Childe Hassam, Jacques Hnizdovsky, John Sloan, Grant Wood.

1881. TILDEN-FOLEY GALLERY
933 Royal St 70116
(504) 522-7728 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Andrew Tilden/Tim Foley
Contemporary American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Febres, Bill Ludwig, Terry Weldon, Emily Wilson.

Other artists represented:
George Dureau.

1882. TULANE UNIVERSITY
Newcomb Art Gallery 70118
(504) 865-5327 Tue-Fri 9-4:30
Dir: John Clemmer
Exhibitions by student and faculty, local, and national artists.

1884. UNIVERSITY OF NEW ORLEANS
Fine Arts Gallery
Lakefront 70148
(504) 286-6493 Mon-Fri 8-4:30
Dir: Ronald J. Todd
Student and professional art in all mediums.

Shreveport

1885. CENTENARY COLLEGE
Meadows Museum of Art and Library Gallery
2911 Centenary Blvd 71104
(318) 869-5169 Tue-Fri 1-5, Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Judy Godfrey
Jean Despujol's Collection of paintings and drawings of Indochina; 18th-20th-century prints and paintings.

1886. R. W. NORTON ART GALLERY
4747 Creswell Ave 71106
(318) 865-4201 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Mrs. R.W. Norton, Jr.
Collections of American and European paintings, sculpture and decorative arts; art of the American West.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Earl Thompson*.

Maine

Augusta

1887. UNIVERSITY OF MAINE, AUGUSTA
Jewitt Hall Gallery
University Heights 04330
(207) 622-7131 Daily 9-5
Dir: Robert Katz
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfred C. Chadbourn, Poul S. Nielsen.

Brunswick

1888. BOWDOIN COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART
Walker Art Building 04011
(207) 725-8731 ext 275 Tue-Fri 10-4, Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Katharine J. Watson
European and American fine and decorative arts; antiquities; Winslow Homer memorabilia; Far Eastern ceramics; African and Pre-Columbian sculpture.

Ogunquit

1889. MUSEUM OF ART OF OGUNQUIT
Shore Rd 03907
(207) 646-8827 Daily 10:30-5, Sun 1:30-5
Dir: Henry Strater
Paintings, sculpture and drawings by North Americans, 1915-1980.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harmon Neill.

Orono

1890. UNIVERSITY OF MAINE
Art Gallery and Art Collection
109 Carnegie Hall 04469
(207) 581-3255 Mon-Fri 8-4
Dir: Vincent A. Hartgen
Exhibitions and collection related to academic programs and to the state of Maine.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christo, Ronald Ghiz, Shannon McArthur, Nina Sutcliffe, Nahum Tschacbasov, Lawrence Weissman, Valerie Zint.

Portland

1891. HOBE SOUND GALLERIES NORTH
1 Milk St 04101
(207) 773-2755 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Kathleen Sardegna/Peter Bullock
Contemporary artists of the Northeast.

1892. PORTLAND MUSEUM OF ART
7 Congress Square 04101
(207) 775-6148 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu eve 5-9, Sun 12-5
Dir: John Holverson
19th- and 20th-century American paintings, works on paper, sculpture; early American and Federal period decorative arts.

1893. WESTBROOK COLLEGE
Joan Whitney Payson Gallery of Art
Steven's Ave 04103
(207) 797-9546 Tue-Fri 10-4, Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Judith Sobol
Works by 19- and 20th-century masters: Ingres to Wyeth, Impressionist, Post-impressionist.

Rockland

1894. WILLIAM A. FARNSWORTH LIBRARY AND ART MUSEUM
19 Elm St, Box 466 04841
(207) 596-6457 Jun-Oct, Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5; Oct-Jun, Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Marius B. Peladeau
American and European paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings and photographs with emphasis on work by Maine artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Herbert Fink, Charles L. Fox, Robert Indiana*, Jack Muench, Andrew Winter, N. C. Wyeth*.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Rockport

1895. MAINE COAST ARTISTS GALLERY
Russell Ave, Box 147 04856
(207) 236-2875 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Benedict Goldsmith/Sally Dunbar
Non-profit gallery of Maine art; educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Denny Winters.

1896. MAINE PHOTOGRAPHIC WORKSHOPS
2 Central St 04856
(207) 236-8581 Daily 9-5
Dir: David H. Lyman
Vintage and contemporary photography; educational program.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sonja Bullaty, Jo Ann Callis, Paul Caponigro, Kate Carter, Jed Devine, Franco Fontana, Sharon Fox, Christopher James, Len Jenshel, Barbara Karant, Ann Kurutz, Angelo Lomeo, Denny Moers, Mike O'Neill, Eliot Porter, Lilo Raymond, Fred Schreiber, John Sexton, Craig Stevens, Cole Weston.

Saco

1897. YORK INSTITUTE MUSEUM
371 Main St 04072
(207) 282-3031
Dir: Stephen Podgajny
Fine and decorative arts, period rooms, changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Brewster.

Waterville

1898. COLBY COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART
Mayflower Hill 04901
(207) 873-1131 ext 2228 Daily 10-12, 1-4:30, Sun 2-4:30
Dir: Hugh J. Gourley III
18th-, 19th-, and 20th-century American art. Selected European works and collections of Oriental, Pre-Columbian and Greek ceramics.

1899. THOMAS COLLEGE
Art Gallery
West River Rd 04901
(207) 873-0771 ext 221 Mon-Fri 8:30-4:30
Dir: Norman R. Soderberg
Mixed media, paintings, photography, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert D'Alessandro, Don Duquet, Ben Gilbert, Ford A. Grant, Jo Hardy, Tom Hennessey, R. Edward Nadeau, Franciska Needham.

Maryland

Baltimore

1900. BALTIMORE MUSEUM OF ART
Art Museum Dr 21218
(301) 396-7101 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat, Sun 11-6
Dir: Arnold L. Lehman
Paintings, sculpture from Renaissance to the present; Pre-Columbian, American Indian, African, Oceanic and American decorative arts; mosaics from Antioch Syria.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Grace Hartigan, Morris Louis, Clyfford Still, Anne Truitt.

1901. G.H. DALSHEIMER GALLERY
519 N Charles St 21201
(301) 727-0866 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: George H. Dalsheimer
19th- and 20th-century photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Callahan, Christopher James, Michel Szulc Krzyzanowski, Denny Moers, Daniel Ranalli, Aaron Siskind, Jaromir Stephany, John Weiss.

Other artists represented:
Roland Freeman, Craig Stevens.

1902. C. GRIMALDIS GALLERY
928 N Charles St 21201
(301) 539-1080 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Constantine Grimaldis
Contemporary regional, national, international artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Grace Hartigan, Eugene Leake, Keith Martin.

Other artists represented:
Sylvia Benitez, Pablo Cano, Robert Dash, Elaine de Kooning, Dan Dudrow, Norris Embry, Aristodemos Kaldis, Scott Kesler, Phil Koch, Kevin Labadie, Martha Macks, John McCarty, Mary Ann Mears, Jeffrey Meizlik, Raoul Middleman, Alice Neel, Christine Neill, Wade Saunders, Stephanie Scuris, Tammra Sigler, Rex Stevens, Dan Wittels.

1903. JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY
Evergreen House
4545 N Charles St 21210
(301) 338-7641 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Susan G. Tripp
Art of 20th century; Japanese inro, netsuke and lacquer; Chinese porcelains; Oriental rugs; Tiffany glass; Bakst theater art; rare books.

1904. FRANK LYONS COLLECTION
Box 1852 21203
(301) 296-5533 By appt
Dir: Frank Lyons
19th-20th-century prints and photographs; contact also Hutzlers Fine Art Gallery, (301) 825-1234, Towson, MD.

1905. MARYLAND INSTITUTE, COLLEGE OF ART
Decker and Meyerhoff Galleries
1300 W Mount Royal Ave 21217
(301) 669-9200 ext 249 Mon-Sat 10-5; Wed, Thu 10-9; Sun 12-5
Dir: Robin Coplan
Primarily contemporary art; student and faculty shows.

1906. MEREDITH CONTEMPORARY ART GALLERY
805 N Charles St 21201
(301) 837-3575 Tue-Sat 10-5; Summer Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Judith Lippman
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Ed Baynard, Gene Davis, Dorothy Gillespie, James Hansen, Margie Hughto, Brian Kavanagh, David Lund, Ellen MacDonald, Robert Milnes, Gayil Nalls, Harvey Peterson, Paul Sisko, Tip Toland.

1907. WALTERS ART GALLERY
600 N Charles St 21201
(301) 547-9000 Mon 1-5, Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert P. Bergman
Antiquity through 19th century: decorative arts, painting, sculpture, arms and armors, jewelry, ceramics, textiles.

Bethesda

1908. BETHESDA ART GALLERY
7950 Norfolk Ave 20814
(301) 656-6665
Dir: Betty Minor Duffy
American prints from 1900-1950.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Howard Cook, Don Freeman, Emil Ganso, Rockwell Kent, Walt Kuhn, Louis Schanker, Raphael Soyer.

Other artists represented:
George Bellows, Thomas Hart Benton, John S. Curry, Martin Lewis, Louis Lozowick, John Sloan, Prentiss Taylor, Max Weber, Grant Wood.

1909. CAPRICORN GALLERIES
4849 Rugby Ave 20814
(301) 657-3477/654-3880 Tue-Sat 11-5:30, Tue-Fri eves 7-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: Philip Desind
Contemporary American Realism; also paintings, prints, sculpture, European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kang Lok Chung, John Digby, Thomas LoCicero, John O'Connor, Gary Pettigrew, John Sayers, Charles Showalter.

Other artists represented:
Max Brickman, Ranulph Bye, Gretna Campbell, Roger Coleman, Alice Corbett, Cyril David, Deborah, George Dombeck, Bernice Duvall, Barbara Hails, Don Hendricks, Eric Hoffman, Leo Jensen, Joseph Kabriel, David Kessler, Joseph Konopka, Joseph McNamara, Roger Medearis, Jane Mihalik, William Milne, Susan Murphy, Robert Neffson, Thaddeus Piersa, Warren Prosperi, Jose Quinones, Robert Ralph, Dalia Ramanauskas, Gary Reister, Roberta Schofield, Burton Silverman, George Staempfli, Mary Etta Thorn, Lowell Tolstedt, Frederick Wall, Betty Weis, Robert Weiss, John Winkler, Dana Winslow, Sharon Wolpoff, Marvin Yates, Elinore Young.

1910. GLASS GALLERY
4931 Elm St 20814
(301) 657-3478 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Sarah Hansen/Anne Smith
Contemporary studio glass; sculpture, wall panels, vessel forms.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hank Murta Adams, Audrey Handler, Sylvia Vigiletti.

Other artists represented:
Tina Marie Aufiero, Karen Flynn-Miller, Michael M. Glancy, David Leppla, Marvin Lipofsky, Concetta Mason, Tom McGlauchlin, Karel Mikolas, James Nadal, Edward Nesteruk, Kurt Runstadler, Marsha Runstadler, Molly Stone, Kurt Swanson, Bertil Vallien, Ann Wärff, Göran Wärff, Meredith Wenzel.

1911. MARSHA MATEYKA GALLERY
6407 Marjory Lane 20817
(301) 229-1970 By appt
Dir: Marsha Mateyka
Contemporary American art; works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Ginsberg, Charles Rumph, Janet Saad-Cook.

Other artists represented:
Harry Callahan, Garie Crawford, Sam Francis, Mary Frank, Michael Heindorff, Robert Motherwell, Neil Welliver, Nancy Wolf.

Easton

1912. ACADEMY OF THE ARTS
South and Harrison Sts 21601
(301) 822-0455 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sat 1-4
Dir: Anna Larkin
Non-profit; contemporary and local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Carfagno, Gil Given, Merrilyne Hendrickson, Genevieve Hobert, Peggy Kane, Gary Siegal, David Stevens, Peg Swartout, Mary Wheeler.

Hagerstown

1913. BENJAMIN ART GALLERY
1303 Penna Ave 21740
(301) 797-4775 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Benjamin Green
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints.

Other artists represented:
Afred Brule, Mark Noe, G.H. Rothe, Adolf Sehring, Lester Stone, Henry Wu Yue-Kee.

Towson

1914. TOWSON STATE UNIVERSITY
Holtzman Art Gallery 21204
(301) 321-2808 Mon-Fri 11-4; Tue, Thu 6-9; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Christopher Bartlett
Contemporary and historic exhibitions; student and faculty work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elin Elisofin, Gladys Goldstein, Philip Pearlstein*, James Voshell.

Massachusetts

Amherst

1915. AMHERST COLLEGE
Mead Art Museum 01002
(617) 542-2335 Daily 10-4:30; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Frank Trapp
Ancient-contemporary sculpture, paintings, and decorative arts; 18th- and 19th-century American paintings; prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Ablow, Isabel Bishop, Henry Bursztynowicz, Jim Frazer, Michael Mazur, Robert Sweeney, Bart Wasserman.

1916. UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
Herter Art Gallery 01003
(413) 545-0976 Mon-Fri 11-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Michael Coblyn
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rita Abbey, Linda Catano, John Townsend, George Wardlaw.

1917. UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
University Gallery
Fine Arts Center 01003
(413) 545-3670/545-3671
Dir: Hugh M. Davies
Changing exhibitions of contemporary art; permanent collection of 20th-century American works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Michael Brewster, Donald Evans, Richard Nonas, Judy Pfaff, Barbara Zucker.

Andover

1918. ADDISON GALLERY OF AMERICAN ART
Phillips Academy 01810
(617) 475-7515 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2:30-5
Dir: Christopher C. Cook
16th-20th-century American works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Stella*.

1919. ANDOVER GALLERY
68 Park St 01810
(617) 475-7468 Tue-Sat 9-5
Dir: Howard Yezerski
Contemporary art; many mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Faudie, Pat Keck, Gustaf Miller, Richard Rosenblum, Corey Trevan, Kelly Wise.

Other artists represented:
Virginia Brennan, Jean DeRosa, Lenore Hill, Michael Jacques, Judy Kramer, Janvier Lange, Anne MacDougall, Linda Plotkin, David Raymond, James Sheldon, David Sullivan.

Boston

1920. ALIANZA
140 Newbury St 02116
(617) 262-2385 Mon-Sat 10-6, Wed 10-8
Dir: Karen Rotenberg
Contemporary crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Francoise Barnes, Joan Sawyer, Susan Turbak.

1921. ALPHA GALLERY
121 Newbury St 02116
(617) 536-4465 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Alan Fink
20th-century American and European works; late-19th- and 20th-century prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Aponovich, Milton Avery, Bernard Chaet, Kathryn Gabinet-Kroo, Nancy Hagin, Lester Johnson, Langdon Quin.

Other artists represented:
Riley Brewster, Ralph Coburn, Aaron Fink, Dan Gustin, Dimitri Hadzi, Susan Heideman, James Hennessey, Reed Kay, Gyorgy Kepes, Peter Milton, Peter Plamondon, Katherine Porter, Scott Prior, Annilies Pruisken, Barnet Rubenstein, Richard Sheehan, Barbara Swan, Harold Tovish, Elbert Weinberg, Richard Ziemann.

1922. ART INSTITUTE OF BOSTON
700 Beacon St 02215
(617) 262-1223
Dir: Angelo Fertitta

1923. ARVEST GALLERIES
77 Newbury St 02116
(617) 247-1418 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: A. Ara Danikian
19th-early-20th-century American paintings.

Other artists represented:
Richardson White.

1924. DAVID BERNSTEIN GALLERY
36 Newbury St 02116
(617) 267-3779 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Gwen Putzig
Contemporary art glass.

Other artists represented:
Rick Bernstein, Dan Daily, Sid Hutter, Joey Kirkpatrick, Harvey Littleton, Andy Magdanz, Flora Male, Linda McNeil.

1925. BUNNELL
166 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-6193 Mon-Fri 9-5, Wed eve 5-7, Sat 10-4
Dir: Deborah Brown
Prints; Japanese woodblocks; African masks.

1926. CHILDS GALLERY
169 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-1108 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: D. Roger Howlett
18th-20th-century American and European paintings, prints, drawings, and watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Herbert Barnett, Frank W. Benson, Molly Luce, Leo Meissner, W. Lester Stevens.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Birch, Thomas Hewes Hinckley, Winslow Homer, William J. Kaula, George Luks, Charles Willson Peale, John Smibert.

1927. COPLEY SOCIETY OF BOSTON
158 Newbury St 02116
(617) 536-5049 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lynn Loscutoff
Work of current and 19th century member-artists.

1928. ENGLISH GALLERY
212 Newbury St 02116
(617) 536-6388 Mon-Sat 10:30-6:30
Dir: William Ash
17th-19th-century European and American art in all mediums.

1929. GALLERY NAGA
67 Newbury St 02116
(617) 267-9060 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Arthur Dion
Contemporary Boston-area paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints, photography, jewelry, and performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Barbero, William Georgenes, Tim Hamill, Martha Lloyd, Henry Schwartz, Brenda Star.

Other artists represented:
Carole Bolsey, Dale Emmart, James Gemmill, Bruce Herman, Don Lettis, Carol Miller, Theresa Monaco, Hap Paull, Peter Rappoli, Carolyn Refsnes Kniazzah, Susan Zeeman Rogers, Peter Scott, C. David Thomas, Kalman Zabarsky.

1930. GRAPHICS 1 AND GRAPHICS 2
168 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-2475 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Lindsay Lasser
Contemporary original graphics.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Albers, Alexander Calder, Jean Michel Folon, Paul Jenkins, Joan Miró, Malcolm Morley, Robert Motherwell, Philip Pearlstein, Carol Summers, Neil Welliver.

1931. HARCUS GALLERY
7 Newbury St 02116
(617) 262-4445 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Portia Harcus
Post-World War II paintings, sculpture; prints and photographs.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Caro, Dan Christensen, Christopher James, Louise Nevelson, George Nick, Jules Olitski, Michael Steiner, Robert S. Zakanitch.

Other artists represented:
Robert Goodnough, Hans Hofmann, Alex Katz, Joel Meyerowitz, Pat Steir, Neil Welliver.

1932. HELD KOURPERNIKOFF
308 Boylston 02116
(617) 267-8236 Mon-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun by appt
Dir: Philip K. Cooper/Patsy Held
Contemporary American paintings and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Juan Gomez-Quiroc, Robert Gruppe.

1933. IMPRESSIONS GALLERY
275 Dartmouth St 02116
(617) 262-0783 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Victoria Munroe
Contemporary works on paper, prints, ceramic sculpture, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sigmund Abeles, Barbara Apel, Robert Brady, Susan Bush, Deborah Cornell, Harvey Goldman, Paul Harcharik, Rick Hirsch, David Kelley, Dennis Olsen, Paul Pollaro, Elsa Rady, Andrew Stevovich, Sarah Westlake.

Other artists represented:
Roselyn Karol Ablow, Jane Ford Aebersold, Mary Anderson-Armstrong, Alexandra Antic, Rudy Autio, Christina Bertoni, Michele Boll, Robert Ferrandini, Robert Ferris, William Flynn, Nan Freeman, Viola Frey, Joseph Goldyne, Jan Holcomb, Herb Jackson, Nancy Lawton, Peter Milton, Antonia Munroe, Olivia Munroe, Anne Neely, Walter Pashko, Tom Rippon, Jain Tarnower, William Wyman.

1934. INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART
955 Boylston St 02115
(617) 266-5151 Tue-Fri 11-7, Wed 11-8, Sat 11-6, Sun 12-6
Dir: David Ross
Changing exhibitions of contemporary art including video, performance art, and poetry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Boyle, Craig Lanager, Robert Morris.

1935. KINGSTON GALLERY
129 Kingston St 02111
(617) 423-4113 Wed-Sun 11-6
Dir: Joanne Jolly/David Kay
Contemporary art; membership gallery.

Other artists represented:
Therese Bisceglia, Stephen Blendowski, Denise Buckley, Jan Filios, Beth Galston, Jay Havighurst, Joanne Jolly, David Kay, Greg Kitterle, Jack Knight, Paul Laffoley, Jeff Melzack, Jeff Moy, Brenda Pinardi, Gerald Shertzer, Michael Vozella, Fran Watson, Don Weber, Joann Winkler, Walter Worden.

1936. ROBERT KLEIN GALLERY
216 Newbury St 02116
(617) 262-2278 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Robert Klein
20th-century photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Bridges, John Reuter.

Other artists represented:
Diane Arbus, Eugene Atget, Bill Brandt, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Robert Doisneau, Walker Evans, Katherine Fishman, Goodwin Harding, Lotte Jacobi, Arno Minkkinen, Aaron Siskind, Edward Steichen.

1937. BARBARA KRAKOW GALLERY
10 Newbury St 02116
(617) 262-4490 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Barbara Krakow
Post-1945 paintings; sculpture, drawings, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Victoria Faust, Scott Hadfield, Joel Janowitz, Michael Mazur, Todd McKie, Flora Natapoff.

1938. LOADING DOCK
46 Waltham 02118
(617) 338-8903 Wed-Sat 12-3; by appt
Dir: Antoinette Prince
Non-profit; local artists.

Other artists represented:
Carol Baker, Rita Straus Berkowitz, Francesco Carbone, Eva Gottlieb, Oscar Lakeman, Thomas McGraw, Pat Monson, Christus Murphy, Paul Parks, Gema Phillips, Antoinette Prince, Jean Segaloff, James Tyler.

1939. LOPOUKHINE GALLERY
354 Congress St 02210
(617) 738-4533 Wed-Sat 12-5
Dir: Andre Lopoukhine
Contemporary sculpture, paintings, photography, prints; textiles.

Other artists represented:
Miroslav Antic, Morgan Bulkeley, Laura Chasman, George Greenamyer, Jim Jacobs, Thomas Liesegang, David McCullough, Peter Pettus, Joseph Wheelwright.

1940. MAGNUSON GALLERY
8 Newbury St 02116
(617) 262-5252 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Betsy Magnuson
Contemporary prints, drawings, and photographs.

Other artists represented:
Sandro Chia, Francesco Clemente, Richard Diebenkorn, Jim Dine, Jasper Johns, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Rauschenberg, Edward Ruscha, David Salle, Julian Schnabel, Andy Warhol.

1941. MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE OF ART
Thompson Gallery
364 Brookline Ave 02215
(617) 731-2340 Mon-Fri 8-12; Sat, Sun 9-11:30
Dir: Paul M. Keto

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Romare Bearden, William Daley*, Lawrence Halprin, Kofi Kayiga, Hamilton Smith.

1942. MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS, BOSTON
465 Huntington Ave 02115
(617) 267-9300 ext 445 Tue-Sun 10-5, Wed 10-10; Thu, Fri 5-10
Dir: Jan Fontein
American and European decorative and fine arts; Asiatic, Egyptian, Near Eastern, Classical art; textiles and costumes; 20th century art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henri Cartier-Bresson*, Thomas Eakins*, Larry Poons*.

1943. NIELSEN GALLERY
179 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-4835 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Nina I. M. Nielsen
Contemporary painting and sculpture; 19th-, 20th-century prints and drawings.

Other artists represented:
Gregory Amenoff, Jake Berthot, Porfirio Di Donna, Elizabeth Dworkin, Neill Fearnley, Jon Imber, Dexter Lazenby, Lee Newton, Fernando Ramos Prida, Harvey Quaytman, Paul Rotterdam, Lee Sherry, Joan Snyder, Adja Yunkers.

1944. PUCKER-SAFRAI GALLERY
171-173 Newbury St 02116
(617) 267-9473 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Bernard H. Pucker
Contemporary figurative work; artists from Israel and New England; African and Eskimo sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ali*, Thomas Bezanson, Gerald Garston, Anatoli Kaplan*, Kieff, Teri Malo, Paul Nagano*.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Ablow, Yaacov Agam, Alexander Anufriev, Bill Aron, David Aronson, Ron Baer, Samuel Bak, Bill Brauer, David Chamberlain, Randall Diehl, Emilia, Laurie Gross, Jeffery Hessing, Tim High, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Michael Jacques, Deborah Kravitz, Anne MacDougall, Reynard Milici, Mirtala, Mordecai Moreh, Enrico Pinardi, Rina Rotholz, Reuvin Rubin, Shadur-Maynard Atelier, David Sharir, Anne Silber, Brian Stevens, David Vereano, Stan Washburn, Shraga Weil.

1945. ROLLY-MICHAUX GALLERIES
290 Dartmouth St 02116
(617) 536-9898 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Ronald Rolly/Ronald R. Michaux
Modern graphics; American and European contemporary artists; sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karel Appel, Joan Miró, Al Wilson.

Other artists represented:
Miguel Berrocal, George D'Almeida, Sonia Delaunay, Marino Marini, Thomas McKnight, Roy Moyer, José Garcia Ocejo, Victor Salmones.

1946. THOMAS SEGAL GALLERY
73 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-3500 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Thomas Segal
Contemporary American paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints, ceramics, photographs.

Other artists represented:
John Baeder, Susan Jane Belton, Willard Boepple, Stanley Boxer, Carolyn Brady, Harry Brock, Debbie Butterfield, David Campbell, Dale Chihuly, Betsy Connors, Robert Cottingham, Joseph Drapell, Chris Enos, Chris Enos, Helen Frankenthaler, Ralph Hamilton, Darryl Hughto, Margie Hughto, Jasper Johns, Wolf Kahn, Mela Lyman, Phillip Maberry, Gustaf Miller, Denny Moers, Pat Monson, Kenneth Noland, Clifton Peacock, Ken Price, George Rickey, Elizabeth Rosenblum, Michelle Samour, David Sipress, Ann Smith, Paul Soldner, Steven Sorman, Blair Tate, Garner Tullis, Peter Voulkos, Heidi Whitman.

1947. HELEN SHLIEN GALLERY
14 Newbury St 02116
Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Helen Shlien
Contemporary painting, sculpture, installations, performances.

Other artists represented:
Natalie Alper, Ros Barron, Harry Bartnick, Bonnie Biggs, Petey Stoloff Brown, George Burk, Deborah Coolidge, Mark Cooper, Dan Devine, Marci Gintis, Mary Grigoriadis, Andrew Haley, Cheryl Hirschman, Jim Ann Howard, Penelope Jencks, Richard Lerman, Carolyn May, Marilyn Pappas, George Queral, Thomas Schmitz, Nancy Selvage, Ruth Slavet, Jill Slosburg, Jessica Straus, Robin Taffler, Lois Tarlow, Michael Timpson, Susan Van Tongeren, David Wheeler, Abby Zonies.

1948. SIGNATURE GALLERY
1 Dock Square, North St 02109
(617) 227-4885 Mon-Wed 11-8; Thu-Sat 11-9, Sun 12-6
Dir: A. T. Grohe/G. Keyworth/M. Lathrop
Fine arts; contemporary crafts; blown and flat glass.

1949. SIGNATURE GALLERY
One Dock Square, North St 02109
(617) 227-4885 Mon-Sat 11-8, Sun 12-6
Dir: A. T. Grohe/G. Keyworth/M. Lathrop
Fine arts; contemporary crafts, specializing in blown and flat glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Kuhn.

Other artists represented:
David Bacharach, Rick Bernstein, Sylvia Bower, William Glassner, John Heller, Judith Motzkin, Edward Nesteruk, Ronald Pearson, Janice Rowell, Richard Studley.

---

*see catalog index

1950. BRENT- SIKKEMA/VISION GALLERY
216 Newbury St 02116
(617) 266-9481 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Brent Sikkema
19th- and 20th-century photography; limited edition portfolios.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Atget, Richard Avedon, Adolph Braun, Linda Connor, Mitch Epstein, Walker Evans, Andre Kertesz, Robert Mapplethorpe, Charles Marville, Roger Mertin, Oliver Parker, Irving Penn, August Sander, Aaron Siskind, Edward Steichen, Joel Sternfeld.

1951. STAVARIDIS GALLERY
73 Newbury St 02116
(617) 482-4151 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: Pat Stavaridis/Bess Cutler
Contemporary paintings; works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Domingo Barreres, Jack Clift, Frances Hamilton, Conley Harris, Linda Huey, Lynn Margelith, John McNamara, Marjorie Minkin.

Other artists represented:
Scott Brodie, Beverly Brown, Pat Coomey, Dan Gorini, Kevin Mulkern, Al Rizzi, Pala Townsend.

1952. STUX GALLERY
36 Newbury St 02116
(617) 267-7300 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Linda Stux/Stephen Stux
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doug Anderson, Alex V. Grey, Ralph Helmick, Mark Miloff, Louis Risoli, Jeffrey Schiff, Norman Toynton, George Wardlaw*.

Other artists represented:
Gerry Bergstein, Pelle Cass, Allyson Grey, Roger Kizik, Jod Louri, Marc Mannheimer, Sue Morrison, Ed Rothfarb, Jo Sandman.

1953. VISCONTI GALLERY
125 Newbury St 02116
(617) 236-4927 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Donna Di Gioia
Paintings; prints in mixed mediums; international contemporary works of art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mersad Berber, Ivan Rabuzin.

Other artists represented:
Jiri Anderle, Giorgio De Chirico, William Hogarth, Jiri Kolar.

1954. VOSE GALLERIES OF BOSTON
238 Newbury St 02116
(617) 536-6176 Mon-Fri 8-5:30, Sat 9-4
Dir: Abbot W. Vose
18th-20th-century American paintings; American Impressionists.

Other artists represented:
Ernest Albert, Ralph Albert Blakelock, Frederick A. Bosley, John F. Carlson, John J. Enneking, Walter Griffin, William S. Horton, Robert Emmett Owen, Maxfield Parrish, Stephen Parrish, William M. Paxton, Alice Schille, Russell Smith, Charles H. Woodbury.

1955. WENNIGER GRAPHICS
174A Newbury St 02116
(617) 536-4688 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Mary Ann Wenniger/Mace Wenniger
Early-20th-century American prints, contemporary prints and handmade paperworks.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, David Bumbeck, Thom de Jong, Fritz Eichenberg, Michael McCurdy, Barry Moser, Thomas Nason, Benton Spruance, Lynd Ward, Stow Wengenroth.

1956. WESTMINSTER GALLERY
132A Newbury St 02174
(617) 266-6704 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Kenneth Bridgewater
European glass, ceramics, sculpted metal, wood, textiles, jewelry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
London Glasshouse, Lucie Rie.

Other artists represented:
Cowdy Glass, Lindean Mill Glass, Ewen Henderson, Sam Herman, David Leach, Anthony Stern.

1957. ISABELLA STEWART GARDNER MUSEUM
280 The Fenway 02115
(617) 566-1401 Tue 12-9, Wed-Sun 12-5
Dir: Rollin van N. Hadley
Italian Renaissance-style palazzo; 14th-16th-century Italian and 17th-century Dutch paintings; Greco-Roman sculpture; European decorative arts.

Brockton

1958. BROCKTON ART MUSEUM/FULLER MEMORIAL
Oak St 02401
(617) 588-6000 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Marilyn Hoffman
19th-20th-century American art; glass.

Cambridge

1959. BUSCH-REISINGER MUSEUM
29 Kirkland St 02138
(617) 495-2317 Mon-Sat 9-4:45
Art of German-speaking Europe: medieval, Baroque and Renaissance through the 20th century; archives of Walter Gropius and Lyonel Feininger.

1960. CLAY DRAGON STUDIOS
26 Otis St 02141
(617) 354-3205 Tue-Sat 12-6
Contemporary ceramics.

1961. FOGG ART MUSEUM
32 Quincy St 02138
(617) 495-2397 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: John Rosenfield
Harvard University; teaching museum with collection covering all periods of art in Europe, America, the Far and Near East.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jacob van Ruisdael.

1962. MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY
Hayden Gallery
160 Memorial Dr 02139
(617) 253-4680 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sat-Sun 1-5
Dir: Kathy Halbreich
Contemporary graphics, painting, photography, sculpture, drawings; architecture, design.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Myrel Cherneck, Vernon Fisher, Paul Sharits.

1963. MOBILIA GALLERY
348 Huron Ave 02138
(617) 876-2109 Mon-Sat 10:30-6; Jul, Aug Wed-Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Libby Cooper
Contemporary painting, furniture, sculpture, tapestries, wearables, ceramics.

Alexei Jawlensky: Dreaming Head, 1916; Wichner Coll., Louisiana Arts & Science Ctr., Baton Rouge.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Adria Arch, Mary Bero, Tina Depuy, Gina Halpern, Tempe Biddle Hill, Thomas Mann, Therese May, Marian McNair, Larry Page, Jane Rake, Jean Williams-Cacicedo.

Other artists represented:
Thea Cadabra, K. Lee Manuel, Liza Jane Norman, James Rooke.

1964. SEVENTEEN WENDELL STREET
17 Wendell St 02138
(617) 864-9294 By appt
Dir: Constance Brown/Jane Shapiro
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, and drawings by black artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Romare Bearden.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Robert Freeman, Barclay Hendricks, Alma Thomas, Richard Yarde.

1965. TEN ARROW
10 Arrow St 02138
(617) 876-1117 Mon-Sat 10-6, Thu eve 6-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: Elizabeth Tinlot
Contemporary American crafts; Scandinavian glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lane Coulter, Fred Fenster, Richard Helzer, Mary Lee Hu, Tom Markusen, Heikki Seppa, Sandra Zilker.

Other artists represented:
Glenda Arentzen, Wendell Castle, John Glick, Ann Warff.

1966. VAN BUREN/BRAZELTON/CUTTING GALLERY
290 Concord Ave 02138
(617) 354-0304 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Betsy van Buren/Christina Brazelton/Jeremy Cutting
Contemporary New England art; emerging artists.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, Suzanne Barnes, Varujan Boghosian, Stoney Conley, Edward Giobbi, Rick Harlow, Mags Harries, Jody Klein, Michael Lewis, Judy Kensley McKie, Maud Morgan, Timothy Nichols, Tina Petra, Edith Read, David Sipress, Jonathan Stangroom, Dan Wills.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Chatham

1967. MUNSON GALLERY
800 Main St 02633
(617) 945-2888 Jun-Oct, Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Larom B. Munson
New England artists; two or three one-person shows each season.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alfred Chadbourn, Jack Garver.

Other artists represented:
Arthur Cohen, Eugene Conlon, Phylis Demong, Richard Fish, William Gilroy, Pam Holeman, June Owen, Nicholas Scalise, Mac Squires, Roger Van Damme, Robert Vickrey, Paul Zimmerman.

Chestnut Hill

1968. QUADRUM GALLERY
The Mall 02167
(617) 965-5555 Mon-Fri 10-9:30, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Jan Ehrenworth
Contemporary American paintings, prints, jewelry, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Dunlap, Robert Marsh, Wanda Miller-Mathews, Laura Peery, Rod Slater, Donald Stoltenberg, Susan Headley Van Campen.

Other artists represented:
David Blackburn, Mike Burns, Walter Crump, Marja Lianko-Roberts, Frederick Lynch, Bruce McCombs, Philip Michelson, Marilyn Hurley Milham, Margery Mintz, Elizabeth Rickert, Debbie Rubin, Julie Schneider, Grace White.

Fitchburg

1969. FITCHBURG ART MUSEUM
25 Merriam Parkway 01420
(617) 345-4207 Sep-Jun, Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Peter Timms
European and American paintings and graphic arts; decorative arts; contemporary American and local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Allison Cann-Clift, Rick Harlow, John McNamara, Pablo Picasso, Georges Rouault.

Framingham

1970. DANFORTH MUSEUM OF ART
123 Union Ave 01701
(617) 620-0050 Wed-Fri 12-4:30, Sat-Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Joy L. Gordon
19th-20th-century American paintings, including Bierstadt, Cropsey and Wyant; 16th-20th-century prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Gropper*, August Sander*.

Hyannis

1971. SIGNATURE GALLERY
259 E Stevens St 02601
(617) 771-4499 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: A. T. Grohe/G. Keyworth/M. Lathrop
Fine arts; contemporary crafts, specializing in blown and flat glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Kuhn.

Other artists represented:
David Bacharach, Rick Bernstein, Sylvia Bower, William Glassner, John Heller, Judith Motzkin, Edward Nesteruk, Ronald Pearson, Janice Rowell, Richard Studley.

Lexington

1972. GALLERY ON THE GREEN
1837 Massachusetts Ave 02173
(617) 861-6044 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Molly Harding Nye
19th- and 20th-century American and European art.

Other artists represented:
Vivian Berman, John DeCunto, Henry Drexler, Claudia Hopf, Anthony Howe, Lissa Hunter, Barry Norling, Alexander Pertzoff, Alexander DeWitt Walsh, Verina Warren.

Lincoln

1973. CLARK GALLERY
PO Box 339 Lincoln Station 01773
(617) 259-8303 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Meredyth H. Moses
Established and emerging Boston artists.

Other artists represented:
Judi Berman, Jennifer Berringer, Maxine Blakenship, Carole Bolsey, Martha Bradford, Frank Campion, John Evans, Mike Green, Rick Harlow, Toshi Katayama, Harel Kedem, Robert Kelly, Gregg LeFevre, Joyce McDaniel, David Phillips, Donald Shambroom, Nan Wezniak.

1974. DECORDOVA AND DANA MUSEUM AND PARK
Sandy Pond Rd 02181
(617) 259-8355 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-5, Sun 1:30-5, Wed eve 5-9:30
Dir: Eleanor Lazarus
Center for visual and performing arts; regional and national contemporary artists; permanent modern collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harold Cohen, Buckminster Fuller*, Mags Harries*, John Sloan*.

Milton

1975. CHINA TRADE MUSEUM
215 Adams St 02186
(617) 696-1815 Tue-Sun 1-4
Dir: Betty W. Hirsch
China trade decorative arts: porcelain, paintings, silver, lacquer, furniture, textiles; archives.

Nantucket

1976. SHEPHARD GALLERY
Zero Main St 02554
(617) 228-1610 Daily 10-5
Dir: James A. Shephard
19th- 20th-century American and European paintings.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Clark, Robert Henry Logan, Susan Murray Stokes.

Northampton

1977. SMITH COLLEGE
Museum of Art 01063
(413) 584-2700 ext 2236/740 Sep-May, Tue-Sat 12-5, Sun 2-5, June By appt., Jul, Aug, Tue-Sat 1-4
Dir: Charles Chetham
European and American paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photographs, and decorative arts of the 17th-20th-centuries.

Pittsfield

1978. BERKSHIRE MUSEUM
39 South St 01201
(413) 443-7171
Dir: Gary Burger
Art collection: Hudson River School, early American portraits, old masters, and contemporary. Science, history, natural history.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Davidson*.

Provincetown

1979. LONG POINT GALLERY
492 Commercial St 02657
(617) 487-1795 Tue-Sun 11-2, 6-9
Dir: Elizabeth O'Donnell-Jonsson
Contemporary painting, sculpture, collage and mixed mediums by Provincetown artists.

Other artists represented:
Varujan Boghosian, Fritz Bultman, Carmen Cicero, Sideo Fromboluti, Edward Giobbi, Budd Hopkins, Leo Manso, Robert Motherwell, Paul Resika, Judith Rothschild, Sidney Simon, Nora Speyer, Tony Vevers.

1980. PROVINCETOWN ART ASSOCIATION AND MUSEUM
460 Commercial St 02657
(617) 487-1750 Daily 12-4, 7-10
Dir: Ellen O'Donnell
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nanno Degroot, Peter Hunt, Shelby Shackelford, George Yater.

Other artists represented:
Fritz Boltman, Charles Hawthorne, Budd Hopkins, Robert Motherwell, Myron Stout, Jack Tworkov.

*see catalog index

Rockport

1981. COTY GALLERY
Tuna Wharf 01966
(617) 546-6231 Summer, Daily 11-5, 7-9; Spring, Fall, Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Sophina G. Coty
Paintings by Sam Coty; paintings and drawings by Sophina G. Coty.

1982. WENNIGER GRAPHIC
19 Mt Pleasant St 01966
(617) 546-7822 Mon-Fri 1-5, Sat, Sun 12-6
Dir: Mary Ann Wenniger/Mace Wenniger
Contemporary prints in all mediums.

Salem

1983. PEABODY MUSEUM OF SALEM
East India Square 01970
(617) 745-1876 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Peter Fetchko
Shipping and waterfront subjects by major maritime artists; ethnological prints of non-European cultures; natural history prints and drawings.

South Hadley

1984. MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE ART MUSEUM
01075
(413) 538-2245 Mon-Fri 11-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jean C. Harris
Art of all periods with concentrations in ancient, medieval, Renaissance, Asian and American art; prints; drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joe Baker, Richard Yarde*.

Springfield

1985. MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
49 Chestnut St 01103
(413) 732-6092 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Richard Mühlberger
European and American paintings; sculpture; graphics; decorative art; Oriental art.

Stockbridge

1986. HOLSTEN GALLERIES
Elm St 01262
(413) 298-3044 Summer, Daily 10:30-5:30
Dir: Chandra Holsten/Kenn Holsten
Contemporary American art; glass, ceramics.

Other artists represented:
Harvey Littleton, Joel Philip Myers, Mark Peiser, Don Reitz, Harvey Sadow.

Waltham

1987. BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY
Rose Art Museum
415 South St 02154
(617) 647-2403 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Carl Belz
American, European 19th-20th-century art, Gevirtz-Mnuchin Collection of contemporary art, Oceanic art, early ceramics, Judaica.

Wellesley

1988. WELLESLEY COLLEGE MUSEUM
Jewett Arts Center 02181
(617) 235-0320 ext 2051 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ann Gabhart
European and American paintings, drawings, sculpture, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Langdon Coburn, Marcantonio Raimondi*.

Williamstown

1989. STERLING AND FRANCINE CLARK ART INSTITUTE
225 South St 01267
(413) 458-8109 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: David S. Brooke
Old master paintings from 14th to 19th centuries; French Impressionists, prints and drawings; sculpture; antique silver.

1990. WILLIAMS COLLEGE
Museum of Art
Lawrence Hall 01267
(413) 597-2429
Dir: Charles Parkhurst/Thomas Krens
American paintings and watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Morris*.

Winchedon

1991. FRED SANDBACK MUSEUM
74 Front St, PO Box 331 01475
(617) 297-1537
Dir: Jean Bookman Fincke
Works by Fred Sandback: museum sponsored by DIA Foundation of New York.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Sandback*.

W Newton

1992. MARTHA TEPPER CONTEMPORARY FINE ARTS
120 Forest Ave 02165
(617) 244-3772/232-0160 By appt
Dir: Martha Tepper
Contemporary prints; paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Judy Andur, Harry Bartnick, Michael Clark, Deborah Davidson, Richard Estes, Robert Ferrandini, David Headley, Jean-Pierre Heim, Keith McDaniel, Seong Moy, Annette Oko, Masaaki Sato, John Sirica, Harry Soviak.

Worcester

1993. WORCESTER ART MUSEUM
55 Salisbury St 01608
(617) 799-4406 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Tom L. Freudenheim
Chronologically arranged galleries and special exhibitions spanning 5000 years of painting, sculpture, photography and prints and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Ritto Penniman*.

Michigan

Ann Arbor

1994. ANN ARBOR ART ASSOCIATION
117 W Liberty 48104
(313) 994-8004 Mon 12-5, Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Susan Froelich
Exhibitions of regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Cressman, Michael Dove, Denise Lisiecki, Gertraude Reynolds, Ann Savageau, Julie Steedman.

Other artists represented:
Char Bickel, Christopher Bragg, Jane Coates, Nancy Drew, Jamie Fine, Carol Furtado, Julia Gleich, Scott Hartley, Jane Holden, Kirk Kolberg, John Loree, Susan Nordlinger, Terry O'Toole, Jan Powers, David Slee, Linda Talbot Smith, Ralph Stephenson, Graceann Warn.

1995. ALICE SIMSAR GALLERY
301 N Main St 48104
(313) 665-4883 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Alice Simsar
Contemporary painting, sculpture, collage, fiber arts, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Garo Antreasian, David Lee Brown, John Brunsdon, Robert Rauschenberg, Julian Stanczak, Frank Stella.

Other artists represented:
Anni Albers, Stephen Edlich, Peter Flaccus, Mary Frank, Caroline Greenwald, Neda Al Hilali, Norman Ives, John W. Mills, Reuben Nakian, Sewell Sillman, Sherri Smith, Vasa, William Weege, Adja Yunkers, Joseph Zirker.

1996. CLARE SPITLER WORKS OF ART
2007 Pauline Court 48103
(313) 662-8914 By appt
Dir: Clare Spitler
Contemporary American paintings, sculpture, graphics, and crafts; European artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Julia Gleich, Judy Jashinsky, Christopher Lauckner, Cheryl Roark.

Other artists represented:
Jo Ann Alber, A. J. Barrish, Jean-Yves Bourgain, Jeanne H. Butler, Mavis Chaney, Ilene Curts, Fritz Dreisbach, David F. Driesbach, Marie-Laure Ilie, Brigitte Kranich, Dominie LeVasseur, Elizabeth Lewis, Dorothy Linden, Anne Mills McCauley, Alan Moulding, Jer Patryjak, Floy Shaffer, Bruce Thayer, Andrée Valley, Peter Wegner, Pat Whyte-Lehman, Barbara Young.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 7 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

1997. UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
Museum of Art
525 State St 48109
(313) 763-1231 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Evan M. Maurer
Art from the middle ages to the present, Asian art from 5000 BC to the 20th century, and examples of African, Oceanic, and South and Native American art.

Battle Creek

1998. ART CENTER OF BATTLE CREEK
265 E Emmett St 49017
(616) 962-9511 Mon-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Ann W. Concannon
Michigan artists; traveling exhibitions; children's exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anne Gaines, Harvey Gordon, Paul Granlund, Al Hinton, Zubel Kachadoorian, Brent Kingdon, Mary Graham Long, Paul Marquardt, Leone Saxton.

Berkley

1999. FIELD ART STUDIO
2646 Coolidge Highway 48072
(313) 399-1320 Daily 9-5
Dir: Sam Field
Limited edition graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Church, Jaroslav Hovadik.

Other artists represented:
Carol Collette, John Collette, Harry Glassgold, Paul Jenkins, Richard Kozlov, Lowell Nesbitt, Virgil Thrasher, Marcus Uzilevsky, Robert Weil.

Birmingham

2000. CANTOR/LEMBERG GALLERY
538 N Woodward Ave 48011
(313) 642-6623 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Claire Cantor/Corrine Lemberg
Contemporary American art: painting, sculpture, drawing, prints.

Other artists represented:
James Adley, William Antonow, Jerrold Burchman, Craig Carver, Naomi Dickerson, Sam Francis, Sylvia Birch Halperin, Aris Koutroulis, Harry Nadler, John Piet, Mel Rosas, James Rutkowski, Douglas K. Semivan, Steven Sorman, Buzz Spector, Electra Stamelos, Carol Summers, Walasse Ting, Garner Tullis, Timothy Van Laar, Elizabeth Voelker.

2001. GMB GALLERY
344 Hamilton Row 48011
(313) 642-6647 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Michael Zennedjian/Robert Zennedjian
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Richard Bogart, Robert Cronin, Michael Dillon, Judith Dolnick, Russell Klix, Robert Natkin, Joan Salinger, Kegham Tazian.

2002. HALSTED GALLERY
560 N Woodward Ave 48011
(313) 644-8284 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Thomas Halsted
19th- and 20th-century photographic prints and rare photography books.

Other artists represented:
Ruth Bernhard, Marsha Burns, Michael Burns, Judy Dater, Doug Frank, William Garnett, Andre Kertesz, Joel Meyerowitz, George Tice, John Ward, Cole Weston.

2003. SUSANNE HILBERRY GALLERY
555 South Woodward 48011
(313) 642-8250 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Susanne Hilberry
Contemporary American painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Artschwager, Alex Katz, Judy Linn, Nancy Mitchnick, Ellen Phelan, Italo Scanga, Joel Shapiro, John Torreano.

Other artists represented:
Lynda Benglis, John Egner, Ron Gorchov, Alice Neel, Robert Rauschenberg.

2004. CAROL HOOBERMAN
155 S Bates 48011
(313) 647-3666 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Carol Hooberman
Contemporary fine arts and crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Curtis Benzle, Susan Benzle, Nancy Crow, Cosmo Dadilla, Joann Rae Davis, Walter Ferris II, Shelagh Keeley, Marge Levy, Patrick Loughran, John McNaughton, Lyn Parker, Margaret Murphy Reed, Peter Shire, David White.

Other artists represented:
Stewart Ashlee, Chris Cox, Paul Grant, Jane Gustin, Dorothy Hafner, Karen Koblitz, Marie-Rose Lortet, Richard Merkin, Joy Rushfelt, Susan Sonz, Betty Woodman, Arnie Zimmerman.

2005. DONNA JACOBS GALLERY
574 N Woodward Ave 48011
(313) 540-1600 Tue-Sat 11-5:30; By appt
Dir: Donna Jacobs
Fine antiquities; archeaological works of art.

2006. ROBERT L. KIDD ASSOCIATES/GALLERIES
107 Townsend St 48011
(313) 642-3909 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Ray Frost Fleming
Contemporary American and Canadian paintings, sculpture, fiber, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Bertoia, Tony Calzetta, Sam Gilliam, Taffy Hornell, Bill Law, Lowell Nesbitt, Larry Oughton.

Other artists represented:
Gene Bavinger, Arlyne Bayer, Lamar Briggs, Glenn Brill, Moe Brooker, Brian Brown, James Byrd, Chuang Che, Larry Cressman, Valentina Du Basky, Adele Duck, Edward Evans, Ray Frost Fleming, Stan Helfrich, Robert L. Kidd, Balthazar Korab, Gary Kulak, Lizabeth Langer, Nicholas Livaich, Susan Lyman, Dwayne Maxwell, Tanette McManus, Bob Nugent, Rina Peleg, Robert Piepenburg, Anne Pixley, Anthony Schepis, David Shapiro, Roy Slade, Todd Slaughter, Kim Strommen, Wayne Toepp.

2007. MULLALY MATISSE GALLERIES
1025 Haynes 48011
(313) 645-2741 Tue-Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Nancy Matisse/William Mullaly
20th-century American realism and American crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ross Arkell, Pat Duff, Corinne Weissman.

Other artists represented:
Steven Assel, Shirley Clement, Paul Edwards, Michael Jackson, Spencer Kelly, Frederick Nichols, Marilyn Spencer, Robert Terry.

2008. DONALD MORRIS GALLERY
1105 Townsend St 48011
(313) 642-8812 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: D.F. Morris/F. Morris/S. Morris/M. Morris
20th-century European and American art; African sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philip Pearlstein, Joseph Stella.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, David Barr, Al Held, Charles Hinman, Hans Hofmann, Lester Johnson, Earl Kerkam, Clement Meadmore, Matt Phillips, Robert Wilbert.

2009. PIERCE ST GALLERY
217 Pierce St 48011
(313) 646-6950 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: N. Karnick/M. Boxman/E. Yaker
20th-century photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Brandt, Disfarmer, Denny Moers*, Bill Rauhauser, Jane Tuckerman.

Other artists represented:
Robert Adams, Howard Bond, Manuel Alvarez Bravo, Marilyn Bridges, John Gruen, Lisette Model, Deborah Turberville.

2010. SHELDON ROSS GALLERY
250 Martin St 48011
(313) 642-7694 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Sheldon Ross
German Expressionism, early-20th-century American art and traditional Oceanic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Grosz, Leo Mardirosian.

Other artists represented:
Romare Bearden, Richard Jerzy, Käthe Kollwitz.

2011. SCHWEYER-GALDO GALLERIES
330 Hamilton Row 48011
(313) 647-0390 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Olga Nodarse-Chao
20th-century paintings, sculpture, drawings, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alejandro Anreus*, Humberto Aquino, Jose Luis Cuevas, Richard Kozlow*, Juan Carlos Liberti*, Taty Rybak.

Other artists represented:
Felix Angel, Mario Bencomo, Ramon Carulla, Bertha Cohen, James Coignard, Cliff Davis, Robert Estopinan, Pascual Fort, Claudio Juarez, Jay Lefkowitz, Thomas Lyons Mills, Olivia Paliard, Baruj Salinas, Art Schneider, Rafael Soriano, Martin Zlotkin.

2012. XOCHIPILLI ART GALLERY
568 N Woodward Ave 48011
(313) 645-1905 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Mary C. Wright
Emerging American painters and sculptors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alan Berke, Dewey Blocksma, Lowell Boileau, Richard Culling, Rita Dibert, Stephen Goodfellow, Stephen Hansen, Bruce Scharfenberg, Victoria Stoll.

Other artists represented:
John Aaron, Janice Charach, Maggie Citrin, Joze Ciuha, Claudia DeMonte, Carol Gates, Daniel Morper, Kirk Newman, Lucy Sallick, Felice N. Shecter, Douglas Warner.

Bloomfield Hills

2013. CRANBROOK ACADEMY OF ART MUSEUM
500 Lone Pine Road, PO Box 801 48013
(313) 645-3312 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Roy Slade
Contemporary art and design; faculty and alumni works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gerhardt Knodel*, Steve Murakishi*.

2014. GALLERY 22
22 E Long Lake Rd 48013
(313) 642-1316 Mon-Sat 9:30-6
Dir: Fred Nordsiek
Contemporary prints, paintings, ceramics, and fiber.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peggy Brown, Marilyn Derwenskus, Paul Maxwell.

---

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Janet Clarke, Nanci Closson, James Coignard, Doug DeLind, Tamara Essner, Charles Gale, Judy Kaye, Delbert Michel, Yoko Moro, Max Papart, Mark Rutkowski, Margaret Schroeder, Irene Simon, Robert Vickers, Bruce Winslow.

Detroit

2015. C.A.D.E.
8025 Agnes St 48214
(313) 331-1758 Wed-Sun 12-7
Dir: Joe Fugate
Contemporary Arts Detroit. Primarily local artists; also work from New York, Chicago, Toronto, Atlanta.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Bielat, Phillip Campbell, Joe Fugate, Kristin Hermanson, Russell Keeter, Ronald A. Leax, Jay MacNiell, Sherry Peysson.

Other artists represented:
Mary Aljian, Craig Billings, Susan Campbell, Erica Chappuis, Ann Marie D'Anna, Maxwell Lyle Davis, Ken Giles, Leslie Heimstadt, Suzanna Konyha, Brian Kremer, Bruce Luttrell, Mary Louise McCarroll, Peggy Midner, John Plieman, James D. Poole, Robert Rozier, Karen Sepanski, David Snow, Mark Solsburg, Tony Williams, Bernadette Zachara.

2016. DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET
1452 Randolph St 48226
(313) 962-0337 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Mary M. Denison
Non-profit; painting, drawing, constructions, installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Crawford, Jorg Erichsen, Brian Fekete, Bradley McMurray, Keith Rennie-Johnson, Deanna Sperka, Ann Stoddard, Heromin Zmijewski.

Other artists represented:
Gary Mayer, Gilda Snowden.

2017. DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS
5200 Woodward Ave 48202
(313) 833-7900 Tue-Sun 9:30-5:30
Dir: Frederick J. Cummings
Works in all mediums; German Expressionism, Dutch, Flemish, and American paintings; contemporary and Italian Renaissance art; puppets; silver.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Bell*.

2018. FEIGENSON GALLERY
310 Fisher Building 48202
(313) 873-7322 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Jackie Feigenson
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, drawing, and conceptual art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Glenn Booth, Georg Ettl, Steve Foust, Brenda Goodman, John Lees, Michael Luchs, Gary Mayer, Robert Stackhouse.

Other artists represented:
Carole Alter, Cay Bahnmiller, Thomas Bills, Betty Brownlee, James Chatelain, Bradley Jones, Ron Morosan, Gordon Newton, Nancy Pletos, Mary Preston, Paul Schwarz, Robert Sestok, Marianne Stikas, Sally Young.

2019. LONDON ARTS
321 Fisher Bldg 48202
(313) 871-3606 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Gary Turla
COBRA, American photo-realists; old master and 19th-century graphics; contemporary prints.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Alechinsky, Karel Appel, John Baeder, Fran Bull, Corneille, Lester Johnson, Lowell Nesbitt, Raphael Soyer, Julian Stanezak, Walasse Ting.

2020. WILLIS GALLERY
422 W Willis 48202
(313) 833-5325 Daily 3-6
Dir: Patricia Söderberg
Cooperative; exhibitions of Detroit artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martyn Bouskila, Hilarie Burnette, Ruth Goldfaden, Craig Hoffhiemer, Louis Katz, Lynne Resch, Dan Simas, Blaise Siwula, Pat Soderberg, Michael Vidakovich, Paul Webster.

Other artists represented:
Lynne Avadenka, John Benkhe, Mary Bruns, Sheri Caperton, Diane Carr, Denise Corley, Gary Eleinko, Lila Kadaj, Mike Mahoney, Shirley Parish, Tom Parish, Nelson Smith, Gilda Snowden, Adam Thomas, Susan Trupiano, John VanAmerongen Jr, Chris Whitley, Nancy Wisti-Grayson.

East Lansing

2021. MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY
Kresge Art Gallery 48824
(517) 355-7631 Mon, Wed-Fri 9:30-4:30; Tue 12-8; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Joseph Ishikawa
Works in all mediums from the neolithic period to present; specialization in prints.

Other artists represented:
George Bellows, Fred Berman, William Gamble, Alfred Maurice.

Escanaba

2022. WILLIAM BONIFAS FINE ARTS CENTER
700 1st Ave S 49829
(906) 786-3833
Dir: Estelle Smyth
Visual and performing arts; classes.

Flint

2023. FLINT INSTITUTE OF ARTS
1120 E Kearsley St 48503
(313) 234-1695 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5, Tue 7-9
Dir: Richard J. Wattenmaker
European and American 19th-century painting; Renaissance decorative arts; French and American paperweights; Germanic glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Diebenkorn, Adolph Gottlieb, James McNeill Whistler.

Grand Rapids

2024. JOHN BAUGHMAN AND ASSOCIATES
82 Ionia NW 49503
(616) 456-8487 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-2
Dir: John Baughman
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Kinnebrew.

Other artists represented:
Stephen Duren, Pat Hammerman, James Kuiper, Jim Kusmierski, Jose Narezo, Jan Richardson, Deb Van Tuinen.

2025. GRAND RAPIDS ART MUSEUM
155 Division North 49503
(616) 459-4676 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Robert M. Murdock
Master prints and drawings; 19th-century European, American, German Expressionist painting, works on paper and sculpture; contemporary art.

2026. URBAN INSTITUTE FOR CONTEMPORARY ARTS
Race Street Gallery
1064 Race St NE 49503
(616) 454-7000 Tue-Sat 1-5
Dir: Sandra K. Wilcoxon
Art in all mediums; performance and conceptual works; exchange exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Macyn Bolt, James Crawford, Leo Kelly, Kurt Novak, Ronald Watson.

Other artists represented:
Jay Constantine, James Kuiper, Suzanne LaChance, William Mayer, James Nieboer, Ron Pederson, Robert Sestok, Timothy Van Laar, Jocelyn Yau.

Holland

2027. HOPE COLLEGE
De Pree Gallery
275 Columbia Ave 49423
(616) 392-5111 Mon-Sat 10-10, Sun 1-10
Dir: John M. Wilson
Exhibitions related to academic and community programs.

Kalamazoo

2028. KALAMAZOO INSTITUTE OF ARTS
314 S Park St 49007
(616) 349-7775 Jun-Aug Tue-Sat 10-5; Sept-May Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Thomas A. Kayser
Sculpture courtyard; 19th- and 20th-century American art; prints, paintings, ceramics, fiberworks.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dwayne Lowder*.

Lakeside

2029. LAKESIDE STUDIO
15263 S Lakeshore Rd 49116
(616) 469-1377
Dir: John D. Wilson
Prints, drawings, sculpture, and ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Bellows, Richard Black, Elizabeth Boling, Leonard Dowhie, Richard Hunt, John Sloan, Donald Fleet Walker.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Philippe Behagle: The Triumph of Louis XIV with Banished Evils; in "Glorious Horsemen: Equestrian Art in Europe, 1500-1800," at the J.B. Speed Art Museum, Louisville (Jan. 11-Feb. 28, 1982).

Lathrup Village

2030. HABATAT GALLERIES
28235 Southfield Rd 48076
(313) 552-0515 Tue-Thu, Sat 10-6; Fri 10-9
Dir: Thomas J. Boone/Ferdinand Hampson
Works by contemporary American and European glass artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rick Bernstein, Dale Chihuly, Kyohei Fujita, Pavel Hlava.

Other artists represented:
Howard Ben Tré, William Carlson, Dan Dailey, Stephen Dee Edwards, Henry Halem, Sidney Hutter, Jon Kuhn, Harvey Littleton, Klaus Moje, William Morris, Jay Musler, Joel Philip Myers, Mark Peiser, Christopher Ries, Karl Schantz, Jack Schmidt, Mary Shaffer, Kurt Wallstab, Stephen Weinberg.

Midland

2031. MIDLAND ART COUNCIL OF THE MIDLAND CENTER FOR THE ARTS
1801 W Saint Andrews St 48640
(517) 631-3250 Daily 1-5, Thu eve 7-9
Dir: Mary L. Dalton
Traveling and Midland Art Council-organized exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Brisson*, Sari Khouri.

Other artists represented:
Henri Douzil, Thomas Hill, Mimi Jacobs, Allison Knowles, Anne Krafft, Leta Ramos, Thomas Shepherd, Victor Vasarely.

Muskegon

2032. MUSKEGON MUSEUM OF ART
296 W Webster 49440
(616) 722-2600 Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Mary Riordan
American and European paintings, graphic, and decorative arts; photography.

Oak Park

2033. CONTEMPORARY ART INSTITUTE OF DETROIT
26260 Raine 48237
(313) 968-5112
Dir: Deanna Sperka
Non-Profit; group exhibitions of Michigan artists; catalogs, educational programs; video, theater, installations; other mediums.

Okemos

2034. BEL ESPRIT FINE ARTS
5416 Oakwood Dr 48864
(517) 349-2074 By appt
Dir: Bonnie Stebbins
Prints from 17th century to the present; fiberwork; pottery.

Other artists represented:
Alvar, Boulanger, John Brunsdon, Graham Clarke, Corita, Michael Delacroix, John Doyle, Eyvind Earle, Graham Evernden, Fanch, Johnny Friedlaender, Brian Halsey, William Hogarth, Ito, Thomas Nast, Michael Potter, Rothe, Victor Vasarely.

2035. POLLY FREEMAN ART SERVICES
2926 Mt Hope, #201 48864
(517) 332-5656 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Polly Freeman
Contemporary painting, prints, ceramics, glass, handmade paper.

Other artists represented:
Helen Cartmell, Chuang Che, Jim Kuiper, Clifton McChesney, Alison McMaugh, Abigail Nadley, John Pappas, Jens Plum, Louis Raynor, Elizabeth Van Liere, Sonja von Reis, Janet Wehr.

Pontiac

2036. PONTIAC ART CENTER
47 Williams 48053
(313) 333-7849 Daily 9-5:30
Dir: Mary C. Lilley
Community art center; faculty and local artists.

Other artists represented:
Carol Bjerke, Art Chartow, James Gilbert, Chris Goodale, Dee Knott, Elizabeth Lewis, Christine Moser, Edith Newbourne, Marie Snell, Vincent Soldaki, Helen Springer, Sharon Zahrfeld, Ted Zahrfeld.

Rochester

2037. OAKLAND UNIVERSITY
Meadow Brook Art Gallery 48063
(313) 377-3005 Tue-Fri 1-5; Sat, Sun 2-6:30
Dir: Kiichi Usui
African art collection; exhibitions of contemporary, Western, Oriental art, and outdoor sculpture.

Royal Oak

2038. ARNOLD KLEIN GALLERY
4520 N Woodward Ave 48072
(313) 647-7709 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Arnold Klein
19th- and 20th-century European and American prints, drawings, watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Donna Rae Hirt, Henry Kenyon, Karen Anne Klein.

Other artists represented:
Norman Ackroyd, David Becker, Larry Blovits, Dick Cruger, Richard Karwoski, Carl Oltvedt, Hank Virgona.

2039. RUBINER GALLERY
621 S Washington 48067
(313) 544-2828 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
Dir: Allen Rubiner
Contemporary American paintings, watercolors; international graphics, crafts.

Other artists represented:
Robert Burkert, Ray Cattel, Marjorie Hecht, William House, Darryl Hughto, Paul Jenkins, Ronnie Landfield, Fritz Mayhew, Aviva Robinson, Susan Roth, Kikuo Saito, Carol Sutton, David Tammany, Jeanne Tennent, Nancy Thayer, Larry Zox.

2040. SIXTH STREET GALLERY
214 W Sixth St 48067
(313) 541-3623 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Alise Citrin
Works on paper: contemporary prints, drawings, paintings, and sculptures.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sue Hirtzel, Warrington Colescott, Stanley Rosenthal, Mary Aro, Vincent Castagnacci.

Other artists represented:
Vicki Brett, Clinton Kuopus, Richard Robinson, David Becker.

Southfield

2041. I. IRVING FELDMAN GALLERIES
24175 Northwestern Hwy 48075
(313) 358-5444 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 12-4
Dir: Ellen Boorstein
Modern and contemporary international art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gene Davis, Grace Hartigan, Joan Miro, Henry Moore, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Richard Smith.

Other artists represented:
Paul Jenkins.

2042. PARK WEST GALLERIES
29469 Northwestern Hwy 48034
(313) 354-2343 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-5
Exhibitions and auctions; contemporary art; prints.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Tom Bacher, Laszlo Dus, Charles Ginnever, Anders Knutsson, Gary Mayer, Pablo Picasso, Karoly Veress, George Vihos, Carlo Vitale.

2043. TOWN CENTER GALLERY
3000 Town Center 48075
(313) 352-9696 Mon-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-4
Dir: Sid Levine/Evelyn Levine
Prints; watercolors; sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Van Dyan, David Faber, David Shubow.

Other artists represented:
Michael Blaker, Pierre-Marie Brisson, Grace Gardner, Lurene Kerner, Robert Kipniss, Paul Maxwell, Robert Natkin, James Rizzi, Rita Sargen-Simon, Jerry Schurr, Arthur Secunda, Eng Tay, Florence Waze-Fink, Bernadette Zachara.

St. Joseph

2044. ST. JOSEPH ART ASSOCIATION
Krasl Art Center
707 Lake Blvd 49085
(616) 983-0271 Mon-Thu, Sat 10-4, Fri 10-1, Sun 1-4
Dir: Darwin R. Davis
Non-profit. Exhibitions; studio and art history classes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andy Argyropoulos, King Calkins, Greg Constantine, Steve Hansen, Douglas Johnson, Denise Lisiecki, Franklin McMahon, Leone Saxton, Margo Shermeta, Anne Vandermolen.

Troy

2045. TROY ART GALLERY
755 W Big Beaver 48084
(313) 362-0112 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Miriam Feldman
Japanese woodblock prints; Ukiyo-e; regional and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Johanna Haas, Mary Lark, Sybil Mintz, Evelyn Raskin.

Other artists represented:
Eileen Aboulafia, Robert Broner, Mary Celestino, Jim Crawford, Charlotte Evans, Susan Gold, Hasui Hiroshige, Kunisada Kuniyoshi, Berta Leone, Mathias Muleme, Sekino Saito, Ken Thompson, Yoshida Yoshitoshi.

Ypsilanti

2046. EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY
Intermedia Gallery
McKenny Union 48197
(313) 487-1268 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Yvonne Luper
Student work in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kiessoon Griffith, Marcus Raymond, Brian Steimel, Sally Tudor, Chuck Younquest.

Minnesota

Duluth

2047. UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA, DULUTH
Tweed Museum of Art 55812
(218) 726-8222 Tue-Fri 8-4:30; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: William G. Boyce
19th-century European and American, 20th-century American painting; ceramics; African art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patricia Bratnober, Aurore Chabot, Nancy Cramer-Lettenstrom, Miri Fletcher, Barbara Fumagalli, Frank Hoffman, Gendron Jenson, David Johnson, Sharon Roberts Macy, Gerry Peirce, Anthony Pfeiffer, Josephine Rollins*, Harvey Sandstrom, Nora Stevens, Phyllis Ames Wiener*, Alex Yaworski.

Edina

2048. C. G. REIN GALLERIES
3646 W 70th St 55435
(612) 927-4331 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Judy Cavanaugh
Contemporary art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Conaway, Eichengreen-Gensburg, Paul T. Granlund, Darrell Hill.

Other artists represented:
Leslie Anderson, Sally Anderson, Nanci Blair Closson, Paul Jenkins, Nicholas Livaich, Maxine Masterfield, Gordon Mortenson, Michael Price, Genevieve Reckling, Ann Taylor, C.J. Wells.

Minneapolis

2049. AFRICAN AMERICAN CULTURAL CENTER
2429 S 8th St 55454
(612) 332-3506 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 10-4
Dir: LeClair Grier Lambert
Black arts and cultural heritage; works by local Black artists, historical exhibitions, written materials, African artifacts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Uche Okeke, William Slack.

Other artists represented:
Ta-coumba Aiken, Kat Gilchrist, Kenneth Green, Anthony V. Hall, William Jeter, Seitu Jones, Rex Mhiripiri, Donald Walker.

2050. AVANYU GALLERY
100 N 6th St 55403
(612) 333-5246 Tue-Sun 11-10
Dir: John A. Boler
Contemporary works by Southwestern artists.

Other artists represented:
Norma Andraud, Ron Arena, John Axton, Rosario Azios, Clifford Beck, Louis de Mayo, Katalin Ehling, Geronimo, Diana Hansen, Jon Lightfoot, Ed Mell, John Nieto, Fred Ortiz, Amado M. Pena, Dolona Roberts, Jacqueline Rochester, Andrew Saldana, Liese Jean Scott, Dennis Silvertooth, Ed Singer, D.G. Smith, Shirley Thomson Smith, Jack Stephens, Veloy Vigil, Sanyan Tawa Wicasta, Nancy Young.

2051. PETER M. DAVID GALLERY
430 Oak Grove St 55403
(612) 870-7344 Mon-Fri 12-4, Sat By appt
Dir: Bonnie K. Sussman
Contemporary American and British art, artists' books, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Merrily Babcock, David Marquis, Dyan McClimon, Cynthia Starkweather-Nelson, Terry Streich, William Weege.

Other artists represented:
Jane Bassuk, Lee Bjorklund, John Black, Bonnie Cutts, Marley Kaul, Sandy Kinnee, Margaret Lazzari, Carolyn Manosevitz, Karl Matson, Roger Laux Nelson, Judy Onifrio, Mark Rediske, Susan Zises.

2052. DOLLY FITERMAN GALLERY
Suite 238, Plymouth Bldg 55402
(612) 370-8722 Tue-Fri 10-4:30, Sat 12-4
Dir: Dolly Fiterman
Contemporary American and European paintings, sculpture, drawings and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, David McCullough, Malcolm Myers, Uche Okeke, Matt Phillips, Andy Plioplys, James Rosenquist, Bev Van Berkom.

Other artists represented:
Nancy Carlson, Allan D'Arcangelo, Mary Ingebrand, Perry Ingli, Mary Frances Judge, Warren Knight, Anthony Krauss, Luciano Lattanzi, Midwest Electric Group, Aribert Munzner, John Raimondi, Lowell Reiland, Ellen Stavitsky, Joe Tilson, Thom Wolfe.

2053. FLANDERS CONTEMPORARY ART
53 S 9th St 55402
(612) 332-0931 Mon 9:30-7:30, Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Douglas Flanders
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, cast paperworks; and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helen Frankenthaler, David Hockney, Henry Moore, Robert Motherwell, Tom Wesselmann.

Other artists represented:
Karel Appel, Adolph Gottlieb, Fernand Leger, Rene Magritte, Grandma Moses, Georgia O'Keefe, Bruce Stillman, Louis von Koelnau.

2054. GROVELAND GALLERY
25 Groveland Terrace 55403
(612) 377-7800 Tue-Fri 12-5, Sat 12-4
Dir: Mary Lundrigan
Contemporary paintings and drawings; strong interest in realism.

Other artists represented:
Tom Bates, Jim Burpee, Melissa Carden-Bean, Eric Erickson, Ann Finholt, Gendron Jensen, Sally Johnson, Greg Kelsey, Mike Lynch, Bruce Nygren, Paul Olsen, Carl Oltvedt, Bela Petheo, Frank Schreiber, Fred Somers, Peter Stohl, Richard Weis, Shelley Woldrosky.

2055. MINNEAPOLIS INSTITUTE OF ARTS
2400 Third Ave S 55404
(612) 870-3046 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-9, Sun 12-5
Dir: Samuel Sachs II
European and American paintings, sculpture, decorative arts, period rooms, prints and drawings, photography; Asian, African, Oceanic, Ancient & native North & South American arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Atget*, Philip Gallo, Sidney Grossman, Harry Jackson*, Paul Outerbridge*, Sandy Skogland.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

2056. C. G. REIN GALLERIES
165 Northstar Center 55402
(612) 333-6482 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Shirley Halvorsen
See C. G. Rein Galleries: Scottsdale, AZ and Edina, MN.

2057. BARRY RICHARD GALLERY
10 S Fifth St 55401
(612) 333-7620 Mon-Fri 12-5, Thu 12-7
Dir: Thomas Barry
Painting, sculpture, drawings, prints and photography by contemporary regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Brewer, Sam Gilliam, Leon Hushcha, Arne Nyen.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Kreft Benson, James De Witt, Brian Foster, Frank Gaard, Donald Gahr, Lynn Geesaman, David Goldes, Glenn Grafelman, James Kielkopf, David Madzo, Dan Mason, Tim Miske, Bill Monson, Aldo Moroni, J. Olson, Dan Powell, J. Savastio, S. Seekins, S. Stack, L. Titzer, W. C. Wormley.

2058. JOHN C. STOLLER
400 Marquette Ave 55401
(612) 339-7060 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: John C. Stoller
Contemporary American paintings, drawings, sculpture, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Josef Albers, Alex Katz, Ellsworth Kelly, Marcia Scanlon.

Other artists represented:
Arakawa, William Clutz, Robert Graham, Keith Jacobshagen, Michael Mazur, Jon Schueler.

2059. UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA, MINNEAPOLIS
University Gallery
84 Church St SE 55455
(612) 373-3424 Mon-Fri 11-4, Thu eve 4-8, Sun 2-5
Dir: Lyndel King
Exhibitions related to academic programs and the community; special collections of European porcelain, 20th-century American painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Beverly Baranowski, Robert Johnson, Leonardo Lasansky*, Malcolm Myers*, Uche Okeke*, Gretchen Quie.

Other artists represented:
Ben Benn, Marsden Hartley, Alfred Maurer, B.J.O. Nordfeldt, Edgar Payne, John Rood.

2060. VERMILLION EDITIONS
400 First Ave N 55401
(612) 338-6808 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Steven M. Andersen
Publishes and exhibits prints and multiples.

Other artists represented:
Bruce Anderson, Arakawa, Steven Beyer, Sam Gilliam, Red Grooms, Harmony Hammond, Curtis Hoard, Philip Larson, Stuart Nielson, Rodney Ripps, James Rosenquist, Paul Rotterdam, Marcia Scanlon, Hollis Sigler, T. L. Solien, Steven Sorman, Adja Yunkers.

2061. WALKER ART CENTER
Vineland Place 55403
(612) 375-7600 Tue-Sat 10-8, Sun 11-5.
Dir: Martin Friedman
Exhibitions and collection of modern painting, sculpture, prints, drawings, and photographs. Extensive music, dance, film, theater and education programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Deborah Butterfield, John Cage, Liz Phillips, Nancy Randall, Lucas Samaras*, Barbara Stauffacher Solomon*, William Wegman*.

2062. WARM: WOMEN'S ART REGISTRY OF MINNESOTA
414 1st Ave N 55401
(612) 332-5672 Tue-Fri 11-4, Sat 12-5
Dir: Catherine Jordan
Women's collective art gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mari Lyn Ampe, Susan Bacik, Lynn Ball, Joan Tangen Carlson, Cherie Doyle, Jackie Kielkoph, Sandra Kraskin, Joyce Lyon, Susan McDonald, Quimetta Perle, Judith Roode, Judy Stone Nunneley, Sandra Menefe Taylor.

Park Rapids

2063. NORTH COUNTRY MUSEUM OF ARTS
Third and Court Sts 56470
(218) 732-5237 May-Sep, Tue-Sun 11-5
Dir: Pamela Teslow
17th-century European paintings; Nigerian works.

St. Paul

2064. COLLEGE OF ST. CATHERINE
Catherine G. Murphy Gallery
2004 Randolph Ave 55105
(612) 690-6644 Mon-Fri 8-8, Sat and Sun 1-8
Dir: Laurel O'Gorman
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Laura Blaw, James Kielkopf, Karl Matson, George Morrison, Stuart Nielson, Laurel O'Gorman, Mike Raaum, Jo Lutz Rollins*, Mary Walker.

2065. FILM IN THE CITIES GALLERY
2388 University Ave 55114
(612) 646-6104 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: James Dozier
Photography, film, video, sound; work by emerging and established American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Agar, Tom Arndt, Tom Bremer, Linda Brooks, Jeanne Cagle, William Christenberry, Eileen Cowin, Judy Dater, Steve Davis, Benno Friedman, Jan Groover, Gary Hallman, Stuart Klipper, Ray Metzker, Bart Parker, John Pfahl, Rik Sferra, Rosalind Solomon, Carla Steiger-Mesiter, Stephanie Torbert, JoAnn Verberg, Jane Wenger.

2066. SUZANNE KOHN GALLERY
1690 Grand Ave 55105
(612) 699-0477 Mon-Sat 1-5
Dir: Suzanne Kohn
Paintings and original graphics by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Deborah Brown, James Butler, Mary Griep.

Other artists represented:
Wendell Arneson, Nell Hillsley, Evelyn Martin, Lloyd Menard, William E. Murray, Jerry Rudquist, Scott Sandell.

2067. MINNESOTA MUSEUM OF ART
305 Saint Peter at Kellogg Blvd 55102
(612) 292-4355 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Richard C. Magnuson
American art of the first half of the 20th century; painting, drawing, sculpture, prints; Northwest Coast Indian, African, Asian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Bellows.

2068. MINNESOTA MUSEUM OF ART LANDMARK CENTER
75 W 5th St 55102
(612) 292-4355 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard C. Magnuson
Changing exhibitions of regional works; lectures; art school.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Aprile, Lynette Benge, Paul Benson, Remo Campopiano, Gregory Conniff, Gloria DeFilipps-Brush, Peter Feldstein, Audrey Glassman, Pier Gustafson, Gerald Guthrie, Jayne Hileman, David Madzo, Kevin Mangan, Mark W. McGinnis, Aldo Moroni, Edvard Munch*, Lynda Schmid, Abraham Walkowitz.

Mississippi

Cleveland

2069. DELTA STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Department 38733
(601) 843-2151 Mon-Thu 8-8, Fri 8-5
Dir: Malcolm Norwood
Contemporary work in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andrew Bucci.

Jackson

2070. BRYANT GALLERIES
1855 Lakeland Dr 39206
(601) 362-2717 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Bryant Allen
Contemporary realist works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Dunlap, Donny Finley, Carol Hardy.

Other artists represented:
Jim Becker, Jack DeLoney, Alan Flattmann, Charles Gatewood, Steve Klein, Ron Lewis, William Mangum, William McNamara, Dan Poole, Rex Robinson.

2071. CREATIVE EXCHANGE GALLERY
175 E Capitol St 39201
(601) 960-1557 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Joan Williams
Managed by city arts council; contemporary work.

Other artists represented:
Larry Coker, Lynn Green, Ron Lindsey, Sheldon Stone, Yvette Sturgis.

2072. JON WHITTINGTON GALLERY
176 Highland Village 39211
(601) 362-6656 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Beecy Whittington
Contemporary work in all mediums, primarily prints and photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marion Brown, Barbara Cerniglia, Gretchen Haien, Michelle Devereaux Hardy, Stephen Kilpatrick.

Other artists represented:
Jim Hardin, Birney Imes III, Jay Koelzer, Gary Richardson, Phillip Sage, Jon Whittington.

---

*see catalog index

Laurel

2073. LAUREN ROGERS LIBRARY AND MUSEUM OF ART
5th Ave at 7th St, PO Box 1108 39440
(601) 428-4875 Tue-Sat 10-12, 1-5; Sun 2-5
Dir: Betty Mulloy
19th-20th-century American painting; North American Indian baskets; Georgian silver; Japanese prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Walter Anderson*, Lallah Perry.

Meridian

2074. MERIDIAN MUSEUM OF ART
25th Ave at 7th St 39301
(601) 693-1501 Tue-Sun 1-5, Tue 10-12
Dir: Dan W. Griffin
Painting, graphics, photographs, sculpture, crafts; French furniture; works of Caroline Durieux and Homer Castell.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carroll Case, Susan Ford, Casey Ginn, Anton Haardt, Karl Wolfe, Mildred Wolfe.

2075. SOUTHERN EXPOSURE ART GALLERY
1929 23rd Ave 39301
(601) 693-2418 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Myles A. Frank
Paintings and limited edition prints by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Greg Cartnell.

University

2076. UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI
Art Department 38677
(601) 232-7193 Mon-Fri 8:15-4:30
Dir: Margaret Gorove
Changing exhibitions of student, faculty, and outside works.

2077. UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI
University Museums 38677
(601) 232-7073 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Lucy Turnbull
Ancient Greek, Roman, Egyptian collections; West African art, Caribbean folk art; paintings, architectural fragments.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jennie Lee Gorton, Minnie Maude May Schuyler.

Missouri

Columbia

2078. STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF MISSOURI
1020 Lowry St 65201
(314) 882-7083 Mon-Fri 8-4
Dir: Richard S. Brownlee
Works of Missouri and contemporary artists; engravings, editorial cartoon collection.

2079. UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI, COLUMBIA
Museum of Art and Archaeology
1 Pickard Hall 65211
(314) 882-3591 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Osmund Overby/Ruth E. Witt
Painting, sculpture, graphics; Near East, Egypt, Mediterranean archaeology; ethnology of Middle, South America; African, Oceanic, Asian, Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Shane*.

Joplin

2080. SPIVA ART CENTER
Newman and Duquesne Rds 64801
(417) 623-0183Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: V.A. Christensen
Community visual arts gallery usually featuring group or traveling exhibitions.

Kansas City

2081. ART RESEARCH CENTER
922 E 48th St 64110
(816) 531-5483/931-2541 Sat, Sun 2-6; By appt
Dir: Thomas Michael Stephens
Multi-disciplinary experiment in constructive arts, exploring the relationships between art, science, and technology.

Other artists represented:
David Barr, Alberto Biasi, Robert Blackman, Hartmut Böhm, Steven Conard, Tim Forcade, Herbert W. Franke, Douglas Freed, Norman Gallatin, Virginia Hillix, Jay Hueser, Pam Johnson, Richard Kallwait, Richard Kostelanetz, Max Mahlmann, Manfred Mohr, Francois Morellet, Gudrun Piper, Clark Richert, Scott Ross, Carlos Setien, Michael Stephens, Jon B. Thogmartin, Jan Tvedten, Andreas Weininger, Elizabeth Willmot.

2082. DONALD BATMAN GALLERY
825 Westport Road 64111
(816) 531-2588 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Marie Batman
Emerging regional artists; sculpture, photography; realist and abstract works.

Other artists represented:
Janice Atkins, Ann Bagby, Donald Batman, Mary Virginia Brandon, Ann Burkholder, Laura Cansler, Victoria Chick, Mary Byrne Conry, Sharon Eiker, Liz Fort, Ron Graff, Jerry Kenison Hart, Bette Heath, Karen Koblitz, Thomas Koole, Mary Frances Krause, Margie Kuhn, Diane Lawrence, Susan Long, Catherine Massaro, Norma Penchansky, Marilyn Propp, Phillip Roberts, Daniel Rupe, Janet Simpson, Dennis Southwick, Lane Starkey, LaDel Stonecipher, William Wells, Wanda Wilson, Jerry Wray.

2083. BATZ GALLERY
4116 Pennsylvania 64111
(816) 531-4438 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Sally Batz/Gary Batz
Contemporary American and European paintings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Honore Daumier, Francisco Goya, William Hogarth, Jerry Lubensky, Joan Miró, Pierre Auguste Renoir, James A. McNeill Whistler.

Other artists represented:
Philomene Bennett, Doug Freed, Joanne Nuss, Mike Stack, Thomas Michael Stephens.

2084. DORRY GATES GALLERY
5321 Belleview 64112
(816) 523-4403 By appt
Dir: Dorry Gates
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Keith Jacobshagen, Jon Schueler.

Other artists represented:
Jennifer Bartlett, Karen Dienstbier, Stanley Lewis, Ed Moses, Patrick Proctor, Alan Shields, Garner Tullis, Robert Turner, Dan Younger.

2085. KANSAS CITY ART INSTITUTE
Charlotte Crosby Kemper Gallery
4415 Warwick Blvd 64111
(816) 561-4852 Tue-Fri 11-4; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Sherry Cromwell-Lacy

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jane Lackey, Howard Sand Rogovin.

2086. KANSAS CITY MUSEUM
3218 Gladstone Blvd 64123
(816) 483-8300 Tue-Sat 9:30-4:30, Sun 12-4:30
Dir: Barry H. Rosen
Regional history exhibits; natural history hall; planetarium.

2087. L'OMEGA GALLERY
PO Box 1492 64141
(816) 561-1599 Daily 11:30-5
Dir: David L. Stewart
Glass, ceramics, small metal sculptures.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Craig Campbell*, Clarice Cliff, Linda Lighton.

Other artists represented:
Jim Connell, Susie Cooper, Keith Murray, Rebecca L. Tobias.

2088. LA GALERIA
One Pershing Rd 64108
(816) 421-0038 Mon-Sat 10-10, Sun 10-5:30
Dir: Judi Vanet
20th-century modern, international and national oils, watercolors, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Louis Icart, Jean Jansem, Peter Max, Leonardo Nierman, Philippe Noyer, Alex Schloss, Nicola Simbari.

2089. LAWRENCE GALLERY
901 Westport Rd 64111
(816) 531-2423 Tue-Sat 11-4; By appt
Dir: Anne Lawrence
Contemporary American and European paintings, drawings, original prints, sculpture, and ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Colette Bangert, Jim Bass, Chester Solomont, Jean van Harlingen.

Other artists represented:
Robert E. Bailey, Daniel Brennan, Edward Fitzgerald, Joan Foth, Chaim Gross, David Itchkawich, Margo Kren, Ben Zion.

2090. NELSON-ATKINS MUSEUM OF ART
4525 Oak St 64111
(816) 561-4000, Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Marc F. Wilson
Painting, sculpture, drawings, prints from 3000 B.C. to the present; Oriental art, American and Impressionist painting; sculpture garden.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Berenice Abbott, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Robert Rauschenberg, Edward Weston.

2091. NEW STRUCTURES, APPARATIVE ART
920 E 48th St 64110
(816) 931-2541 Sat, Sun 2-6; By appt
Dir: T. M. Stephens Design Associates
Experimental photography, film, video, computer-assisted or photo-mechanical works.

see last page for advertiser's index

Other artists represented:
John Baird, Alberto Biasi, Hartmut Böhm, Merl F. Brown, Herbert Brün, Stephen Collins, Gerard Fisterhold, Tim Forcade, Herbert W. Franke, John Gutowski, Karl Martin Holzhänser, Kathryn Howard, Gottfried Jäger, Richard Kostelanetz, Nathan Lehner, Tony Longson, Lee Mann, Manfred Mohr, Francois Morellet, Jacques Palumbo, Terry Pope, Jan Slothgruber, Michael Stephens, Jon B. Thogmartin, Elizabeth Willmot, Michael Zagalik.

2092. UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI, KANSAS CITY
Gallery of Art
5100 Rockhill Rd 64110
(816) 276-1501 Mon-Fri 10:30-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Craig Subler
Exhibitions of contemporary American and European art. No permanent collection.

Springfield

2093. SPRINGFIELD ART MUSEUM
1111 E Brookside Dr 65807
(417) 866-2716
Dir: William C. Landwehr
American and European fine and decorative arts of the 18th-, 19th-, and 20th-centuries; American Indian, Oceanic, and Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton*, Michael Burns, Edward Weston*.

St. Louis

2094. ALEXANDER-SUGGS GALLERY
5290 Waterman 63108
(314) 454-1828 By appt
Dir: S. Thomas Alexander III
Traditional African art.

2095. BRENTWOOD GALLERY
1221 S Brentwood Blvd 63117
(314) 863-0808
Dir: Lynn Plotkin
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, ceramics, drawings, glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Wegge.

Other artists represented:
Ken Anderson, Leon Anderson, Ralph Bacerra, Thom Bohnert, Frank Boyden, Paul Brach, Squeak Carnwath, Amanda Degener, Jack Earl, Susan Eisler, Viola Frey, Andrea Gill, Lois Graham, Tony Hepburn, Michael Lucero, Peter Marcus, Wally Mason, Phyllis Plattner, Tom Rippon, Norie Sato, Adrian Sax, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Patti Warashina, Kurt Weiser, Emmi Whitehorse, Mary Ann Toots Zynsky.

2096. TIMOTHY BURNS GALLERY
393 N Euclid Ave 63108
(314) 361-7466 Tue-Sun 12-5, Wed eve 6-9
Dir: Timothy Burns
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Eastman, Bill Fitzgibbons, Jennifer Harroun, Art Kleinman, Bill Kohn, Hylarie McMahon, Genell Miller, Gary Passanise, Don Powley.

Other artists represented:
Michael Beresford, Ken Brown, Leila Daw, Von Eisenhardt, Robert Forbes, Joan Hall, Bill Kreplin, Lucian Krukowski, Tom Lang, Mark Lazarus, Susan Moore, Frederick Nelson, Jim Nickel, Arthur Osver, Hava Raucher, John Ruppert, Ursula Schmid, Mickey Sellard, Robert Sherwood, Steven Sorman, Kim Strommen, Barbara Takenaga, Mark Weber, Jerry Wilkerson, Walter Zurko.

2097. FIRST STREET FORUM
717 N First St 63102
(314) 421-3791 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Laurel Meinig
Arts center for exhibitions; musical, theatrical, and dance performances.

2098. GALLERY AT CRAFT ALLIANCE
6640 Delmar Blvd 63130
(314) 725-1151 Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Horty Shieber
Crafts in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Susan Andrews, Bennett Bean, Wendell Castle, Catherine Connor, Stephen Dale Edwards, David Ellsworth, Linda Eyerman, Shirley Johnson, Warren MacKensie, Sam Maloof, Constance Miller, Jane Sauer, Paul Soldner.

2099. GREENBERG GALLERY OF CONTEMPORARY ART
44 Maryland Plaza 63108
(314) 361-7600 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Ronald K. Greenberg
Contemporary American paintings, drawings, sculpture, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Helen Frankenthaler, Ellsworth Kelly, Franz Kline, Morris Louis, Robert Motherwell, Frank Stella.

2100. LAUMEIER INTERNATIONAL SCULPTURE PARK
12580 Rott Rd 63127
(314) 821-1209 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Beej Nierengarten-Smith
55 contemporary outdoor sculptures in 96-acre garden; changing indoor gallery exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Greenamyer, Mary Miss, Beverly Pepper, DeWain Valentine.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Mark di Suvero, Jackie Ferrara, Charles Ginnever, Richard Hunt, William King, Alexander Liberman, Robert Morris, Clark Murray, Louise Nevelson, Tony Rosenthal, Richard Serra, Michael Steiner, Ernest Trova, David Von Schlegell.

2101. MARYVILLE COLLEGE
Beaumont Gallery
13550 Conway Rd 63141
(314) 576-9300 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Nancy N. Rice
Artists of Missouri and Illinois.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lucy M. Harvey, Susan Matthews, Nancy Reiners, Millicent Schainker, John Wickersham.

2102. PUCCIO'S GALLERY WEST
13496 Clayton Rd 63131
(314) 878-5090 Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: Madolyn Puccio
Local and national artists.

Other artists represented:
Virginia Cobb, Judy Richardson Gard, Ellen Glasgow, David P. Hares, Madolyn Puccio, Rob Sadler, Marian Steen, Sylvia Tapley, Patricia Welch, Barbara Zinkel.

2103. MARTIN SCHWEIG GALLERY
4658 Maryland Ave 63108
(314) 361-3000 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lauretta Schumacher
Contemporary photography, drawings, paintings, works on paper; glass and clay.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kim Mosley, Joan Rosen.

Other artists represented:
Patricia Degener, Minerva Durham, Leslie Laskey, William Quinn, Frank Schwaiger, Robert Smith, Sam Stang, Rodney Winfield.

2104. CAROL SHAPIRO GALLERY
329 N Euclid 63108
(314) 361-3655 Wed-Sat 1-5; By appt
Dir: Carol Shapiro
Contemporary painting, prints, ceramics, sculpture, and construction; emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Newman Rice, Jerry Wilkerson.

Other artists represented:
Cynthia Carlson, Charles Clough, Patricia Degener, John Donoghue, Robert Gordy, Stan Helfrich, Marshall Katzman, Marilyn Levine, Elsa Rady, Stan Strembickie, Ron Thomas, Judith Weltman, Ken White.

2105. SIGNET ARTS
360 N Skinker Blvd 63130
(314) 721-8661 Wed-Fri 11-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: George L. Schelling
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michelle Amateau, Ron Crist, Eva Rubinstein, William T. Wiley.

Other artists represented:
George Bartko, Susan Bush, Jim Dine, Red Grooms, James McGarrel, Robert Motherwell, Michael Rubin, Phil Sultz, Wayne Thiebaud.

2106. NANCY SINGER GALLERY
31 Crestwood Dr 63105
(314) 727-1830 By appt
Dir: Nancy Singer
Contemporary prints and sculpture.

2107. ST. LOUIS ART MUSEUM
Forest Park 63110
(314) 721-0067 Tue 1:30-8:30, Wed-Sun 10-5
Dir: James D. Burke
Oriental, Western painting, sculpture, drawing, prints, decorative arts; Oceanic, African, Pre-Columbian, American Indian collections.

2108. UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI
Gallery 210
8001 Natural Bridge Rd 63121
(314) 553-5975 Mon-Thu 9-9, Fri 9-5
Dir: Sylvia S. Walters
Exhibitions of artists working outside the St. Louis area.

2109. B. Z. WAGMAN GALLERY
34 N Brentwood 63105
(314) 721-0250 Wed-Sat 11-4; By appt
Dir: Barbara Z. Wagman
Concentration in glass; fiber, ceramics, painting and metal.

Other artists represented:
William Carlson, Dale Chihuly, Dan Dailey, Neda Al Hilali, Harvey Littleton, Joel Philip Meyers, Beverly Moor, Nance O'Banion, Jay Phillips, Peter Shire, Ann Warff, Steven Weinberg.

2110. WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
Gallery of Art
Steinberg Hall 63130
(314) 889-5490 Mon-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Gerald D. Bolas
19th- and 20th-century American and European painting; Old Master and modern prints; drawings, sculpture, Greek vases.

*see catalog index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Montana

Anaconda

2111. COPPER VILLAGE MUSEUM AND ARTS CENTER OF DEER LODGE COUNTY
110 E 8th St 59711
(406) 563-8421 ext 242 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Mary Blaskovich
Local artists, traveling shows, regional and historical displays.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fred Boyer, Domjan Likarich, Millie Lowry.

Billings

2112. ART IN THE ATRIUM
401 N Broadway 59101
(406) 657-1353 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: Bernadine Fox
Contemporary and western works by living regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carrie Bunker, Bob De Weese, Elliott Eaton, Bernadine Fox, Marilyn Hughes, Carol Mack, Bob Morrison, Jimi Shaw, Ben Steele, Leonard Sundel.

Other artists represented:
Joann Christensen, Linda Hedges, Elsie Jackson, John Potter, Caroline Thayer, Barbara Whitworth.

2113. CASTLE GALLERY
622 N 29th St 59101
(406) 259-6458 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Tom Nelson
Contemporary painting, prints, pottery, fiber-art; baskets, Laotian stitchery, crafts.

Other artists represented:
Vernon Brejcha, Mary Lee Darby, Ed Gillam, Pegee Haman, Dean Klarick, Alan Newburg, James Paulson, Brian Persha, Carol Powalicz, Franz Siebert, Christine Tarpey, Jeff Wilson.

2114. EASTERN MONTANA COLLEGE
Northcutt Gallery
1500 N 30th St 59101
(406) 657-2324 Daily 8-5
Dir: Edward Gillum
Contemporary regional artists; student and faculty exhibitions.

2115. GALLERY '85
Emerald Drive 59105
(406) 259-6969 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Maribeth Dietrich
Western art; sculpture, pottery, weavings, batiks, prints, paintings.

Other artists represented:
Robert N. Blair, Patti Canaris, Steve Dennis, Marinae Dietrich, Frank DiVitta, Paul Goble, Jean Halverson, Earle Heikka, Mike Hollern, Robert Morgan, Newman Myrah, John Nickerson, Wolfgang Pogzeba, Sandy Scott, Anthony Sinclair, John Takehara, Jeff Walker.

2116. LONGAN GALLERY
104 N Broadway, Suite 433 59101
(406) 259-4430 Mon-Fri 8:30-5, Sat by appt
Dir: Frederick R. Longan
19th- and 20th-century photography; Northern Plains painting, sculpture and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Theodore J. Waddell.

Other artists represented:
P.H. Emerson, Layton Huffman, Paul Strand.

2117. YELLOWSTONE ART CENTER
401 N 27th St 59101
(406) 259-1869
Dir: Donna M. Forbes
Contemporary and historic art, lectures, concerts, performance art, film.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Terry Allen, Clarice Dreyer, Frank Ferguson, James Green, Philip Guston, Neil Parsons, Michael Peed, Linda Murphy Robbennolt, Harold Schlotzhauer, Bill Stockton.

Bozeman

2118. ARTIFACTS GALLERIES
308 E Main 59715
(406) 586-3755 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Patricia Blume Noteboom
Contemporary painting, photography, and crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Imogene Cunningham, Steven Jackson, Cynthia Owings, David Shaner, Andrée Van Nuys.

2119. MONTANA STATE UNIVERSITY
Fine Arts Gallery 59717
(406) 994-2562 Mon-Fri 8:30-4:30
Dir: Elizabeth Guheen
Contemporary local, national, and international art; all mediums.

2120. MONTANA STATE UNIVERSITY
Museum of the Rockies 59717
(406) 994-2251 Mon-Fri 8-5; Sat, Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Michael W. Hager
Permanent collection; changing exhibitions of Western art.

Browning

2121. MUSEUM OF THE PLAINS INDIAN & CRAFTS CENTER
PO Box 400 59417
(406) 338-2230 Oct-May, Mon-Fri 10-4:30; Jun-Sep, Daily 9-5
Dir: Myles Libhart
Permanent exhibition of Northern Plains' art and ethnography; one-person exhibitions of contemporary Native American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Blake, Cookie Kittson, Jean La Marr, Cynthia Livermore, Larry Paisley, Rod Shenandoah.

Butte

2122. ARTS CHATEAU
321 W Broadway 59701
(406) 723-7600 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: P. J. Wright
Regional arts; photography, folk art, music, and literature.

Clyfford Still: 1950-A-No. 2, 1950; in the inaugural exhibition of The Baltimore Museum of Art (1982).

Dillon

2123. WESTERN MONTANA COLLEGE
Western Art Gallery 59725
(406) 683-7232 Daily 8-10
Dir: Jim Corr
Student work and traveling exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Maribeth Dietrich, Arthur Fellig.

Great Falls

2124. GALLERY 16
8 5th St N 59401
(406) 453-6103 Mon-Sat 10:30-4
Dir: Judith Ericksen
Contemporary fine arts and craft-work; over 100 artists.

Other artists represented:
Rae Baugh, Mercedes Brown, Julie Bush, Pat Bushly, Keith Campeau, Judy Crowder, Kay De Mille, Judith Ericksen, Dorothy Pat Erickson, Kay Feist, Ruth Franklin, Sandra Fraser, Don Hanson, Todd Hileman, Marcia Hocevar, Greg Jahn, Mike Jenson, Muriel Kittock, Val Knight, Karen Korell, Phil Korell, Loren Kovich, Gudrun Linden, Terry Melvin, David Nelson, Cheryl Price, John Swanberg, Joyce Thomas, Wendy Thon.

2125. PARIS GIBSON SQUARE
1400 First Ave N 59401
(406) 727-8255 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Vicki S. Everson
Museum with contemporary and historical exhibitions; classes, workshops.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Bashor, Ken Fadeley, Patricia Forsberg, Marilyn Hughes, Beth Moffit, Jerry Monteith, Mel Watkin.

2126. CHARLES M. RUSSELL MUSEUM
1201 4th Ave N 59401
(406) 452-7369 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5; May-Sep Mon-Fri 10-8, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Ray Steele
Western art with emphasis on C.M. Russell paintings and bronzes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joe Halko, Dave Maloney, George Montgomery, Robert Scriver.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Helena

2127. MONTANA HISTORICAL SOCIETY
225 N Roberts 59620
(406) 449-2694 Mon–Fri 8–5, Sat 9–5
Dir: Robert Archibald
Western and contemporary art; Montana history.

Kalispell

2128. COTTONWOOD GALLERY
3195 Highway 93 N 59901
(406) 752–2933 Daily 10–5
Dir: J. Ken Leduc
19th- and 20th-century Western art; bronzes and paintings.

Other artists represented:
Albert Bierdstadt, Harley Brown, Gary Carter, A. Hooker Fay, Bud·Helbig, Grace C. Hudson, Ramon Kelley, Nancy McGlaughlin, William Moyers, Mark Ogle, E. S. Paxson, Ace Powell, C. M. Russell, Bob Scriver.

2129. GLACIER GALLERY
1498 Highway 2 59901
(406) 755–7742 Daily 10–6
Dir: Thelma Powell
American and Western painting; Montana artists, past and present.

Other artists represented:
Hans Kleiber, E. S. Paxson, Ace Powell, Charles Russell, O. C. Seltzer, J. H. Sharp.

2130. HOCKADAY CENTER FOR THE ARTS
2nd Ave E and 3rd St 59901
(406) 755–5268 Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Magee Ferguson
Community arts center. Contemporary art by regional, national, and international artists.

2131. PONDEROSA GALLERY
1205 S Main St 59901
(406) 257–8191 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Sandra Sowell/Ellis Sowell
Western and wildlife paintings, bronzes, pottery; Montana artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Divita, Frank Hagel, William Jasper, Mike Miller, Karen Noice, Tom Sander, Tom Saubert, Janeen Schissler.

Other artists represented:
Bye Bitney, Deborah Copenhaver, Marsha Davis, Todd Hileman, Arlene Hooker Fay, James Jokerst, Hank Lawshe, Corinne Lundgren, Bill McCusker, Terry Mimnaugh, Russell Norberg, Elmer Sprunger.

Lewistown

2132. LEWISTOWN ART CENTER
8th & Broadway 59457
(406) 538–8278 Tue–Sat 1:30–5
Dir: Kathy Clasby-Letellier
Non-profit, community supported gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Skarda, Marge Uhlrich.

Other artists represented:
Ken Edwards, Don Greytak, Larry Knutson, Colin McRae, Bill Stockton.

Miles City

2133. CUSTER COUNTY ART CENTER
PO Box 1284 59301
(406) 232–0635 Tue–Sun 1–5
Dir: Julie Cook
Regional and national art; educational and informational workshops.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Anderson, Nancy Erickson, Don Hanson, Isabelle Johnson, Helen McAnslan, Fred McKee, Sheila Miles-Brenden, Stephen Morse, Harold Schlotzhauer, Issac Shamsud-Din, Ted Waddell, Kurt Wagner, Tarmo Watia.

Missoula

2134. MISSOULA MUSEUM OF THE ARTS
335 N Pattee St 59802
(406) 728–0447 Mon–Sat 12–5
Dir: Mary Cummings
Exhibitions of regional, national, international artists in a variety of mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Starr Colvert, Abby Williams Hill, Karen Noice, Peter Wullimann.

Nebraska

Bellevue

2135. BOWEN'S FRANKLIN STREET GALLERY
Franklin and Mission Sts 68005
(402) 292–6116 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sat 10–5
Dir: Carol Swayne
Prints, posters, sculpture, weavings, pottery, watercolors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James F. Goff.

Kearney

2136. KEARNEY STATE COLLEGE
Walker Art Gallery
Fine Arts Complex 68849
Mon–Fri 8:30–4:30, Sun 2–4
Dir: James M. May
Regional artist and student exhibitions.

Lincoln

2137. HAYMARKET ART GALLERY
119 S 9th St 68508
(402) 475–1061 Tue–Sat 10:30–4:30, Sun 4
Dir: Judith Wilson
Non-profit; regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hal Holoun, Andrew Morrow.

2138. NEBRASKA WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY
Elder Gallery
50th & Huntington 68504
(402) 466–2371 Tue–Fri 10–4; Sat, Sun 1–4
Dir: Betty Wallace
University gallery offering changing monthly shows.

2139. UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, LINCOLN
Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery 68588
(402) 472–2461 Tue 10–10, Wed–Sat 10–5, Sun 2–5
Dir: George W. Neubert
20th-century American art; Nebraska artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joanne Bauman, Harold Edgarton, Glen Eppens, Leonard Koenig, Joan Myers, Ernest Ochsner, Susan Ressler.

Omaha

2140. ARTISTS' COOPERATIVE GALLERY
424 S 11th St 68102
(402) 342–9617 Tue–Sun 11–5
Dir: Elizabeth J. Brougham
Artist-owned and -operated non-profit gallery showing contemporary work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Duane Adams, Nancy Parks Carlson, G. Robert Chenoweth, Nick Chiburis, Diane Degan, Michael Flecky, Joan Frost, Emmy Gifford, Thomas Hamilton, Marcia Joffe-Bouska, Harry Jordan, April Katz, Mary Keogh, Mary Jane Krance, Katherine Krug, Leland Lubbers, L. Zenaide Luhr, Richard Markoff, Lin McKeown, John Miller, Mary Ann Miller, Deborah Murphy, Steve Roberts, Margie Schimenti, Carol Sue Spetman, Lauren Van Osdel, Allen Vap, Shirley Warden, Kristin Westin, Robert Willits, Tom Wise.

2141. CRAFTSMEN'S GALLERY
511 S Eleventh St 68102
(402) 346–8887 Mon–Thur 11–9; Fri, Sat 11–10; Sun 12–6
Dir: Ree Schonlau
National and regional crafts: exhibitions and related workshops.

Other artists represented:
Ervin Dixon, Andrea Gill, John Gill, Michael Gustavson, Dorothy Hafner, Tony Hepburn, Wayne Higby, Woody Hughes, June Kaneko, Ray King, Patrick Loughran, Kirk Mangus, Paul Marioni, Mark Pharis, Ira Sapir, Anne Shattuck, Paul Soldner, Susanne Stephenson, Betty Woodman.

2142. GALLERY 72
2709 Leavenworth 68105
(402) 345–3347 Wed–Mon 10–5
Dir: Robert D. Rogers
Contemporary art in all mediums; corporate consulting; framing.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Evans.

Other artists represented:
Gary Bowling, Tom Butler, Tom Colbert, James Eisentrager, Gunter Grass, Dan Howard, Douglas Martin, Robert Miller, Michael Nushawg, Joseph Raffael, Warren Rosser, Yvonne Rosser, David Sullivan, Sarah Supplee, John Thein.

2143. JOSLYN ART MUSEUM
2200 Dodge St 68102
(402) 342–3300 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Henry Flood Robert, Jr.
Encyclopedic museum with an emphasis on American, European, and Western art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jennifer Bartlett*, Jules Breton*, Edgar Heap of Birds*, Joyce Kozloff*, George Sugarman*.

---

*see catalog index

Nevada

Boulder City

2144. BURK GALLERY
400 Nevada Hwy 89005
(702) 293-3958 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Darlene Burk
Western painting; landscapes.

Other artists represented:
Jeff Craven, Steve Devenyns, Don Ely, Joni Falk, Roy Hampton, Carol Harding, John Hilton, Theron Imlay, Michael Ireland, Jack Jordan, Lynne Jordan, Wayne Justus, Mary Lehman, Mike Miller, Cliff Segerblom, Lynn Thomas, Leona Tidd, Ray Tidd.

Incline Village

2145. LAKE GALLERY
PO Box 6588 89450
(702) 831-4544 Daily 10-5
Dir: Stuart Useem
Contemporary graphics, paintings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Guillaume Azoulay, Enrico Embroli, Jim Gale, Jean Guay, David Herschler, William Jahnke, Aldo Luongo, Joe Pausek, Amado Peña, Chris Ranes, Alice Valdez.

Las Vegas

2146. MICHAEL DE LOREAN GALLERIES
2800 W Sahara Ave 89102
(702) 382-6186 Tue-Sat 9-6
Dir: Michael De Lorean
Modern fine art; Pre-Columbian, African, Oceanic, American Indian, Egyptian art.

Other artists represented:
Francis Bacon, Richard Diebenkorn, Jean Dubuffet, David Hockney, Louise Nevelson, Irving Penn, Rufino Tamayo, Francisco Zuniga.

2147. MINOTAUR FINE ARTS
3200 Las Vegas Blvd S 89109
(702) 737-1400 Mon-Wed 9:30-6; Thu, Fri 9:30-9; Sat 9:30-6; Sun 12-5
Dir: Richard C. Perry
18th-20th-century American and European paintings; sculpture, prints, tapestries.

Other artists represented:
Robert Addison, Braun, Phyllis Cubb, Robert Kipniss, Leroy Nieman, T. & C. Rowland, Victor Salmones, Avie Thaw, Carlos Wahlbeck.

2148. REED WHIPPLE CULTURAL CENTER
821 Las Vegas Blvd N 89109
(702) 386-6211 Mon 2-8, Tue-Fri 10-8, Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Iris J. Newman
City-funded; monthly exhibits by local and national artists; juried shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Greg Kennedy, Betty La Duke, Austine Wood.

Other artists represented:
Cindy McCoy, Walter McNamara, Steve Metzger.

2149. UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA
Fine Art Gallery
4505 Maryland Parkway 89154
(702) 739-3751 Tue-Sat 9-5
Dir: Thomas Holder
Exhibitions in all mediums.

Reno

2150. ARTISTS CO-OPERATIVE GALLERY
627 Mill St 89502
(702) 322-8896 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-4:30
Paintings by local artists; Western landscapes; contemporary pottery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Chadwell, Larry Jacox, Kathy McKenzie, William A. Moore, Estéban Valle.

Other artists represented:
Pat Bergstrom, Corliss Bonds, Thelma Calhoun, Lucille Franchini, Ruth Haase, Ruth Hilts, Carol Luce, Betty Molteni, Velda Morby, Helma ReichenBach, Mahree Roberts, Joan Scott-Brown, Lane Sharman, Mary Ann Spence.

2151. SIERRA NEVADA MUSEUM OF ART
549 Court St 89501
(702) 329-3333 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Marcia Cohn Growdon
Great Basin paintings; art glass, medieval manuscripts, Oriental carpets, graphics, fine press books, contemporary shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Cole Caples*, Bob Griffin, Carol Hicks, Bill Leaf.

2152. STREMMEL GALLERIES
1400 S Virginia St 89502
(702) 786-0558 Mon-Fri 8-5, Sat, By appt
Dir: Joseph Craven
19th- and 20th-century American art; appraisal, conservation services.

Other artists represented:
Stanley Bleifeld, George Carlson, Henri Casselli, Chi Chen, Len Chmiel, Mark Daily, Thomas Aquinas Daly, Bernard Dunstan, Wolf Kahn, Bruce Kurland, David Leffel, Fred Machetanz, Craig Sheppard, Jon Zahourek.

2153. UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, RENO
Sheppard Fine Arts Gallery 89557
(702) 784-6682 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: Walter McNamara
Contemporary prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mavis D. Benson, Bob Brown, Dawn Kaneshiro, Paul Kos, Elaine Orlinsky.

New Hampshire

Hanover

2154. DARTMOUTH COLLEGE
Hood Museum of Art 03755
(603) 646-2808 Mon-Sat 10-10, Sun 10-4
Dir: Richard Stuart Teitz
American and European painting, sculpture, drawings, prints; Near and Far Eastern, Pre-Columbian, African collections; decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonardo Lasansky*, Don Nice*.

Manchester

2155. CURRIER GALLERY OF ART
192 Orange St 03104
(603) 669-6144 Tue, Wed, Fri, Sat 10-4; Thu 10-10, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert M. Doty
Non-profit. 13th-20th-century European and American paintings, sculpture, decorative arts; children's art center.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lotte Jacobi, Edward Koren*, Milton Rogovin*, Neil Welliver*.

New Jersey

Atlantic City

2156. ATLANTIC CITY ART CENTER
Boardwalk at New Jersey Ave 08401
(609) 347-5844 Daily 10-4
Dir: Florence Miller
Painting, photography, and sculpture by American artists.

Avon-By-The-Sea

2157. ART LOFT
424 Main St 07717
(201) 775-0898 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Simon Abrams
Contemporary paintings in all mediums by member artists.

Other artists represented:
Simon Abrams, Anne Cantor, Helen Eaton, Jean Hyer, Claire Lackey, Reuben Levine, Sally Sanders, Richard Schepis, Katherine Schur.

Barnegat Light

2158. SIDNEY ROTHMAN-THE GALLERY
2105 Central Ave 08006
(609) 494-2070 Jun-Sep Daily 1-5
Dir: Sidney Rothman
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Arum, John Bisignano, Harry Buckley, Marge Chavooshian, Richard Davis, Sevilla Diehl, Polly French, John Gable, Arthur Glickman, Jo Gregory, Joseph Hirsch, Richard Jeffries, Millicent Krouse, John B. Lear, Robert Perrine, Gregorio Prestopino, Dolores Sprague, Henry A. Stone, Joyce R. Tompkins, Jo Ubogy, Barbara Zeller.

Basking Ridge

2159. WHISTLER'S DAUGHTER GALLERY
88 S Finley Ave 07920
(201) 766-6222 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu eve 5-8, Sun 12-4
Dir: Douglas Krienke/Kendra Krienke
Fine 18th-, 19th-, and 20th-century paintings; exhibitions by contemporary artists.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ken Davies, Philip Jamison*, Don Stone*, Fred Swan*.

Other artists represented:
David Armstrong, Dan Campanelli, Pauline Eble Campanelli, Carroll N. Jones, Bob McGinnis, Vincent Nardone, Andrew Wyeth.

Cedar Grove

2160. KORBY GALLERY
479 Pompton Ave 07009
(201) 239-6789 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Alfred Korby
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Larry Chvotzkin, Patricia Ganek, Glen Guarino, Lucille Hobbie, Andrei Koribanics, Ellen Lewis, Donald Perdue.

Chatham

2161. GALLERY 9
9 N Passaic Ave 07928
(201) 635-6505
Dir: George M. Dembo
Paintings, prints, antique posters.

Other artists represented:
Dorothy Abelson, John Angelini, Hella Bailin, George Bjorkland, John Carman, Dorothy Chhuy, Pat Denman, Helen Frank, William Gorman, Pat Greenwald, Winona Hendricks, Jillian Herrigel, Charlotte Mosenthal, Pat San Soucie, Anne Silber, Zilla Sussman, Judy Targan, Marie Welsh.

Cherry Hill

2162. LANDSMAN GALLERY
Atrium Centre 706 Haddonfield Road 08002
(609) 665-2555 Mon-Sat 11-5; Mon, Wed, Fri eve 5-9
Dir: Melissa Killeen/Howard Landsman
Contemporary art; graphics, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Erté, R. C. Gorman, Hal Singer, Paolo Solari, Andy Warhol.

Other artists represented:
Angel Botello, Jon Brooks, David Ellsworth, Edna Hibel, John Lear, Cristian Nissen, Gregorio Prestopino, Antonio Salemme, Martha Salemme, Paul Sisko, Susan Swartz, Jill Terranova, Kurt Van Dexter.

2163. LANDSMAN GALLERY, ATRIUM CENTER
706 Haddonfield Rd 08002
(609) 665-2555 Mon-Sat 11-5; Mon, Wed, Fri eves 5-11
Dir: Howard Landsman/Melissa Killeen
Contemporary fine art; monumental sculpture and weavings; prints.

Other artists represented:
Angel Botello, Barry Cranmer, Erté, Ruth Geneslaw, R. C. Gorman, Robert Harvey, Edna Hibel, Seard Johnson, Lila Katzen, John Lear, Robert Levine, Bruno Lucchesi, Chris Nissen, Gregorio Prestopino, Jonathon Shahn, Paolo Solari, Susan Swartz, Jill Terranova, Jean Thompson, Louis Vaccaro, David Ward, Andy Warhol, Alan Willoughby.

Clinton

2164. HUNTERDON ART CENTER
7 Center St 08809
(201) 735-8415 Tue-Fri 1-4; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Linda Constant Buki
Exhibitions, crafts, prints, theatre, classes.

Cranford

2165. UNION COLLEGE
Tomasulo Gallery
1033 Springfield Ave 07016
(201) 276-2600 ext 306 Mon-Sat 1-4, Mon-Thu eves 6-9
Dir: Anthony Nicoli
Works by contemporary artists in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Berlind, Bruno Civitico, James Alan Colman, George Green, Oded Halahmy, Steven Linn, C. J. Yao.

East Hanover

2166. JOHN BRADLEY'S GALLERY
Eagle Rock and Ridgedale Aves 07936
(201) 887-0149 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Anneke Prior
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings; New Jersey artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bernard Abelew, James Carlin, Judith Fleischer, Abe Liebmann, Gladys Russell, Sally Spofford, Rhoda Yanow.

Other artists represented:
Don Bloom, Natalie D'Alessio, Alexander Farnham, Nissan Gallant, Tim Gaydos, Pat Greenwald, David Johnston, Michael Metzger, Anneke Prior, Challis Regan, Roslyn Rose, Maswell S. Simpson.

2167. NABISCO BRANDS USA GALLERY
River Rd and DeForest Ave 07936
(201) 884-0500 ext 2447 Sun-Fri 12-4
Dir: Caroline Fee
Contemporary art in all mediums.

Fair Lawn

2168. KORNBLUTH GALLERY
7-21 Fair Lawn Ave 07410
(201) 791-3374 Tue-Sat 10-5:30, Thu 10-9, Sun 1-5
Dir: Lillian Kornbluth
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, graphics, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Will Barnet, Wolf Kahn, Richard Segalman.

Other artists represented:
Byron Browne, William Crovello, Jane Freilicher, Budd Hopkins, Stefan Lokos, Louis Lozowick, Emily Mason, Gregorio Prestopino, Clement Renzi, Al Wilson, Paul Zimmerman.

Far Hills

2169. SIGNATURES GALLERY
Rt 202 07931
(201) 234-2881 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: John Faccidomo/Gail Faccidomo
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
W. Carl Burger, Diana Marta, Miklos Sebek.

Other artists represented:
Robert Anderson, Mary Blackey, Domenico Facci, John Faccidomo, William Gorman, Paul Jeynes, Adolph Konrad, Michael Lasuchin, Betty McGeehan, Donald Perdue, Roslyn Rose, Harry Shoulberg, Harold Wopoff.

Flemington

2170. FLEMINGTON GALLERY OF THE ARTS
150 Main St 08822
(201) 782-0555 Fri-Mon 11-6, Wed 11-6
Dir: Linda C. Sutton
Work by 19th-20th-century American artists.

Other artists represented:
W. Carl Burger, Mary Cassatt, Richard Clive, Violetta De Koszeghy, Gerald Gatski, Winslow Homer, Jean Lareuse, Greg Perillo, Donald Purdy, A.E. Ruffing, Shibui, Frank Zuccarelli.

Freehold

2171. JENTRA FINE ART GALLERY
Hwy 33 and Millhurst Rd 07746
(201) 431-0838 Mon-Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Judith Borell
Contemporary and traditional art and crafts, hand-crafted jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Bruce Anderson, Anthony Autorino, Carlos Davila, Robert Eickholt, Helene Guetary, Jan Jacques, Gloria Jansen-Llewelyn, Jacob Landau, Pat Littlefield, James Llewelyn, Brian Maytum, Leonardo Nierman, Jackie Owen, Roy Owen, Amado Peña, Anne Besse Shephard, Robert Stephan.

Haddonfield

2172. BY HAND FINE CRAFT GALLERY
142 Kings Hwy E 08033
(609) 429-2550 Mon-Sat 10:30-4:30
Dir: Arlene R. Ludin
American crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Forman, Polly French.

Other artists represented:
Wayne Bates, Jane Campbell, David L. Davis, Michael Elkins, Nancy Freeman, John Hull, Lisa Martin, Nancee Meeker, Robert Parrott, Hap Sakwa, Arthur Salazar, Linda Shusterman, Alan Willoughby.

---

*see catalog index

Island Heights

2173. OCEAN COUNTY ARTISTS GUILD
Box 585 08732
(201) 270-3111 Daily 1-4
Dir: Ethel Fishberg
Non-profit exhibition space.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jackie Caldwell, Jacqueline Chesley, Joan Duff, Joseph Eichinger, Olga Obrda, Allyn Schaeffer, Betty Stroppel, Joyce Urbanski.

Other artists represented:
Lee Addison, Tom Boud, Edna Feerick, George Haas, Anne Hayes, Barbara Jost, Dominic Mallardi, Elaine McComb, Vernal Pinkney, Ronnie Pitt, Catalda Shannon, John B. Sisley, Katie Stacy, Carol Ventura.

Jersey City

2174. JERSEY CITY MUSEUM
472 Jersey Ave 07302
(201) 547-4514 Wed 11:30-8, Thu-Sat 11:30-4:30
Dir: Cynthia H. Sanford
19th-early-20th-century American paintings, drawings, prints; Victorian furniture and decorative objects; contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Priscilla Derven, Ben Jones, Daniel Kadish, Franc Palaia, Walter Swales.

Lawrenceville

2175. RIDER COLLEGE ART GALLERY
Box 6400 08648
(609) 896-5326 Mon-Thu 1-10, Fri-Sun 1-5
Dir: Sarah-Ann Harnick
Local artists and craftsmen.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Chris Craig, Alex Lee, Adela Pellón.

Mahwah

2176. RAMAPO COLLEGE ART GALLERY
505 Ramapo Valley Rd 07430
(201) 825-2800 ext 576 Mon-Thu 11-4, Sun 3-6
Dir: Thomas Fountain
Exhibitions; print study collection (1500-1750).

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Oscar Bluemner*, Jack Roth*.

Montclair

2177. DOUBLETREE GALLERY
76 Church St 07042
(201) 783-5022 Wed-Sun 11-5
Dir: Harold Friedlander
Cooperative gallery; contemporary art and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Michele Chandless, Selma Eron, Harold Friedlander, Nancy Friedlander, Jean Kawecki, Nancy Berger Kraemer, Martin Litchman, Johanna Marcus, Peg Miller, Morton Panish, Pamela Perazzone-Katchadurian, Gail Schaffrin-Willard, Bettie Weiss, Edith Worth, Robert Worth.

2178. MONTCLAIR ART MUSEUM
South Mountain & Bloomfield Aves 07042
(201) 746-5555 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert J. Koenig
18th-20th-century American art; Rand Collection of American Indian Art; Chinese snuff bottles; European prints and drawings; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Josef Albers*, Leon de Leeuw, Robert Ferris*, Michael Geiger, Richard Hurley, Jack Roth*.

2179. SIMON GALLERY
20 Church St 07042
(201) 783-3778 Thu 3-7; Fri, Sat 12-6; By appt
Dir: Harold Simon
Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Hafey, Wendy Holmes, Jack Leigh, Michael Rosen, Linda Sbath, Tom Shillea, Gladys Tietz.

Other artists represented:
Shelby Lee Adams, Niki Berg, Arthur Berger, Paul Owen, Patricia Scialo.

Morristown

2180. CORPORATE ART CONSULTANTS
PO Box 2243 R 07960
(201) 267-4822 By appt
Dir: Chris Benedict
Specializes in New Jersey artists.

Other artists represented:
Asimina, Elli Bodo, Paul Burns, Joe Domareki, Peter Fisher, Nessa Granger, George Holloway, Charles McVicker, Joanne Rafferty, Raymond Whyte.

2181. MORRIS MUSEUM OF ARTS & SCIENCES
Normandy Heights and Columbia Rds 07961
(201) 538-0454 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5; Jul, Aug Tue-Sat 10-4
Dir: John D. Peterson
Art, science, history and technology exhibitions.

2182. ROSSI GALLERY
175 South St 07960
(201) 267-0656 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Idda-Marie Rossi
Contemporary European, American, and Latin American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sidney Goodman, Robert Andrew Parker.

Other artists represented:
Carl Liner, Albert Manser, Franz Rederer.

Newark

2183. CITY WITHOUT WALLS: AN URBAN ARTISTS' COLLECTIVE 140 Halsey St 07102
(201) 622-1188 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Colleen Thornton
New York and New Jersey artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Buncamper, Brian Buzak, Martin Goldblum, Dan Kadish, Robert Kirschbaum, Pat Klewicki, Tom McGlynn, Lisa Nirenberg, Mark Nolden, Franc Palaia, German Pitre, Mark Rogers, Matt Schley, Florence Weisz, Brenda Zlamany.

Other artists represented:
Jack Anderson, Barry Blair, Christopher Dougherty, Gregg Jupa, Gilberto Lopez-Espina, Brian McCormack, Meryl Taradash, Ann Tickner, Judith Wadia, Norman Woerle.

2184. NEWARK MUSEUM
49 Washington St, PO Box 540 07101
(201) 733-6600 Daily 12-5
Dir: Samuel C. Miller
Painting, sculpture, decorative arts, Oriental and Classical art; sculpture garden; changing exhibitions of contemporary art.

New Brunswick

2185. DUMONT-LANDIS FINE ART
1050 George St, 1-M 08901
(201) 249-7776
Dir: James O. Dumont/Raye Landis
International contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christo.

Other artists represented:
Peter Berg, Natvar Bhavsar, Susan Crile, Aaron Fink, Denise Green, Kathy Porter, Toshiko Takaezu, Bernar Venet, Nina Yankowitz.

2186. OLD QUEENS GALLERY
90 Schureman St 08901
(201) 846-1347 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-12
Dir: Sarah Frischling
Contemporary American works in all mediums; Eskimo sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Whitney Hansen, Ben Joseph, Ben Shahn, Margery Soroka.

Other artists represented:
John Black, Carol Dick, Helen Frank, Richard Kemble, Marge Levine, Laura Margolius, Stefan Martin, Elizabeth Monath, Carol Moskowitz, Ellen Nathan-Singer, Mary Ross, Judith Shahn, Lewis Sher, John Sinclair, Marian Slepian, Thomas Strickland, Zilla Sussman.

2187. RUTGERS UNIVERSITY
Jane Zimmerli Art Museum
Hamilton and George Sts 08903
(201) 932-7237/932-7906 Mon, Tue, Thu, Fri 10-4:30; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Phillip Dennis Cate
Collections of ancient, Oriental, Pre-Columbian ceramics, 19th-early-20th-century French, English, American paintings and graphics; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Théophile-Alexandre Steinlen*.

Paramus

2188. BERGEN COMMUNITY MUSEUM OF ART AND SCIENCE
Ridgewood and Farview Aves 07652
(201) 265-1248 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Joan Kuyper
Painting, sculpture, and photography; regional and other artists; juried shows and permanent collection; Indian artifacts, scientific displays.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Pennington

2189. PEGASUS MINT GALLERY
100 W Franklin Ave 08534
(609) 737-3538
Dir: Theresa M. Rose
Bronze sculptures.

Other artists represented:
Bunny Geller, Richard Gerster, Ingo Koblischek, Frederick Schrady.

Plainfield

2190. TWEED ARTS GROUP
112 E Front St 07062
(201) 754-9350 Wed-Sat 12-5
Dir: Carolyn Lambert
Non-profit; contemporary art, group theme shows.

Princeton

2191. EDUCATIONAL TESTING SERVICE
Henry Chauncey Conference Center
Rosedale and Carter Rds 08541
(609) 734-5250 Daily 9-9
Dir: Francean Meredith
Local and regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Natalie Best, Donald Clugston, Dorothy Cochran, Ruth Goodman, Peter Homitzki, Lore Lindenfeld, Marvin Metzger.

2192. PRINCETON GALLERY OF FINE ART
8 Chambers St 08540
(609) 921-8123 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-5
Dir: Arline Snyder
Contemporary art; New Jersey artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Werner Drewes, Dorothea Greenbaum, Herb Jackson, Naomi Savage.

Other artists represented:
Clarence Carter, Raul Farco; Thomas George, Jonathan Hirschfeld, Donald Localio, Ralph Rosenborg, Charles Schucker, Jane Teller, Linda White.

2193. PRINCETON UNIVERSITY
Art Museum 08544
(609) 452-3788 Tue-Sat 10-4, Sun 1-5
Dir: Allen Rosenbaum
Classical, Chinese, Pre-Columbian, African, European, American art; sculpture, prints, drawings, photographs.

Short Hills

2194. DAVID GARY
509 Millburn Ave 07078
(201) 467-9240 Mon-Sat 10-5, Thu eve 5-9
Dir: Steve Suskayer
20th-century graphics, paintings by New Jersey artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elli Bado, Marlene Lenker, Johnathan Talbot.

Other artists represented:
Philipe Alfierie, Al Barker, Sherry Felix, Jesus Leeus.

2195. PETAN ART GALLERY
545 Millburn Ave 07078
(201) 379-5577 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Steven R. Lucas
Graphics, paintings, sculpture, and posters by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Salvador Dali, Marcel, Thomas McKnight, Tjelda Michas, Joan Miró, LeRoy Neiman, Lowell Nesbitt, Victor Vasarely.

South Orange

2196. WHICHCRAFT STUDIO
52 Vose Ave 07079
(201) 762-3966 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Milly Iris
Crafts, paintings, jewelry.

Other artists represented:
Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Jane Pieser, Jan Rothrock, Ira Sapir, Marc Sijan.

Sparta

2197. SPARTA GALLERY
14 Winona Pkwy 07871
(201) 729-8075 Tue-Fri 11-2, Sat 10-5
Dir: Mary Lewis/Maureen Maher
Paintings, sculpture, and graphics by emerging American artists.

Other artists represented:
Art Barbour, Ruth Bilane, Harry Bogdos, Al Bross, Irma Cerese, Kent Day Coes, Carol Decker, Nissan Gallant, Richard Haywood, Roz Hollander, June Kolarich, Carol Bermel Kraemer, Ray Lewis, Lila Ryan, Babe Shapiro, Betty Stroppel, Jonathan Talbot, Judy Targan, Brian Townsend, Nancy Weimer-Belden, Rhoda Yanow.

Summit

2198. SUMMIT ART CENTER
68 Elm St 07901
(201) 273-9121 Daily 12-4; Sat, Sun 2-4
Dir: Paul Master-Karnik
Works in all mediums by 20th-century American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philip Pearlstein*.

Teaneck

2199. FAIRLEIGH DICKINSON UNIVERSITY
Maples Gallery
900 River Rd 07666
(201) 836-6300 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Kate Resek
Exhibitions of works in all mediums by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bryce, Lorraine Chiorazzi, William Clark, Harold Keller, Scott Lucia, Melissa Meyer, Karl Stuecklen.

Ralph Helmick: St. Sebastian and the Laser Beams, "Boston Now: Figuration," Inst. of Contemp. Art.

Tenafly

2200. AMERICA HOUSE
24 Washington St 07670
(201) 569-2526 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Betty Turino
Contemporary crafts: jewelry, ceramics, glass, clay.

Other artists represented:
Dudley Giberson, James Kusmierski, Robert Levin, Paul Manners, Nancee Meeker, Arthur Reed, George Thiewes.

Trenton

2201. NEW JERSEY STATE COUNCIL ON THE ARTS
109 W State St 08608
(609) 292-6130 Daily 10-5
State arts council; exhibitions.

2202. NEW JERSEY STATE MUSEUM
205 W State St 08625
(609) 292-6300 Mon-Fri 9-4:45; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Leah P. Sloshberg
American art of the 20th century; decorative arts of New Jersey; archeology; cultural and natural history collections.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Erbe, Albert Green, Frank Kulesa, Gordon Parks, Harold Rogovin, Robert Spencer, Amy Stromsten, Linda White.

Union

2203. KEAN COLLEGE OF NEW JERSEY
College Gallery
Morris Ave 07083
(201) 527-2307, 527-2347 Mon-Thu 10-2, 5-9
Dir: Zara Cohan
Faculty, student, alumni exhibitions; collection of 19th-20th-century paintings and prints.

*see catalog index

Upper Montclair

2204. MONTCLAIR STATE COLLEGE
College Art Gallery 07043
(201) 893-5112 Mon-Fri 9:30-4:30
Dir: Harry Rosenzweig
Art in all mediums.

Watchung

2205. ONLY ORIGINALS
759 Somerset St 07060
(201) 756-7475 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Dorothy H. Kenney
Contemporary paintings, prints.

Other artists represented:
David Bareford, Al Barker, Janice Christensen, Lee Hughes, Dorothy Kenney, Allyn Schaeffer, Kay Weiner, Ruth Wilson.

Wayne

2206. WILLIAM PATERSON COLLEGE
Ben Shahn Galleries 07470
(201) 595-2654 Daily 9:30-4:30
Dir: Nancy Einreinhofer
Contemporary art; theme shows, site specific projects.

Westfield

2207. JUXTAPOSE GALLERY
58 Elm Street 07090
(201) 232-3278 Daily 9:30-5:30, Thu 9:30-9, Sat 10-5
Dir: David Clemans/Christina Clemans
Paintings, graphics, posters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Araten, David Hatfield.

Other artists represented:
Ann Atlas, Natalie Best, Harry Devlin, Carroll Jones III, Janice Metzger, Michael Metzger.

Woodbridge

2208. WOODBRIDGE TOWNSHIP CULTURAL ARTS COMMISSION
582 Rahway Ave 07095
(201) 634-0413
Dir: Anna M. Aschkenes

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Anderson, Albert Kotin*, Susan Monas, June Wilson.

Wyckoff

2209. WYCKOFF GALLERY
210 Everett Ave 07481
(201) 891-7436 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Jock MacRae
Contemporary American painting, sculpture, graphics; realism.

Other artists represented:
Cornelia Baker, Herman Bek-Gran, Elwood Bengert, Chuck Berk, Nell Blaine, Bill Davies, Frederick Franck, Arthur Glickman, Sue Ellen Hains, Carolyn Harris, Jock MacRae, Margaret MacRae, Robert Mansfield, Leo Manso, Eva Mathiasen, Milton Patterson, Don Powers, Jack Roth, John Schlereth, Kay WalkingStick, June Wilson.

New Mexico

Albuquerque

2210. ADOBE GALLERY
413 Romero NW 87104
(505) 243-8485 Daily 11-6
Dir: Alexander E. Anthony, Jr.
Southwest Indian art including craftworks and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Norma Andraud, Gilbert Atencio, Earl Biss, R. C. Gorman, Geraldine Gutierrez, Tommy Montoya, Amado Peña, Kevin Red Star, Robert Redbird, Dyanne Strongbow.

2211. ALBUQUERQUE MUSEUM
2000 Mountain Rd NW 87104
(505) 766-7878 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: James Moore
Fine arts, crafts, decorative arts, costumes, photography.

2212. DOWNTOWN CENTER FOR THE ARTS
216 Central Ave SW 87103
(505) 243-0531 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: Sandra Herzon
Alternative space administered by Albuquerque United Artists, Inc.

2213. ENTHIOS II GALLERY
9500 Montgomery, NE 87111
(505) 293-8871 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Lillian Biffle
Contemporary Southwestern graphics and prints.

Other artists represented:
John Axton, R. C. Gorman, Amado Peña.

2214. GALERIA DEL SOL
206½ San Felipe NW Old Town 87104
(505) 243-7104 Mon-Sun 12:30-5

Other artists represented:
Ernie Badynski, Robert Conine, Cliff Fragua, Doug Higgins, Phil Karshis, Jane Mabry, George Marks, Filomeno Martinez, Carol McIlroy, Charles Moyers, William Moyers, Allen Polt, Irene Ricker, Julian Robles, Betty Sabo, Jim Walston.

2215. HOSHOUR GALLERY
417 Second St SW 87102
(505) 842-5332 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Lise Hoshour
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Daniel Buren, Judy Dolnick, William Masterson, Betty Parsons, Thomas Stokes.

Other artists represented:
Barton Benes, Tamara Bryant, Terry Conway, Mike Dillon, Bill Gilbert, Maria Gooding, Bon Gordon, Frederick Hammersley, William King, Clement Meadmore, Claire Moore, Robert Natkin, Robert Nickle, Richard Nonas, Oli Sihvonen, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Esteban Vicente, Emerson Woelffer, Robert Yasuda.

2216. MARIPOSA GALLERY
113 Romero St NW Old Town 87104
(505) 842-9097 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-4:30
Dir: Fay Abrams/Peg Cronin
Contemporary American crafts emphasizing New Mexico craftsmen.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Liz Anderson, Roger Asay, Frank Boyden, Betty Colbert, John Cunningham, Ann Krestensen, Jennifer Lind, Steve Madsen, Caryn Ostrowe, Joan Weissman.

Other-artists represented:
Karen Arch, KeKe Cribbs, David Dear, Viki Edwards, Shirley Giser, Stanley Giser, Jill Harvey, Christine Hickman, Mark Hickman, Fran Hogan, Richard Hogan, David Joy, Stephen Kilborn, Janusz Kozikowski, Ross LewAllen, Richard Masterson, Steve Meyer, Deborah Milosevigh, Carolyn Sale, Ken Saville, Jas Simmons, Chris Spanovich, Henry Summa, Susan Summa, Peter Vanderlaan, Allen Walter, Lucy Ann Warner.

2217. MERIDIAN GALLERY
220 Central Ave SW 87102
(505) 243-3418 Tue-Sat 11-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Dick Knapp
Cooperative; contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kim Arthun, Jim Cogswell, Page Coleman, Tommie Findley, Tina Fuentes, Ed Haddaway, Sue Linnell, Felice Lucero-Giaccardo, John Norton, Susan Ricker.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Bock, Mary Caird, Tom Feldvebel, Soledad Carrillo Shoats, Mary Sweet, Ed Vega.

2218. PHOTOGENESIS GALLERY
1003 4th St NW 87102
(505) 242-3142 Tue-Sat 1-4:30
Dir: James Ruffner
Photography by emerging contemporary artists; workshop and gallery.

Other artists represented:
James Baily, Tamara Bryant, Tom Feldvebel, Joseph Jachna, Richard Knapp, Wayne R. Lazorik, William Lucas, Kotaro Masuda, David Noble, James Ruffner, Karen Strom, Steve Strom, Michael Tropea.

2219. TAMARIND INSTITUTE
108 Cornell Ave SE 87106
(505) 277-3901 By appt
Dir: Clinton Adams
Lithography.

2220. UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO
Jonson Gallery
1909 Las Lomas NE 87131
(505) 277-4967 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Emerging New Mexico artists, works by Raymond Jonson.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Timothy App, William Masterson.

2221. UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO
University Art Museum
Fine Arts Center 87131
(505) 277-4001 Tue-Fri 10-5, 7-10; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Emily Kass
19th- and 20th-century graphics, lithography of 19th-century France, photography, Spanish Colonial silver, 20th-century art.

2222. WILDINE GALLERIES
903 Rio Grande Blvd NW 87104
(505) 243-5770 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Patsy Catlett
Contemporary Southwestern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank McCulloch.

Other artists represented:
Garo Antreasian, Wanda Becker, Larry Bell, Robert M. Ellis, Robert Gordy, James Harrill, Raymond Jonson, Aaron Karp, Charles Mattox, Forrest Moses, Holly Roberts.

VOL 71 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Las Cruces

2223. NEW MEXICO STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery
Box 3572 88003
(505) 646-2545 Mon-Fri 11-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: John Catterall
Contemporary American prints, photographs, folk art, 19th-century Mexican retablos; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephen Shore.

Roswell

2224. ROSWELL MUSEUM AND ART CENTER
100 W 11th St 88201
(505) 622-4700 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Wendell Ott
Painting and sculpture by Southwestern artists, American Indian and Western artifacts; rocketry.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Bremner*, Leonardo da Vinci, David Hollowell*, Aaron Karp, Ben Larson, Pedro Luhan, Irene Pijoan*, John Sloan*, Walt Wiggins*.

Santa Fe

2225. BELLAS ARTES
301 Garcia St at Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-2745 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Charlotte Kornstein/Bob Kornstein
Turn-of-the-century American decorative arts; ancient, 18th- and 19th-century textiles; antiquities.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joan Daub.

Other artists represented:
Maria Vergara-Wilson.

2226. CONTEMPORARY CRAFTSMAN
100 W San Francisco St 87501
(505) 988-1001 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Jane Gann
Contemporary crafts, specializing in ceramics, wood, fiber, jewelry, glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Buechley, Nancy Buechley, Danyel Clouse, Todd Hoyer, Michael Nourot, John Sheriff, Bunny Tobias, Mary Sue Walsh, Mary Witkop.

Other artists represented:
Roxy Ahlborn, Colleen Barry-Wilson, Curt Brill, Bob Brodsky, Terry Bumpass, Vaughn Burlingham, Tina Davila, Jim Davis, Lou Ellis, Doug Fey, Loren Lukens, Ginger Mongiello, Carolyn Sale, John Strong, Susan Tannehill, Carl Witkop.

2227. DEWEY-KOFRON GALLERY
74 E San Francisco St 87501
(505) 982-8478 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Diane L. Egan
American Indian jewelry, pottery, rugs, and fine art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Mell.

Other artists represented:
William Acheff, Ron Chapel, Dave McGary.

2228. LINDA DURHAM GALLERY
400 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 988-1313 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 11-5
Dir: Nancy H. Strell
Contemporary abstract art; photography; ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gloria Graham*, Richard Hogan, Dick Mason, Margaret Newman, Gail Rieke, Zachariah Rieke, Stuart Shedletsky.

Other artists represented:
David Anderson, Timothy App, Helen Beck, Constance DeJong, Allan Graham, Susan Linnell, Joan Myers, Elliot Norquist, Bernard Plossu, Jean Promutico.

2229. EASON GALLERY
338 E DeVargas 87501
(505) 982-9573 Tue-Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Carolyn Eason
Contemporary American artists; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Oppenheimer.

Other artists represented:
Tom Berg, Rick Dillingham, Forrest Moses, Eugene Newmann.

2230. ENTHIOS GALLERY
1111 Paseo De Peralta 87501
(505) 988-1505 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Marian Frank
Contemporary Southwestern art.

Other artists represented:
John Axton, R. C. Gorman, Janusz Kozikowski, Nancy Kozikowski, Paul Medina, John Nieto, Jean Richardson.

2231. FENN GALLERIES
1075 Paseo De Peralta 87501
(505) 982-4631 Daily 8:30-5:15
Dir: Harry McKee
Old Taos, Santa Fe, Western artists; sculpture.

2232. GALLERY OF THE 21ST CENTURY
102 E Water 87501
(505) 983-2002 Daily 10-6
Dir: Stephen Fox
New Age Native American art.

Other artists represented:
Maurice Burns, T.C. Cannon, R.C. Gorman, Bruce King, Ishii Sakahaftewa, Bill Tate, Darren Vigil.

2233. GALLERY WALL
104 Old Santa Fe Tr 85701
(505) 988-4168 Mon-Sat 9-5:30
Dir: Glenn Green/Sandy Green
Contemporary Southwestern Native American art.

Other artists represented:
Allan Houser, Dan Namingha.

2234. GONDECK GALLERY AND PUBLISHER OF ORIGINAL GRAPHICS
211 Old Santa Fe Trail 87501
(505) 988-3580 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Gondeck
Contemporary American Indian graphics, bronzes, and constructions.

Other artists represented:
Bill Prokopiof, Kevin Red Star.

2235. GRAPHICS HOUSE GALLERY
702 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-2654 By appt
Dir: Anne Sawyer
Limited edition original prints.

Other artists represented:
Louie Ewing, John Hogan, Ross Lew Allen, Stephen McMillan, Carol Mothner, Anne Sawyer, Cornelia Von Mengershausen, Jerry R. West.

2236. ELAINE HORWITCH GALLERIES
129 W Palace Ave 87501
(505) 988-8997
Dir: Julie Sasse
Contemporary Southwestern and fine art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Brian Blount, David Bradley, Altina Carey, Patricia Degner, Rudy Fernandez, Harry Fonseca, Douglas Johnson, Suzanne Klotz-Reilly, Ida Kohlmeyer, David Kraisler, Bruce Lowney, Michael Maglich, Merrill Mahaffey, Tom Palmore, Judy Rhymes, Ron Robles, Bill Schenck, Gary Slater, R. Lee White.

Other artists represented:
John Dawson, Otto Duecker, Carole Jean Feureman, John Fincher, David Gilhooly, Ben Goo, James Havard, David Kessler, Jerome Kirk, Jeff Low, Steve Watson.

2237. INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN INDIAN ARTS MUSEUM
1369 Cerrillos Rd 87501
(505) 988-6281 Mon-Fri 8-5; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Charles Dailey
Contemporary Indian art and crafts; student works; other artists.

Other artists represented:
Michael Dixon, Albert Jim, Debbie Jojola, Elroye Kaye, John LaFord.

2238. JAMISON GALLERIES
111 E San Francisco St 87501
(505) 982-3666 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Zeb B. Conley, Jr.
Traditional Southwestern paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christopher S. Gerlach.

Other artists represented:
Josef Bakos, Henry C. Balink, Constantine Cherkas, Gary Grey, William P. Henderson, Foster Hyatt, Alfred Morang, Tom Mulder, P.A. Nisbet, Don Louis Ruf, Ignatz Sahula-Dycke.

2239. JANUS GALLERY
110 Galisteo 87501
(505) 983-1590 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Victoria L. Andrews
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Kris Cox, Donald Davis, Sandra Dragul, John Hogan, Marianne Hornbuckle, David Jansheski, Grace Kraft, Jonathan Krout, Reg Loving, Marcy MacKinnon, Deborah Milosevich, Jesus Bautista Moroles, Charles Pebworth, Howard Post, Dolona Roberts, Ken Saville, Raymond D. Tomasso, Pierre Tresfort, Pat Wolf.

2240. ERNESTO MAYANS GALLERY
601 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-8068 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Maria Martinez
Contemporary realist painting, New Mexico santos, Pueblo pottery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Louie Ewing, Cathy Folk-Williams, Arthur Haddock*, Whitman Johnson, Eli Levin*.

Other artists represented:
David Barbero, Steve Catron, Robert Cenedella, Ralph Leon, Tommy Macaione, Alfred Morang, Oliver Ortiz, Kathleen Pearson, Leo Salazar, Mary Teichman.

2241. LINDA MCADOO GALLERIES
503 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-7182 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Linda McAdoo/Richard Maitland
Old Santa Fe, Taos painters; contemporary artists, traditional realism.

Other artists represented:
Earl Bliss, Don Brody, Robert Daughters, John Faulkner, R.C. Gorman, Shirley Holt, Sue Hunt, Richard Maitland, Dora Perry, Don Ricks, Doug Ricks, Sandy Scott, Gordon Van Wert, Curt Walters, Ed Ward, Phillip Zeller.

2242. MUNSON GALLERY
653 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-1657 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Larom B. Munson
Contemporary painting, sculpture and graphics with regional emphasis.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Douglas Atwill, Walter Cooper, Dennis Culver, Una Hanbury.

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Ernest Badynski, Loren Berg, Norman Boyles, Maurice Dixon, Woody Gwyn, James Harrill, Robert Jordan, James Kempes, Al Lostetter, Michael Morrow, Maggie Muchmore, Pat Niblack, Polly Schaafsma, Agnes Sims.

2243. MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

107 W Palace Ave 87503
(505) 827-4455 Daily 9-4:45
Dir: Don Humphrey
20th-century regional art including American Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Bell, Terry Husebye, Robert Rauschenberg, John Sloan.

2244. MUSEUM OF INTERNATIONAL FOLK ART

706 Camino Lejo 87504
(505) 827-8350 Oct-Mar, Tue-Sun 9-4:45; April-Oct, Daily 9-4:45
Dir: Yvonne Lange
Folk art, including Latin American folk art; Spanish Colonial art, particularly of New Mexico; textiles and costumes.

2245. GERALD PETERS

439 Camino del Monte Sol 87501
(505) 988-8961 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-3
Dir: Marlou Quintana
19th-early-20th-century American art; Taos School and Western painters.

Other artists represented:
Emil James Bisttram, Solon Borglum, Henry F. Farny, Nicolai Fechin, Joseph A. Fleck, Rod Goebel, Victor Higgins, Hilaire Hiler, John Ward Lockwood, B.J.O. Nordfeldt, Cady Wells.

2246. C. G. REIN GALLERIES

122 W San Francisco 87501
(505) 982-6226 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Richard Wickstrom
See C. G. Rein Galleries: Scottsdale, AZ and Edina, MN.

2247. RUNNING RIDGE GALLERY

640 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 988-2515 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Kay Zink
Non-representational contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Balzer Buskirk, David Crane, James Lovera, Betsy Margolius, Timothy Moore.

Other artists represented:
Laura Andreson, Barry Bates, Mary Beth Bliss, John Farnham, Ruth Farnham, Robert C. Grabowski, Michael Gustavson, Yoshiro Ikeda, Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Andrew Magdanz, William A. Morris, John Nickerson, Kevin Osborn, Amy Roberts, Peter Vanderlaan, Beatrice Wood, Mary Wright, Jeffrey Zigulis, Craig Zweifel, Susan Zwinger.

2248. SANTA FE CENTER FOR PHOTOGRAPHY

104 W San Francisco St 87501
(505) 983-8236
Dir: John Patrick Lamkin
Historical and contemporary photography, lectures, and workshops.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ken Heyman, Ann Parker.

Other artists represented:
Edward Curtis, Eliot Porter.

2249. SANTA FE EAST GALLERY

200 Old Santa Fe Trail 87501
(505) 988-3103 Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Alma S. King
Late-19th- to 20th-century American art; contemporary native American jewelry and pottery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bernique Longley*, Max Weber*.

Other artists represented:
Charles Burchfield, Harvey Chavarria, Jose de Creeft, Leon Gaspard, Robert Henri, Charles Loloma, Julian Lovato, John Marin, Grace Medicine Flower, Luis Mojica, Lilla Cabot Perry, Al Qoyawayma, Toni Roller, Alice Schille.

2250. SAVAGE GALLERIES

102 E Water 87501
(505) 982-1640 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: James H. Bottorff
Contemporary Southwest and East Coast paintings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Gil Dicicco, Lincoln Fox, Ken Freeman, Phil Hicken, Bill Hughes, William Scott Jennings, Frank La Lumia, Joanna La Rance, Manes Lichtenberg, Marvin Nye, Dean Packer, Ken Payne, Phil Prentice, Lee Rommei, Betty Saarni, Jim Schaeffing, George D. Smith, Robert Taylor, B. Thomas-Hughes, Gene Tobey, Roy Lee Ward, Robert Winter, Patrick Woodman.

2251. SCHARF GALLERY

76 E San Francisco St 87501
(505) 982-6161 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Rhoda Scharf
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carl Beam, Albert Dreher, Bren Price.

Other artists represented:
Dova Kaminsky Gaspard, Paula Geisler, Henry Gobin, Amiel Scharf, Jeanine Semon, Ginny Walden.

2252. SETH'S CANYON ROAD ART GALLERY

710 Canyon Rd 87501
(505) 983-6831 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Laurel Seth
Southwestern paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ramon Kelley.

Other artists represented:
Emil Bisttrim, Dane Clark, Loyce Easley, Jackson Hensley, Jinkie Hughes, Paul Kinslow, Geoffrey Landis, Barbara Latham, Lowell Smith, Earl Stroh.

2253. CAROL THORNTON GALLERY

211 Old Santa Fe Trail 87501
(505) 988-4659 Wed-Sat, Mon 9:30-5, Sun 10:30-2:30
Dir: Jamie Thornton
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Earl Biss, Don Chunestudey, Sam Scopas, Dyanne Strongbow, Carol Thornton, Veloy Vigil.

2254. WADLE GALLERIES

123 W Palace 87501
(505) 983-9219 Mon-Fri 9:30-5; June-Aug Mon-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Albert Wadle
Representational paintings, sculpture; American Indian art.

Other artists represented:
John Asaro, Marilyn Bendell, Irby Brown, Earl Carpenter, Keith Christie, Nicholas Firfires, Bryan Forsyth, Cliff Fragua, Roy Grinnell, John Hampton, Albert Handel, Edna Hibel, Peter Hurd, Harvey Johnson, Steve Knight, Mike Larsen, Sherrie McGraw, Paula Narbutovskih, Dan Rippe, William Schultz, Don Seegmiller, R. Shoofly Shufelt, Laurence Sisson, Carol Whitney.

2255. WHEELWRIGHT MUSEUM OF THE AMERICAN INDIAN

704 Camino Lejo, PO Box 5153 87501
(505) 982-4636 Summer Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5; Nov-Apr Tue-Sun
Dir: Richard Lang
Material culture and arts of American Indians of the Southwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helen Cordero, Margaret Tafoya.

2256. WOODARD'S NATIVE AMERICAN ART GALLERY

204 W San Francisco 87501
(505) 983-7426 Mon-Sat 9-6
Dir: Tom Woodard
Indian arts and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Troy Anderson, Bob Annesley, Jean Bales, Harrison Begay, Tony Begay, Robert Chee, Kelly Haney, Milland Lomakema, Charles Lovato, Tommy Montoya, Michelle Naranjo, Charles Pratt, Bill Rabbit, Leonard Riddles, Ben Shoemaker, Clayburn Straughn, Patrick Swazo, Irving Toddy, George Watchetaker, Beatien Yazz.

Taos

2257. CLAY AND FIBER GALLERY

N Pueblo Rd, Box 439 87571
(505) 758-8093 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Art Adair/Mark Adair
Contemporary ceramics, furniture, fiberart, glass, and artwear.

Other artists represented:
Sally Anderson, Sally Bachman, Rolf Dahl, Dora DeLarios, Rick Dillingham, Lissa Hunter, David Joy, Jim Kempes, Phyllis Kornfeld, Fran Kreynek, Jonathan Krout, Avra Leodas, Jenny Lind, Claribel McDaniel, Ginger Mongiello, Ralph Pardington, Neil Prince, James Rannefeld, Carolyn Sale, Gary Schroot, Carter Smith, Mary Witkop.

2258. GALLERY A

PO Box 1221 87571
(505) 758-2343 Oct-Apr 9:30-4:30; May-Sep 9-5
Dir: Mary Lowe Sanchez
Paintings, sculpture, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Betty DeMaree, Loyce Easley, Una Hanbury, Paul Hathaway, Gene Kloss, Bill Kratzer, Billie Kratzer, Barbara Latham, Dick Phillips, Jim Prindiville, Martha Slaymaker, Tom Talbot.

2259. GALLERY WEST

118 E Kit Carson 87571
(505) 758-9637 Tue-Sun 9:35-5
Dir: James Parsons
Contemporary Southwestern and early Taos artists.

Other artists represented:
P.G. Jensen, Tom Macaione, Rebecca Riley, Carol Starr-Rubins, John Suazo, Randy Lee White.

2260. GRYCNER GALLERY

PO Box 2107 87571
(505) 776-2421 Daily 10-6
Dir: Greg Grycner
Totem sculptures, cast paper, color photography, mixed medium, ceramics, alabaster sculptures.

Other artists represented:
Doug Coffin, Alyce Frank, Ellie Hamilton, Kent Jones, Gary Mauro, Greg Payton, Bob Saltzman, Ray Tamasso.

2261. LA FONDA DE TAOS GALLERY

The Plaza 87571
(505) 758-0749 Daily 9-6
Dir: Jeannie Fennell
Southwestern arts.

Other artists represented:
River Freesoul, John Freesoul, Dennis Jeffy, Manelita Lovato, Rhett Lynch, Tse Pe, Faye Quandelacy.

2262. MAGIC MOUNTAIN GALLERY

202 N Plaza 87571
(505) 758-9604 Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Sun 11-5:30
Dir: Kay Decker
Contemporary Southwestern art.

Other artists represented:
Mary De Loyht-Arendt, Mark Dickson, Doug Higgins, Judith Fels Kettunen, King Kuka, Joseph Lonewolf, David Chethlake Paladin, Dora Tse Pe, James Roybol, Nancy Young.

2263. MERRILL'S GALLERY OF FINE ART

North Pueblo Rd 87571
(505) 758-4565 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Otis Floyd/Dixie Floyd
Contemporary Western art.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Other artists represented:
Kyle Bunch, Howard Conner, Robert Corty, Marc Davis, Otis Floyd, Pamela Harr, James Johnson, Roy Kerswill, Arthur Merrill, Douglas Miley, Wayne Morrell, Lee Parkinson, Harvey Rattey, Lloyd Thorsten.

2264. NAVAJO GALLERY
5 Ledoux St 87571
(505) 758-3250 Daily 11-5
Dir: Virginia Dooley
Works of Navajo artist, R.C. Gorman.

Other artists represented:
R.C. Gorman.

2265. RETURN
104 Placitas PO Box 53 87571
(505) 758-3993 Thu-Tue 11-5
Dir: David Hopper/Chuck Banner
Contemporary Southwest art.

Other artists represented:
Larry DeWitt, Frank Garcia, John Hernandez, Larry Herrera, Douglas Johnson, Gary King, Harkin Lucero, Edward Merrifield, Nicholas Morrow, Sammy Quintana, Daniel "Pepe" Rochon, Jennifer Sihvonen, Mitchell Zephier.

2266. TALLY RICHARDS GALLERY
2 Ledoux 87571
(505) 758-2731 Daily 10-5
Dir: Tally Richards
Contemporary work by artists working in New Mexico.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Bell, Earl Linderman, Fritz Scholder*, Harold Joe Waldrum*, Bodhi Wind.

Other artists represented:
Bill Bomar, Jerome Kirk, Kenneth Price.

2267. MILLICENT ROGERS MUSEUM
PO Box A 87571
(505) 758-2462 Nov-Apr, Wed-Sun 10-4; May-Oct, Daily 9-5
Dir: Arthur H. Wolf
American Indian and Hispanic arts of the Southwest including furniture, textiles and other material crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frederico Vigil.

2268. SHRIVER GALLERY
400 N Pueblo Rd 87571
(505) 758-4994 Mon-Sat 9-5; Jun-Oct, Daily 9-5
Dir: Marge Harrison/Bill Harrison
Contemporary Southwest art.

Other artists represented:
Dennis Anderson, Peter Beadle, Joe Beeler, Harley Brown, Mike Desatnick, Francis Donald, John Encinias, Gerald Farm, George Fischer, Howard Forsberg, Gerald Fritzler, John Galvan, Robert Loughheed, Harold Lyon, Dan McCaw, William Reese, Jim Rey, Douglas Ricks, William Shriver, Frank Simms, Lowell E. Smith, Michael Stack, Ben Stahl, Star Liana York.

2269. STABLES ART CENTER
N Pueblo Rd 87571
(505) 758-2036 Thu-Tue 12-5
Dir: Susan Berman
Non-profit; New Mexico fine arts and crafts.

2270. TAOS ART ASSOCIATION
Stables Art Center
225 N Pueblo Rd 87571
(505) 758-2036 Daily 12-5
Dir: Susan Berman
Non-profit; artists of Taos and New Mexico.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Louise Ganthiers.

2271. TAYLOR GALLERY
PO Box LL 87571
(505) 758-3955 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Howard Taylor
Contemporary American art and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Douglas Kent Hall, Patricia Nix, Eric Orr.

Other artists represented:
Jane Abrams, Donald Borthwick, Laddie John Dill, Michael Dormer, R.C. Ellis, Gus Foster, Ethel Greene, Mel Ramos, Sibyl Saam, John Sommers.

2272. VELOY VIGIL
110 Morada Rd 87571
(505) 758-8384 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: John Attardi
Contemporary Southwest art.

Tesuque

2273. SHIDONI SCULPTURE GALLERY
Box 65 87574
(505) 988-8001 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: Jim Oberlander
Contemporary sculpture; outdoor exhibition.

Other artists represented:
David Anderson, Gareth Andrews, William Barrett, Ali Baudoin, Bruce Beasley, Norman Boyles, Barry Coffin, David Deming, Linda Fleming, Lincoln Fox, Betty Gold, Andrea Grassi, Ed Haddaway, Thomas C. Hicks, John Massee, Gary Mauro, Jesus B. Moroles, Bruce Newell, James Oberlander, Norma Penchansky, Tony Price, Charles Ringer, The Rubber Lady, Jack Smith, Arthur Williams.

New York

Albany

2274. ALBANY INSTITUTE OF HISTORY AND ART
125 Washington Ave 12210
(518) 463-4478 Tue-Sat 10-4:45, Sun 2-5
Dir: Norman S. Rice
Decorative and fine arts of Hudson-Mohawk region; historical research library; art classes.

2275. NEW YORK STATE MUSEUM
Cultural Education Center
Empire State Plaza 12230
(518) 474-5842 Daily 10-5
Dir: G. Carroll Lindsay
Decorative and fine arts, history and science with emphasis on New York State; collections of E.L. Henry and Louis A. Fuertes.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
J. Francis Murphy*, James Van Der Zee*.

2276. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, ALBANY
University Art Gallery
1400 Washington Ave 12222
(518) 457-3375 Tue-Fri 9-5; Thu eve 5-8; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Nancy Liddle
Art of the 20th century; collection and exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lotte Jacobi, Edward Koren*.

Amityville

2277. AMITYVILLE ART GALLERY: UNITED FOR THE PRESERVATION OF WOMANHOOD
127 Merrick Rd 11701
(516) 598-0514 Tue-Fri 10-3, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Gurani Anjali
International and local art and crafts.

Annandale-on-Hudson

2278. BARD COLLEGE
Edith C. Blum Institute 12504
(914) 758-6822 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Linda Weintraub
Changing exhibitions of sculpture, painting, works on paper; formulating permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karl Knaths*, George Sugarman*.

Auburn

2279. SCHWEINFURTH ART CENTER
205 Genesee St 13021
(315) 255-1553 Tue-Sat 1-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Heather Tunis
Works by Joseph Domjan; Schweinfurth's architectural drawings; 20th-century art.

Bayport

2280. BAY AREA FRIENDS OF THE FINE ARTS
Grange Art Gallery
PO Box 16 11705
(516) 589-7343 Thu, Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Liz Smith/Gail Laskowski
Annual juried selection of Long Island artists for group and solo shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Alberti, Muriel Jansen, Ed Kish, Leilah Wendell.

Other artists represented:
Jean Koroluck.

Binghamton

2281. ROBERSON CENTER FOR THE ARTS AND SCIENCES
30 Front St 13905
(607) 772-0660 Tue-Thu 10-5; Fri 10-10; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Duane P. Truex
Paintings by local and regional artists; works by Iroquois and Woodlands Indians.

---

*see catalog index

2282. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, BINGHAMTON
University Art Gallery 13901
(607) 798-2634 Mon-Fri 9-4:30; Sat, Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Josephine Gear
Historic and contemporary art exhibitions, annual faculty and student shows. Permanent collection ranging from Greek pottery to 20th-century graphics.

Blue Mt. Lake

2283. ADIRONDACK LAKES CENTER FOR THE ARTS
Route 28 12812
(518) 352-7715 Mon-Sat 9-4
Dir: Elizabeth S. Folwell
Artists and craftsmen from the Adirondack Park.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Howard Goodman, Annoel Krider, Jane Voorhees.

Bridgehampton

2284. ELAINE BENSON GALLERY
Montauk Highway 11932
(516) 537-3233 May-Sep Thu-Tue 12-6
Dir: Elaine Benson
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings, crafts.

2285. DAN FLAVIN ART INSTITUTE
Corwith Ave 11932
(516) 537-1476
Dir: Tiffany Bell
Permanent exhibitions of Dan Flavin's major light installations; exhibitions of graphic works.

2286. PETER S. LOONAM GALLERY
Main St 11932
(516) 537-3775 May-Dec Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5; Jan-Apr Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jim Richard Wilson
Contemporary work by regional artists.

Other artists represented:
Stan Brodsky, Dominick Cantasano, Rae Ferren, Cornelia Foss, Connie Fox, Hilary Fritz, Donald Jurney, Hans Kline, Don LoPiccolo, Helene Manzo, Christine Najdzionek, Michael Rosch, David Slater, Ty Stroudsburg, Frank Wimberley, Kate Winn, Brad Winslow.

2287. SARAH Y. RENTSCHLER GALLERY
Main St 11932
(516) 537-7894 Jun-Sep Tue-Sun 10-6
Dir: Sarah Y. Rentschler
Works by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Jonathan Becker, Sidney Butchkes, Nancy Chadwick, Louise Egbert, Augustus Goertz III, Peter Gourfain, Jean Holabird, Holly Hughes, Dolores Kiriacon, Alison Lasley, George Mittendorf, Fay Peck, Rory Rodner, Florence Rowe-Libin, Susan Rowland, Dinah Maxwell Smith, Sheila Smith, Lori Solondz, Haydn Stubbing, Sylvia Thompson, Francine Tint, Tony Towle, Nancy Van Deren, Joseph S. Wheelwright, Claudia Whitman, Jarvis Wilcox, Andrea Woodner.

Edward Hopper: East Side Interior, 1922; in "The American Scene," at the Louisiana Arts & Science Center, Baton Rouge (Nov. 2, 1982-Dec. 12, 1983).

Bronx

2288. BRONX MUSEUM OF THE ARTS
1040 Grand Concourse 10451
(212) 681-6004 Sat-Thu 10-4:30; Sun 11-4:30
Dir: Luis R. Cancel
Contemporary art; highlighting contributions of ethnic groups in Bronx county.

2289. FOCAL POINT GALLERY
278 City Island Ave 10464
(212) 885-1403 Tue-Sun 12-6, 8-11
Dir: Ron Terner
Photography; contemporary art.

Brooklyn

2290. BELANTHI GALLERY
142 Court St 11201
(212) 855-2769 Wed-Mon 10-Midnight
Dir: James G. DeMartini
Art works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fernand Barbot, Siri Berg, H. D. Burrows, Virginia Cantarella, Cezar Del Valle, Richard Frumess, Sydney Hamburger, Arlene Holmes, Jean Kroeber, Harold Le Roy, Stewart MacFarlane, Stefanie Mandelbaum, Murray Melnick, Estelle Pascoe, S. Brenda Power, John Prizeman, Liz Whitney Quisgard, Bernette Rudolph, Marvin Salzman, Raymond Santamaria, Patricia Windrow, Moses Worthman, Alfred Wyatt.

2291. BROOKLYN COLLEGE
Museum of the Borough of Brooklyn
Bedford Ave and Ave H 11210
(212) 780-5152 Mon, Tue, Wed 11:30-5; Thu 11:30-8; Sat, Sun 12-4
Dir: Shelly M. Dinhofer
Visual and cultural history of Brooklyn; thematic exhibitions, paintings, sculptures, drawings, photographs, graphics.

2292. BROOKLYN MUSEUM
Eastern Pkwy 11238
(212) 638-5000 Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Robert T. Buck
African, Oceanic, New World arts; costumes, decorative arts; Egyptian, classical, Oriental, American, and European art; graphics; sculpture garden.

2293. ROTUNDA GALLERY
Brooklyn Borough Hall, 209 Joralemon 11201
(212) 643-5102 Mon-Fri 9-5, Wed 9-8
Dir: Jackie Battenfield profit; work of living artists who were or work in Brooklyn.

o

2294. ALBRIGHT-KNOX ART GALLERY
1285 Elmwood Ave 14222
(716) 882-8700 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 12-5
Paintings, sculptures, drawings, graphics, photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Cage, Chryssa*, Adolph Gottlieb*, Fernand Leger*, Judy Pfaff*, Joe Zucker*.

2295. BURCHFIELD CENTER
1300 Elmwood Ave 14222
(716) 878-6012 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Edna M. Lindemann
Western-New-York-State artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Burchfield, Suzann Phelan Denny, Robert John Holland, Peppino Mangravite*, Susan Read, Milton Rogovin.

2296. CEPA GALLERY
700 Main St 14202
(716) 856-2717 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 11-3
Dir: Gary Nickard
Center for Exploratory and Perceptual Art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Baim, Diane Buckler, Jim Casebere, Sara Charlesworth, Don Chiappinelli, Jeff Hoone, Eric Jensen, Norma Kassirer, Sylvia Kolbowski, Barbara Kruger, Jim Leach, Daniel Levine, Gary Nickard, Bill Paris, Thomas Payne, Ken Pelka, Michael Smith, Charlie Stiffler, Anne Turyn, Samuel Vacanti.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2297. NINA FREUDENHEIM GALLERY
560 Franklin St 14202
(716) 881-1555 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Julia Bogacki
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, ceramics, and baskets.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephanie Kirschen Cole, Lois Hennessey, Margie Hughto, Stephen Meyers, Pat Steir, Joan Thorne, Catharine Warren, Thornton Willis, Joe Zucker.

Other artists represented:
Dennis Ashbaugh, Edward Avedisian, Charles Clough, Elaine Lustig Cohen, Susan Crile, Rick Dillingham, Nancy Genn, David Gilhooly, Sam Gilliam, Robert Goodnough, Duayne Hatchett, Sheila Isham, Lyman Kipp, John McQueen, David Middlebrook, George Noel, Rina Peleg, John Pfahl, Bill Stewart, Bill Taggart.

2298. HALLWALLS
700 Main St 14202
(716) 854-5828 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: William J. Currie
An alternative space and multi-arts center.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Donald Baechler, Martin Boyle, Kim Braun, Steve Dennie, Tim Duch, Chris Ellis "Daze", Christopher Engel, John Fekner, Philip Galgiani, Jedd Garet, Roseanne Generalli, Keith Haring, Michael Harvey, Skipper Hooper "Nado", Jonny Matos "Crash", Mark McFadden, Nic Nicosia, Kevin Noble, Tony Oursler, Judy Pfaff, Jody Pinto, Jane Rosen, Terry Rosenberg, Russ Warren, Casey Williams, Frank Young.

2299. MORE-RUBIN GALLERY
36 Norwood Ave 14222
(716) 885-1636 By appt
Dir: Martje V. More
Contemporary paintings, prints, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Jeanette Blair, Jeanette Bowles, Sue Copley, Robert Flock, Richard Gubernick, Wil Harris, Catherine Koenig, James Kuo, John McIvor, Charles Munday, Sam Ogden, Suzann Phelan-Denny, Walter Prochownik, Andrew Topolski, John Toth, Martha Visser't Hooft.

Canton

2300. ST. LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY
Richard F. Brush Art Gallery
Griffiths Arts Center 13617
(315) 379-5174 Mon-Fri 9-5; By appt
Dir: Geo Raica
20th-century American art and European prints; Japanese prints; African and Alaskan art.

Other artists represented:
Leonard Baskin, Henry Botkin, Alfred Crimi, Annie Lenney.

Cazenovia

2301. CAZENOVIA COLLEGE
Chapman Art Center Gallery 13035
(315) 655-3466 Mon-Fri 1-4, 7-9, Sat 10-7, Sun 1-5
Dir: John Aistars
One- and two-person exhibitions in many mediums.

Cedarhurst

2302. LORING ART GALLERY
661 Central Ave 11516
(516) 295-1919 Daily 10:30-5:30
Dir: Rosemary Uffner
Paintings, watercolors, graphics, antique posters.

Other artists represented:
William Accorssi, Charles Apt, Byron Browne, Kenneth Crook, Paul Goldberg, Daniel Greene, Vincent Leggiadro, Manes Lichtenberg, Fletcher Martin, Harry McCormack, Arthur Sarnoff.

Chautauqua

2303. CHAUTAUQUA ART ASSOCIATION
Chautauqua Institution
Box 1365 14722
(716) 357-2771 Jun-Aug, Daily 1-8
Dir: Millie Giles
Seasonal exhibition space for American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Wendell Castle, Jo Hodgson Hart, Brian Paulsen.

Clinton

2304. KIRKLAND ART CENTER
On The Park 13323
(315) 853-8871 Tue-Fri 11-5; Sat, Sun 2-4
Dir: Dare Thompson
Non-profit; exhibitions of national and local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Murray, Marian Simpson.

Cold Spring Harbor

2305. GILLIEWRINKLES
28 Main St 11724
(516) 367-9259 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Anita Lamb
Works in mixed mediums by contemporary Long Island artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sarah Amatniek, May Brandt, Calvin Chung, Pat Dews, Penny Feder, Dominique Filieres, Bob Krauss, Olga Poloukhine.

2306. HARBOR GALLERY
43 Main St 11724
(516) 692-9526 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-6
Dir: Dorothy Schneiderman
Selection of 15th-20th-century prints; contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
David Burliuk, Rudy Colao, Leonard Creo, Eugene Cusack, Jan DeRuth, Leonda Finke, Jason Fishbein, George Gach, Jack Gates, Max Ginsburg, Irving Lehr, Stephen Lindsay, Darilyn Lowe, Joe Hing Lowe, Robert Maione, Charles Pfahl, Elias Rivera, Sheldon Rosenthal, Marguritte Takvorian-Holmes.

Cooperstown

2307. COOPERSTOWN ART ASSOCIATION
22 Main St 13326
(607) 547-9777 Mon-Fri 10-4; Jul-Aug Sat 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Olga Welch
Non-profit art association with national juried art exhibition.

Corning

2308. CORNING MUSEUM OF GLASS
Corning Glass Center 14831
(607) 937-5371 Daily 9-5
Dir: Dwight P. Lanmon
Art, history and science of glassmaking from 1500 B.C. to present.

East Hampton

2309. ARTIST'S PROOF
257 Pantigo Rd 11937
(516) 324-0276 May-Oct Daily 12-5
Dir: S. F. Heydt
Prints and photography.

Other artists represented:
Arnold Hoffmann, Robert Schmid.

2310. GALLERY EAST
257 Pantigo Rd 11937
(516) 324-9393 Daily 12-6
Dir: Rose Millevolte/Rosemary Terribile
Contemporary artists living or working in the Hamptons.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dorothy Abbott, Nancy Baldwin, Linda Bergger, Anthony Butera, James Del Grosso, Pat Eannel, Russ Elliott, Maria Daniella Fabaro, Jo Gregory, Barbara Hadden, Harriett Henderson, Ted Jeremenko, Richard Karwoski, Gail Kern, Margaret Lamb, Irving Lehr, Madeleine Meehan, Rose Millevolte, Jacqueline Penney, Beverly Gibson Reboli, Joseph Reboli, Leo Revi, Jane Ritchie, Norman Seaver, James Seeman, Dick Shanley, Susan Tessen, Peter Turgeon.

Other artists represented:
Alice Baker, Harold Bowman, Ralph Carpentier, June Ciancio, Rufus Coes, Lauren Jarrett, Hans Kline, Michael Loomis, David Miner, Pat Ralph, Ann Stanwell.

2311. GUILD HALL MUSEUM
158 Main St 11937
(516) 324-0806 Nov-May Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Annabelle Hebert
Exhibitions of local artists including members of the New York School.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Tarr*.

2312. VERED GALLERY
70A Park Place 11937
(516) 324-3303 Jul-Aug Wed-Mon 12-6; Apr-Jan Fri-Sun 12-6
Dir: Ruth Vered
Contemporary figurative and landscape paintings; sculpture.

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Judith Brown, David Burt, Irma Cerese, Margaret Cheeseman, Rosemary D'Andrea, Balcomb Greene, Helen Hoie, Mary McKinley-Haas, Frank Metz, John Murray, Rina Peleg, Kjell Ringi, Peter Schnore, Billy Schoenfeld, Juan Velazquez, Giorgio Zennaro.

East Islip

2313. ISLIP ART MUSEUM
50 Irish La 11730
(516) 224-5402 Wed-Sat 10-4, Wed eve 8-10, Sun 2-4:30
Dir: Madeleine Burnside
Group exhibitions of contemporary art work.

East Meadow

2314. NOW & THEN GALLERY
797 Merrick Ave 11554
(516) 481-1447 Mon-Sat 9-5:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Aphrodite Zules
Native American art; contemporary graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
R.C. Gorman, Miguel Martinez.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Norma Andraud, John Axton, Gail Bruce, Bruno Bruni, Erté, Frank Gallo, Ellie Hamilton, Lowell Nesbitt, Amado Peña, Jerry Schurr.

East Setauket

2315. FELICE COLE GALLERY
3 West Rd 11733
(516) 751-6946 Mar-Jun Sep-Dec 1-5
Dir: Felice Cole
Contemporary prints.

Elmira

2316. ARNOT ART MUSEUM
235 Lake St 14901
(607) 734-3697 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 9-5, Sun 2-5; Jul-Aug Sat 2-5
Dir: Kenneth Lindquist
17th- and 19th-century European paintings. 19th-century American painting, 20th-century American graphics and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alexander Gavales, Kay Harris Hill, Tomas Kneeland, Douglas Arthur Teed*, Samuel Vann.

Other artists represented:
Berta Hummel.

Flushing

2317. CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, QUEENS COLLEGE
Godwin-Ternbach Museum
65-30 Kissena Blvd 11367
(212) 520-7049 Mon-Thu 10-4, Tue 6-9
Dir: Gabriel Laderman
European and American paintings and sculpture; ancient, Oriental, primitive art; prints, drawings, photographs.

2318. CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, QUEENS COLLEGE
Art Center
Paul Klapper Library 11367
(212) 520-7243
Dir: Irene Avens
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Majorie Apter-McKevitt, Daina Dagnija, Richard Hamwi, Mary Kurtz, Florence Pasternak, Herbert Seliger.

2319. QUEENS MUSEUM
New York City Building
Flushing Meadow - Corona Park 11368
(212) 592-5555 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Janet Schneider
Contemporary local and emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eric Appel, Peter Brown, Harold Bruder, Edward Curtis*, Arthur Leinzig, Alan Sonfist.

Garden City

2320. ADELPHI UNIVERSITY
Gallery At The Alumni House
154 Cambridge Ave 11530
(516) 538-2411 Mon-Fri 9-4
Dir: Muriel Siris
Contemporary art; emerging artists.

2321. NASSAU COMMUNITY COLLEGE
Firehouse Gallery
Stewart Ave 11530
(516) 222-7165 Mon-Fri 11-4:30, Wed 7-9
Dir: Helen B. Muller
Contemporary New York area artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andrea Kovacs.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Stan Brodsky, Charlotte Brown, John Fink.

Glens Falls

2322. HYDE COLLECTION
161 Warren St 12801
(518) 792-1761 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Frederick J. Fisher
14th-17th-century European and American paintings, drawings, sculpture, decorative arts, textiles and rare books.

Great Neck

2323. ARTISTS INVOLVEMENT IN ART
573 Middle Neck Rd 11020
(516) 482-9005 Mon-Sat by appt
Dir: Marge Rothschild
Cooperative; contemporary women painters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Maxine Feldman, Mildred Hermann, Pearl Rebhun, Barbara Schwartz.

Other artists represented:
Muriel Casper, Florence Hasenflug, Piry Rame, Marge Rothschild, Ann Shore, Mary Tressler.

2324. NORTH SHORE SCULPTURE CENTRE
665 Middle Neck Rd 11023
(516) 466-4328 Tue-Sat 10:30-4:30
Dir: Nancy Landau
Contemporary sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonora Arye, Barbara Barron, Harriet Febland, Jason Homer, Seymour Meyer, Mary Jane Moross, Elaine Warshaw, Dale Zheutlin.

Other artists represented:
Lissy Dennett, Caroline Gassner Kaplowitz, Nancy Landau, Barbarie Rothstein, Debra Schaffer, Isobel Folb Sokolow.

2325. V & R FINE ARTS
169 Middle Neck Rd 11021
(516) 466-4899 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Vincent Sorrentino
Contemporary art in all mediums; multiple and graphic publications.

Other artists represented:
Berenice Abbott, Richard Estes, Carole Jean Feuerman, Ellard Howell, Dennis Oppenheim, Michaelangelo Pistoletto.

Greenlawn

2326. HUNTINGTON TOWNSHIP ART LEAGUE
Wyckoff St off Broadway 11740
(516) 757-0331 Mon-Thu 10-4, Sun 2-4
Dir: Jeanie Tengelsen
Paintings, sculpture, prints, photographs and crafts; changing exhibitions.

Greenvale

2327. LONG ISLAND UNIVERSITY
Hillwood Art Gallery
C W Post Center 11548
(516) 299-2788 Mon-Fri 10-5, Wed 10-8; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: J. K. Van Wagner
Paintings, prints, photography, sculpture; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marjorie Strider*.

Hamilton

2328. COLGATE UNIVERSITY
Picker Art Gallery 13346
(315) 824-1000 ext 634 Daily 10-5; Sat, Sun 11-5
Dir: Dewey F. Mosby
19th-20th-century art; photography.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Hartsdale

2329. ALAN BROWN GALLERY
210 E Hartsdale 10530
(914) 723-0040 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Alan Brown
Contemporary American and European graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bob Epstein, Jane Kahn, John Kahn, Leo Kaplan, Hector Leonardi, Karl Mann, Jeffrey Owenbrosk, Jim Ridlon, Roy Simmons, Tommy Simpson.

Other artists represented:
Carol Anthony, Arakawa, Franz Kline, Roy Lichtenstein, J. Pindyke Miller, Seije Saito, Ernest Shaw, Edward Steichen, Andy Warhol.

Hempstead

2330. FINE ARTS MUSEUM OF LONG ISLAND
295 Fulton Ave 11550
(516) 481-5700 Wed-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Eleanor Flomenhaft
Contemporary and primitive art including special collection of Pre-Columbian art.

2331. HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY
Emily Lowe Gallery
Hempstead Turnpike 11550
(516) 560-5672 Tue 10-9, Wed-Fri 10-4:45, Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Gail Gelburd
Far Eastern and Oceanic sculpture; 18th-20th-century European painting and sculpture; contemporary prints and photographs.

Huntington

2332. D & R SHOWCASE GALLERY
274 New York Ave 11743
(516) 271-3540 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30, Sun 1:30-5:30
Dir: Barbara Dolan/Cornelia Reina
Contemporary American crafts.

Other artists represented:
Glenn Appleman, Nancy Baldwin, Helen Baskin, Bennett Bean, Thelma Becherer, Peter Bramhall, Dale Dapkins, Randall Darwell, Bob Deeble, Maishe Dickman, Lillian Dodson, Sally-Ann Endleman, John Fink, Coco Gordon, Bob Green, Bill Heise, Paul Johnson, Thomas Langan, Ben Mack, Thomas Markusen, Wally Mason, Joseph McLaughlin, Mimi Okino, Marcia Phillips, Art Reed, Peter Resnik, Emily Rossheim, Peter Saenger, Hap Sakwa, Ira Sapir, Pamela Topham, Nancy Valk, Alice Wansor, Lin Warren.

2333. HECKSCHER MUSEUM
Prime Ave 11743
(516) 351-3250 Tue-Fri, 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Katherine Lochridge
15th-20th-century painting and sculpture; 19th-century American and European academic painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kes Zapkus*.

Huntington Village

2334. COLLECTORS FOUR
4 Wall St 11743
(516) 673-6662 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Al Osterland
Posters.

Ithaca

2335. CORNELL UNIVERSITY
Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art 14853
(607) 256-6464 Tue-Sun 10-5
Dir: Thomas W. Leavitt
Strengths in Asian and contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Victor Colby, Heinz Isler, Lotte Jacobi, Barbara Kasten, Mariann Miller, Francesc Torres.

2336. ITHACA HOUSE GALLERY ASSOCIATION
108 N Plain St 14850
(607) 272-1233 Fri, Sat 11-5; Sun 1-5
Artists of New York State.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Alexander, Janet Braun-Reinitz, Michael Busch, Judith Gabriel, Don Wheeler.

Other artists represented:
Rick Daddario, Jane Dennis, Sherry Hathaway, Midge Kerlan, Eric Larson, Mary Ann McNeil, Susan Pickens, Susan Sauvageau.

2337. UPSTAIRS GALLERY
215 North Cayuga St 14850
(607) 272-8614
Dir: Sally Tunnicliffe
Upstate New York and other artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnet, Jacques Hnizdovsky.

Jamaica

2338. JAMAICA ARTS CENTER
161-04 Jamaica Ave 11432
(212) 658-7400 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Steven Tennen
Specializes in black art related shows; no permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Brown.

Jericho

2339. GILLARY GALLERY
62 Maiden Lane 11753
(516) 681-2015 By appt
Dir: Sylvia R. Gillary
20th-century painting, sculpture, prints.

Other artists represented:
Miriam Axelrod, Leo Gillary, Sally Gottesman, Alexander Ross, Beatrice Brooks Ross, Bronka Stern, Gloria Weinstock.

Katonah

2340. KATONAH GALLERY
28 Bedford Rd 10536
(914) 232-9555 Tue-Thu 2-5, Fri-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Anne H. Baren
Non-profit gallery. Loan exhibitions and regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sara Amatniek, Peter Chinni, Leslie Ender, Lucy Gould, Amalia Hoffman, Bohdan D. Osyczka, Tanya Pfeffer, Victoria Sclafoni, Anthony Toney, Marianne von Recklinghausen Bowles, Susan Weil.

Larchmont

2341. POST ROAD GALLERY
2128 Boston Post Rd 10538
(914) 834-7568 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Robert Bahssin
19th-century paintings, sculpture, decorative arts.

Lewiston

2342. ARTPARK
Box 371 14092
(716) 745-3377 Jun-Sep Daily
Dir: Joanne Allison
Sculpture gardens; artists-in-residence.

Locust Valley

2343. COUNTRY ART GALLERY
198 Birch Hill Rd 11560
(516) 676-6886 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Clarissa H. Watson
Contemporary international, American realist, and naive artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Antonio Ciccone, Bernice Faegenburg, Heidi Hagman, Franklin Jones, Petra Mathers, Gabriel Spat, Marie Stobbe, Helene Whitwell, A. N. Wyeth.

Other artists represented:
Jean-Jacques Balitran, Pierre Bertrand, Henry Maurice Cahours, Ernest Chiriacka, Wayne Davis, Marie Ebbesen, Ray Ellis, Mike Falco, James Feriola, Francoise Gilot, Elsie Heindl, Myron Heise, Gabriel Hyppolite, Luis Idigoras, Cecile Johnson, Trafford Klots, Seymour Lipton, Janet Munro, Clare Potter, Robert Stark.

Manhasset

2344. NORTH SHORE UNITARIAN CHURCH
Plandome Gallery
Plandome Rd 11030
(516) 627-6560 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Estelle Henrich/Elizabeth Trembicki
Works in all mediums; emerging artists.

---

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Julia Buchholz Anello, Marie Berler, John Digby, Jack Gray, Dorothy Lazara, Thomas Malloy, Louise Merrim, Betty Nichol, Jacqueline Penney, Alice Wansor, John Wisseman.

Mountainville

2345. STORM KING ART CENTER
Old Pleasant Hill Rd 10953
(914) 534-3115 Wed-Mon 2-5:30, Closed Dec-Mar
Dir: David R. Collens
Contemporary American and European painting and sculpture; 200-acre sculpture gardens.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barbara Hepworth.

New Paltz

2346. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, NEW PALTZ
College Art Gallery 12562
(914) 257-2439 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sun 1-4
Dir: Neil C. Trager
19th-20th-century American paintings and prints; Oriental prints; German Expressionist works; Pre-Columbian artifacts.

New York

2347. DIDIER AARON
32 E 67th St 10021
(212) 988-5248 Mon-Fri 10-6
Dir: Hervé Aaron
18th- and 19th-century European painting; furniture, decorative arts; Oriental art.

2348. ABERBACH FINE ART
988 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 988-1100 Sep-Jun Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Joachim Aberbach
Contemporary American and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rebecca Davenport, Igor Galanin, Earl Linderman*, Dario Morales*, Yossi Rosenstein.

2349. ABREU GALLERY
286 8th Ave 10001
(212) 929-0404
Dir: Mauro DaSilver
Contemporary American, South American, and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pierre Jacquemon.

Other artists represented:
Mauro Abreu.

2350. ACA GALLERIES
21 E 67th St 10021
(212) 628-2440 Sep-May Tue-Sat 10-5:30; Jun-Aug Tue-Fri 10-5
Dir: Sidney L. Bergen
Late 19th- and early-20th-century American and contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy Carruthers, Balcomb Greene, Barkley Hendricks, Paul Pletka, Fritz Scholder.

Other artists represented:
Margit Beck, C. K. Chatterton, Joseph Cornell, John Dobbs, Ernest Fiene, Gertrude Greene, William Gropper, Susan Kahn, Lionel Kalish, Jeffrey Kronsnoble, Joseph Solman, Moses Soyer, Anthony Toney, Robert Vickrey.

2351. ACQUAVELLA CONTEMPORARY ART
18 E 79th St 10021
(212) 734-6300 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: W. R. Acquavella/D. MacGuigan
Post-WW II American painting; contemporary painting, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Billy Al Bengston, Willard Boepple, Anthony Caro, Maureen Connor, Rachelle Epstein, Todd McKie, Peter Robbie, Mark Schlesinger, Sandi Slone, Catharine Warren, Edward Youkilis.

2352. ACQUAVELLA GALLERIES
18 E 79th St 10021
(212) 734-6300 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: William R. Acquavella
19th- and 20th-century paintings and sculpture.

2353. ACTUAL ART FOUNDATION
7 Worth St 10013
(212) 226-3109 By appt
Dir: Valerie Shakespeare
Non-profit; experimental art.

Other artists represented:
Helene Aylon, Bill Fontana, Terry Fugate-Wilcox, Sandy Gellis, Nathan Joseph, Anthony Martin, Forrest Myers, SITE, Richard Thatcher, Merrill Wagner.

2354. A.M. ADLER FINE ARTS
21 E 67th St 10021
(212) 249-2450 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Anne Rogin
19th- and 20th-century prints and drawings; Old Lyme Impressionists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas S. Buechner, Abby Leigh*, Jules Pascin*.

Other artists represented:
Jankel Adler, Robert Henri.

2355. PAM ADLER GALLERY
37 W 57th St 10019
(212) 980-9696 Sep-Jun Tue-Sat 10-5:30; Jul-Aug Tue-Fri 10-5:30
Dir: Pam Adler
Emerging American artists using new forms of expression.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jack Chevalier, Charles Clough, Don Dudley, Ira Joel Haber, Jonathan Santlofer, D. Jack Solomon, Harry Soviak.

Other artists represented:
Sarah Canright, Marina Cappelletto, Cynthia Carlson, David Sharpe, Jeff Way, Barbara Zucker.

2356. RACHEL ADLER GALLERY
58 E 79th St 10021
(212) 831-3824 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Rachel Adler
Early-20th-century works: Russian Suprematism; Constructivism; Italian Futurism; Dada; Latin-American art.

2357. A.I.R. GALLERY
63 Crosby St 10012
(212) 966-0799 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Renata Lac
Women artists' cooperative; art-related special events.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rachel bas-Cohain, Sari Dienes, Daria Dorosh, Sandra Eisenstein, Mary Grigoriadis, Harmony Hammond, Patsy Norvell.

Other artists represented:
Dotty Attie, Donna Byars, Sarah Draney, Loretta Dunkelman, Mary Beth Edelson, Lenore Goldberg, Anne Healy, Louise Kramer, Elaine Reichek, Nancy Spero, Clover Vail, Ann Wilson.

2358. SALVATORE ALA
32 W 20th St 10011
(212) 675-3267 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Caroline Martin
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Giuseppe Penone, Michelangelo Pistoletto, Remo Salvadori.

Other artists represented:
Giovanni Anselmo, Domenico Bianchi, Bruno Ceccobelli, Luciano Fabro, Rebecca Horn, Jannis Kounellis.

2360. JEFFREY ALAN GALLERY
1568 2nd Ave 10028
(212) 744-4070 Tue-Sat 11-6; By appt
Dir: J. Marqusee
19th-early-20th-century American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Francesca Alexander*.

Other artists represented:
Alfred T. Bricher, Benjamin Champney, Bruce Crane, Harold Dunbar, Frank Duveneck, Walter Granville-Smith, Joseph Greenwood, George H. Hall, William Horton, William Kaula, Charles Lanman, George Luks, Reginald Marsh, F. Luis Mora, J. Francis Murphy, Leonard Ochtman, Adelaide Palmer, E. Wood Perry, William P. Phelps, John S. Sargent, John W.A. Scott, Alexander Wyant.

2361. ALASKA SHOP GALLERY OF ESKIMO ART
31 E 74th St 10021
(212) 879-1782 Mon-Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Hedy Mann
Art and artifacts of the Eskimo: sculpture, prints, hangings.

Other artists represented:
George Arlu, Oshuituk "B", Henry Evardjulak, Johnny Inukpuk, Sam Nahaulaituq, Pauta.

2362. BROOKE ALEXANDER
20 W 57th St 10019
(212) 757-3721 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Brooke Alexander
Paintings, drawings, graphics by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Diamond, Richard Haas, Yvonne Jacquette, Wonsook Kim, Sylvia Plimack Mangold, Alan Turner.

Other artists represented:
John Ahearn, Richard Bosman, Stephen Buckley, Sondra Freckelton, Ken Goodman, Ann McCoy, Richard Mock, Peter Nadin, George Negroponte, Tom Otterness, Judy Rifka, Troels Worsel.

2363. A. J. ALLAN
87 Mercer St 10012
(212) 431-3232 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Karen Renz
Works on paper, limited editions, vintage posters, graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Zuleyka V. Benitez, Otis Tamasauskas.

Other artists represented:
Nicholas Gaetano, Eleanor M. Kish, John Martinez, Patrick Nagel.

2364. ALTERNATE SPACE GALLERY
431 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966-2520 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 11-6
Dir: Robbie Ehrlich
Works in all mediums by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Michael Kupka, Dianora Niccolini.

2365. ALTERNATIVE MUSEUM
17 White St 10013
(212) 966-4444 Wed-Sat 11-6
Dir: Geno Rodriguez
Artist founded and operated; exhibitions, concerts, permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Fuente, Hera, James Leach, Clarence Morgan, Nickzad Nodjoumi.

2366. AMAURY-TAITTINGER GALLERY
1089 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 570-6767 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Amaury Taittinger
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean-Pierre Darnat, Maxime Defert, Etienne Sandorfi.

2367. AMERICAN CRAFT MUSEUM I
44 W 53rd St 10019
(212) 397-0630 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Paul Smith
Contemporary American fiber, clay, glass, metal, wood, paper works; permanent collection of American crafts since 1900; changing exhibitions.

2368. AMERICAN CRAFT MUSEUM II
International Paper Plaza, 77 W 45th St 10036
(212) 397-0605 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Paul Smith
Contemporary American fiber, clay, glass, metal, wood, paper works; collection of American crafts since 1900; changing exhibitions.

2369. AMERICAN MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY
Central Park W at 79th St 10024
(212) 873-1300 Daily 10-6; Wed, Fri, Sat 10-9
Dir: Thomas D. Nicholson
Natural history museum: artifacts, specimens of animals, minerals, plants, and other objects of man and nature; frequent special exhibitions.

2370. AMERICAN SCANDINAVIAN FOUNDATION GALLERY
127 E 73 St 10021
(212) 879-9779 Wed-Sat 12-5
Dir: Christian Malcolm
Non-profit; contemporary Scandinavian painting, sculpture, rugs, ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Videke Klint.

Other artists represented:
Bård Breivik, Rolf Hanson, Olle Kaks, Benny Motzfeldt, Gosta Peterson.

2371. AMERICAN STATE OF THE ARTS GALLERY EXCHANGE
162 W 4th St 10014
(212) 242-6234 Tue-Sun 12-12
Dir: Nona Gianlorenzi
Prints and drawing by contemporary and emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Cindy Black, Phil Edelstein, Hera, D. R. Jacobson, Elizabeth Kuder, Claire Moore.

Other artists represented:
Michael Abrams, Chet Baker, Martha Bloom, Christopher Chambers, Fernando Garcia, Nona Gianlorenzi, James Goodwill, Tom Gormley, Alan Guttman, David Hayes, Jack Hernon, Miriam Jacobs, Andrea Kovacs, Nicholas Krushenick, Yudel Kyler, Joe Lewis, William Mulkins, Sophie Newman, Janet Richmond, Barbara Sang, Teddy Schapiro, Jennifer Stein.

2372. DAVID ANDERSON GALLERY
521 W 57th St 10019
(212) 586-4200 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Christopher C. Colt
Contemporary international painting and sculpture.

2373. W. GRAHAM ARADER III
23 E 74th St Apt 5A 10021
(212) 628-3668
Dir: Sharon McIntosh
16th-19th-century original prints, maps and books.

Other artists represented:
John James Audubon, Karl Bodmer, George Brookshaw, Mark Catesby, George Catlin, Currier & Ives, John Gould, James Hall, Thomas Lorain McKenny, Pierre-Joseph Redoute, Robert John Thornton.

2374. ARCH GALLERY
644 Broadway, Suite 2E 10012
(212) 260-5847 By appt
Dir: Daniela Montana
Contemporary and Latin-American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Emma Alvarez Pineiro, NICOLE, Pepon Osorio, Suthat Pinruethai, William Prichett, Monic Santander.

Other artists represented:
Martha Gamond, Juan Mele.

2375. ARRAS GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 421-1177 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Adele Siegel
Contemporary painting, sculpture, tapestries, collages, prints.

Other artists represented:
Stephen Auger, Enrico Baj, Arthur Boden, Jill Cannady, Omar Carreno, Domenico Casasanta, Yehouda Chaki, Bruce Dorfman, Dale Egee, Kosso Eloul, Josep Grau-Garriga, Bill Haendel, Jeff Hoare, Rita Letendre, Ugo Nespolo, Barbara Smukler, Todd Stone, Hans Van de Bovenkamp, Victor Vasarely, Liana Vassaloy, Peter Vogel, Sirpa Yarmolinsky.

2376. ART AND DESIGN GALLERY
152 Wooster St 10012
(212) 777-4207 Tue-Sat 11-6, Sun 1-5
Dir: Barbara Friedland
Corporate art specialists; fine arts; interior design; installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alberto Montano, W. Lee Savage, Phillip Sybal, Lucca Vernizzi, Sherry Wolf.

2377. ART FOR ARCHITECTURE
21 E 67th St 10021
(212) 535-3295 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Carla Panicali
Monumental sculpture by European and American artists.

Other artists represented:
Carla Battaglia, Ettore Colla, Pietro Consagra, Lucio Fontana, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Gio Pomodoro, William Tucker.

2378. ART GALAXY
262 Mott St 10012
(212) 966-0426 Wed-Sat 11-6
Dir: Barbara Flynn
Painting, sculpture, photography, film, performance.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Butler, Babette Holland, Greg Kwiatek, Jay Martin, Michael Peglau.

Rosalind Solomon; at Film in the Cities, St. Paul, Minn. (May 5-26, 1982).

Other artists represented:
Leonard Bullock, Craig Fisher, Heidi Glück, Michael Hafftka, Axel Hütte, Harriet Korman, Gary Kuehn, Mary Lemley, Patrick Morrison, Brian O'Neill, Nancy Spero.

2379. ART GALLERY—STUDIO 53
424 Park Ave 10022
(212) 755-6650 Mon-Fri 10-6; Sat, Sun 11-6
Dir: Linda Gottlieb
Contemporary paintings, watercolors, drawings, sculpture, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alvar, Michel Delacroix, Erté, Fanch.

Other artists represented:
Graciela Rodo Boulanger, Bruno Bruni, R. C. Gorman, Gustavo Novoa, Nicola Simbari, Andrew Wyeth.

2380. ART SPECTRUM
305 E 63rd St 10021
(212) 593-1812 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: Mitch Morse
Paintings, prints, sculpture by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Don Bowman, Rimer Cardillo, Jaime Coll-Valls, Jon Donovan, Harold Harris, Jack Herland, Igor Kononov, Miharu Lane, Linda Lobel, John Miller, Bob Pentelovitch, Jesus del Rincon, Vince Scialla, Matthew Screaton, J. Seeley, Jack Sher, Walter Verdick, Bob Yealdhall.

2381. ART STUDENT'S LEAGUE OF NY
215 W 57th St 10019
(212) 247-4510 Mon-Fri 10-9, Sat 9-4
Dir: Rosena A. Florio
Gallery exhibiting works of students, members, and instructors; special theme exhibitions.

Other artists represented:
Robert Philipp, Allen Tucker.

2382. ARTISTS REPRESENTING ENVIRONMENTAL ARTS (A.R.E.A.)
500 E 83rd St 10021
(212) 288-7650
Dir: Dorothea M. Silverman
Public exhibitions: environments and sculpture on shoreline sites; 1983-84: Woods Island, NY; other locations.

Other artists represented:
Zigi Ben-Haim, Mimi Gross, Wenda Habenicht, Henry Steinfort, Stuart Williams.

2383. ARTISTS SPACE
105 Hudson St 10013
(212) 226-3970 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Linda Shearer
New work by unrepresented artists; slide registry, grants, materials fund.

2384. ASIA SOCIETY GALLERY
725 Park Ave 10021
(212) 288-6400 Tue-Sat 10-5, Thu 10-8:30, Sun 12-5
Dir: Allen Wardwell
Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller 3rd Collection of Asian Art: sculpture, ceramics, paintings of India, Southeast Asia, China, Japan; loan exhibitions.

2385. ASSOCIATED AMERICAN ARTISTS
663 5th Ave 10022
(212) 755-4211 Sep-May Mon-Sat 10-6; Jun-Aug Mon-Fri 10-6
Dir: Sylvan Cole, Jr.
16th-20th-century prints; woodcuts, etchings, lithographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnet, Lyonel Feininger, Louis Lozowick.

Other artists represented:
Mario Avati, Thomas Hart Benton, John Steuart Curry, Stuart Davis, Raphael Soyer, Carol Summers, Grant Wood.

2386. ATLANTIC GALLERY
458 W Broadway 10012
(212) 228-0944 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Rich Samuelson
Cooperative; exhibits members and guest artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Cansler, Catherine Correa, Carol Hamann, Michael Hayes, Rebecca Leonard, Carol Levin, Naomi Plotkin, Rich Samuelson, Janet Steinmetz, Rebecca Weisberg, Rodney White, Laura Young.

Other artists represented:
Julia Blumenreich, Sally Brody, Frances Buschke, Jacqueline Ann Clipsham, Manuela Filiaci, Ruth Gray, Elliott Jacobs, Stephanie Lebowitz, Jeanne MaMahan, Roger Mignon, Pam Miller, Sabra Moore, Dixie Peaslee, Kate Rabinowitz, David Ray, Fabio Salvatori, Barbara Spiller, John Stone.

2387. AUSLANDER AND WITTGENSTEIN
25 E 77th St 10021
(212) 288-1493 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: B. Auslander/M. C. Wittgenstein
Old master and 19th-century paintings.

2388. AUSTRIAN INSTITUTE
11 E 52nd St 10022
(212) 759-5165 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Fritz Cocron

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Berjold Löffler*.

Other artists represented:
Georg Eisler.

2389. BABCOCK GALLERY
20 E 67th St 10021
(212) 535-9355 By appt
Dir: Michael St. Clair
Late 19th- and early-20th-century American paintings and drawings.

Other artists represented:
Marsden Hartley, Childe Hassam, John F. Kensett, Alfred H. Mauer.

2390. BARCLAY FINE ART
985 Park Ave 10028
(212) 753-7171 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Rutgers Barclay
19th- and 20th-century European and American art.

2391. BARCLAY GALLERY
801 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-6680/1-800-228-0809 Mon-Fri 9-5 by appt
Dir: Larry D. Evans
Specializes in works by Picasso, Miró, Chagall, and Dali.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karel Appel, Salvador Dali, Joan Miró.

2392. BASEMENT GALLERIES
127 Prince St 10012
(212) 228-7160 Thu, Fri, Sat, Sun 1-6
Dir: Charles Leslie/Dai Evans
Male erotic and bizarre art.

Other artists represented:
Adam, Eddie Cervone, Peter Flinch, Ted Foley, Delmas Howe, Delmas Howe, Nigel Kent, Fritz André Kracht, Kurk, Robert W. Richards, Roland, Richard Rosenfeld, Keith Smith, Tom (of) Finland.

2393. BASKERVILLE + WATSON
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 582-0058
Dir: Carole Ann Klonarides
Contemporary art of all mediums; emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Ellis, Lauren Ewing, Deborah Kass, Marianne Stikas, Steve Wood.

2394. JAYNE H. BAUM GALLERY
12 W 37th St 10018
(212) 695-7200
Dir: Jayne H. Baum
Contemporary art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Ali Baudoin, Rib Bloomfield, Shlomo Cassos, Richard Davies, Astrid Fitzgerald, Ed Hansen, Alice Hendrikson, Arnold Iger, David McCullough, Sean McLaughlin, Cynthia Pannucci, Robert Schmid, Gerald Sciliano, Stephen Sholinsky, Jim Smith, Harriet Stanton, Zelda Tanenbaum, Terence Warren.

2395. WILLIAM BEADLESTON FINE ART
60 E 91st St 10028
(212) 348-7234
Dir: William Beadleston
Impressionist and modern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Claude Monet, Sean Scully.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Louis Boudin, Jean Dubuffet, Jean Dufy, Joan Miro, Henry Moore, Pablo Picasso, John B. Sisley, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, Edouard Vuillard.

2396. JEAN JACQUES BEAUMÉ GALLERY
712 Madison Avenue, Second Floor 10021
(212) 486-0334 Mon-Sat 10-7
Dir: Jean Jacques Beaumé
European 1930s Art-Deco furniture, rugs and objects.

2397. BELGIS-FREIDEL GALLERY
90 Thompson St 10011
(212) 431-9270 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: S. Freidel
Turn-of-the-century European prints, posters, works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Bonnard, Jules Cheret, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

2398. BENEDEK FINE ART
985 5th Ave 10021
(212) 744-2333 By appt
Dir: Richard Benedek
20th-century painting and sculpture.

2399. AARON BERMAN GALLERY
50 W 57 St 10019
(212) 757-7630 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Aaron Berman
Contemporary art: abstract expressionism, trompe l'oeil; realism; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Abe Ajay, Robin Landa, Ernest Ruckle, Cathy Skopic, Iris Spellings.

Other artists represented:
Herb Aach, Bernard Beck, Sy Boardman, Pat Brentano, Irwin Fleminger, Karl Hagedorn, Grace Knowlton, Mariann Miller, Richard Miller, Jeffrey Packard, Elena Presser, Jack Reilly, Leah Rhodes, Martin Riess.

2400. BERNICE STEINBAUM GALLERY
903 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-3373 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: B. Steinbaum
Contemporary American and Native American painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jane Kaufman, George Longfish, Renee Magnati, James Pile, Phyllis Yes.

Other artists represented:
Paul Brach, Grace Graupe-Pillard, Douglas Hilson, Aaron Karp, Marjorie Strider, Carol Stronghilos, Betty Tompkins, Adrianne Wortzel, Robert Yodice.

2401. DAVID BERNSTEIN FINE ART
12 E 86th St, Suite 831 10028
(212) 794-0389 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: David Bernstein
Primitive arts of the Americas: ceramics, gold, jade, antique and ancient textiles.

2402. BERNSTEIN GALLERIES
33 E 74th St 10021
(212) 288-3002 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Nathan A. Bernstein
Late 19th- and early-20th-century European paintings, drawings, and watercolors.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Bonnard, Mary Cassatt, Albert Gleizes, Fernand Leger, André Lhote, Henri Matisse, Amedeo Modigliani, Claude Monet, Camille Pissarro, Pierre Auguste Renoir.

2403. BERRY-HILL GALLERIES
743 5th Ave 10022
(212) 371-6777 Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 10-4
Dir: James Berry Hill/Frederick D. Hill
American Impressionist and Luminist works; sculpture; 19th-century China Trade paintings.

Other artists represented:
Wayman Adams, Fidelia Bridges, Cornelia Foss, Malvina Hoffman, Barbara Novak, Bernard Réquichot.

2404. BFM
150 E 58th St 10155
(212) 755-1243 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Bernice Steinbaum/Madeline Moses
Contemporary American ceramics, sculpture, hangings, paintings.

Other artists represented:
Felipe Archuleta, Evelyn Brenner, George Bucher, Margarit Cusack, Tryna Greene, Burt Groedel, Bob Howell, Karen Koblitz, Jay Lindsay, Judith Loeb, Beverly Kurtz Magennis, Lynda Pleet, Colin Richmond, Priscilla Sage, Floyd Shamon, Tamara Sigler, Hilda Steckel, Judith Strong, Arlene Toonkel.

2405. BLUE MOUNTAIN GALLERY
121 Wooster St 10012
(212) 226-9402 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: John Leavey/Elliott Barowitz
Artist-run cooperative.

Other artists represented:
Elliott Barowitz, Teri Bartol, Rudy Burkhardt, Michael Chelminski, Arthur Cohen, Lucien Day, Judith Evans, Nancy Gelman, Joe Giordano, Robert Godfrey, Margaret Grimes, Robert Henry, Charles Kaiman, John Leavey, Margaret Leveson, Jacqueline Lima, Helene Manzo, Rosemary Naegele, Carol Paquay, Linda Peer, Lorna Ritz, Janet Sawyer, Una Wilkinson.

2406. BLUM HELMAN GALLERY
20 W 57 St 10019
(212) 245-2888 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Peter Freeman
Post-war American painting and sculpture; European modern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Craig Kauffman, Steve Keister, Ellsworth Kelly, Andrew Lord, Edda Renouf, Donald Sultan.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Other artists represented:
William Baziotes, Ron Davis, Richard Diebenkorn, Robert Moskowitz, Bruce Robbins, Hap Tivey.

2407. BLUMKA II
23 E 67th St 10021
(212) 879–5611 Mon–Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Anthony Blumka
Contemporary European and American painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Timothy Lovejoy, Peter Pellettieri, Wolfram Wallmer.

2408. BODLEY GALLERY
10028
(212) 249–2155 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: David Mann
Contemporary paintings and sculpture; 20th-century works; Surrealism.

Other artists represented:
Richard Erdman, Mary Faulconer, Lorna Halper, Mary Melikian, Lilika Papanicolaou, Essie Pinsker, Jane Piper, Dean Porter, Allen Saalburg, Benno Schmidbaur, Marianne Schnell, Evelyn Taylor, Rogers Turner, Armando Villegas.

2409. BONLOW GALLERY
150 Greene St 10012
(212) 925–4482 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: J. Bonnier
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Tseng Kwong Chi, Rebecca Cuming, Frank Holliday, Robert Kitchen, Helmut Middendorf, RAMMELLZEE, Michael Tetherov.

2410. MARY BOONE GALLERY
417 W Broadway/420 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966–2114/431–1818 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Mary Boone
Contemporary paintings, constructions, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Troy Brauntuch, Anselm Kiefer, Bruce McLean, Mat Mullican, David Salle, Julian Schnabel, Gary Stephan, Michael Tracy.

Other artists represented:
Ross Bleckner, Rainer Fetting, Michael McClard.

2411. BORGENICHT GALLERY
724 5th Ave 10019
(212) 247–2111 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–5:30
Dir: Grace Borgenicht Brandt
American contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Max Beckmann, Charles Biederman, David Lee Brown, Paul Burlin, Tom Butter, Martin Chirino, Edward Corbett, Alan D'Arcangelo, Stuart Davis, José de Rivera, Roy Gussow, Hans Hokanson, Angelo Ippolito, Reuben Kadish, Wolf Kahn, David Lund, John Opper, Gabor Peterdi, Attilio Salemme, David Saunders, Mark Tansey, Sandy Walker, Elbert Weinberg.

2412. HARM BOUCKAERT GALLERY
100 Hudson St 10010
(212) 925–6239 Daily 10–5
Dir: Max Coyer
Post-modern abstraction; painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Bang, Nancy Brett, Peter Brown, Max Coyer, Garrick Dolberg, Alex McFarlane.

Other artists represented:
Peter Ambrose, Stewart Hitch.

2413. BOWERY GALLERY
121 Wooster St 10012
(212) 226–9543 Tue–Sun 12–6
Dir: Carolyn Virgil
Non-profit cooperative; figurative painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Temma Bell, Joseph Bilger, Rodney Bogner, David D'Allesandro, Barbara Goodstein, Deborah Kahn, Hearne Pardee, Rachel Siporin, Wendy Sussman, Peggy Wood.

Other artists represented:
Rita Baragona, Diana Cabouli, Simon Carr, Judy Cutler, Susan Daykin, Stephanie DeManuelle, Esti Dunow, Tina Feingold, William Foust, Ron Graff, Barbara Grossman, Anthony Martino, Patty McManus, Naomi Nemtzow, Marylou Schuck, June Silverberg, Patricia Stone, Carolyn Virgil, John Zeaman.

2414. BARBARA BRAATHEN
76 Duane St 10017
(212) 732–4029
Dir: Barbara Braathen
Contemporary painting, sculpture, and installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Grass.

Other artists represented:
Colette, Donald Lipski.

2415. DAMON BRANDT
45 Bond St 10012
(212) 475–2224
Dir: Damon Brandt
Drawings by emerging American and European artists.

2416. BREWSTER GALLERY
41 W 57th St 10019
(212) 980–1975 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Jerry Brewster
Exhibits and publishes contemporary drawings, paintings, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Francisco Zuñiga*.

Other artists represented:
Branco Bahunek, Leonora Carrington, Paul Kor, Harry McCormick, Ira Moscowitz.

2417. HAL BROMM GALLERY
90 W Broadway 10007
(212) 732–6196 Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Hal Bromm
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roger Cutforth, Alan Kikuchi-Yngojo, Terry Rosenberg, Livio Saganic, Frank Young.

Other artists represented:
Katharine T. Carter, Rosemarie Castoro, Roseanne Generalli, Jody Pinto.

2418. DIANE BROWN GALLERY
100 Greene St 10012
Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Diane Brown
Contemporary art, emphasizing sculpture.

2419. ALDIS BROWNE FINE ARTS
1018 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772–6222 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–5
Dir: Saralinda Bernstein
19th-20th-century prints and related works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Edgar Chahine, Edvard Munch.

2420. BRUTON GALLERY
245 E 87th St 10028
(212) 860–4590 By appt
Dir: Michael Le Marchant/Jay S. Cantor
19th- and 20th-century French and European sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Antoine Bourdelle, Stephan Buxin, Jean-Baptiste Carpeaux, Albert Carrier-Belleuse, Jules Dalou, Aristide Maillol, Auguste Rodin, Robert Wlerick.

2421. GABRIELLE BRYERS GALLERY
111 Greene St 10012
(212) 925–8058 Tue–Fri 11–5, Sat 11–6
Dir: Gabrielle Bryers
Paintings, light boxes, wall constructions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kate Augenblick, Colette, Tomoo Hoshino, Tom Kenny, Loren Munk, Bob Smith.

Other artists represented:
Chris Dermit, Rainer Gross, Serge Seckler.

2422. BUECKER & HARPSICHORDS
465 W Broadway 10012
(212) 260–3480
Dir: Robert Buecker
New York art and art history exhibitions.

2423. SUSAN CALDWELL
383 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966–6500 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Susan H. Caldwell
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carl Andre, Nancy Giesman, Leon Golub, Susan Michod, Graham Nickson*, Doug Ohlson*, Michelle Stuart.

Other artists represented:
Frances Barth, Jane Couch, Craig Langager, Ellen Lanyon, Gayil Nalls, Joanna Pousette-Dart, Stuart Shedletsky, Paolo Soleri.

2424. CARLTON GALLERY
52 E 81st St 10028
(212) 288–6270 By appt
Dir: Carlton Willers
20th-century American and European art; 19th- and 20th-century photographs.

2425. CARLYLE ART GALLERY
16 E 78th St 10021
(212) 535–9443 Sun–Fri 10–5
Dir: Eta R. Sait
Contemporary graphics, paintings.

2426. FRANK CARO GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 753–2166 Tue–Sat 9–4:30
Dir: Francis Caro
Ancient art of China, India and Southeast Asia.

2427. CARUS GALLERY
872 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 879–4660 Tue–Sat 11–5
Dir: Dorothea Carus
German Expressionists, Russian and European Avant Garde 1910 to 1930.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Felix Del Marle*.

Other artists represented:
Kurt Schwitters.

2428. CASTELLI FEIGEN CORCORAN
1020 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734–5505 Sep–May Tue–Sat 10–6; Jun–Aug Mon–Fri 10–6
Dir: Christina Rassier
American 20th-century and contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Cornell*, Yves Klein, James Rosenquist, Edward Ruscha, Charles Simonds.

2429. LEO CASTELLI GALLERY
142 Greene St 10012
(212) 431–6279 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Leo Castelli
Painting, drawings, and sculpture by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bruce Nauman, Salvatore Scarpitta, Richard Serra, Andy Warhol.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, Robert Barry, Lee Bontecou, John Chamberlain, Hanne Darboven, Jan Dibbets, Dan Flavin, Laura Grisi, Douglas Huebler, Jasper Johns, Donald Judd, Ellsworth Kelly, Joseph Kosuth, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Morris, Claes Oldenburg, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Edward Ruscha, Keith Sonnier, Frank Stella, Cy Twombly, Paul Waldman, Lawrence Weiner.

2430. LEO CASTELLI GALLERY
420 W Broadway 10012
(212) 431–5160 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Leo Castelli
Contemporary paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

---

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Chamberlain, David Salle, Frank Stella, Mia Westerlund-Roosen.

Other artists represented:
Richard Artschwager, Robert Barry, Lee Bontecou, Sandro Chia, Nassos Daphnis, Hanne Darboven, Jan Dibbets, Dan Flavin, Gerard Garouste, Laura Grisi, Douglas Huebler, Jasper Johns, Cletus Johnson, Donald Judd, Ellsworth Kelly, Joseph Kosuth, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Morris, Bruce Nauman, Claes Oldenburg, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Edward Ruscha, Salvatore Scarpitta, Julian Schnabel, Richard Serra, Keith Sonnier, Cy Twombly, Paul Waldman, Andy Warhol, Lawrence Weiner.

2431. CASTELLI GRAPHICS
4 E 77th St 10021
(212) 288-3202 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Robert Monk
Prints and photographs by contemporary American artists.

Other artists represented:
Lewis Baltz, Robert Combas, John Gutmann, David Hockney, Jasper Johns, Ellsworth Kelly, Mary Ellen Mark, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, David Salle, Julian Schnabel, Richard Serra, Sandy Skoglund, Eve Sonneman, Frank Stella, Cy Twombly, Andy Warhol.

2432. CAVANAUGH GALLERY
510 E 86th St 10028
(212) 737-4487 By appt
Dir: Joan Cavanaugh
International gallery exhibiting the original works of illustrators of children's books.

Other artists represented:
Joan Alpers, Etienne Delessert, Tomie dePaola, Diane Dillon, Leo Dillon, Lilo Fromm, Yoshiko Fujiwara, Paul Goble, Diane Goode, Devis Grebu, Michael Hague, Anita Lobel, Josef Palecek, David Palladini, Fulvio Testa, Don Wood, Ed Young, Stepan Zavrel.

2433. CAYMAN GALLERY
381 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966-6699 Tue-Sun 11-6
Dir: Nilda Peraza
Contemporary Latin-American art, performance and photography.

Other artists represented:
Raul Acero, Victor Amador, Juan Bujan, Maritza Davila, Efrain De Jesus, Angel Rodriguez Diaz, Gilberto Lopez Espina, Laura Marquez, Domingo Oliveras, Pepon Osorio, Peter Schira.

2434. CDS
13 E 75th St 10021
(212) 772-9555 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Clara Diament Sujo
Contemporary art of the Americas.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Armando Morales*, Renate Ponsold*, Hedda Sterne*, Adja Yunkers*.

Other artists represented:
Antonio Barrera, Luis Benedit, Jacobo Borges, Vera Klement, Roxy Marsen, Leonard McComb, Warren Rohrer, Stanley Spencer.

2435. CENTER FOR INTER-AMERICAN RELATIONS
680 Park Ave at 68th St 10021
(212) 249-8950 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: John Stringer
Exhibitions of Pre-Columbian, colonial, and contemporary arts; painting, sculpture, photography, decorative arts of Latin America and Canada.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marilyn Bridges, Marius de Zayas*, David Milne*.

Other artists represented:
Luis Benedit, Carlos Merida, Cesar Paternosto.

2436. CENTRAL HALL ARTISTS
386 W Broadway, 4th floor 10012
(212) 226-9215 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Josely Carvalho
Women artists' cooperative.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Liz Birmingham, Josely Carvalho, Coco Gordon, Betty Holliday, Alice Whitman Leeds, Ina Lieberman, Katinka Mann, Rachel Maurer, Barbara Roux, Judith Lipman Schecter, Katie Seiden, Ann Shore.

Other artists represented:
Marjorie Apter-McKevitt, Alicia Creus, Connie Diamond, Elizabeth Drucker, Constance Schwartz, Pat Megha Zukas.

2437. CHILDS GALLERY
956 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-6606 Sep-May Tue-Sat 11-6; Jun, Jul Tue-Fri 11-6
Dir: Angela Noel
See Boston, MA listing.

2438. JUDITH CHRISTIAN GALLERY
110 Greene St 10012
(212) 431-8601 Sat 11-6; By appt
Dir: Judith Christian/John Christian
Contemporary art by California artists.

Other artists represented:
James Byrd, Amaranth Ehrenhalt, Laura Elliott, Freddie Fong, Kathy Gura, Peter Kitchell, Peter Lodato, Philip Michelson, Andrew Watel, Susan Weil.

2439. CHRISTIE'S CONTEMPORARY ART
799 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 535-4422 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Myles Cooke
Prints and original sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lynn Chadwick, David Hockney, Joan Miró, Henry Moore, Victor Pasmore.

Other artists represented:
Anthony Benjamin, Graham Clarke, Tully Crook, Hamilton Fraser, Derrick Greaves, Phil Greenwood, Jeremy King, Linda Le Kinff, Michael Patter, Aldo Salvadori, Bob Sanders, Norman Stevens, David Suff, Julian Trevelyan, Donald Wilkinson, Ricardo Wolfson.

2440. LORI CIANCAGLINI FINE ART
328 W 76 St 10023
(212) 724-3145 By appt
Dir: Lori Ciancaglini
19th- and 20th-century works of art.

2441. CITY GALLERY
2 Columbus Circle 10019
(212) 974-1150 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Ellen Liman
Midtown Manhattan showcase for non-profit community-based arts organizations throughout New York City.

2442. CIVILIAN WARFARE
526 E 11th St 10009
(212) 475-7498
Dir: D. Savard/A. Barrows

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mike Biolo, Bronson Eden, Greer Lankton, Beatricia Sagar, Dean Savard, Huck Snyder, Michael Sypolski, "3 Teens Kill 4", David Wojnarowicz, Rhonda Zwillinger.

2443. CLAYWORKS
4 Great Jones St 10012
(212) 673-7493 Tue-Sat 1-5
Dir: James Walsh
Visiting artists' workshop for artists new to the ceramic medium.

Other artists represented:
Walter Darby Bannard, Lidya Buzio, Sherron Francis, Sheila Girling, Mary Ann Harman, Joel Perlman, Peter Reginato, Kikuo Saito, Joyce Weinstein, James Wolfe.

2444. A CLEAN, WELL-LIGHTED PLACE
363 Bleecker St 10014
(212) 255-3656 Tue-Sat 12-7, Sun 1-5
Dir: Thomas Martinelli
Contemporary prints and works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paula Clendenin, Thom De Jong, Masaaki Noda, Robert Schmid, Mary Teichman.

Other artists represented:
Will Barnet, Lenore Fried, Maria Henle, Wil Klaassen, Nels Oestreich, Charles Roy Purcell, Lynn Shaler, Anne Silber, Raphael Soyer.

2445. THE CLOISTERS
Fort Tryon Park 10040
(212) 923-3700 Mon-Sat 10-4:45, Sun 1-4:45
Dir: William D. Wixom
Medieval branch of The Metropolitan Museum of Art; tapestries, ivories, illuminated manuscripts, stained glass, panel paintings, sculpture, metalwork.

2446. COLNAGHI
26 E 80th St 10021
(212) 772-2266
Dir: Franco Zangrilli
19th- and 20th-century paintings and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pompeo Batoni*.

2447. COMMUNITY GALLERY
30 E 35th St 10016
(212) 683-4988 Mon-Sat 1-6, Sun 1-4
Dir: D. Meyer/A. Atkins
Theme shows; emerging and minority artists.

2448. CONCORD CONTEMPORARY ART
451 Broome St 10013
(212) 925-2994 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Ragland Watkins
Contemporary painting, sculpture, prints, and drawing.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Boyden, Al Calderaro, Stephen Chapin, Blaylock Peppard, Elaine Reichek, Haim Steinbach.

Other artists represented:
John Buck, Judith Linhares, Katherine Sherwood, David Storey.

2449. CONDESO/LAWLER GALLERY
119 W 25th St 10001
(212) 741-2377 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Sue Lawler
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture; publishers of prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sara Armstrong, Richard Carleton, Pat Colville, Tinka Dennenberg, Jacqueline Gourevitch, Elizabeth Harms, Ray Holland, Louise Kruger, Claudia McNulty, Lowel Reilland, Elfi Schuselka, Jonathan Scoville.

Other artists represented:
Dominick Capobianco, Hugo Consuegra, Sydney Drum, Lydia Okumura, Kingsley Parker, Nancy Pierson, Czashka Ross, Guyer Salles, K.N. Thurlbeck, Naomi Waksberg, Paul Wong.

2450. CONTEMPORARY RUSSIAN ART CENTER OF AMERICA
599 Broadway 10012
(212) 431-9148 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Norton T. Dodge/Margarita Tupitsyn
Exhibition of contemporary Russian art and archives.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henry Khudyakov*.

Other artists represented:
Vagrich Bakhchanyan.

2451. CONVERGENCE
484 Broome St 10013
(212) 226-0028
Dir: Don Thomas
Craft; art.

2452. PAULA COOPER GALLERY
155 Wooster St 10012
(212) 674-0766 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Paula Cooper
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, and photography.

Other artists represented:
Carl Andre, Jennifer Bartlett, Lynda Benglis, Jonathan Borofsky, Peter Campus, Robert Grosvenor, Michael Hurson, Sol LeWitt, Elizabeth Murray, Joel Shapiro, Alan Shields, Jackie Winsor.

2453. COOPER-HEWITT MUSEUM, THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION'S NATIONAL MUSEUM OF DESIGN
5th Ave at 91st St 10028
(212) 860-6868 Tue 10-9, Wed-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Lisa Taylor
Smithsonian Institution; 3000 years of historic and contemporary design, changing exhibitions.

2454. CORDIER & EKSTROM
417 E 75th St 10021
(212) 988-8857 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Arne H. Ekstrom
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Varujan Boghosian*, Margaret Israel*, Sandra Mackintosh, Howard Newman*.

Other artists represented:
Romare Bearden, Gillian Bradshaw-Smith, Michael Flanagan, Alan Siegel, Herk Van Tongeren.

2455. CORPORATE ART DIRECTIONS
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 355-5370 Mon-Fri 9:30-5, Sat 12-5
Dir: Betty Levin
Art consultants with group shows in all mediums.

2456. PIERO CORSINI
162 E 63rd St 10021
(212) 371-6455 By appt
Dir: Beau Wade
13th-18th-century Italian painting; objets d'art.

2457. CHARLES COWLES GALLERY
420 W Broadway 10012
(212) 925-3500 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Charles Cowles
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dennis Ashbaugh, Dale Chihuly, Gene Davis, Michael Lucero, Manuel Neri, Italo Scanga.

Other artists represented:
David Bates, Mark Boyle, Laddie John Dill, Joe Goode, Tom Holland, Gerald Incandela, Patrick Ireland, Ronnie Landfield, Nino Longobardi, Ron Nagle, Nathan Oliveira, Alan Saret, Wade Saunders, Michael Todd, Peter Voulkos, Henry Wessel.

2458. CREATIONS GALLERY
60 E 54th St 10022
(212) 832-3090 Mon-Sat 10-7
Dir: Nancy Batsell
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints, and posters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rolland Golden, Maria Lahr*.

Other artists represented:
Salvador Dali, Anthony Nelle, Lorenzo Scaretti, Sidney Schatzky, Nicola Simbari.

2459. CREATIVE TIME
66 W Broadway 10007
(212) 619-1955 Daily 10-5
Dir: Anita Contini
Supports and coordinates creation of art for public spaces.

Other artists represented:
Bill Brand, Bruce Dow, R. Fisher, Jane Greengold, Suzan Pitt, Sal Romano, Ned Smyth, Robert Stackhouse, Taro Suzuki, Warner Wada, Thomas Weaver.

2460. ANDREW CRISPO GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 758-9190 Mon-Fri 11:30-4:30, Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Andrew J. Crispo
Painting and sculpture by 19th- and 20th-century American and European artists; graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Douglas Abdell, Robert Courtright, John Murray, Lowell Nesbitt, Addison Parks.

Other artists represented:
David Finn, O. Louis Guglielmi, Frank Keller, Ellery Kurtz, Hubert Long, Paul Manship, Cynthia Polsky, Charles Seliger.

2461. CRISPO GRAPHICS
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 758-9190 Tue-Fri 11:30-4:30, Sat 10:30-5:30
Contemporary prints.

Other artists represented:
Jon Carsman, Robert Courtright, Lowell Nesbitt.

2462. GEORGE CROMARTIE GALLERY
17 W 20th St 10011
(212) 255-6966 Wed-Sat 2-6; By appt
Dir: George Cromartie
Contemporary American, Canadian, and Eastern European paintings and small edition prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doris Lanier*, Daniel Wnuk.

Other artists represented:
Mary Blade, Stephen Denslow, Charles Miley, Joel Sokolov, Anna Wong.

2463. CROWN POINT PRESS
545 Broadway 10012
(212) 226-5476 By appt
Dir: Karen McCready
Exhibits and publishes contemporary graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Diebenkorn.

Other artists represented:
Vito Acconci, Robert Bechtle, John Cage, Francesco Clemente, Hans Haacke, Robert Kushner, Edward Ruscha, Pat Steir, Wayne Theibaud, David True, William T. Wiley.

2464. MAXWELL DAVIDSON GALLERY
43 E 78th St 10021
(212) 734-6702 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Maxwell Davidson III
French and American art from Impressionism to the present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Haydn Stubbing.

Other artists represented:
Carol Anthony, Deborah Deichler, Tom George, Gary Komarin, Roberto Matta, Scott Prior, George Rickey, Tony Scherman, Jason Stewart.

2465. DAVIS & LANGDALE
746 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 861-2811 Oct-May Tue-Sat 10-5; Jun-Sep Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Leroy Davis
18th-20th-century American and British art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Albert Bierstadt*, Robert M. Kulicke, Michael Langenstein, Albert York*.

Other artists represented:
Lennart Anderson, Addie Herder, Gwen John, Aaron Shikler.

2466. DAVLYN GALLERY
975 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 979-2075 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Berta Katz
19th- and 20th-century European painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali, Max Ernst, Wassily Kandinsky, Henri Matisse, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Pierre Auguste Renoir.

2467. TIBOR DE NAGY GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 421-3780 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Lauriston Marshall
Contemporary representational and non-representational art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Bowling, Stanley Boxer, Richard Chiriani, Stephanie Kirschen Cole, Thom Cooney Crawford, Maurice Golubov, Robert Goodnough, Harold Gregor, Andrew Hudson, Richard Kalina, Ida Lorenzten, Rafael Mahdavi, Dan Marshall, George Nick, Archie Rand, Leatrice Rose.

Other artists represented:
Ken Bowman, Rosemarie Castoro, Ray Ciarrochi, Chuck Forsman, Ken Greenleaf, Chuck Magistro, Forrest Moses, Yvonne Muller, Tony Robbin, William Schwedler, Joe Shannon, Horacio Torres, Nancy Wissemann-Widrig.

2468. JOANNA DEAN
800-A 5th Ave 10021
(212) 308-3335 Mon-Sat 11-6
Dir: Joanna Dean
20th-century realism.

Other artists represented:
Vincent Arcilesi, Richard Hall, William Haney, Donald Perlis, Radovan Trnavac-Mića.

2469. MARISA DEL RE GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 688-1843 Sep-May Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30; Jun-Jul Mon-Fri 10-5:30
Dir: Marisa del Re
American Abstract Expressionism; European surreal and abstract works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jose Luis Cuevas*, Antoni Tapies*.

Other artists represented:
Jeffrey Maron, Andre Masson, Richard Pousette-Dart, George Tooker.

2470. DELAHUNTY
291 Church St 10013
(212) 226-2519 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Karen Amiel
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Fishman, Suzan Pitt, Dan Rizzie.

Other artists represented:
Jo Ann Callis, Clyde Connell, Jane Dickson, George LeGrady, Mark McFadden, Nick Nicosia, Italo Scanga, James Surls, Danny Williams.

2471. DEPARTURE
1310 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 860-0748 Mon-Sat 11-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: David Morgan/Tony George
Contemporary American crafts.

Other artists represented:
Mary Bookman, Vernon Brejcha, Joy Brown, Candone, Viorica Colpacci, Dorothy Dunitz, Mark Forman, Albert Green, Ken Hendry, Chuck Hindes, Lucinda Malin, Robert Martens, Jeff Oestreich, Tom Philabaum, Robert Pietruszewski, Ruth Schiffer, Gary Smith, Debra Trager, Michele Tuegel, Dale Zhuetlin.

2472. SID DEUTSCH GALLERY
20 W 57th St 10019
(212) 765-4722 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Sid Deutsch
Early-20th-century American art.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Jane Armstrong, Rosemary Beck, Arthur B. Carles, Richard Corozine, Larry Day, George Deem, Mel Edwards, Stanley Friedman, Alan Gussow, Peter Homitsky, Jacob Kainen, Edmund Lewandowski, Stanley Lewis, Kevin MacDonald, Roger Mack, Ralph Mayer, Jan Sawka, Stephen Schultz, Esphir Slobodkina, James Wolfe.

2473. DIA ART FOUNDATION
141 Wooster St 10012
(212) 473-8072 Tue-Sat 11-6
Permanent exhibition: "New York Earth Room" by Walter De Maria.

*see catalog index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2474. DIA ART FOUNDATION
77 Wooster St 10012
(212) 254-1414 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Donna M. DeSalvo
Exhibition of works from the foundation's permanent collection of contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barnett Newman.

2475. DIA ART FOUNDATION
67 Vestry St 10013
(212) 925-9009 Tue-Sat 12-6
Permanent exhibition: sculpture by John Chamberlain.

2476. DIA ART FOUNDATION
393 W Broadway 10012
(212) 473-8072 Tue-Sat 11-6
Permanent exhibition: "Broken Kilometer" by Walter De Maria.

2477. DIA ART FOUNDATION
6 Harrison St 10013
(212) 925-8270 Tue-Sat
Dir: La Monte Young/Marian Zazeela
Concerts; sound and light environments; extended exhibitions, non-profit.

Other artists represented:
Pandit Pran Nath, La Monte Young, Marian Zazeela.

2478. MARTIN DIAMOND FINE ARTS
1014 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 988-3600 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Martin Diamond
American modernists of abstract movement, 1910-1950.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Blanche Lazzell.

Other artists represented:
Emil Bisttram, Arthur N. Christie, Eleanor De Laittre, Werner Drewes, Elsie Driggs, Herzl Emanuel, Ed Garman, Dwinell Grant, James Guy, Hananiah Harari, William Lumpkins, Louis Schanker, John Sennhauser, John Von Wicht, Vaclav Vytlacil, Fred J. Whiteman, Beatrice Wood, Janet Young.

2479. JIM DIAZ GALLERY
242 W 16th St 10011
(212) 620-9093 Tue-Fri 2-7; Sat, Sun 12-8
Dir: Jim Diaz
Art exhibitions; theater, performance art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gerald Byerley, Linda Cummins, Marge Ellsworth, Harry Hajian, Steve Morris.

2480. LEONARDA DIMAURO
49 E 96th St 10028
(212) 831-2999 Sep-Jun Tue-Sat 12:30-5
Dir: Leonarda DiMauro
Contemporary American, Italian paintings, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Claude Carone.

2481. TERRY DINTENFASS
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581-2268 Sep-May, Tue-Sat 10-5:30; Jun-Aug, Mon-Fri 11-5
Dir: Bobbie Goldberg/Brent Wiggans
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnet, Herbert Katzman, William King, Ronald Markman, Donald Sandstrom.

Other artists represented:
Samuel Adler, Hyman Bloom, Peter Blume, Arthur Dove, Toni Dove, Antonio Frasconi, Suzi Gablik, Sidney Goodman, Robert Gwathmey, John Himmelfarb, Frances Hynes, Edward Koren, Jacob Lawrence, Richard Merkin, Robert Andrew Parker, Paul Suttman, Carl Nicholas Titolo, Harold Tovish, Kim Whanki.

2482. THEODORE B. DONSON
38 E 57th St 10022
(212) 355-6970 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Theodore B. Donson
Old master and modern prints: 1450-1950.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Blake, Francisco Goya Y Lucientes, Rembrandt, Martin Schongauer*.

Other artists represented:
James Ensor, Jean-Emile Laboureur.

2483. FRED DORFMAN
831 Broadway 10003
(212) 473-2017 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Fred Dorfman
Contemporary works on paper, color photography, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Georgette Battle, Bruce Bleach, Cliff Condak, Michael de Camp, Jimmy De Sana, Rochelle Feinstein, Oluf Graveson, Helene Guetary, Gordon Hart, Steve Horan, Douglas Kent, Sybil Kleinrock, Deborah Kogan, Paul Maxwell, Antonio Peticov, Rupert Smith, Todd Stone.

2484. DORSKY GALLERIES
58 W 58th St 10019
(212) 838-3423 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Samuel Dorsky
Contemporary European, American painting, sculpture, prints.

Other artists represented:
Walter Gaudnek, Howard Gross, Richard Hunt, Riko Mikeska, Gerald Scheck, Chaim Tabak, Angelo Titonel, Hank Virgona, Rudolph Zallinger.

2485. DRAWING CENTER
137 Greene St 10012
(212) 982-5266 Mon-Sat 11-6, Wed 11-8
Dir: Martha Beck
Non-profit; drawing exhibitions, classes, workshops.

2486. PAUL DREY GALLERY
11 E 57 St 10022
(212) 753-2551 By appt
Dir: Elizabeth M. Drey
Old master paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

2487. DYANSEN 57
11 E 57th St 10022
(212) 489-7830 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Harris Shapiro
Erté sculpture collection.

Other artists represented:
Miguel Berrocal, Francois Cloutier, Erté, Bruno Lucchesi, Patrick Nagel.

2488. DYANSEN GALLERY
122 Spring St 10012
(212) 226-3384 Tue-Sat 11-6, Sun 1-6
Dir: Betty Greenberg
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Miguel Berrocal, Peter Bradley, Francois Cloutier, Erté, Bruno Lucchesi, Moser.

2489. EARTHWORKS GALLERY
255 E 74th St 10021
(212) 650-9337 Tue, Thu 12-8; Wed 12-7; Fri, Sat 12-6
Dir: Margaret Simonds
Contemporary American pottery in stoneware, porcelain, and raku.

Other artists represented:
Jane Arnold, Richard DeLaurentis, Arlene Fields, Robin Katz, Jerry Marshall, Susan Scher, Margaret Simonds, Jonathan Zamet.

2490. G.W. EINSTEIN
243 E 82nd St 10028
(212) 628-8782 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Gilbert W. Einstein
Contemporary American painting, prints, and photographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mel Pekarsky, Lucy Sallick, Melanie Wygonik.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Cornell, Lawrence Faden, Daniel Morper, Linda Plotkin, Sylvia Sleigh, Jeanette Sloan, Mary Jean Waid.

Goddess with attendant, Qing Dynasty, China; Missoula Mus. of Fine Arts, Mont. (July-Sep., 1982).

2491. ELEMENTS GALLERY
90 Hudson St 10013
(212) 226-5910 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Kathryn C. Eddy
Contemporary American crafts: clay, wood, glass, metal, fiber.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Boyden, Andrea Gill, Tim Moore, Ed Moulthrop, Paul Soldner, Gary Trentham.

Other artists represented:
Jane Ford Aebersold, James Bassler, Kris Cox, David Crane, Robert Forbes, Jane Ford, Margaret Ford, Douglas Fuchs, John Garrett, Richard Hirsch, Curtis Hoard, Mark Lindquist, Melvin Lindquist, Susan Lyman, Roberta Marks, Judy McKie, Donna Polseno, Ted Randall, Nancy Selvin, Sylvia Seventy, Carol Shaw-Sutton, Neil Tetkowski.

2492. ROBERT ELKON GALLERY
1063 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 535-3940 Tue-Sat 10-5:45
Dir: Robert Elkon
20th-century and contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tony Delap, Bernard Pages, William Ridenhour, William Tucker, John Wesley.

Other artists represented:
Charles Arnoldi, Garth Evans, Nigel Hall, W. Koenigstein, Jean-Pierre Pericaud, David Roth, Kimber Smith.

2493. PHYLLIS ELLIOT GALLERY
524 E 20th St 10009
(212) 260-4576 Mon-Sat By appt
Dir: Phyllis Elliot
Posters; 1900-1940's.

Other artists represented:
Louis Icart, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

2494. ANDRE EMMERICH GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 752-0124 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Nathan Kolodner
Contemporary art and Classical antiquities.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stanley Boxer*, Anthony Caro*, Sam Francis*, Helen Frankenthaler*, Robert Goodnough*, Al Held*, David Hockney*, Hans Hofmann*, Morris Louis*, John McLaughlin*, Kenneth Noland*, Beverly Pepper*, Joel Perlman*, Lawrence Poons*, Michael Steiner*, Sylvia Stone*.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Other artists represented:
Raphael Benazzi, Jack Bush, William Conlon, Burgoyne Diller, Piero Dorazio, Arthur Gibbons, John Graham, Alexander Liberman, Ben Nicholson, Jules Olitski, Anne Ryan, Anne Truitt.

2495. ENGEL
825 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-1057 Mon-Fri 10:30-5:30, Sun 12-5
Dir: Miriam Hacohen
Modern Israeli and European paintings and multiples.

2496. AMOS ENO GALLERY
101 Wooster St 10023
(212) 226-5342 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Jan Moss
Contemporary painting, sculpture, collage, mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Miriam Brofsky, Constance Dodge, Suellen Glashausser, James Green, Victor Herstein, Madeleine Kaufman, Lori Lawrence, Shelly Lependorf, Peter Marcalus, Emily Nixon, José Presman.

Other artists represented:
Erica Bogin, Joanne Segal Brandford, Phyllis Dukes, Michael David Eastman, Diane Fitzgerald, Peter Leyh, Jane McClintock, Molly Moskowitz, Gary Rauchbach, Joyce Sills, Elisabeth Munro Smith, Walter Swales.

2497. LYNN G. EPSTEEN
10021
(212) 753-2408 By appt
Dir: Lynn G. Epsteen
Impressionist, Post-Impressionist, 20th-century European art.

Other artists represented:
Alberto Giacometti, Wassily Kandinsky, Henri Matisse, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso.

2498. ERIC GALLERIES
61 E 57th St 10022
(212) 371-9270 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Francoise Eric
Contemporary French and American artists; Impressionists and Post-Impressionists.

Other artists represented:
Duane Alt, Paul Anderbouhr, Paul Braudey, Ralph Gironda, Claude Grosperrin, KASIA, Jan Kasprzycki, Jack Lubin, Peter Todd Mitchell, Jean Monneret, Joseph Muslin, Jean Peltier, Christopher Sanders, Robert Savary, Albert Sharp, Marko Stupar, Bernardino Toppi, Denise Travers-Poulain,, Jean Venitien, Jacques Vermont.

2499. ERICSON GALLERY
23 E 74th St 10021
(212) 737-6155 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Takis Efstathiou
Abstract contemporary works on paper, collages, constructions, canvas, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Anastasi, Dove Bradshaw, Manette Carter, Jean-Louis Espilit, Hans Hinterreiter*, Clayton Mitropoulos, Edith Newhall, Robert Quijada, Douglas Vogel.

Other artists represented:
Dionisis, Stan Gregory, Bruce Halpin, Prich Matthews, Stamos, Josef Staub, Christopher White.

2500. ROSA ESMAN GALLERY
(212) 421-9490 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Nancy Hoyt
Contemporary, Russian avant-garde and American abstractionist works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Bellany, Ed Kerns, Frantisek Kupka, Liz Mitty, Thomas Rose, Stanley Tigerman.

Other artists represented:
Jean Feinberg, Eileen Gray, Don Hazlitt, Patricia Johanson, Louis Kahn, Jan Muller, Thomas Nozkowski, Hanne Tierney.

2501. ELEANOR ETTINGER INC.
155 6th Ave 10013
(212) 807-7607 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Eleanor Ettinger
Contemporary lithographs and paintings.

Other artists represented:
Bruce Bomberger, André Gisson, Gerrit Greve, Burt Groedel, Geoffrey Holder, Manes Lichtenberg, Ljubomir Milinkov, Alice Neel, Norman Rockwell, Adolf Sehring.

2502. FEDELÉ FINE ARTS
42 E 57 St 10022
(212) 371-0204 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Frank Fedelé
Paintings, graphics, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
R. J. Christensen.

Other artists represented:
Carol Anthony, Siri Berg, Rafael Bogarin, John Russell Clift, Salvador Dali, Nassos Daphnis, Jan DeRuth, Johannes Eidt, Budd Hopkins, Risaburo Kimura, Neil Korpi, Mashiko, Helen Rundell, Raffaela Schrimer, Arthur Secunda, Alain Soucasse, Tom Vincent.

2503. RICHARD L. FEIGEN AND CO
900 Park Ave 10021
(212) 628-0700 Mon-Fri 9-6
Dir: Richard L. Feigen
15th-20th-century European and American artists.

2504. RONALD FELDMAN FINE ARTS
31 Mercer St 10013
(212) 226-3232 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Frayda Feldman/Ronald Feldman
19th- and 20th-century American and European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ida Applebroog, Arakawa, Conrad Atkinson, Joseph Beuys, Helen Mayer Harrison, Newton Harrison, Komar/Melamid, Andy Warhol*.

Other artists represented:
Vincenzo Agnetti, Eleanor Antin, Chris Burden, Douglas Davis, Jud Fine, Terry Fox, Buckminster Fuller, Margaret Harrison, Piotr Kowalski, Less Levine, Edwin Schlossberg, Thomas Shannon, Todd Siler, SITE, Hannah Wilke.

2505. 55 MERCER
55 Mercer St 10013
(212) 226-8513 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Elfi Schuselka
Cooperative; experimental large-scale work.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Brown, D. Capobianco, Tom Clancy, Joan Gardner, Gloria Greenberg, Jane Handzel, Margo Herr, Diane Karol, Tom Nozkowski, Robert Porter, Joyce Robins, Elfi Schuselka, Carol Steen, Grace Bakst Wapner, Jerilea Zempel.

Other artists represented:
Kathleen Armstrong, Marilyn Giersbach, Fred Gutzeit, Ethelyn Honig, Harry Kramer, Julius Tobias.

2506. DAVID FINDLAY GALLERIES
984 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 249-2909 Daily 10-5
Dir: H. Lindsay Findlay
French paintings, sculpture, graphics.

Other artists represented:
Tadashi Asoma, Joachim Berthold, Gustav Bolin, Pierre Boncompain, Andre Brasilier, Maurice Brianchon, Bernard Cathelin, Jules Cavailles, Alexandre Garbell, Gabriel Godard, Pierre Lesieur, Andre Minaux, Roger Muhl, Lucinda Parker, Wally Peets, Alice Phillips, Peter Poskas, John Register, Joanne Syrop, James Twitty, Donald Roller Wilson.

2508. DAVID FINDLAY JR
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 486-7660
Dir: David Findlay, Jr.
19th-century and contemporary American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Moser, Philip Mullen.

Other artists represented:
Adele Alsop, Daniel Lang, Richard Pitts, Peter Poskas, Bill Sullivan, Michael Tilmus, Marguerite Walsh.

2509. PETER FINDLAY
1001 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-8660 Mon-Fri 9:30-6
Dir: Peter Findlay
French 19th- and 20th-century paintings and drawings.

2507. WALLY FINDLAY GALLERIES, NY
17 E 57th St 10022
(212) 421-5390 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: James R. Borynack
French Impressionists; Post-Impressionists; American, Chinese, and European contemporary art; primitive painters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Zita Davisson*, Loren Dunlap*.

Other artists represented:
George Elmer Brown, Jean-Pierre Cassigneul, Chen Dan Qing, Chen Yi Fei, Jean Dufy, Louis Fabien, Bernard Gantner, Claude Gaveau, Alice Geddes-Woodward, Joan Hagen, André Hambourg, David Holmes, Henri Matisse, Fred McDuff, Zvonimir Mihanovic, Duncan Pitney, Barbara Santa Coloma, Gaston Sebire, Brad Shoemaker, Sally Spofford, Richard D. Stark, André Vignoles.

2510. FIRST STREET GALLERY
386 W Broadway 10012
(212) 226-9011 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Camille Eskell
Cooperative; realist paintings, graphics, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Salley Benton, Deborah Clearman, Camille Eskell, Pearl Rosen, David Smith, Marge Trauerman, Anna Goth Werner, Lisa Zwerling.

Other artists represented:
Fred Badalamenti, Peter Carella, Ronnie Carson, Marcia Clark, Bill Creevy, Dominic Cretara, Jeanne Duval, Kathryn Freeman, Wendy Gittler, Gary Godbee, Fran Hodes, Penny Kronengold, Rallou Malliarakis, Mary Napolitano, Robert Neffson, Marianne Perry, Leonard Petrillo, Alan Petrulis, Ellen Piccolo, Edward Pramuk, Henry Raleigh, Margot Rubin, Eric Sparre.

2511. FISCHBACH GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 759-2345 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: A. Aladar Marberger
Contemporary American realism.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leigh Behnke, Willard Dixon, Lois Dodd, Maurice Grosser, Nancy Hagin, Peter Loftus, Elizabeth Osborne, Susan Shatter.

Other artists represented:
Neil Blaine, John Button, Arthur Cady, Jane Freilicher, Ian Hornak, Herman Rose, Jane Wilson.

2512. FITCH-FEBVREL GALLERY
5 E 57th St 10022
(212) 688-8522 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Andrew Fitch
Prints and drawings of the 19th and 20th centuries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Erik Desmazières*, Friedrich Meckseper.

Other artists represented:
Rodolphe Bresdin, M. C. Escher, Max Klinger, Louis LeGrand, Philippe Mohlitz, Gunnar Norman, Odilon Redon, Manuel Robbe.

*see catalog index

2513. 537 ARTWORKS
537 Broadway, 2nd Floor 10012
(212) 925-7651 By appt
Dir: Emily Harvey
Contemporary French and American works on paper, paintings, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Franklin Drake, Jean Dupuy, Leya Evelyn, Jacques Halbert, Patrick Hughes, Mollyne Karnofsky, Alison Knowles, Gordon Mansell, Leslie Schiff, John Stewart.

2514. 49TH PARALLEL/49° PARALLÈLE
Centre for Contemporary Canadian Art
420 W Broadway 10012
(212) 925-8349 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Guy Plamondon/Robert Handforth
Non-profit; contemporary Canadian painting, photography and installations; video screenings and performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Campbell, Melvin Charney, John Clark, Elizabeth Ewart, John Greer, Noel Harding, Peter Hill, Sandra Meigs, Bill Vazan.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Boogaerts, Sorel Cohen, Wendy Knox-Leet, Roland Poulen, Michael Snow, David Thauberger, Irene Whittone.

2515. FORUM GALLERY
1018 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-7666 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Bella Fishko
American 20th-century figurative art.

Other artists represented:
Carroll Cloar, Gregory Gillespie, David Levine, Honore Sharrer, Raphael Soyer, Max Weber.

2516. FOTO GALLERY
492 Broome St 10013
(212) 925-5612 Wed-Sat 1-6
Dir: Alex Coleman
Contemporary, experimental photographs.

Other artists represented:
Yura Adams, Ruffin Cooper, Rusty Culp, Katherine Fishman, Flo Fox, Peter Glendinning, Kay Kenny, Adal Maldonado, Richard Margolis, Esther Parada, Laura Pettibone, Anita Sagabazarian.

2517. 431 WESTBROADWAY GALLERY
431 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966-2520 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 11-6
Dir: Robbie Ehrlich
Works in all mediums by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Dickson Carroll, Robbie Ehrlich, Ed Evans, Jane Greengold, Daniel Maffia, Hosetsu Ohstuka, Jonathan Perlowsky.

2518. XAVIER FOURCADE
36 E 75th St 10021
(212) 535-3980 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Xavier Fourcade
19th- and 20th-century contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tony Berlant, Willem de Kooning, Michael Heizer, Malcolm Morley, Dorothea Rockburne.

Other artists represented:
Georg Baselitz, William Crozier, Raymond Duchamp-Villon, Marcel Duchamp, Arshile Gorky, Raoul Hague, Jan Henle, Joan Mitchell, Henry Moore, Catherine Murphy, Barnett Newman, Bram Van Velde, H. C. Westermann.

2519. 14 SCULPTORS GALLERY
164 Mercer St 10012
(212) 966-5790 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Harold Olejarz
Sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elise Gray.

Other artists represented:
Warren Angle, Allan Cyprys, Ralph Derven, Joan Fine, Esther Grillo, Caroline Hallas, Harold Olejarz, Tim Pollock, Sienna Porta, Susan Reinhart, Anne Richter, Lila Ryan, Steven Steinman, Shaw Stuart, Jill Viney, Walter Weissman.

2520. 4TH STREET PHOTO GALLERY
67 E 4th St 10003
(212) 673-1021 Sun, Tue-Thu 2-8; Fri-Sat 3-10
Dir: Alex Harsley
Exhibitions of work by emerging artists.

Other artists represented:
David Baughan, William Clarke, Carol Cohen, Lewis Koch, Tom McNease, Fred Tuman.

2521. FRANKLIN FURNACE ARCHIVE
112 Franklin St 10013
(212) 925-4671 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Martha Wilson
Archives for published artists' book works, and a showcase for contemporary art exhibitions and performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sonia Balassanian, Guillaume Bijl, Peggy Diggs, Richard McGuire, Susan Mogul, Richard Nonas, Jurgen Partenheimer.

2522. FRAUNCES TAVERN MUSEUM
54 Pearl St 10004
(212) 425-1778 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Christine Miles
Early American prints, paintings, decorative arts and artifacts; period rooms.

2523. ROBERT FREIDUS GALLERY
158 Lafayette St 10013
(212) 925-0113 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Robert Freidus
Contemporary photography, painting, sculpture; publishes photographic portfolios.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jennifer Cecere, Jim Dow, Robert Fichter, Roger Mertin.

Other artists represented:
John Albers, John C. Anderson, Michael Berkowitz, Larry Clark, John Divola, Niki Logis, Stephan McKeown, Saul Ostrow, Bruce Patterson, Richard Pettibone, John Pfahl.

2524. SHERRY FRENCH GALLERY
41 W 57th St 10019
(212) 308-6440 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Jane Sanders

Other artists represented:
Ronni Bogaeu, Elias Friedensohn, Robert Jordan, Jim Martin, Peter Poskas, Les Reker, Frank Schroder.

2525. FRICK COLLECTION
1 E 70th St 10021
(212) 288-0700 Tue-Sat 10-6, Sun 1-6
Dir: Everett Fahy
European paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, porcelains, enamels, furniture, rugs; silver; Renaissance through late-19th-century; American paintings.

2526. ANITA FRIEDMAN FINE ARTS
200 E 71st St 10021
(212) 472-1527
Dir: Anita Friedman
European and American art of the 19th and 20th centuries.

2527. BARRY FRIEDMAN
26 E 82nd St 10028
(212) 794-8950 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Barry Friedman
Pre-Raphaelite and Symbolist painting; figurative realism; Wiener Werkstaette, Art Deco furniture.

2528. ALLAN FRUMKIN GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 757-6655 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 12-5:30
Dir: Allan Frumkin
Contemporary American art, 19th- and 20th-century European drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Luis Cruz Azaceta, William Beckman*, Joan Brown, Philip Pearlstein*, William T. Wiley*.

Other artists represented:
Robert Arneson, Robert Barnes, Jack Beal, Roy De Forest, Robert Hudson, Alfred Leslie, James McGarrell, Peter Saul, Richard Shaw, James Valerio.

2529. F.U.N. GALLERY
254 E 10th St 10009
(212) 473-4606 Wed-Sun 2-6
Dir: Patti Astor/Bill Stellings
Works by emerging artists; graffiti, films.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Michael Basquiat, Fred Brathwaite, Arch Connelly, Futura 2000, Keith Haring, Keily Jenkins, Steven Kramer, Lee Quinones, Kenny Scharf, Dondi White.

2530. GALERIA BONINO
48 Great Jones St 10012
(212) 752-9556 By appt
Dir: Fernanda Bonino
Contemporary Italian, American, and Latin-American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Max Forte.

Other artists represented:
Jorge Alvaro, Mary Bauermeister, Fletcher Benton, Marcelo Bonevardi, Jack Brusca, Alicia Carletti, Pietro Cascella, Jose Antonio Fernandez-Muro, Romulo Maccio, Edgar Negret, Nam June Paik, Marko Spalatin.

2531. GALERIA JOAN PRATS
29 W 57th 10019
(212) 486-6770 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Dorothy. Cater
Contemporary European prints, paintings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Bird, Minna Citron, Julio Gonzalez, Hans Hartung, Brian Nissen, Hernandez Pijuan, Baruj Salinas.

Other artists represented:
Francis Bacon, Rafols Casamada, Jorge Castillo, Eduardo Chillida, Christo, Jose Luis Cuevas, Max Ernst, Josep Guinovart, Wifredo Lam, Conrad Marca-Relli, Joan Miró, Henry Moore, Fritz Scholder, Graham Sutherland, Rufino Tamayo, Antonio Tapies, Francisco Zuniga.

2532. GALERIA VENEZUELA
7 E 51st St 10022
(212) 826-1678 Mon-Fri 9-4
Dir: Marius Sznajderman
Latin American artists; travelling exhibits.

Other artists represented:
Marcello Bonevarbi, Carlos Cerba, Jose Luis Cuevas, Anna Maria Maccei, Brian Nissen, Catalina Parra, Raniros Wlona.

2533. GALERIE MAEGHT, U.S.
10019
(212) 371-9077 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: Arnold Herstand
20th-century European and American paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

Other artists represented:
Arakawa, Balthus, Alexander Calder, Marc Chagall, Alberto Giacometti, Jiri Kolar, Fernand Léger, Joan Miró, Isamu Noguchi, Pablo Picasso, Paul Rotterdam, Saul Steinberg, Antoni Tapies, Gerard Titus-Carmel, Joaquin Torres-Garcia.

2534. GALERIE METROPOL
927 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-7401 Tue-Sat 1-6
Dir: Wolfgang Ritschka
Furniture, crafts, and design by artists of Wiener Werkstaette and Bauhaus.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

2535. GALERIE NAIFS & PRIMITIFS PARIS
172 Prince St 10012
(212) 925-0918
Dir: Dominique Dupont
Naive art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rodolphe Rousseau.

Other artists represented:
Christine Cipriano, Therese Coustry, Fanny Darnat, Patricia De Breuvery, Serge de Filippi, Agnes Emanuelli, Marta Gaspar, Valentin Marcq, Bernard Partiot, Gisele Pierlot, Annie Retivat, Didier Richard, Anne Marie Sabatier, Cellia Saubry, Magdalena Shummer-Fangor, Zofia Szalowska, Monique Valdeneige, Cathe Waller.

2536. GALERIE ST. ETIENNE
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245-6734 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Hildegard Bachert/Jane Kallir
Austrian and German Expressionism and American folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Käthe Kollwitz*.

Other artists represented:
Richard Gerstl, Ludwig Heinrich Jungnickel, Gustav Klimt, Oskar Kokoschka, Alfred Kubin, Eugene Mihaesco, Grandma Moses, Martin Pajeck, Egon Schiele.

2537. GALLERI BELLMAN
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 486-7944 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Roland Augustine
19th-20th-century painting and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edvard Munch*.

Other artists represented:
Charles Hinman, Rodney Ripps, Osvaldo Romberg.

2538. GALLERY 84
30 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581-6000 Daily 11-5
Dir: Harriet Hirshfield
Cooperative; collage, sculpture, painting, wall hangings.

Other artists represented:
Gretl Bauer, Ruth Becker, Doris Botwinick, Marge Bresnick, Ruth Brody, Susan Deutscher, Beatrice Ericson, Cecile Fine, Emil Friedman, Jessie Fuchs, Theodore Gduenchak, Irwin Gross, Eugene Hutner, Doris Lerman, Alfred Lowry, Geoffrey Mawby, George Mesologites, Nina Posnansky, B. Brook Ross, Reba Rottenberg, Eileen Schreiber, Kim Weinraub, Don Werner, J. Arthur Williams.

2539. GALLERY FELICIE
141 E 56th St 10022
(212) 752-7567 Daily 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Felicie Balay
Works by contemporary artists; print publishers; cartoon art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Correale, Ralph Fasanella, Al Hirschfeld, Wayland Moore, Edward Sokol.

Other artists represented:
Cecil Everley, Oliver Johnson, Hedva Ser.

2540. GALLERY #411/12
32 Union Square E 10003
(212) 677-0244 Thu-Sat 1-5
Dir: John W. M. Neely
Works by emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Adele Cohen.

2541. GALLERY HENOCH
80 Wooster St 10012
(212) 966-0303 Tue-Sat 10:30-6, Sun 1-6
Dir: George Henoch Shechtman
Contemporary American realism.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lynn Curlee, Joseph Reboli.

Other artists represented:
Robert Bioner, David Hatfield, DeWitt J. Lobrano, John Loeper, Anthony J. Southcombe, Sharon Sprung, Ann Taylor.

2542. GALLERY MACK
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 582-3606
Dir: Barbara Mack

Other artists represented:
Erwin Binder, Eugene Dobos, Jack Fellows, R. C. Gorman, Doug Hyde, Gary Mauro, Duane Pasco, Amada Pena.

2543. GALLERY NATURE MORTE
204 E 10th St 10003
(212) 420-9544 Thu-Sun 12-6:30
Dir: Peter A. Nagy

Other artists represented:
Michael Byron, David Carrino, Stephanie Frank, Dana Garrett, Madelynn Gingold, Carter Hodgkin, Kevin Larmon, Ginger Levant, Richard Milani, Joel Otterson, Steven Parrino, Mary Agnes Smith, Ada Whitney.

2544. GALLERY 120
120 Lafayette St 10013
(212) 925-4954 Thu-Sun 11-6
Dir: Harry Zirlin
Contemporary figurative art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gregory Crane, David Grossblatt, Carol Heft, Peter Heinemann, Benjamin Martinez, Claire Moore, Leslie Neumann, Peter Schwarzburg.

Other artists represented:
John Bradford, Karen Dean, Yong-Kyung Kim, Richard McBee, Mark Olin, Anthony Siani, Jacob Silberman, Alan Singer.

2545. GALLERY 10
21 Greenwich Ave 10014
(212) 929-9411 Mon-Sat 12-8, Sun 1-6
Dir: Marcia Smith
Contemporary hand-blown art glass, ceramics, wood.

Other artists represented:
Mathew Buechner, Thomas Buechner, James P. Clarke, Giles Gilson, Jackie Greeves, William LeQuire, Robert Levin, John Lewis, Stephen Maslach, Steve Mildwoff, James Nadal, Laney Oxman, Ira Sapir, Sherry Schuster, Drew Smith, Valerie Surjan, George Thiewes.

2546. GALLERY YVES ARMAN
817 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 570-2700 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Yves Arman
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eric Appel, Tony Bechara, Toby Buonagurio, Biff Elrod, Jim Jacobs, Joan Wenzel.

Other artists represented:
Rainer Gross, Yves Klein, Wendy Knox-Leet, Tom Leeson, Algernon Miller, Suzanne Pines, Bob Saltzman, Doug Webb.

2547. GERMANS VAN ECK
420 W Broadway 10012
Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Wouter S. Germans Van Eck
Works in all mediums by emerging artists; rotating collection of 20th-century artists.

2548. HILDE GERST GALLERY
685 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 751-5655 Daily 11-5
Dir: Hilde W. Gerst
French Impressionist, Post-Impressionist; contemporary sculpture, painting, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Philip Castle, Marc Chagall, Jean Dufy, Giles Gorriti, André Lanskoy, Marie Laurencin, Henri Lebasque, E. Matta, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Antonio Sereix, Maurice Utrillo, Maurice Vlaminck.

2549. GETLER/PALL GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581-2724 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Helen R. Pall/Helen Getler
Contemporary painting, drawing, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charlotte Brown, Richard Carboni, Caroline Greenwald, Stephanie Rose.

Other artists represented:
Buckminster Fuller, Daniel Joshua Goldstein, Larry Gray, Manuel Hughes, Tom Levine, Donald Saff, David Shapiro, T.L. Solien, Steven Sorman, James Torlakson.

2550. ADAM L. GIMBEL
15 E 49th St 10022
(212) 940-4176 Mon-Sat 10-6, Thu eve 6-8:30
Dir: David Olenick
Contemporary American and European painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steven Barbash, Paul Brach, Steven Brent, Lewis Bryden, Michael Peter Cain, John Farnsworth, Ernest Garthwaite, Joan Gassisi, Carl Hazlewood, Helen Langfield, Nicholas Maffei, Michael Mulhern, Edith Neff, William Noland, Drewann Rodney, Jaune Quick-To-See Smith, Marjorie L. Stephens, Jim Waid.

Other artists represented:
William Anzalone, Vincent Longo, George McClancy, Elizabeth McMahon, Kate Resek, Carolee Thea.

2551. GIMPEL & WEITZENHOFFER GALLERY
1040 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628-1897 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Joseph Rickards
Contemporary American and European painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Robert Adams, Karel Appel, Milton Avery, Joachim Berthold, Clarence Carter, Robert Cronin, Alan Davie, Niki de Saint Phalle, Judith Dolnick, Enrico Donati, Joseph Glasco, Barbara Hepworth, Paul Jenkins, Lester Johnson, Ida Kohlmeyer, Robert Natkin, Minoru Niizuma, William Scott, Pierre Soulages.

2552. BARBARA GLADSTONE GALLERY
152 Wooster St 10012
(212) 505-8690 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Allan Schwartzman
Contemporary, all mediums; print publishers.

Other artists represented:
Ellen Brooks, Hervé di Rosa, Vernon Fisher, Mike Glier, Jenny Holzer, Anish Kapoor, Bill Komoski, Joyce Kozloff, David Middaugh, John Obuck, Lee Quinones, Miriam Schapiro, Hollis Sigler, Kathleen Thomas, Alan Vega, Bill Woodrow, Robert Younger, Bernd Zimmer.

2553. GLASS GALLERY
315 Central Park W 10025
(212) 787-4704 Wed-Sat 1-6; By appt
Dir: Wendy D. Glass
American art in all mediums; European graphics; Japanese Ukiyo-e prints.

Other artists represented:
Benny Andrews, Chikanobu, Ruth Cyril, Louise A. Freedman, Lucchi Grant, Anne Highton, Ando Hiroshige, Katsushika Hokusai, Frank Kleinholz, Kunichika, Utagawa Kunisada, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, Evelyn Licht, Claude Marks, Robert Mazzini, Hyde Oshiro, Gabor Peterdi, Utamaro Toyokuni, Tsukioka Yoshitoshi.

2554. THE GLASS STORE
1242 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 289-1970 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Robert Fleischer/Larry Alpert
Contemporary art glass.

Other artists represented:
Rick Bernstein, Mathew Buechner, Thomas Buechner III, John Gilmor, William Glasner, Maggie Lane, Josh Simpson, Fred Widmer, Karen Wolkoff, Alina Woloska.

---

*see catalog index

2555. GOETHE HOUSE NEW YORK
1014 5th Ave 10028
(212) 744-8310 Tue, Thur 11-7; Wed, Fri, Sat 12-5
Dir: Christoph Wecker
German cultural center; exhibitions, film programs, lectures, library.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Beuys, Carin Drechsler-Marx, Dieter Jung, George Klusemann.

2556. JUDITH GOLDBERG
25 E 83rd St 10028
(212) 288-1276 Mon-Fri 10-6
Dir: Judith Goldberg
19th- and 20th-century European and American prints.

Other artists represented:
Marc Chagall, Jim Dine, Edward Hopper, Jasper Johns, Martin Lewis, Roy Lichtenstein, Louis Lozowick, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Frank Stella.

2557. PHYLLIS A. GOLDMAN FINE ARTS
220 E 67th St 10021
(212) 472-8623 By appt
Dir: Phyllis A. Goldman
Ancient arts; late-19th-century French arts; post-World War II American art.

Other artists represented:
Margaretha Albers, Kate Kennedy, Frank Schroder, Frank Stella.

2558. LUCIEN GOLDSCHMIDT
1117 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 879-0070 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Lucien C. Goldschmidt
European graphics, drawings, illustrated books, 1500-1950.

2559. JAMES GOODMAN GALLERY
1020 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-2288 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: James Neil Goodman
20th-century modern and contemporary masters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fernando Botero.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Jean Dubuffet, Alberto Giacometti, Roy Lichtenstein, Henri Matisse, Henry Moore, Pablo Picasso, Ad Reinhardt, Saul Steinberg.

2560. MARTIN GORDON
25 E 83rd St 10028
(212) 249-7350 Mon-Fri by appt
Dir: Marty Gordon
Late 19th- mid-20th-century original prints.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Bonnard, Felix Buhot, Erich Heckel, Edward Hopper, Henri Matisse, Joan Miró, Emil Nolde, Pablo Picasso, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, Edouard Vuillard.

2561. GRACE GALLERY STUDIO DI MODICA
54 Crosby St 10012
(212) 925-0559 Daily 10-6
Dir: Arturo Di Modica
Sculpture; contemporary painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arturo Di Modica, Mario Guarducci, C. Pattie Nicoli.

Other artists represented:
Mimi Aloia, George O'Neill Jr.

2562. GRAHAM GALLERY
1014 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 535-5767 Oct-May, Tue-Sat 10-5; Jun-Sep, Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Robert Graham, Jr.
American art from 19th century to present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert De Niro, Anne Elliott*, John Held*, Hermann Dudley Murphy*, Anthony Padovano, Reeve Schley III*.

Other artists represented:
John White Alexander, Thomas Anshutz, Guy Pene du Bois, Seymour Fogel, Sam Glankoff, Henry Glintenkamp, John R. Grabach, Anne Poor, Paul Resika, Helen Torr.

2563. GRAND CENTRAL ART GALLERIES
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 867-3344 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: James Cox
Realist works by late 19th- and 20th-century American artists.

Other artists represented:
Karl Anderson, Michael Aviano, Mae Bertoni, George Carlson, Chen Chi, Thomas Aquinas Daly, Richard V. Goetz, Everett Raymond Kinstler, Thomas Loepp, Robert Lougheed, Frank Mason, Thomas Nicholas, Bruce North, Charles Pfahl, Priscilla Roberts, Margery Ryerson, Richard Schmid, Eric Sloane, Saul Tepper, John Terelak, Carl Wurmer.

2564. GREENE SPACE
105 Greene St 10012
(212) 925-2415 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Tony Goldman
Art in all mediums; performance, installation, audio-visual.

Other artists represented:
Vivian Abraitis, Clayton Campbell, Adger Cowans, Daniel Johnson, Pamela McCormick, Tom Ryan, Francoise Schein.

2565. GREENWICH HOUSE POTTERY/JANE HARTSOOK GALLERY
16 Jones St 10014
(212) 242-4106 Tue-Sat 1-5
Dir: Susan B. Wood
Non-profit; affiliated with school of ceramics; exhibitions, workshops.

Other artists represented:
Fong Chow, Maishe Dickman, James Makins, Sally Bowen Prange, Rebecca Rupp, Tom Spleth, Jack Troy, Robin Welch, Lisa Wolkow.

2566. GROMMET GALLERY
537 Broadway 10012
(212) 925-7651 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Emily Harvey
Non-profit; rotating group exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Olga Adorno*.

Other artists represented:
Jean DuPuy, Christian Xatrec.

2567. DANIEL B. GROSSMAN
1100 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 861-9285 Mon-Sat 9:30-6
Dir: Daniel B. Grossman
19th- and 20th-century European and American paintings.

2568. GRUENEBAUM GALLERY
38 E 57th St 10022
(212) 838-8245 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Julian Weissman
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Biala, Ernest Briggs, James Brooks, Giorgio Cavallon, Elaine de Kooning, Norris Embry, Sonia Gechtoff, Dimitri Hadzi, George McNeil, Milton Resnick, John Seery, Esteban Vicente.

2569. SOLOMON R. GUGGENHEIM MUSEUM
1071 5th Ave 10028
(212) 860-1300 Wed-Sun 11-5, Tue 5-8
Dir: Thomas M. Messer
20th-century and contemporary art; building designed by Frank Lloyd Wright.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Öyvind Fahlström*, Dan Flavin, Asger Jorn*, Wassily Kandinsky*, Yves Klein*, Jan Matulka, Jack Tworkov*.

2570. HABER THEODORE GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 752-3338 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: J. Haber/M. Theodore/J. Van Liere
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Victoria Barr, Maryann Harman, William Kortlander, Ray Lewis, Darragh Park, Don Shields, George Woodman.

Other artists represented:
Helen Bershad, Deborah Brown, Fritz Buehner, Nancy Davidson, Susan Heideman, Harry Koursaros, Graham Marks, Stanley Snyder, Andrew Tavarelli, Dimitri Tsamardinos, Thomas Watcke, Joyce Weinstein.

2571. HADLER/RODRIGUEZ GALLERIES
38 E 57th St 10022
(212) 752-7734 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Contemporary American ceramics, decorative arts, painting, drawing, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Howard Ben Tre, Maia Breuer, Jack Clift, Philip Cornelius, Joyce Crain, Tom Currie, Roseline DeLisle, Jean Dibble, Rick Dillingham, Eve Eisenstadt, Ken Ferguson, John Gill, Francoise Grossen, Christopher Gustin, John Hylton, Karen Karnes, Joseph Leonte, Phillip Maberry, James Makins, Robert McGowan, Mark Pharis, Jacquelyn Rice, Laura Russell, Cynthia Schira, Warren Seelig.

2572. JULIETTE HALIOUA GALLERY
37 E 67th St 10021
(212) 794-2757
Dir: Juliette Halioua
European works on paper; graphics.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Alechinsky, Karel Appel, Eduardo Chillida.

2573. HAMILTON GALLERY
20 W 57th St 10019
(212) 765-5915 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Patricia Hamilton
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Auste, Michael David, Richard Hennessy, Robert Murray, Joan Snyder, John Willenbecher.

Other artists represented:
Loren Calaway, Walter Dusenbery, Susan Hall, David Hare, Dona Nelson, John Torreano.

2574. MARTINA HAMILTON GALLERY
19 E 71st St 10021
(212) 744-8976 Daily 10-6
Dir: Martina Hamilton
Contemporary American prints, sculpture, painting, photography.

Other artists represented:
Berenice Abbott, Richard Estes, Roy Lichtenstein, David Salle, Julian Schnabel, Cy Twombly.

2575. HAMMER GALLERIES
33 W 57th St 10019
(212) 644-4400 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Richard Lynch
19th- and 20th-century painting; contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
David Armstrong, Truman Bolinger, Eliot Clark, Jo Davidson, Henry Dearth, Yasu Eguchi, Peter Ellenshaw, Lunda Gill, Paule Gobillard, William Horton, Mort Kunstler, Tom Locker, Grandma Moses, LeRoy Neiman, G.H. Rothe, Claude E. Schuffenecker, Arthur Singer, Eric Sloane, Bob Timberlake.

2576. HAMMERQUIST GALLERY
419 Third Ave 10016
(212) 889-8173 Tue-Sat 12-7
Dir: Robert Hammerquist
Contemporary American and Chinese paintings.

Other artists represented:
Zhang Cho Cheng, Raymond Davidson, Mia Feroleto, Gerald Knipscher, Ross Lewis, Robert Longley, Earl Mayan, Thom O'Connor, Zhang Houng Tu, C. C. Wang.

2577. HANKOOK GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581-5159 Mon-Sat 10:30-6:30
Dir: Young Park/Dorothy Deon
Contemporary art.

see last page for advertiser's index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Miriam Brumer, Audrey Code, Dorothy Deon, Mansook Han, Sym-Young-Yook, Elaine Wechsler, Noboru Yamashita, Jan Zay.

2578. SUSAN HARDER GALLERY
37 W 57th St 10019
(212) 308-0043 Tue, Thu, Sat 12-7
Dir: Susan Harder
Modern photography and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edie Baskin, Andre Kertesz, Grace Knowlton, Sylvia Plachy, Aaron Siskind.

2579. HARLEY-MADIGAN GALLERY
156 W 86th St 10024
(212) 580-8446/783-5838
Dir: D. Harley/T. Madigan

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steven Blevins, Kevin Higgins, David Kassel, Klaus Möllers, Arlo Sprunger.

2580. O.K. HARRIS WORKS OF ART
383 W Broadway 10012
(212) 431-3600 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Carlo Lamagna
Contemporary painting, sculpture, and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Allan Adams, Arman, Thomas Bacher, John Baeder, Mattie Berhang, Bruce Brooks, Larry K. Brown, Deborah Butterfield, Don Celender, Daniel Chard, Davis Cone, John Deandrea, Raymon Elozua, Kevin Franke, Arie Galles, D.J. Hall, H. N. Han, George Hrycun, Yan Hsia, John Kacere, Sherry Kerlin, Tony King, Stanislav Kolibal, Rikuro Okamoto, Sharron Quasius, Lance Richbourg, Robert Rohm, Nancy Rubins, Anthony Sorce, Keung Szeto, Idelle Weber, John T. Young.

2581. HARWOOD GALLERIES
1045 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 744-5062 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Barry Harwood
Wiener Werkstaette, English art pottery; Art Nouveau and Deco graphics; 19th-century bentwood furniture.

Other artists represented:
Michael Thonet.

2582. PATRICIA HEESY GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245-1420 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Patricia Heesy
Prints by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ron Davis, Richard Diebenkorn, David Hockney, Jasper Johns, Robert Motherwell, Kazuhide Yamazaki.

2583. LILLIAN HEIDENBERG GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 586-3808 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Lillian Heidenberg
Modern and contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Alice Baber, Elizabeth Blackadder, Pierre Bonnard, George Chemeche, Jean-Louis Dulaar, Yrjo Edelmann, K.M. Graham, Gary Kahn, Catherine Koenig, Henry Moore, Camille Pissarro, Edouard Vuillard, Jim Youngerman.

2584. MARVIN HEIFERMAN
1024 6th Ave 10018
(212) 221-6463 By appt
Dir: Marvin Heiferman
Photography; contemporary art in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Robert Adams, Nan Goldin, Brian Hagiwara, Peter Hujar, Diane Keaton, Frank Majore, Kenneth McGowan, Susan Shaw, Stephen Shore.

Bruce Nauman: Violins Violence Silence, 1981-82; in "Bruce Nauman: Neons," at The Baltimore Museum of Art (Dec. 19, 1982-Feb. 13, 1983).

2585. HELLER GALLERY
965 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 988-7116 Mon-Sat 11-6
Dir: Douglas Heller
Contemporary glass sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Carlson, Sydney Cash, Stephen Dee Edwards, Michael Glancy, David Huchthausen, William Morris, Tom Patti, Mark Peiser, Don Shepherd, Paul Stankard, Ann Warff, Steven Weinberg.

Other artists represented:
Michael Cohn, Fritz Dreisbach, Eric Hoglund, Eric Hopkins, Jon Kuhn, Harvey Littleton, Klaus Moje, John Nygren, Michael Paulik, Meredith Wenzel.

2586. HENRY STREET SETTLEMENT
Louis Abrons Arts for Living Center
466 Grand St 10002
(212) 598-0400 Daily 12-6
Dir: Susan Fleminger
Exhibitions of minority and women artists; workshops; artists-in-residence program.

2587. EDNA HIBEL GALLERY
1018 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-4448 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: William Vareika
Contemporary art.

2588. HIRSCHL & ADLER GALLERIES
21 E 70th St 10021
(212) 535-8810 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Stuart Feld
American and European art from 18th century to present.

2589. HIRSCHL & ADLER MODERN
851 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 744-6700 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Donald McKinney

Other artists represented:
Richard Ballard, Elmer Bischoff, Edwin Dickinson, Rackstraw Downes, Charles Garabedian, Lloyd Goldsmith, Leon Kossoff, Nancy Mitchnick, John Moore, George L. K. Morris, Graham Nickson, Fairfield Porter, Michael Prentice, Anne Ryan, Mark Stock, Sarah Supplee, James Weeks, Christopher Wilmarth, Isaac Witkin, Paul Wonner.

2590. NANCY HOFFMAN GALLERY
429 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966-6676 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Nancy Hoffman
Works by contemporary American artists.

Other artists represented:
Natalie Bieser, Carolyn Brady, Howard Buchwald, Don Eddy, Rafael Ferrer, Juan Gonzalez, Terence LaNoue, Bill Martin, Joe Nicastri, Don Nice, John Okulick, Frank Owen, David Parrish, Peter Plagens, Joseph Raffael, Nina Raginsky, Bill Richards, Paul Sarkisian, Ben Schonzeit, Alan Siegel, Jim Sullivan, Jack Tworkov, Philip Wofford, Fumio Yoshimura.

2591. VIVIAN HORAN GALLERY
40 E 62nd St 10021
(212) 935-1682 By appt
Dir: Vivian Horan
20th-century paintings and drawings.

2592. HORN GALLERY
503 6th Ave at 13th St 10011
(212) 741-1450 Mon-Sat 1-7:30
Dir: Lawrence A. Jeydel
Works on paper, lithographs, etchings and woodcuts by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karel Appel, Johnnie Friedlaender, Alexis Gorodine.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Leonard Baskin, René Carcan, Brigitte Coudrain, Jean-Michel Folon, Jane Freilicher, Ernst Fuchs, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Hugh Kepets, Robert Kipniss, Jack Levine, Marino Marini, Frederic Meckseper, Henry Moore, Jorge Morales-Zeno, Elizabeth Osborne, Philip Pearlstein, Larry Rivers, Georges Rouault, Rufino Tamayo.

2593. HUDSON GUILD ART GALLERY
441 W 26th St 10001
(212) 760-9800 Daily 2-7
Dir: Haim Mendelson
Community center art gallery; contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Delson, Harry Gottlieb, Haim Mendelson, Constantine Ben Ross.

Other artists represented:
March Avery, Jack Bilander, Rick Brosen, Mary Carter, Rebecca Cooperman, Hal Frater, Theo Fried, Sid Hammer, Theo Hios, Eileen Holding, Joseph Kahn, Bernard Krigstein, Edward Laning, Herb Leopold, Saul Lishinsky, Philip Reisman, Naomi Rhoads, Diana Schuback, John Servetas, Gertrude Shibley, Harry Shoulberg.

2594. MAX HUTCHINSON GALLERY
138 Greene St 10003
(212) 966-3066 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: M. Hutchinson/E. Siegeltuch/J. Arpelle
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lin Emery*, John Sanders, Carolee Schneemann*, Helene Valentin, Brian Wall.

---

*see catalog index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Other artists represented:
Louise Bourgeois, Jeffrey Brosk, James Buchman, David Budd, Cora Cohen, Tom Doyle, Mary Beth Edelson, Jean-Claude Farhi, Bill Freeland, Charles Ginnever, Phoebe Helman, Timothy Hennesey, Linda Howard, Bernard Kirschenbaum, John Mandel, Ju Ming, Ann Norton, Milton Resnick, Garry Rich, Robert Stackhouse, Robert Tannen.

2595. LEONARD HUTTON GALLERIES
33 E 74th St 10021
(212) 249-9700 Mon–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Leonard Hutton/Ingrid Hutton
German Expressionism and Russian Avant Garde works.

Other artists represented:
Eduardo Arroyo, Ilya Grigorevich Chashnik, Alexej Jawlensky, Wassily Kandinsky, Gabriele Münter.

2596. IMAGES GALLERY
11 E 57th St 10022
(212) 838–8640 Tue–Fri 10–5
Dir: Robert S. Persky
20th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Robert Farber, Sarita Furmanski, Geoffry Gove, Michael Greenberg, Rene Groebli, Helena Kolda, Mieke Maas.

2597. INCORPORATED GALLERY
1200 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 831–4466 Mon–Sat 11–6
Dir: Riis Layman
Contemporary American ceramics; handmade paper.

Other artists represented:
Helen Baskin, Wayne Bates, Sylvia Bower, Regis Brodie, Henry Cavanagh, Marek Cecula, Paul Chaleff, Don Cornett, Dan Craig, Nina Gaby, Dorothy Hafner, Helen Hosking, Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Mary Ann Lomonaco, Debbie Monaghan, Carl Peverall, Chris Richard, Laurence Seegers, Alexandra Soteriou, Jeffrey Zigulis.

2598. INGBER GALLERY
460 W Broadway 10012
(212) 674–0101 Tue–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Barbara Ingber
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Kenmit Adler, Elise Asher, Rosemary Beck, Gretna Campbell, Rosemary Cove, Natalie Edgar, Perle Fine, Louis Finkelstein, Sidney Geist, Judith Godwin, Leon Hartl, Fay Lansner, Knox Martin, Ce Roser, Edith Schloss, James Tucker, Bonnie Woit.

2599. INROADS GALLERY
150 Mercer St 10012
(212) 226–6622
Dir: Toma Fichter
Painting, photography, drawing, wall-relief sculpture; emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Coral Bourgeois, Daria Deshuk, Linda Hartinian, June Moss, Laurie Neaman, Tomiyo Sasaki, Ann Turyn, Daniel Witz.

2600. INSTITUTE FOR ART AND URBAN RESOURCES, THE CLOCKTOWER
108 Leonard St 10013
(212) 784–2084 Wed–Fri 1–6, Sat 10–6
Dir: Alanna Heiss
Non-profit; work and exhibition space for emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Fuente, Marcus Leatherdale, Gerry Morehead, Alexis Smith.

2601. INTAR LATIN AMERICAN GALLERY
420 W 42nd St 10036
(212) 695–6134 Mon–Fri 11–6
Dir: Inverna Lockpez
Non-profit; contemporary Latin American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rimer Cardillo, Beatriz Kohn, Saulo Mercader.

Other artists represented:
Luis Aponte, Maria Lino, Diana Rivera, Mario Sotolongo.

2602. INTER-AMERICAN ART GALLERY
1000 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772–7761 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–6
Dir: Nohra Haime
Contemporary and Latin American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Julio Larraz*, Ramiro Llona.

Other artists represented:
Fernando Botero, Pierre Dunoyer, Maria de la Paz Jaramillo, Volker Seding, Jorge Tacla.

2603. INTERART GALLERY
549 W 52nd St 10019
(212) 246–1050 Mon–Fri 1–6
Dir: Inverna Lockpez
Integration of the visual arts (performance, video, drawings).

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Deborah Nova Dubiner, Rosemary Mayer, Carolee Schneemann, Alida Walsh.

2604. INTERNATIONAL CENTER OF PHOTOGRAPHY
1130 5th Ave 10028
(212) 860–1777 Tue–Thu 12–8, Fri–Sun, 12–6
Dir: Cornell Capa
Photography exhibitions, publications, collections, educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Berenice Abbott, Micha Bar-Am, Bruce Davidson, Hugo Erfurth, Alex Harris, Heinrich Kuhn, Jacques-Henri Lartigue, Beaumont Newhall, Dr. Erich Salomon.

2605. IOLAS-JACKSON GALLERY
52 E 57th St 10022
(212) 755–6778 Tue–Fri 10–5:30, Sat 11–5
Dir: Brooks Jackson
Contemporary European and American artists.

Other artists represented:
Victor Brauner, Harrison Burns, Franco Ciarlo, Niki de Saint Phalle, Marina Karella, Matta, Ed McGowin, Takis, Paul Thek, Michael Vivo.

2606. ISSELBACHER GALLERY
41 E 78th St 10021
(212) 472–1766 Tue–Sat 10:30–5:30
Dir: Alfred Isselbacher
Prints of the late-19th- and 20th-century.

2607. JACK GALLERY
138 Prince St 10012
(212) 226–1989 Tue–Sun 11–6
Dir: Jacquie Littlejohn
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Jean Cocteau, Ralph Coxx, William Crovello, Elba Damast, Katherine Doyle, Erté, Alan Falk, Frank Gallo, Karl Hagedorn, Simon Harling, Douglas Hofmann, Michael Knigin, Kiki Kogelnik, Irving Kriesberg, Jochen Labriola, Norman Laliberte, Peter Mackie, William Snyder.

2608. BERNARD JACOBSON GALLERY
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581–8346 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Tema Zak
Exhibits and publishes contemporary American and British prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Heindorff, Howard Hodgkin, Ed Ruscha, Richard Smith.

Other artists represented:
Ivor Abrahams, Frank Auerbach, Robyn Denny, Leon Kossoff, Henry Moore, William Tillyer, William Tucker, Victor Willing.

2609. JANAPA PHOTOGRAPHY GALLERY
303 W 13th St 10014
(212) 741–3214/255–8688 Wed–Sun 12–10
Dir: Stanley Simon
Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Williams Adams, Helmut Bichler, Abe Blasko, Diana Parrish Cull, Todd Cull, Jenny Lawton, Bernardo Magalhaes, Ana Regina Nogueira, Armand Rumayor, Sura Ruth, Jeff A. Slotnick, Larry Tritton, A. Robbins Valentine, Regina Vater.

Other artists represented:
Charles Grubb, John P. Halpern, Jodi Rodar, Jo Anne Seador, Carla Shapiro.

2610. SIDNEY JANIS GALLERY
110 W 57th St 10019
(212) 586–0110 Daily 10–5
Dir: Carroll Janis
20th-century and contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
Oyvind Fahlstrom, Valerie Jaudon, Robert Mangold, Marisol, Duane Michals, Robert Ryman, George Segal, Tom Wesselmann.

2611. JAPAN HOUSE GALLERY
333 E 47th St 10017
(212) 752–0824 Daily 11–5, Fri 11–7:30
Dir: Rand Castile
Exhibitions of traditional, popular, and classical Japanese art drawn from museum and private collections in America, Japan, and Europe; catalogs.

2612. JARO ART GALLERIES
955 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734–5475 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Jaro Parizek
Yugoslav naives and American primitive art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milan Generalic*, Ivka Matina-Marikovic*, Josip Pintaric*, Ivan Rabuzin*.

Other artists represented:
Martin Dukin, Stepjan Dukin, Ivan Lackovic-Croata, Robert Logrippo, Branko Lovak, Bogdan Miscevic, Vangel Naumouvski, Ivan Vecenaj.

2613. JAY GALLERY
13 Jay St 10013
(212) 925–9424 Tue–Sat 12–6
Dir: Cheryl Pelavin
Contemporary prints of America and the United Kingdom.

Other artists represented:
Anthony Benjamin, Walter Crump, Leni Fried, Noreen Grant, Charles Hewitt, Chris Orr, Geoffrey Parker, Robert Andrew Parker, Cheryl Pelavin, Merle Perlmutter, Jonathan Ringel, Pat Schaverien, Altoon Sultan, Mary Teichman, Steve Yamin.

2614. JEWISH MUSEUM
1109 5th Ave 10028
(212) 860–1888 Sun 11–6, Mon–Thu 12–5
Dir: Joan Rosenbaum
Jewish art, artifacts, and ceremonial objects; Biblical archaeology; Daniel M. Friedenberg collection of coins and medals.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dina Dar, Moritz Daniel Oppenheim*, Beth Ames Swartz*, J. James Tissot*, June Wayne, Max Weber*, Moshe Zabari*.

2615. JAY JOHNSON
1044 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628–7280 Tue–Sat 12–6
Dir: Jay Johnson
American folk art.

Other artists represented:
John Cross, Ray Cusie, Barbara Falk, Kathy Jacobsen, Barbara Moment, Janet Munro, Mattie Lou O'Kelley, Pacho Odio, Janis Price, Mary Shelley.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2616. JORDAN-VOLPE GALLERY
457 W Broadway 10012
(212) 533-3900 Tue-Sat 11-6:30
Dir: Todd Volpe/Vance Jordan
American Arts and Crafts furniture (1900-1915), art pottery (1880-1930), Academic painting (1875-1915).

2617. JORICE ART GLASS
1057 Second Ave 10022
(212) 752-0129 Daily 10-6:30, Thu 10-8, Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Maurice Mogulescu
Contemporary blown glass vases, sculpture, bottles, plates.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Lundberg, Josh Simpson.

Other artists represented:
Rick Bernstein, Thomas Buechner, Donald Carlson, Joe Clearman, Ann Corcoran, Guy Corrie, Daniel Edler, Stephen Fellerman, Nancy Freeman, Rick Gibbons, Charles Lotton, Andy Magdanz, Paul Manners, John Nickerson, Michael Nourot, Susan Shapiro, Drew Smith, Randy Strong, Henry Summa, George Thiewes, Steve Tobin, Craig Zweifel.

2618. JOSEF GALLERY
113 Prince St 10012
(212) 475-3837 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-6
Dir: Jerry Joseph
Emerging contemporary artists; theme shows by guest curators.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ed Askew, Ron Cohen, Tony Wong.

Other artists represented:
Pam Avril, Peter Drake.

2619. JULIE: ARTISANS' GALLERY
687 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 688-2345 Daily 11-6
Dir: Julie Schafler Dale
Contemporary wearable art, and crafts.

2620. JUST ABOVE MIDTOWN/DOWNTOWN
178-80 Franklin St 10013
(212) 966-7020 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Linda Goode Bryant
Non-profit; exhibitions of emerging and minority artists; seminars, events.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Abramson, Richard Armijo, James Andrew Brown, Papo Colo, Naomi Dickerson, Peggy Diggs, Ed Epping, Wendell Headley, Anne Heimann, Janet Henry, Leonard Mainor, Brad Melamed, Creighton Michael, Senga Nengudi, JoAnn McFarlane Osbourne, Jo Pat Parker, Russell Redmond, Rick Schwab, Kit-Yin Snyder, Lori Solondz, Ellen Weider, Randy Williams, Yunque.

2621. KABER GALLERY
900 First Ave 10022
(212) 308-2040 Mon-Sat 11-6
Dir: Carol Katz/Sandra Bernstein
Contemporary realism.

2622. ALEXANDER KAHAN FINE ARTS
25 E 73rd St 10021
(212) 737-4230 Daily 10-5
Dir: Alexander Kahan
Late 19th- and 20th-century works by European and American artists.

Other artists represented:.
Alexander Calder, Marc Chagall, Sam Francis, Marino Marini, Matta, Joan Miró, Henry Moore, Pablo Picasso, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

2623. KAHAN GALLERY OF AFRICAN ART
48 E 57th St 10022
(212) 355-5110 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-5
Dir: Perry Bialor
Traditional African art; publishes illustrated catalogues.

2624. JANE KAHAN GALLERY
922 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 744-1490 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jane Kahan
19th- and 20th-century prints, paintings, sculpture, ceramics.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Marino Marini, Joan Miró, Henry Moore, Pablo Picasso, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Henri de Toulouse Lautrec.

2625. MURIEL KARASIK
1094 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 535-7851 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Muriel Karasik
20th-century decorative art, including ceramics, silver, glass, furniture.

2626. KENNEDY GALLERIES
40 W 57th St 10019
(212) 541-9600 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: Lawrence A. Fleischman
18th-20th-century American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Leonard Baskin*, Allen Blagden*, Colleen Browning*, Charles E. Burchfield*, John Marin*, Millard Sheets*.

Other artists represented:
Marvin Cherney, John Steuart Curry, David Fredenthal, Ruth Gikow, Lorrie Goulet, Joseph Hirsch, Walt Kuhn, Rico Lebrun, Jack Levine, Philip McCracken, Carolyn Plochmann, Abraham Rattner, Constance Richardson, Frank Wright.

2627. COE KERR GALLERY
49 E 82nd St 10028
(212) 628-1340 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-5
Dir: Warren Adelson
19th- and 20th-century American paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Cottingham*.

Other artists represented:
James Bama, Kib Bramhall, Shirl Goedike, Jonathan Kenworthy, Grainger McKoy, Andrew Stevovich, Andrew Wyeth, Jamie Wyeth.

2628. REYNOLD C. KERR GALLERY
16 E 82nd St 10028
(212) 737-7299 Tue-Sat 10:30-6
Dir: Reynold C. Kerr
Contemporary art; Neo-Surrealism; classic ancient tribal art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sandra Jackman, Mavis Smith.

Other artists represented:
George Nobl.

2629. KEY GALLERY
130 Greene St 10012
(212) 966-3597 Wed-Sat 11-6
Dir: Margaret Kilik
Small works on paper: collages, drawings, and paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Digby, Jeannette Judson.

Other artists represented:
Stefano Bicini, Gerard Charriere, Pat Hammerman, Gena Hegelman, Bridgitte Keller, Ellen McLaughlin, Georges Pinel, Michael Sciam, Robert N. Scott, Philip Sugden, Joan White, Marcia G. Yerman.

2630. KIMMEL/COHN PHOTOGRAPHY ARTS
1 W 64th St 10023
(212) 799-6675 By appt
Dir: Roberta Kimmel Cohn
Vintage Far Eastern photography and photographs from 1920s and 30s.

2631. PHYLLIS KIND GALLERY
136 Greene St 10012
(212) 925-1200 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Phyllis Kind
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings; 20th-century American naive art.

Other artists represented:
Kim Abeles, Robert Delford Brown, Roger Brown, William N. Copley, Henry Darger, Victor Faccinto, Rev. Howard Finster, Robert Gordy, Philip Hanson, Cham Hendon, Richard Hull, Miyoko Ito, Martin Johnson, Leonard Koscianski, Irene Kubota, Inez Nathaniel-Walker, Gladys Nilsson, Jim Nutt, Ed Paschke, Elijah Pierce, Christina Ramberg, Martin Ramirez, Barbara Rossi, Earl Staley, Mary Stoppert, Russ Warren, Margaret Wharton, Karl Wirsum, Joseph Yoakum, Ray Yoshida.

2632. THE KITCHEN
484 Broome St 10012
(212) 925-3615 Tue-Sat 1-6
Dir: Mary MacArthur
Alternative space: dance, video, music performances; installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jennifer Bolande, Mark Innerest, Stuart Marshall, Gary Morehead, Joseph Nechvatal, John Rubin.

2633. M. KNOEDLER & CO
19 E 70th St 10021
(212) 794-0550 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Lawrence Rubin
19th-20th-century European and American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Walter Darby Bannard, Alexander Calder, Richard Diebenkorn, Friedel Dzubas, Herbert Ferber, Adolph Gottlieb, Nancy Graves, Howard Hodgkin, Robert Motherwell, Ludwig Sander.

Other artists represented:
Jules Olitski, Jack Roth, David Smith, Frank Stella, John Walker.

2634. MONIQUE KNOWLTON GALLERY
153 Mercer St 10012
(212) 431-8808 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-6
Dir: Monique Knowlton
Emerging contemporary figurative, expressionist painters and sculptors.

Other artists represented:
Robert Beauchamp, Phyllis Bramson, Frances Cohen-Gillespie, Jay Coogan, Christin Couture, James de Pasquale, Robert Donley, Frank Faulkner, Tommasi Ferroni, Gaylen Hansen, Joseph Hilton, Jennie Hough, Ron Isaacs, Edward Larson, Robert Lostutter, Helen Miranda-Wilson, Jody Mussoff, Helen Oji, Joseph Piccillo, Seymour Rosofsky, Betye Saar, Shari Urquhart.

2635. KORNBLEE GALLERY
20 W 57th St 10019
(212) 586-1178 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5
Dir: Jill Kornblee
Contemporary paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robin Bruch, Patricia Tobacco Forrester, Hitch Lyman, Bruce Monteith, Donn Moulton, Randy Stevens, Billy Sullivan, St. Clair Sullivan.

Other artists represented:
Sheila Berkley, Beverly Buchanan, Russell Drisch, Elga Heinzen, Pati Hill, Alexander Hollweg, W. Louis Jones, Aristodemos Kaldis, Gary Kulak, Kay Kurt, Paul Linfante, Paul Narkiewicz, Giancarlo Neri, Betty Parsons, Jean Promutico, Steven H. Singer, Berty Skuber.

2636. LYNN KOTTLER GALLERIES
3 E 65th St 10021
(212) 734-3491 Mon-Fri 12-6, Sat 12-4
Dir: Lynn Kottler
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Ward Cofrin, Cora Sue Cronemeyer, Elaine Ifill, Jalona, Inger Beckman Marnfeldt, Thomas McIver, Colleen Nestor, Paul Rhoads, Roger Van Ouytsel, Nick Vickovich, Louis Wittgenstein.

Other artists represented:
Daza, Howard S. Dubin, Anne-Marie Keusses, Maurice Mahler.

---

*see catalog index

2637. KOUROS GALLERY
831 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 879-5454 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Angelos E. Camillos
Contemporary art of the Americas.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sepp Baendereck*, Manabu Mabe*, Omar Rayo*, Gustavo Rosa*, Nicholas Vlavianos*.

Other artists represented:
Rodolfo Abularach, Michail Aleksandrov, Antonio Amaral, Aparicio, Norma Bessouet, Marcelo Bonevardi, Alicia Creus, Fang, Luiz Granda, Ianelli, Aristodemos Kaldis, Tomie Ohtake, Raquel Rabinovich, Hugo Rodrigues, Fanny Sanin, Thomaz, Mario Toral, Cynthia Villet, Wakabayashi.

2638. KRAUSHAAR GALLERIES
724 5th Ave 10019
(212) 307-5730 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Antoinette M. Kraushaar
20th-century American paintings, sculpture, graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kenneth Callahan, David Cantine, Joe Lasker, Elsie Manville, Daniel O'Sullivan, Karl Schrag, Linda Sokolowski, Jerome Witkin.

Other artists represented:
Humbert Albrizio, Bernard Arnest, Jerry Atkins, Peggy Bacon, Gifford Beal, Louis Bouché, Ainslie Burke, Russell Cowles, Leonard Delonga, Kenneth Evett, William Glackens, Tom Hardy, John Hartell, John Heliker, William Kienbusch, John Koch, Robert LaHotan, Robert Laurent, James Lechay, Carl Morris, Ben Moss, Jerome Myers, James Penney, Andree Ruellan, Henry Schnakenberg, John Sloan, Jane Wasey, Marguerite Zorach.

2639. KRUGER GALLERY
870 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-6436 Daily 9:30-6
Dir: Laura Kruger
Contemporary fine art jewelry by American goldsmiths, sculptors, and designers.

Other artists represented:
Judith Brown, Leslie Jean Goldberg, Hedy Martinelli, John Mayeri, Breon O'Casey, Chris Walling.

2640. NAVIN KUMAR
967 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-4075 Daily 10-6
Dir: Navin Kumar
Paintings and works of art from India, Tibet, and Nepal.

2641. L'IBIS GALLERY
667 Madison Ave, Suite 804A 10021
(212) 935-0490 Mon-Fri 11-6
Dir: Lucien Viola
Ancient art: Egyptian, classical, Coptic.

Other artists represented:
Kurt Flimm.

2642. LA BOETIE
9 E 82nd St 10028
(212) 535-4865 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Helen Serger
Early-20th-century art; Futurism, Russian Avant Garde, Bauhaus, Surrealism, and Dada.

Other artists represented:
Giacomo Balla, Balthus, Sonia Delaunay, Paul Delvaux, Wassily Kandinsky, Paul Klee, Laszlo Moholy-Nagy, Egon Schiele, Kurt Schwitters, Kurt Seligmann, Salle Werner Vaughn.

2643. LEDEL GALLERY
168 Mercer St 10012
(212) 966-7659 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Lee Edel Male
Vintage and contemporary photography; works by Edward S. Curtis.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lou Bernstein, A. Aubrey Bodine, Michael Di Biase, Tony-Ray Jones, P. H. Polk, Ralph Weiss.

Other artists represented:
Berenice Abbott, Tom Baril, Paul Caponigro, Imogen Cunningham, Larry Fink, William B. Giles, Peter Laytin, Julio Mitchel, Albert Renger-Patzsch, Gail Skoff.

2644. LEFEBRE GALLERY
47 E 77th St 10021
(212) 744-3384 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: John Lefebre
Contemporary European art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Horst Antes, Juan Martinez, Carl-Henning Pedersen, Walasse Ting.

Other artists represented:
Pierre Alechinsky, Julius Bissier, Pol Bury, Christian Dotremont, Jean-Michel Folon, Klaus Fussmann, Hans Hartung, Asger Jorn, Serge Poliakoff, Reinhoud, Antonio Segui, Roland Topor.

2645. JANET LEHR
PO Box 617 10028
(212) 288-1802 By appt
Dir: Janet Lehr
19th- and 20th-century photographs; illustrated photographic books.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alvin Langdon Coburn, Minor White.

Other artists represented:
Robert Demachy, Rick Dingus, William Henry Jackson, Ben Shahn, Frank Meadow Sutcliffe.

2646. JON LEON GALLERY
31 Desbrosses 10013
(212) 226-7789 Sat 12-5, Sun-Fri By appt
Dir: Lori Carlson
Contemporary paintings and sculpture; Amerind pottery of the Southwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nathan Slate Joseph, Alf Young.

2647. LEVER HOUSE
390 Park Ave 10022
(212) 688-6000 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Shirley Loxley
Corporate space used by community nonprofit arts organizations for group shows.

2648. CHUCK LEVITAN GALLERY
42 Grand St 10013
(212) 966-2782 Tue-Fri 1-5:30, Sat 12-6
Dir: Chuck Levitan
Contemporary art; performances.

2649. BERNARD AND S. DEAN LEVY
981 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628-7088 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Bernard Levy/S. Dean Levy
Late-17th-, 18th- and early-19th-century American paintings, furniture, silver decorative arts.

2650. LIGHT GALLERY
724 5th Ave 10019
(212) 582-6552 Tue-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-5
Contemporary photography.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Barrow, Paul Berger, Harry Callahan, Linda Connor, Larry Fink, Emmet Gowin, Robert Heinecken, Eikoh Hosoe, William Klein, William Larson, Grant Mudford, Stephen Shore, Aaron Siskind, Garry Winogrand.

2651. LINCOLN GALLERY
1 Harkness Plaza 10023
(212) 582-6868 Tue-Sat 11-8
Dir: Eldelmira Ruiz Schuster
Paintings by contemporary North American, Latin American, and European artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Deaderick, Gerda Rovetch.

Other artists represented:
Raul Conti, Andrey Coryell, Claudio Juarez, Anna Lascari, Armando Londono, Juan Mele, Nora Sacerdote, Bismarck Victoria, Swang Wu.

2652. BJORN LINDGREN GALLERY
575 Madison Ave 10022
(212) 838-3943 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Melanie A. Theobald
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Anthonisen.

2653. JEAN LUMBARD FINE ARTS
38 E 57 St 10019
(212) 421-3494 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Jean Lumbard
Paintings, tapestries, sculpture; works-on-paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Grillo.

Other artists represented:
Andree Beauregard, Ken Bushnell, Pierre Clerk, Nassos Daphnis, Thom De Jong, Chuck Hinman, Tim Prentice, Caroline Stone, Wilbur Streech.

2654. MANHATTAN PSYCHIATRIC CENTER'S SCULPTURE GARDEN
Ward's Island 10035
(212) 369-0500 ext 726 Daily 10-7
Dir: Michael Ford, M.D.
Alternative space at Manhattan Psychiatric Center.

2655. GRACIE MANSION GALLERY
337 E 10th St 10009
(212) 477-7331 Wed-Sun 1-6
Dir: Gracie Mansion
Contemporary emerging artists; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carmen Cicero, Timothy Greathouse, E.F. Higgins, Stephen Lock.

Other artists represented:
Mike Bidlo, Bruce Brand, Buster Cleveland, Paula Collery, Rodney Greenblatt, Jacques Halbert, Andreas Senser, Rhonda Zwillinger.

2656. MARBELLA GALLERY
28 E 72 St 10021
(212) 288-7809 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Mildred G. Thaler
19th- and early-20th-century American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edith Goetz, Frank S. Herrmann, Walter Tittle.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Fogarty, Frederic Taubes.

2657. MARIAN GOODMAN GALLERY
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 977-7160 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Marian Goodman
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Larry Bell, Marcel Broodthaers, Tony Cragg, Martin Disler, Jan Groth, Anselm Kiefer, Markus Lüpertz, Allan McCollum, Mimmo Paladino, Alan Ruppersberg, Alan Sonfist, Ger Van Elk, Emo Verkerk, Robert Wilson.

2658. FRANK MARINO GALLERY
489 Broome St 10013
(212) 431-7888 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Denya Cascio
Contemporary painting, sculpture, and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bill Alpert, Gary Bandy, Sandy Cies, Donald Cole, Jake Grossberg, Charles Hovland, Edward Meneeley, Elaine Norman, Clayton Patterson, Susan Weil.

Other artists represented:
William Anthony, William Dutterer, Christopher Rauschenberg, John Scofield, Beth Ames Swartz.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2659. KATHRYN MARKEL GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581–1909 Daily 10–5:30
Dir: Kathryn Markel
Paintings, sculpture, and handmade books by emerging contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Ruth Bauer, Barton Benes, Elena Borstein, Susanna Briselli, Roz Chast, Lynne Clibanoff, Ellen Francis Tuchman, Nancy Fried, Bryan Harrington, Barbara Kassel, Pat Lasch, Stephanie Brody Lederman, Bernard Maisner, Olivia Monroe, Joan Snitzer, Richard Tuschman, Takako Yamaguchi, Martie Zelt.

2660. MARLBOROUGH GALLERY
40 W 57th St 10019
(212) 541–4900 Daily 10–5:30, Sat 10–5
Dir: Pierre Levai
Modern and contemporary painting, sculpture, photography, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Avigdor Arikha, Frank Auerbach, Francis Bacon, Fernando Botero, Bill Brandt, Brassai, Claudio Bravo, Lynn Chadwick, John Davies, Stephen Edlich, Juan Genoves, Charles Ginnever, Ron Gorchov, Red Grooms, Dieter Hacker, Barbara Hepworth, Bill Jacklin, Alex Katz, R.B. Kitaj, Oskar Kokoschka, Jacques Lipchitz, Antonio Lopez-Garcia, Theodore Manolides, Conrad Marca-Relli, Henry Moore, Reuben Nakian, Hugh O'Donnell, Victor Pasmore, Irving Penn, Irving Petlin, Jay Phillips, Arnaldo Pomodoro, Daniel Quintero, Larry Rivers, James Rosati, Kurt Schwitters, Altoon Sultan, Rufino Tamayo, Neil Welliver, John Wonnacott.

2661. JAMES MARONEY
129A E 74th St 10021
(212) 879–2252 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30
Dir: James Maroney
19th- and early-20th-century American art.

2662. MARY-ANNE MARTIN/FINE ART
213 E 49th St 10017
(212) 980–8104 Mon–Fri 10–5; By appt
Dir: Mary-Anne Martin
19th- and 20th-century art, especially by Mexican and Latin American artists.

Other artists represented:
Frederic Amat, San Aviles, Alfredo Castañeda, Delia Cugat, Bernard Dreyfus, Gunther Gerzso, Pilar Palomer, Cesar Paternosto, Francisco Toledo.

2663. MARYMOUNT COLLEGE GALLERY
221 E 71st St 10021
(212) 472–3800
Dir: June Rosner

2664. KEANE MASON GALLERY
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245–5858 Tue–Sat 11–6
Dir: Patricia Keane Mason
Contemporary painting, sculpture, fiber arts, and prints.

2665. BARBARA MATHES GALLERY
851 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 249–3600 Tue–Fri 9:30–5:30, Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Barbara Mathes
19th- and 20th-century American and European art.

Other artists represented:
Oscar Bluemner, Joseph Cornell, Charles Demuth, Richard Diebenkorn, Arthur Dove, Marsden Hartley, Michael Mazur, Georgia O'Keeffe, Morton Livingston Schamberg, Charles Sheeler, Joseph Stella.

2666. MATIGNON
897 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 737–4563 Tue–Sat 11–6; Jul, Aug by appt
Dir: Paul Kovesdy
Bauhaus, Der Sturm, avant-garde Eastern European art from between the wars.

2667. PIERRE MATISSE GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 355–6269 Sep–Jun, Tue–Sat 10–5
Dir: Pierre Matisse
Modern paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Balthus, Reg Butler, Marc Chagall, Jean Dubuffet, Alberto Giacometti, Simon Hantaii, Loren MacIver, Marino Marini, Raymond Mason, Manolo Millares, Joan Miró, Jean-Paul Riopelle, Manuel Rivera, Theodore Roszak, Francois Rouan, Antonio Saura, Zao Wou-Ki.

2668. STEPHEN MAZOH & CO.
13 E 76th St 10021
(212) 737–2203 Mon–Fri 10–6
Dir: Stephen Mazoh
20th-century art.

Other artists represented:
Willem de Kooning, Jean Dubuffet, Alberto Giacometti, David Hockney, Henri Mattisse, Pablo Picasso, Jackson Pollack, Ad Reinhardt, Mark Rothko, Cy Twombly.

2669. DAVID MCKEE GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 688–595′ Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: David McKee/Renee McKee
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

Other artists represented:
Jake Berthot, Vija Celmins, Stuart Diamond, Philip Guston, Jim Huntington, Loren Madsen, Katherine Porter, Harvey Quaytman.

2670. LOUIS K. MEISEL GALLERY
141 Prince St 10012
(212) 677–1340 Daily 10–6
Dir: Louis K. Meisel
Abstract Illusionism and Photorealism.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Murray Alcosser, Tom Blackwell, Fran Bull, Hilo Chen, Evelyn Ellwood, George Green, Claudio Marzollo, Joyce Myers, Mel Ramos, Frank Roth, C. J. Yao*.

Other artists represented:
Charles Bell, Alan Dworkowitz, Audrey Flack, Mike Gallagher, Franz Gertsch, James Havard, Guy Johnson, Ron Kleemann, Steve Linn, Susan Pear Meisel, Wayne Miller, Jud Nelson, Riva Potoff, Theodoros Stamos, Mary Warner, Jerry Williams, Gahan Wilson, Alan Wolfson.

2671. MERIDIAN GALLERY
12 E 86th St 10028
(212) 737–6920 By appt
Dir: Alan Kass/Grace Kass
Contemporary graphics, paintings, watercolors.

Other artists represented:
Karel Appel, Marc Chagall, Antonio Clave, Jean Dubuffet, Marino Marini, Sebastian Matta, Joan Miro, Victor Vasarely.

2672. EDWARD H. MERRIN GALLERY
724 5th Ave 10019
(212) 757–2884 Sep–May, Tue–Sat 10–5; Jun–Aug, Tue–Fri 10–5
Dir: Edward H. Merrin
Ancient art: Pre-Columbian, Greek, Roman, Egyptian, Near Eastern.

2673. METRO PICTURES
169 Mercer St 10012
(212) 925–8335 Daily 10–6
Dir: Janelle Reiring/Helene Winer
Contemporary art; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eva Hesse, Louise Lawler, Thomas Lawson, Richard Prince, Walter Robinson, Cindy Sherman, James Welling, Michael Zwack.

Other artists represented:
Jack Goldstein, Mike Kelley, William Leavitt, Robert Longo, John Miller, Laurie Simmons.

2674. METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART
5th Ave at 82nd St 10028
(212) 879–5500 Tue 10–8:45, Wed–Sat 10–4:45, Sun 11–4:45
Dir: Phillipe de Montebello
Egypt, Greece, Rome, the Near and Far East, Europe, and the Americas: 5000 years of art, architecture, decorative arts, arms and armor, musical instruments.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Bellows, Albrecht Dürer, William T. Richards*, Frank Lloyd Wright.

2675. ELISE MEYER GALLERY
477 Broome St 10013
(212) 925–3527 By appt
Dir: Elise Meyer
Contemporary non-figurative work in many mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Cathey Billian, Charles Luce, David Nash, Francesc Torres.

Other artists represented:
Alfred DeCredico, Agnes Denes, Mary Beth Edelson, Adrienne Farb, Sandi Fellman, Lenke Rothman, Boaz Vaadia.

2676. JOAN MICHELMAN
23 E 74th St 10021
(212) 535–4524 Mon–Fri 10–6 by appt
Dir: Joan Michelman
Late-19th- and early-20th-century American and European paintings.

Other artists represented:
George Bellows, Adolphe William Bouguereau, Chase Cassatt, Jean-Leon Jerome, Frederick Leighton, Edward Potthast, Maurice Prendergast, Carl Rungius, Everett Shinn, John Twachtman.

2677. MIDTOWN GALLERIES
11 E 57th St 10022
(212) 758–1900 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Mrs. Alan Gruskin
Contemporary American art, 1930–1983.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Edward Betts, Ruth Cobb, Maurice Freedman, Richard Mayhew, Fred Meyer, William Palmer, Margit Varga.

Other artists represented:
Julian Binford, Isabel Bishop, Paul Cadmus, Charles Coiner, Bruce Currie, Stephen Etnier, Emlen Etting, Ethel Magafan, Hans Moller, Fred Nagler, Gregorio Prestopino, Jason Schoener, Robert Sivard, William Thon, Robert Vickrey.

2678. ROBERT MILLER GALLERY
724 5th Ave 10019
(212) 246–1625 Daily 10–5:30
Dir: John Cheim
Modern and contemporary art and photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Louise Bourgeois*, Louisa Chase, Janet Fish*, Jedd Garet*, Robert Graham, Al Held*, Roberto Juarez*, Alex Katz*, Lee Krasner*, George Sugarman.

Other artists represented:
Gregory Amenoff, Don Bachardy, William Brice, Ralston Crawford, Dana Garrett, Juan Hamilton, Jean Helion, Rodrigo Moynihan, William Sommer, Robert S. Zakanitch.

2679. ALEXANDER F. MILLIKEN
98 Prince St 10012
(212) 966–7800 Tue–Fri 10–6
Dir: Alexander F. Milliken
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arnold Bittleman, Richard Friedberg*, Richard Hambleton, Ed Hendricks, Paul Rickert, David Wojnarowicz.

Other artists represented:
Robert Berlind, Wendell Castle, Henry Cohen, Jillian Denby, David Fick, Frank Fleming, James Hansen, Steve Hawley, Bayat Keerl, Stephen Lorber, Lois Polansky, Richard Saba, Susumu Sakaguchi, Arlene Slavin, Susan Zises.

2680. MINGEI JAPANESE FOLK ART GALLERY
398 W Broadway, 2nd floor 10012
(212) 431–6176 Tue–Sat 12–5:30
Dir: Kinue Sugimoto
Early Japanese folk art.

---

*see catalog index

2681. MODERN MASTER TAPESTRIES
11 E 57th St 10022
(212) 838-0412 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Dominique Mazeaud
Hand-woven tapestries and fiber arts by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Adela Akers, Neda Al-Hilali, Dana Boussard, Lia Cook, Olga de Amaral, Mary Farmer, Francoise Grossen, Nancy Guay, Michelle Lester, Sheila O'Hara, Sherry Schreiber, Sherri Smith, Ethel Stein, Lenore Tawney, Connie Utterback.

2682. MONSALVE
126 Fifth Ave, 7th Fl 10011
(212) 675-8921 Tue-Sat 1-6; By appt
Dir: Jorge Monsalve
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Olga Donde, Xavier Esqueda, Maurice Ferron, Pedro Friedeberg, Jean-Alain Raffalli.

Other artists represented:
Jane Aruns, Jul Dufo, Oscar Gutman.

2683. MORNINGSTAR GALLERY
164 Mercer St 10012
(212) 334-9330 Wed-Fri 3:30-6; Sat, Sun 12-6; By appt
Dir: Jack Krumholz
Realist prints.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Will Barnet, Jane Freilicheo, Charles Klabunde, Kaiko Moti, Edward Ruscha, Judith Shahn, Tom Wesselmann.

2684. MULTIPLES, INC
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 977-7160 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Marian Goodman
Publishers of prints by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Arakawa, Richard Artschwager, Ed Baynard, Larry Bell, Marcel Broodthaers, Francesco Clemente, Jan Dibbets, Dan Flavin, Richard Hamilton, Robert Indiana, Jasper Johns, Sol Lewitt, Roy Lichtenstein, Claes Oldenburg, Mimmo Paladino, Bruce Porter, Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Susan Rothenberg, Ed Ruscha, Richard Tuttle, Ger van Elk, Andy Warhol, William Wegman, Tom Wesselmann, Robert Wilson.

2685. VICTORIA MUNROE

(212) 410-9179 By appt
Dir: Victoria Munroe
Works on paper, prints, ceramic sculpture, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Enid Munroe, Miklos Pogany, John Urbain, Charles W.Yeiser.

Other artists represented:
Sigmund Abeles, Roselyn Karol Ablow, Jane Ford Aebersold, Mary Anderson-Armstrong, Alexandra Antic, Barbara Apel, Rudy Autio, Christina Bertoni, Michele Boll, Robert Brady, Susan Bush, Deborah Cornell, Robert Ferrandini, Robert Ferris, William Flynn, Nan Freeman, Viola Frey, Harvey Goldman, Joseph Goldyne, Paul Harcharik, Rick Hirsch, Jan Holcomb, Herb Jackson, David Kelley, Nancy Lawton, Peter Milton, Antonia Munroe, Olivia Munroe, Anne Neely, Dennis Olsen, Walter Pashto, Paul Pollaro, Elsa Rady, Tom Rippon, Andrew Steveovich, Jain Tarnower, Sarah Westlake, William Wyman.

2686. MUSEO DEL BARRIO
1230 5th Ave 10029
(212) 831-7272 Tue-Fri 10:30-4
Dir: Jack Agueros
Puerto Rican and Hispanic paintings, sculpture, photographs, graphics, santos, Pre-Columbian artifacts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Myrna Baez*, Rafael Colon-Morales*, Marcos Dimas*.

2687. MUSEUM OF AMERICAN FOLK ART
49 W 53rd St 10019
(212) 581-2474 Tue 10:30-8, Wed-Sun 10:30-5:30
Dir: Robert Bishop
American folk art of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries: paintings, sculpture, textiles, pottery and furniture.

2688. MUSEUM OF HOLOGRAPHY
11 Mercer St 10013
(212) 925-0581 Wed-Sun 12-6
Dir: Rosemary H. Jackson
Historic, technological, and art holography exhibitions; artists-in-residence program, newsletter.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Aaron Kurzen*, Sam Moree*, Scott Nemtzow*, Andrew Pepper.

2689. MUSEUM OF MODERN ART
18 W 54th St 10019
(212) 708-9400 Thu-Tue 11-6, Thu eve 6-9
Dir: Richard E. Oldenburg
Painting and sculpture, drawings and prints, architecture and design, films, photographs. Collections from about 1880 to the present; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eugene Atget*, Louise Bourgeois*, Giorgio De Chirico*, Richard Neutra*, Frank Stella.

2690. MUSEUM OF THE AMERICAN INDIAN, HEYE FOUNDATION
Broadway at 155th St 10032
(212) 283-2420 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Roland W. Force
Ethnology of aboriginal peoples of the Americas.

2691. MUSEUM OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK
Fifth Ave and 103 St 10029
(212) 534-1672 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Joseph Veach Noble
Past, present, and future of New York; collections include theatre, toys, costume, decorative arts, prints, paintings, photographs.

2692. EDUARD NAKHAMKIN FINE ARTS
1070 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 734-0271 Wed-Sat 11-5:30, Sun 12-5
Dir: Nathan Berman
Contemporary Russian emigrant artists.

Other artists represented:
Mihail Chemiakin, Moisey Kogan, Yuri Krasny, Ernst Neizvestny, Shimon Oksteyn, Elya Peker, Gregory Perkel, Ilya Shenker, Oleg Tselkov, Igor Tulipanov.

2693. EDUARD NAKHAMKIN FINE ARTS
599 Broadway, 11th floor 10012
(212) 925-6040 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Eduard Nakhamkin
Contemporary Russian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mihail Chemiakian, Ernst Neizvestny, Gregory Perkel, Oleg Tselkov.

Other artists represented:
Igor Tulipanov.

2694. NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN
1083 5th Ave 10028
(212) 369-4880 Tue 12-8, Wed-Sun 12-5
Dir: John H. Dobkin
Specialization in contemporary and historical American art; European art; drawing, painting, sculpture, graphics, architecture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Le Corbusier, Edwin Dickinson*, Abbott Thayer*.

2695. NATIONAL ARTS CLUB
15 Gramercy Park S 10025
(212) 475-3424 Tue-Sun
Dir: Peter Cox
Membership club; gallery rented.

Welliver: Blue Pool, 1980; "Neil Welliver: Paintings 1966-80," Currier Gall. of Art, Manchester, N.H.

2696. NEW MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART
583 Broadway 10012
(212) 741-8962 Mon, Tue, Thu, Fri 12-6; Wed 12-8; Sat 12-5:30
Dir: Marcia Tucker
Exhibition, information, and documentation center for art of the last ten years; focuses on artists who have not yet received extensive exposure.

2697. NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY
170 Central Park W 10024
(212) 873-3400 Mon-Fri 11-5, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: James B. Bell
18th- and 19th-century American fine, folk, and decorative arts; portraits, photographs, Hudson River School, Audubon; library.

2698. NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY SCHOMBURG CENTER
515 Lenox Avenue 10037
(212) 862-4000 Mon-Wed 12-8, Thu-Sat 10-6
Dir: Catherine L. Hooker
Black art and history; gallery, library, archives.

2699. NEW YORK STUDIO SCHOOL GALLERY
8 W 8th St 10011
(212) 673-6466 Mon-Fri 10-6; Sat, Sun 10-4
Dir: Susan Slocum
Selected artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Detheux, David Grossblatt, John Heliker, Garry Nichols, Luis Felipe Noe.

2700. NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
Contemporary Arts Gallery, Loeb Student Center
566 La Guardia Place 10012
(212) 598-2027/598-2028 Daily 9-6
Dir: DeWayne N. Phillips
Student-operated gallery open four different months each year. Contemporary works by established and emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Brady, Eduardo Vera Cortez, Lorenzo Homar, Claudio Juarez, Armand Londono, Wendy Rose, Jaune Quick-to-See Smith, Emmi Whitehorse.

VOL
71
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

2701. NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
Grey Art Gallery and Study Center
33 Washington Place 10003
(212) 598-7603 Tue-Thu 10-6:30, Wed 10-8:30, Fri 10-5, Sat 1-5
Dir: Robert Littman
20th-century American painting, sculpture, graphics; Ben and Abby Weed Grey Collection of Contemporary Asian and Middle Eastern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John James Audubon*, Henry Botkin, David Hare, Frederick Kiesler, Samuel F.B. Morse*, John Stalin, Karl Zerbe.

2702. NEWHOUSE GALLERIES
19 E 66th St 10021
(212) 879-2700 Mon-Fri 9:30-5
Dir: Clyde M. Newhouse
Old master paintings; French and American Impressionists.

Other artists represented:
William Chase, J. B. C. Corot, Thomas Gainsborough, Childe Hassam, Henry Raeburn, George Romney.

2703. NIKON HOUSE
620 Fifth Ave 10021
(212) 586-3907/586-3908 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:45
Dir: Richard Clark
Photography.

2704. NIPPON CLUB GALLERY
145 W 57th St 10019
(212) 581-2223
Dir: Toru Mano
Exhibitions of traditional and contemporary Japanese, American, and international art and culture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Toshi Imai, Paul Jacoulet, Nippon Koh-do, Bokuden Matsuda, Yasuko Nakanishi, Yasuomi Nishizawa, Nami Oda, Sako Yoshitome.

2705. NOHO GALLERY
542 La Guardia Pl 10012
(212) 473-9619 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Leon C. Yost
Cooperative gallery; works in all mediums and styles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elaine Allen, Andres Amodio, Janet Bosse, Rebecca Cooperman, Sharon Florin, Nils Hill, Suzanne Jones, June Klensch, Dianne Martin, Ngyen Quynh, Margot Robinson, Olga Sheirr, John Silver, John Wingerter.

Other artists represented:
Emily Barnett, Robert Chotiner, Virginia Creighton, William Crist, Clyde Espenschied, Leon Greenstein, Dagmara Igals, Lynn Isaacson, Helen Langfield, Bibi Lencek, Evelyn Lopez de Guzman, Chuck Miley, Kate Millett, Keiichiro Momose, Beth Neville, Phyllis Peckar, Pat Ralph, Stephanie Rauschenbusch, Libby Robinson, Paul Sisko, Joe Woods, Anne Wysoker, Erma Martin Yost.

2706. NOORTMAN AND BROD
1020 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 772-3370 Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: R. Noortman/T. Brod/R. Merrington
19th-century European paintings; Old Master paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Adrian Brouwer*, David Teniers*.

2707. ANNINA NOSEI GALLERY
100 Prince St 10012
(212) 431-9253 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Annina Nosei
Emerging American, Italian, and German artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Michel Basquiat, Luciano Castelli, David Deutsch, Bernd Koberling, Keith Milow, Stephen Mueller, Donald Newman.

Other artists represented:
Jack Barth, Paolo Colombo, K. H. Hödicke, Barbara Kruger, Athos Ongaro, Mimmo Paladino, Mario Schifano, Ernesto Tatafiore.

2708. NOVO ARTS
59 E 11th St 10003
(212) 674-3093 Mon-Fri 9-6
Dir: Lynda Deppe
Contemporary painting, works on paper.

Other artists represented:
Raphael Barrios, Marlaina Deppe, Mihail.

2709. ODYSSIA GALLERY
730 5th Ave 10019
(212) 541-7520 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Odyssia A. Skouras
European and American painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jess.

Other artists represented:
William Allan, Robert Birmelin, Piero Guccione, Irving Petlin, Marjorie Portnow.

2710. OIL & STEEL GALLERY
157 Chambers St 10007
(212) 964-1567 Tue-Sat 12-5:30; By appt.
Dir: Richard Bellamy
Contemporary American sculpture and painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Manny Farber, David Rabinowitch.

Other artists represented:
Mark di Suvero, Richard Nonas, Myron Stout.

2711. OLSEN GALLERY
51 E 10 St 10003
(212) 473-0231 Tue-Fri 2-6, Sat 12-6
Dir: Nicole Klagsbrun

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carl Apfelschnitt, Sarah Charlesworth, Angela Ho, Suzanne Joelson, Olivier Mosset.

Other artists represented:
Clegg & Guttmann, David Kapp.

2712. 124 LIMITED ARTS EDITIONS
124 E 92nd St 10028
(212) 831-0358 Wed, Sat 1-6; By appt
Dir: Elsbeth Furlaud
Etching workshop and gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Adams, Paula Beldengreen, Clem Despard, Richard Lee, Karin Margules-Eppe.

2713. ORGANIZATION OF INDEPENDENT ARTISTS
201 Varick St 10014
(212) 929-6688 Mon-Fri 11-5
Dir: Debi Feiman
Sponsors artist-curated exhibitions in public spaces throughout the New York area.

2714. ORIGINAL PRINTS COLLECTORS' GROUP
215 Lexington Ave 10016
(212) 685-9400 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Jane Plant

Other artists represented:
Alexander Calder, Johnny Friedlander, Joan Miro, Pablo Picasso, Victor Vasarely.

2715. ORION EDITIONS
835 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 535-3006 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Fred Deitzel
Publishers of original prints.

Other artists represented:
Paul Brach, Gail Flanery, Jane Freilicher, Michael Goldberg, David Grubb, Nancy Hagin, Zarini Hashmi, Tony Jannetti, Angela Jansen, Hugh Kepets, Sandy Kinnee, Terence La Noue, Paul Narkiewicz, Roger Nelson, Elizabeth Osborne, Robert Quijada, David Shapiro, Dee Shapiro, Sharon Shiraga, Harriet Shorr, Harry Soviak, Bill Sullivan, Betty Tompkins.

2716. OSCARSSON HOOD GALLERY
41 W 57th St 10019
(212) 750-8640 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Victoria Oscarsson
Abstract contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bård Breivik, Jackie Brookner, Joseph Haske, Jene Highstein, Alfonso Ossorio, Thornton Willis.

Other artists represented:
Paul Brown, Valentina Dubasky, Carol Haerer, Rick Klauber, Frank Lobdell, Marsha Pels, Victor Pesce, Phil Sims, Jay Swift.

2717. PACE EDITIONS
32 E 57th St 10022
(212) 421-3237 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Glen McMillan
Contemporary prints, multiples, and tapestries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Chuck Close, Jim Dine, Jean Dubuffet, Michael Mazur, Louise Nevelson.

Other artists represented:
Al Held, Brice Marden, Saul Steinberg.

2718. PACE GALLERY OF NEW YORK
32 E 57th St 10022
(212) 421-3292 Tue-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-6
Dir: Arnold Glimcher/Jeffrey Hoffeld
20th-century paintings, drawings, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Dubuffet*, Robert Irwin, Brice Marden, Agnes Martin, Pablo Picasso*, Ad Reinhardt, Lucas Samaras*, Saul Steinberg*, Ernest Trova.

Other artists represented:
Chuck Close, Jim Dine, Barry Flanagan, Julio Gonzalez, Louise Nevelson, Isamu Noguchi, Mark Rothko, Tony Smith, David Von Schlegell.

2719. PACE MASTER PRINTS
32 E 57th St 10022
(212) 421-3237 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Alexandra Schwartz
19th- and 20th-century master prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Henri Matisse, Pablo Picasso.

Other artists represented:
Mary Cassatt, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

2720. PACE PRIMITIVE ART
32 E 57th St 10022
(212) 421-3688 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30; By appt
Dir: Bryce Holcombe
African art.

2721. PACE UNIVERSITY GALLERY
41 Park Row 10038
(212) 285-3352
Dir: Peter Fingesten
Theme and group shows.

2722. PAINTING SPACE 122 ASSOCIATION GALLERY
150 1st Ave 10009
(212) 533-4624 Thu-Sat 12-6
Dir: Arthur Natale
PS 122 is a collective providing space for shows by neighborhood and city-wide artists and curators.

2723. R. K. PARKER
157 Spring St 10012
(212) 925-6203 Tue-Sun 11-5
Dir: Fletcher Smith
Art Deco and contemporary sculpture; jewelry, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Josep Maria Subirachs.

Other artists represented:
D.H. Chiparus, Anthony Christian, Erté, Steven Meyers, Edward Samuels, Yens-Flemming Sorensen, Michael Wilkinson.

*see catalog index

2724. PAYSON WEISBERG
822 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 249-1666 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 10-5
Dir: Susan Weisberg
20th-century American paintings, drawings, and prints.

Other artists represented:
Arthur J. Beaumont, Johann Berthelsen, Alfred T. Bricher, Howard Russell Butler, John Gable, Paul King, Robert Kipniss, Bernard Langlais, John Laurent, Martha Margulis, Helen Meyrowitz, Ron Shwerrin, Lawrence Sisson, Beth Ames Swartz, Guy C. Wiggins.

2725. MARILYN PEARL GALLERY
38 E 57th St 10022
(212) 838-6310 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Marilyn Pearl
Early American geometric abstraction and contemporary American artists.

Other artists represented:
Anna Bialobroda, Bernard Chaet, Lawrence Fane, Stephen Greene, Clinton Hill, Michael Loew, Winifred Lutz, Richard Lytle, Henry Pearson, Pedro Perez, Matt Phillips, Leo Rabkin, Barbara Siegel, Charmion von Wiegand.

2726. MARIE PELLICONE GALLERY
47 Bond St 10012
(212) 475-3899 Tue-Sat 12-5:30
Dir: Marie Pellicone
Contemporary fine art: all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Fedorov, Ted Jeremenko, Anna Jurinich, Olivera Sajkovic, Richard Toglia, Rita Hill Torlen.

Other artists represented:
Charles Balth, Arthur Cohen, Michael Donohue, John Knutila, Peter Moreno, Mort Ostrer, William Pellicone, Gissela Roessiger, Jacqueline Wilentz.

2727. PERLS GALLERIES
1016 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 472-3200 Daily 10-5
Dir: Klaus G. Perls
Modern artists.

Other artists represented:
Alexander Archipenko, George Braque, Alexander Calder, Marc Chagall, Juan Gris, Ferdinand Leger, Aristide Maillol, Joan Miró, Pablo Picasso, Georges Rouault.

2728. PETERSBURG PRESS
17 E 74th St 10021
(212) 249-4400 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30; Sep-May Sat 10-5
Dir: Susan Larence
Publishers of contemporary prints, books, posters, catalogs, Livres d'Artiste.

2729. MARCUSE PFEIFER GALLERY
825 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 737-2055 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Cusie Pfeifer
Photography, paintings, and sculpture.

Other artists represented:
E.J. Bellocq, Fredrich Cantor, Susan Chang, Lois Conner, Carlotta Corpron, Barbara Crane, Robert D'Alessandro, Nell Dorr, Timothy Greenfield-Sanders, David Hanson, Kipton Kumler, Scott MacLeay, Hiromitsu Morimoto, Joan Myers, Olivia Parker, Rosamond Purcell, Lilo Raymond, Linn Sage, Clara Sipprell, Robert Steinberg, Jean-Pierre Sudre, Keiichi Tahara, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen.

2730. PHOENIX GALLERY
30 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245-5095 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Rachel Rolon-DeClet
Non-profit: contemporary art, various mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sally Friedman, Anne Helioff, Satish Joshi, Michael Murphy, Margaret Pomfret, Marquerite Saegesser, Elena Urbaitis.

Other artists represented:
Anneli Arms, Rela Basks, Loraine McLaury Bouldin, Adele Colen, Karen Erla, Iris Fioravanti, Cecily Firestein, Janet Goldner, Harri, Joan Hierholzer, Elena Kepalas, Doris Klein, Eleanore Lockspeiser, Joanne McFarland, Betty McGeehan, Joan Miller, Edith Posel, Nancy Stover, Eileen Sutton, Jo Warner, Alice Wise.

2731. PIERPONT MORGAN LIBRARY
29 E 36th St 10016
(212) 685-0008 Tue-Sat 10:30-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Charles A. Ryskamp
Permanent collection of drawings, prints, mediaeval and Renaissance manuscripts, printed books and bindings, autograph and musical manuscripts, ancient written records.

2732. PIETRASANTA FINE ARTS
121 E 24th St 10010
(212) 254-5610 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: Gino Giannaccini
Bronze and marble sculpture; sculpture casting studio.

Other artists represented:
Bradley Arthur, Stanley Bleifeild, Pietro Cascella, Andrea Grassi, Nat Kaz, Bruno Lucchesi, Ernest Neizvetny, Patricia Pickman, Roberto Sandoval, Carrie Schatz, Lynne Wittkin.

2733. PINDAR GALLERY
127 Greene St 10012
(212) 533-4881 Tue-Sat 11-5:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Stella Pisetzner
Fiber, sculpture, steel, clay, acrylics, watercolors, graphics, mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Bavar, Rita Edelman, Harriet Gans, Phyllis Gaughran, Phyllis Hammond, Marilynne Herbert, Naomi Hilton, Elaine Huyer, Agnes Janson, Babs Kent, Nancy Langer, Karen Lewis, Eve Licea, Linda Nisselson, Martha Reinken, Vera Schupack, Rosa Silverman, Carol Unger, Mark Wilensky.

Other artists represented:
Westa Delagi, Kiyomi Iwata, Doris Lubell, Martha Marqulis.

2734. PLEIADES GALLERY
164 Mercer St 10012
(212) 226-9093 Tue-Sun 11-6
Figurative, abstract, and experimental art; painted sculpture; works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pam Ader, Bernice Halpern, Lillian Marzell, Ina Ovreceski, Lydia Sugarman, Joel Tarlowe, Irene Wheeler.

2735. POINDEXTER GALLERY
1160 5th Ave 10029
(212) 831-2520 Wed-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Elinor Poindexter
Contemporary American painting and sculpture.

2736. POOLE-WILLS GALLERY
104 Franklin St 10013
(212) 334-9220 Mon-Sat 11-6
Dir: Jonathan Poole/Richard Wills
Contemporary European sculpture and painting.

Other artists represented:
Michael Ayrton, David Blackhouse, Ralph Brown, James Butler, Michael Cooper, Henri Guibal, Harold Langland, Tom Merrifield, Miguel Moreno, Andreas Nottebohm, Enzo Plazzotta, Ramon Santiago, Dennis Westwood.

2737. THEO PORTNOY GALLERY
56 W 57th St 10019
(212) 757-0461 Tue-Fri 10-5:30, Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Theo Portnoy
Sculpture: ceramic, glass, forged metal, wood.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Bacerra, Dan Dailey, Jack Earl, Marvin Jensen, Lucian Octavius Pompili, John Roloff, Tommy Simpson, Victor Spinski, Bill Stewart, Dale Traugott, Mary Ann Toots Zynsky.

2738. PORTRAITS, INC.
985 Park Ave 10028
(212) 879-5560 Mon-Fri 10-5
Works by American contemporary portrait printers and sculptors.

Other artists represented:
Robert Anderson, George Augusta, Arianne Beigneux, Liesel Boose, Pamela Firestone Bowman, Georgi Daskaloff, Felix De Cassio, Norman Dickinson, William Draper, Peter Egeli, Furman Finck, Dennis Fritz, Ray Goodbred, Daniel Greene, H. Harari, Patricia Johnson, Everett Raymond Kinstler, Adrian Lamb, Irene Mason, John McClelland, Albert Murray, Terina O'Bourke, George Passantino, Franklin Peterson, Alan Price, John Howard Sanden, Nelson Shanks, Aaron Shikler, Robert Skemp, Clyde Smith, William A. Smith, Peter Stevens, Rudolph Zallinger.

2739. POSTER ORIGINALS
924 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 861-0422 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Dominique Gervais
Contemporary American and European art posters.

2740. POSTER ORIGINALS
158 Spring St 10012
(212) 226-7720 Tue-Sat 11-6, Sun 12-6
Publisher and distributor of American and European art posters.

2741. PRAKAPAS GALLERY
19 E 71st St 10021
(212) 737-6066 Tue 11-8, Wed-Sat 11-6
Dir: Eugene J. Prakapas
20th-century Modernism; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Florence Henri.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Atget, Hans Bellmer, T. Lux Feininger, Man Ray, Laszlo Moholy-Nagy, Josef Sudek, Leon Tutenjian, Piet Zwart.

2742. PRATT MANHATTAN CENTER GALLERY
160 Lexington Ave 10016
(212) 636-3517 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Ellen Schwartz/Andrew Stasik
Contemporary and historical prints in thematic exhibitions with catalogs and educational programs; emerging and established artists working in all graphic mediums.

2743. ELLEN PRICE GALLERY
26 W 75th St 10023
(212) 580-9734 By appt
Dir: Ellen Price
Contemporary abstract art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kenneth Wahl.

Other artists represented:
Kent Floeter, Richard Kidd, Louis Lieberman, Ross Neher, Michael Torlen.

2744. PRINCE STREET GALLERY
121 Wooster St 10012
(212) 226-9402 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Monica Bernier
Contemporary figurative artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sally Amster, Bob Braczyk, Cynthia Costello, Nancy Prusinowski, Gina Werfel.

Other artists represented:
Monica Bernier, Marie-Annick Brown, Tom Duncan, Sharyn Finnegan, Susan Grabel, Elizabeth Grubic, Don Kimes, Marion Lerner-Levine, Arthur Levine, David Lowe, Gerald Marcus, Peter Martinez, Marcie Rosenblat, Mary Salstrom, Janet Schneider, Chris Semergieff, Norma Shatan, Frances Siegel, Salina Trieff, Alexander Wallace.

2745. PRINTED MATTER
7 Lispenard St 10013
(212) 925-0325 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Nancy Linn
Artists' books, periodicals, and audioworks.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2746. PRINTMAKING WORKSHOP
114 W 17th St 10011
(212) 989-6125 By appt
Dir: Robert Blackburn
Non-profit; individual and group studio facilities; extensive sales collection of work by participating artists; classes.

2747. MAX PROTETCH GALLERY
37 W 57th St 10019
(212) 838-7436 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Fran Nelson
Contemporary American and European painting, sculpture, and architectural drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Scott Burton, Phillip Pavia, John Rauch, Denise Scott Brown, Robert Venturi.

Other artists represented:
Siah Armajani, Jackie Ferrara, Michael Graves, John Hejduk, Pat Steir.

2748. PROTETCH/MCNEIL
214 Lafayette St 10012
(212) 226-8957
Dir: Richard Flood

Other artists represented:
Andrea Blum, Bobby G, Willy Heeks, Christof Kohlhofer, Ricardo Regazzoni, Frank Young.

2749. P.S.D. FINE ARTS CORPORATION
1100 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 988-1441 Mon-Fri 10-5:30
Dir: Marie-Claude Fischer/Jean Zimmermann
Old masters; 19th-20th-century European paintings, sculpture, drawings.

2750. PUTUMAYO FOLK ART GALLERY
857 Lexington Ave 10021
(212) 734-3111 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Cynthia Mead
European and American naive painting, folk sculpture, masks, puppets, santos, antique textiles, and ceramics.

Other artists represented:
Minnie Deschamps, Frank Franklin, Santiago Rojas, Ana Sokol, Christine Thouzeau.

2751. JILL QUASHA
177 E 71st St 10021
(212) 472-3150
Dir: Jill Quasha
20th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Harry Callahan, Robert Frank, Andre Kertesz, Nicholas Nixon, Victor Schrager, Paul Strand, Maurice Tabard.

2752. RANDALL GALLERIES
823 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628-2097 Daily 9:30-5:30
Dir: L. G. Randall
19th-, 20th-century, and contemporary works; Yugoslav naive paintings.

Other artists represented:
Charles Alston, Branko Bahunek, Doris Caesar, Harry Caesar, Edward Clark, Milton Hebald, Iris Kaplan, William P. Katz, Kieff, Ivan Lackovic, Harold Leroy, Draciga Loncaric, Bob Longhurst, Philip Perkins, Michi Raphael, Claire Rosner, Karl Schmidt, Soshana, Thea Tewi, Anthony Thieme, Stephan Weiss, Larry Young.

2753. RAYDON GALLERY
1091 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 288-3555 Daily 11-6
Dir: Alexander R. Raydon
Works from Renaissance to the present; 19th-20th-century American art.

Other artists represented:
Johann Berthelsen, Albert Besnard, Norman Bluhm, Charles Burchfield, Gene Charlton, Arthur Bowen Davies, Gisela Hernandez, Eugene Higgins, Antonio Jacobsen, Henri Lebasque, DeWitt McCellan Lockman, Jane Peterson, Irene Rice-Pereira, Jean Riopelle, Florence Robinson, Roger Selchow, Rodulfo Tardo, Oscar Thalinger, Helene Trosky, Taro Yamamoto.

2754. REECE GALLERIES
39 W 32nd St 10001
(212) 695-6078
Dir: Shirley Reece/Leon Reece
Corporate art specialists; limited edition graphics; contemporary and traditional art.

Other artists represented:
John Black, Arlene Cornell, Dennis Frings, Carol Rosen, Marko Spalatin, George Speck, Frederick Terna.

2755. REINHOLD-BROWN GALLERY
26 E 78th St 10021
(212) 734-7999 Tue-Sat 10:30-5
Dir: Susan Reinhold/Robert K. Brown
20th-century graphic posters.

Other artists represented:
Peter Behrens, Lucian Bernhard, A. M. Cassandre, Jules Cheret, Marcello Dudovitch, Armin Hoffman, Ludwig Hohlwein, Paul Rand, Jan Tschichold.

2756. REISS-COHEN
10028
(212) 628-2494 By appt
Dir: Jody Robbins
19th-20th-century European graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pablo Picasso*.

Other artists represented:
Georges Braque, Mary Cassatt, Marc Chagall, Fernand Leger, Henri Matisse, Pierre Auguste Renoir, Georges Rouault, Frank Stella, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec.

2757. SARAH Y. RENTSCHLER GALLERY
450 W 24th St 10011
(212) 929-0192 Oct-May, Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Sarah Y. Rentschler
Works by emerging contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Augustus Goertz III, Susan Rowland, Dinah Maxwell Smith.

Other artists represented:
Jonathan H. Becker; Nancy Chadwick, Willem De Looper, Louise Egbert, Kate Foster, Peter Gourfain, Sophie Healy, Jean Holabird, Susan Laufer, Betsy Margolius, George Mittendorf, Fay Peck, Lowell Reiland, Rory Rodner, Florence Rowe-Libin, Deanna Sirlin, Sheila Smith, Lori Solondz. Sylvia Thompson, Francine Tint, Nancy Van Deren, Ann Parker Wigglesworth, Jamis Wilcox, Andrea Woodner.

2758. RICCO-JOHNSON GALLERY
475 Broome St 10013
(212) 966-0541 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Roger R. Ricco
18th-20th-century American folk and naive art; antiques, furniture, quilts.

Other artists represented:
Rodney Rosebrook.

2759. ANN KENDALL RICHARDS
58 E 92nd St 10028
(212) 534-5536 By appt
Dir: Ann Kendall Richards
Prints and works on paper by 20th-century artists.

Other artists represented:
Catherine Warren.

2760. RICHEBOURG/MCCOY
19 E 71st St 10021
(212) 410-5588 By appt
20th-century painting, sculpture, drawing.

2761. RIZZOLI GALLERY
712 5th Ave 10019
(212) 397-3712 Mon-Sat 9:30-10
Dir: John Brancati
Contemporary works; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Haas, Giancarlo Impiglia*, Rob Krier*, Stanley Tigerman.

Other artists represented:
Grazia de Santis, Eugene Omar Goldbeck, Ruth Orkin.

2762. ESTA ROBINSON GALLERY
222 Park Ave S 10003
(212) 475-2434 By appt
Dir: Esta Robinson

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Phoebe Adams, Chris Costan, Kathy Grove, Lisa Klinghoffer, Larry List, Joseph Perilla, Ralph Wickiser.

Other artists represented:
Tom Boutis, Audrey Code, Kathy Halstead, Miriam Isrummer, Craig Manister, Larry Warshaw, Arnold Wechsler, Elaine Wechsler.

2763. MARGARETE ROEDER FINE ART
545 Broadway 10012
(212) 925-6098 By appt
Dir: Margarete Roeder
Fine art, music scores, choreographic notations, drawings, and prints.

Other artists represented:
John Cage, Philip Corner, Merce Cunningham, Douglas Dunn, Jon Gibson, David Tudor.

2764. ROLLY-MICHAUX GALLERIES
943 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 535-1460 Daily 10:30-5:30
Dir: Ronald Rolly/Ronald Michaux
Modern master graphics; contemporary American and School of Paris paintings; sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Karel Appel, Marino Marini, Jose Garcia Ocejo.

Other artists represented:
Miguel Berrocal, Alexander Calder, George D'Almeida, Sonia Delaunay, Thomas McKnight, Joan Miró, Roy Moyer, Victor Salmones, Al Wilson.

2765. RONIN GALLERY
605 Madison Ave 10022
(212) 688-0188 Daily 10-6
Dir: Roni Neuer
17th- to 20th-century Japanese woodblock prints, netsuke, inro, and tsuba.

2766. PAUL ROSENBERG & CO
20 E 79th St 10021
(212) 472-1134 Daily 9:30-5:30
Dir: Alexandre P. Rosenberg
Renaissance to 20th-century European art.

2767. ALEX ROSENBERG GALLERY/TRANSWORLD ART
20 W 57th St 10019
(212) 757-2700 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Alex Rosenberg/Carole Rosenberg
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photography; print publisher.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steven Brown, Ann Chernow*, James Coignard*, Ilse Getz*, Ginette Heuman*, Howard Kanovitz*, Lila Katzen*.

Other artists represented:
Dina Gabos, Michael Halsband, Diana Kurz, Sven Lukin, Marino Marini, Henry Moore, Gordon Parks, Mark Tobey, Stephen Woodburn, Manoucher Yektai.

2768. ROTHSCHILD FINE ARTS
205 West End Ave 10023
(212) 873-9142 By appt
Dir: John D. Rothschild/Carolyn A. Rothschild
European and American paintings, drawings, and sculpture from French Impressionism to 1965.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Andre Dunoyer de Segonzac, Reginald Marsh, Camille Pissarro.

2769. JEFFREY RUESCH FINE ARTS
398 W Broadway 10012
(212) 925-1137 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Jeffrey Ruesch
Art Nouveau and Art Deco works on paper; contemporary prints.

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Jeffery Beardsall, Gail Bruce, Brad Butler, Don Geyra, Lanny Lizemore, Marianne Vecsey.

2770. MARY RYAN GALLERY
452 Columbus Ave 10024
(212) 799-2304 Tue-Sat 12-7, Sun 1-5
Dir: Mary Ryan
American prints and drawings from 1920s to the present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Bumbeck, Adolf Dehn, Barry Moser, Stow Wengenroth.

Other artists represented:
Sigmund Abeles, Ward Davenny, Harry Gottlieb, Richard Harden, Nona Hershey, Philip Reisman, John Sloan, Stuyvesant Van Veen.

2771. SERGE SABARSKY GALLERY
987 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628-6281 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Serge Sabarsky
German and Austrian Expressionism.

Other artists represented:
Otto Dix, Lyonel Feininger, George Grosz, Erich Heckel, Alexej Jawlensky, Paul Klee, Gustav Klimt, Emil Nolde.

2772. A. M. SACHS GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 421-8686 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Laurence Rizzio
Contemporary American paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Power Boothe, Alice Dalton Brown, Dorothy Dehner, John Ferren*, John Gundelfinger, Dieter Jung, Geri Taper, Sally Vagliano.

Other artists represented:
Bert Carpenter, Doug Maguire, Dennis Masback, Roger Laux Nelson, Ben Norris, Stephen Pace, Jon Schueler.

2773. SAIDENBERG GALLERY
1018 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 288-3387 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 1-5
Dir: Daniel Saidenberg/Eleanore Saidenberg
20th-century European paintings, graphics, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gyorgy Kepes.

Other artists represented:
Herbert Bayer, Paul Klee, Fernand Leger, Andre Masson, Pablo Picasso.

2774. SALANDER-O'REILLY GALLERIES
22 E 80th St 10021
(212) 879-6606 Daily 10-5:30
Dir: L. & B. Salander/W. O'Reilly
20th-century American art from modernist to contemporary painters.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton*, Dan Christensen, Charles Demuth, John Adams Griefen, Darryl Hughto, Susan Roth, Kikuo Saito, Morton Livingston Schamberg*, Larry Zox.

Other artists represented:
Henry Billings, Alexander Brook, Andre Fauteux, Joaquin Torres Garcia, Meraud Guevara, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, Peter Reginato, Charles Rosen, Clifford Ross, Eugene Speicher, Carol Sutton.

2775. SPENCER A. SAMUELS
13 E 76th St 10021
(212) 988-4556 By appt
Dir: Spencer Samuels
Drawing, painting, and sculpture from 14th- to 20th-century.

2776. WILLIAM H. SCHAB GALLERY
11 E 57 St 10022
(212) 758-0327 Daily 9:30-5:30
Dir: Frederick G. Schab
Old and modern prints, drawings, rare books.

2777. MARTHA SCHAEFFER
500 E 77th St, Suite 512 10162
(212) 794-9712 By appt
Dir: Martha Schaeffer
Paintings, drawings, prints, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Jackie Battenfield, Beck and Jung, Bruce Brand, David Bumbeck, Richard Carter, Richard Hallam, Pat Hammerman, Jean Solombre.

2778. SCHLESINGER-BOISANTE
822 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 734-3600 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Stephen Schlesinger
American art of the 1930s-40s, WPA; contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Hannelore Baron, Ralph Rosenborg.

Other artists represented:
Robert Brandy, Byron Browne, Fritz Bultman, Federico Castellon, Balcomb Greene, Justen Ladda, Judy Levy, Fred Lynch, John Sanders, Fred Schulz, Joe Solman, Paula Tavins, Werner Tübke, Steve Wheeler.

2779. ROBERT SCHOELKOPF GALLERY
825 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 879-4638 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Robert Schoelkopf
20th-century American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Bailey*, Martha Mayer Erlebacher, Raymond Han, Keith Jacobshagen, Gabriel Laderman, Isabel McIlvain, Edward Schmidt.

Other artists represented:
Milet Andrejevic, Leland Bell, Hans Burkhardt, Natalie Charkow, Bruno Civitico, Barbara Cushing, Daniel Dallman, Manierre Dawson, Gertrude Fiske, Philip Grausman, DeWitt Hardy, Walter Hatke, Gaston Lachaise, Paul Manship, Louisa Matthiasdottir, Jan Matulka, Elie Nadelman, Richard Piccolo, Bonnie Sklarski, Joseph Stella, John Storrs, Paul Wiesenfeld, William Wilkins.

2780. SCHOOL OF VISUAL ARTS
Visual Arts Museum
209 E 23rd St 10010
(212) 679-7350 ext 287
Dir: Jeanie Blake
Contemporary American work in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kenneth Noland.

2781. SCHWEITZER GALLERY
958 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 535-5430 Mon-Fri 10-5:30
Dir: M. Schweitzer
European old masters; European and American 19th-early-20th-century works.

2782. SCULPTURE CENTER
167 E 69th St 10021
(212) 879-0430 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Marian Griffiths
Non-profit; contemporary sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Helene Brandt, Melvin Edwards, Jonathan Shahn.

2783. SEGAL GALLERY
63 E 57th St 10022
(212) 486-2297 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: David Segal/Tama Segal
Southwestern, contemporary, and American Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Brian Blount, Felice Lucero-Giaccardo, Kevin Red Star, Veloy Vigil.

Other artists represented:
John Dawson, Darrel Dunlap, Cliff Fragua, Michael Raburn, Barbara Sandler.

2784. SEGAL GALLERY
339 Columbus Ave 10023
(212) 724-7244 Tue-Sat 12-7
Dir: Tama Segal

Other artists represented:
Brian Blount, Steve Kenny, Vera Lightstone, Kevin Red Star, Barbara Sandler, Bill Schenck, Veloy Vigil.

2785. YVONNE SEGUY GALLERY
61 W 62nd St, Harkness Plaza 10023
(212) 265-3314
Dir: Carl Hinzpeter
Two spaces; international 20th-century art; lithographs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Carter, Ana Mendieta, Peter Passuntino, R. Policello.

Other artists represented:
Pacheco Altamirano, Dr. Atl, Claudio Bravo, Josely Carvalho, Gudrum Frady, Ismael Frigerio, Shelley Haven, Charles-Louis LaSalle, Diego Rivera, Jose Maria Velasco.

2786. SEGY GALLERY OF AFRICAN ART
50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 355-3859
Dir: Ladislas Segy
Established in Paris 1922; exhibition of ancient sculpture from West and Central Africa.

2787. SEMAPHORE
462 W Broadway 10012
(212) 228-7990 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Barry Blinderman
Paintings and paper works by contemporary American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Colescott*, Dan Freeman, John Hoffer, Mark Schwartz.

Other artists represented:
Nancy Dwyer, Duncan Hannah, Charles Mingus, Larry Nelson, Mike Ross, Louise Sloane, Gregg Smith, Walter Steding, Tom Warren.

2788. SERRA-DI FELICE
295 Lafayette 10012
(212) 334-8192
Dir: Attanasio di Felice/Paolo Serra
Contemporary American, European, and Italian Modern.

Other artists represented:
Tony Bevan, Dike Blair, David Bowes, Patrizia Cantalupo, Aurora Cortese, Jamie Dalglish, Scott Davis, Pietra Fortuna, Peter Grass, Mark Kostabi, Sabina Mirri, Bernd Naber, Luigi Ontani, Dennis Oppenheim, Milo Reice, Sy Ross.

2789. 724 PRINTS
93 Mercer St 10012
(212) 431-1890 Tue-Fri 10:30-5
Dir: Nancy Melzer/Dorothy Pearlstein
Contemporary graphics; print publishers.

Other artists represented:
Frances Barth, Carolyn Brady, Cynthia Carlson, Susan Crile, Jane Freilicher, Christos Gianakos, Steve Gianakos, Terrence La Noue, Paul Narkiewicz, Philip Pearlstein, Susan Shatter, Arlene Slavin, George Sugarman, Lynton Wells.

2790. 70TH ART GALLERY
130 E 70th St 10021
(212) 472-2234 Mon-Fri 9:30-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: Juan Rodriguez
New York artists of the 1930s and 1940s.

Other artists represented:
Daniel Celentano, M. Anthony Fisher, James Hansen, Victor Manuel, Olaf Olson, Ann Ryan.

2791. TONY SHAFRAZI GALLERY
163 Mercer St 10012
(212) 925-8732 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Annie Plumb
Works in all mediums by emerging contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ronnie Cutrone, Keith Haring*.

Other artists represented:
Donald Baechler, James Brown, Sarah Charlesworth, Brett De Palma, Futura 2000, Kenny Scharf, Philip Smith, Zadik Zadikian.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2792. SHEPHERD GALLERY
21 E 84th St 10028
(212) 861-4050 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: R. Kashey/M. Reymert
Pre-Impressionist European paintings, drawings, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Antoine-Louis Barye, Auguste Clessinger, Thomas Couture, Amselm Feuerbach, Hippolyte Flandrin, Theodore Gericault, Jean Leon Gérôme, Max Klinger, Jean Francois Millet, Mauritz von Schwind.

2793. H. SHICKMAN GALLERY
1000 Park Ave 10028
(212) 249-3800 By appt
Dir: Herman Shickman
Old master paintings and drawings; 19th-century French paintings.

2794. SIEGEL CONTEMPORARY ART
24 W 57th St 10019
(212) 288-9200 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Michael Walls
Paintings, works on paper, and installations by American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roxanne Blanchard, Moe Brooker, Jerry Buchanan, Susan Eder, Kathleen Gilje, Douglas Higgins, Robert Jessup, Rex Lau, Diane Mayo, David Schirm, Maria Scotti.

Other artists represented:
Anne Abrons, David Craven, Joseph DiGiorgio, Mark A. Kloth, Marilyn Lenkowsky, Charles Munch, Alan Uglow, Jerry Zeniuk.

2795. NATHAN SILBERBERG FINE ARTS
16 E 79th St 10021
(212) 861-6192 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Nathan Silberberg
Contemporary international artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henry Moore, Nabezda Vitorvic.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Antoni Clave, Montserat Gudiol, Joan Miró, Joan Peri Viladecans.

2796. LINDA R. SILVERMAN
160 E 65th St 10021
(212) 794-1352 By appt
European and American contemporary paintings and sculpture.

2797. MERTON D. SIMPSON GALLERY
1063 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 988-6290 Tue-Sat 11-6; By appt
Dir: Paula Andros
African, Oceanic and American Indian art.

2798. SINDIN GALLERIES
1035 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 288-7902 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Edward Sindin
Contemporary figurative sculpture, drawings, paintings, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Marshall Arisman, Luis Caballero, Benjamin Canas, Alicia Czechowski, Harvey Dinnerstein, Carole Jeane Feuerman, Milo Lazarevic, Shozo Nagano, Paul Rahilly, Burt Silverman, Giuliano Vangi, Masamichi Yamamoto, Francisco Zuñiga.

2799. SMITH GALLERY
1045 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 744-6171 Sep-Jun Tue-Sat 11-6, Jul Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Patricia Smith
American and British marine paintings; Western paintings; folk sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Harry Barton, John Duillo, Harry Jackson, Keith Miller, Albert Nemethy, Gregory Sumida, Paul Surber, Don Troiani, Mark Whitcombe.

2800. SOHO CENTER FOR VISUAL ARTISTS
110-114 Prince St 10012
(212) 226-1995 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Larry Aldrich
Non-profit gallery for emerging New York artists; artists' reference library.

Other artists represented:
S. Adam, Jane Aruns, Michael Blaine, Marcy Brafman, Tony Cleto, Barbara Coleman, Peggy Cyphers, Mariano De Blas, Claudia De Monte, Vincent Falsetta, Joan Fisher, Jack Forsell, Lori Ellen Goodman, Philip Jones, Marjukka Kaminen, Koji Kawai, Nina Kayem, Andromahi P. Kefalos, Shoko Kingetsu, Paul Laster, Michael Lewis, Valerie Markwood, Gregg Morris, Nicola Naimo, Ann Neale, Ramiro Nunez, Marilla Palmer, Peter San Filippo, Claire Seidl, Arlene Sierra, Ken Sofer, Mario Sotolongo, Duston Spear, Cynthia Suerstedt, Rhonda Wall, Arnold Wechsler, Tony Wong, Pamela Wye, Chi-hung Yang.

2801. SOHO PHOTO
15 White St 10013
(212) 226-8571 Fri, Sat, Sun 1-6; Tue eve 7-9
Dir: David Chalk
Members' exhibitions of photography.

2802. SOHO 20
469 Broome St 10013
(212) 226-4167 Tue-Sat 12-6
Contemporary art by women.

Other artists represented:
Marjorie Abramson, Linda Bastian, Lorna Bieber, Judy Blum, Linda Cunningham, Rachel Rolon De Clet, Mary Ann Gillies, Shirley Gorelick, Eve Ingalls, Gail Le Boff, Cynthia Mailman, Judy Penzner, Marion Ranyak, Halina Rusak, Lucy Sallick, B.K. Scharbach, Rosalind Shaffer, Sylvia Sleigh, Kwok-Yee Tai, Joan Watts.

2803. SOLOMON & COMPANY FINE ART
959 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 737-8200 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Gerald Solomon
American and European 20th-century works of art.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Willem de Kooning, Jim Dine, Jean Dubuffet, Helen Frankenthaler, Adolph Gottlieb, Hans Hofmann, Jasper Johns, Roy Lichtenstein, Henry Moore, Robert Rauschenberg.

2804. HOLLY SOLOMON GALLERY
392 W Broadway 10012
(212) 925-1900 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Holly Solomon/Horace Solomon
Works in all mediums by contemporary American artists.

Other artists represented:
Nicholas Africano, Laurie Anderson, Jared Bark, Gary Burnley, Michael Buthe, Sam Cady, Brad Davis, Donna Dennis, Tina Girouard, Christopher Knowles, Robert Kushner, Thomas Lanigan-Schmidt, Kim MacConnel, Gordon Matta-Clark, Mark Milloff, Michael Mogavero, Claes-Otto Paeffgen, Judy Pfaff, Sigmar Polke, Janis Provisor, George Schneeman, Alexis Smith, Ned Smyth, Aldo Spoldi, William Wegman, Lynton Wells, Joe Zucker.

2805. SONNABEND GALLERY
420 W Broadway 10012
(212) 966-6160 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Antonio Homem
Contemporary European and American art; German photographers of 1920s-1930s.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Georg Baselitz, Mel Bochner, Christian Boltanski, James Casebere, Jorg Immendorff, Alain Kirili, Erica Lennard, A.R. Penck, Robert Rauschenberg, Terry Winters.

Other artists represented:
John Baldessari, Bernd Becher, Hilla Becher, Bevan Davies, Jack Delano, Gilbert and George, Michael Goldberg, Marcia Hafif, David Haxton, David Hockney, Horst, Anselm Kiefer, Jannis Kounellis, Barry Le Va, Robert Morris, Robert Petersen, Anne Poirier, Patrick Poirier, Elliot Schwartz, Kathleen Seltzer, Hiroshi Sugimoto, Deborah Turbeville, Boyd Webb, Gilberto Zorio.

Gladys Manuelito: Shootingway, Wheelwright Mus. of the American Indian, Santa Fe.

2806. SONNABEND GALLERY
121 Spring St 10012
(212) 334-9659 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Antonio Homem
See Sonnabend Gallery, 420 Broadway listing.

2807. SOUFER GALLERY
1015 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 628-3225 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: M. Soufer
Post-Impressionist and 1920s-30s European painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Azuz, George Grosz, André Lhote, Ira Moskowitz.

Other artists represented:
Jean Dufy, Jean-Jacques Rene.

2808. SOUTH STREET SEAPORT MUSEUM
207 Front St 10038
(212) 766-9020 Daily 11-5
Dir: John B. Hightower
Historic restoration on East River; buildings, exhibitions; 18th-, 19th-, and 20th-century decorative and fine arts.

2809. SPACED GALLERY OF ARCHITECTURE
165 W 72nd St 10023
(212) 787-6350 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Judith York Newman
Drawings, etchings, models, and other works by architects.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Macaulay.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Aronson, Edward Chrystie, Gerald Exline, Arata Isozaki, Victor Lazzaro, James Rossant, Paul Rudolph, Frank Lloyd Wright.

2810. IRA SPANIERMAN
50 E 78th St 10021
(212) 879-7085 Tue-Sat 9:30-5:30
Dir: Reagan Upshaw
19th- to early-20th-century American paintings and sculpture.

2811. SPERONE WESTWATER FISCHER
142 Greene St 10012
(212) 431-3685 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Angela Westwater
Contemporary painting, sculpture, and recent European art.

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sandro Chia, Francesco Clemente, Enzo Cucchi, Don Gummer, Richard Long, Mario Merz, Bruce Nauman, Cy Twombly.

Other artists represented:
Gerard Garouste, Carlo Maria Mariani, Gerhard Richter, Ulrich Ruckriem, Michael Singer.

2812. SPRING STREET ENAMELS GALLERY

171 Spring St 10012
(212) 431-8151 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Joan Itzcovitz
Enamel wall pieces, sculpture, furniture; cloisonne jewelry; art glass.

Other artists represented:
Harold Balazs, Fred Ball, Sergei Blumin, Connie Brauer, Vernon Brejcha, Pamela Harlow, Frank Heuston, John Killmaster, Felicia Liban, James Malenda, Pamela McFarland, Barbara Minor, Barbara Raleigh, Gail Rapoport, Jessica Rosner, Fiametta Rubin, John Shaw, Doretta Sherwin, Michael Williams.

2813. ELLEN SRAGOW GALLERY

80 5th Ave 10011
(212) 929-2734 By appt
Dir: Ellen Sragow
Prints from Hollander Workshop; American prints and drawings from the 1920s and 1930s, including works from the WPA.

Other artists represented:
Linda Bastian, Konrad Cramer, Marc Eisenberg, Ernest Fiene, Paul Garland, Harry Gottlieb, Michael Robbins, Jody Shields, Harold Joe Waldrum, William Weege, Herbert Wentscher.

2814. STAEMPFLI GALLERY

47 E 77th St 10021
(212) 535-1919 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: G. Staempfli/P. Bruno
Contemporary American, European, and Japanese art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Akira Arita*, William Dole*, Alan Magee*, Rory McEwen*.

Other artists represented:
Bernard/Francois Baschet, Harry Bertoia, Claudio Bravo, Frederick Brosen, Xavier Cobero, Simon Dinnerstein, Anthony Green, Michio Ihara, Luise Kaish, Morton Kaish, Tschang-yeul Kim, Fritz Koenig, Anna Maria Kubach-Wilmsen, Wolfgang Kubach-Wilmsen, Leo Lionni, Masayuki Nagare, Gunnar Norrman, Gregory Paquette, Cristobal Toral, Paul Wunderlich.

2815. ELAINE STARKMAN

465 W Broadway 10012
(212) 228-3047 Wed-Sat 12-5, Sun 1-6
Dir: Elaine Starkman
Contemporary American painting, sculpture; women artists; handmade paper art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carlyn Fisher Abram, Judith Brodsky, Jackie Carson, Harriet Hurwitz, Gail Jamieson, Eve Jordan, Erika Kahn, Ande Lau Chen, Carolyn Parker, Lora Pennington, Genevieve Reckling, Clara Steiner.

Other artists represented:
Ardyth Bernstein, Carol Foster Blake, Janet Braun-Reinitz, Juliet Holland, Muriel Magenta, Joan Needham, Loraine Toth, Joan Watts.

2816. STEFANOTTI GALLERY

30 W 57th St 10019
(212) 757-6712 Tue-Sat 11-6
Dir: Judith McCabe
Contemporary painting, sculpture, photography, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Nancy Arlen, Dike Blair, Diane Burko, Jimmy De Sana, R.M. Fischer, Hermine Freed, Duncan Hannah, Suzanne Harris, Robert Kitchen, Mariann Miller, F.L. Schroder, Taro Suzuki, Philip Von Schantz, Nina Yankowitz.

2817. PAUL STEINHACKER

151 E 71st St 10021
(212) 879-1245 Tue-Sat 12-6
Dir: Paul Steinhacker
Antique African, American Indian, Eskimo, Oceanic, and Tibetan arts.

2818. ALLAN STONE GALLERY

48 E 86th St 10028
(212) 988-6870 Daily 10-6, Sat 10-5
Dir: Joan Wolff
Contemporary American works with emphasis on abstract expressionism.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Beck, Dennis Clive, James Grashow, Woody Gwyn, Richard Hickam, John Parks, Edward Renouf, Vladimir Salamun, Edvins Strautmanis*, Wayne Thiebaud, Chris Van Allsburg, Joseph Wheelwright.

Other artists represented:
John Anderson, Robert Baribeau, Rosamond Berg, Ducmanh, Richard Estes, Victoria Fairbanks, John Graham, John Hegarty, Lisa Hyatt, Jacob Kass, Ray Kass, Richard Lethem, Raoul Middleman, Sue Miller, Phillip Sherrod, Richard Wood.

2819. STUDIO 53

424 Park Ave 10022
(212) 755-6650 Mon-Fri 10-6; Sat, Sun 11-6
Dir: Ellen Silverberg
Contemporary art; graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alvar, Michel Delacroix, Erté, Fanch.

Other artists represented:
Graciela Rodo Boulanger, R.C. Gorman, Gustavo Novoa, Norman Rockwell, Nicola Simbari, Andrew Wyeth.

2820. STUDIO MUSEUM IN HARLEM

144 W 125th St 10027
(212) 864-4500 Wed-Fri 10-5, Thu eve 5-9; Sat, Sun 1-6
Dir: Mary S. Campbell
Exhibitions, permanent collection of African-American, African, Caribbean art; artists-in-residence.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Barboza*, Charles White*.

2821. STUDIO PLANET EARTH

32 Greene St 10013
(212) 226-0305 By appt
Dir: De Es Schwertberger
Transformative planetary art.

2822. STYRIA STUDIO

426 Broome St 10013
(212) 226-1373 Daily 10-6
Dir: Adi Rischner
Exhibits and publishes contemporary graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Natkin.

Other artists represented:
Will Barnet, Roger Brown, Donald Judd, Alex Katz, Sylvia P. Mangold, Marisol, Jerry Ott, Robert Petersen, Robert Rauschenberg, Ed Ruscha, David Shapiro, Susan Weil, C.J. Yao, Adja Yunkers.

2823. MARTIN SUMERS GRAPHICS

50 W 57th St 10019
(212) 541-8334 Tue-Sat 10-5; Summer, Tue-Fri 10-5
Dir: Martin Sumers
European and American 19th- and early-20th-century graphics and drawings.

2824. SUMMIT

101 West 57th St 10019
(212) 586-6734 Tue-Sat 11:30-5:30
Dir: Esther Prince
American paintings, watercolors, and drawings of the 1930s-40s.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
March Avery, Rosalind Bengelsdorf Browne, Theresa Bernstein, Ethel Edwards, Martin Friedman, Xavier Gonzalez, Harry Gottlieb, Lily Harmon, Theo Hios, Hughie Lee-Smith, William Meyerowitz, Reginald Pollack, Samuel Prince, Faith Ringgold, Mark Sherwin, Plonia Zan Der Hoeven Nixon.

2825. SUTTON GALLERY

29 West 57th St 10019
(212) 888-0638 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Leslie Rankow
Contemporary American and Realist painters; Latin American artists.

Other artists represented:
Elie Abrahami, Mersad Berber, Margaret Cheesman, Marcel Floris, Françoise Gilot, Harriet Kittay, Vassili Lambrinos, Patricia Nix, Juan Gomez Quiroz, Juan Ramon Velazquez.

2826. JOHN SZOKE GRAPHICS

144 E 57th St 10022
(212) 759-9405 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: John Szoke
Publisher of contemporary limited edition graphics.

Other artists represented:
John Axton, Byron H. Bratt Jr, Bruno Bruni, K. F. Dahmen, Kazuhisa Honda, Kyu-Baik Hwang, Alois Janak, Robert Kipniss, Oliviero Masi, Philippe Mohlitz, Olivia Munroe, Shigeru Narikawa, James Rizzi, Jerry Schurr, Tomoe Yokoi.

2827. LEILA TAGHINIA-MILANI

1080 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 570-6173
Dir: Leila Taghinia-Milani
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints and photography.

Other artists represented:
Nasser Ahari, Andrea Baer, Bill Barrette, Michael Calabrese, Domenic Cretara, Monir Farmanfarmaian, Gilles Jean Giuntini, Andromahi Kefalos, Leopoldo Maler, Tom McNulty, Malekeh Nayini, Nickzad Nodjoumi, Patrick Paul, Lissi Sigillo, Hossein Zenderoudi.

2828. TAMAR ARTS

60 E 54th St 10022
(212) 308-2161 By appt
Dir: Richard B. Johnson
The works of Nicola Simbari.

Other artists represented:
Nicola Simbari.

2829. TATISTCHEFF AND COMPANY

50 W 57th St, 8th Floor 10019
(212) 888-1599 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Peter A. Tatistcheff
Contemporary American painting and works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Gordon*, Seaver Leslie*.

Other artists represented:
Joan Brady, Irene Buszko, James Childs, William Clutz, James Pringle Cook, Richard Crozier, David Dewey, Joellyn Duesberry, Sheila Gardner, Theophil Groell, George Harkins, John Stuart Ingle, Simeon Lagodich, Eugene Leake, Tomar Levine, Lincoln Perry, George Stavrinos, Diane Townsend, William Zingaro.

2830. TATYANA GALLERY

28 E 72nd St 10021
(212) 249-3619 Tue-Sat 11-5:30
Dir: Tatyana Gribanova
Russian Realist art from 18th to early 20th centuries.

Other artists represented:
Ivan Aivasovsky, Abram Arkhipov, Vassily Bakscheev, Nicolay Bogdanoff-Bielsky, Isaac Brodsky, Karl Bryullov, Vitold Byalinitzky-Biroylya, Michail Clodt, Sergey Kolesnikov, Nicolay Krimov, Arhip Kuinji, Isaak Levitan, Vassily Polenov, Ilya Repin, Arkady Rilov, Ivan Shishkin, Konstantin Somov, Leonid Turjansky, Vassily Vereshchagin.

2831. TERRAIN GALLERY

141 Greene St 10012
(212) 777-4426 Tue-Sat 1-6
Dir: Carrie Wilson
Contemporary art chosen on basis of Siegel Theory of Opposites.

Other artists represented:
Charlotte Brown, Christopher Castelli, John Folchi, Michael Knigin, Chaim Koppelman, Dorothy Koppelman, Goran Medak, Nancy Starrels, Selina Trieff, Robert Weiss.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2832. H. TERRY-ENGELL GALLERY
22 E 76th St 10021
(212) 535–9800 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Herbert Terry-Engell
19th-century French art.

2833. EDWARD THORP GALLERY
419 W Broadway 10012
(212) 431–6880 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Edward Thorp
Contemporary American and European painters and sculptors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Carole Alter, Steve Balkin, Eric Fischl, April Gornik, Ken Kiff, Doug Martin, Joseph Santore, David True.

Other artists represented:
John Altoon, Jack Barth, R.L. Kaplan, John Lees, Jane Rosen, Martin Silverman.

2834. BARBARA TOLL FINE ARTS
146 Greene St 10012
(212) 431–1788 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Barbara Toll
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawings by emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Beckett, Stevan Jennis, Ellen Phelan, Liliana Porter, Milo Reice, Andrew Spence, Robert Straight, Gail Von Der Lippe.

Other artists represented:
Hermine Ford, Joe Fyfe, Kathy Halbower, Dennis Kardon, Cheryl Laemmle, Curtis Ripley, Mark Saltz.

2835. TOSSAN-TOSSAN GALLERY
305 E 50th St 10022
(212) 688–1574 By appt Tue–Sat 1–6
Dir: Marta-Lourdes Santos
Contemporary art by international artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Baha S. Omary*.

2836. TOUCHSTONE GALLERY
29 W 57th St 10019
(212) 826–6111 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Barbara Hirschl
Paintings, sculpture, and drawings by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sydney Butchkes, Peter Charles, Susan Rodgers, Peter Solow.

Other artists represented:
Drew Beattie, Leah K. Friedman, Mark Krieger, Pierre Montant, Peter Plamondon, Adam Simon, Richard Stout, Ryo Tokita.

2837. TRIBAL ARTS GALLERY
84 E 10th St 10003
(212) 982–4556 Sep–May Tue–Sat 12–6; Jun, Aug Mon–Fri 12–6
Dir: Albert F. Gordon
Antique and traditional works by tribal artists in West and Central Africa.

2838. DAVID TUNICK
12 E 81st St 10028
(212) 570–0090 Mon–Fri 10–5
Dir: Robert P. Conway
Prints and drawings.

Other artists represented:
Mary Cassatt, Edgar Degas, Albrecht Dürer, Francesco Goya, Henri Matisse, Pablo Picasso, Giovanni Battista Piranesi, Rembrandt van Rijn, Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, James McNeill Whistler.

2839. TWENTY-SIX HORSES
484 Broome St 10013
(212) 926–6346
Dir: Barbara Charmy

2840. 22 WOOSTER
22 Wooster St 10013
(212) 431–6445 Tue–Sat 12–6
Non-profit, artist-run space, showing contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Pat Abbott-Ryan, Samia A. Halaby, Carol Kinne, Sumayyah Samaha.

2841. TWINING GALLERY
33 Bleecker St 10012
(212) 674–2070 Tue–Fri 10–6, Sat 11–5
Dir: Richard Eagan
Contemporary painting, sculpture, fibre art, and photography.

Other artists represented:
Adolf Benca, Langdon Clay, Susan Gardner, Eric Hoffman, Sam Messer, James Riley, Phillip Warner.

2843. UPTOWN GALLERY
1194 Madison Ave 10028
(212) 722–3677 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Philip M. Williams
Contemporary graphics, paintings, sculpture, works on paper.

2844. BERTHA URDANG GALLERY
23 E 74th St 10021
(212) 288–7004 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Bertha Urdang
Abstract works by American, European, and Israeli artists; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ania Bien, Cheryl Goldsleger, Karen Riedener, Peter Zegveld.

Other artists represented:
Barbara Abrams, Larry Abramson, Daniel Babior, Betty Collings, Michael Gross, Moshe Kupferman, George Lawson, Alun Leach-Jones, Philip Lieberman, Joshua Neustein, Kay Rosen, Robert Schecter, Karen Shaw, Nahum Tevet, Micha Ullman, Kay WalkingStick.

2845. VANDERWOUDE/TANANBAUM
24 E 81st St 10028
(212) 879–8200 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: S. Vanderwoude/D. Tananbaum
20th-century American and contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Ault, Joe Neill, Alvin Tada, Bill Traylor.

Other artists represented:
Heide Fasnacht, Yun Gee, John Graham, Marsden Hartley, Will Horwitt, John Marin, Jan Matulka, Alfred Maurer, Elie Nadelman, Dennis Oppenheim, Theodore Roszak, David Shapiro, Maurice Sievan, Niles Spencer, Bill Spira, Bob Thompson, Abbie Zabar.

2846. VASARELY CENTER
1015 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 744–2332, (800) 255–0555 Mon–Fri 10–6, Sun 11–5
Dir: Raymond Lesnick
Works in all mediums by Victor Vasarely.

Other artists represented:
Victor Vasarely.

2847. VERBENA
16 W 56th St, 4th floor 10019
(212) 586–3606 Tue–Fri 10–5, Sat 12–5
Dir: Anita Edelberg
Sculpture in natural mediums: glass, wood, stone, metals, leather, ceramics, fiber.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jeffrey Briggs, Randy Broderick, Carol Kropnick, Elspeth Meyer, Kerry Tomlinson, Ann Welch.

Other artists represented:
Ted Ball, David Clarke, Michael Coffey, Marie Combs, Pilar Coover, Molly Cowgill, Margaret Cusack, Judith Goetemann, Judy Hearst, Walter Horak, Angela Manno, Joan Miller, Kathleen Morrow, Aurelia Muñoz, Ferril Nawir, C.J. Peruti, Liz Whitney Quisgard, Sherry Schreiber, Joel A. Schwartz, Chris Silliman, Arthur Stern, Patricia Stumpf.

2848. DIANE VILLANI EDITIONS
271 Mulberry St 10012
(212) 925–1075 By appt
Dir: Diane Villani
Contemporary graphics; print publishers.

Other artists represented:
Leigh Behnke, Louisa Chase, Brad Davis, David Deutsch, Toni Dove, Rochelle Feinstein, Susan Hall, Alan Herman, Stevan Jennis, Joe Neill, Donald Newman, Italo Scanga, Susan Shatter, Sally Sturman.

2849. VIRIDIAN SPACE
52 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245–2882 Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Elaine Wechsler
Cooperative; artists working and experimenting in all mediums; traveling shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mary Beard, Ingrid Edwards, Tazuko Tanabe Fujii, Nadia Gould, Cathy Halstead, Jann Hannay, Mildred Hermann, Judith Nelson, Renee Ritter, Oi Sawa, Mizue Sawano, Audrey Ushenko, Elaine Zelin.

2850. VISUAL ARTS GALLERY
137 Wooster St 10012
(212) 598–0221 Tue–Sun 11–6
Dir: Pernel Berkeley
Works by current and former students of School of Visual Arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martina Batan, Kelly Campbell, Peter Christiaan-Hamilton, Steven Innerfield, Michelle Weinberg.

2851. VORPAL GALLERY
465 W Broadway 10012
(212) 777–3939 Daily 10–6, Sun 1–6
Dir: Muldoon Elder
Paintings, sculpture, and prints by contemporary artists.

Other artists represented:
Jim Agard, Jesse Allen, Bijan Bahar, Piet Bekaert, Gio Biondi, Manfred Bockelman, Pierre Bonnard, Richard Carter, Krista Collins, Massimo De Stefani, Robert Dell, Warren Dreher, M. C. Escher, Solomon Ethe, Bjorn Evensen, Douglass Freed, Steve Gillman, Vern Gleason, Jack Greaves, Katherine Hagstrum, Yozo Hamaguchi, Robert Holmes, Ziva Kronzon, Ivan Kustura, Thomas LoCicero, Carl Lubet, Rene Magritte, Peter Milton, Jose Morales, Kosol Nimnual, Pablo Picasso, Enrico Pinardi, O'Donohue Ros, Robert Rutman, Richard Rutner, Richard Rutner, Robert Singleton, Gary Smith, Sumatimohan, Karen Wenig, Frederic Zeller.

2852. THEO WADDINGTON & CO
1044 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 861–0600 Mon–Sat 10–5
Dir: William S. Cottingham
Modern and contemporary works; British and Canadian artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Russell Gordon, Dorothy Knowles, Henri Matisse, Bill Perehudoff, Margaret Priest, Paul Signac.

Other artists represented:
Andre Derain, Elizabeth Frink, Rose Lindzon, William Turnbull.

2853. BARBARA WALTER GALLERY
1015 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 249–8518 Tue–Sat 12–6
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kristian Kodet, Alvaro Peñarette.

Other artists represented:
Alba, Constantinov-Wilson, Oscar Estruga, Antonio Lorenzo, Mieres, Amelia Moreno, Milan Palec, Albert Radoczy, Mariano Royo, Salaberri, Sanjurjo, Julio Silva, Pavel Skalnick.

*see catalog index

2854. WARD-NASSE GALLERY
178 Prince St 10012
(212) 925-6951 Tue-Sat 11-5:30, Sun 1-4
Dir: Rina Goodman
Cooperative for contemporary artists in all mediums.

Other artists represented:
Jill Baker, Julia Barkley, Lore Behrendt, Arianne Berman, Sherry Frawley Berman, Mariette Bevington, Claire Breuer, Margaret Brueggeman, Ferris Cook, Suzanne D'Avanzo, Stefan Draughon, Jeanne Dukess, Marjorie Hoffman Fernandez, Ruth Gilbert, Barbara Gray, Sylvia Greenberg, David Gregg, Martha Hayes, Lynn Kelly, Robert Lander, Jim Maciel, Bob Matson, Thomas McDonald, Natalie Melbardis, Blanche Paul, John Purpura, Barbara Rothholz, Muriel Sandler, Loizos Sergiou, Jake Severance, David Shapiro, Suzanne Sinaiko, Vern Smith, Elizabeth Solley, Judith Somerville, Jeff Stalker, John Teppich, Razvan Tuculescu.

2855. WASHBURN GALLERY
42 E 57th St 10022
(212) 753-0546 Jun-Aug Mon-Fri 10:30-5:30; Sep-May Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Joan Washburn
American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Benson, Bill Jensen, Alice Trumbull Mason*, Leon Polk Smith*, Rolph Scarlett*, Charles Shaw*, Jack Youngerman*.

Other artists represented:
Ilya Bolotowsky, Alan Cote, Robert Morris.

2856. WASHINGTON IRVING GALLERY
117 E 17th St 10003
(212) 982-3950 Tue-Sun 1-6
Dir: Bernhardt Crystal
American, European, African, and Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lawrence Cherney, John Dobbs, Nicholas Sperakis, Hank Virgonia.

Other artists represented:
Honore Daumier, William Hogarth, George Luks, Posada.

2857. 80 WASHINGTON SQUARE EAST GALLERIES
80 Washington Square E 10003
(212) 598-2163 Tue 11-7; Wed, Thu 11-6; Fri, Sat 11-5
Dir: M. Karp/E. Yassky/R. Coad
Exhibitions of works by local and student artists; teaching gallery; annual small works competition.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Yvonne A'Hearn, Deborah Borne, Heide Fasnacht, Alix Hitchcock, Ann Jon, Sermin Kardestuncer, Mel Kendrick, Makiko Kikuchi, Woong Kim, Iwasaburo Kohso, Les Levine, Judith Lieberman, Nancy Manter, David March, Pamela Moore, Richard Nonas, Alexandru Novac, Raphaela Pivetta, Jessie Riley, Anne Rochette, Harvey Schulman, Hildy Tow, Wayne Warren, Tobi Zausner.

2858. WASHINGTON SQUARE OUTDOOR ART EXHIBIT
33 5th Ave 10003
(212) 982-6255 May-Sep Daily 10-4
Dir: Susan Duke Biederman
Largest outdoor art exhibit in the world; established in 1931.

2859. JOHN WEBER GALLERY
142 Greene St 10012
(212) 966-6115 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: John Weber/Joyce Nereaux
Contemporary painting, sculpture, and photography.

Other artists represented:
Alice Aycock, James Biederman, Bruce Boice, Joe Breidel, Daniel Buren, Victor Burgin, Charles Gaines, Marco Gastini, Jeremy Gilbert-Rolfe, Hans Haacke, Nancy Holt, Mel Kendrick, Sol LeWitt, Robert Mangold, Roman Opalka, Lucio Pozzi, Royden Rabinowitch, Stephen Rosenthal, Charles Ross, Robert Smithson, Gwenn Thomas, Kes Zapkus.

2860. PHYLLIS WEIL & CO
1065 Park Ave 10028
(212) 369-0255 By appt
Dir: Phyllis Weil
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Herb Jackson*, Yun James Yohe.

2861. WEINTRAUB GALLERY
992 Madison Ave 10021
(212) 879-1195 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jacob D. Weintraub/Herbert Schutz
Modern sculpture, paintings, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jean Arp, Giacomo Manzu, Marino Marini, Henry Moore.

Other artists represented:
Alexandre Archipenko, Alexander Calder, Alberto Giacometti, Barbara Hepworth, Seymour Lipton, Aristide Maillol, Antoine Poncet, Francisco Zuniga.

2862. WESTBETH GALLERY I
55 Bethune 10014
(212) 675-6224
Dir: Sherry Lane
Westbeth artists, alternative works.

2863. WESTBURY GALLERY
62 E 55th St 10022
(212) 935-9431 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Specializing in large-scale serigraphs; works by Milt Surrey.

2864. EDWARD WESTON GALLERIES
168 Mercer St 10012
(212) 226-4141
Dir: Robin Sarett

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Melanie Taylor Kent.

2865. WESTON PRESS AND GALLERY
45 E 7th St 10003
(212) 598-4897 Tue-Sat 1-6
Dir: Madeleine Lewis
Japanese artists; woodcuts.

2866. WEYHE GALLERY
794 Lexington Ave 10021
(212) 838-5478 Tue-Sat 9:30-5
Dir: Gertrude Weyhe Dennis
American prints and drawings of 1920s and '30s; Audubon, Daumier, and Goya.

Other artists represented:
Vincent Canade, John B. Flannagan, Emil Ganso, Rockwell Kent, Jan Matulka.

2867. WHITE COLUMNS
325 Spring St 10013
(212) 924-4212 Tue-Fri 11-7; Sat, Sun 1-7
Dir: Joshua Baer
Emerging artists; performance space; sponsors books, magazines, records.

Other artists represented:
Kevin Boyle, Patrick McCarthy, John Miller, Gerry Morehead, Mike Roddy.

2868. WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
945 Madison Ave at 75th St 10021
(212) 570-3600 Tue 11-8, Wed-Sat 11-6, Sun 12-6
Dir: Thomas N. Armstrong III
20th-century American painting, sculpture, drawing, prints; film, video, educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery*, John Cage, Ed Emshwiller, Japser Johns*, Leandro Katz, Ellsworth Kelly*, Bill Lundberg, Nam June Paik*, Edward Ruscha*, Joel Shapiro*, Katherine Schmidt Shubert*, Michael Smith, Robert Smithson*, Bill Stephens, Bill Viola, Roger Welch.

2869. WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART DOWNTOWN BRANCH
26 Wall St 10005
(212) 431-1621 Mon-Fri 11-3
Dir: Tom Armstrong
Exhibitions organized by Helena Rubenstein Fellows on Whitney Museum Independent Study Program in Art History and Museum Studies.

2870. WILDENSTEIN & CO.
19 E 64th St 10021
(212) 879-0500 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Harry A. Brooks
Old master and French Impressionist paintings, drawings, and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vilhelm Hammershoi.

2871. WILLARD GALLERY
29 E 72nd St 10021
(212) 744-2925 Tue-Sat 10-6
Dir: Miani Johnson.
Contemporary American art.

Other artists represented:
Morris Graves, Ralph Humphrey, Jiri Kolar, Harriet Korman, Lois Lane, Barry Ledoux, Robert Lobe, Kenneth Price, Susan Rothenberg, Barbara Schwartz, Judith Shea, Joan Thorne, Mark Tobey, Todd Watts, Tod Wizon, Daisy Youngblood.

2872. WITKIN GALLERY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 355-1461 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: Lee D. Witkin
Historic and contemporary photography; photographic books, graphics, drawings, paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jerry N. Uelsmann.

Other artists represented:
Gustave Baumann, Carol Brown, Dean Brown, Howard Cook, Annie French, Barbara Lathman, Wendell MacRae, Elli Marcus, Kyra Markham, Carol Mothner, Mariano Palfi, Kay Bell Reynal, Peter Sekaer, Doris Ulmann, Edward Weston.

2873. DANIEL WOLF
30 W 57th St 10019
(212) 586-8432 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Daniel Wolf/Bonni Benrubi
19th- and 20th-century photography and art.

Other artists represented:
John Coplans, Jed Devine, Harold Edgerton, Andreas Feininger, William Garnett, Michael Geiger, Frank Gohlke, Jan Groover, Helen Levitt, John Margolies, Sheila Metzner, Barbara Morgan, Nicholas Nixon, Tod Papageorge, Eliot Porter, Art Sinsabaugh, Joel Sternfeld.

2874. WUNDERLICH & COMPANY
41 E 57th St 10022
(212) 838-2555 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30
Dir: Gerold Wunderlich
18th-20th-century American art; prints.

Other artists represented:
Michael Coleman, Basil Ede, Edward Fraughton, Jorge Mayol, Gordon Phillips, John Stobart.

2875. DAVID C. YATES
PO Box 580, Lenox Hill Station 10021
(212) 879-7758 By appt
Dir: David C. Yates
19th- and early 20th-century European and American drawings and works of art.

Other artists represented:
Henri-Edmond Cross, Eugene Delacroix, Jean-Louis Forain, Jean Leon Gerome, Henri Harpignies, Camille Pissarro, Pierre Puvis de Chavannes, Ker-Xavier Roussel.

2876. YESHIVA UNIVERSITY MUSEUM
2520 Amsterdam Ave 10033
(212) 960-5390

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2877. RICHARD YORK GALLERY
21 E 65th St 10021
(212) 772-9155 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Richard T. York
American paintings from 1830-1840; Hudson River School, Impressionists, and Modernists.

Other artists represented:
Albert Bierstadt, William Chase, Francis Criss, Jasper F. Cropsey, Charles Demuth, Ellen Day Hale, Childe Hassam, John F. Kensett, Emma Fordyce MacRae, Willard Metcalf, Thomas Moran, B.J.O. Nordfeldt, Georgia O'Keeffe, Charles Sheeler, Joseph Stella, Will Henry Stevens.

2878. ZABRISKIE
521 W 57th St 10019
(212) 245-7568 By appt
Dir: Virginia M. Zabriskie
Large-scale contemporary works.

2880. ZABRISKIE
724 Fifth Ave 10019
(212) 307-7430 Sep-May Mon-Sat 10-5:30, June-Aug Mon-Fri 10-5:30
Dir: Virginia M. Zabriskie
Early-20th-century and contemporary American art, including photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harry Callahan, Mary Frank*, Paul Strand*, Timothy Woodman.

Other artists represented:
Pat Adams, Alexander Archipenko, Lee Friedlander, Arnold Friedman, Theodore Roszak, Kenneth Snelson, Richard Stankiewicz, Abraham Walkowitz, William Zorach.

2881. ANDRE ZARRE GALLERY
41 E 57 St 10022
(212) 752-0498 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Andre Zarre
Contemporary American paintings, works on paper, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Boyd, Edgar Buonagurio*, Nassos Daphnis, Ronnie Elliott, Winifred Godfrey, Constance Kheel, Michael Malpass.

Other artists represented:
Richard Anuszkiewicz, Sonia Delaunay, Annette Oko, Irene Rice Pereira, Dee Shapiro, Joy Walker, John Xceron.

2882. ZIM-LERNER
123 University Place 10003
(212) 777-1907 Mon-Sat 12-6
Dir: Larry Zim
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Basia Irland, Randy Juster, Marjatta Pajula-Salvat, Amanda Palmer, Robert Quigley, Rex, Hilda Steckel.

2883. ZOMA GALLERY
327 Columbus Ave 10023
(212) 595-0500 Tue-Sat 11-6:30, Sun 12-6
Dir: Herbert Zohn
Contemporary figurative paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Judith Brown, Francesca Dropkin, Marzena Kawalerowicz, Robert Lowe, Sanae Takahata.

Other artists represented:
Ernesto Chorao, Max Forti, Harold Harris, Gerald Hopkins, Charles Klabunde, Hely Lima, Luis Lugo, Juarez Machado, Jean-Claude Meynard, Joseph Reed, Deborah Sudran, Zaragoza.

2884. ZONA
484 Broome St 10013
(212) 925-6750 Tue-Sun 12-6
Dir: Marina Lennai
Work of architect Paolo Soleri; bronze wind bells, mobiles, prints, drawings.

2885. JOHN GIBSON
205 E 78th St 10021
(212) 772-2332
Dir: John Gibson
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joseph Beuys, Marcel Broodthaers.

Other artists represented:
Vito Acconci, Mac Adams, Arman, John Armleder, David Askevold, Bill Beckley, Ernst Caramelle, James Carpenter, William Childress, Christo, James Collins, Robert Cumming, Roger Cutforth, Helmut Federle, John Fernie, Robert Filliou, Dan Graham, Noel Harding, John Hilliard, Peter Hutchinson, Leandro Katz, Jean Le Gac, Bill Lundberg, Joseph Marioni, Gordon Matta-Clark, Dennis Oppenheim, Janet Rifkin, Niele Toroni, Ben Vautier, Roger Welch.

Northport

2886. JEANNOT R. BARR
39 Eatons Neck Rd 11768
(516) 261-7370 By appt
Dir: Jeannot R. Barr
Old master and modern prints and drawings; works on paper 1500-1945.

2887. KATSURA GALLERY
155 Main St 11768
(516) 757-4535 Mon 12-5, Wed-Fri 12-5, Sat 11-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: JoAnn Arnold/Carol Lomangino
20th-century Japanese art; 19th-century prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henry Fukuhara, Kazuo Hirai, Hirosada, Kan Kawada, Fumio Kitaoka, Kozo, Kenji Kusaka, K. Nishijima, Shogo Okamoto, Makotu Ouchi, Joshua Rome, Koichi Sakamoto, Tetsuro Sawada, Yoshio Sekine, Toko Shinoda, Hiroyuki Tajima, Masaki Tanaka, Ryohei Tanaka, Tomikichiro Tokuriki, Masayasu Uchida.

Other artists represented:
Takeshi Hara, Taro Ichihashi, Reika Iwami, Clifton Karhu, Haku Maki, Katsumi Mukai, Ryo Saitoh, Koichi Sakamoto, Shigeru Taniguchi, Fumio Tomita, Sadao Watanake, Toshi Yoshida.

2888. LE NID GALERIE
72 Main St 11768
(516) 757-2338 Mon, Wed-Fri 10-3; Sat 10-4; Sun 1-5
Dir: Bobbie W. Law
French and American Impressionist works.

Other artists represented:
Mary Abrams, Nancy Borregaard, Georges Briata, Joan Fahey, Pierre Godet, Elly Jones, Nicholas Maravell, Long Nolan, Bob Pollan, Andre Raffin, Stanley Twardawicz.

2889. NORTHPORT GALLERIES
350-C Woodbine Ave 11768
(516) 754-9452 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Rita Calumet
Cooperative gallery for local artists. Annual national juried exhibition.

Other artists represented:
Ethel Baumann, Ruth Bucknam, Rita Calumet, Carol Chevian, Betty Cranendonk, Tom Degruyl, Sam Grainick, Flo Kemp, Leonard Leff, Evyln Lucas, Kathy Lundequist, Elly Malamed, Arleen Mark, Rhoda Mehlinger, Annette Merlis, Maria Mulliken, Rhoda Needleman, Ann Plesur, Abby Rust, Chris Ryan, Mary Sesti, Gerald Shak, Ann Simonsen, Chris Solbert, Lucy Taylor, Pearl Weiss.

2890. VERZYL GALLERY
377 Fort Salonga Rd 11768
(516) 757-6146 Sep-Jun Wed-Sun 1-5
Dir: June Verzyl
Contemporary art.

Other artists represented:
William Accorsi, Terryl Best, John Black, Hall Groat, Harriet Henderson, Mary Lou Higgins, Ralph Hurst, Richard Karwoski, Ann Marie Murphy, Tom O'Hare, Vincent Pucclo, Helen Quat, Eric Sloane, Joseph Solman, Albert Swayhoover, Kenneth Verzyl, Corrine Weinberg.

North Syracuse

2891. WEBER GALLERIES
7863 Thompson Rd 13212
(315) 458-7655 Tue-Fri 2:30-9:30, Sat 10-3
Dir: Jo Weber
Works by Jo Weber.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jo Weber.

Nyack

2892. BELLE ARTS GALLERY
11 S Broadway 10960
(914) 353-0883 Tue-Sun 10:30-5:30
Dir: Carol Link
Contemporary prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnet, Gary Bukovnik, Robert Kipniss, Charles Klabunde, Julio Larraz, Carol Summers.

2893. EDWARD HOPPER LANDMARK PRESERVATION FOUNDATION
82 N Broadway 10960
(914) 358-0311 Fri 12-4, Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Eleanor Gibson
Non-profit; exhibitions by Rockland County artists; Edward Hopper memorabilia.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Clarence Davis, John G. Dow, Richard Hora, Roberta Leber, Joseph McDowell, Bob Olson, Helen Potter, Martha Reed.

2894. TRISDONN CONTEMPORARY GALLERY
3 Nyack Plaza/Main St 10960
(914) 358-6566 Wed-Sun 11-5:30
Dir: D. K. Beman
Works by contemporary romantic and representational artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Harriet Beman, George Kaye, Donald R. Purdy, Audrey J. Soule.

Other artists represented:
Frank N. Detrich, Andrea Rimberg, Frances Shapiro.

2895. TRISDONN GALLERY
Main St/4 Nyack Plaza 10960
(914) 358-6663 Wed-Sun. 11-5:30
Dir: Lynn S. Beman
19th- and 20th-century American paintings; American and French contemporary art; Hudson River School.

---

*see catalog index

Oswego

2896. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, OSWEGO
Tyler Art Gallery 13126
(315) 341-2113 Mon-Fri 9:30-4:30; Sat, Sun 12:30-4:30
Dir: Coy L. Ludwig
European and American paintings, sculpture, drawings and prints from 18th century to present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Garland.

Penfield

2897. ARTIST SHOWCASE
2070 Five Mile Line Rd 14526
(716) 385-3220 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: Beverly V. McInerny
National and regional artists; works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lisa Knopf, Ward Mann, William Yager.

Other artists represented:
John C. Bierley, Milton Bloom, David Braun, Shirley Dawson, Paul Meredith Falk, Peter Gerbic, Bernard Gerstner, Gary Lessord, John Lim, Tom Lotta, Paul Martin, Doug McDanel, Beverly V. McInerny, Maurice Moss, Maurice Potter, Cliff Spanganber, Marylyn Spies, Shelley Stoller, Martha Sweeney, Jean VanApeldorn, Frank Webb.

Plattsburgh

2898. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
Myers Fine Arts Gallery
SUNY College of Arts and Science 12901
(518) 564-2288 Tue-Fri 10-4:30, Thu eve 4:30-9, Sun 2-5
Dir: Edward R. Brohel

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Steiner*, Marjorie Strider*, Roger Williams*.

2899. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
Rockwell Kent Gallery
Feinberg Library, SUNY College of Arts and Science 12901
(518) 564-2813
Dir: Edward R. Brohel

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Greg Holmes, Rockwell Kent, Helmo Kinderman, Erik Landsberg, William McDowell, Ben Simmons, Nancy Spero, Marty Wolin.

Port Washington

2900. GRAPHIC EYE
301 Main St 11050
(516) 883-9668 Wed-Sun 12-5
Dir: Viggo Holm Madsen
Cooperative graphics gallery.

Other artists represented:
Steven Bernstein, Diana Birnbaum, Jackie Friedman, David Hecht, Kitty Hochman, Joan Johns, Florence Levine, Anna London, Viggo Holm Madsen, Diane Marxe, Ann Pellaton, Fred Pilkington, Maria Pisano, Olga Poloukhine, Joan Rogers, Shirley Roman, Mariette Sanders, Shellie Schneider, Rita Schwartz, Joan Martley Simon, Stelly Sterling, Aida Whedon, George Wybenger.

Craig Lanager: Critical Distance: Cloning for a New Society, 1982; at the Institute of Contemporary Art, Boston (Mar. 11-May 2, 1982).

2901. ISIS GALLERY
326 Main St 11050
(516) 883-0009
Dir: Diane B. Chichura/Thelma K. Stevens
International and regional contemporary painting, sculpture, and posters.

Other artists represented:
Leslie Bowen-Morris, Charlotte Brown, Charles Fach, Sally Friedman, Marilyn Kaplan, Nathan Katz, Louise Merrim, Don Resnick, Dee Shapiro, Joyce Yohai.

2902. LEVITAN GALLERY
306 Main St 11050
(516) 883-5530 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Murray Levitan
19th- and early-20th-century art.

2903. PORT WASHINGTON PUBLIC LIBRARY
245 Main St 11050
(516) 883-4400 Mon-Fri 9-9, Sat 9-5; Nov-Mar Sun 1-5
Dir: Edward A. de Sciora
Contemporary American artists; painting, photography, mixed mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Berenice Abbott, Benny Andrews, Hanne Brenken, Catchi, Elaine de Kooning, Walker Evans, Jill Freedman, Robert Lawn, Elliott McDowell, Gjon Mili, Arthur Ollman, Richard Vaux.

2904. B.J. SPOKE GALLERY
402 Main St 11050
(516) 883-9772 Wed-Sun 12-5
Cooperative gallery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ilene Anenberg, Ben Borax, Linda Hill, Richard Kane, Lita Kelmenson, Babs Kent, Arleen Schatz, Constance Wain Schwartz.

Other artists represented:
Ethel Brown Camhi, Stella Corley, Jean Fiorino, Barbara Katz, Edward Kimmel, Joan Rabin, Nonny Rosenman, Margaret Weissbach.

Potsdam

2905. STATE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE
Brainerd Art Gallery 13676
(315) 267-2254/267-2251 Mon-Sun 1-5, Tue, Thu eve 7-9
Dir: Georgia Coopersmith
Contemporary art.

Poughkeepsie

2906. VASSAR COLLEGE ART GALLERY
Raymond St 12601
(914) 452-7000 ext 2645 Sep-May Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Joan M. Lukach
Classical, Renaissance, Baroque and Modern art; Hudson River School; paintings, prints, sculpture, photographs, changing loan exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rollie McKenna*.

Purchase

2907. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, PURCHASE
Neuberger Museum 10577
(914) 253-5133 Tue-Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Suzanne Delehanty
Neuberger collection of 20th-century art; Constructivist works; African art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Louis Michel Eilshemius*, Andre Kertesz*, Mies van der Rohe, Italo Scanga, Alan Shields, Robert A. M. Stern, Abraham Walkowitz*.

Other artists represented:
Milton Avery, Alexander Calder, Stuart Davis, Cleve Gray, Edward Hopper, Jackson Pollock, George Segal.

2908. HELENE TROSKY
Yarmouth Rd 10577
(914) 946-2464 Tue-Fri 10:30-5
Dir: Helene Trosky
American art of the 19th and 20th centuries; School of Paris and Haitian paintings.

Other artists represented:
Byron Browne, David Burliuk, Jasper Cropsey, Jo Davidson, James Fender, Emilio Greco, Jan Matulko, Irene Rice-Pereira, Attilio Salemme, Roger Selchow.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71
ISS 7
AG 1983
UMI

Queens

2909. INSTITUTE FOR ART AND URBAN RESOURCES, P.S. 1
46-01 21st St 11101
(212) 784-2084 Thu-Sun 1-6
Dir: Alanna Heiss
Non-profit; many concurrent one-person exhibitions, group shows; installations; theme shows; work space for emerging artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lloyd Allen, Alex Grey*, Carol Hepper, Ken Kobland, Barry Le Va, Richard Newton*, Joe Smith, Todt*, Deborah Whitman, Nina Yankowitz.

Riverhead

2910. EAST END ARTS COUNCIL GALLERY
133 E Main St 11901
(516) 727-0900 Tue-Sat 8:30-4:30
Dir: Diane DiSalvo
Non-profit arts council sponsoring group exhibitions. Amateur and professional artists.

Rochester

2911. ARTWORKS AT SIBLEYS
228 E Main St 14604
(716) 423-6289 Mon-Sat 10-6, Thu 10-9
Dir: Roslyn Bakst Goldman
Contemporary American graphics; 19th-century American painting; Canadian painting and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jacob Brusin, Ted Lind, Walter Sacks.

Other artists represented:
Wendy Gwirtzman, Susan Hunt-Wulkowicz, Jan Hunt, Clement Leonardo, Clayton Pond, Virginia Jeffrey Smith.

2912. CRAFT COMPANY NO. 6
785 University Ave 14607
(716) 473-3413 Mon-Sat 10:30-5:30, Thu 10:30-9
Dir: Lynn Allinger/Gary Stam
Contemporary American crafts: glass, fiber, leather and metal.

2913. DAWSON GALLERY
100 Alexander St 14620
(716) 454-6609 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Shirley Dawson
Works of contemporary American artisans.

Other artists represented:
Francoise Barnes, Frank Boyden, Robert Carlson, Molly Cowgill, Nancee Meeker, Henry Summa.

2914. GEORGE EASTMAN HOUSE
International Museum of Photography
900 East Ave 14607
(716) 271-3361 Tue-Sun 10-4:30
Dir: Robert A. Mayer
Museum devoted to the history, art, and science of photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jerry Burchfield, Don Dubroff, Robert Fichter, Jill Freedman, Nancy Lloyd.

2915. GEORGE FREDERIC GALLERY
147-149 St Paul St 14604
(716) 232-3450 Tue-Sat 12-4; By appt
Dir: Nina Mullally
Prints, paintings, sculpture, photography, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Linda Corman.

Other artists represented:
Jan Ruby Baird, Laura M. Bryant, Tim J. Callahan, Susan Copley, Margaret Crawford, Barry K. Dalgleish, Janice K. Dorgan, Lynne Feldman, Maria Friedrich, Loe Giesen, Nancy Gong, Kathleen Hanney, Gary Jurysta, Bruce Klauck, Richard Margolis, Elaine Matczak, Lawrence Merrill, Loretta Murawski, Dan Neuberger, Valerie O'Hara, Amanda Parry, Richard Pascucci, Patricia J. Pauly, Roslyn Rose, Jim Veatch.

2916. OXFORD GALLERY
267 Oxford St 14607
(716) 271-5885
Dir: Edythe Shedden/Glorya Mueller
Contemporary paintings, graphics, sculpture; tribal art, Pre-Columbian artifacts.

Other artists represented:
Roy Ahlgren, Harold Altman, Sheldon Berlyn, Kenneth Bliss, Ainslie Burke, Dennis Byng, Kathy Calderwood, Robert Conge, Jack Coughlin, Sylvia Farrer, Kurt Feuerherm, Frank Goodnow, Robert Heischman, Evelyn Johnson, Leo Kaplan, Tim Kelly, Catherine Koenig, Donna Meadows, Frederick Meyer, George O'Connell, Thom O'Connor, Jim Ridlon, Tom Seawell, Edythe Shedden, Edith Lunt Small, Alan Stewart, Bill Stewart, Ann Taylor, Jack Wolsky.

2917. SHAHIN REQUICHA GALLERY
273 Alexander St 14607
(716) 232-4389 Wed-Sat 12-4
Dir: Shahin Requicha
Contemporary American and European art.

Other artists represented:
Bill Barrell, William Crovello, David Cummings, Peter Dean, Mary Lou Dooley, Gigi Guadagmucci, Sean Hartnett, Isia, Joan Lyons, Archie Miller, Alicia Penalba, James Thomas.

2918. SHOESTRING GALLERY
2180 Monroe Ave 14618
(716) 271-3886 Mon, Tue, Thu, Fri 10-4; Sat, Sun 12-4
Dir: Ellen Brown/Nancy Esmay
Regional artists; Eskimo sculpture, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Beale, Eric Bellmann, Elizabeth Durand, Achille Forgione, Nina Gaby.

Other artists represented:
Carole Battle, Enrico Embroli, Lise Forster, Bing Thayer.

2919. VISUAL STUDIES WORKSHOP
31 Prince St 14607
(716) 442-8676 Tue-Sat 12-5; Mon, Tue 5-9
Dir: Nathan Lyons
Educational programs, exhibitions, and publications concerning photography, video, artists' books and film; research center.

Other artists represented:
Michael Bishop, Barbara Blondeau, Linda Connor, John Divola, Carol Drobek, Robbert Flick, Bonnie Gordon, Jerry Gordon, Gary Hallman, Wanda Hammerbeck, Eikoh Hosoe, Joseph Jachna, Syl Labrot, Joan Lyons, Nathan Lyons, Roger Mertin, Esther Parada, William Paris, Bart Parker, John Pfahl, Bern Porter, Keith Smith, John Wood, Paul Zelevansky.

2920. ZANER GALLERY
100 Alexander St 14620
(716) 232-7578 Tue-Sat 11-4
Dir: John Haldoupis
Contemporary American works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Booth, Rob Erdle, Jo Ann Hodgson Hart, John Nihart, Brian Paulsen, Kay Stowell.

Other artists represented:
Kenneth Batista, Peter Falotico, Paul Garland, Sylvia Glass, Thomas Golya, M. M. Lum, Robert Marx, Charles Roth, Ruth Shokoff, Ellen Steinfeld, Bill Stephens, Jean K. Stephens, Elizabeth Yarosz, Judy Youngblood.

Rockville Centre

2921. GALERIE COTÉ
302 Sunrise Hwy 11570
(516) 678-2659 Tue-Sat 11-6, Fri 11-7
Dir: Victor Rosado
Contemporary and modern work in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Will Barnet, Raphael Soyer.

Other artists represented:
Charles Bragg, Salvador Dali, Paul Jenkins, Joan Miró, Moses Soyer.

Roslyn

2922. NASSAU COUNTY MUSEUM OF FINE ART
Northern Blvd and Museum Dr 11576
(516) 484-9337 Tue-Fri 10-4:30; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Thomas A. Saltzman
A prime function of the museum is utilization of its grounds for sited works by contemporary sculptors.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Stephen Antonakos*, Terry Lee Dill*, Arthur Leipzig*.

2923. ROBLEY GALLERY
1356 Old Northern Blvd 11576
(516) 484-5960 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Roberta Frank/Shirley Janowitz
Contemporary American art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Bukovnik, Sidney Schatzky.

Other artists represented:
Meryl Easson, Peter Freudenthal, Albert Swayhoover.

Sag Harbor

2924. ART AND DESIGN ATELIER
Main St 11963
(516) 725-1244 Jul-Aug Daily 2-6
Dir: Lydie Egosi
Contemporary art inspired by Judaism.

Other artists represented:
Richard Bitterman, Lydie Egosi, Hana Geber, Temima Gezari, Jonathan Graig, Claire Mendelson, Yvonne Poser, Shay Rieger, Michael Schwartz, Frederick Terna, Ruth Chai Vodicka, Gloria Weitz, Malcah Zeldis.

Scarsdale

2925. CRAFTSMAN'S GALLERY
16 Chase Rd 10583
(914) 725-4644 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Sybil Robins
Contemporary American crafts.

---

*see catalog index

Other artists represented:
Bennett Bean, Stephen Dee Edwards, David Ellsworth, Thomas Hoadley, Kent Ipsen, Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Mel Lindquist, Wally Mason, Michael Pavlik, Harvey Sadow.

Schenectady

2926. SCHENECTADY MUSEUM
Nott Terrace Heights 12308
(518) 382-7890 Tue-Fri 10-4:30; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Donald O. Knapp
19th-20th-century costumes; Native American, African, Australian, New Guinean decorative arts; painting, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Feero, George Gmelch, Wolf Kahn*, Arline Shulman, Grey Villet.

Setauket

2927. GALLERY NORTH
90 N Country Rd 11733
(516) 751-2676 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Elizabeth Goldberg
Non-profit; contemporary Long Island painting, prints, sculpture, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nancy Baldwin.

Other artists represented:
Marjorie Bishop, Lyn Evans, Henry Fukuhara, Whitney Hansen, Woodleigh Hughes, James Lecky, Maggi Randall, Christian White, Kate Winn.

Southampton

2928. LOUISE HIMELFARB GALLERY
38 Main St 11968
(516) 283-4777 Daily 11-5
Dir: Louise Himelfarb
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, prints, crafts.

Other artists represented:
Will Barnet, Walter Channing, Robert Dash, Jorge Gentilini, Howard Kanovitz, William King, Polly Kraft, Louise Nevelson, Betty Parsons, Larry Rivers, Robert Roesch, Susan Rowland.

2929. MARIE PELLICONE GALLERY
89 Jobs Lane 11968
(516) 283-6833 May-Sep Thu-Sun 12-6
Dir: Marie Pellicone
Contemporary fine art; all mediums.

2930. GAYLE WILLSON GALLERY
42B Jobs La 11968
(516) 283-7430 Apr-Dec Thu-Tue 11-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Paul Willson/Gayle Willson
Art fabrics, wall hangings, wearable art, jewelry, sculpture.

Other artists represented:
Bruce Bierman, Cynthia Boyer, Randall Darwall, Kate Fitt, Francoise Grossen, Pat Hickman, Madge Huntington, Marion Hunziker, Mia Kodani, Joan Lintault, Ellen Mears, Jan Myers, Yvonne Porcella, Ivy Ross, Pamela Scheinman, Kay Sekimache, Louise Todd-Cope, Gean Williams-Cacicedo.

2931. WORKS II GALLERY
28 Jobs Lane 11978
(516) 288-5364 Thu-Sun 12-5
Dir: Roberta Von Schlossberg
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sydney Butchkes, Giancarlo Impiglia, Daniel Maffia, Richard Mizdal, Josep Navarro, Hunt Slonem.

Other artists represented:
Bonita Barlow, Rosemary D'Andrea, Louise Demirjian, Laura Fiume, Trevor Jones, Hector Leonardi, Dorothy Powers, Paul Vazquez, James Zver.

2932. PARRISH ART MUSEUM
25 Jobs Lane 11968
(516) 283-2118 Mon, Wed, Thu, Sat 11-6, Fri 11-9, Sun 2-6
Dir: Trudy Kramer
Paintings, sculpture, graphics, ceramics including Italian Renaissance, 19th- and early-20th-century American paintings, Japanese prints and Chinese ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roy Lichtenstein, Jacob Riis.

Staten Island

2933. STATEN ISLAND MUSEUM
75 Stuyvesant Place 10301
(212) 727-1135 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: A. Mae Seeley
Fine arts collection and changing exhibitions; natural history, library.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vladimir Salamun.

St. James

2934. SMITHTOWN TOWNSHIP ARTS COUNCIL
Mills Pond House 660 Route 25a 11780
(516) 862-6575 Tue-Sun 12-4
Dir: Carol Stuart
Exhibitions of contemporary Long Island artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Fedora, Julian Wolff.

Other artists represented:
Tina Marie Aufiero, Bruce Busko, Francis Campani, Paul England, Vinnie Fish, Patz Fowle, Marjorie Freedman, Raymond Kluytenaar, Jan LaRoche, Ron Markman, Hugh McElroy, Joseph Reboli, Susan Rosen, Joan Shapiro, Paul Snede, Dan Tobin, Sally Utley, Mary Vitelli Berti, Dan Welden, Kate Winn.

Stony Brook

2935. MUSEUMS AT STONY BROOK
Art Gallery
Route 25A 11790
(516) 751-0066 Wed-Sun 10-5
Dir: Susan Stitt
Collection of works by William S. Mount and other 19th-century American painters; historical displays and decorative arts.

2936. STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK, STONY BROOK
Fine Arts Center Gallery 11794
(516) 246-6846 Daily 1-5
Dir: Lynne Silkman
Contemporary sculptors or painters from New York City; no permanent collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Cecile Abish*, Ann McCoy*, Alan Shields*, Jack Youngerman*.

Syracuse

2937. ASSOCIATED ARTISTS
821 E Genesee St 13210
(315) 422-1926 Tue-Fri 11:30-5, Sat 11:30-4
Dir: Raymond W. Sims
Members work; invitational exhibits.

Other artists represented:
Arlene Abend, James Achuff, Sallie Bailey, Ainslie Burke, June Carey, Maria Cerio, Montague Charman, John Cullen, Ronald De Pentu, Grant Dolge, Robert Earle, Jane Egan, Richard English, Anne Hartranft-Temple, Deborah Haylor, Grace Hedlund, Carl Hoffner, Carl Hoffner, Prudence Hubbard, Richard Hubbard, Hans Junga, Ingrid Junga, Marion Lapham, Elisabeth Leopold, Holme Martin, William Masin, Janet Matthews, Bette McBain, Patricia McGrath, Audrey Mets, Edwin Mets, Patricia Moonan, Roger Morris, Betty Munro, Dorothy Riester, Joseph Russo, John Rutter, Marian Simpson, Raymond Sims, Dorothy Staller, Howard Temple, Paul Tessler, Joan Weber, George Welch.

2938. EVERSON MUSEUM OF ART
401 Harrison St 13202
(315) 474-6064 Tue-Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Ronald A. Kuchta
American painting, ceramics, prints, photography, and sculpture; African, Oriental, and Oceanic art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nafsika Bersentes*, Toby Buongurio, Misha Gordin, Kyo Ikebe*, Karl Knaths*, Douglas Muir, Merlin Pollock, William Rose*, Abbott Henderson Thayer*, Georges Thiewes, Samuel Vann, George Wingate.

2939. HANOVER GALLERY
401 Irving Ave 13210
(315) 474-0476 Tue-Sat 11:30-5
Dir: Dolores Gernhardt
Regional, national, and international art and crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Don Cortese, Henry Gernhardt, Robert Hofmann, David MacDonald, Robert Marx, Barry Merritt.

Other artists represented:
Steven Barbash, Zevi Blum, Molly Cowgill, Gerald Digiusto, Frank Goodnow, Jan Jacque, John Jessiman, David Mann, Bruce Manwaring, Paul Nielson, Tom Seawell, Michael Sickler, Roy Simmons, Josh Simpson, Alan Stirt, Evan Summer, George Vandersluis.

2940. STUDIO GALLERY
133 S Salina St 13202
(315) 472-0805 Tue-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Gail B. Wiltshire
American fine art, handcraft; scrimshaw, metals, fiber, glass, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Allan Sustare, Gail Wiltshire.

Other artists represented:
Arlene Abend, Donald Carlson, Beth Changstrom, Douglas Conkling, Robert Eickholt, Sally-Ann Endleman, Stephen Fellerman, Kerry Gonzalez, Peter Kwasniewski, Gregory Melnick, Rich Miller, Deborah Monaghan, Glass Studio Nourot, Judy McNally Waner, Shellie Zimmerman.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

2941. SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY
Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery
Sims Hall 13210
(315) 423-3127/423-4098 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Joseph Scala
19th-20th-century American painting, sculpture, graphics; Indian and African art; changing exhibitions.

Utica

2942. MUNSON-WILLIAMS-PROCTOR INSTITUTE
Museum of Art
310 Genesee St 13502
(315) 797-0000 ext 40 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Paul D. Schweizer
19th- and 20th-century European and American paintings, drawings, sculpture, decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Von Bergen, Charles Burchfield, Thomas Cole, Raymond Han, Edward L. Henry, Alfred Stieglitz.

2943. RUTGER GALLERY
402 Rutger St 13501
(315) 797-1415 Sun 1-4, Mon 7-9; By appt
Dir: Wilma Sinnott
Photography.

Vestal

2944. SPECTRUM 15 ART GALLERY
222 Front St 13850
(607) 785-7415 Tue-Fri 11-4; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Anneli Latvala
Painting, sculpture, wood carving, pottery, porcelain, photography, porcelain dolls, carved ivory.

Other artists represented:
Dotti Brokaw, Ernestine Bucking, Joan Chubbuck, Jan Frassetto, Burdell Greaves, Anneli Latvala, Elezabeth Lawrence, Pete Slack, Jr., Al Snover, Malcolm Waite, Mary Jo Waite, Harold Westgate, Annamaria Zettlemoyer.

Victor

2945. EAST-WEST SHOP
27 E Main St 14564
(716) 924-5830/554-3351 Tue-Sat 10-4; or by appt
Dir: Merlin Dailey/MaryAnn Dailey
Oriental fine art and folk arts; Japanese Ukiyo-e prints.

Other artists represented:
Ando Hiroshige, Katsushika Hokusai, Utagawa Kuniyoshi, Katsukawa Shunsho, Kitagawa Utamaro.

West Nyack

2946. ROCKLAND CENTER FOR THE ARTS
27 S Greenbush Rd 10994
(914) 358-0877 Daily 9-5
Dir: Marlene Kleiner
Exhibitions in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ralph Derven, Roberta Leber, Harry Leigh, George N. Morris, Ken Nishi, Anne Poor, Martha Ryther, Jerre Vanderhoes, Laure Westby, Michael Zansky.

Woodmere

2947. OWL 57 GALLERIES
1074 Broadway 11598
(516) 374-5707 Tue-Sat 11:30-5
Dir: Mona Gaver/Tami Lamon/Eileen Michel
Modern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mara Abboud, Steven J Bernstein, Berrocal, S.C. Schoneberg, Arthur Secunda, Edward Sokol.

Other artists represented:
Roberta Meyerson, Marilyn Morgenstern.

Woodstock*

2948. RUDOLPH GALLERIES
22 Mill Hill Rd 12498
(914) 679-2013 Jun-Sep Daily 10-4
Dir: Lillian Frederick-Fiolic
Contemporary painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Milton Avery, Wolf Kahn, Sidney Laufman.

Other artists represented:
Ilya Bolotowski.

Yonkers

2949. HUDSON RIVER MUSEUM
511 Warburton Ave 10701
(914) 963-4550 Wed-Sun 12-7, Thu eve 7-9
Dir: Peter Langlykke
A Victorian mansion and a contemporary facility with a planetarium overlooking the Palisades, emphasizing art, regional history, and science.

North Carolina

Asheville

2950. ASHEVILLE ART MUSEUM
Civic Center 28801
(704) 253-3227 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Edwin Ritts, Jr.
20th-century American art; Southeastern American and Southern Appalachian paintings, prints, sculpture, crafts.

Brevard

2951. BREVARD COLLEGE
Coltrane Art Center 28712
(704) 883-8292 ext 245 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Tim Murray
Contemporary artists and student exhibitions; workshops.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dempsey Calhoun, Syd Cross, Cheryl Harrison, John McNaughton, Mary Murray, Tim Murray, Mike Vatalaro.

Carrboro

2952. ART SCHOOL GALLERY
Carr Mill 27510
(919) 942-2041 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Ladyce Pereira-Leite
Non-profit; local visual and performing artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Glenn Corey, Walter Davis, Judy Hammond, David Hyman, Tom Waldrop, Conrad Weiser.

Chapel Hill

2953. UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, CHAPEL HILL
Ackland Art Museum 27514
(919) 966-5736 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-6
Dir: Innis H. Shoemaker
Western art from ancient Egypt to the present; painting and sculpture of 19th century; prints, drawings, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Dine, Richard Estes, Alfred Leslie, Mario Merz.

Charlotte

2954. MINT MUSEUM OF ART
501 Hempstead Place 28207
(704) 334-9724 Tue 10-5, 7-10; Wed-Sat 10-5; Sun 2-5
Dir: Milton J. Bloch
Delhom Gallery of English Porcelain; European and American art from Renaissance to the present, Pre-Columbian and African arts; changing exhibitions.

Dallas

2955. GASTON COUNTY MUSEUM
PO Box 429 28034
(704) 866-3437 Tue-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-2, Sun 2-5
Dir: Alan D. Waufle
20th-century North Carolina art; textiles; sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jim Moon.

---

*see catalog index

Davidson

2956. DAVIDSON COLLEGE
Art Gallery
PO Box 2495 28036
(704) 892-2000 ext 185 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Herb Jackson

Collection of 15th to 20th century graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Charles Hinter, Jeanette Oliver.

Durham

2957. CRAFT HOUSE OF DURHAM
5504 Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd 27707
(919) 489-2032 Mon-Sat 10-5

Crafts; fiber, glass.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Goldhagen, Martha Matthews, Pat Richardson.

Other artists represented:
Dorothy Davis, Pepper Fluke, Jan Gregg, Florentina McKinney.

2958. DUKE UNIVERSITY
Museum of Art
East Campus 27708
(919) 684-5135 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sat 10-1, Sun 2-5
Dir: John R. Spencer

Medieval and Renaissance arts; classical pottery and sculpture; porcelain; Oriental, Pre-Columbian, African and Navajo arts; Winslow Homer engravings.

2959. NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL UNIVERSITY
Museum of Art 27707
(919) 683-6211 Tue-Fri 9-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Norman E. Pendergraft

Afro-American art; temporary exhibitions range from ancient to modern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Melvin J. Carver, T. Suomalainen.

2960. SOMERHILL GALLERY
5504 Chapel Hill Blvd 27707
(919) 493-3574 Daily 10-5:30, Sat 10-4
Dir: Joseph Rowand

Two- and three-dimensional work by American and European artists; regional works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Betty Bell, Robert Broderson, S. Tucker Cooke, Edith London, Nancy Tuttle May, Richard Stenhouse, Wayne Trapp, Jane Sorrell Walden, Stephen White.

Other artists represented:
Jane Armstrong, McDonald Bane, Marcos Blahove, Ann Connor, Todd Cull, Susan Durfee, Horace Farlowe, Richard Fennel, Maud Gatewood, Dorothy Gillespie, Robert Herr, Mary Lou Higgins, Claude Howell, Victor Huggins, Herb Jackson, Swietlan Kraczyna, Dean Leary, Thomas Link, Gordon Mahy, Alex Powers, Sally Prange, Vernon Pratt, Dino Read, Catherine Ryan, Lucy Spencer.

Fayetteville

2961. ARTS COUNCIL OF FAYETTEVILLE/CUMBERLAND COUNTY
Arsenal House Gallery
Box 318 28302
(919) 323-1776 Mon-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Robin Mattis Mara

Cumberland County artists.

Goldsboro

2962. COMMUNITY ARTS COUNCIL
901 E Ash St 27530
(919) 736-3300 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Alice Strickland

Exhibitions, collections, classes; North Carolina and neighboring state artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Loren Bass, Alice Boyd Behrle, Ben Casey, Dudley Culp, Joe Dudasik, Michael Ehlbeck, Don Ellis, Marian Ellis, Alexander Kaszas, Tzu Wen Kwok, John Quinn, Donald Sexaur, Zeno Spence, Michael Voors.

Graham

2963. FIREHOUSE GALLERY
135 W Elm St 27253
(919) 226-4495 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sun 3-5
Dir: Alex Hutchins

Exhibitions of local artists; juried shows.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Willa Frayser, Vic Gillespie, John Lombardi, Hazel Sellers.

Other artists represented:
Ethel Ann Carter, Alan Cheek, Clara Clayton, Walter Creech, Ursula Dalton, Wayne Epperly, Ola Maie Foushee, Dodie James, Dolores James, Larry Johnson, George Lemon, Janet Resnik, Sarah Sharpe, Tim Shepherd, Jo Siceloff, Ed Wood.

Greensboro

2964. GREEN HILL CENTER FOR NORTH CAROLINA ART
200 N Davie St 27401
(919) 373-4515 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Cynthia K. Ference

Non-profit; artists of North Carolina; exhibitions and educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Warren Brandt*, Colleen Greiner*, Lee Hall*, Silvia Heyden*, James Howard*, Richard Stenhouse, Russ Warren.

2965. GREENSBORO COLLEGE
Irene Cullis Gallery
815 W Market St 27401
(919) 272-7102, ext 251 Mon-Fri 10:30-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert Kowski

Fine art of past and present; student and faculty exhibitions. Contemporary and historical, student and faculty exhibitions.

2966. UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, GREENSBORO
Weatherspoon Art Gallery
Walker Ave at McIver St 27412
(919) 379-5770 Tue-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 2-6
Dir: Gilbert F. Carpenter

20th-century American paintings, sculpture, graphics; Oriental art, sculpture court.

Greenville

2967. EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY MUSEUM OF ART
Gray Art Gallery
Jenkins Fine Arts Center, E 5th St 27834
(919) 757-6336, 757-6665 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 1-4
Dir: Randolph Osman

20th-century painting, drawing, small sculpture; exhibitions of faculty and student works, and loans from museums and galleries.

2968. GREENVILLE MUSEUM OF ART
802 S Evans St 27834
(919) 758-1946 Wed-Fri 10-6, Tue 10-10, Sat 11-3
Dir: Mary Anne Pennington

Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Philip Dusenbury, Tom Grubb, Alexander Kaszas, Jane Lawrence, Ben Long, Willie Marlowe, Wallace Nutting, Louis Orr.

Hickory

2969. HICKORY MUSEUM OF ART
3rd St & 1st Ave NW, PO Box 2572 28603
(704) 327-8576 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 3-5
Dir: Mildred M. Coe

Primarily 19th- and 20th-century American art; European, Oriental, and Pre-Colombian art.

High Point

2970. HIGH POINT ARTS COUNCIL
Theatre Galleries
220 E Commerce St 27260
(919) 887-3415 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Jean N. Cohen

Contemporary art of North and South Carolina and Virginia.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
McDonald Bane, David Bass, Gary Cook.

Hillsborough

2971. PRIESTLEY FINE ART GALLERY
Route 3 27278
(919) 968-1736 By appt
Dir: S. E. Gerard Priestley

19th- and 20th-century British prints; watercolors.

Other artists represented:
Hugh Boycott-Brown, John Butler, Graham Clarke, Arthur B. Davies, Robert Greenhalf, Kenneth Hildrew, David Koster.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

Lexington

2972. DAVIDSON COUNTY ART GUILD GALLERY
218 W Center St 27292
(704) 249-2742 Mon-Fri 10-4:30, Sun 2-4:30
Dir: Donna J. Beck Rhodes/Sandra C. Snyder
Non-profit; regional artists, competitions, visiting performing artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lucy Hairston, Lea Lackey, Willa McNeil, Clyde Overcash, Danny Robinette, Katherine Skipper.

Other artists represented:
Starr Ayers, Manuel Domecq, Clyde Gobble, Shirley Gobble, Ellen Howell, Ellen Lewis, Joe Linn, Richard Mayberry, Connie McNeill, Judy Mizell, Linda Phillips, Arnold Quesenberry, Emily K. Reece, Michael Rhodes, Irvin Riley, Emmett Sparks, Tomi Troxler, Carl Tuttle, Elizabeth O'Neill Verner, Peg Warren, Chris Yarborough, Suzanne Yowell.

Monroe

2973. UNION COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY
316 E Windsor 28110
(704) 283-8184 Sep-May Mon, Wed, Fri 9-6; Tue, Thu 9-8; Sat 9-5; Sun 2-5:30
Dir: Barbara M. Johnson
Six months of local artists, six months of traveling exhibitions.

Other artists represented:
Jane Ammons, Catherine Ballantyne, Mitchell Griffin, Michael W. Hall, Lillian Marzwell, Patricia Reynolds, Jean Sorensen, Janet Turner.

Morganton

2974. JAILHOUSE GALLERY
115 E Meeting St 28655
(704) 433-7282 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sun 2-4
Dir: Karen McDade
Non-profit; run by Burke Arts Council; local and visiting artists, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Cheves, Virginia Lauzon, Beverly McMurry, Audrey Olson, Deborah Pickett, Eloise Pope, Susan Trotter.

North Wilkesboro

2975. WILKES ART GALLERY
800 Elizabeth St 28657
(919) 667-2841 Mon, Tue, Thu, Fri 10-5, Sun 3-5
Dir: Martha Barksdale
Local and American artists; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mel Kester, Ward Nichols.

Raleigh

2976. NORTH CAROLINA MUSEUM OF ART
2110 Blue Ridge Blvd 27607
(919) 833-1935 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Edgar Peters Bowron
European and American art; Samuel H. Kress Collection of Renaissance and Baroque art; ancient, ethnographic, and regional art; Judaic ceremonial art.

2977. RUTH GREEN'S LITTLE ART GALLERY
North Hills Mall 27609
(919) 787-6317 Mon-Sat 10-9
Dir: Ruth Green
Regional and national artists; many mediums.

Other artists represented:
Marcos Blahove, Paul Landrey, Paul Minnis, Ann Mount, Charlene Olson, Alice Proctor, James Shell, Arthur Weeks.

Rocky Mount

2978. ROCKY MOUNT ARTS AND CRAFTS CENTER
1173 Nashville Rd 27801
(919) 972-1163/972-1164 Mon-Fri 8:30-5
Dir: Julia Jordan
Primarily North Carolina artists and craftsmen.

Salisbury

2979. WATERWORKS GALLERY
#1 Water St 28144
(704) 636-1882 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Robert Haywood
Non-profit; regional art exhibitions.

Wilmington

2980. ST. JOHN'S MUSEUM OF ART
114 Orange St 28401
(919) 763-0281 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Alan Aiches
American paintings; Marcuse collection of glass scent bottles; Jugtown pottery collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Bireline, Anne Brennan, Horace Farlowe, Georgeann Haas, Jerome Kohl, Virginia Wright-Frierson.

Wilson

2981. ATLANTIC CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Case Art Building Gallery 27893
(919) 237-3161 Mon-Fri 10-4:40, Sat 1-3
Dir: Edward Brown
Painting and sculpture by students, faculty and regional artists.

Gaspare Traversi: Saint Margaret of Cortona; in "Flights of Fancy," Queens Mus., N.Y.C. (1982).

Winston-Salem

2982. MUSEUM OF EARLY SOUTHERN DECORATIVE ARTS
924 S Main St 27108
(919) 722-6148 Daily 10:30-5, Sun 1:30-4:30
Dir: Frank L. Horton
Decorative arts of Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, and Tennessee through 1820; research on artisans of the South.

2983. REYNOLDA HOUSE MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
Reynolda Estates 27106
(919) 725-5325 Tue-Sat 9:30-4:30, Sun 1:30-4:30
Dir: Nicholas B. Bragg
18th-20th-century American art.

2984. SOUTHEASTERN CENTER FOR CONTEMPORARY ART (SECCA)
750 Marguerite Dr 27106
(919) 725-1904 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ted Potter
Regional exhibiting and educational art center; emphasis on contemporary artists—all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
R. Eric Anderson, Barry Bailey, William Bamberger, Steve Bickley, Robert M. Broderson, Linda S. Burgess, Steven Chandler Clapp, Davy Davenport, Robert Edmiston, Joe Falsetti, Debra Frasier, Robert Gordy, Tom Grubb, William Harper, Alex Harris, Jan Havens, Klaus Hoog, Norman Keller, Tim Kilby, Dean Leary, Rebecca Lewis, Brian Magee, Johnnie Mizell, Paul Nahoom, Kyle Petty, Jeanee Redmond, Anthony Rice, Mary Todd Shaw, Tad Stamm, Steven Steinman, Robin Van Arsdol, William Wegman, Merry Moor Winnett, Karl Wirsum, Morris Yarowsky.

Other artists represented:
Chris Robinson, Charles Shannon.

2985. WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY
Fine Arts Gallery
Scales Fine Arts Center 27109
(919) 761-5310 Mon-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Victor Faccinto
Contemporary art and historical exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Dallas-Swann, Wu Chien Lem, Roger Vail.

*see catalog index

North Dakota

Bismarck

2986. BISMARCK JUNIOR COLLEGE
Gannon Gallery 58501
(701) 224-5400 Mon-Thu 7:30-9, Fri 7:30-4, Sun 6-9
Dir: Ardyce L. Miller
Non-profit; regional and national artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Annella Campbell.

2987. ELAN ART GALLERY
522 N 6th St 58501
(701) 223-5986 Mon-Sat 1-5; Jun-Aug Mon-Fri 1-5
Dir: Karen F. Syvertson Anhalt
Regional, national, and local artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Verna Armstrong, John Bergman, Ann Campbell, David Christy, Dan Deuter, Pat Deuter, Mary Groth, Gary Hamberg, Jewel Hofmann, Mary Holoein, Susan Lundberg, James McCulloch, Russell Norberg, Jack Ross, Jean Zach.

Other artists represented:
Jeanne Kane, Rosemary Landsberger, Ida Lee, Pat Powell, Gwen Tucker, Dale Twingley, Jim Ulmer, Larry Veeder.

Dickinson

2988. DICKINSON STATE COLLEGE
Art Dept, Mind's Eye Gallery 58601
(701) 227-2312 Daily
Dir: Den Navrat
All visual mediums; teaching collection.

Fargo

2989. NORTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY
Memorial Union Art Gallery 58105
(701) 237-8236 Sep-May Daily 10-8, Sun 1-5
Dir: Carol Morrow Bjorklund
Contemporary works by American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Käthe Kollwitz, Manuel Neri, Fritz Scholder, Jeff Vasey.

Grand Forks

2990. BROWNING ARTS
22 N 4th St 58201
(701) 746-5090 Tue-Sat 9-6
Dir: Mark Browning
Contemporary works by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Emma Browning, Mark Browning, Erik Budd, Anita Kapaun, Joy Flynn Knutson, Myke Knutson, Katie McCleery, Jackie McElroy, Nancy Monsebroten, Brian Paulsen.

2991. NORTH DAKOTA MUSEUM OF ART
Box 7305 University Station 58202
(701) 777-4195 Mon-Thu 10-5, 7-9; Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Laurel J. Reuter
Contemporary art by regional, national, and international artists; collection of North Dakota folk art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
J.B. Blunk, David Christy, Jim Dow, Paul Garland, Mark McGinnis, Louis Mueller, Badri Narayan, Eliot Porter, Judith Roode, Kathryn Sandstead.

2992. UNIVERSITY OF NORTH DAKOTA
Hughes Fine Arts Center 58201
(701) 777-2257 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Brian Paulsen
Work by regional and university artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Steve Bigler.

Jamestown

2993. JAMESTOWN ARTS CENTER
Box 363 58401
(701) 251-2496 Tue-Fri 12-5, Sat 11-3
Dir: Margaret Johnson
Community gallery for works in all mediums.

Mayville

2994. MAYVILLE STATE COLLEGE
Gallery 58257
(701) 786-2301 ext 197 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Lila Hauge
Contemporary American and North Dakota artists; student exhibitions.

Minot

2995. ARTMAIN
13 S Main 58701
(701) 838-4747 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Beth Kjelson/Becky Piehl
Fine and decorative arts by regional and native American artists.

Other artists represented:
Robert Briscoe, Luella Cree, Rose Cree, Tom Dougherty, Mary Pat Frenzel, Paul Fundingsland, Richard Gruchalla, Cheryl Inberg, Jeanne Tamisea Kane, Micheal Kane, Anita L. Kapaun, Emilie Lunde, Jackie McElroy, Nancy Monsebroten, Robert Frost Paris, Ed Stine.

2996. MINOT ART GALLERY
Box 325 58702
(701) 838-4445 Tue-Sun 1-5
Dir: Berta S. Newton
Non-profit; works by contemporary American artists; educational programs.

Other artists represented:
Dale Beckman, Judy Bell, Ken Clark, Susan Davy, Reni Gower, Richard Gruchella, Betsy Jones, Leo Kim, Catherine Mulligan, Walter Piehl, Shams Rasheed, Robert Schwieger, Bud Shark, Vern Skaug.

2997. MINOT STATE COLLEGE
Hartnett Hall Gallery 58701
(701) 857-3108 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: Gregory A. Vettel
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Ash III, Lewis DeSoto, Frank Kelley, Ohm Madhok.

Ohio

Akron

2998. AKRON ART MUSEUM
70 E Market St 44308
(216) 376-9185 Tue-Fri 12-5, Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: I. Michael Danoff
Regional, national, and international paintings, sculpture, photographs, prints from 1850 to the present.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lee Friedlander*, Jacob Lawrence, Malcolm Morley, Tod Papageorge, Susan Rothenberg, James Surls, H. C. Westermann, Jackie Winsor, Claire Zeisler.

2999. JOHN DAVIS GALLERY
161 S Main St 44308
(216) 434-1124 Tue-Fri 11-6, Sat 12-5
Dir: John Davis
Contemporary American painting, drawing, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William Burke, Joan Curtis, Dennis Elliott, Biff Elrod, Louise Fishman, Dennison Griffith, Joseph Haske, Magrit Lewczuk, Chuck Magistro, Herbert Peichert, Sara Roszak.

Other artists represented:
Frank Close, Robert Hammond, Bob Hower, Fred Larson, Craig Lucas, Guy Mendes, Dona Nelson, Theodore Roszak, Jack Solomon, Brinsley Tyrrell, Janet Vicario, Theodore Wathen, Charles Zuppardi.

3000. UNIVERSITY OF AKRON
Emily Davis Gallery
181 E Exchange St 44325
(216) 375-7010 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Janet Miller
Contemporary works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Abbott, Tom Kemp, Gary Laatsch, Dennis Meyer, Mary T. Noguchi, Bob Schimel, Akemi Uchiyama, Gary Williams.

Athens

3001. OHIO UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF ART
Seigfred Gallery 45701
(614) 594-5667 Tue-Fri 10-4, Wed 6-9:30
Dir: Abner Jonas
Exhibitions related to academic programs.

Berea

3002. BALDWIN-WALLACE COLLEGE
Faywick Gallery
275 Eastland Rd 44017
(216) 826-2152
Dir: Dean Drahos
Permanent collection; changing exhibitions.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Canton

3003. CANTON ART INSTITUTE
1001 Market Ave N 44702
(216) 453-7666 Tue-Sat 9-5, Tue-Thu eves 7-9, Sun 2-5
Dir: Joseph R. Hertzl
American, Italian and Spanish painting; 18th- and 19th-century portraiture, contemporary national and regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ansel Adams, Leonard Baskin, Kent Bowser, Dorothy Dell Dennison, Ott Gangl, Ron Gelbert, William Gropper, David Hostetler, Dean Howell, Jack Ink, Frances Lehnert, Molly Luce, Amos Nattini, Hal Scroggy, Mark Soppeland.

Cincinnati

3004. TONI BIRCKHEAD GALLERY
342 W 4th St 45202
(513) 241-0212 Tue-Fri 10-4, Sat 12-4
Dir: Toni Birckhead
Contemporary paintings, prints, sculpture, drawings.

Other artists represented:
Tom Bacher, Dan Boldman, Stephanie Cooper, Stuart Fink, Denny Griffith, Dennis Harrington, Jan Harrison, Corson Hirschfeld, Peter Huttinger, Lisa Jameson, Kathie Johnson, Tom Levine, Linda Levit, Connie McConaughy, Dennis Puhalla, Gordon Richardson, Brent Riley, Sandra Rosen, Susan Sensemann, Ted Stamm, Robert Swain, Brinsley Tyrrell, McCrystle Wood.

3005. C.A.G.E.
344 W 4th St 45202
(513) 381-2437 Wed, Thu 1-4; Fri, Sat 12-4
Dir: Kate Gallion
Non-profit organization.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anthony Batchelor, Kevin Booher, Dan E. Chessher, Glenn Corey, Jamie Coyle, Maryann Fariello, Gina Franz, Yong Soon Min, Mark Pierce, Ted Bauman Rosenthal, Jane Runyeon, Jim Wainscott, John Yager.

3006. CINCINNATI ART MUSEUM
Eden Park 45202
(513) 721-5204 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Millard F. Rogers
Ancient, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Near and Middle Eastern art; primitive art; 15th-20th-century European, American painting, sculpture, graphics.

3007. A. B. CLOSSON GALLERY
401 Race St 45202
(513) 762-5500
Dir: Phyllis J. Weston
European, American, Far Eastern, and West African art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Wo Yue Kee, Dale Lamphere, Constance McClure, Jacob Pfeiffer, John Ruthven, Michael Scott, Richard Treaster.

Other artists represented:
J. B. Bristol, Julie Morrow DeForest, Frank Duveneck, Henry Farny, Charles Kaelin, Henry Mosler, Charles Muerer, Frank Myers, George Picknell, Edward Potthast, Joseph Sharp, William Sonntag, J.H. Twachtman, Edward Volkert, Bessie Wessel, Herman Wessel, Worthington Whittredge, Guy Wiggins.

3008. CONTEMPORARY ARTS CENTER
115 E 5th St 45202
(513) 721-0390 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Nancy Glier
Museum; modern and contemporary art; traveling exhibitions; catalogs.

3009. LUDEKE GALLERY
7781 Cooper Rd 45242
(513) 984-4721 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Carol Ludeke
Contemporary original prints, paintings and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Erté, Lebadang, Max Papart, Peggy Stewart, Mary Anne Wehrend.

Other artists represented:
Alvar, Sarah Jane Bellamy, Jan Benjey, George Kafka, Mario Pitocco, Stan Thomson.

3010. MALTON GALLERY
2709 Observatory 45208
(513) 321-8614
Dir: Donald F. Malton
Contemporary paintings, prints, drawings, sculpture and fiberwork.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Garo Antreasian, Mark Grote, Jim Kusmierski, Anne Scheid Magno, Carol Summers, Frederick Wong, Barbara Young.

Other artists represented:
Dan Allison, Jim Byrd, Leonard Cave, Susan Copley, Joseph Domjan, Kurt Feuerherm, Gordon Mortensen, Madeline Poster, Charles Ringness, William Schickel, Thom Shaw, Edgar Tafur, Nancy Tennant, Susan VanCampen, John Visser.

3011. MILLER GALLERY
2722 Erie Ave 45208
(513) 871-4420 Tue-Sat 10-5:00
Dir: N. Miller/B. Miller/L. Miller
19th-20th-century prints, drawings, paintings, sculpture, glass, fiber, paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Thomas Hart Benton*, Mignonette Yin Cheng, Mildred Fischer, Heather Metcalf, Robert Natkin.

Other artists represented:
Mike Barkin, Peggy Brown, Todd Chalk, Dale Chihuly, Emma De Sigaldi, Lucile Driskell, William Duebber, Allen Dwight, Beverly Erschell, Ben Freeman, Lionel Gilbert, Gunter Grass, Daniel Greene, Don Hasselbeck, Paul Jenkins, Andy Kay, Dominick Labino, Bob Longhurst, Charles Lotton, William McCartin, E. Baker O'Brien, Bernard Plogman, Romanos Rizk, Anne Shreve.

3012. GRETA PETERSON GALERIE
7696 Camargo Rd, Madeira 45243
(513) 561-6785 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Greta Peterson
International contemporary art; organize exhibitions of American artists in Sweden.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William C. Brown, Joan Pricoli, Rita Spitz, Amy Storey, Lillemor Tell, Rita Zimmerman.

3013. CARL SOLWAY GALLERY
314 W 4th St 45202
(513) 621-0069 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Carl E. Solway
20th-century American and European painting, sculpture, and graphics.

Other artists represented:
Jay Bolotin, John Cage, Jack Chevalier, John Dowell, Buckminster Fuller, Richard George, Sam Gilliam, Milton Glaser, Donald Lipski, Ray Parker, Jim Pernotto, Rodney Ripps, Aminah Robinson, Rocio Rodriguez, Alan Sonfist, Gregory Thorp, Hap Tivey.

3014. TAFT MUSEUM
316 Pike St 45202
(513) 241-0343 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Katherine Hanna
Dutch, English, French, Spanish paintings; Chinese porcelains; French Renaissance enamels; furniture; period hangings.

3015. UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI
Tangeman Fine Arts Gallery
ML #15 403 Tangeman 45221
(513) 475-3462 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 1-3
Dir: Christopher Eagen
Exhibitions of contemporary art; annual faculty and M.F.A. student exhibitions; historical exhibitions.

Cleveland

3016. CLEVELAND INSTITUTE OF ART
11141 E Blvd 44106
(216) 421-4322 Mon-Fri 9-4, Tue-Wed eves 7-9, Sat 9-12, Sun 2-5
Dir: Joseph McCullough
Exhibitions related to educational programs.

3017. CLEVELAND MUSEUM OF ART
11150 E Blvd 44106
(216) 421-7340 Tue-Fri 10-6, Wed eve 6-10, Sat 9-5, Sun 1-6
Dir: Evan Turner
Paintings, prints, drawings, photographs, sculpture, pottery, textiles, furniture of many cultures; medieval European and Oriental art collections.

3018. CLEVELAND STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery
2307 Chester 44115
(216) 687-2090 Mon-Fri 8:30-5
Dir: Masumi Hayashi
Exhibitions of student art; changing exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Daniel Harley.

3019. DBR GALLERY
13225 Shaker Sq 44120
(216) 491-8062 Tue-Sat 10-5
Dir: Deborah Bachman Ratner
Contemporary paintings, prints, and ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Moe Brooker, Jack Chevalier, Judith Salomon.

Other artists represented:
Sigrid Burton, Garie Crawford, Andrea Gill, John Gill, Henry Halem, Herb Jackson, John Pearson, Audrey Skuodas, Ellen Stavitsky.

3020. NEW GALLERY OF CONTEMPORARY ART
11427 Bellflower Rd 44106
(216) 421-8671 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Marjorie Talalay
Non-profit; painting, sculpture, performance, film, video, installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Frank Gehry, David Hockney, Paul Oberst, Willard Traub.

Other artists represented:
Vivian Abrams, Jane Berger, Gary Bower, Ginna Brand, Moe Brooker, Gwen Cooper, Susan Crile, David Davis, Heide Fasnacht, Joy Jacobs, James Juszczyk, Gene Kangas, Patrick Kelly, Nicholas Livaich, Ed Mieczkowski, David Saunders, Mark Schwartz, Phyllis Seltzer, Phyllis Sloane, Julian Stanczak, Athena Tacha, Brinsley Tyrrell.

3021. SPACES
1375 Euclid Ave 44115
(216) 621-2314
Dir: Jane Farver
Non-profit; work by emerging artists in all mediums; performance, video.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Barbara Chavous, Cecelia Condit, Robert Crise, Nathan Farb, Robert Jergens, Rob Mihaly, Dean Pappalardo, P. J. Rogers, Lillian Tyrrell.

3022. TEMPLE MUSEUM
University Circle 44106
(216) 791-7755 By appt
Dir: Daniel Jeremy Silver
Judaic ritual objects; paintings, sculpture, graphics.

---

*see catalog index

Columbus

3023. COLUMBUS MUSEUM OF ART
480 E Broad St 43215
(614) 221-6801 Tue-Fri 11-5, Wed 11-8:30, Sat 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Budd Harris Bishop
16th-20th-century European paintings, drawings, prints; American paintings, drawings, sculptures, prints; Chinese and Japanese ceramics and paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alberto Burri, Ed Mayer, Robert Mihaly, Karen Shirley, George Sugarman, Neil Welliver.

3024. COLUMBUS MUSEUM OF ART
Collectors Gallery
480 E Broad St 43215
(614) 221-6801 Tue-Fri 11-5, Wed 11-8:30, Sat 10-5, Sun 11-5
Dir: Beaux Arts
Contemporary New York and Ohio artists; works are loaned to museum members.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anita Dawson, Robert Glasgow, Benjamin Knepper, Bob Mauro, Aminah Robinson.

3025. CULTURAL ARTS CENTER
139 W Main St 43215
(614) 222-7047
Dir: Susan Wells
Exhibits in all mediums; art classes, poetry, film workshops and speakers.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sally Bishop, Ed Hallahan, Barry Kishpaugh, Roman Sapecki, Sherri Smith.

3026. CHARLES FOLEY GALLERY
973 E Broad St 43205
(614) 253-7921 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Charles P. Foley
20th-century painting, prints, sculpture, collages.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Anuszkiewicz, Jean Dubuffet, Henry Moore.

Other artists represented:
Bernard Beck, Jim Bruss, Marc Chagall, Jim Dine, Michael Mazur, Joan Miró, Louise Nevelson, Pablo Picasso.

3027. KENY AND JOHNSON GALLERY
300 E Beck St 43206
(614) 464-1228 Mon-Fri 10-6 by appt
Dir: Timothy Keny/James Keny
American painting 1870-1940; contemporary art; specializing in American Impressionism.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Anne Bonney*, Edmund Kuehn*, Alice Schille*, Jean-Marie Toulgouat*.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Daly, Tamara Jaeger, Matt Phillips, Lowell Polstedt.

3028. OHIO ARTS COUNCIL
Gund Gallery
727 E Main St 43205
(614) 466-2613 Fri 10-5, Sat 11-2, Mon-Thu by appt
Dir: Wayne P. Lawson
Exhibitions of works by grant recipients of the Ohio Arts Council program.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joy Jacobs, Michael Kellers, Aminah Brebda Robinson.

3029. OHIO FOUNDATION ON THE ARTS
440 Dublin Ave 43215
(614) 221-4300 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Denny Griffith
Touring exhibitions; fine arts transportation service; publisher of art journal: DIALOGUE.

3030. OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
Gallery of Fine Art
128 N Oval Mall/240 Hopkins Hall 43210
(614) 422-2395/422-0330 Mon-Fri 9-5; Tue, Thu eves 6-8, Sat 10-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Jonathan Green
Collections: "Art of the Seventies," historical prints, Chinese art; faculty, student, visiting artist exhibitions and performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Freeman, Arnold Lobel, Charles Massey, Dennis Oppenheim, Marcello Petrocelli, Janet Taylor Pickett, Joseph Raffael, Robert Rauschenberg.

Dayton

3031. DAYTON ART INSTITUTE
Forest and Riverdale Aves 45401
(513) 223-5277 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Bruce H. Evans
Paintings, sculpture, graphics, decorative arts; Asian, 17th- and 18th-century European, American collections.

Kent

3032. KENT STATE UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery
Art Building 44242
(216) 672-7853 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sun 12-5
Dir: Amy M. Lighthill
20th-century prints, photographs, and paintings.

Middletown

3033. MIDDLETOWN FINE ARTS CENTER
130 N Verity Parkway, PO Box 441 45042
(513) 424-2416 Mon 9-7, Tue-Thu 9-9, Fri 9-3
Dir: Larry B. Doud
Traditional, regional, and contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doug Adams, Janice Bechter, Bill Berry, Jim Cave, Dick George, Kevin Jordan, Guy Kaiser, Jan Knoop, Laura Livingston, Rosetta McNees, Janet Rappoport, Bill Rehse, Joan Rothel, Craig Steketee, Fran Watson, Mellisa Wilson, Paul Zidek.

Oberlin

3034. OBERLIN COLLEGE
Allen Memorial Art Museum
Main and Lorain Sts 44074
(216) 775-8665 Tue-Fri 11-5, Tue eve 5-8; Sat, Sun 2-5
Dir: Richard E. Spear
17th-century Dutch painting; European and American paintings, prints; Japanese woodcuts; costumes; textiles; Oriental rugs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eva Hesse*.

Oxford

3035. MIAMI UNIVERSITY
Art Museum
Patterson Ave 45056
(513) 529-2232 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: David S. Berreth
American 20th-century art, Gandharan sculpture, textiles, ceramics, Roman glass, and folk art.

Perrysburg

3037. GALLERY 106
106 W 3rd St 43551
(419) 874-4603 Tue-Sat 10-4:30
Dir: Susan I. Simmons
Impressionism: 19th- and 20th-century American paintings and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Henri Clausen, Robert Lockhart, David Schneider.

Other artists represented:
Gary Laatsch, Paul McCarthy.

Portsmouth

3038. SOUTHERN OHIO MUSEUM AND CULTURAL CENTER
825 Gallia 45662
(614) 354-5629 Wed, Thu 11-4; Fri 11-6; Sat, Sun 12-4
Dir: Craig McDaniel/Jean McDaniel

Shaker Heights

3039. MALCOLM BROWN GALLERY
20100 Chagrin Blvd 44122
(216) 751-2955 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Ernestine T. Brown
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Romare Bearden*, Malcolm Brown, Elizabeth Catlett*, Tom McKinney.

Other artists represented:
Lamar Briggs, Peggy Brown, Ed Dwight, Jon Kuhn, Diane Loos, Ray Loos, Maxine Masterfield, Doug Pasek, Clarence Perkins, Clarence Shivers, Lowell Ellsworth Smith.

Toledo

3040. J. BARRETT GALLERIES
3154 Markway Dr 43606
(419) 531-0623 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Jim Barrett
American and European works on paper, painting, sculpture, and studio art glass.

Other artists represented:
Felipe Castaneda, Thomas Hilty.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

3041. IMAGES GALLERY
4324 W Central Ave 43615
(419) 537-1400 Sep-May, Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-3; June-Aug, Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Frederick D. Cohn
New York and California artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gary Bukovnik, Corita Kent, Gordon Mortensen, Robert Motherwell, Joseph Raffael, Emilio Sanchez, Carol Summers, Larry Zox.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, John James Audubon, Walter Darby Bannard, Jon Carsman, Robert Goodnough, Melanie Greene, Charles Hinman, Lowell Nesbitt, Hennie Reimer, Deborah Remington, Elizabeth Schippert, Julian Stanczak, Zarko Stefancic, Sally Wellington.

3042. TOLEDO MUSEUM OF ART
2445 Monroe St 43697
(419) 255-8000 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Roger Mandle
Ancient, European and American glass; paintings, sculpture; Oriental and African art; prints, photographs, decorative arts, tapestries.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rêne Boyvin, El Greco*, Henri Matisse, Robert Motherwell.

Youngstown

3043. BUTLER INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN ART
524 Wick Ave 44502
(216) 743-1107 Tue-Sat 11-4, Wed eve 4-8, Sun 12-4
Dir: Louis Zona
American paintings from 1750-the Modern Period; collections of Western painting, marine painting, and Americana.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
P.E. Blair, John Cessna, William Kelly, James Lucas, Thomas McNickle, Jack Mitchell, Michael Moseley, Lowell Nesbitt*, David Shapiro*, Michael Whelan, John Winslow.

Zanesville

3044. ZANESVILLE ART CENTER
620 Military Rd 43701
(614) 452-0741 Sat-Thu 1-5
Dir: Charles Dietz
Museum; European, American, and Oriental paintings, sculpture and ceramics; Zanesville area ceramics and early Midwestern glass.

Oklahoma

Anadarko

3045. SOUTHERN PLAINS INDIAN MUSEUM AND CRAFTS CENTER
PO Box 749 73005
(405) 247-6221 Jun-Sep, Daily 9-5, Sun 1-5; Oct-May, Tue-Sat, 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Myles Libhart
Museum; Native American art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Albert Ferris*, Edgar Heap of Birds*, Jerry Ingram*, Jane Mauldin*, Ioleta Smith*.

Ardmore

3046. CHARLES B. GODDARD CENTER
1st Ave & D St SW 73401
(405) 226-0909
Dir: Laurence London
Contemporary paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
D. LaFon.

Goodwell

3047. NO MAN'S LAND HISTORICAL MUSEUM
Sewell St 73939
(405) 349-2670 Tue-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Harold S. Kachel
Non-profit; local artists.

Norman

3048. FIREHOUSE ART CENTER
444 S Flood 73069
(405) 329-4523 Mon-Fri 9-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Roger Runge
Regional art and crafts.

3049. UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA, NORMAN
Museum of Art
410 W Boyd St 73019
(405) 325-3272 Tue-Fri 11-4, Sat 11-2, Sun 1-4
Dir: Sam Olkinetzky
Contemporary American art including graphics, ceramics, photography; Oceanic and Oriental works.

Oklahoma City

3050. GUSTAFSON GALLERY
10467 N May Ave 73120
(405) 751-8466 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30, Sat 10-4
Dir: Diane Gustafson
American Indian art; graphics.

Other artists represented:
Woody Big Bow, Mars Biggoose, Mirac Creepingbear, Johnny Hawk, Sheila Hill, Doc Tate Nevaquaya, Bill Rabbit, Ben Adair Shoemaker, Jerome Tiger.

3051. OKLAHOMA ART CENTER
3113 Pershing Blvd 73107
(405) 946-4477 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Lowell Adams
Changing exhibitions; 20th-century American and regional art; Native American works; porcelain; glass; German Expressionism.

3052. OKLAHOMA INDIAN ART GALLERY
2335 Southwest 44th St 73119
(405) 685-6162 Tue-Sat 10-5:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Doris Littrell
Native American paintings, graphics, sculpture, pottery, baskets; rugs; jewelry; Kachina dolls.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robby McMurtry, Doc Tate Nevaquaya, Charles Pratt, Cathy Rutledge, Gary Yazzie.

Other artists represented:
Robert Annesley, Dennis Belindo, Parker Boyiddle, Sherman Chaddlesone, Mirac Creepingbear, Chebon Dacon, Bobby "Whitebuffalo" Hill, Katy Joachim, Lee Joshua, Ted Miller, Gary Montgomery, William Rabbit, Connie S. Ragan, Robert Redbird, Bert Seabourn, Ben Shoemaker, Jim Standefer, Jerome Tiger, Lee Tsa Toke, G. "Woogie" Watchetaker.

3053. OKLAHOMA MUSEUM OF ART
7316 Nichols Rd 73120
(405) 842-2759 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: David Mickenberg
Art from the 13th to early-20th centuries.

3054. PORTFOLIO
2208 NW 16th St 73107
(405) 525-6592 By appt
Dir: Jon Burris
Photography; contemporary American landscape artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Christian Vogt.

Other artists represented:
Paul Caponigro, William Clift, Goodwin Harding, Lawrence McFarland, Joan Myers, Eliot Porter, Ted Rice, Brett Weston.

3055. SHORNEY GALLERY OF FINE ART
6616 N Olie 73116
(405) 842-6175 Mon-Fri 1:30-5:30; By appt
Dir: Margo Kay Shorney
Works by Oklahoma artists; sculpture, painting, pottery.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Tara Tidwell Bryan, Rita Busch, Jim Cassel, Barbara Courtney, Deloras Frederick, Gary Goree, Roger Maddox, Marianne Meister, Jo Saylors, Carolyn Schaefer, Bill Thompson, - Janet Triplett, Gary Warnke, Don Webster.

Other artists represented:
Ynona Benedict, Sandy Braucht, Sam Echols, Marilyn Hallren, Barbara Hertz, Michael Hurd, Susan Martine, Veldonna Meyers, Galen Nichols, Patrick O'Connor, Jim Pitt, G.C. (Sonny) Stewart, Susan B. Talbot, L'Deane Trueblood, John L. Walch, Betty Watson, Jack J. Wells.

Ponca City

3056. PONCA CITY ART ASSOCIATION AND ART CENTER
819 E Central 74601
(405) 765-9746 Wed-Sun 1-5
Dir: Lucille King
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, and drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David Greer, Larry Greer, Jim Hamilton, Nancy Louvier, Gallagher Rule, Cletus Smith, Stan Watts.

---

*see catalog index

Shawnee

3057. MABEE-GERRER MUSEUM OF ART
1900 W MacArthur Dr 74801
(405) 273-9999 Tue-Sun 1-4
Dir: John L. Walch
American Indian paintings and artifacts; Egyptian, Oriental, Persian, Greek, Roman, African, Papuan, European, and American works; Mexican colonial painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Victor Roberts.

Stillwater

3058. OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY
Gardiner Art Gallery 74078
(405) 624-6016 Mon-Fri 8-5, Sun 1-4
Dir: B.J. Smith
A teaching gallery for the University, featuring contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marty Avrett, Richard Bivins, Dean Bloodgood, Nick Bormann, Ron DuBois, Lynda Halley, Susan Hamlet, Ellen Murray-Meissinger, Robert Parks, Janice Pittsley, David Roberts, B. J. Smith, Diana Whitmer-Francko, Edward Wong-Ligda.

Tulsa

3059. ART MARKET
4955 J S Memorial 74145
(918) 664-0626 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Linda Greever
American Indian art.

Other artists represented:
Robert Annesley, Mars Biggoose, Mike Daniel, Bill Glass, Benjamin Harjo, Valjean Hessing, Ruthe Jones, Woyneve Lassiter, Jane Mauldin, Robby McMurtry, Ted Miller, Freeman Mitchell, Charles Pratt, Harvey Pratt, William E. Rabbit, Connie Seabourn Ragan, Susan Romero, Don Secondine, Ben Shoemaker, Joan Shoemaker, David Williams.

3060. ARTS SIGNATURE GALLERY
3rd and Cincinnati 74103
(918) 582-7532 Tue-Sat 11-3
Dir: Mary Ann Doran
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints emphasizing Realism; crafts.

Other artists represented:
Sabine Barnard, Gene Bavinger, Eileen Bryce, Dana Gilpin, P.S. Gordon, Mary Sims.

3061. DAPHNE ART GALLERY AND FRAME SHOP
8162 S Harvard 74136
(918) 481-1232 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-4
Lithographs, silkscreens, and works by Oklahoma artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robert Bates, James Boren.

Other artists represented:
Troy Anderson, Archie Blackowl, John Clymer, Larry Fodor, E. "Kelly" Haney, G. Harvey, Jack Hines, Lee Joshua, Don Moore, "Doc" Tate Nevaquaya, Loren Pahsetopah, Marie Palmé, Robert Pummill, Bill Rabbit, Tom Ryan, Gordon Snidow, Robert Summers, Ray Swanson, Jerome Tiger, Russ Vickers, Robert Wagoner, G. "Woogie" Watchetaker, Olaf Weighorst.

3062. THOMAS GILCREASE INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN HISTORY AND ART
1400 N 25th W Ave 74127
(918) 581-5311 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Fred A. Myers
American sculpture and painting; artifacts and art of North American Indians; history of Westward movement.

3063. PHILBROOK ART CENTER
2727 S Rockford Rd 74152
(918) 749-7941 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Jesse G. Wright
Formal gardens, Renaissance Villa, Italian Renaissance paintings and sculpture; Native American, Oriental, African works; 19th-century painting.

Other artists represented:
Russell Lee.

3064. SILVER VISION
3509 S Peoria 74105
(918) 744-6030 Mon-Fri 10-6
Dir: Mary Audrain
Photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
David R. Blust, Jeanloup Sieff, Cecil Whitt.

Other artists represented:
Michael J. Flanagan, Gaylord O. Herron, Ben Newby.

3065. UNIVERSITY OF TULSA
Alexandre Hogue Gallery
600 S College Ave 74104
(918) 592-6000 ext 2202 Sep-May Mon-Fri 8-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Brad Place
Exhibitions of student and faculty works.

Woodward

3066. PIONEER MUSEUM AND ART GALLERY
2009 Williams Ave 73802
(405) 256-6136 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-4
Works by western Oklahoma artists; pioneer and Indian artifacts.

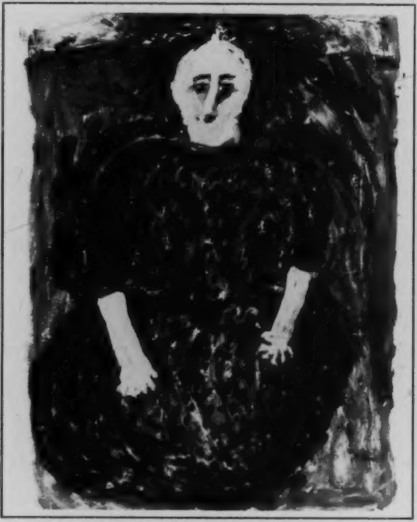
One person exhibitions in 1982:
Robin Gregory, Alda Johnston, Steve Jones, Greg Judy, Mary Metz, Agnes Sims.

Oregon

Ashland

3067. HANSON HOWARD GALLERIES
505 Siskiyou Blvd 97520
(503) 488-2562
Dir: Judy Howard

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jeffrey Bernard, Robert Bosworth, Maureen Cresci, Robert DeVoe, John Gaffey, Judy Howard, Betty LaDuke, Lyle Matoush, Katherine Wengi O'Connor, Carol Riley, Gwen Stone, Valerie Willson.



Lino Calvo-Novas: Untitled, 1981; at the Pratt Institute Gallery, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Coos Bay

3068. COOS ART MUSEUM
515 Market Ave 97420
(503) 267-3901 Tue-Sun 1-4
Dir: Kay Lorence
Paintings, sculpture, graphics; contemporary American graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ruth Snyder.

Eugene

3069. ARTIST'S UNION
985 Willamette St 97401
(503) 342-7620 Tue-Sat 12-5
Contemporary visual art.

Other artists represented:
Margaret Anne Bollock, Robert De Vine, Andrew Johnson, David Joyce, Kacey Joyce, Michael Kelly, Julia O'Reilly, Seth Thompson, James Ulrich, Margaret Via, Linda Walrod-Frith.

3070. LANE COMMUNITY COLLEGE ART GALLERY
4000 E 30th Ave 97405
(503) 747-4501 Mon-Thu 8-10, Fri 8-5
Dir: Harold Hoy
Contemporary local and regional art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Laura Alpert, Dan Dykes, Chris Gum, Paul Schaap, Walt Stevens, Morris Yarowsky.

3071. PROJECT SPACE GALLERY
39 E 10th Ave 97401
(503) 343-7819 Tue-Sat 12-5
Experimental, performance and installation works of gallery members; Northwestern art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Glen Diseth, Frank Fox, Robert Gibney, Chris Heindl, Harold Hoy, Janet O'Doherty, Paul Pappas, Byard Pidgeon, Nancy Prowell, James Ulrich, Mike E. Walsh, Carol Westlake.

Other artists represented:
Michael Bukowski, Paul Olson.

VOL 7 1 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

3072. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON
Museum of Art 97403
(503) 686-3207 Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Richard Paulin
Oriental and contemporary Northwest art; American print collection; Chinese robes; Japanese and Chinese prints; Ghandran and Indian sculpture.

Grants Pass

3073. GRANTS PASS MUSEUM OF ART
Box 966 97526
(503) 479-3290 Tue-Sat 12-4
Dir: Bernice Ayers
Permanent collection of American painting and graphics; changing and traveling exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rob Bell, Betty La Duke, Kathy Wengi O'Connor.

Medford

3074. ROGUE GALLERY
40 S Bartlett 97501
(503) 772-8118 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 10-4
Dir: Jan Trowbridge
Works by regional artists; educational programs; non-profit.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Claire Barr, Richard Fox, William Giles, Emily Koenig, James Lavadour, Ann MacArthur, Stacie Smith-Rowe, Sharon Wesner, Helen Wilson.

Portland

3075. ATTIC GALLERY
1313 NW Kearney 97209
(503) 228-7830 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Diana Faville
Contemporary paintings, prints, and sculpture of the Northwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susan Joy Ogilvy, Dianne Muffett Thomas.

Other artists represented:
Sidonie Caron, Patricia R. Dodd, John Hamburg, Liza Jones, Hank Kowert, Will Martin, Bob McDermott, Michael Metz, Joanne Peekema, Charles Politz, Tom Prochaska, LeRoy Setziol, Monica Setziol, Monique Siu, Mike Smith, Amanda Snyder, Christine Tarpey, Cecilia Todd, Libby Unthank, Judy Vogland.

3076. BLACKFISH GALLERY
325 NW 6th Ave 97206
(503) 224-2634 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Marc Tetreault
Contemporary artwork from the Pacific Northwest.

Other artists represented:
John Alberts, Dyann Alkire, Barbara Black, Bonnie Bronson, James Clark, Judy Cooke, Dennis Cunningham, Julia Fish, Susan Freifeld, Sheryl Funkhouser, Robert Hanson, Susan Hereford, Jim Hibbard, Ann Hughes, Kanetaka Ikeda, Michihiro Kosuge, Colleen Kriger, Vern Luce, Paul Missal, Bill Moore, David Pearson, Esther Podemski, Richard Rezak, Stephan Soihl, Marly Stone, Lynn Woods Turner.

3077. WILSON W. CLARK MEMORIAL LIBRARY GALLERY
5000 N Willamette Blvd 97203
(503) 283-7111 Mon-Thu 8-11, Fri 8-5, Sat 9-4:30, Sun 1-11
Dir: Joseph P. Browne
Rotating collections distributed by Old Bergen Art Guild.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Merwin Altfeld, Michael Lasuchin, David Lauver, Jesse Reed, Barnard Taylor.

3078. CONTEMPORARY CRAFTS ASSOCIATION
3934 SW Corbett Ave 97201
(503) 223-2654 Tue-Fri 11-5, Sat 12-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Marlene Gabel
Artwork in clay, glass, fiber, metal, and wood; educational programs.

Other artists represented:
Martha Banyas, Frank Boyden, Patricia Campbell, Elaine Coleman, Tom Coleman, Nelsie Davis, Garth Edwards, Judith Fawkes P, Walter Gordinier, Erik Gronborg, Anne Hirondelle, Patrick Horsley, Tetsuo Kusama, Marie Lyman, Sharon Marcus, Ben Moore, William Morris, Ronna Neuenschwander, Tim O'Neill, Geoff Pagen, Pam Patrie, John Rogers, Donald Sprague, Bob Stocksdale, John Takehara, Kurt Weiser, John Whitehead.

3079. FOUNTAIN GALLERY OF ART
117 NW 21st Ave 97209
(503) 228-8476 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Arlene Schnitzer
Northwest regional art, painting, sculpture, prints.

Other artists represented:
Joan Ross Bloedel, Louis Bunce, Kenneth Callahan, Francis Celentano, Jack Chevalier, Robert Colescott, Michael Dailey, Tom Fawkes, Karen Guzak, Sally Haley, Mary Heebner, Manuel Izquierdo, Mel Katz, Alden Mason, James McGarrell, Carl Morris, Hilda Morris, Lucinda Parker, Orleonok Pitkin, Jack Portland, Rene Rickabaugh, Michele Russo, Melvin Schuler.

3080. GALLERY WEST
4836 SW Scholls Ferry Rd 97225
(503) 292-6262 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-4
Dir: Ann LaRiviere
Contemporary painting, prints, sculpture, weaving, pottery of Northwest.

Other artists represented:
Perry Acker, Harold Balazs, Peter Belknap II, Kay Buckner, Paul Buckner, Mike Burns, Mark Clarke, Ray Ho, John Killmaster, Joan Metcalf, Emily Morse, Bennet Norrbo, Kay Wengi O'Connor, Donovan Petersen, John Takehara, Vince Zettler.

3081. IMAGE GALLERY
1017 SW Morrison 97205
(503) 224-9629 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Barbara L. McLarty
Folk art of Central and South America; Eskimo, Japanese, and Northwestern art.

Other artists represented:
Tom Blodgett, Peter Juvonen, M. L. McCorkle, Jack McLarty, Albert Runquist, Arthur Runquist.

3082. ELIZABETH LEACH GALLERY
207 SW Pine St 97204
(503) 224-0521 Mon-Fri 11-5:30; Sat, Sun 11-4
Dir: Elizabeth Leach
Contemporary paintings, drawings, sculpture, and graphics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ken Butler, Mary Jo Cook, Richard Gruetter, Cynthia Nartonis, Hap Tivey, Gary Westford.

Other artists represented:
Tim Baer, Benno Friedman, Jim Jacobs, Suellen Johnson, Thomas, H. Kramer, Dick Lodwig, David Meyer, Larry Shlim, John Sonsini, Taro Suzuki, Richard Thompson, Mark Tobey, Paul Trautman, Douglas Wallower, John R. White.

3083. NORTHWEST ARTISTS WORKSHOP
522 NW 12th 97209
(503) 220-0435 Tue-Sat 12-5
Dir: Marychris Mass
Non-profit; contemporary Northwest artists: music, video, performance, crafts, folk, and fine arts.

3084. OCCUPIED SPACE
410 SW 13th St 97205
(503) 223-8086
Dir: Ragnars Veilands

Other artists represented:
Anton Kimball, Steve Steckly, Ragnars Veilands.

3085. OREGON SCHOOL OF ARTS AND CRAFTS
Hoffman Gallery
8245 SW Barnes Rd 97225
(503) 297-5544 Tue-Thu 10-5; Fri, Sat 10-4; Sun 10-2
Dir: Pat Sprouse
West Coast artists in craft mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Curtis Erfelding, Marie Lyman, Yoshiko Wada.

Other artists represented:
Joe Apodaca, Frank Boyden, John Hamil, Don Sprague, John Whitehead.

3086. PORTLAND ART MUSEUM
1219 SW Park 97205
(503) 266-2811 Tue-Sun 12-5, Fri 12-10
Dir: Donald Jenkins
Northwest coast Indian, Asian, West African, Pre-Columbian, ancient, medieval art; European and American painting, sculpture, photography, decorative arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Honore Daumier, Arthur B. Davies, Lee Friedlander, Wassily Kandinsky, Henk Pander*, Lucas Samaras.

3087. PORTLAND CENTER FOR THE VISUAL ARTS
117 NW 5th Ave 97209
(503) 222-7101 Sep-Jun Tue-Sun 12-5
Dir: Donna J. Milrany
Contemporary visual and performing arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Vito Acconci, Jim Lawrence, Donald Lipski, Michael McCafferty, Jim Pridgeon, Joel Shapiro, Robert Stackhouse, Paul Sutinen.

3088. PORTLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE
North View Gallery
12000 SW 49th St 97219
(503) 244-6111 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Sharon Bronzan
Contemporary art of the Northwest.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Paul Missal, Peter Teneau.

3089. PORTLAND STATE UNIVERSITY
Littman Gallery 97207
(503) 229-3020 Mon-Fri 12-5
Dir: Lisa K. Parsons
Contemporary national and regional art; kinetic sculpture, Indian masks, video.

3090. PORTLAND STATE UNIVERSITY
White Gallery
Box 751 97207
(503) 229-3020 Mon-Sat 8-9
Dir: Bradley Rogers
Photography.

3091. REED COLLEGE ART GALLERY
3202 SE Woodstock Blvd 97202
(503) 771-1112 Sat-Sun 12-5
Dir: Greg Ware
Artists and works from outside West Coast area.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Irving Marcus, Janis Provisor, Judy Rifka.

---

*see catalog index

3092. SUNBOW GALLERY
206 SW Stark 97204
(503) 221-0258 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Lynda Hamilton
American prints, blown glass, pottery, baskets, jewelry.

3093. UNIVERSITY OF PORTLAND
Buckley Center Gallery
5000 N Willamette Blvd 97203
(503) 283-7258 Mon-Fri 8:30-8, Sat 8:30-4, Sun 2-4
Dir: Michael Miller
Exhibition of local artists; work in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elaine Chandler, Nancy Cushwa-Blake, David Joyce, Roberta Kaserman, Kirk Lybecker, Joyce Morgareidge, C.W. Potts, Mike Walsh.

3094. WESTWOOD GALLERIES
5025 SW Corbett 97201
(503) 224-5372
Dir: Dale Heinemann
American Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Glenn La Fontaine, Phillip Minthorn, Amado Pena*.

Pennsylvania

Allentown

3095. ALLENTOWN ART MUSEUM
5th and Court Sts 18105
(215) 432-4333 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Richard N. Gregg
18th-20th-century American paintings and prints; Kress Memorial collection of Renaissance and Baroque art of Italy, Holland, and Germany; textiles.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
William L. Lathrop, Jason Seley, Nina Winkel.

Bethlehem

3096. LEHIGH UNIVERSITY
Dubois Gallery
Maginnes Hall 18015
(215) 861-3615 Daily 9-10, Sat 9-12
Dir: Ricardo Viera
Painting, sculpture, and graphics by Pennsylvania artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Hamwi, Stephen Talasnik.

3097. LEHIGH UNIVERSITY
Hall Gallery
Alumni Bldg 18015
(215) 861-3615 Sep-May Daily 9-5, Sat 9-12, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ricardo Viera
Painting, sculpture, photography, and graphics by Pennsylvania artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elliot Erwitt, Evergon, Ionesco, Robert Mapplethorpe, Stephen Perloff, Lou Stoumen.

3098. LEHIGH UNIVERSITY
Ralph Wilson Gallery
Alumni Bldg 18015
(215) 861-3615 Sep-May Daily 9-5, Sat 9-12, Sun 2-5
Dir: Ricardo Viera
Painting, sculpture, and graphics by Pennsylvania artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marco Kalisch, Shou-Zhi Wang, Glenn Zweygardt.

Blue Bell

3099. JUDY & ALAN GOFFMAN
PO Box 350 A 19422
(215) 643-6310 By appt
Dir: Judy Goffman/Alan Goffman
American illustrators from the 1880s to the 1940s; 19th-century American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Peter Sculthorpe.

Other artists represented:
Howard C. Christy, Harvey Dunn, John Falter, Harrison Fisher, J. C. Leyendecker, Maxfield Parrish, Howard Pyle, Norman Rockwell, Jessie Willcox Smith, N. C. Wyeth.

Bryn Mawr

3101. NEWMAN GALLERIES
850 W Lancaster Ave 19010
(215) 525-0625 Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30; Sep-Jun, Sat 10-5
Dir: Walter Newman
19th- and 20th-century American and European paintings and prints.

Other artists represented:
Marcel Anderson, Lance Balderson, Ranulph Bye, David Coolidge, Fern Coppedge, Ben Eisenstat, John English, Andre Gisson, Alexandre Jacob, Karl J. Kuerner, Antonio Martino, Wayne Morrell, Frank Nofer, Oku, Hobson Pittman, George Porter, William Ressler, A. J. Rudisill, Virgil Sova, Malcolm Thompson, Fred Wagner, Howard Watson, Henry Wo Yue Kee.

3102. WADSWORTH GALLERY
826 W Lancaster Ave 19010
(215) 527-3860 Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Wed 10-9
Dir: Vickie Lieberman
Paintings, prints, and crafts.

Chadds Ford

3103. BRANDYWINE RIVER MUSEUM
US Route 1 19317
(215) 388-7601 Daily 9:30-4:30
Dir: James H. Duff
19th-century American paintings, illustrations, works of the Wyeth families.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Palmer Cox, Charlotte Harding, John W. McCoy, E.J. Taylor, N.C. Wyeth.

Conshohocken

3104. HALLOWELL GALLERY
151 10th Ave E 19428
(215) 828-8666 Mon-Thu 10-5, Fri 10-9, Sat 11-6, Sun 12-5
Dir: Jack A. Roonick

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Yankel Ginzburg, Peter Max.

Other artists represented:
Roy Carruthers, R. C. Gorman, Roy Lichtenstein, Aldo Luongo, Joan Miró, G. H. Rothe, Adolf Sehring, Frank Stella, Seikichi Takara, Hiro Yamagata.

Easton

3105. LAFAYETTE COLLEGE
Gallery, Morris R. Williams Center For The Arts 18042
(215) 250-5361 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Michiko O. Taylor
19th-20th-century American art; changing exhibitions.

Elkins Park

3106. GALLERY 500
Church and Old York Rds 19117
(215) 572-1203 Mon-Sat 10-5, Fri eve 5-9
Dir: Gary Relkey
Contemporary American art and crafts.

Other artists represented:
Dorothy Gillespie, Steven Kemenyffy, Susan Kemenyffy, Sandy Kinnee, Mark Lavitelli, Stefan Martin, William Masterson, Frank McCullough, Gregorio Prestopino, Joanne Miller Rafferty, Elizabeth Rickert, Connie Slack, Joyce Zipperer.

Glenside

3107. BEAVER COLLEGE
Richard Eugene Fuller Art Gallery 19038
(215) 884-3500 ext 374 Mon-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Zina Goldsmith
Emerging and established American artists; all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Arakawa, Nancy Holt, Barry Le Va.

VOL
7
1
ISS
7
AG
1983
UMI

Greensburg

3108. WESTMORELAND COUNTY MUSEUM OF ART
221 N Main St 15601
(412) 837-1500 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Paul A. Chew
American painting, sculpture, prints, drawings, decorative arts; 18th-century English decorative and fine arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Dorothy Davids*, Anne Elliott*, Joseph Sheppard*.

Harrisburg

3109. DOSHI CENTER FOR CONTEMPORARY ART
1435 N 2nd St 17102
(717) 232-3039 Mon-Fri 11-4, Sun 3-5
Dir: Randy Gohn
Contemporary painting, drawing, graphics, and photography; weaving, ceramics.

3110. WILLIAM PENN MEMORIAL MUSEUM
3rd and N Sts 17120
(717) 787-4980 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 12-5
Dir: Donald A. Winer
Pennsylvania fine and decorative arts, crafts; Indian and historical archaeology, natural science.

Other artists represented:
Walter Huber, Frances Lichten, Lloyd Mifflin, Violet Oakley, Peter F. Rothermel, George Storm.

Lancaster

3111. COMMUNITY GALLERY OF LANCASTER
135 N Lime St 17602
(717) 394-3497 Mon-Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Dir: Shirley M. Reed
Non-profit gallery; painting, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Josef Albers, Harry Bertoia, Charles Demuth, Ken Graves, Stanley William Hayter, Henry Libhart, Vivien Narehood, Moses Soyer, Bruce West, Jan Yatsko.

Lewisburg

3112. BUCKNELL UNIVERSITY CENTER GALLERY
17837
(717) 524-3792 Mon-Fri 11-4:30, Tue-Thu 7-10; Sat, Sun 1-4
Dir: Joseph Jacobs
Contemporary art; 19th- and early-20th-century American and European collections.

Loretto

3113. SOUTHERN ALLEGHENIES MUSEUM OF ART
Saint Francis College Mall 15940
(814) 472-6400 Tue-Fri 9:30-4:30; Sat, Sun 1:30-5:30
Dir: Michael Strueber
Exhibitions of American painting, sculpture, drawing, and prints.

Melrose Park

3114. PEARL FOX GALLERY
103 Windsor Ave 19126
(215) 635-4586 Daily 11-4
Dir: Pearl Fox
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lois Dollin, Douglas Gorsline, James Lang, Don Lord.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Amorotico, Hazel Finell, Marion Gaskins, Emery Goff, Laura Goodman, David Homan, Walter Hook, David Hoppe, David Hostettler, Ben Kamihira, Neil Kosh, Fred Kreuger, John Lear, Mahnke, Erin O'Dell, Robert Parrott, Bernard Petlock, Ruth Petlock, Henry Pitz, Seymour Remenick, William Swanson, Richard Taicher.

Merion Station

3115. BARNES FOUNDATION
300 N Latch's Lane 19066
(215) 667-0290 Fri, Sat 9:30-4:30; Sun 1-4:30
Dir: Violette de Mazia
Permanent collection of French Impressionists.

Philadelphia

3116. AFRO-AMERICAN HISTORICAL AND CULTURAL MUSEUM
7th and Arch Sts 19106
(215) 574-0380 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-6
Dir: Teri Y. Doke
Sculpture, painting, prints by African and Afro-American artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Rhoden.

3117. ASSOCIATED AMERICAN ARTISTS
1614 Latimer St 19103
(215) 545-7374 Tue-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Margo Dolan
15th-20th-century prints.

Other artists represented:
Norman Ackroyd, Will Barnet, Richard Bosman, Richard Diebenkorn, David Hockney, Robert Motherwell, Benton Spruance, Carol Summers.

3118. NOËL BUTCHER GALLERY
132 S 17th St 19103
(215) 569-1236
Dir: Noël Butcher-Pratt
Contemporary paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Margaret Heuges, William Irvine, Uta Schubert, Una Wilkinson.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Amarotico, Moe Booker, Tom Callis, Bruno Civitico, Stephanie de Manuelle, Perky Edgerton, Gilbert Lewis, Sarah McEneaney, Barbara Mungall, Chuck Olson, Barbara Page, Steve Pentak, Diane Pieri, Katharine Renninger, Signe Sundberg, Marguerite Walsh, Sanae Willoughby, John Winship.

3119. PAUL CAVA GALLERY
1715 Spruce St 19103
(215) 732-5188 By appt
Dir: Paul Cava
19th- and 20th-century photography.

Other artists represented:
Eugene Atget, Julia Margaret Cameron, Frederick Evans, George Platt-Lynes, Karl Struss, Wilhelm Von Gloeden.

3120. DAVID DAVID ART GALLERY
260 S 18th St 19103
(215) 735-2922 Mon-Fri 10-5
Dir: Alan David/Carl David
15th-20th-century European and American painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Elizabeth Howells, Russell Smith, Alice Kent Stoddard, Martha Walter, Frank Reed Whiteside.

3121. HELEN DRUTT GALLERY
305 Cherry St 19106
(215) 735-1625 Tue-Sat 11-5
Dir: Helen Williams Drutt
Late-20th-century work: clay, textiles, jewelry, sculpture, drawings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Burns*, Louise Todd Cope*, Edward de Large*, Terri Lee Foltz-Fox*, Wayne Higby*, Lewis Knauss*, Louis Mueller*, Wendy Ramshaw*, Bruce Schnabel*, Helen Shirk*, Lizbeth Stewart*, Paula Winokur*.

Other artists represented:
Joan Binkley, Nancy Carman, Val Cushing, William Daley, Rob Forbes, Robert Forman, David Gilhooly, Toni Goessler-Snyder, Susan Hamlet, Diane Itter, Fumiyo Kaneko, Jun Kaneko, Graham Marks, Bruce Metcalf, Judy Moonelis, Rice Rice Nagin, Michael Olszewski, Robin Quigley, Richard Reinhardt, Cynthia Schira, Vickie Sedman, Olaf Skoogfors, Rudolf Staffel, Lenore Tawney, Robert Turner, Joke Van Ommen, Cheryl Ward, David Watkins, Robert Winokur.

3122. SAMUEL S. FLEISHER ART MEMORIAL
715-719 Catharine St 19147
(215) 922-3456 Mon-Thu 12-5, 7-9:30; Sat 1-3
Dir: Stephen Talasnik
Philadelphia Museum community arts center; works of local artists, educational programs.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Siah Armajani, John Carlano, Susan Chrysler-White, Jon Clark, Tom Ferris, Michael Garrity, Louis Kahn, Mel Leipzig, Brian Meunier, Susan Moore, Sam Norgard, Sid Sachs, Hester Stinnett, William Welch.

3123. JANET FLEISHER GALLERY
211 S 17th St 19103
(215) 545-7562 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: John Ollman
American Indian, Pre-Columbian, and folk art; African sculpture; American painting.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bruce Burris, John Ferris, Marcy Hermansader, Marilyn Keating.

3124. FOUNDATION FOR TODAY'S ART/NEXUS
2017 Chancellor St 19103
(215) 567-3481 Tue-Sat 11:30-5
Dir: Suzanne Horvitz
Artist-run, non-profit; contemporary art.

---

*see catalog index

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jill Bornovitz, Anne Bourassa, M.R. Daniels, Dorothy Dean, Lynn Denton, Joan Gallup, Elissa Glassgold, Anthony Gorny, Peter Grimord, Raquel Higgins, Suzanne Horvitz, Lydia Hunn, Jessie Lewis, Jean Pettengill, Jean Silverthorne, Stephanie Tyiska, Magda Vitale.

3125. JEFFREY FULLER FINE ART
2108 Spruce St 19103
(215) 545-8154 Tue-Sat 11-5, Jun-Aug Thu-Sat 11-5
Dir: Jeffrey P. Fuller

Contemporary American paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Cage, Linda Connor, Richard Diebenkorn, Emlen Etting, Buckminster Fuller, Anthony Gorny, Sam Maitin, Mark McFadden, Bruce Pollock, Wade Saunders, Susanne Slavick.

Other artists represented:
Harold Allen, Betsey Batchelor, Michael Becotte, Frank Bramblett, Helen Brunner, JoAnn Callis, Darryl Curran, Peter deLory, Sandi Fellman, Larry Fink, Deborah Flynn, Marjorie Gapp, Charles Hinman, Catherine Jansen, Maurie Kerrigan, William Larson, Joan Lyons, Martha Madigan, Roger Mertin, Edmund Morais, Barbara Morgan, Robert Natkin, Joyce Neimanas, Kenda North, Eric Renner, Sid Sachs, Keith Smith, Buzz Spector, Marcia Tanner, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen, Rochelle Toner, Kathy Vannozzi.

3126. SUZANNE GROSS GALLERY
1726 Sansom St 19103
(215) 563-4753 Tue, Thu, Fri 10:30-6, Wed 11-6, Sat 11-5
Dir: Suzanne Gross

Paintings, works on paper, sculpture, tapestry, furniture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Rita Barnett, Steve Hornsher, Barbara Minch, Jacqueline Wilentz.

Other artists represented:
Paulette Bensignor, Ruth Dipper, Charles DuBack, Patrick Egan, Joshua Garfield, Russell Recchion, Wendy Berg Roth, Pierre Sala, Bob Stickloon, Gale Surface.

3127. HAHN GALLERY
8439 Germantown Ave 19118
(215) 247-8439 Mon-Sat 10-5:30
Dir: Roslyn S. Hahn

Contemporary paintings, sculpture, works on paper, Japanese woodblock prints, crafts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ranulph Bye, James Coignard, Lucius Crowell, Brian Dickerson, Elizabeth Dorsey, Anatoli Kaplan, Hank Laventhol, Tom McKinney, Mark Miller, Benton Spruance.

Other artists represented:
John Bannon, Ruth Berger, Vincent Ceglia, Pamela Cornell, Jacqueline Cotter, Sara Coveney, Ronell Douglass, Joseph Frassetta, Kathryn Gabinet-Kroo, Suzanne Gilliard, Carol Berger Hershman, Earl Horter, David Hyde, Lillian Lee, Babette Martino, Lynn Mowrer, Barbara Osterman, Juliette Palmer, Sandra Sawin, Erna Stenzler, Richard Taicher, Sergei Taracyan, Ineke Van Werkhoven, Helen Van Wyk.

3128. JAIPAUL GALLERIES
7706 Seminole Ave 19126
(215) 735-7303 Mon-Fri 11-5:30, Sat 11-4
Dir: Dr. Jaipaul

Art and antiques from India, Nepal, Tibet.

3129. KLING GALLERY
2301 Chestnut St 19103
(215) 569-2900 Mon-Sat 9-5
Dir: George Young

Non-profit; emerging and established contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James Caola, John Gregory, Sam Norgard, Dana Osherman, William Russell, Debra Sachs, Roy Vollmer, Susan White, Robert Woodward.

3130. LA SALLE COLLEGE ART GALLERY
20 St and Olney Ave 19141
(215) 951-1221 Tue-Fri 11-3, Sun 2-4
Dir: Daniel Burke

European and American painting, drawing, sculpture; 19th-20th-century prints; illustrated bibles.

3131. MARIAN LOCKS GALLERY
1524 Walnut St 19102
(215) 546-0322 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Marian Locks

Works by contemporary area artists; sponsors New Talent program and exhibition.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Doug Alderfer, Judy Alderfer, James W. "Bo" Bartlett, Woofy Bubbles, Amy Cohen, Dennis Corrigan, Charles Fahlen, James Havard, Christopher Hodge, Charles Kalick, Sandra Lerner, Jim Lueders, Edith Neff, Keith Ragone, Merle Spandorfer, Elsa Tarantal.

Other artists represented:
Edna Andrade, Ronald Bateman, Helen Bershad, Diane Burko, Thomas Chimes, Daniel Dallman, Joyce De Guatemala, Claudia DeMonte, Murray Dessner, Harriet Feigenbaum, David Fertig, John Formicola, Lois M. Johnson, Robert Keyser, Robert Kulicke, Elaine Kurtz, Ed McGowin, Bruce McGrew, Fox Joy McGrew, Stanley Merz, John Moore, Joe Moss, Elizabeth Osborne, Jody Pinto, Phillips Simkin, Harry Soviak, Roswell Weidner, Fumio Yoshimura, Martha Zelt.

3132. GILBERT LUBER GALLERY
1220 Walnut St 19107
(215) 732-2996 Mon-Sat 11:30-5:30, Wed 5:30-6
Dir: Gilbert Luber/Shirley Luber

Antique and contemporary Japanese graphics; Japanese books.

Other artists represented:
Hirusada, Utagawa Kunisada, Shigeki Kuroda, Koichi Sakamoto, Toshi Yoshida, Yoshitaki.

3133. MAKLER GALLERY
1716 Locust St 19103
(215) 735-2540 Mon-Fri 11-5
Dir: Paul Makler/Hope Makler

Contemporary art; art of India.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sandra Calder Davidson, Sam Francis, Mary Frank, Marisol, Henry Moore, Robert Zakanitch.

3134. ERIC MAKLER GALLERY
1716 Locust St 19103
(215) 735-5050 Mon-Sat 11-5
Dir: Eric Makler

Contemporary Philadelphia artists; works in all mediums, decorative and conceptual.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ann Chahbandour, Tim Dixon, Ed Hendricks, Richard Merkin, Kay Ritter, Harvey Weinreich.

Other artists represented:
Richard Cramer, Hannah Gruenberg, Phillip Johnson, Paul Kane, Justin McCarthy, Leo Sewell, Michael Titchnell.

3135. BENJAMIN MANGEL GALLERY
1604 Locust St 19103
(215) 545-4343 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Benjamin Mangel

Contemporary sculpture, paintings, drawings, prints, installations.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Fernando Botero, John Dawson, Tom Gaughan, Red Grooms, Anita Charney Harris, Sam Maitin, Aart van Kruiselbergen, Burton Wasserman, Anne Youkeles.

Other artists represented:
William Barnett, Harry Bertoia, Jon Bogel, Joe Brown, Benjamin Eisenstat, Joseph Greenberg, Yoko Haru, Bobbi Heisman, Barkley L. Hendricks, Paul Kane, Alex Katz, Allen Koss, Francis McCarthy, Barbara Myers, Reuben Nakian, Libby Newman, David Pease, Inga Pickering, Biagio Pinto, Peter Schaumann, Dan Teis.

3136. GROSS MCCLEAF GALLERY
1713 Walnut St 19103
(215) 665-8138 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Estelle Gross

Contemporary paintings, sculpture, works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Martha Armstrong, Sideo Fromboluti, John Laub*, Kenneth Leslie, Emily Mason, Rose Naftulin, Jane Piper*, Barbara Sosson*, Susan Van Campen, Tim Van Campen, Carter Zervas, Chris Zmijewski.

Other artists represented:
Jan C. Baltzell, Jack Barnett, Larry Day, Iona Fromboluti, Eileen Goodman, Penelope Harris, Kevin O'Toole, Leon Sitarchuk, Nora Speyer, Joe Sweeney, Heidi Williams, Douglas Wirls.

3137. SUSAN MONTEZINOS GALLERY
1628 Pine St 19103
(215) 735-3235/546-8116
Dir: Susan Montezinos

Contemporary Dutch paintings, sculpture, works on paper; opening October 1983.

Other artists represented:
Joseph Cals, Paul de Lussanet, Jack de Rÿk, Edward Valk, Tony Van de Voorst, Willem Van Dort.

3138. MORE GALLERY
1630 Walnut St 19103
(215) 735-1827 Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Wed 5:30-7
Dir: Charles N. More

Contemporary paintings and sculpture; works on paper.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
James DeWoody, Frank Galuszka, Philip Geiger, Frank Hyder, Scott Noel, John Opie, Susan Opie, Dan Wittels.

Other artists represented:
Ruth Fine, Charles Le Clair, James McElhinney, Wayne Morris, Leonard Nelson.

3139. MUSE GALLERY
1915 Walnut St 19103
(215) 963-0959 Sep-Jul Tue-Sat 11-5

Cooperative; contemporary painting, sculpture, printmaking, photography.

Other artists represented:
Carol Clamer, Hannah Fink, Lucy Gans, Mur Sherman Hayman, Sutton Hays, Lisa Manheim, Carol Moore, Sissy Pizzollo, Nancy Sarangoulis, Mary Yess.

3140. NEWMAN GALLERIES
1625 Walnut St 19103
(215) 563-1779 Sep-Jun Mon-Fri 9-5:30, Sat 10-4:30; Jul-Aug Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: Walter Newman

19th- and 20th-century American and European paintings and prints.

Other artists represented:
Marcel Anderson, Lance Balderson, Ranulph Bye, David Coolidge, Fern Coppedge, Ben Eisenstat, John English, André Gisson, Alexandre Jacob, Karl J. Kuerner, Antonio Martino, Wayne Morrell, Frank Nofer, Oku, Hobson Pittman, George Porter, William Ressler, A. J. Rudisill, Virgil Sova, Malcolm Thompson, Fred Wagner, Howard Watson, Henry Wo Yue Kee.

3141. LAWRENCE OLIVER
1626/1625 Pine St 19103
(215) 735-3575 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Larry Mangel

Contemporary American and European painting and sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Alice Aycock, Bruce Brooks, Jeff DeLude, John Dickson, Richard Hickam, Jim Poag, Alan Saret, Jeff Way.

Other artists represented:
John Alexander, Bård Breivik, Thomas Butter, Michael Byron, Sarah Colby, Beverly Fishman, Frank Gillette, Maryann Golden-Lee, Tom Hatten, Judy Rifka.

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

3142. PAINTED BRIDE ART CENTER
230 Vine St 19106
(215) 925–9914 Mon–Sat 12–6
Dir: Gerard Givnish/Joan Braun
Emerging artists; paintings, drawings, prints, photography; sculpture, installations; performances.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Lee Brozgold, Howard Brunner, Joe Danciger, Neal Disabato, Marge Ellenbogen, Arthur Evans, Larry Francis, Millie Greenberg, Al Gury, Ruth Humpton, Frank Lonabaugh, Jean Plough, Lisa Sparling, Rebecca West.

3143. PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS
Broad and Cherry Sts 19102
(215) 972–7600 Tue–Sat 10–5, Sun 1–5
Dir: Frank H. Goodyear, Jr.
18th- to 20th-century American painting, sculpture, and graphic arts; 19th- and 20th-century landscape and genre.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
George Krause, Warren Rohrer, William Rush*, Peter Bonnet Wight.

Other artists represented:
Harry Bertoia, Emily Brown, Jonas dos Santos, Ed Kerns, Lois Lane.

3144. PHILADELPHIA ART ALLIANCE
251 S 18th St 19103
(215) 545–4302 Tue–Sat 10:30–5
Dir: Noble Smith
Paintings, sculpture, prints, crafts, photography, architecture exhibitions.

3145. PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF ART
Edith Rosenwald Gallery
Broad and Spruce Sts 19102
(215) 893–3188 Mon–Fri 10–5, Wed 10–9, Sat 12–5
Dir: Elaine Cocordas
Contemporary American art in all mediums.

3146. PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF ART
Howard A. Wolf Gallery
Broad and Spruce Sts 19102
(215) 893–3188 Mon–Fri 10–5, Wed 10–9, Sat 12–5
Dir: Elaine Cocordas
Contemporary American art in all mediums.

3147. PHILADELPHIA MUSEUM OF ART
26th and Benjamin Franklin Pkwy 19130
(215) 763–8100 Tue–Sun 10–5
Dir: Anne d'Harnoncourt
Far and Near Eastern art; 19th-century and Cubist European painting; Barberini tapestries; folk art; sculpture; furniture; textiles; photography.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
John Cage, Marius de Zayas*, Thomas Eakins*, Frederick H. Evans, Sir Edwin Landseer*, Danny Lyon.

3148. PORT OF HISTORY MUSEUM AT PENN'S LANDING
Delaware Ave at Walnut St 19106
(215) 925–3804 Wed–Sun 10–4:30
Dir: Ronald L. Barber
International and regional art, crafts, photography, design; ethnographic collections.

3149. PORTICO
902 Spruce St 19107
(215) 627–8089 Tue–Fri 10–5, Sat 12–5
Dir: Steven Lowy
Contemporary art, prints.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mark Ed, Paul Hamanaka, Daniel Topalis.

Other artists represented:
Carl Apfelschnitt, Stephen Binasiewicz, Ross Bleckner, Michael Burns, Edith Carlson, Natalie Dymnick, Laura Foreman, Roland Gebhardt, Ken Graves, Richard Hambleton, John Jackson, Suzanne Joelson, Michael McKlintock, Tony Moore, Thomas Reeder, Craig Shaeffer, Stephen Spera, Mark Stivers, Laurinda Stockwell, Michael Tingley.

Ray Metzker; at Film in the Cities, St. Paul, Minn. (May 5-26, 1982).

3150. THE PRINT CLUB
1614 Latimer St 19103
(215) 735–6090 Sep–Jun Tue–Sat 10–5:30
Dir: Ofelia Garcia
Non-profit, educational; collection of prints, photographs housed at Philadelphia Museum of Art; changing exhibitions.

3151. RODGER LAPELLE GALLERIES
2002 Rittenhouse Sq 19103
(215) 546–0220 Wed–Sat 12–7, Sun 12–5
Dir: Rodger LaPelle
20th-century painting and sculpture; crafts.

Other artists represented:
Clayton Anderson, Harry Anderson, Romare Bearden, Tucker Bobst, Jerry Crimmins, Fred Danziger, James Farrah, Frieda Fehrenbacher, Joan Gallup, Allan Grow, Friedensreich Hundertwasser, Paul Lehr, David Lynch, Christine McGinnis, Michael McKenzie, Jeffry Moulton, Keith Newhouse, Tseng Ying Pang, Peter Paone, Holly Smith, Mary Wilson, Isiah Zagar.

3152. RODIN MUSEUM
21st and Benjamin Franklin Pky 19101
(215) 763–8100 Tue–Sun 10–5
Dir: Anne d'Harnoncourt
Collection of works by 19th-century French sculptor Auguste Rodin.

3153. ROSENFELD GALLERY
113 Arch St 19106
(215) 922–1376 Wed–Sat 10–6, Sun 12–5
Dir: Richard Rosenfeld/Barbara Rosenfeld
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, printmaking, metals.

Other artists represented:
Roger Anliker, Leslie Baker, Kenneth Batista, Wolfgang Behl, David Brumbach, Vincent Falsetta, Robert Glasgow, Judith Ingram, Deborah Kogan, Michael Lasuchin, Bernie Mangiaracina, Lisa Manheim, Dan Miller, Robert Nelson, Bruce Samuelson, Charles Schmidt, Eric Sealine, George Sorrels, Mary Spinelli, Karen Stoller, Stephen Tarantal, James Toogood, Ken Vavrek, Doug Zucco.

3154. ROUTE 66
2026 Locust St 19103
(215) 985–1061 Tue–Sat 10–6
Dir: Harriet Polite
Contemporary paintings, drawings, prints, photography, architectural drawings.

Other artists represented:
Joe Doyle, Douglas Kent Hall, Mark McDowell, Tom Palmore, Mel Ramos, Frank Lloyd Wright.

3155. FRANK S. SCHWARZ & SON
1806 Chestnut St 19103
(215) 563–4887 Mon–Fri 9:30–5:30, Sat 10–5
Dir: Robert D. Schwarz
19th-century American and European art; emphasis on Philadelphia artists.

3156. ST. JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY GALLERY
5600 City Ave 19031
(215) 879–7604 Daily 10–4
Dir: Dennis Weeks
Contemporary photography, painting, printmaking, regional artists.

3157. JANE STEINSNYDER
1608 Pine St 19103
(215) 732–9685 Tue–Sat 12–5
Dir: Jane Steinsnyder
Sculpture, jewelry, textiles, and clothing from Africa, South Pacific, Indonesia, and India.

3158. SWAN GALLERIES
8433 Germantown Ave 19118
(215) 242–5300 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Jane Korman/Ann Sklar
Contemporary American crafts: clay, fiber, glass, metal.

Other artists represented:
Glenda Arentzen, Harriet Bellows, Rick Bernstein, Sharon Church, Claude Conover, Kris Cox, Leonard Di Nardo, Stuart Golder, Thomas Hoadley, Karen Karnes, Paul Manners, Benjamin Moore, Ivy Ross, Kurt Weiser, Marsha Zion.

3159. SWAN GALLERIES
132 S 18th St 19103
(215) 568–9898 Mon–Sat 10–6
Dir: Jane Korman/Ann Sklar
Contemporary American crafts: clay, fiber, glass, metal.

Other artists represented:
Glenda Arentzen, Harriet Bellows, Rick Bernstein, Sharon Church, Claude Conover, Kris Cox, Leonard Di Nardo, Stuart Golder, Thomas Hoadley, Karen Karnes, Paul Manners, Benjamin Moore, Ivy Ross, Kurt Weiser, Marsha Zion.

3160. TEMPLE UNIVERSITY
Tyler School of Art
Beech & Penrose Aves 19126
(215) 224–7575 Tue–Wed 11–10, Thu–Sun 11–5
Dir: Ann Jarmusch
Contemporary art; crafts, photography, and design.

3161. 20TH CENTURY GALLERY
259 S 20th St 19103
(215) 735–1466
Dir: Frank Giannetta
Contemporary art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Bob Andriulli, Robert Finch, Paul Flexner, Michael P. Shanoski.

---

*see catalog index

3162. UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA
Institute of Contemporary Art
34th and Walnut Sts 19104
(215) 898-7108 Tue-Fri 10-5, Wed 10-7; Sat, Sun 12-5
Dir: Janet Kardon
Changing contemporary exhibitions, thematic shows, installations, performances.

3163. UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA
University Museum
33rd and Spruce Sts 19104
(215) 243-4000 Tue-Sat 10-4:30, Sun 1-5
Dir: Robert H. Dyson, Jr.
Chinese, Near Eastern, Indian, African, Pacific, Egyptian, North, Middle, and South American art; Benin bronzes, the Lyre of Ur, Greek pottery.

3164. WEBSTER/WALLNUTS GALLERY
2018 Locust St 19103
(215) 732-8850 Mon-Fri 10-6, Sat 11-4
Dir: Sande Webster
Contemporary paintings, prints, sculpture.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Becky Ault, Kenneth Bushnell, Mike Cunningham, Mark Forman, Helen Gilbert, Carolyn Hayward Jackson, Edward LeShock, John Seitz, SICA, Joe Stabilito, Hubert Taylor, Ryo Watanabe.

Other artists represented:
Jillian Barber, Syd Carpenter, Barbara Danin, David Dorell, James Dupree, James Johnston, Richard Jordon, Ann Krestensen, Nancy Lampert, Luis Lugo, James Norman, Bob Reinhardt, Charles Searles, Andrew Turner.

3165. WOODMERE ART GALLERY
9201 Germantown Ave 19118
(215) 247-0476 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Michael W. Schantz
Contemporary art, 19th-century works, prints, and drawings.

3166. THE WORKS GALLERY
319 South St 19147
(215) 922-7775 Mon-Fri 11-7, Sat 10:30-12, Sun 12-6
Dir: Ruth Snyderman/Rick Snyderman
Contemporary American crafts: glass, ceramics, wood, fiber, metals.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Patricia Campbell, Dale Chihuly*, Jamie Davis, Fritz Dreisbach, Stephen Dee Edwards*, Steve Gamza, Larry Kirkland, Harvey Littleton*, Susan Loftin, William Scholl, Bob Trotman.

Other artists represented:
Bennett Bean, Garry Knox Bennett, Tom Farrell, Audrey Handler, Nancy Herman, Bryant Holsenbeck, Mark Lindquist, Mel Lindquist, Ben Mack, William Morris, Dale Nish, Michael Pavlik.

3167. ROSENBACH MUSEUM AND LIBRARY
2010 Delancey Place 19103
(215) 732-1600 Sep-Jul, Tue-Sun 11-4
Dir: Suzanne Bolan
English and American literature and decorative arts; 17th-18th-century paintings, porcelain, carpets; Maurice Sendak collection.

Pittsburgh

3168. CARNEGIE INSTITUTE
Museum of Art
4400 Forbes Ave 15213
(412) 622-3200 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: John R. Lane
Contemporary, Impressionist paintings; sculpture, prints, drawings, photography, film, video, decorative arts, antiquities, Oriental art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ivan Albright, Akira Arita, Robert Bourdon, James Byrne, Mary Cassatt*, William Conlon*, Robert Cronin, Richard Diebenkorn*, Philip Guston*, Childe Hassam, Lee Herschenson, Gordon House*, Michael Morrill, Samuel Rosenberg, W. Eugene Smith*, James Torkalson, Steina Vasulka, Edward Whiteman, Martha Zelt.

3169. CONCEPT ART GALLERY
1031 S Braddock Ave 15218
(412) 242-9200
Dir: Sam Berkovitz
Contemporary and 20th-century art works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Marak Cecula, James Coignard, Daniel Joshua Goldstein, Henry Koerner, Henry Moore, Edward Nesteruk.

Other artists represented:
Harold Altman, Peter Calaboyais, Robert Kipniss, Concetta Mason, George Morris, Gordon Mortensen, Kenneth Phillips, Girts Purins, A. M. Schnurr, Marko Spalatin, Mark Symczak.

3170. FISHER COLLECTION
711 Forbes Ave 15219
(412) 562-8480 Mon-Fri 9-4
Dir: John C. Pavlik

3171. FRICK ART MUSEUM
7227 Reynolds St 15208
(412) 371-7766 Wed-Sat 10-5:30, Sun 12-6
Dir: Virginia E. Lewis
Italian Renaissance, Flemish, French 18th-century painting and decorative arts; bronzes, tapestries, porcelains; Russian 17th-18th-century silver.

3172. MATTRESS FACTORY
500 Sampsonia Way 15212
(412) 231-3169 By appt
Dir: Barbara Luderowski
Installations; non-profit.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Olijnyk, Diane Samuels, Athena Tacha.

3173. PITTSBURGH PLAN FOR ART
407 S Craig St 15213
(412) 683-7600 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Kennedy B. Nelson
Non-profit; regional and contemporary art, architecture, industrial design, performing arts.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Walter Bedel, Bud Gibbons, Daniel Graffin, Charles Jackson, Lois Kaufman, Cindy Snodgrass.

Other artists represented:
Thomas Brunger, Ron Desmett, Richard Devlin, Sheila Hicks, Lynne Marcovsky, Kathleen Mulcahy, James P. Nelson, Girts Purins, Diane Samuels, Joseph Shepler.

3174. UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH
University Art Gallery
Henry Clay Frick Fine Arts Bldg 15260
(412) 361-2648
Dir: David G. Wilkins
Teaching gallery.

3175. WIEBE & BONWELL GALLERIES
705 Liberty Ave 15222
(412) 765-3444 Mon-Fri 10-5, Sat 11-2
Dir: Charles M. Wiebe
Contemporary Pittsburgh artists; prints, American Impressionist paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Joel Collins, Lewis Kesling, Bob La Bobgäh*, Ivan Lacković*, John Seitz, Gregory Smith*, Lemonia Sotirakis, Mark Symczak, Utagawa Yoshiiku.

Other artists represented:
Jacques Callot, Elizabeth Daniels, Mark Gardner, Francisco Goya, Jim Heintz, Hirosada, Hiroshige, William Hogarth, Hokusai, Kunisada, Kuniyoshi, Leonard Leibowitz, Philip Mendlow, Giovanni Piranesi, Priscilla Robinson, Philip Rostek, Douglas Salveson.

Reading

3176. ALBRIGHT COLLEGE
Freedman Gallery
13th St 19604
(215) 921-2381 Mon-Fri 12-4, Tue 6-8, Sun 2-5
Dir: Judith Tannenbaum
Contemporary American art: painting, sculpture, photography, prints, and video.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Kent Floeter*, Robert Yasuda*.

3177. READING PUBLIC MUSEUM & ART GALLERY
500 Museum Rd 19611
(215) 371-5850 Mon-Fri 9-5, Sat 9-12, Sun 2-5
Dir: Bruce L. Dietrich
16th-20th-century European and American painting and sculpture; Oriental, American Indian works, graphic and decorative arts.

University Park

3178. PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY
Museum of Art 16802
(814) 865-7672 Tue-Sun 11-4:30
Dir: William D. Davis
American and European paintings, drawings, prints, and sculpture; Oriental ceramics, paintings, and prints; Ancient, African, and Near Eastern works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Richard Hamwi*, Dora de Pedery-Hunt, Milton Rogovin*, David B. Van Dommelen*.

Wilkes-Barre

3179. WILKES COLLEGE
Sordoni Art Gallery
150 S River St 18766
(717) 824-4651 ext 388 Sun-Fri 1-5, Sat 10-5, Thu eve 5-9
Dir: Judith H. O'Toole
Contemporary and early - 20th - century American art.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

York

3180. GALLERIE LOUISE
PO Box 561 17405
(717) 843-3026 Daily 10-6
Dir: Louise Ludwig
Contemporary sculpture, painting, graphics; Expressionists; Hudson River School.

Other artists represented:
Yaacov Agam, Charles Bragg, Alexander Calder, Sonia Delaunay, Diane Hansen, Richard C. Hoff, William Katz, Berger Mersad, Joan Miró, Rufino Tamayo, Victor Vasarely.

Puerto Rico

Dorado

3181. GALERIA 2
Cerromar Beach Hotel 00646
(809) 796-1010 ext 3038/796-4025 Fri 10-1, 2-6, Tue-Sun 10-6
Dir: Jorge Cancio
Puerto Rican art in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Gloria De Duncan, Jose Luis Diaz DeVillegas.

Other artists represented:
Jose E. Alicea, Alfonso Melendez Arana, Myrna Baez, John Balossi, Sylvia Blanco, Angel Botello, Andy Bueso, Carlos Callazo, Lorraine De Castro, Luis Hernandez Cruz, Leticia Menendez de Saint Germain, Enrique Elustondo, Susana Espinosa, Gretchen Haeussler, Rosita Haeussler, Bernardo Hogan, Antonio Martorell, Jag Mehta, Betsy Padin, Omar Quiñonez, Carlos Danila Rinaldi, Jaime Romano, Jerry St. Germain, Jaime Suarez, Isabel Vazquez.

Hato Rey

3182. GALERIA BOTELLO II
Plaza las Americas 143 00918
(809) 754-7430 Daily 10-6
Dir: Christiane Botello/Maud Duquella
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, Puerto Rican santos.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Juan Ramón Velazquez.

Other artists represented:
José Alicea, Angel Botello, Luis Hernandez Cruz, Gloria Duncan, Lorenzo Homar, Antonio Martorell, Betsy Padin, Joaquin Reyes, Julio Rosado del Valle, Carmelo Sobrino, Isabel Vazquez.

Old San Juan

3183. GALERIA PALOMAS
207 Cristo St 00901
(809) 724-8904/725-2660 Mon-Sat 10-6
Dir: Sharon Moya
Contemporary Latin American and Puerto Rican art and antique santos.

Other artists represented:
Olga Albizu, Jose Alicea, Rubin Rivera Aponte, Myrna Baez, Wilfredo Chiesa, Carlos Collazo, Jose Luis Cuevas, John Dawson, Antonio Diaz, Domingo Garcia, Jerry Saint Germain, Lorenzo Homar, Dorothy Swain Lewis, Antonio Lopez, Maryann Mackinnon, Tete Marella, Antonio Martorell, Robert Moya, Maria Antonia Ordonez, Richard Pagan, Ramiro Pazmino, Rafael Rivera Rosa, Julio Rosado del Valle, Harry Sternberg, Jaime Suarez, Leticia Tarrago.

3184. GALERIA SAN JUAN
Boulevard del Valle No 204-206 00901
(809) 722-1808/725-3829
Dir: Janet D'Esopo
Contemporary painting, sculpture, drawing, prints; young artists of Puerto Rico.

Other artists represented:
Luis Hernandez Cruz, Jan D'Esopo, Sanchez Filipe, Jag Mehta, Simone Mehta, Charles Pfahl, Theresa Spinner, Juan Ramón Velazquez.

Ponce

3185. MUSEO DE ARTE DE PONCE
Avenida de las Americas 00731
(809) 840-1510 Mon. Wed-Fri 10-12, 1-4; Sat 10-4; Sun 10-5
Dir: Rene Taylor
Permanent collection of historical and contemporary Puerto Rican, African, and European painting and sculpture; Pre-Columbian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Susana Espinosa*, Carlos Mérida*, Oscar Mestey*, Julio Rosado del Valle*, Alberto Ulloa*.

Rio Piedras

3186. UNIVERSITY OF PUERTO RICO
Museum of Anthropology, History and Art 00931
(809) 764-0000 Mon-Fri 9-9; Sat, Sun 9-3
Dir: Arturo V. Dávila
Historical and contemporary Puerto Rican painting and sculpture; regional artifacts.

San Juan

3187. ATENEO PUERTORRIQUENO
Ponce de Leon/Stop Two Apartado 11-80 00902
(809) 724-8608 Mon-Fri 9-9, Sat 9-5
Dir: Eduardo Morales Coll
Puerto Rican painting and sculpture, decorative arts, prints and historical materials.

3188. GALERIA BOTELLO I
208 Cristo St 00901
(809) 723-9987/723-2879 Daily 10-6
Dir: Christiane Botello
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, prints, Puerto Rican santos.

Other artists represented:
Jose Alicea, John Balossi, Silvia Blanco, Angel Botello, Elvira Coya, Eliasim Cruz, Luis Hernandez Cruz, Lindsay Daen, Loraine De Castro, Susana Espinosa, Antonio Martorell, Joaquin Reyes, Julio Rosado del Valle, Carmelo Sobrino, Juan Ramón Velazquez.

3189. GALERIA EUGENIO
Caleta de San Juan 70 00901
(809) 722-3448 Mon-Sat 10:30-5:30
Dir: Eugenio Fernández-Méndez
Haitian paintings; Puerto Rican, Latin American graphics, paintings.

Other artists represented:
Eugenio Fernández-Méndez, Marta Perez, José Ruiz.

3190. GALERIA SAN JERONIMO
999 Ashford Ave 00902
(809) 721-1000 ext 1487/722-1808 Mon-Sat 10-7, Sun 2-6
Dir: Teresina Richardson
Contemporary paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, and portraits.

Other artists represented:
Constance Bangs, Sylvia Blanco, Xander Cintrón, Luis Hernandez Cruz, Jan D'Esopo, Lorraine De Castro, Jack Kitson, Jacuelynn Kresman, Lajos Markos, Lisa Mayer, Judy Mayo, Jag Mehta, Raymond Page, Charles Pfahl, Alma Rivera, Jorge Romero, Theresa Spinner, Laurie Walker.

3191. INSTITUTE OF PUERTO RICAN CULTURE
Museo de Bellas Artes
Apartado 41-84 00915
(809) 724-0700 Mon, Wed, Fri 9-12, 1-4:30; Sat, Sun 9-5
Dir: Leticia del Rosario
Chronological exhibition of Puerto Rican painting and sculpture from the 18th century to the present.

Santurce

3192. MUSEO HISTORICO DE PUERTO RICO
1396 Giorgetti St 00909
(809) 725-4426 Tue-Fri 9-3
Dir: Rosa G. de Coll Vidal
Permanent exhibitions of Puerto Rican art and culture.

Rhode Island

Kingston

3193. UNIVERSITY OF RHODE ISLAND
Main Gallery
Fine Arts Center 02881
(401) 792-5831 Jun-Aug, Mon-Fri 12-3; Sep-May, Mon-Fri 7:30-9:30
Dir: Christopher Cordes
Exhibitions in all mediums by contemporary artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jared Bark, Cynthia Carlson, William Leete, Duane Michals.

Providence

3194. LILY ISELIN GALLERY
218 Wickenden St 02903
(401) 272-9769
Dir: Lily G. Iselin

Other artists represented:
Trent Burleson, Rita McCarthy, Malcolm Moran, Marcia Slomowitz, Hugh Townley, Victoria Wulff.

---

*see catalog index

3195. JEB GALLERY
305 S Main St 02903
(401) 272-3312 Tue-Sat 11-5:30; By appt
Dir: Ronald Caplain
Photography and photography books.

Other artists represented:
William Clift, Lee Friedlander, Oliver Gagliani, Yousef Karsh, Max Kozloff, Joel Meyerowitz, Jerry Uelsmann, Kelly Wise.

3196. RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN
Museum of Art
224 Benefit St 02903
(401) 331-3511 Tue, Wed, Fri, Sat 10:30-5, Thu 1-9, Sun 2-5
Dir: Franklin W. Robinson
Sculpture, painting, graphics, decorative arts, furniture, textiles—middle ages to the present; European, American, ancient Greek and Oriental works.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Larry Clark, Danny Ferrington, Edward Lear*, Robert E. Locher, Enid Yandell.

3197. RHODE ISLAND SCHOOL OF DESIGN
Woods-Gerry Gallery
62 Prospect St 02906
(401) 331-3511 ext 147 Mon-Fri 10-4, Sat 11-4, Sun 2-5
Dir: Chris Deigman
Student, faculty, and alumni exhibitions.

South Carolina

Charleston

3198. GIBBES ART GALLERY
135 Meeting St 29401
(803) 722-2706 Tue-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Charles L. Wyrick, Jr.
American portraits, prints, photography, and miniatures; Oriental art; contemporary art; loan exhibits.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Nena Allen, Paul Cadmus*, Sam Doyle, Michael Tyzack, Margaret Wharton*.

Columbia

3199. COLUMBIA MUSEUMS OF ART AND SCIENCE
1112 Bull St 29201
(803) 799-2810 Mon-Fri 10-5; Sat, Sun 1-5
Dir: Walter Hathaway
Renaissance and Baroque art, European and American paintings and decorative arts, Oriental ceramics, crafts, contemporary art.

3200. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA
McKissick Museums 29208
(803) 777-7251 Mon-Fri 9-4; Sep-May Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: George D. Terry
Changing art exhibitions; regional and university history, silver, Art Nouveau, Catawba pottery, Arts and Crafts ceramics.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jan Aronson, Steven Gately, Jasper Johns*, Lawrence Jordan, Jan Millsapps, Neville Smith.

Greenville

3201. FURMAN UNIVERSITY
Art Gallery 29613
(803) 294-2074 Daily 9-5
Dir: Thomas E. Flowers
Teaching gallery with monthly exhibitions.

3202. GREENVILLE COUNTY MUSEUM OF ART
420 College St 29601
(803) 271-7570 Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Philip R. Warth
North American paintings, sculpture, graphics, Indian artifacts and crafts; works by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Jamie Davis, Lenore Davis, Rose Ann Featherston, Paul Harris, Bill Hellwig, Laura Schecter, Bob Trotman, Andrew Wyeth.

3203. BOB JONES UNIVERSITY Museum of Sacred Art
Wade Hampton Blvd 29614
(803) 242-5100 Tue-Sun 2-5
Dir: Joan C. Davis
13th-19th-century religious art, especially Flemish, Dutch, German, French, Italian, and Spanish.

Hartsville

3204. COKER COLLEGE
New Gallery 29550
(803) 332-1381 Mon-Fri 10-4
Teaching gallery; graphics, photography, painting; regional, national, international exhibitions.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michelle Barbe, Ignacio Gomez-Pulido.

Hilton Head Island

3205. ARTISTIC SASS
14 Greenwood Dr #6 29928
(803) 785-8442 Daily 10-10
Dir: P. Tarchinski/R. Tarchinski
Sculpture, painting, prints, glass, clay, wood, fiber, drawing.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Michael Baggett, Mark Elliot Flowers, Kristy Lynn Higby, Kathryn Hodgman, Richard Jolley, Cynthia Knapp.

Other artists represented:
John Acorn, Peter Adams, Tom Armbruster, Terese Baker, Matthew Baumgardner, Gary Beechum, Suzanne Benton, Curt Benzle, Sue Benzle, Matthew Buechner, Thomas Buechner, Carl Davidt, Jamie Davis, Robert Doster, J. R. Grossman, Dawn King, John Littleton, Colleen Ott, Dan Rodriguez, Yaffa Sikorsky, David Snair, Mark Stanitz, Louise Todd-Cope, James Van Deurzen, Michael Vatalaro, Kate Vogel, Don Wilcox.

3206. RED PIANO ART GALLERY
220 Cordillo Pkwy 29928
(803) 785-2318 Tue-Sat 11-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Louanne C. LaRoche
Contemporary American art; African and Nepalese works; black American folk art.

Other artists represented:
Bernard D'Andrea, Sam Doyle, Ray G. Ellis, Charles Parks, George Plante, Jean Riest Stark.

Orangeburg

3207. SOUTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE
I.P. Stanback Museum/Planetarium 29117
(803) 536-7174 Mon-Fri 9-4:30
Dir: Leo F. Twiggs
African and Afro-American art; Benin bronzes; photography collection.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roland Freeman, Terry Hunter, Kay Palmer.

Pickens

3208. PICKENS COUNTY ART COMMISSION-ART MUSEUM
PO Box 722 29671
(803) 878-4965 Tue 1-5; Wed-Fri 9-12, 1-5; Sun 3-5
Dir: Barry Davis
Contemporary art; collections and exhibitions.

Spartanburg

3209. ARTS COUNCIL OF SPARTANBURG
385 S Spring St 29301
(803) 583-2776 Mon-Fri 9-5
Dir: C. E. Baker
Permanent collection of over 75 paintings; community arts agency with gallery spaces, classrooms, and meeting rooms.

Other artists represented:
Leonard Baskins, Robert Henri, Claire M. Hopkins, Margaret M. Law, William T. Richards, Emily M. Smith.

3210. CONVERSE COLLEGE
Milliken Gallery
PO Box 29 29301
(803) 585-6421, ext 251, 331
Dir: Henry J. Fagen, Jr.
Teaching gallery exhibiting student works; invitationals; travelling exhibitions organized at a nominal cost.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Melissa Meyer.

Other artists represented:
Freya Hansell, Abby Robinson, Hunt Slonem, Ann Stoddard, Tamara Thompsen, Norman Tuck.

3211. THE GALLERY
385 S Spring St 29301
(803) 582-7616 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Pamela Nienhuis
Non-profit; Southeastern artists.

3212. SPARTANBURG COUNTY ART ASSOCIATION GALLERY
385 South Spring St 29301
(803) 582-7616 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Pamela Nienhuis
Non-profit organization to promote fine art and crafts by regional artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Eva Carter, Bob Doster, Judy Jones, Robert Eric Moore, Jane Nodine.

Other artists represented:
Carol Augthun, Carl Blair, Betty Bromlett, Debora Childress, Doug Dacey, Douglas Greer, Curtis Harley, Larry Mauldin, Sara Dame Setzer, Mary Ellen Suitt, Barbour Taylor, John Turner, Betty Walker, Genie Wilder, Paige Williamson.

see last page for advertiser's index

VOL 71 ISS 7 AG 1983 UMI

3213. UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA, SPARTANBURG
Library Art Gallery 29303
(803) 578-1800
Dir: Kathryn Hicks
Works by South Carolina and Southeastern artists.

3214. WOFFORD COLLEGE
Sandor Teszler Library Gallery 29301
(803) 585-4821 Daily 9-5
Dir: Frank J. Anderson
U.S., and regional and international works in all mediums.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Ruth Bavetta, Jean Wall Penland, Mary Schweder, Zsuzsa Stuiber, Robert Swierkiewicz.

South Dakota

Aberdeen

3215. NORTHERN STATE COLLEGE
Lincoln Hall Gallery 57401
(605) 622-2514 Mon-Fri 10-4
Dir: Jim Gibson
Contemporary art.

Brookings

3216. SOUTH DAKOTA MEMORIAL ART CENTER
Medary Ave at Harvey Dunn St 57007
(605) 688-5423 Mon-Fri 8-5, Sat 10-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Joseph Stuart
Works by Native American and contemporary South Dakota artists; Eastern Sioux and Ojibwa art; Plains Indian art.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Catherine Ferguson, Oscar Howe.

3217. SOUTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY
Rita Gallery
Solberg Hall 57007
(605) 688-4103 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: Mark Lazarus
Teaching gallery with works in all mediums by Midwestern artists.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Sheila Agee, Rich Cooper, Robert Crise, Jeff Freeman, Brad Jirka.

Mitchell

3218. OSCAR HOWE ART CENTER
119 W 3rd 57301
(605) 996-4111 Mon-Sat 10-5
Dir: Margaret Quintal
Exhibitions, workshops; works by Sioux artist, Oscar Howe.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Oscar Howe*

Mobridge

3219. KLEIN MUSEUM ART GALLERY
W Highway 12 57601
(605) 845-7243 Mon-Sat 9-12, 1-5, Sun 2-5
Dir: Mrs. Earl Burns
Regional, pioneer, Indian history and fine arts; 19th-century American paintings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Mick Harrison, Jack Ross.

Pine Ridge

3220. HERITAGE CENTER
Red Cloud Indian School 57770
(605) 867-5491 Daily 9-5
Dir: C.M. Simon
American Indian art; Sioux painting, bead and quill work; Northwest Coast prints.

Other artists represented:
Cecil Apple, Gladys Ecker, Robert Freeman, King Kuka, Jane Mauldin, Donald Ruleaux, Vic Runnels, C. A. Rutledge, Carol Snow, Brenda Stewart, Charlene Teeters, Edward Two Bulls.

Rapid City

3221. ANAKOTA ARTS
522 7th St, Suite 213 57701
(605) 348-1890 Mon-Sat 10-6, Thu 10-8
Dir: Anna Marie Thatcher
Western art; contemporary prints, watercolors, sculpture; weavings.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
Roger Broer, William McEnroe, Jacqueline Rochester.

Other artists represented:
Lois Carlisle, Grete Heikes, Dale Lamphere, Ravae Marsh-Luckhart, Terry Mimnaugh, Todd Schweiger, Jane Scott, Margie Swift, Dick Termes.

3222. DAHL FINE ARTS CENTER
713 7th St 57701
(605) 394-4101 Mon-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Ruth Brennan
Touring and invitational exhibitions; small permanent collection.

3223. SIOUX INDIAN MUSEUM AND CRAFTS CENTER
PO Box 1504 57709
(605) 348-8834 Tue-Sat 9-5, Sun 1-5
Dir: Myles Libhart
Historic and contemporary works by Sioux and other Native American artists and craftspersons.

One person exhibitions in 1982:
R. G. Bowker*, Ronald Cheek*, Andrew Laverdure*, Lloyd One Star*, D. Bret Two Eagles*.

Sioux Falls

3224. AUGUSTANA COLLEGE
Center for Western Studies 57197
(605) 336-4007 Mon-Fri 8-5
Dir: Sven Froiland
Western, Southwestern art; prints; research and archival agency.

Other artists represented:
John Allen, Lorenzo Black Lance, Harvey Dunn, Paul Goble, Mick Harrison, Oscar Howe, Don Schellhouse, Mitchell Zephier.

3225. CIVIC FINE ARTS CENTER
